The masses are in motion. They are demanding immediate militant and uncompromising action, not only for the defense of the Scottsboro boys but also on the whole question of the violation of the elementary constitutional rights of the Negro people, dramatically symbolized in the Scottsboro case. They are demanding immediate action on the part of the Roosevelt government, the allies of the Southern white rulers, to enforce the rights guaranteed under the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution.

Concrete Action

The I.L.D. therefore proposes to the Emergency Scottsboro Conference as called by the Scottsboro Unity Defense Committee for this Sunday, and to all working class and progressive organizations of every color and nationality, of every political and religious belief, the following:

1. To organize a Free the Scottsboro Boys March upon Washington.
2. To collect and present to President Roosevelt 1,000,000 signatures demanding the immediate, unconditional and safe release of the nine Scottsboro boys.
3. To present to Congress a bill to be passed at once, providing for immediate and strict enforcement of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

The I.L.D. suggests Friday, April 28, as the date on which thousands of Negro and white workers are to arrive in masses from nearest points in delegations from farther ones, before the White House and Capitol.

In the course of preparation for the Free the Scottsboro Boys March these shall be the immediate demands:

1. A new trial for Haywood Patterson.
2. Postponement of the other trials until after the appeal has been acted upon in Haywood Patterson's case.
3. Negroes and white workers to serve on the jury.
4. Transfer of all Scottsboro trials to Birmingham.
5. Full safeguard for the Scottsboro boys, all lawyers and defense witnesses in the case.
6. Immediate, unconditional and safe release for the nine Scottsboro boys.

Upon receipt of this Call let the Scottsboro Emergency Conference and every other organization not yet within this body take up and endorse our proposals and jointly with us get to work at once on all the details that will place upon an organized basis the tremendous movement of the black and white masses to compel the ruling class to let go of their victims, the nine Scottsboro boys, and to grant the Negro masses every constitutional right.

Long live the unity of the black and white masses, North and South!

Only the masses can compel the freedom of the Scottsboro boys, Tom Mooney, Angelo Herndon, and every other victim of ruling class terror and national oppression!

On to Washington!

'SCOTTSBORO' RETRIAL JURY OUT 21 HOURS

4-10-33

Nineteen-Year-Old Chattanooga Negro For Second Time Faces Death Chair

WEEMS TRIAL TO BE NEXT

Defense Counsel in Celebrated Affair Says 'Fight Has Just Begun'

DECATUR, Ala., April 9 (AP)—Death in the electric chair confronted Heywood Patterson, 19-year-old Chattanooga Negro, for the second time Sunday as a Morgan county jury in the first retrial of the "Scottsboro case" found him guilty of attacking a white woman.

The verdict was returned at 10:58 a. m. (Central standard time) after the jury had been out 21 hours. Judge James E. Horton had ordered the reconvening of court at 10 o'clock to receive a report from the jury, but a delay of nearly an hour occurred until he arrived at the courthouse.

A hundred spectators received the verdict in silence. Patterson himself, who once before had been sentenced to death on the same charge, lowered his head and appeared nervous as the jury made its report. Shortly afterward a squad of national guardsmen escorted him from the courtroom to jail.

Shortly afterwards Patterson was taken under military escort to Birmingham to join his eight companions yet facing trial who were taken there last night.

"Fight has Just Begun"

In a statement after the verdict was announced, Samuel S. Leibowitz, of New York, chief of defense counsel, said the fight has just begun.

His statement follows:

"This verdict is an act of bigots, spitting upon the tomb of Abraham Lincoln.

"We would have been more than delighted to have left it to the hands of Judge Horton, but it is a pity the law prevented that. We will fight with every drop of blood in our veins to free these men, because they are innocent, as every reasonable human being that sat in the courtroom hearing the evidence must have felt. It is only a pity that amid these beautiful surroundings and glorious country, unaccustomed to the strange visitors where there is on every hand hospitality and courtesy such race hatred and bigotry should live.

"I think the prosecutor of this county (Solicitor Wade Wright) when he resorted in his bombast to the mud gutter in hurling vilification on the great people of New York and its vost body of Jewish citizens, perhaps represented in his way a cross section of what the defendants and lawyers representing them were faced with."

International Interest Shown

The outcome of the trial added a new chapter to the strange case, which has aroused international interest since Patterson and seven other young Negroes were convicted of attacking two women and sentenced to death at Scottsboro, Ala., two years ago. The present retrials, which were brought here on a change of venue, resulted from a decision of the United States Supreme court setting aside the original death sentences.

Late Sunday, after the jury had taken Patterson's case, Judge Horton granted severances for the other defendants and the trial of Charlie Weems was set for April 17 after counsel had entered a plea of not guilty for him. Only seven of the original group of nine Negroes charged with the attack are involved in the retrials. The other two were held to be juveniles and their cases await further investigation.

After the spreading of numerous rumors that mobs were forming here, for which authorities insisted there was no foundation, members of counsel for the Negroes asserted Saturday that fiery crosses had flamed on Alabama's hills the previous night and that they believed their lives were threatened. A joint statement by Joseph R. Brodsky of New York, a defense attorney, and Leibowitz asserted that the burning of the crosses followed a remark in court that day by Solicitor Wade Wright of Decatur that witnesses for the defense were being "bought with Jew money." The statement added that "only the presence of the national guard prevented a mob from entering Decatur."

Girl Reverses Her Story

Brodsky is one of the attorneys engaged by the International Labor defense to defend the Negroes, while Leibowitz offered his services to that organization.

The latter part of Patterson's trial also was featured by the dramatic appearance of one of the women who had been missing from her home for some time. Saying she had just arrived from a hitch-hiking trip to New York, she repudiated the testimony she gave in the original trials two years ago. She denied that she had been attacked and said she had not seen the other woman molested by the Negroes as they rode through North Alabama aboard a freight train on which the two women were hoboing their way home after seeking work in Tennessee.

Prosecuting attorneys, headed by Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, Jr., charged immediately that she had perjured herself, and spoke of "sinister influences" in New York, which they said were responsible for the fact that she appeared in court smartly dressed in contrast to the inexpensive attire of the other woman. Judge Horton took cognizance of this development in his charge to the jury when he said: "The law has a stern duty to perform, and when women of the underworld come before it, the jury must consider that fact."

Judge Horton also said [illegible] should be no thought of co[illegible] race or sectionalism in the [illegible] deliberations.

Will Appeal to President

NEW YORK, April 9. (AP)—The national office of the International Labor Defense announced Sunday night that an appeal will be taken immediately in the case of Haywood Patterson, Negro convicted Sunday in Decatur, Ala., in the Scottsboro case.

4-10-33

The announcement said the case will be fought to the supreme court if necessary.

"The immediate demands of the I. L. D.," said William L. Patterson, national secretasy, "now will be for a new trial . . . change of venue to Birmingham for the remaining boys to be tried, adjournment of their trials until after the appeal in the Patterson case, and immediate unconditional, safe release for all the nine boys.

"The demands will be made not only to the courts and state authorities of Alabama, but to President Roosevelt, who, as chief executive, will be called upon to give protection to the boys, their witnesses and lawyers, whether they are menaced with lynching by a jury or by extra-legal agencies.

"Determined to Murder"

"The lynchers of the south," read the organization's formal statement, "the landlords and mill owners, whose system of oppression and terror against the Negro people and the poor whites has been most sharply challenged in the fight to save the lives of the Scottsboro boys, are determined to murder them.

"These rulers of the south have common interests with the rulers of the north. The United States supreme court is the common tool of both.

"The life of Haywood Patterson, and the lives of the eight other innocent Negro boys, rests now where it has always rested, in the hands of the workers of the world, Negro and white, who have four times already saved them from death."

Harlem Petition Signed

As soon as word of Patterson's conviction reached Harlem Sunday, William Davis, publisher of a Negro newspaper, posted on his bulletin board a petition by which the residents of the Negro section would signify their intention of going to Washington to protest to President Roosevelt.

The petition was posted at noon and by 4:30 o'clock more than 16,000 signatures had been obtained.

Police estimated 2,500 persons were waiting in a double line to add their names, and five patrolmen were assigned to keep them in order.

Davis said he planned to have 50,000 Negroes from all parts of the country join the movement to Washington.

He sent telegrams to publishers of Negro newspapers in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Norfolk, Va., asking them to join in the plan.

NEW YORK CITY POST
APRIL 10, 1933

THE ALABAMA VERDICT

We regret the death sentence against the Negro, Haywood Patterson, in his retrial in Alabama on charges of criminal assault upon two wayward white girls. We regret it because the penalty seems excessive, even if the testimony, some of it clearly perjured, had proved unmistakably the guilt of the nine colored boys of whom Patterson is the first to go to trial. But our main regret is that the possibility of truth and justice is now utterly lost in a welter of race, sectional and political passions that can never be untied. The South has its fundamental racial enmity between white and black. That enmity undoubtedly entered into this case. Yet it was not wise to provoke and complicate it by bringing in as the defender of the Negroes a Northerner, a radical and a Jew. When that was done, three other bigotries were added to the "color-line" already existing. Hope of real justice vanished. The Negroes at once became as much victims of their would-be saviors as they were of the Southern whites.

SCOTTSBORO, A SYMBOL!

No event of recent years could serve to enlighten America and the world on the unfair practices in Southern States so much as the exposure of the studied exclusion of Negroes from juries by councel for the seven Scottsboro boys now on trial for their lives.

But Scottsboro does not stand alone. It is a symbol of the efforts of the white ruling class to keep down the Negro masses. Similar conditions exist throughout the South. Indeed, while perhaps not as flagrant, yet nevertheless violations of constitutional rights are frequent in the Northern States.

It behooves Negroes everywhere to organize and fight the conditions which make a Scottsboro possible. Only through organization and militant fighting can a square deal ever be assured persons of color in America.

Lynchings-1933 I

Alabama

4261

Legal Punishment for Rape

Negro Worker In Court today for Scottsboro Protest

10-17-33

NEW YORK.—Harold Lyons, Negro worker arrested for being present at a Scottsboro protest meeting two days after Tammany police had brutally broken up the meeting, will come up for trial today in the Criminal Court Building, Part 4, at Franklin and Center Sts. Lyons is being defended by the International Labor Defense. White and Negro workers are urged to pack the court to protest this outrageous frame-up of a Negro worker.

New York

SCOTTSBORO FRAUD ON JURY CHARGED

Times

11-25-33

Leibowitz Offers New Ground to Quash the Indictments Against Nine Negroes.

New York Times

IN CLASHES WITH JUDGE

Latter Says Patterson Trial Must End in 3 Days, Sets Norris Case Thanksgiving.

By F. RAYMOND DANIELL.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DECATUR, Ala., Nov. 24.—Samuel S. Leibowitz, chief counsel for the defense in the Scottsboro case, asked Circuit Judge W. W. Callahan today to quash the indictments against his clients on the ground that the grand jury which indicted them in the Spring of 1931 for attacking two white girls was drawn from a list fraudulently prepared.

This new ground for quashing of the indictments was advanced after Judge Callahan set next Thursday for the beginning of the trial of Clarence Norris, one of the nine Negroes whose first trial at Scottsboro was held unfair by the United States Supreme Court.

In setting Thanksgiving Day for the opening of the Norris trial Judge Callahan expressed the opinion that three days would be sufficient for the third trial of Haywood Patterson, one of the Negroes, who has been convicted twice and saved twice from the electric chair on appeal.

"We're going to make speed beginning Monday," he said as he went about the business of drawing 100 names from the jury box for the Norris trial.

Patterson's trial is to start on Monday, and a special panel of 100 talesmen has been summoned.

Judge Speeds Hearings.

Judge Callahan, indicating a growing impatience with the slow progress of the defense attack upon the Alabama jury system, ordered the lawyers to return to court after dinner. It was the second night session since the hearings, which run from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M., began last Monday.

The defense has been seeking to have the indictments returned against the Negroes, accusing them of a joint attack upon Ruby Bates and Victoria Price, invalidated on the ground that members of the colored race are systematically excluded from jury service in Jackson County, where the alleged crime occurred.

Although witnesses have testified at this hearing and the one before Circuit Judge James E. Horton last Spring that they never had heard of a Negro serving on a Jackson County jury, the jury roll produced in court yesterday for the first time contained the names of several Negro citizens.

It was the discovery of these names which led Mr. Leibowitz to charge today that the jury roll was forged after indictment of the Negroes and after criticism of the Alabama jury system had developed. A New York handwriting expert is on his way here with microscopes and other paraphernalia to help the defense attorney to prove his contention.

Officials Study Jury Roll.

The whole court day today was spent in a perusal of the Jackson County jury roll by J. E. Moody, president of the Jackson County Jury Commission; J. Hunt Stewart, a member of the board in 1931, and Hamlin Caldwell, court stenographer of Jackson County, who in twenty-four years' experience says he has never known a Negro to serve upon a grand or petit jury.

Judge A. E. Hawkins, who presided at the first trial of the Negroes and for whom a subpoena was issued, failed to appear when his name was called.

Mr. Leibowitz read into the record far into the night the testimony taken the last time he tried to prove systematic exclusion of Negroes from jury service.

But before he began he stated the additional ground upon which he seeks to have the indictments against his clients quashed. The prosecutor made no objection.

During the day, at the request of defense attorneys, subpoenas were issued for six of the men identified as Negroes when their names were read from the jury list yesterday. These men were Hugh Sanford, Pies Larkins, Travis Mosely, K. O. Snodgress, Cam Rudder and Mark Taylor.

Mr. Moody, who was asked to supply the court with samples of his handwriting, said that it looked to him as if most of the names in the jury roll were written in the hand of Kelly Morgan, former clerk of the jury commission.

Judge Bars an Answer.

While Mr. Stewart was on the stand he admitted that he knew Mark Taylor, one of the Negroes whose names appeared on the jury roll.

"Is he qualified to serve as a juror?" asked Mr. Leibowitz.

"Don't you answer that," said Judge Callahan, without waiting for objection from the State.

The judge and the New York attorney were at odds several times during the day. Once, when Mr. Leibowitz was entering an objection to a question by Attorney General Thomas E. Knight Jr., the prosecutor, Judge Callahan asked him:

"Are you making an objection or a speech?"

"It's an objection, your honor," said Mr. Leibowitz.

"Well, it's overruled anyway," said Judge Callahan.

When Judge Callahan set Thursday for his trial, Mr. Leibowitz protested, first, because the date selected was Thanksgiving Day, and, second, because he said he did not think Patterson's trial would be over then.

"Oh, yes it will," said Judge Callahan. "We're going to make speed in this case. We're going to start making speed on Monday. We'll be through in three days if the Lord is willing."

When Mr. Leibowitz asserted he would have about fifty witnesses, and Attorney General Knight said he didn't know how many the State would have, Judge Callahan remarked that it didn't matter much.

"I'm fixing to conclude this case in three days," he said. "I don't care if you have a thousand."

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
AGE HERALD

OCT 24 1933

On Shifting Judges

It is deeply to be regretted that Judge Horton will not sit in the so-called Scottsboro cases, now reset for hearing at Decatur late in November with Judge Callahan presiding. That can be said without offering or implying any reflection upon Judge Callahan. The fact which cannot be overlooked is that the judge who has already tried the cases and who has done so with infinite credit to himself and the state of Alabama, is not being permitted to bring to a fresh investigation the benefit of his experience and the assurance of his unfaltering courage.

Just why the change was made by the authorities having the matter in hand has not been given out. In the circumstances, one can only speculate. Some of us will feel that it is a sound step. Others farther removed from the scene may be disposed to view the matter differently. It is an incalculable pity that critics of Alabama are thus being provided with another excuse for denying that full justice is administered in our courts when Negroes are defendants under conditions which bring into play the prejudices of the whites.

Having before him the example of his colleague, Judge Callahan can be relied on, we are sure, to meet the high test to which he is to be subjected. He is fully aware, we take it, of the national and international interest which these cases have aroused. He is fully aware of the anxiety with which intelligent Alabamians regard further developments in a business which has already made this commonwealth the object of pointed censure. If anything was needed to make him ready for his best functioning as judge, the situation provides that prod.

But to believe this is not necessarily to consider wise the shift which takes out of this cause the brave and veteran judge, whose behavior in the last trial won the praise of all thoughtful observers. Putting every other question aside, what is the sense of dispensing with the services of a man who is specially equipped to render justice in this affair? That, we suppose, will remain a mystery until an explanation is given us by those responsible for the arrangement. Meanwhile, it can be said that our hearts, our hopes and our prayers are all with Judge Callahan.

White Woman, Former Decatur Resident, Tells of Life in South, Backs Fight for the Scottsboro Boys

Finds Oppression is Worse Than Ever on Return to Birmingham

Daily Worker
11-23-33
New York, N.Y.

(By a Negro Worker Correspondent)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Having been born and raised in Birmingham, which I left on account of oppression, I was surprised when I returned there recently to find the Negro more oppressed than ever.

Establishments that have existed for decades and during their existence hired cheap Negro laborers, now hoist bankrupt signs, go temporarily out of business, and soon afterward reopen with all white laborers simply to displace the underpaid Negroes.

The N.R.A. demands that a living wage be paid every man regardless of color. The officials of these firms swear they are damned if they will pay a living wage to a Negro. They would pay it to the man of their color, who needs it more, they say, because of his higher standard of living. Now, unless some Moses (in the form of the Federal government) comes along and helps these modern Isrealites, these oncoming winter months, will be hard.

The revelation of the inefficiency of the N.R.A. to cope with the hardships of the Negroes did not appear as bad to me as the nightly doings of a selected group of policemen. Eleven o'clock is the time limit for Negroes to walk the streets, though they are taxed (in proportion) the same as members of other races. After eleven, if Negroes are caught walking in the streets, the Slingshot Squad shoots wire staples at their legs and feet, the same as they would birds. If a Negro should chance to meet a friend on the street and stop to talk after the time specified, they are caught by another selected squad. They are questioned as to where they have been, where going, and why out? And if slow in responding to the questioning, they are whipped with a five foot piece of water hose and sent on their way.

In the North we are treated more like human beings. Never shall I return to this damnable spot on earth unless one of my loved ones passes away and only respect will persuade me to return then.

• • •

Editor's Note:—This worker draws a vivid picture of oppression in the South, but his hope that the Federal Government or the N. R. A. may be induced to do something about it only gives rise to an illusion under which the ruling class tries to weaken the mass struggles of Negro and white workers against this oppression. The government in Washington is just as much a tool of the capitalist ruling class as is the state government of Alabama or the city government of Birmingham, and only the united struggle of Negro and white workers will defeat the N. R. A. and government program of discrimination and oppression.

Also, while the oppression of the Negro in the North is not shown in such open and brutal form as in the South, discrimnation on the job and in the neighborhoods is just as widespread and is based on the oppression in the South.

Daily Worker will be spread all over Alabama and especially in Decatur where I was raised. In reading the Daily Worker I see lots of names, in fact I know most of them, Mr. Winton on Fifth Ave., Elizabeth Morris on Prospect Drive, she being second door neighbor to my father.

Well, I guess all those that make threats still have a few meals ahead of sowbelly, sorghum molasses and corn bread. I know that is practically their daily menu, for I was raised there and raised on it, and existed on it, while at the same time in 1928 was doing laundry work for our living for a family of seven, and because it was so-called "nigger work" in the South, in some mysterious way we had to move, known only to Mr. Otta on Fifth Ave., South. Yes, I know all those crooks, and believe me, I'm spreading the news to my father, sending him Daily Workers, as he is still in that good country, the Democratic South. I only wish I was there for a while just to tell them all what they can do. They just don't know any different, they know they are suffering. Here is a part of a letter I got from my father a few days ago, as follows:

"You think you are having an awful time in Flint, but I hope you have a bed to sleep on. We haven't a bed to sleep on, or a chair to sit on, or a table to eat on, and nothing to eat. Our clothes are just rags, haven't had a pair of shoes in over three years. We are sleeping on the floor and our house is just a shack worse than our barn was on Prospect Drive in Decatur. I am almost blind—one eye is gone." This is the exact copy of the letter from my father.)

Now my father is 79 years of age. He spent about twenty years of his life in the L. & N. railroad shop in Decatur. He came out on that sell-out strike about 1922, and wouldn't go back. My mother had a long spell of sickness, and died in 1927. My father had managed to pay for his home somewhere near three thousand dollars, and during sickness he borrowed seven hundred and fifty dollars on his home from Mr. Thornhill, another of Decatur's noted crooks, so there went his home. In other words, his life savings gone, now he is cast aside on a hillside at Boas, Alabama, living under the club of a Mr. Sneed. I just can't swallow such stuff any longer. If I ever get down there again, I will at least give them a chase. I knew exactly how the Negroes are treated throughout the South. I know just what they would say to me if I go down there.

I'm a full-blooded southern born American of the working class, for the working class, black, white, foreign-born, native-born, hoping for freedom for all the Scottsboro boys, and wishing I could be in Decatur during their trial. I heard Ruby Bates speak in Flint. She is well acquainted with all my people, so if you have space in our paper, I would like you to correct all mis-spelled words, if any, and pass these few remarks around the globe. You can use my initials.

—W. T. P.

• • •

P.S.—I'm going to write Mr. Roosevelt to stop over for a visit with my dad on his trip to his summer home in Georgia. It is close by. Perhaps if Mr. Litvinoff goes with him, they can gather in shacks enough to make a bed for two.

ALABAMA NEGROES PUT ON JURY LIST

Times

Disclosure Is Challenged by the Scottsboro Defense as Tampering With Roll.

11-24-33

WRITING EXPERT CALLED

N.Y.

Uncovering of Seven Names After Series of Denials Electrifies Decatur Court.

By F. RAYMOND DANIELL.
Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Times
11-24-33
N.Y.

DECATUR, Ala., Nov. 23.—The mammoth volume which contains the names of those Jackson County citizens deemed qualified to serve as jurors was produced in court today, and it created a sensation in the Scottsboro case.

Inscribed upon its pages were the names of seven Negroes, the very one whom Samuel Leibowitz sought vainly to show last Spring possessed all the statutory requirements for jury duty.

Mr. Leibowitz, who had made a dramatic reurn to the rôle of chief counsel for the defense, immediately set about the task of proving that the Negroes' names had been entered fraudulently on the jury list since his Negro clients were indicted for attacking two white girls in March, 1931.

He sent to New York for John V. Haring, a handwriting expert who testified in the Hall-Mills murder case, and, pending the arrival of the witness, he had Judge W. W. Callahan, presiding, impound the jury roll.

His questioning of J. [illegible] Moody, president of the Jackson County Jury Commission, left no doubt that he hopes to show that the Negroes' names were entered on the rolls since he opened his attack upon Alabama's "lily white" jury system.

Dramatic Scene in Court.

The defense, which earlier in the day had lost a motion to quash the venire from which a jury will be chosen Monday to try Heywood Patterson, one of the defendants, for a third time, was seeking to quash the indictments against all seven of the prisoners here for trial. Alleged systematic exclusion of Negroes for purely racial reasons was the basis for both motions.

The climax came when Mr. Leibowitz made it clear that he expected to prove that the names of Negroes were added to the grand jury roll long after the Negroes accused of attacking Victoria Price and Ruby Bates were indicted, and after the jury system which Alabama has had since the days of reconstruction was challenged by the defense.

Attorney General Thomas E. Knight Jr., limping about the court room suffering from a gunshot wound received while investigating a lynching at Tuscaloosa, was pale of face and his voice was flat as he registered his objections to the questions of Mr. Leibowitz.

Judge Callahan left his place on the bench to peer over the shoulder of the New York attorney as he pointed out the circumstances which formed the basis of his suspicions.

In the face of the old judge who supported Alfred E. Smith for President in 1928 and helped stop the organization of a Decatur unit of the Ku Klux Klan there was admiration as Mr. Leibowitz proceeded with his examination of the jury commission's president.

Joseph R. Brodsky and G. W. Chamlee, associates of Mr. Leibowitz and also retained by the communistic International Labor Defense, looked pleased.

Times
11-24-33
N.Y.

Discovery of a Negro on Roll.

From the questions propounded by Mr. Leibowitz and the answers made by Mr. Moody, it appeared that when the present jury commission took office in 1931 it made up its own rolls of citizens available for jury duty. After the names listed by the retiring commission they drew two red lines.

Mr. Leibowitz called Judge Callahan's attention to the fact that in nearly every case, when the name of a Negro appeared upon the roll, it was written on the last line of space devoted to each precinct of the county, a line in most cases left vacant. The two red lines ran through the names of all the Negroes identified as such today.

The first definite identification of a Negro on the roll came at 4:05 P. M., when the court room was almost empty. Mr. Moody, by the court's direction, had stopped specifying that the names be read from the rolls were white. By Judge Callahan's direction it was assumed that all those he knew were white unless he specified otherwise.

Judge Callahan was chatting with a group of newspaper men when Mr. Moody read off the name of Hugh Sanford and said: "He's a Negro."

The judge cut his conversation short and resumed his place upon the bench as Mr. Leibowitz demanded that the place in the book where Sanford's name occurred be marked for identification.

Southern newspapermen who had been drowsing through the dull session, confidently asserting that no names of Negroes would be found, rubbed their eyes and rushed urgent bulletins to their offices.

Defense Elicits More Names.

The next Negro identified by Mr. Moody was Mark Taylor, "a presser," of Scottsboro. His name occupied the last line allotted to the 1931 rol lfrom his precinct.

Mr. Leibowitz flipped over a dozen pages and asked:

"How about Cam Rudder? Is he black or white?"

"Don't know," replied the witness.

"For Your Honor's information," Mr. Leibowitz said to the judge, "Rudder is a Negro."

Rudder's name also was pierced by the red lines at the bottom of the section filled by the jury commission in office when the grand jury which handed up the indictments in the Scottsboro cases was drawn.

"Now," asked Mr. Leibowitz, "can you tell us whether the lines are on top of the names or the names on top of the lines?"

"Don't know," said Mr. Moody.

"Never mind," said the defense attorney, "we'll have some one here who can tell us about that."

Times 11-24-33

Lynchings-1933 II

Legal Punishment for Rape.

Alabama

4260

"We regard your teachings as dangerous and a menace to our state," the pamphlet states. It declares the residents of Decatur have a right to arise when "outside Negro and white people send lawyers into our state to defeat law and cheat justice." The law has been too slow in sending the Scottsboro boys to the electric chair, the author says, therefore the people of Decatur must "save themselves."

Scottsboro Trials Will Be Rushed in Death Verdict Plot

Worker New York 11-23-33

Arraign Charlie Weems Tomorrow--Take Ruby Bates' Testimony In New York Because of Lynch Threats

By JOHN L. SPIVAK

(Special Correspondent of the Daily Worker.)

DECATUR, Ala., Nov. 22.—The State of Alabama is determined to rush the trials of the rest of the Scottsboro boys without waiting for a decision on any appeal if Heywood Patterson is convicted.

This news came late this afternoon when Circuit Judge W. W. Callahan of Morgan County, in a surprise move, served notice upon Joseph Brodsky, International Labor Defense Attorney, that he would have Charlie Weems arraigned tomorrow and set the date for his trial a week from November 27.

This Monday, immediately before the Jury will be chosen to try Heywood Patterson, Judge Callahan plans to arraign two more defendants. He has not yet announced their names.

No reason for this unexpected move is given by the state.

Normally when several defendants are accused at the same time, separate trials are asked for each and an appeal is taken on one conviction. The state saves time and money by postponing the other cases until a decision has been granted in an appeal. Despite the fact that it will cost the state more money and take up more time, Alabama is, nevertheless, determined to rush the cases through indifferent to planned appeals.

DECATUR, Ala., Nov. 22.—Because Ruby Bates may be lynched if she appeared in Decatur to testify for Haywood Patterson, first of the seven Scottsboro boys to be tried for their lives for the third time this Monday, a court order to take her testimony in New York was on its way there by air mail this evening.

The order directed Julius Applebaum, 32 Broadway, to have Ruby appear before him for interrogation. With the order went a long series of questions prepared by Joseph Brodsky, International Labor Defense attorney and an almost equally long series of questions by Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, Jr.

Brodsky explained to Circuit Judge W. W. Callahan of Morgan County, presidng at the third of the internationally famous trials, that Ruby Bates refused to go to Decatur because of the open-voiced threats to kill her.

Threatened to Lynch Her

Attorney General Knight was not willing to accept the record of her testimony at the Patterson trial this spring. He asked Brodsky to permit the introduction of her testimony at the first Scottsboro trial. Brodsky refused. This is the testimony where she and Victoria Price said the nine Scotsboro boys had "raped" them. Subsequently Ruby recanted her story and confessed that the boys had not touched them.

This confession and her dramatic appearance to take the stand for Patterson this spring caused Morgan County whites to turn furiously against her. After her testimony a mob started to march on Cornelian Court Apartments where she was staying with the avowed purpose of lynching her.

The questions prepared by Brodsky bring out her story from the day she appeared in Chattanooga with Victoria Price, the train ride, the arrival in Scottsboro, the arrests, the seizing of the boys, the pressure put on her by Jackson County officials to say she had been raped—all these details of the first accusation against the Negro boys. Then follow details of her realizations that she was condemning innocent boys to their deaths, her recantation and confession of the whole frame-up.

Ruby Bates' Confession

Attorney General Knight's questions are designed to try to get her to repeat the story she told at the first Scottsboro trial when the boys were convicted. Ruby has since confessed that she told that story under duress and fear.

When the interogratories are returned here by Monday morning Brodsky will reply to Knight's questions and let Ruby explain how she happened to give her testimony at the first trial—the details of how the Scottsboro boys were framed.

While these interogatories were on their way to New York both sides utilized the day's court adjournment by preparing for arguments in the defense motion to quash the indictments against the Scottsboro boys because of the deliberate exclusion of Negroes on the grand jury that indicted them.

On this question evidence submitted at the Patterson trial this spring will be read in court again for the record. But the defense has several new witnesses to add to the cumulative evidence it has already produced. Brodsky has issued subpoenas for Judge Hawkins, who presided at the original Scottsboro trials, when the boys were convicted in a few days without proper legal presentation. Besides Judge Hawkins the defense has subpoenaed the clerk of the Scottsboro Court and the Jackson County jury roll, in an effort to show that in Jackson County Negroes are discriminated against deliberately because of their race and color.

Excluding Negro Jurors

In the meantime both sides are waiting for the appearance tomorrow morning of J. T. Tidwell, Morgan County Commissioner, who may tell why he excluded the name of J. J. Sykes, a Decatur Negro with several college degrees, from the jury roll. Judge Horton ruled that he did not have to answer. This ruling was reversed by Judge Callahan.

It was pointed out that to have refused to answer this would most likely have made it a reversible error in the event of an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. But, with the reversal of Judge Horton's ruling Comissioner Tidwell has to answer, and even if he answers with "I don't remember" or "it is possible some member of the jury board had same objection to him, but it is so long ago that I cannot remember who the jury board member was or what his objection was." It is an answer of sorts that will appear before the U. S. Supreme Court.

It is apparent that Attorney General Knight's procedure with reference to the Negro on the jury question is laboriously designed to circumvent the Supreme Court decision in the Euel Lee case. This case, taken to the Supreme Court by the I. L. D. resulted in Negroes being placed on juries in Maryland. Attorney-General Knight has admitted that he studied the Euel Lee case thoroughly so as not to make the same mistakes made by the state of Maryland.

Dixie's Negro Leaders "Hazy" on Scottsboro

Amsterdam News 11-22-33

Writer Finds Intelligentsia Uninformed or Uninterested in Southern Cities

By T. R. POSTON.

(Staff Writer of The Amsterdam News.)

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH, Nov. 20.—"What are the factors which make possible such outrages as the Scottsboro case? Indignant speakers throughout the world have answered that question a thousand times. But in the countless answers—persecution and oppression of the Negro, barbarism of the Southern white, vicissitudes of the class struggle—these speakers have overlooked one important factor in the equation—the almost total lack of interest and indignation of the South's Negro intelligentsia in the Scottsboro and similar cases.

This bankruptcy of leadership, astounding as it is, has been encountered repeatedly by the writer in the last few days in interviews and discussions with scores of community leaders, doctors, lawyers, teachers and ministers, in a half dozen larger cities in three Southern states, Arkansas, Tennessee and Kentucky.

But more amazing than their lack of interest in the case is their almost criminal ignorance of its latest developments and significance.

Arriving here from a section of the country where almost every literate person has followed closely each development in the case, one is surprised to find a doctor in a large Tennessee city who asks, "Is there still a Scottsboro case? I thought that Jew lawyer, Leftowitch, proved the boys innocent and had them set free." Or a Kentucky educator, holder of two college degrees and candidate for a doctorate, who shrugged shoulders at the final outcome of the case and sighed, "You can never tell what those damned crackers in Tennessee will do to the boys at the new trial."

And one shudders still more to think of what future Southern generations will be taught of the Decatur brilliance of Samuel L. Leibowitz and the perfection of his case there, when a young woman who is entrusted with the furtherance of higher education in an Arkansas school remarks, "Well, in spite of what they know will happen to them, some of the men and even the boys of our race still prefer white women to their own women."

These are not isolated statements. The above expressions, and worse, were repeated several times in the informal discussions which were prompted by the writer in search of material for one or more articles on "What the Southern Negro Thinks of the Scotttsboro Case." None were speaking for publication, however. Few knew that a reporter was prompting the discussions. But the majority, if not all, seemed sincere in their utterances.

All Not Ignorant.

All community leaders were not ignorant of the developments of the case. But even those who had followed it closely in the South did not seem to understand the significance of the Scottsboro phenomenom or to see in it any relation to their own precarious fortunes. This latter group is typified by a Louisville professional man who stated, "Those things can happen in Alabama but they would not be possible here. Whites and Negroes both are more intelligent here." Even as he made the assertion, Louisville police were still searching for at least two Negro civic leaders who had been kidnapped in the recent election there because they had urged their followers to vote the Democratic ticket. A third leader, son of a minister, had been kidnapped, beaten and mutilated before his bleeding body was thrown from a speeding automobile by white election thugs.

Despite the majority of these reactions, however, one finds many Southern leaders who are working in their own way for the liberation of the boys. One hears of scores of ministers who have urged their congregations to pray for the Scottsboro youths. One encounters various branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People which are raising funds for the defense. Incidentally, it seems to be the consensus of opinion here that the N. A. A. C. P. is conducting the defense. Few persons among the leaders seemed to know of the International Labor Defense and these few regarded the organization with suspicion.

But if one becomes discouraged after discussions with the South's Negro intelligentsia, one may observe at least a deeper interest and in most instances a better understanding of the Negro's position in the South if he will discuss Scotttsboro and similar cases with the common people here. Talk with the workers, the church members, the rural residents. Visit the poolrooms, the "jukes" (Southern ginmills), the bus and railroad stations and discuss racial conditions with the people you meet there and you will begin to understand that there is all too much truth in the statement that "The white South is sitting on a barrel of dynamite."

These poor people, illiterate for the most part but by no means ignorant, can and will tell you tales which will make your blood run cold. Theirs is not a picture of a peaceful South with occasional outrages. Theirs is not the picture of the glorious South which will come when all men are educated. Theirs is only the picture of what they have seen and what they know. And if one wishes to know what they think, one has but to look into their smouldering eyes as they tell their simple but horrible tales to each other.

Comrade J. Louis Engdahl Died Fighting Scottsboro Battle

Death Caused by Overwork on Tour, a Year Ago Tomorrow

11-21-33

By ROSE DE SANTES

The coming battle for the Scottsboro boys coincides roughly with the anniversary of the death of our leading fighter for them, our late Comrade J. Louis Engdahl. This recalls the vast importance of the Engdahl-Wright European tour, for it was precisely this tour, which Comrade Engdahl organized and directed, bringing the message of Scottsboro to workers throughout the world, which forced the granting of a new trial by the U. S. Supreme Court.

When Comrade Ada Wright returned to the United States last December, we obtained first-hand information on just how Comrade Engdahl sacrificed his life in the campaign to save the Scottsboro boys. She reported that during the seven months tour into 18 countries, J. Louis Engdahl never averaged more than three or four hour's sleep each night; that they were travelling both day and night, and after meetings and big demonstrations—no matter how late—Comrade Engdahl would sit up and typewrite, articles until dawn. In many hotels he was told he'd have to stop typing after the guests had retired, which meant more work—writing by hand.

Wrote Many Articles

Toward the middle of July—they had been on tour just about ten weeks—Comrade Engdahl hal already written fifteen long articles on how the Scottsboro message was received in Germany, Austria, land, Great Britain, Norway, Sweden Denmark; "Two Cities—Vienna and Zurich," "The Tmerican Capitalist Press in Europe," "The Year's Campaign for Scottsboro," "Scottsboro and the Anti-Imperialist Struggle" and "Scottsboro and the Mooney Anniversary," besides a whole series of intimate sketches about every city visited. And there were approximately 25 long articles written after that time, up until practically the time of his death, which appeared in the Inprecorr, Daily Worker, Labor Defender and other periodicals. This shows how hard Comrade Engdahl worked.

Engdahl and Mrs. Wright in France

J. Louis Engdahl (right) is shown with Mrs. Wright, Jean Richetta, French labor leader, and Marcel Cachin, editor of the Communist daily, "L'Humanite," at a meeting in Paris during the European Scottsboro tour last year.

Comrade Engdahl worked just as hard when in New York; he was always the first to open up the office in the morning and the very last to leave at night, only to return to his home and continue work. He would not finish at the office out of consideration for Mike, saying "night watchmen must also sleep." He was thoughtful of everyone but himself. If he had given himself a little thought, he undoubtedly would have been alive today, for instead of taking a badly needed rest after reaching Moscow on October 31st, following the tremendous strain of the previous six months' tour, he plunged at once into new activities.

Aided World Congress

It is now a matter of record how he and Ada Wright had been hounded and persecuted, jailed and deported, during their European tour. Nevertheless, he ploughed right into an over-abundance of work again in the Soviet Union, helping in the preparations for the November 7th celebration and, immediately after, preparing for the World Congress of the International Red Aid, which started Thursday, November 10th. In addition to the activity of the Congress—writing articles, manifestos, resolutions—he worked each night after Congress had adjourned, and again early in the morning, on a Scottsboro pamphlet and a biography of Ada Wright. Even on Sunday, November 13th, although already ill, he remained at work the entire day and evening.

Monday he was too weak to get out of bed, and when Ada said she was going to get a doctor for him he replied: "Don't bother, Ada, it's only a cold; let the doctor take care of the other comrades." (There were

Switzerland. France. Belgium. Hol-

200 delegates housed at the same hotel—Hotel Mayak—and several of them were ill). Comrade Wright did get the doctor, however, but his strong and healthy body—he had never been sick before—had now become a complete physical wreck under the terrific strain, with no power of resistance left to fight just an ordinary cold. This latter, of course, developed into the flu and pneumonia.

Mrs. Wright Ill

Right here I must mention Ada's unselfish devotion, for, although very ill herself, she refused to leave Comrade Engdahl for one moment, day or night, until he was taken to the hospital two days later, on Wednesday. Ada was herself taken to the hospital the following day, where she remained for 12 days.

Untiring Labor of ILD Leader Helped Rouse World Protest

On Sunday, November 20th, the day before Comrade Engdahl died, Comrade Sonia Kaross visited him in the hospital. He said among other things, in referring to his illness: "I realize only now what a strain this trip has been. Constant travelling and preparing the tour, being hounded, getting deported, then one or the other of us getting arrested and arranging for the other to continue the tour; Ada getting ill; constant irregularity of living; not enough sleep; all this has weakened my constitution. I feel very tired and weak, and don't believe I'll pull through. Tell Ada she must get well quickly and redouble her efforts."

Comrade Engdahl died at a time when he was needed most. But he is not dead to the comrades who knew him; he remains a living and shining example of unstinted loyalty and devotion to workers throughout the world. It now becomes the task of every class conscious worker and particularly every I.L.D. member to honor his memory by enrolling to carry on the work for which he gave his life.

We must act immediately to save the Scottsboro boys from the bestial lynch gangs now being organized in Decatur. Every minue, every hour, must be spent in rushing protest telegrams to Governor Miller, demanding full protection. Only through mass pressure can we defeat the despicable lynch officialdom of Alabama.

Lynchings-1933
6
Legal Punishment for Rape.
6

Alabama

(Do Not Paste Scottsboro Case on this Card.)

4184

New York Evening Journal

SEP 6 1933

DEATH DECREED IN ATTACK

DECATUR, Ala., Sept. 6.—A death decree had been rendered by a jury today against Tom Brown, Negro, for an attack upon a white ~~woman,~~ Mrs. George Dugger, on Aug. 21.

Since the attack mobs have tried three times to get at Brown and lynch him. State troops were on guard ~~here~~ during the trial.

The Negro will be taken under National Guard escort either to Birmingham or Montgomery, where he will be held pending an appeal.

Birmingham, Ala. Age-Herald
September 5, 1933

Alabama's Test

The trial of Tom Brown opened Monday at Decatur. This is the Negro whom on two occasions a band of potential lynchers sought to take from the custody of Sheriff Giles, of Morgan County. The case is being heard with 100 soldiers in attendance. This is the arrangement not because of any fresh threats of mob violence, but because Judge James E. Horton, who is presiding, believes in an abundance of caution.

There is nothing to be proud of in the presence of this military guard. Thoughtful Alabamians would infinitely prefer a situation in which the majesty of law can be upheld without such a resort to bristling force. But at least this is to be said for the use of guardsmen: So far as the authorities can bring it about, the accused will be dealt with according to the written law and not in accordance with the murderous passion of lynch law.

We may be sure that, so far as Judge Horton can shape matters, justice will be done to this Negro. Judge Horton has already given proof of transcendent courage, and no one has ever doubted his ability as a judicial officer. Few men have been subjected to a quick succession of tests such as has been imposed on him. It is a source of profound satisfaction that a man of his sterling quality is trying this case.

It is not clear what is being done to round up those responsible for the killing of a Negro named Royal, just before or after Brown's capture. So far as the facts have been disclosed, this was murder induced by the bitterness of the hour. The Grand Jury which indicted Brown is engaged in an investigation of the subsequent crime. It is to be hoped that whoever committed this offense will in turn be identified, indicted and brought to trial.

This is not the only attempt now being made in Alabama to hold white men who have used extra-legal measures accountable for such misconduct. At Tuscaloosa, a Grand Jury is renewing this week its study of the recent lynching of two Negroes. This is the case in which Atty. Gen. Knight has interested himself. For the sake of the state's good name, not a stone should be left unturned in the endeavor to isolate the persons who brought such discredit upon our civilization.

Circumstances are serving to make it necessary for this commonwealth to exhaust its resources in attacking vigorously the evil of lynching. Alabamians who do not realize that their state is under the scrutiny of the world, or who are indifferent to that scrutiny, are blindly with their own blessedness at odds. The obligation to deal effectively with the lynching menace is inescapable, if we would appease our own consciences or hold up our heads in the sight of mankind.

Merely to resent outside criticism or to find excuses in outside interference is of no avail, in the light of stubborn realities. To grow testy with affronted pride is not the mature, intelligent way of facing up to this problem. And to throw the burden upon alien busybodies does not erase the fact that we did not meet the demands of a crucial experience in a creditable fashion.

The truth is that for the sake of our own peace of mind, for the security of our institutions, and for the promotion of an ordered way of life, we cannot afford to let this challenge pass without throwing against the principalities of darkness our entire armament of spiritual and legal power. To do less—to consult expediency or to be complacent—is to be craven at a juncture when we should be exerting every jot of resolution we possess.

Speedy Justice Awaits Negroes

Advertiser
9-16-33
Montgomery, Ala.

Pair Of Ruffians Indicted For Court Street Crime Go On Trial Wednesday

Trial of George Meadows, 27, and Frank Jackson, 22, negroes, on charges of robbery and rape in connection with an attack on Robert Webb and his girl companion on the Court Street extension Sept. 6, yesterday was set for Wednesday by Judge Walter B. Jones, of the Montgomery Circuit Court.

The trial date was set by the court following appointment of Attys. John Sankey and N. T. Spann to defend the negroes and after the defendants had been arraigned. Both entered pleas of not guilty.

The Montgomery County Grand Jury yesterday morning returned indictments against the negroes after a session of about two hours, in which about a half dozen witnesses appeared.

Solicitor W. T. Seibels said yesterday he would ask for the death penalty for both negroes.

A brilliant charge which censured the courts generally for delay in the trial of criminal cases, declaring that such delay contributed largely to the disrespect for law, and which denounced lynching as murder, was given by Judge Jones.

"The great need of this country today," Judge Jones said, "is that punishment for crime be speedily inflicted and that we have less sympathy and admiration for criminals.

To Easy For Crime

"Our laws in the past have been based too much upon a tender consideration for the welfare of the criminal and on a callous disregard of the rights of the law abiding citizens. It is high time we were beginning to put the rights of the State and her honest, God-fearing citizens and their right to life and property above the right of the criminal to plunder and murder them and go unwhipped of justice because of a mass of technicalities and crime producing laws that are a disgrace to our country."

Advertiser
9-16-33
Montgomery
Ala.

The slow procedure of punishment and the mild punishment dealt stimulates crime, Judge Jones said, pointing out that the criminal knows "as he looks back over crime statistics for a few years, that there is about one chance in 20 of his ever being apprehended and about one chance out of 20 of his ever serving out a sentence at all commensurate with the heinousness of his crime."

"Among the criticisms made against the administration of criminal justice in this country, there is one that is particularly well taken: our steps in the punishment of crime are so slow, our methods are so worn out and so feebly adapted to the purpose for which they are used, our law enforcing agencies are so badly equipped and our punishments, if ever inflicted, so mild and so tardily administered that the criminal has little, if any, real fear of the law or respect for it."

The people of Montgomery County, Judge Jones said, have always set their faces against lynching. "There is throughout this county," he said, "and there has been for many, many years a forceful and well expressed public opinion which has demanded and insisted, no matter how outrageous the offense, that the laws of this State be observed, and that those charged with crime be protected in every constitutional right...."

Praises Juries Here

"The records of this court will bear me out when I state that the juries of Montgomery County have conscientiously endeavored to do equal justice to the white and to the black. No man has ever been convicted in this courthouse solely because of the color of his skin. And the juries of this county have been impartial in the remedies in their verdicts in criminal cases."

Judge Jones cited the case in which a white man was given a long sentence for robbing and raping a negro woman, and the conviction of a white man for the murder of a little negro girl.

"The crime of lynching," he said, "and I call it a crime because it is murder in the first degree under the Constitution and laws of Alabama—is one of the most serious offenses known to the law.

"No good, law abiding man will ever take part in a mob or will ever lift a hand to take from the officers of the law the prisoner they have in charge. ....The good and law abiding citizen has confidence in his courts and juries, and there is not in his makeup that cowardice which renders him willing under cover of the night, to attack in overwhelming numbers, a few faithful officers of the law and to defy and set at naught the laws of his people.

"The good citizen is not found in mobs. He doesn't aid and abet mobs and he has not respect for those who make up a mob and who are willing to burn down a jail or kill an officer of the law in order to take from him some prisoner and put him to death without trial."

Judge Jones praised the action of the law abiding negroes in cooperating in the hunt for those alleged to have committed the crime.

"It is a commendable thing," he said, "that the law abiding negro citizens of Montgomery County have cooperated to the fullest extent with the peace officers of the city and county in ferreting out those alleged to have committed the crime you are to investigate, and have furnished the officers with the information which was of great help to them in their investigation of the matters soon to be placed before you. The law abiding negroes of Montgomery deplore these crimes and hope that the perpetrators will soon be brought to justice and punished."

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment for Rape

Arkansas

4369

ASSAULT JURY HUNG; MISTRIAL IS ORDERED

Commercial Appeal

Twelve Hours' Deliberations in Morgan Case Futile.

5-11-33

HELENA, Ark., May 13.—After deliberating for 12 hours in the case of Buck Morgan, 28, charged with criminal assault on a young West Helena girl, the jury this morning reported to Judge W. D. Davenport that it was hopelessly deadlocked and a mistrial was declared.

Memphis, Tenn.

The testimony was in and the arguments closed in the case last night at 10:30. Retiring to the jury room, the 12 men deliberated the case until 1:30 o'clock this morning. At one time it was reported that the jury stood 11 to one for conviction.

Defense attorneys were to confer with the prosecution and Judge W. D. Davenport regarding an agreement on bail for Morgan, who has been in the Phillips County jail since last December.

Morgan, who emphatically denied any improper relations with the girl, is a former member of the United States Navy and claims to have been for a time a member of the personnel of the submarine S-10 crew.

Because of the week's recess in court here, George Hill, 19-year-old negro, convicted Wednesday on a charge of criminally attacking a 15-year-old white girl, will not be sentenced until the week beginning May 22. The verdict brought in by the jury in his case makes it mandatory that Judge Davenport fix his sentence at death in the electric chair.

Judge Davenport late last night sentenced two men to terms in the penitentiary. D. T. Young, 59, convicted of assault with intent to rape a 7-year-old girl, by a jury who left his punishment to be fixed by the court, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Judge Davenport said that he was giving Young the minimum sentence because of his advanced age and the state of his health.

He also sentenced Alfred Hamilton, negro, convicted by a jury of the murder of D. W. Sweeney, white construction company worker, here last November, to life in the penitentiary.

NEGRO GIVEN DEATH AS BAYONETS BRISTLE

Commercial Appeal

Jury Quickly Convicts Georga Hill of Criminal Attack.

5-12-33

VICTIM TELLS STORY,

Memphis, Tenn.

Identifies Helena Suspect As One Who Attacked Her on Roadside—Verdict Returned in 20 Minutes.

Special to The Commercial Appeal.

HELENA, Ark., May 11.—A jury this afternoon returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment against George Hill, 19-year-old negro, for a criminal attack upon a 15-year-old girl near Marvel on Feb. 4.

The verdict made it mandatory for Judge W. D. Davenport to fix his punishment at death in the electric chair. The jury was out for only 20 minutes.

The trial of Hill, one of the most sensational ever to take place in Phillips County began shortly before noon with the corridors filled with national guardsmen, a detachment of 18 coming here from Marianna this morning. They were headed by Capt. Eugene Hampton and Lt. C. B. Dozier.

Trial Is Orderly.

Inside the court room all during the trial, a cordon of deputies and police officers kept order and no disturbance, save the rumbling of voices, broke the stillness as witness after witness told of the crime.

The girl's testimony, bore out a confession which officers claimed they obtained from Hill after his arrest. She said that she and another girl with an escort, 29-year-old Chauncey Holland, were returning from a party on the night of Feb. 4, the time being near midnight, she said.

Hill, the girl said, met them, passed by turned around and came up from behind, flourished a gun and commanded Holland to run. He then forced her to accompany him toward a nearby cornfield, and when she screamed twice he hit her over the head with a pistol and threatened to kill her if she screamed again.

He left her there, she said and fled. She made her way home, about a mile distant while Holland was returning with searchers for the negro.

Shows No Emotion.

The negro sat through the whole of the trial without showing emotion.

Defense counsel appointed by the court, to defend the negro, did not place him on the stand, nor did they furnish any other defense witnesses. They devoted their time to developing the testimony in the case so that it would be presented to the jury in as fair manner as possible.

While the jury was deliberating, Hill questioned by an officer in the presence of a reporter, denied that he had a gun on the night of the attack, or that the shoe plates found by Deputy Sheriff Edgar Hickey, in his home after the attack were the ones he wore during the attack.

He said that the plates were taken off his shoes prior to that night. Previously officers said he had admitted that they were taken off after the attack and it was by means of these plates that the negro was partially identified.

NEGRO WILL GET DEATH

Helena Assailant Will Be Sentenced Monday.

Commercial Appeal

HELENA, Ark., May 20.—George Hill, 19-year-old negro, who was found guilty by a jury of a criminal attack on a girl when he was tried here May 10, is scheduled to receive a sentence of death in the electric chair here Monday when Judge W. D. Davenport convenes court for another week's session.

5-21-33
Memphis, Tenn.

Such a sentence is mandatory by reason of the fact that the jury in returning the verdict found the negro guilty as charged in the indictment without recommending mercy.

As soon as the verdict was rendered, Hill, protected during the day by national guardsmen and sheriff's and police officers, was taken to an unannounced jail, where he has been held for safe keeping. He will likely be brought here only for the length of time necessary for him to receive the sentence.

INDICTED FOR ASSAULT

Commercial Appeal

Frank C. Callahan Faces Charge At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 7.—Frank C. Callahan, operator of a chain of local rooming houses, was indicted this afternoon by the Garland county grand jury on a statutory charge. The prosecuting witness is a 12-year-old girl. The alleged attack took place Saturday.

11-8-33
Memphis, Tenn.

Callahan will be arraigned tomorrow morning.

DEATH SENTENCE FOLLOWS ATTACK

Courier 5-20-33

HELENA, Ark., May 18.—(ANP)—Two rape trials, which the International Labor Defense did not get in on were settled quietly here on Thursday afternoon. In one case, involving a 19 year old colored boy, George Hill, a mandatory death verdict was returned. In the other, involving a 55 year old white man, the degree of punishment was left to the discretion of the judge.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

A detachment of 18 Arkansas national guardsmen helped local police and sheriff's deputies to guard the courtroom during the trial of Hill. He was charged with an attack on a 15 year old white girl. She stated that she was returning from a party at midnight in the escort of two white boys and that Hill met them on the road, chased the white boys off and attacked her.

The court appointed three lawyers to defend Hill. They did not put him on the stand, nor offer one bit of testimony in his behalf.

In the other case, D. D. Young, the white man, was convicted of an attack on a seven year old white girl.

In the case of the colored boy, the all white jury returned a verdict which made a death sentence mandatory; in the case of the white man, this same all white jury on the same day left the punishment to the discretion to the judge.

Florida.

Lynchings-1933
6
Legal Punishment for Rape.

4371

REPRIEVE GIVEN TO DOOMED MAN BRINGS PRAISE

~~Courier~~

Pittsburgh, Pa.

4-15-33.

Outstanding Woman President of Bethune-Cookman College Also Commends Reporters Who Prompted Governor's Action.

DAYTON BEACH, Fla., April 13—(ANP)—In an open letter addressed to Governor Dave Sholtz, here this week, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president and founder of Bethune-Cookman College, praised the action of the Chief executive in granting a reprivee to Will James, sentenced to die on charges of raping a white woman, and commended the attitude of two young white reporters who were directly responsible for the Governor's action.

The text of the letter follows:

"On the part of the Negro constituency of the state of Florida and of the 14,000,000 Negroes of America, permit me to express our heartfelt gratitude to you and to the State Pardon Board for the 60-day reprieve which postpones the immediate electrocution of Will James, Marion County Negro, condemned to die during the week just closing as the perpetrator of a most serious crime."

"The public is indebted to LeRoy M. Washington, young Negro journalist, and the editorial pages of the Jacksonville Journal for intimate details as to the action of the Pardon Board in generous response to the noble attitude of alert, broad-hearted young news reporters and sympathetic lawyers of Jacksonville who, for no recompense except the satisfaction of seeing justice done, sacrificed time and effort in a spiritual endeavor to prevent a possible miscarriage of justice to a man of another race. All praise to those young reporters for their alertness and passion for even justice, to those lawyers for their unselfish sympathy, to your Pardon Baord for its patient dispensation of fair play, and to you, Honorable Sir, for your calm courage in the face of convictions,—fresh evidence that we truly live in a new era of justice and fair play for all."

"Now that stay of execution has been granted to James for 60 days, these millions of Negroes, who condone no crime wherever guilt may be determined without shadow of doubt, earnestly pray that the machinery of true justice may not be retarded in turning the X-ray of investigation upon the real merits of James' case before the supreme penalty is exacted."

"May the God of the Universe continue to guide and protect an executive of such fine courage and convictions as yours. May your disposal of this case serve to reassure the confidence of voiceless millions in the unquestioned supremacy of impersonal justice." May your term of administration go down in history as "The New Day of the Square Deal for All."

This case has attracted state-wide attention. James was in the proverbial shadow of the electric chair, when he was discovered by two white reporters who went to the death house to investigate another case. Through their efforts the Governor granted a 60-day reprieve.

General

4372

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment for Rape.

The Short Memory of Our Lawyers

Afro American

1-28-33

Baltimore Md.

The Scottsboro case in Alabama, the Euel Lee case in Maryland, and the now celebrated Herndon case, tried last week in Atlanta, are all notable in that the defense, stakes its appeal upon the right of Negroes to sit on the grand and petit juries.

How strange this is.

Thirty years ago, on January 17, the United States Supreme Court reaffirmed the ruling made in the case of Carter versus the State of Texas, to the effect that the exclusion of Negroes from grand juries is a violation of the Constitution, and therefore, not permissible.

The decision written by Justice Holmes dealt with the case of one Rogers, who was indicted for murder by an all-white Alabama grand jury, from which Negroes were excluded.

The original Carter case went back several years further, and in deciding it, the Supreme Court held:

"That the exclusion of all persons of the African race from a grand jury which finds an indictment against a Negro in a state court, when they are excluded solely because of their race or color, denies him equal protection of the laws, in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, whether such exclusion is through the action of the legislature, through the courts, or through the executive or administrative officers of the State."

This being the law as interpreted by our highest court, the question is, how does it happen that our lawyers have gone to sleep in every Southern state and for 30 years or more the South has kept colored people off grand and petit juries?

Granted that the arm of the law is long, must we also concede that the memory of a lawyer is short?

Lynchings - 1933

Legal Punishment for Rape.

Georgia

4373

[illegible] Ga. Telegraph
April 12, 1933

The Downer Case

Last week in Oglethorpe Superior Court John Downer was convicted of rape and sentenced to die in the electric chair on April 28. This was his second trial and conviction. The trial appears to have been fair in all respects although it was held in an adjoining county to where the first "military" trial was held. It will be generally conceded of course that if the Negro is guilty he ought to be punished.

But the significance of Downer's case lies in the history of his first trial. This involved a most important aspect of the familiar principle of American constitutional jurisprudence that no man shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

Downer was arrested in Elbert county on the day following the crime with which he was charged. Public feeling was at white heat. He was rescued from a mob formed to lynch him only by troops ordered to the scene by the governor. A special term of court was immediately called to meet a week after the crime was committed for the sole purpose of trying its alleged perpetrator. During the time intervening the governor was besought by citizens of Elbert county to send a large detachment of soldiers to preserve order and protect the prisoner.

On the eighth day after the crime, Downer was brought into court under military guard for trial. Soldiers were in complete charge of the tribunal. Every entrance to the court house was commanded by machine guns. No one was allowed to enter without being searched for firearms. Leading counsel for the prisoner was appointed by the court only at seven o'clock on the morning of the trial. It was proceeded at once after counsel had had a consultation with their client lasting not more than an hour. No objection was made to the time or place or circumstances of the trial. The inevitable verdict was that the prisoner was guilty, and he was sentenced to die. He was saved at the last moment by the intervention of the United States courts which held that a trial under such circumstances was void as constituting a denial of due process of law.

The second conviction of John Downer may well serve as the occasion for a reminder, always timely, that justice is more than a mere matter of forms and ceremonies. There can be lynching by a court as well as by a mob. The taking of a human life by the state is a serious and solemn thing. If right at all, the the proceedings by which it is sought to be done ought to be calm, deliberate, judicial, preserving the substance as well as the form of justice. It can never be such when counsel for the defendant are forced to trial without time for adequate preparation and when the presence of armed troops is necessary to protect the prisoner from the fury of a mob. A trial under such circumstances is a lynching by law. No sort of euphemism can make it anything else.

The Telegraph hopes that the second trial of John Downer marks the end of the misguided notion that justice administered by mob law is any better than justice administered by mob violence. The two are the same, both in purpose and in quality. Due process of law is not a mere phrase to be mouthed by rote. It is a vital principle, the reality of which is essential to the preservation of constitutional liberty. Its denial in substance is the sure precursor of tyranny and oppression.

Coy Must Have Been Innocent

Black Dispatch
10-21-33

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 19. (ANP)—Expressions were heard outside the courtroom here Friday that Coy Wilson must have been innocent when a jury which had heard the evidence [illegible] him on a charge of attacking a white woman, deliberated all night before returning with a verdict which resulted in a sentence of only from one to ten years.

RAVISHER TO DIE

Telegraph

Negro's Victim Was a Blind 16-Year-Old Girl

11-17-33

Macon Ga.

MILLEN, Ga., Nov. 16—Major Goodin, thirty-year-old Negro, was convicted of rape by a jury in Jenkins county superior court late Wednesday, and was sentenced to die Dec. 15. After deliberating for an hour the jury returned a verdict of guilty without recommendations for mercy.

The victim of Goodin's attack was a 16-year-old Negro girl who is blind.

Jim Dixon was appointed by the court to defend the prisoner who had been held in jail for the past five months.

Appeal will be filed.

X

NEGRO IS FOUND GUILTY OF CRIMINAL ASSAULT

Constitution
12-2-33
Atlanta Ga.

Albert Dobbs, negro, was found guilty of criminal attack Tuesday by a jury in Judge Howard's division of criminal court. The verdict, which did not include a recommendation for mercy, automatically carries the death sentence, and Judge Howard will pronounce sentence this morning.

Dobbs is the second negro to be sentenced to death for such offense within the past week. Charles Stone, convicted November 28, is sentenced to die in the electric chair January 12.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment for Rape.

Georgia

4374

Macon, Ga. Telegraph
Wednesday, February 1, 1933

Judicial Lynching

On July 5 or 6, 1931, Sam Jackson, a Negro of low mentality, was arrested in Screven county, Georgia, charged with drunkenness and rape. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge of drunkenness and received a chain-gang sentence. In the following November, while he was serving this sentence, he was indicted for rape.

Immediately thereafter, Jackson was brought into the Superior Court of Screven county in chains for trial on this indictment. The judge remembering the case of Robert Elliott Burns, directed that the chains be knocked off. Jackson was taken from the courtroom and his shackles removed. He was then brought back before the court who ordered his immediate trial, though he had not known of the indictment before he entered the courtroom and had had no opportunity to employ or confer with counsel or to make any preparation whatever to defend himself from the serious charge against him.

After ordering that the trial proceed, the court appointed two lawyers to represent the defendant, stating that he would give them a few minutes to confer with their client. They retired to an adjoining room with the Negro, and after two or three minutes a bailiff called and told them that "the judge said come on in, he was waiting." In response to this demand, they went back into the court, and the defendant was at once put on trial, convicted and sentenced to death.

It is a disgrace to Georgia that one of her courts should evince such callous disregard of the rights of one of her lowly citizens. Such action by a court is worse than lynching by a mob. A mob is swept by sudden and violent passion. The court's action is cold, calculated, deliberate. Neither ought for a moment to be tolerated in a civilized community.

But we are grateful that the story does not end there. By a unanimous decision, just published, the Supreme Court of Georgia reversed the judgment of the Superior Court on the ground that the defendant was denied his constitutional right to benefit of counsel. Said Chief Justice Russell, speaking for the court: "The benefit of counsel is a boon conferred by the constitution of this state upon one accused of crime. The right guaranteed by the constitution is one of substance and not of symbols." The Telegraph commends the Supreme Court for the humaneness, the intelligence, and the courage of its decision in this case.

The time has come for Georgia to afford to its Downers and its Jacksons and to all its poor and humble citizens the substance as well as the form of justice. We are glad to see the Supreme Court of this state set its face against this sort of thing. Protection can be had against such judicial mockery of justice in the United States courts as has been recently demonstrated in the cases of Downer and the Scottsboro Negroes. But The Telegraph is gratified to note progress by the state courts towards protection of the constitutional rights of those accused of crime.

MACON, GA.
TELEGRAPH
FEB 1 1933

Judicial Lynching

On July 5 or 6, 1931, Sam Jackson, a Negro of low mentality, was arrested in Screven county, Georgia, charged with drunkenness and rape. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge of drunkenness and received a chain-gang sentence. In the following November while he was serving this sentence, he was indicted for rape.

Immediately thereafter, Jackson was brought into the Superior Court of Screven county in chains for trial on this indictment. The judge remembering the case of Robert Elliott Burns, directed that the chains be knocked off. Jackson was taken from the courtroom and his shackles removed. He was then brought back before the court who ordered his immediate trial, though he had not known of the indictment before he entered the courtroom and had had no opportunity to employ or confer with counsel or to make any preparation whatever to defend himself from the serious charge against him.

After ordering that the trial proceed, the court appointed two lawyers to represent the defendant, stating that he would give them a few minutes to confer with their client. They retired to an adjoining room with the Negro, and after two or three minutes a bailiff called and told them that "the judge said come on in, he was waiting." In response to this demand, they went back into the court, and the defendant was at once put on trial, convicted and sentenced to death.

It is a disgrace to Georgia that one of her courts should evince such callous disregard of the rights of one of her lowly citizens. Such action by a court is worse than lynching by a mob. A mob is swept by sudden and violent passion. The court's action is cold, calculated, deliberate. Neither ought for a moment to be tolerated in a civilized community.

But we are grateful that the story does not end there. By a unanimous decision, just published, the Supreme Court of Georgia reversed the judgment of the Superior Court on the ground that the defendant was denied his constitutional right to benefit of counsel. Said Chief Justice Russell, speaking for the court: "The benefit of counsel is a boon conferred by the constitution of this state upon one accused of crime. The right guaranteed by the constitution is one of substance and not of symbols." The Telegraph commends the Supreme Court for the humaneness, the intelligence, and the courage of its decision in this case.

The time has come for Georgia to afford to its Downers and its Jacksons and to all its poor and humble citizens the substance as well as the form of justice. We are glad to see the Supreme Court of this state set its face against this [illegible] Protection can be had against [illegible] mockery of justice in the United States [illegible] as has been recently demonstrated in the cases of Downer and the Scottsboro Negroes. But The Telegraph is gratified to note progress by the state courts towards protection of the constitutional rights of those accused of crime.

Negro Gets 10 Years For Attacking Woman

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 29. (AP)—Coy W[illegible] a negro, was convicted here today of assaulting a white [illegible] sentenced to from 1 to 10 years. The jury [illegible] throughout the night.

Savannah, Ga. Pre
Wednesday, February 1

JUDGE STRANGE'S REPLY TO CHARGES MACON TELEGRAPH

VIGOROUSLY DISPUTES EDITORIAL; DECLARES ATTACK UNWARRANTED

STATESBORO, Ga., Feb. 1.—"The editorial printed in the Macon Telegraph this morning condemning me and the court I conducted in the trial of a negro for assult is wholly unwarranted, ~~unfair~~ and without a basis of truth," declared Judge H. B. Strange here this morning after reading an article printed in the current issue of the Macon paper.

The negro was tried and convicted of assault upon a negro woman. He offered no defense witnesses, Judge Strange says, whereas the state offered several eye-witnesses who responded to the woman's cries.

The Telegraph's editorial which severely criticizes the Sylvania tribunal which tried, convicted and sentenced Sam Jackson to death in 1931, follows:

Judicial Lynching.

On July 5 or 6, 1931, Sam Jackson, a negro of low mentality, was arrested in Screven county, Georgia, charged with drunkenness and rape. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge of drunkenness and received a chain gang sentence. In the following November, while he was serving this sentence, he was indicted for rape.

Immediately thereafter, Jackson was brought into the Superior Court of Screven county in chains for trial on this indictment. The judge remembering the case of Robert Elliott Burns, directed that the chains be knocked off. Jackson was taken from the court room and his shackles removed. He was then brought back before the court who ordered his immediate trial, though he had not known of the indictment before he entered the court room and had had no opportunity to employ or confer with counsel or to make any preparation whatever to defend himself from the serious charge against him.

After ordering that the trial proceed, the court appointed two lawyers to represent the defendant, stating that he would give them a few minutes to confer with their client. They retired to an adjoining room with the negro, and after two or three minutes a bailiff called and told them that "the judge said come on in, he was waiting." In response to this demand, they went back into the court, and the defendant was at once put on trial, convicted and sentenced to death.

It is a disgrace to Georgia that one of her courts should evince such callous disregard of the rights of one of her lowly citizens. Such action by a court is worse than lynching by a mob. A mob is swept by sudden and violent passion. The court's action is cold, calculated, deliberate. Neither ought for a moment to be tolerated in a civilized community.

But we are grateful that the story does not end there. By a unanimous decision, just published, the Supreme Court of Georgia reversed the judgment of the Superior Court on the ground that the defendant was denied his constitutional right to benefit of counsel. Said Chief Justice Russell, speaking for the court: "The benefit of counsel is a boon conferred by the constitution of this state upon one accused of crime. The right guaranteed by the constitution is one of substance and not of symbols." The Telegraph commends the Supreme Court for the humaneness, the intelligence, and the courage of its decision in this case.

"There is no truth in the contentions that the attorneys retained for the negro had not sufficient time to prepare their case.

"It is true that the negro was brought into court in shackles. I immediately ordered them removed and proceeded to give him a fair and impartial trial just as any other man.

"You may positively state that the attorneys had all the time they desired in preparing the case and when they returned to court with their client, they came in upon their own volition. Nobody went for them.

"When the negro first came into court after the shackles were removed, I asked if he had a lawyer. He said he had not. I then appointed Evans and Overstreet to defend him. They are capable lawyers and handled his defense in a fair and efficient manner.

"The statement that the negro is of low mentality is also false. The court records will speak for themselves. He made as intelligent a statement as could possibly be made upon the witness stand.

"So far as not sufficient time to acquaint himself with the charges against him, I often wonder just how long one needs in Georgia to come prepared for trial. He started serving time for his first offense—drunkenness—in July. I did not try him until November.

"I intend to answer the editor of the Macon Telegraph and acquaint him with the real facts in the case. The new trial was not granted upon any evidence offered in the case at the negro's trial but rather upon some newly-thought-up grounds which were injected into the case after new counsel had been employed."

JURY COMPLETED FOR DOWNER TRIAL

Negro Taken to Unannounced Jail for Safekeeping Tuesday Night.

4-5-33

LEXINGTON, Ga., April 4.—The jury was completed today for the trial of John Downer, Elbert county negro charged with an alleged assault upon a white girl of that county. This is the negro's second trial. He was convicted in Elbert superior court at a trial marked by the presence of national guardsmen, after an infuriated crowd had tried unsuccessfully to take him from the jail there.

Attorneys for the negro, contending that the atmosphere at the first trial prevented a fair hearing for the negro, carried the case to the United States court of appeals, where a new trial in a different venue was ordered.

The defense today made a motion for a directed verdict on the ground that the negro's life had already been placed in jeopardy once, but the motion was overruled after the state had argued that the action of the United States court had, in effect, declared that the proceedings at Elberton were not a trial, because of the inflamed state of public opinion and the presence of the national guardsmen. The negro then entered his plea of not guilty.

Monday night a number of white men demanded the key of the jail from the deputy sheriff in charge, stating that several hundred others were waiting in the outskirts of the town. The deputy refused and Sheriff T. E. Watkins took Downer to the Clarke county jail at Athens for the night, returning him here for trial this morning.

The negro has been taken to some unnamed place for safekeeping tonight.

There was no disturbance near the courtroom today. There are unusually large crowds in town but everything has been orderly so far. There are no guardsmen here.

Taking of testimony, it is understood, will begin when court opens Wednesday.

Ga. Telegraph
April 12, 1933

The Downer Case

Last week in Oglethorpe Superior Court, John Downer was convicted of rape and sentenced to die in the electric chair on April 28. This was his second trial and conviction. The trial appears to have been fair in all respects although it was held in an adjoining county to where the first "military" trial was held. It will be generally conceded of course that if the Negro is guilty he ought to be punished.

But the significance of Downer's case lies in the history of his first trial. This involved a most important aspect of the familiar principle of American constitutional jurisprudence that no man shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

Downer was arrested in Elbert county on the day following the crime with which he was charged. Public feeling was at white heat. He was rescued from a mob formed to lynch him only by troops ordered to the scene by the governor. A special term of court was immediately called to meet a week after the crime was committed for the sole purpose of trying its alleged perpetrator. During the time intervening the governor was besought by citizens of Elbert county to send a large detachment of soldiers to preserve order and protect the prisoner.

On the eighth day after the crime, Downer was brought into court under military guard for trial. Soldiers were in complete charge of the tribunal. Every entrance to the courthouse was commanded by machine guns. No one was allowed to enter without being searched for firearms. Leading counsel for the prisoner was appointed by the court only at seven o'clock on the morning of the trial, was proceeded at once after counsel had had a consultation with their client lasting not more than an hour. No objection was made to the time or place or circumstances of the trial. The inevitable verdict was that the prisoner was guilty, and he was sentenced to die. He was saved at the last moment by the intervention of the United States courts which held that a trial under such circumstances was void as constituting a denial of due process of law.

The second conviction of John Downer may well serve as the occasion for a reminder, always timely, that justice is more than a mere matter of forms and ceremonies. There can be lynching by a court as well as by a mob. The taking of a human life by the state is a serious and solemn thing. If right at all, the the proceedings by which it is sought to be done ought to be calm, deliberate, judicial, preserving the substance as well as the form of justice. It can never be such when counsel for the defendant are forced to trial without time for adequate preparation and when the presence of armed troops is necessary to protect the prisoner from the fury of a mob. A trial under such circumstances is a lynching by law. No sort of euphemism can make it anything else.

The Telegraph hopes that the second trial of John Downer marks the end of the misguided notion that justice administered by mob law is any better than justice administered by mob violence. The two are the same, both in purpose and in quality. Due process of law is not a mere phrase to be mouthed by rote. It is a vital principle, the reality of which is essential to the preservation of constitutional liberty. Its denial in substance is the sure precursor of tyranny and oppression.

NEGRO GETS SENTENCE OF DEATH IN SECOND ASSAULT CONVICTION

11-2-33

Escaped Convict's Trial for Crime Against Woman Guarded by Troops

HOMER, Ga., Nov. 1 (AP).—Mack James, Negro escaped convict, was found guilty of assault upon and murder of an aged white woman today as national guardsmen with fixed bayonets held an orderly crowd of several thousand persons 50 yards from the courthouse.

The jury deliberated but 20 minutes and Judge W. W. Stark sentenced James to die in the electric chair Dec. 1.

Macon, Ga.

James, serving his second sentence for assault, escaped from the Banks county chain gang, where he was a trusty, the night before the woman was attacked and slain. The state today presented circumstantial evidence tending to connect James with the slaying. The Negro, in a statement to the jury, denied the charges.

James was captured shortly after the crime and taken to the Fulton (Atlanta) county tower for safekeeping. He was returned here before daybreak today in the custody of 60 picked members of the national guard under command of Adjutant-General Lindley Camp.

Ten guardsmen surrounded James in the courtroom and few spectators were admitted. All were searched before being allowed to enter the courtroom.

A crowd estimated by officers at 5,000 persons gathered in the streets but made no attempt to interfere with the trial.

Illinois

4375

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment for Rape

White Rapist Ordered to Spend Two Years in Penitentiary

Defender 5-20-33

Chicago, Ill.

Stanley Kasper (white), 21 years old, of Glencoe, Ill., was found guilty of rape Monday by Judge John Prystalski, chief justice of the criminal court, after Mrs. Lydia Jackson, 48 years old, the victim, and other witnesses related details of the outrage of March 23. He was sentenced to two years in Joliet.

Mrs. Jackson, who works in Glencoe and lives on the premises, was returning home from a shopping tour when she was accosted near Sunset Lane and Vernon Ave. The moron took the woman's money and then dragged her into the woods.

Mrs. Jackson's screams were heard by a resident of the neighborhood and he called the police. Lieut. William Helke and Policeman Paul Hanson hurried to the scene and found Kasper still detaining the woman. He was taken to the village station and charged with robbery and rape.

On the witness stand Monday Kasper declared he didn't remember anything that happened after he left the railroad station.

Assistant State's Attorneys Robert L. Donigan and Frank Donoghue prosecuted the case vigorously and had asked for a more severe sentence.

Mrs. Jackson's daughter, Mrs. Lucille Pride, who had been living in Indianapolis, came here after her mother was outraged and sought aid of various agencies in an effort to obtain justice in the matter. She expressed utmost dissatisfaction with the sentence, asserting that she believed the defendant should have been given a longer term.

Recall Other Case

In speaking of the light sentence imposed on Kasper it was recalled that in April, 1932, three people, a woman and two men, were convicted on a charge of rape in connection with an alleged attack on a young white divorcee, Vivian Renz, and given long prison terms.

John Thompson, who is said to have attacked the woman, and Mrs. Viletta Lowe, in whose home the alleged attack occurred on Nov. 3, 1931, were given 30 years each. Levi Minter, who is said to have helped to hold the woman, was sentenced to 10 years.

All the witnesses denied the woman was raped. She was taken to Mrs. Lowe's home at 4457 Calumet Ave. by Carl B. DeVol, a wealthy white broker. Everything Mrs. Renz did was voluntary and of her own will, the witnesses testified. DeVol, indicted for rape, jumped his $3,000 cash bond and hasn't been seen since.

"RAPE" CASE MERE EXHIBITION INSTEAD OF A CRIME

Afro-American 6-17-33

Baltimore, Md.

CHICAGO (ANP.) — The DeVol case, in which a white man escaped a charge of rape and three colored confederates were given 30 years each, is to be passed on by the Illinois Supreme Court. The Chicago Branch of the N.A.A.C.P. has provided funds for the transcript of the case and seeks to have justice done to John Thompson, Viletta Lowe and Levi Minter. The first two were given 30 years and Minter 10.

According to the original case, Ralph DeVol, wealthy white insurance broker of Evanston, brought an 18-year-old white girl from Wisconsin whose name was not permitted to figure in the case, to the south side apartment of Mrs. Viletta Lowe, for alleged immoral purposes. DeVol is alleged to have paid John Thompson $5 for the privilege of witnessing the intimacies between Thompson and the girl, with Minter and Mrs. Lowe also present at the time. All of the witnesses testified that the girl gave full permission and was neither coerced or forced into the debauch.

The appeal is being made on a writ of error, the main assignment of which is that evidence adduced at the trial is insufficient to support and warrant the [illegible]dered by the jury [illegible] outcry by the complaining witness, and the charges made by the complaining witness were not corroborated.

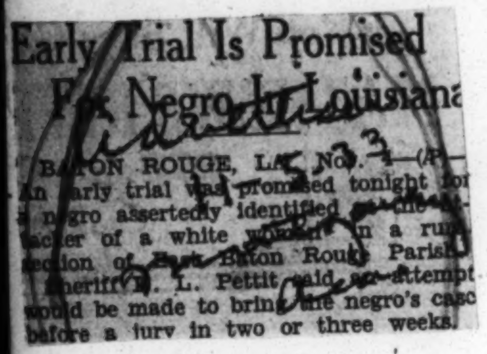
Attorneys Earl B. Dickerson and Heber T. Dotson are the attorneys of record in the matter of the appeal.

Louisiana

4376

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment for Rape.



Early Trial Is Promised For Negro In Louisiana

Advertiser 11-5-33

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 4—(AP)—An early trial was promised tonight for a negro assertedly identified as the attacker of a white woman in a rural section of East Baton Rouge Parish.

Sheriff R. L. Pettit said an attempt would be made to bring the negro's case before a jury in two or three weeks.

Maryland

4378

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment for Rape.

ONLY 10 YEARS FOR RAPIST WHO KILLED CHILD.

Afro-American

Ofay Who Fatally Shot Girl Gets Light Term.

7-1-33

Baltimore Md.

ALSO ABUSED CHILD'S SISTER

Say He Lured Pair to Shanty Here.

Martin Gothea, white, pipe fitter, and former Polytechnic student who was convicted of raping 12-year-old Cecelia Williams and fatally shooting her ten-year-old sister, Florence Williams, in his shanty on April 23, was sentenced to ten years in the Maryland penitentiary by Judge Stanton, Thursday.

The white man was convicted on the statutory rape charge last week. Tried on charges of murdering the ten-year-old child he was convicted of manslaughter. Judge Stanton sentenced the white man to three years in the House of Correction on the manslaughter charge and ten years in the Maryland penitentiary on the rape charge. The sentences are to run concurrently. Gothea will serve the ten years in the penitentiary.

Testimony given at the trial in the criminal court disclosed that he persuaded the two girls to enter his shanty and that while there the younger girl was shot and the older one raped.

U. S. Court Seeks to Disbar Ades for His Fight for Negro

Daily Worker

12-5-33

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 3.—Acting to disbar Bernard Ades, International Labor Defense attorney, because of his militant fight for the rights of Negroes in Maryland, Judge William C. Coleman of the U. S. District Court here has issued an order to show cause why he should not be permenently disbarred from practice in the federal courts.

This action follows the previous barring of Ades from practice in the Federal Court in the Euel Lee case—an action taken also by Judge Coleman, to prevent the taking of legal steps to save the life of Euel Lee.

The basis of Judge Coleman's attack on the I. L. D. lawyer is primarily his defense of Euel Lee — which the jurist calls "fraudulent" because police claimed they secured a "confession" from Lee. Published photographs of Lee at the time showed just how this "confession" was obtained.

This basis of attack, it was pointed out, is even contradictory to the whole supposed principle of American law, under which every defendant is supposed to have the privilege of full and adequate legal defense.

The I. L. D. is mobilizing mass defense to prevent the disbarment of Ades, and as well will mobilize a corps of lawyers to fight on the question of the legal issues involved. The organization has called on all workers and organizations, all intellectuals, liberals, and liberal lawyers to send

Lynchings-1933

Mississippi.

4379

Legal Punishment for Rape.

NEGRO AGAIN ESCAPES GALLOWS IN ASSAULT

JACKSON, Miss., July 6—(AP)—Through federal court action, Tom Carraway, coast negro under death sentence in connection with an alleged attack upon a white woman, escaped the gallows today for the sixth time since he was convicted two years ago.

Sentenced to hang July 10 by the Mississippi supreme court after an extended legal battle for his life in state tribunals, Carraway today won a postponement until September of a hearing on his federal court petition appealing from the state court decision. The action automatically sets aside the execution until after the hearing.

Carraway's federal court petition, filed by former Lieutenant Governor Bidwell Adam, Gulfport, and S. D. Redmond, Jackson attorney, charges the negro's conviction was in violation of the federal constitution in that the jury panel did not contain any negroes and that two of his witnesses were prevented from testifying in his behalf through "fear of mob violence."

Greenwood, Miss. Commonwealth
July 7, 1933

T28

INVITING LYNCHING

Tom Carraway, coast negro, under sentence of death for an alleged attack on a white woman, has carried his case into federal court, charging that the Mississippi jury system violates the Fourteenth Amendment because no negroes were on the panel which tried him, and that fear of mob violence prevented two negroes who could prove an alibi for him, from testifying.

The Carraway case, viewed in connection with the Scottsboro, Alabama, trials, and the attack of a negro on the jury system of Virginia when extradition was sought, gives the appearance of a determined and concerted effort being made to break down the laws of the Southern states under which negroes are practically excluded from juries.

The attempt will be viewed with great concern by Southern people who are and have been sincerely interested in eliminating lynching in the Southern states, for if every trial of a negro accused of a heinous offense must be fought through to United States Supreme Court before final conviction, on technicalities, there are going to be more lynchings and fewer trials in the state courts, for there has yet been devised no system of appealing from Judge Lynch's decisions, whether right or wrong.

Greenville, Miss. Times
August 18, 1933

SEEK INDICTMENT OF NEGRO IN ATTACK ON YOUNG CHATHAM GIRL

Report That Petitions Are Being Circulated Asking for Special Session of Grand Jury to Indict Negro Held by Officers

Petitions are reported as being circulated in the southern part of Washington county to be presented Circuit Judge S. F. Davis requesting the jurist to call the grand jury into session to consider indictment of J. B. Johnson, 25, negro farm laborer, on a charge of attacking an eleven year old white girl in the Chatham community.

Johnson is held in an unannounced jail where he was rushed on the night of Tuesday, August 8, by Sheriff Ben H Gildart who got word that a mob of 100 from the lower part of the county was advancing on the county bastile. The mob arrived at Greenville, milled about the jail and after seeing for themselves that Johnson was not in jail here, dispersed and returned home. Some of them were armed.

The girl was enroute to her home on a farm at Chatham Tuesday morning, August 8, after attending Mission School when she was accosted by a negro and dragged into a clump of bushes. She made her way home and told her parents.

The man-hunt was started in the southern part of the county and Sheriff Ben H. Gildart and deputies joined the search. Bloodhounds were brought from Clarksdale.

Johnson was arrested by Deputy Neal of the Chatham community, and later Essie Lee was taken into custody by Sheriff Gildart. Lee was later released.

Fellow farm workers reported that Johnson, who was plowing in a field nearby where the girl passed, was late in coming in with his mules to water them at 11:45 a. m..

The little girl in a highly nervous condition was unable to positively identify either of the negroes. Both negroes were brought to Greenville and lodged in jail. When Sheriff Gildart got word that the band of 100 men was enroute to Greenville, he rushed the negroes away by automobile. Lee was later released.

Reports from the Chatham community are that the petition for the calling of the grand jury into special session is being signed by residents of that section, where feeling has been running high since the attack.

The last regular session of the grand jury was held in June, and the next regular session will be held in December.

Execution Of Mississippi Negro Is Delayed Again

GULFPORT, MISS., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Judge Walter A. White in circuit court today overruled a motion for a new trial for Tom Carraway, 21-year-old Jackson County negro, who has escaped the gallows a half dozen times since his conviction at Pascagoula nearly two years ago on a charge of criminal assault, but he granted a supersedeas writ pending an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Judge White's written opinion intimated that he thought Carraway should have a new trial, but he said he could not grant it because such action would be to "override and ignore" the opinion of the Supreme Court, which has already affirmed the conviction.

Bidwell Adam, former Mississippi lieutenant governor, counsel for Carraway, said an appeal would be carried to the Supreme Court as quickly as possible.

The plea for a new trial is based on the contention that the negro was "inadequately" represented by counsel at his trial.

Lynchings-1933
6
Legal Punishment for Rape.
6

Missouri.

4380

GETS LIFE FOR ATTACKS

Commercial Appeal

Negro Sentenced [illegible] Kennett
Faces Two Other Charges

KENNETT, Mo., Nov. [illegible]—C. D. Ward, 23, negro, charged with attacking two women near Malden March 28, was sentenced to life in the penitentiary today after a jury in circuit court found him guilty.

Prosecuting Attorney Elbert Ford stated he would demand the death penalty on two other indictments against him. The cases will be set Nov. 20.

NEGRO TO HANG FOR ATTACK ON 2 GIRLS

Commercial Appeal

Found Guilty of Charge In Trial At Kennett

11-30-33

KENNETT, Mo., Nov. 29.—C. D. Ward, negro, will be sentenced here Dec. 18 to hang for the attack last May upon two farm girls near Malden. He was found guilty here this afternoon by a jury which failed to agree on punishment, and Judge James V. Billings announced that he favored the death penalty.

Ward was arrested in Helena, Ark., several weeks ago, and was identified by the girls as their attacker. He admitted the attack but later repudiated the confession.

In his first trial he was found guilty and given life, but was brought to trial on a second indictment because the prosecuting attorney was not satisfied with the punishment.

The hanging will be the first in this county in 32 years.

A LOCAL DRED SCOTT CASE

Call
10-20-33
Kansas City Mo.

Whether or not Clinton Dawson is guilty of rape is of lesser concern. The important thing is that his case be reviewed in the higher court in order that it may stand out clear and unmistakeably that no defendant is to be sentenced without a trial in which he has counsel to advise him and all the formalities of a trial.

Dawson is being punished because the law says he should be punished for what he has done. The law ought to be obeyed also when it sets out the procedure under which his guilt is to be ascertained. In short it is of small moment, entirely a concern of the individual, whether or not he did wrong, but it is everybody's business whether or not a person under arrest shall be entirely in the hands of those whose business is to convict him, and shall plead without understanding the inevitable results of that plea.

A policeman was Dawson's advisor. He pleaded guilty on the assurance that thereby he would earn a light sentence. His action proves how little he knows. But at the same time his ignorance makes it the more imperative that the state protect his constitutional rights, a thing which it did not do. On the contrary, it took advantage of his ignorance.

Dred Scott, the ante-bellum fugitive from slavery, himself unimportant, became the symbol of a principle fought over by the pro- and anti-slavery forces. Dawson, a citizen of little constructive worth according to his own admissions, typifies the right of every defendant to his day in court. His conviction, if let stand, will be a precedent for sentencing other prisoners without trial.

The lawyers who are preparing an appeal for Dawson are rendering a service to the public. Not the black public only but all the people are subject to the same drumhead conviction he got. The idea of the arresting officer being the prisoner's counsellor! Prosecution in such a setting is a shame to the state, which its own honor should drive it to correct.

Poor folk like Dawson are easily convicted when every form of the law is complied with. The representatives of the law have not the slightest excuse for beguiling them with false promises and tricking them into pleading guilty.

North Carolina

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment for Rape.

4381

N. C. GOVERNOR FREES CONDEMNED BOY JUDGE FELT INNOCENT AFTER TRIAL ON CHARGE OF ATTACKING WOMAN AGE 75

Balto., Md.

Among Last Acts of Late Judge Was To Write a Plea. Boy Was Twice Doomed By Courts.

RALEIGH, N. C. Jan. 5— (CNS) Tried for his life on two occasions, twice convicted on a capital charge, and sentenced to death in the electric chair, his case heard on appeals two times before the North Carolina Supreme Court, Wilbur McLeod, Negro lad of Lee County, is today a free man having been granted a parole by Governor O. Max Gardner, as one of his last official acts before leaving the Governor's Chair.

Early in 1929 McLeod was arrested, tried, convicted, and sentenced to death for rape of a seventy-five year old white woman in Lee County. An appeal was perfected to the State Supreme Court, which Court granted McLeod a new trial, basing the decision on the fact that the evidence on which he was convicted, was not sufficient to convict. At McLeod's second trial, what was purported to be new evidence, was presented to the jury, and for the second time he was convicted on the charge of rape.

Judge Convinced Of Innocence

At the direction of Governor Gardner, Lieut Lawrence A. Oxley State Director of Negro Welfare, visited Lee County and made a through investigation of the facts in the case, and recommended that the death sentence be commuted to one of life imprisonment. In August, 1930, acting favorably on the report and recommendation of Lieut. Oxley, the Governor commuted McLeod's death sentence.

Since that time every effort has been put forth toward establishing the innocence of this unfortunate boy. One of the most important factors in securing his freedom, were the contents of a letter written by the Trial Judge Midgette, who listened to all the evidence in the case, wrote the Governor, that he was convinced of the absolute innocence of McLeod.

Among fifty Christmas paroles granted by Governor Gardner, one goes to Wilbur McLeod, with the statement from the Governor that, "This boy is not guilty of the crime charged, and is being punished unjustly." Lieut. Oxley when asked for a statement on this case, stated that, "Every effort will be continued, looking toward the securing of a complete pardon for McLeod so that full, though belated justice may be done this unfortnate country lad."

Fair Trial Assured For Accused Negroes

HENDERSON, N. C., Oct. 6.—(AP) After an investigation of reported attempts to shoot two negro defense attorneys last night, Judge R. Hunt Parker ruled in superior court today there was no evidence that two negro defendants in an assault and kidnaping case could not get a fair trial here.

He delivered his ruling after the two attorneys, C. J. Gates and H. M. Thompson, of Durham, said they were shot at and cursed when they left the courthouse after a session last night.

10-7-33

The attorneys were given an armed guard when they entered the jammed courtroom today. Subpoenas had been issued for them and they were assured protection. The Henderson bar appointed a committee to aid in the investigation.

Charlotte Ob.

Gates and Thompson are associated in defense of Beaufort Kelly and Florida Bullock, charged with kidnaping and assaulting a white girl on a farm near here several weeks ago. They sought unsuccessfully to have the indictments quashed on the ground that negroes were barred from the grand jury.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment for Rape.

Oklahoma

4382

JESS HOLLINS' PROSECUTOR VOLUNTARILY ASKS PRESIDING JUDGE TO DISMISS INFORMATION

Black Dispatch
3-11-33

SAM CUNNINGHAM, ASSISTANT CREEK COUNTY ATTORNEY, ATTEMPTED TO AMEND INFORMATION AT RECENT TRIAL

Case Now Stands With No Charge Against Defendant In Any Court

OKMULGEE, Okla., Mar. 7.—Defense counsel for Jess Hollins, Negro, charged with rape of Alta McCullom, white girl, won a signal victory here Tuesday when Sam Cunningham, assistant county attorney of Creek county, returned from Sapulpa and voluntarily asked Judge Mark L. Bozarth to dismiss the information which the day before Cunningham had declared he had the right to amend.

Dismissal of the charge is in line with the prediction of Judge E. P. Hill, Hollins' attorney, who told the court Monday that Cunningham had no legal right to amend an information which Bozarth had previously declared void.

As the case now stands there is no charge in any court against Hollins. The prisoner is still held, and it is possible that a new information will be filed in Creek county against the now famous prisoner. Hollins' attorneys express the belief that they will be just as able to demur the prosecution out of court on their next information as in this instance.

"I think we are making some headway towards constitutional government in Oklahoma," said Editor Roscoe Dunjee, president of the N. A. A. C. P. branches of Oklahoma, when asked for a statement covering the latest developments. "We are forcing the prosecution into the straight-jacket of the statutes. The Creek county officials now know that they cannot slap together a loose jumble of words with which to frame a Negro into the electric chair. The state branches are girding their belts in readiness for the next attempt of Oklahoma officials to stage a legal lynching."

Jess Hollins was convicted in Sapulpa, Creek county, about fourteen months ago on a charge of rape. The court held a night session of only a few minutes, going swiftly through the gestures of arraignment, preliminary and trial. Later the State Criminal Court of Appeals declared the alleged trial a farce and remanded it for trial.

Black Dispatch
3-11-33
Okla City

The Strength In Unity

Black Dispatch
3-11-33
Oklahoma City, Okla.

When the citizens of Tulsa, Boley and Oklahoma City join hands together on the same day to raise funds for the protection of a Negro in another section of the state, the Black Dispatch feels that black folk are actually uniting their forces for the common good.

This unusual incident happened last week during the trial of the Jess Hollins case, when N. A. A. C. P. branches in the three cities rushed to the rescue of the fund and placed the amount of money in Okmulgee necessary to cover current expenses of the trial. So far as we know this is the first expression of such interest in an Oklahoma case.

To date Oklahomans have raised $351.26. The national office of the N. A. A. C. P. has sent into the state the sum of $100, making a total of $451.26. But the trial has just started; we have twice halted the state in its mad rush to electrocute a man whose only probable crime is that he is black. Today, because of our combined efforts, the officials of Creek county find themselves hurled back to an original information. The court at Okmulgee has spoken again to say that the former alleged information would not stand.

Negroes have lost most of their battles, not because they could not win, but because they did not have the patience, the perserverence and the courage to go on to the top of the hill. It has cost time and money to drive the Creek county officials into a legal "nine-hole." It will cost money to keep them there. What have you done to help?

Since the Okmulgee trial the citizens of Vernon have raised money for the fund. It is reported in this issue of the Black Dispatch. This is the proper spirit. Negroes in the communities where funds have already been raised and also in communities where no assistance has been given, should be alert and active in collecting funds to keep up the fight. It will be a great victory for justice when we have forced the officials of Creek county to give Jess Hollins a fair trial.

To date the N. A. A. C. P. has been justified in the open stand it has taken in the Jess Hollins case. Two courts have said that due process of law has been denied Hollins. This is, after all, the particular angle regarding our courts, in which the N. A. A. C. P. is interested. Regardless of a citizen's guilt or innocence, the N. A. A. C. P. demands that such a citizen have thrown about him all constitutional guarantees, when tried in our courts.

If you have not contributed to the Jess Hollins Defense Fund; if you have not used your influence in your community for a united effort along this line, do not delay this important matter any longer. Let's show the state of Oklahoma a united front. Join in the demand for justice in our courts.

Rape Case Must Be Retried

Defender
5-20-33
Chicago, Ill.

SAPULPA, Okla., May 12.—Openly challenging the authority of the court to further hold Jess Hollins, charged with assault on a white woman, Judge E. P. Hill, attorney for Hollins, retained by the N. A. A. C. P. branches in the state, presented a plea Monday before Judge Gaylord F. Wilcox in which he demanded the immediate release of the defendant.

The motion was denied and Judge Hill gave notice of appeal to the criminal court of appeals.

The legal question upon which Judge Hill based his plea for the release of Hollins arises from the failure of Judge Mark L. Bozarth, Okmulgee, when he sustained a demurrer of Hollins' attorney to instruct the county attorney to file a new information. Hollins' attorney had charged the original information was faulty and Judge Bozarth sustained him. But no new information was filed and on Feb. 28 the case was dismissed.

Judge Hill now claims before Judge Wilcox that Oklahoma law provides that his client shall go free when the judge sustaining a demurrer to an information fails to direct that a new information be filed.

Judge Wilcox objected vigorously to this interpretation of the law. He asked Hollins how he would plead and when Hollins' lawyer said he had instructed his client not to plead because the defense did not recognize that Judge Wilcox had any jurisdiction, Judge Wilcox himself pleaded Hollins not guilty. Hollins' attorney is confident of a reversal of Judge Wilcox's ruling and cites the plain language of the Oklahoma statutes and court decisions on this particular point.

Hollins was arrested first in Sapulpa in December, 1931, and was tried and sentenced to death in a courtroom set up at night in the basement of the jail, where he had no lawyer, no friends or advisers. He was about to be hanged on August 13, 1932, when the N. A. A. C. P. was called in on August 15 and his case was appealed to the Oklahoma supreme court, which instantly reversed the verdict of death and ordered a new trial.

The Jess Hollins Demurrer

Black Dispatch

The Black Dispatch trusts that no false hopes will be aroused in the breasts of Negroes because of the action of Judge Bozarth Monday in the Jess Hollins case. Already gossip flits from lip to lip that Jess Hollins is free; that the case was tried and that he was declared innocent.

The opposite, however, is the truth. Jess Hollins is still a prisoner held by the state to answer to some sort of information which will be later filed against him. We do not want to create a false impression. To do this would be to court a reaction which later would be damaging to the faith and confidence which we are desirous that black folk place in the proper and final equitable adjudication of this regrettable affair.

3-2-33

The dicision of Judge Bozarth Monday in sustaining the demurrer of the defense attorneys, did not go into the merits of this case. The guilt or innocence of Jess Hollins was not the issue in that abruptly ended hearing. Hollins' attorneys were able to convince the court that Creek county officials had prepared a faulty information against Hollins, which did not conform to the statutes of the state of Oklahoma. Judge Bozarth has in turn given Creek county officials until April 3 to prepare a proceeding, in which they will have the opportunity to cure the defectiveness in the instrument declared.

Oklahoma City

Under the statutes of Oklahoma, and most states, the prosecution cannot charge a man with more than one offense in an information. In law this faulty form is called duplicity. The Hollins charge fell down on this point.

Oklahoma

Again, in charging a defendant with the commission of a given crime, the language of the statutes on that subject must be followed substantially. No vague gesture or vague, random hearsay must be employed in the language of the information. The defendant must be placed in the straight jacket settled and fixed by the state. It is a proper safeguard in due process of law. The Hollins information fell down on this point.

Attorneys for Hollins also state in their demurrer the contention that "The facts stated in said information do not constitute a public offense." This is, of course, a more or less controversal question which could hardly be determined except in a trial on the merits of the case. It was, however, their privilege to throw the state on the defense on this question. The Black Dispatch believes Judge Bozarth sustained the demurrer on the two first points set up in the demurrer.

It should be heartening, however, to those who contributed to the defense fund of Jess Hollins, to know that the vicious Creek county officials who rushed into a night session of court to take the life of a black man who may be innocent, have been halted the second time in their mad mob spirit and told by the court that they must in the trial of this case follow orderly procedure guaranteed by the constitution of the state and the United States. This is the battle ground of the N. A. A. C. P., and that is primarily the reason for their entrance into this proceeding.

The action of the court Monday will have the effect of bumping off the cock-sureness of perjurers always present in a case such as this. Just the other day County Attorney Lewis Morris, of Oklahoma county, had to remand to jail a witness in a case where a white man was being tried for brutally murdering a Negro porter in a hotel. Since landing in jail this perjurer has already said that he knows nothing about the case, and he does not know why he made the statements calculated to free the defendant. You know why he made the statement. The only place where this perjurer errored was in the belief that the Oklahoma county courts were places where white folk kangaroed black folk. This white perjurer had doubtless gotten away with this sort of a crime in a score of other instances, or had perhaps seen other persons safely assume this attitue towards helpless black folk.

Jess Hollins will be tried in some court on a charge of rape. The Black Dispatch makes that prediction now, but as we said a moment ago, things are breaking in his favor. Slowly, but surely, Creek county law agencies are being forced to proceed down constitutional paths towards the day of trial. When that day comes we believe that the evidence will show that Jess Hollins has suffered all of this persecution for no other reason than because his face is black.

Criminal Court Of Appeals Remands Hollins Case

Black Dispatch

The case of Jess Hollins, Negro, accused of having raped a white girl, Alta McCummon, in Creek county, in December 1931, was remanded by the Criminal Court of Appeals to Okmulgee for trial last Monday.

6-15-33

Attorneys for the Oklahoma Branches of the N. A. A. C. P. appeared during the hearing and argued that the case should be dismissed on the ground that Judge Bozarth, Okmulgee, had failed to direct the county attorney of Creek county to prepare a new information, and that this failure had the effect of voiding the information.

Okla City

All records in the case were ordered by the high court to be transferred to Okmulgee county and the case will be sent down for hearing during the next term of court.

According to E. P. Hill, attorney for the N. A. A. C. P., the court did not pass upon the question of the voidance of the information, and he will immediately press this point before Judge Bozarth.

The statutes provide that contemporaneous with the sustaining of a demurrer, a judge must direct the county attorney what future action to take. Initiative in such matters is not vested in prosecuting attorneys following sustained demurrers.

South Carolina

4383

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment for Rape

CHARLESTON, S. C.
NEWS
JUL 28 1933

Decency and Law

For the crime that so often has been set up by a variety of Southern politicians as an excuse for lynching, a man, a negro, was lawfully put to death in the penitentiary last week. He was arrested, tried, convicted, in Laurens county, where he had the protection of the sheriff and other officers of the law. About eighteen years ago a negro in Fairfield county was accused of a similar crime, he was carried to the penitentiary and when Sheriff Hood brought him back to Winnsboro for trial he was killed and so was the sheriff. The man who was accused of killing the sheriff was tried and acquitted, which was an indirect way of condemning a gallant sheriff for giving his life in the performance of the duty to which he was sworn. In the Laurens case decency and civilization have been vindicated and the confessed felon has met the fate that will in all cases be measured to such culprits unless there shall be reasonable doubt of their guilt. Yet there are prominent white men, "leaders of the people", who would have advocated and instigated the lynching of the negro in Laurens if they had had the opportunity to do so, who would have had hundreds of Laurens men to stain their hands with mob murder.

Lynchings - 1933
Legal Punishment for Rape

South Carolina

4384

ALLEGED RAPIST TO DIE

6-24-33

LAURENS, S. C., June 22.—(A. N. P.—Death in electric chair is the price that the state of South Carolina will exact from a Negro who is accused of violating the "eternal chastity" of a white woman.

Barney Smith, 21, was tried and convicted Tuesday of criminal assault and sentenced to die July 21. The jury deliberated only eight minutes. Smith pleaded not guilty. Sixty-four National Guardsmen, deputy sheriffs and detectives surrounded the courtroom and yard as irate whites swarmed into the building to witness the trial.

Smith's alleged victim in court pointed an accusing finger at him and briefly told how he had forced himself into her home on March 7th. She said that she was alone in the house with her small child.

Smith on the stand was seemingly unafraid and in a low tone denied the woman's accusations. He said that he was in Laurens County at the time the crime was alleged to have been committed in Greenwood County. He pointed out that it was impossible to cross the Saluda river because of construction work being done on the bridge.

Barney Smith is the first person to be sentenced to the chair from Laurens in 18 years. And this is the first trial during this generation that troops were ordered out to maintain order.

SOUTH CAROLINA NEGRO DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

7-22-33

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 21.—(AP)—Barnie Smith, 21-year-old Laurens county negro, was electrocuted at the state penitentiary here at sunup today for attacking a young married white woman, mother of a small child, near Ware Shoals last March. Before he died, Smith confessed to the attack.

"SOUTHERN JUSTICE" SENDS MAN TO CHAIR IN 'EIGHT MINUTES'

Entire Trial, Including Selection of Jury, Trial and Sentence, In Less Than Two Hours.

(Special to The Pittsburgh Courier)

LAURENS, S. C., June 22—South Carolina delivered herself unto the "Southern Justice" code and sent young Barney Smith to his death in eight minutes! In fact, the trial opened at 11:10 and at 11:37 Smith had been tried and sentenced and on his way back to Columbia, where he is to remain until July 21st when the death sentence will be carried out. The jury was out just eight minutes!

Smith, 21, protesting his innocence to the last, was accused of criminal assault upon a young white woman. Although detectives and deputy sheriffs testified that he had voluntarily "confessed," Smith swore that he was not in Laurens County at the time of the crime; that he could not get across Saluda river because of work on the bridge. He also repudiated the alleged confession to the officers, saying he was cruelly beaten and tortured and forced to make a statement. The defendant had an attorney, but he made no argument for his client and the jury retired to return in record "cracker-justice" time.

As a precautionary measure the court at Laurens for the first time in this generation, was surrounded by state troops, ordered by the governor to see that there was no interference with typical "southern justice." Smith is the first person to be sentenced to the chair from Laurens county in about 18 years.

Negro Sentenced To Die in Chair

Telegraph
9-16-33
Macon Ga

LEXINGTON, S. C., Sept. 15. (AP)—Clarence Floyd, 26-year old Negro, today was convicted of criminally attacking a young Columbia white woman and sentenced to be electrocuted.

A Lexington county sessions court found Floyd guilty after two hours deliberation. Judge W. H. Grimball, presiding, sentenced the Negro to be electrocuted October 20.

The principal state's witnesses were the young woman and H. D. Sutton, young Columbia furniture salesman.

They told how Floyd came up to an automobile in which they were sitting near New Brookland, a suburb, the night of August 5, robbed Sutton, and holding him at bay with a pistol, attacked the girl.

Taking the witness stand himself, the Negro told a frantic story of former dealings with Sutton and said the latter had "framed" him. He sought to establish an alibi that he was elsewhere the night of the attack.

White Farmer Sentenced For Attack On Colored Girl Nine Years Old

11-24-33

SUMTER, S. C.—(By A.N.P.)—Joseph Wells, 55-year-old white man, was convicted of assault with intent to criminally assault a 9-year-old colored girl in General Sessions court here Wednesday. The jury recommended mercy for the white man and Judge M. M. Mann sentenced him to 40 years in the penitentiary, which sounds bad, but which is a merciful sentence when it is realized that Negroes, accused but not convicted, of the same crime against white women, are summarily murdered by mobs.

Tennessee

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment for Rape

4385

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
June 9, 1933

NEGRO WINS FREEDOM IN TRIAL FOR ASSAULT

Randell Jones, colored, was absolved of a charge of criminally assaulting Bessie Smith by a directed verdict of not guilty from Judge L. D. Miller in second criminal court yesterday.

The Negro, represented by Attorney Jesse Hargraves, offered an alibi in defense to the crime, which is alleged to have occurred last Jan. 31.

Atty.-Gen. John J. Lively represented the state. The not guilty verdict was given after both the state and the defense had closed their cases.

The case against Odum Martin, charged with the murder of sher Rainey, was passed until July 5.

FISK MAN WILL HELP IN SCOTTSBORO CASE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 3 (ANP).—The Mahlon Publishing Company of this city announces that "The Scottsboro Blues," a volume of verse by Herman J. D. Carter, Fisk University graduate, will be off the press on Wednesday.

The company states that Mr. Carter has offered to give the Scottsboro boys a sum equal to the royalty that he may receive from the first thousand copies. Earl D. Crawford, Nashville artist, illustrated the book.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
September 2, 1933

NEGROES' EXECUTION DUE NEXT THURSDAY

Defense Attorneys Seeking Clemency for Wilcoxen and Bivens, Attackers.

With next Thursday set as the execution date for Andrew Wilcoxen and Oscar ("Skin") Bivens, Chattanooga Negroes, who are condemned to die for criminally assaulting a white girl, local attorneys are fighting to have the governor commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Attorney George W. Chamlee, who, as International Labor Defense league counsel, is defending the Scottsboro Negroes, has interested himself in the case, according to Attorney Fred Redwine, who represented Wilcoxen at the trial. Attorney Joseph N. Hunter, who was appointed by the court to represent Bivens, said yesterday he has stepped out of the case after carrying it to the state supreme court because Bivens' people have contacted Chamlee.

Chamlee, however, when asked if he was leading the fight for clemency, denied he was actively interested. "His folks came to me and asked me to draw up a petition," the International Labor Defense league attorney said. "I just drew it up for them and let them take it around."

Redwine, nevertheless, said Chamlee had the petition and was active in getting it presented to the proper authorities in Nashville.

"I believe we've got a chance," Redwine said, when asked if he thought the efforts to keep the Negroes off the electric chair would be successful.

Signers of the petition asking commutation are either all, or mostly, colored citizens.

The two Negroes—Wilcoxen captured by city detectives almost immediately after the assault, and Bivens, tracked down by Constable Roy Clinton after weeks of hiding—were convicted in Judge C. W. Lusk's court and sentenced to die. A new trial was refused and the state supreme court upheld the conviction, and did not recommend commutation of the death penalty.

If the Negroes are electrocuted, they will be the first Hamilton countians to die in the electric chair for murder or assault in at least a dozen years, according to local officials.

---

2 NEGROES EXECUTED AT TENNESSEE PRISON

9-7-33

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. [illegible]—(AP) Andrew Wilcoxen and Oscar Bivens, negroes, convicted of attacking a young white woman in Chattanooga last year, were electrocuted at the state penitentiary early today. The negroes, both about 26 years old, spent their last minutes singing spirituals.

Wilcoxen went to the chair first and sang while awaiting the throwing of the switch. Bivens joined in the singing from his death cell and continued the spirituals while sitting in the electric chair waiting for the current to be turned on.

Lynchings- 1933
Legal Punishment for Rape.

Texas.

4386

TEXAS NEGRO CONVICTED DESPITE REPUDIATION

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A district court jury after brief deliberation today sentenced Bluitt Burkley, 19-year-old negro, to death in the electric chair for the murder of Miss Katheryn Prince, 19-year-old white girl, who was attacked and slain near here the night of August 30.

9-12-33

The negro repudiated a confession, claiming it was made under threat of mob violence.

Constitution

Forty deputies guarded the courtroom to prevent any possible attempt on the life of the negro whose brother, Thurman Burkley, awaited trial on a similar charge.

Ga.

TEXAS NEGRO EXECUTED FOR CRIMINAL ASSAULT

12-20-33

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Dec. 19.—(AP)—After making a final statement of his innocence, Tom Cook, 34-year-old Houston negro, was electrocuted at the state penitentiary here early today. He was pronounced dead at 12:12 a. m.

Constitution

"Lord knows I didn't do it," he said as he was being strapped in the electric chair.

Ga.

Cook was sentenced to death for criminally assaulting a white woman. He was convicted in Houston in 1932.

Virginia.

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment for Rape.

4387

To Try White Man On Charge Of 11-Year Girl Oct. 25

Planet

10-14-33

Seven cases of rape are scheduled or trial in Hustings Court. These ffenses are against young girls, all nder 14 years of age, and is a warning to mothers to watch over and rotect their girls. Four of these ases are against white men. Three hite men are being charged with his offense against the same girl and he only 14 years of age, and white.

Richmond Va.

Edwin Winn, white, of 2118 West ain Street, is scheduled for trial n the Hustings Court on October 5 on a charge of rape against a olored girl in East Leigh Street. e is held in jail awaiting trial.

Three young colored men are harged with offenses against colred girls and will be tried at this erm of court.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment for Rape

Virginia

4388

YOUTH GETS 99 YEAR SENTENCE AT SECRET TRIAL

Journal Guide

Lawyer Appointed By Court Didn't Put Him On Stand

10-21-33

Richmond Bureau
604 N. Third St.

RICHMOND, Va. — News was received here this week that James Mizer, 24-year-old Orange County youth, was sentenced to 99 years in the state penitentiary by a jury in the Orange County Circuit Court on a charge of rape during the September term.

Mizer did not take the witness stand in his own behalf on the advice of his attorney, Severn M. Nottingham, who was appointed by the court. The trial was held behind closed doors "on account of the sensational character of the testimony, and in order to prevent undue prejudice against the accused," according to the defense attorney.

Norfolk, Va.

From other sources it was learned that the woman involved in the case was a married white woman about 22 years of age. Mizer is said to have admitted intimate relations with the woman, but to have denied he had raped her. His contention is that he had been in the woman's company on previous occasions.

Veil of Secrecy

While it is very difficult to pierce the veil of secrecy thrown up around the case, it was learned from a reliable source that Mizer and the woman were seen by a white man passing on a train. This man notified authorities when he reached his destination, and Mize was arrested shortly afterwards a the spot where he and the wom an had been seen.

Mizer was placed in the Charlottesville jail and held until hi trial. He is said to have bee charged with a similar offense few years ago, but the grand jur found insufficient evidence to indict him. Mizer's only known rel ative is a brother. According t his attorney the facts in the cas against Mizer were practically undisputed.

The Guide was informed tha the attorney endeavored to obtai an agreement for a life sentenc but the commonwealth would no consent, and made a strong ple for the death penalty. The jur on the first ballot, is said to hav stood eight for life, and four fo the death penalty. They finall agreed on a life term, "and to b frank with you," the attorney stated, "I was very much relieved a the outcome."

At the time of Mizer's arrest o the latest charge, he is said t have had a charge of stealing cow hanging over his head but ha not been tried. He is alleged t have plead guilty to the offense.

The act with which Mizer wa charged was alleged to have been committed on a lonely road abou a mile and a half from Barboursville main road. The testimony, according to the attorney, wa strong that the act was committe by threats of death against th woman.

Lynchings - 1933
6
Legal Punishment for Rape.

Virginia
6

4389

Ofay Rapist Gets Only Three Years

Afro-American
Baltimore, Md.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va.—After being found guilty of an attempt to rape three colored girls from 10 to 12 years of age, Nelson Crismond, white, 54, was sentenced to only three years in the penitentiary, this week.

The rapist, a resident of Stafford County, was found guilty on a statutory offense and has taken an appeal to the Supreme Court of Virginia.

OFFICERS TRY TO SMASH CAMERA AT GORDON TRIAL

Face Assault Charges Brought By Guide Representative

Journal & Guide
Norfolk, Va.

Two Norfolk County officers, who were star witnesses against 18-year-old Russell Gordon during his trial on the now repudiated charges of rape brought by a white woman, will themselves have to stand trial on several complaints lodged against them after they allegedly assaulted and cursed a representative of the Journal and Guide, Monday, and attempted to smash his camera because they thought a picture was about to be made of Mrs. Pauline Hartmann, Gordon's accuser.

The officers were H. W. Jones and another whose identity had been only tentatively established early Wednesday. The victim of the incident was P. Bernard Young, Jr. managing editor of the Journal and Guide.

At midnight Tuesday the warrants had not been served on the officers, although it is understood they were back at the courthouse Monday night and Tuesday. Justice of the Peace Kemp Plummer assured the Journal and Guide late Tuesday night that the warrants would be served at the courthouse sometime Wednesday.

"Remote Control" Coverage

Mr. Young was in company with John Jordan, a Portsmouth representative of the Guide who had been assigned, along with Albert L. Hinton, city editor, to cover the Gordon trial.

Because newspapermen had been excluded from the trial proper along with the general public, the coverage of the proceedings was largely by "remote control."

The reported occurrence took place about seven p. m., just before darkness fell, and during a short recess ordered by Judge C. W. Coleman. As related by Mr. Young and according to the warrants which he immediately swore out against the officers, the alleged attack, and the events leading up to and immediately following it are as follows:

Trial Dragged

About 1:30 Monday afternoon he received a message from Mr. Jordan that Sheriff A. A. Wendell of Norfolk County had granted permission for a photograph to be made of young Gordon at some convenient time, probably around five o'clock. The regular Guide photographer was otherwise engaged. Mr. Young took the office's news camera with him and arrived in Portsmouth about 3:15. Mr. Jordan also had a camera. All Guide reporters are adept at use of the camera.

The trial dragged. After some waiting, Mr. Young used five of the six exposures on his film in snapping Gordon's parents, defense lawyers, and others more or less directly connected with the case. He saved his last exposure for the scheduled "shot" of Gordon.

Just before seven o'clock a short recess was ordered by the court. Mrs. Hartman, accompanied by her husband, friends, and county officers who had testified in her behalf, came out of the courthouse. Seeing the reporters with their cameras on the courthouse porch, she turned back and held a hurried conference with her companions in the lobby of the building.

"Can't Photograph Her"

First an unknown white man sought to elicit information about the newspapermen and indirectly to learn if they planned to photograph Mrs. Hartmann. Then Officer Jones approached the Guide representatives.

"You folks can't take a picture of Mrs. Hartmann," he bristled.

"We hadn't planned to," Mr. Young replied.

The officer went back to the group surrounding Mrs. Hartmann. In a few moments he returned to the newspapermen.

"You guys are going to get into trouble with those cameras if you try to take any pictures of her," he asserted.

Given Repeated Assurance

He was again told that no effort would be made to photograph the prosecutrix. For his further information, Mr. Young told him he was saving his last exposure for the picture which the sheriff had promised could be made of Gordon.

The officer became abusive, talked of "laws" against "this thing," and was taking a particularly threatening attitude. It was then that Mr. Young told him substantially, the following:

"We have repeatedly tried to set aside your fears about photographing Mrs. Hartmann, but you don't seem satisfied. Now you can't intimidate us into not doing something which is entirely legal and in the course of which we break no laws nor override the orders of the court. We're going about our duty, and we're not violating any laws and you know it. We've tried to reassure you. Now will you leave us alone!"

Tries To Smash Camera

After a lull of several minutes, Mrs. Hartmann started across the courthouse porch and down the long flight of stone steps to the street. As Officer Jones passed Mr. Young, who was leaning at the top of the stairs against a stone column on the porch, he gave the camera an "upper cut" blow and shoved Mr. Young. The camera hit Mr. Young under the chin and against his chest. No attempt had been made to photograph the woman.

Following the officer down the steps, Mr. Young remonstrated with him, demanding at the same time to know his name. He was replied to curtly and in abusive language, and the officer refused to state his name.

The other officer who accompanied him was appealed to. "As an officer will you stand by and see a citizen assaulted?" he was asked.

Other Officer's Action

In reply he grabbed the lapel of Mr. Young's coat, shook his fist in the newspaperman's face, and with curses and threats to strike him shouted: "You'll get no g.... d.... help from me!"

After a few moments the two officers proceeded down High Street toward the Norfolk ferry. In the meantime Mr. Young had warned them "there are laws to protect people from such assaults," got names of several colored witnesses, and reported the affair to Judge Coleman.

Although fully a dozen white men were within 15 feet of Mr. Young when the alleged assault took place, every one of them, when asked to be a witness to the proceedings, declared: "I didn't see anything."

Photos O. K., Said Judge

Attorney Ernest Merrill, white, Gordon's chief counsel, who just missed seeing the affray, declared it to be "an outrage against justice." The Guide representatives then learned from him that the officers had unsuccessfully sought to have Judge Coleman order them not to take any photographs, particularly of Mrs. Hartmann. In this appeal to the court, they were joined by Commonwealth's Attorney A. O. Lynch of Norfolk County.

Judge Coleman expressed surprise and disapproval at the officers' action, adding that they had no police authority in or about the courthouse as they were county officers and the courthouse was Portsmouth city property.

Within a few minutes Messrs. Young and Jordan, who fortunately escaped the officers' wrath, went to Portsmouth police headquarters, where Mr. Young secured a warrant for the arrest of Officer Jones and a John Doe warrant against the other policeman.

To Press Charges

Assault and battery, cursing and abusing, and an attempt to destroy valuable property (the camera) were the charges placed against Jones. Cursing and abusing and threatened assault were charged against the other officer.

Asked for his comment on the incident, Mr. Young smilingly remarked: "I covered the Scottsboro trial of Haywood aPtterson at Decatur, Alabama, where national guardsmen were required to prevent mob violence, and came away without a scratch. I return to Virginia—and look what happened!"

JURY SYSTEM ATTACKED IN GORDON CASE

Norfolk County School-Boy Accused By White Woman

JURY OUT 1 HR. 10 MIN.

Jury Commissioners Summoned To Defend Practices

Journal & Guide
Norfolk, Va.

[illegible]-packed two and one-half hours which recalled the internationally known week-long exposure of the Southern jury system by Samuel S. Leibowitz in the Decatur episode of the Scottsboro case, the charge of statutory criminal assault against 13-year-old Russell Gordon in connection with an alleged attack upon Mrs. Pauline Hartmann, young white woman, was shoved into the background Monday in Norfolk County Circuit Court in Portsmouth.

The youth, facing a possible death sentence, was acquitted by a jury at 10 p. m. Monday night after a trial which lasted until long after dark. The twelve men in whose hands rested his fate deliberated exactly one hour and 10 minutes.

The issue which overshadowed the airing of the actual charge against the youngster was whether Negroes are systematically and illegally excluded from the grand jury which indicted Gordon.

Motion Overruled

Following closely the line of attack in the Scottsboro and Crawford cases, Ernest S. Merrill, white Norfolk attorney, made a motion that the indictment which charged Gordon with rape be quashed because, through the exclusion of Negroes, the grand jury which returned it had been illegally drawn.

After a heated battle between defense counsel and the prosecutor, Judge C. W. Coleman, who presided, overruled the motion to quash the indictment.

When the trial proper got underway, the courtroom was cleared of all persons except those immediately connected with the case. Even the press was barred.

Courtroom Cleared

"It has been a custom of the court not to allow reporters or anyone else in the the courtroom during the actual taking of testimony in cases of this kind," Judge Coleman told the Journal and Guide. "I see no reason to make an exception in your case."

Comonwealth's Attorney A. O. Lynch was particularly emphatic in his objection to the presence of press representatives during the trial proper.

"Systematically Excluded"

Mr. Merrill charged that Negroes had been "intentionally and purposely excluded" from the grand jury which returned the indictment against Gordon "because of their race and color," and in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Exceptions were noted after Judge Coleman had overruled the motion.

It was also contended by the defense that Negroes had been "systematically excluded from grand and petit juries in the Norfolk County Court," for the past 14 years.

Like its famous predecessor, the retrial of Haywood Patterson in Decatur, Alabama, last April as one of the sensational Scottsboro trials—the issue of whether or not Negroes are excluded from jury service in Virginia, was not decided until three members of the Norfolk County jury commission, and at least six reputable Negro residents of Norfolk County had testified that no Negro had served on either a petit or grand jury in Norfolk County for the past twenty years.

Charged List Illegally Drawn

Additional arguments on the motion to quash the indictment were also made on the grounds that the county grand jury list was illegally drawn. Mr. Merrill pointed out that the law required the jury list for the year to be compiled by the five jury commissioners, the entire list to be approved by the commissioners as a body, and each named to be placed in a locked ballot box by the commissioners and placed in the custody of the county clerk.

The defense scored heavily when V. C. Randall, deputy court clerk, was called and admitted, under cross examination, that at the time the disputed jury list was drawn he, himself, placed the individual names in the box in place of the commissioners, as required by law. Mr. Randall explained his action by saying that the time was short inasmuch as a grand jury had to be selected by March 1, the date of the new term.

Asked if the jury commissioners met in a body and approved the list before signing it, Mr. Randall said they did not, and added that no one was present when the names of the grand jurors were drawn.

Judge Coleman's Statement

The hearing, which was held in a courtroom crowded with members of both races, brought to light some interesting facts, not the least of which was the statement of Judge Coleman in reference to the Negro jury issue. It was brought out that it is the duty of the County Court judge to select the grand jurors after the jury commissioners have submitted their lists.

Called upon by defense counsel to make a statement on the method of selecting grand jurors, Judge Coleman said: "I don't think the court is called upon to act as a witness. In selecting the grand jurors no question of color ever came to my mind. I just selected the jurors, and did not consider the question of their color at all."

Commonwealth's Attorney Lynch, who opposed the motion, stuck to his belief that "until it is shown that people of African descent were excluded from the jury solely because of their color, I think the motion should be overruled."

Mr. Lynch Opposes Motion

Mr. Lynch cited the case of Patterson versus Commonwealth, 139 Virginia, in which a similar motion was made for quashing an indictment where a Negro was accused of murder in connection with a white man's death. The commonwealth's attorney contended that a mixed jury is not essential, and that a mixed jury is not guaranteed by the 14th Amendment.

The prosecutor insisted that the defense had to show that Negroes had been excluded from petit and grand jury service in Norfolk County solely because they were Negroes, before a motion to quash the indictment could prevail. "How can I prove that?" Mr. Merrill asked. "I don't know. That's up to you," Mr. Lynch replied.

Sheriff A. A. Wendell, of Norfolk County, testified that he had never summonded a Negro for jury service in the county court during the past fourteen years he has served as head of the county police force, nor could he ever remember having seen one serve in that capacity. He was later recalled and asked whether or not the percentage of white and Negro population had varied very much during that period, and replied that, in his opinion, it had not.

"Never Gave It A Thought"

Various explanations were given by the three members of the jury commission as to why they had never included Negroes in their jury lists. Commissioner Charles Old swore that the Norfolk County poll tax list had been used by him in making up the list from which the members of the petit jury were drawn; that no names had been taken from the list of Negro enfranchised poll tax payers, and that competency and qualification only had been taken into consideration in making up the list of eligible jurors.

Mr. Old, who lives in the Deep Creek District, testified that he chose 60 names from a list of 300 men whom he considered fit for jury service. He admitted that no Negroes had been included in the list. Asked why, he replied that he knew very few colored people aside from those who worked for him on his farm. "I never gave it a thought," he said.

H. A. Hall, another jury commissioner, when asked by Mr. Merrill why no Negroes were included on his jury list, testified that he did not know a single Negro in the Washington District where he resides who he considered qualified for such service. Mr. Merrill then explained to him that the only requirement for jury service is that the person so designated must be reputable and law abiding.

Knows No Negroes

Mr. Hall was then asked whether or not he knew at least one Negro in the Washington District, which includes the city of South Norfolk, who he considered reputable and law abiding.

Mr. Hall replied, "No. Not one."

J. Y. Minafee, the third jury commissioner summonded, declared that he did not know a single Negro in the Tanner's Creek District from which his list was drawn, and had never considered them at all. He said he was unable to answer a question as to the number of Negroes residing in the county as compared with the number of whites.

That Negroes had at one time rendered jury service in Norfolk County was testified by Randolph Bell, 72-year-old resident of the Deep Creek District, and a retired Navy Yard employee. Mr. Bell was summonded by the defense presumably as an example of a Norfolk County Negro qualified to serve on county juries.

He testified that he had served on the county grand jury many times in past years but not within the past twenty years. Asked if he had been available for such service during that time, he said he had.

Negro Citizens Testify

J. Kidd, also of the Deep Creek District, told the court that he had never known a Negro to serve on the county jury. The Washington District was represented by J. H. Edwards, farmer, who gave substantially the same testimony. Mr. Edwards' statements revealed that he has lived in the Washington District for more than 35 years, but that he was not very familiar with the qualifications for jury service.

Other witnesses of the same character included J. W. Trotman and Wilbur Jackson, both of the Washington District, and W. S. Miller. Each of these witnesses swore that they had been residents of Norfolk County for at least 25 years, and that they had never known of an instance where a Negro had been summonded for jury service in the Norfolk County court. Each witness asserted that he knew at least 25 persons in his district who were reputable and law abiding.

CAMERA COVERAGE OF RUSSELL GORDON TRIAL

Norfolk County [illegible] to having another Harper case when 18-year-old Russell Gordon was accused of attacking Mrs. Pauline Hartmann, white. A jury freed him Monday. Pictures shown above were taken during his trial from which spectators as well as newspapermen were barred. The two pictures at the top left of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Gordon, Water Works Road, Norfolk County, parents of young Gordon, and a view of the jury returning to the courtroom after a recess. Below (left) are shown Ernest Merrill, white, and George H. Walker, defense attorneys, in a hurried conference on the courthouse porch with a newly found witness. Clarence Brown, International Labor Defense district organizer, and Alexander Wright, Communist Party organizer, are shown at the right. The I. L. D. supplied counsel for Gordon.—Journal and Guide Photos.

Journal & Guide
23
Norfolk Virginia

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers

Alabama

VICTIMS OF ALA. MOB MAY HAVE BEEN INNOCENT

Tuscaloosa Investigation Fruitless Before Alibis

Special to Journal and Guide

Journal & Guide

Norfolk, Va.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—While a fruitless investigation designed to re[illegible]ers of A. T. Harden and Dan Pippen, Jr., was being conducted in the courthouse at Tuscaloosa by a grand jury under the direction of Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, Jr., who gained renown as prosecutor in the Scottsboro Case, further details concerning the murder of Miss Vaudine Maddox white, came to light, which cast serious doubt on the guilt of the charged trio. It was for Miss Maddox's death that the men were arrested and later lynched.

The grand jury which was assembled at the order of Judge Henry B. Foster held a two day session, discovered nothing which would aid in the disclosure of the identity of the revelers at Alabama's recent blood party and adjourned until September 2, without making any public report.

Suspicion Shifting

Meanwhile the details of the murder which was responsible for the arrest of five Negroes, the lynching of two, and the wounding of one shifts suspicion of guilt in another direction.

Journal & Guide
Sept 23
Norfolk, Va.

[illegible] murder of the 21-year-old white girl which occurred June 1[illegible] that she was evidently killed by someone [illegible] knew. This assumption is made because a [illegible] she [illegible] carrying at the time was discovered standing on a log near the ravine in which her body was found. It is supposed that had she been attacked by strangers she, in her fright would have dropped the pail on the ground and not carefully placed it on a log.

Slim, however, as may be this supposition, still other facts conspire to establish the innocence of the three youths, two of whom are dead and one of whom happens to be accidentally alive.

Other Facts In Case

A recent report states that positive proof was presented to show that Dan Pippen, Jr., was working all day in the field of Willie Jimson the day the murder is supposed to have been perpetrated. This alibi was effectively squashed, it is averred, when Dan Pippen Sr., the boy's father, was jailed when he offered it in behalf of his son, and that the arrest of Willie Jimson, the only other person able to confirm it was likewise imprisoned. The charge lodged against the older Pippen was "obstructing the investigation of the crime." The charge, if any, preferred against Jimson could not be discovered.

Clark, who escaped the fury of the lynchers with three slugs in his body, was arrested on suspicion because he was discovered near the scene of the murder. The evidence marshalled to connect Harden with the affair is said to have been suspiciously slim.

Lynchers Not Identified

None of the persons appearing before the probers, including Elmore "Honey" Clark, who owes his life to poor markmanship or the grace of God, could identify a single member of the lynching party. Armed deputies, who were accompanying the prisoners for protection, and who are reported to have neglected to fire in defense of their charges, explained that the lynchers were masked and that the license plates on their two cars were inverted making the reading of them impossible.

What, however, is the prize of all stories explaining reasons for the inability of the grand jury to uncover the lynchers is the one which has to do with the exhumed bodies of the two lynched Negroes. Their disinterment was ordered shortly after the probers met. The slugs were to be turned over to ballistics experts.

When the exhumed bodies were submitted to examination, however it was discovered, according to reports, that the shells had been "taken as souvenirs." By whom, the report fails to say. It is hard to conceive of a frenzied mob, pausing after having pumped 25 or more slugs into the bodies of two victims, to reclaim them for souvenirs.

I. L. D. Disturbed

The I. L. D. according to its own reports is quite disturbed over the complete ignorance of its demands that the responsible judge, sheriff and deputies be placed under arrest.

William L. Patterson, national secretary of the organization, sent a telegram to the governor of Alabama immediately after the lynching demanding arrests and stating that he could produce evidence to prove their guilt. Ironically, these very persons were conspicuous figures in the fruitless investigation.

Protest meetings were held in all parts of the country following the Alabama outrage. August 22 was designated in Philadelphia as Scottsboro-Bacco-Vanzetti Day and was devoted to protesting the recent Tuscaloosa blood party.

With the closing of the grand jury probe, there is little hope of a further investigation into the details of the lynching unless the move is forced by the articulate public opinion of Alabama and the South.

Birmingham, Ala., News
August 31, 1933

PROSECUTION OF LYNCHERS URGED

Birmingham Women Protest Slaying Of Negroes In Letter To Miller

A letter calling for vigorous prosecution of those responsible for the recent deaths of two Negroes who were taken from Tuscaloosa County deputies has been addressed to Gov. Miller by a group of Birmingham women. Their letter states:

"We, the undersigned women citizens of the state of Alabama, have been shocked and horrified over the recent outrage against decency, law and order, committed by a masked mob of unknown persons on the border of Jefferson County, in taking from the hands of deputy sheriffs of Tuscaloosa County three Negro prisoners, shooting and killing two, and seriously wounding the third.

"At the very time that our president and the nation as a whole are waging war against crime rampant, for the majesty of the law to be so shamefully outraged within our beloved commonwealth is not only shocking, but a matter of profound humiliation to every law abiding citizen of intelligence. We have had a proper pride in Alabama's awakened conscience on suppression of mob violence, and had hoped the end of mob hoodlumism was in sight. The only way in which the shame of this recent outrage against law can be blotted out is an early and prompt apprehension of the lawless mob that committed the crime.

"We, therefore, the undersigned women citizens of the state of Alabama, call upon you, our chief executive to exercise to the limit your constitutional authority in bringing to trial the persons who committed this crime, and we do pledge to you our loyal support in any and all efforts you may make to uphold the law, and to mete out speedy punishment to all violators."

Those signing the letter were Mrs. J. H. McCoy, Mrs. Edward H. Smith, Mrs. H. T. McGee, Mrs. Louise Charlton, Mrs. C. C. Adams, Mrs. J. K. Shook, Mrs. James Bowron, Mrs. C. P. Orr, Mrs. Milton Fies, Mrs. Peyton Eubank, Mrs. Louis Saks, Mrs. Norvell W. Cullom and Mrs. Isaac Morris.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
September 1, 1933

13 WOMEN DEMAND TRIAL OF LYNCHERS

Birmingham Group Calls Upon Governor To Go Limit To 'Blot Out' Shame

In an "open letter" signed by 13 prominent Birmingham women, which was received yesterday at the executive department, Gov. Miller is requested to exercise his constitutional power "to the limit" in bringing to trial members of the masked mob that on the morning of Aug. 13, held up Tuscaloosa County officers and forced them to surrender three negro prisoners, two of whom the mob later lynched.

The signers of the communication stated they were "shocked and horrified over the recent outrage against decency, law and order, committed by a masked mob of unknown persons on the border of Jefferson County, in taking from the hands of deputy sheriffs of Tuscaloosa County three negro prisoners, shooting and killing two, and seriously wounding the third."

At the very time the President and the Nation as a whole are waging war against crime, the letter states, "for the majesty of the law to be so shamefully outraged within our beloved commonwealth is not only shocking, but a matter of profound humiliation to every law-abiding citizen of intelligence." The only way in which the "shame of this recent outrage against law can be blotted out," it is declared, is an "early and prompt apprehension of the lawless mob that committed the crime."

Calling upon the chief executive to exercise to the limit his constitutional authority in bringing the guilty persons to justice, the letter concludes by pledging the loyal support of the senders to any and all efforts he may make "to uphold the law and mete out speedy punishment to all violators."

The names of the thirteen signers follow: Mrs. J. H. McCoy, Mrs. Edward H. Smith, Mrs. H. T. McGee, Mrs. Louise O. Charlton, Mrs. C. C. Adams, Mrs. J. K. Shook, Mrs. James Bowron, Mrs. C. P. Orr, Mrs. Milton Fies, Mrs. Peyton Eubank, Mrs. Louis Saks, Mrs. Norvell W. Sullom and Mrs. Isaac Morris.

The three negroes taken by the mob from the Tuscaloosa officers were A. T. Harden, Dan Pippen, Jr., and Elmore Clark. Harden and Pippen were shot to death. Clark who was shot five times, is now recovering from his wounds in the Kilby Prison hospital. All three negroes were under indictment for attacking and killing a young white woman, and were being transferred from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham pending their trials, when the mob seized them.

A special Tuscaloosa County grand jury, convened to investigate the lynching, is now in recess, but will reconvene Sept. 6.

Montgomery, Ala. Journal
September 1, 1933

Leading Magic City Women Seek Miller Action on Lynching

Thirteen leading women of Birming have called up on Gov. B. M. Miller to do everything in his power to arrest and convict the persons responsible for the lynching August 13 of two negroes, who were being removed from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham for safekeeping pending their trial on charges of attacking and killing a white girl.

In an open letter to the chief executive, the women stated they were "shocked and horrified" and declared that "the only way in which the shame of this outrage against law can be blotted out is an early and prompt apprehension of the lawless mob that committed the crime."

The letter was signed by Mesdames J. H. McCoy, Edward H. Smith, H. T. McGee, Louis Charlton, C. C. Adams, J. K. Shook, James Bowron, C. P. Orr, Milton Fies, Peyton Eubanks, Louis Saks, Norvell W. Cullom and Isaac Morris.

The negroes killed were Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden. Their companion, Elmore Clark, was seriously wounded and is now in Kilby prison hospital here for treatment.

Deputies said their car was blocked on a lonely road and the negroes taken by force by a mob of masked men.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., News
September 5, 1933

LYNCHING INQUIRY RESUMED, 2-DAY SESSION IS LIKELY

Five Birmingham, Bessemer Deputies Questioned, Jury Then Adjourns Again Until Tomorrow For New Evidence

JUDGE FOSTER URGED SPEED, THOROUGHNESS

No Official Indication Given But Definite Action On Case Wednesday Thought Likely; Ballistics Report Is Expected

Grand jury investigation of the Pippen-Harden lynching case was adjourned early this afternoon, to be resumed at 10 o'clock Wednesday. The adjournment was taken after a 2-hour session in which five deputy sheriffs from Birmingham and Bessemer, Sheriff R. L. Shamblin and a negro resident near Vance, were questioned.

There has been no official indication of progress in the case by Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, Jr., and Solicitor Edward deGraffenried but it is generally believed that definite action on the part of the inquiry will develop Wednesday. They said today's adjournment was taken to prepare new evidence in convention with the case.

Today's grand jury session began at 1005 o'clock with Circui Judge Henry B. Foster urging the jurors to conduct their investigation "as thoroughly and speedily as possible under the circumstances." After this brief injunction, the jury retired to the grand jury room and the Birmingham and Bessemer officers were interrogated.

The witnesses were Jack Curran and Lige Ross, deputies from Bessemer, and J. H. Haynes, C. L. Gaines and Charles Parrish of the Birmingham sheriff's office. All of these officers took part in the search for the bodies of Pippen, Hard and Elmore Clark on Sunday morning, August 13, after the three negroes were taken from three Tuscaloosa County officers near Bucksville by a masked band of about 12 men.

Expert examination of several bullets taken from the negroes' bodies or found on the lynching sceen near Woodstock, is expected to be given the grand jury Wednesday. Jack Stuart, assistant solicitor of Jefferson County and a ballistics expert, has inspected the bullets and also several revolvers and rifles which were secured from local deputy sheriffs for routine examination.

Sheriff R. L. Shamblin was briefly questioned by the grand jury today as was Pearlie Hargrove, negro who resides in the vicinity of Vance. Hargrove was the negro who reported to the sheriff, the whereabouts of the wounded Clark negro after the latter had come to the home of a neighbor of Hargrove's, seeking aid, a day and a half after the lynching.

Today's session of the grand jury was a resumption of the investigation first began August 15, just two days after the lynching. The jury met for two days at that time. It was recessed ,then called back on Monday, August 21, and after a short inquiry, was again recessed until today.

The Clark negro, who appeared before the grand jury in its first meeting, is not expected to be brought back again at this time to act as a witness. Both the attorney-general and the solicitor have talked with Clark at the Kilby prison hospital in Montgomery.

While here August 15, Clark gave a sworn statement declaring that the three negroes were taken from the three officers by a band of masked, armed men who "had the drop" on the officers. The negro also said that he miraculously escaped death by falling under the bodies of Dan Pippen, Jr., and E. T. Harden, when the three were lined up before the masked firing squad at a spot a hundred yards inside the Bibb County line, a mile east of Woodstock.

Pippen, Harden and Clark, residents of the Big Sandy section in South Tuscaloosa County, were indicted late in June for the criminal assault and first degree murder of Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old white girl, near her home on June 12.

Twice Tuscaloosa National Guardsmen have been called out in connection with the case. They were first called to protect three International Labor Defense lawyers who attempted to inject themselves into the defense of the negroes when Pippen's case was first called to trial. The I. L. D. lawyers were barred and escorted to Birmingham. Troops were again called as a precautionary measure August 14 and 15 when Clark was brought to jail here and appeared before the grand jury. The guardsmen escorted him to Montgomery.

Judge Henry B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin have given no comment or notice to reports from New York that the I. L. D. would present a letter to the grand jury charging these officials and the three escorting officers with conspiracy and murder in connection with the lynching.

Tuscaloosa Jury Probes Lynching

Advertiser
9-6-33
Montgomery, Ala.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Sept. 5—(AP)—Without any indication of progress in its investigation of the lynching of two negroes near here Aug. 13 the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury today recessed after a three-hour session, until tomorrow.

Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr. and Solicitor Edward de Graffenreid announced the action was ordered to permit prepaation of additional testimony for the Grand Jury's consideration.

Nine witnesses including Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa County, were examined today. Their testimony was kept secret, howeve by a State law which prevents making public any information given a Grand Jury.

The other witnesses included seven deputies of the neighboring County of Jefferson and a negro who reported the whereabouts of Elmore Clark, wounded by the mob which lynched Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden.

Addressing the Grand Jury as it reconvened today following a recess of several days, Judge Henry B. Foster urged the probers to work" speedily and as thoroughly as possible under the circumstances."

The negroes, charged with murdering Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old daughter of a farmer, were taken from deputies carrying them to Birmingham fo safekeeping.

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald
September 1, 1933

NCHING DEPLORED

Missionary Society Calls On Gov Miller To Push Probe

In an open letter to Gov. Miller members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Isaac Morris is president, deplored the lynching of two Negroes and the wounding of a third near Tuscaloosa recently.

They asked Gov. Miller "to exercise to the limit your constitutional authority in bringing to trial the persons who committed this crime."

Lynching Probe Is Resumed By Tuscaloosa Jury

Advertiser
9-5-33
Montgomery, Ala.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Evidence gathered during a recess investigation today was prepared for presentation tomorrow to the Tuscaloosa County grand jury as it resumes its probe of the lynching of two negroes near here on Aug. 13.

A report by a ballistic expert on bullets removed from the bodies of the victims, Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, was expected to be ready for the jury along with the results of an investigation directed by Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr.

Meanwhile, Sheriff R. L. Shamblin and Judge Henry B. Foster greeted with silence an announcement from New York headquarters of the International Labor Defense that it would lay before the grand jury a letter containing charges of murder against the jurist, the sheriff and his deputies.

Also. declining to comment on the I. L. D. announcement was Gov. Miller at Montgomery.

In reply to a previous statement by the I. L. D., Sheriff Shamblin stated that he was cooperating with the grand jury and had placed before that body all evidence he had uncovered.

Pippen and Harden with Elmore Clark who was wounded, were taken from Tuscaloosa County deputies by a mob as the negroes charged with killing a white woman, were being carried to Birmingham for safekeeping.

Attorneys for the I. L. D. attempted to enter the case as counsel for Pippen when his trial was called, but were excluded by Judge Foster after the negro testified they had not been retained by him.

After the lynching Sheriff Shamblin declared the I. L. D. was "directly responsible for this violence."

Returning yesterday from Grand Rapids, Mich., where he attended the annual meetings of the American Bar Association and the National Association of Attorneys General, Atty. Gen. Knight left last night for Tuscaloosa to resume charge of the special grand jury called to investigate the lynching of Pippen and Harden, and the wounding of Elmore Clark, who escaped

---

Birmingham, Ala., News
September 27, 1933

Gov. Miller's Statement On Sunday's Lynching

Gov. Miller has offered a reward for the arrest and conviction of any or all of the participants in Sunday's lynching in Tuscaloosa County. In making the announcement, he says:

"This offense on its reported face is so heinous that, without call from an official of the county, this reward of $400 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the offenders, hoping it will encourage and stimulate not only the officials, but the citizens, to double their energy and efforts to end such crimes by a speedy arrest, trial and conviction of the guilty parties.

"The law must be obeyed; if not, the guilty must be punished."

For his attitude and for the vigor with which he expresses it the governor is to be commended. The state's concern over this affair is naturally great, and Gov. Miller does well to lose no time in putting the force and authority of his office behind the cause of bringing the lynchers to justice.

The governor's declaration, more than his offer of a reward, should spur the determination of Tuscaloosa Countians, officials and citizens alike, to track down the guilty persons and see that they are properly dealt with under the law.

GOVERNOR OF ALABAMA OFFERS LYNCH REWARD

9-27-33

MONTGOMERY, [illegible] Sept. 26.—(AP)—Insisting that "the guilty must be punished," Governor B. M. Miller tonight offered a $400 reward for the arrest and conviction of all or any of the persons who lynched Dennis Cross, negro, at Tuscaloosa Sunday.

Cross, free under $300 bond on charges of attempting to [illegible] a white woman, was called from his home by men who said they were officers. His bullet-riddled body was found hours later.

"This offense on its reported face is so heinous," Governor Miller said, "that without call from an official of the county, this reward of $400 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the offenders, hoping it will encourage and stimulate not only the officials, but the citizens to double their energy and efforts to end such crime by speedy arrest, trial and conviction of the guilty parties. . . ."

Lynchings-1933 I
6
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Alabama

4104

Scottsboro, Ala., Age
September 28, 1933

Lynchers of Negro Sought By Officers

Tricked Suspect is Taken From Home and Shot At Tuscaloosa

With three pistol bullets and tracks made by an automobile as their clues city and county officers in Tuscaloosa Monday were seeking the identity of a group of lynchers who posing as officers, lured a negro from his home early yesterday and shot him to death.

The negro, Dennis Cross, about 50, was under $300 bond on a charge of accosting a young white woman. The woman had not been attacked, officers said.

According to reports to the Sheriffs office, a group of six or seven white men went to the negro's home about 2 a. m. Sunday told him they were officers and that he would have to accompany them to the sheriff's office to post a larger bond.

Officers found Cross' body, bearing three bullet wounds, near Tuscaloosa Country club about three miles from his home.

The lynching was the third in this section in less than two months. Officers are still investigating the mob killing August 13 of Dan Pippen and A. T. Hardin, negroes accused in the Vaudine Maddox murder case.

No Bills Found In Lynch Probe

Advertiser

(4)

10-3-33

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Oct. 3.—(AP)—A special Grand Jury that met four times in six weeks to investigate the lynching of two young negroes today reported that it had not found sufficient evidence on which to base an indictment.

The Grand Jury was convened on Aug. 15 to investigate the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, both negroes, who were under indictments charging attack and murder of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old white girl near the Hale County line.

In making its report, the Grand Jury expressed confidence in Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, adding that nothing in the investigation reflected on his ability or integrity as a law enforcement officer.

Support of officers by all citizens in enforcement of laws was urged by the Grand Jury in its report to Judge Henry L. Foster, who empaneled the body on Aug. 15 and urged that every effort be made to bring the lynchers before the bar of the court.

Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., at the request of local officials, conducted the investigation which was spread over a long period to permit a thorough search for evidence.

The two negroes, and Elmore Clark, who was wounded by the mob, were taken from officers by a masked band just over the Jefferson County line early Sunday Aug. 13.

After ordering the three deputies sheriff who were moving the negroes to the Jefferson County jail at Birmingham to prevent violence, to continue up the road the masked band of 10 or 12 men took the negroes to near Woodstock, in Bibb County, where they were shot to death.

Montgomery

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald
October 4, 1933

TO MANY people, we can imagine, Young Stribling crippled for life would have been an even more tragic picture than Young Stribling dead. Dying, he is spared the long days of adjustment to a pitifully changed way of life and to a loss which had disqualified him for the battle glories and excitements to which his soul had been set these many years. He wanted to go on living, of course, crippled or not. But death at this time admits him, as death a score or more of limping years from now would not, to the valhalla of warriors who go down in their prime.

* * *

It may be that it really is impossible to find any of the men who lynched Pippen and Harden, or any of those who lynched Cross. It may be that a statewide denunciation of the lynchers and demand for their punishment is as far as Alabama is able to go in the matters. If this is true, it is a pity for Alabama's good name in the nation. With so many men involved in the lynchings and so many acquaintances who must have some knowledge or suspicion of the affairs, it is not possible to persuade national opinion that Alabama couldn't find and punish a few lynchers if it honestly wanted to do so. That lynchers should escape sometimes is understandable. That they should escape always is hard to understand. Until we do actually catch and make an example of some lynch participants, all our protests and hands-in-horror are going to seem hypocritical.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
September 27, 1933

Miller Volunteers Reward Of $400 For Newest Tuscaloosa Lynchers

Voluntarily authorizing a reward of $400 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons or any of them, who representing themselves as officers, spirited Dennis Cross, negro, away from his home near Tuscaloosa and shot him to death early Sunday morning, Gov. Miller in a statement issued yesterday declared he hoped the reward would stimulate officials and citizens to redouble their efforts to "end such crimes by a speedy arrest, trial and conviction of the guilty parties."

The Chief Executive said that the crime as reported, was "so henious" that he had issued the reward order without a request to do so from any county official. Following is the text of his statement:

"A reward of $400 is hereby offered for the arrest and conviction of the unknown person or persons, or of any one of them, who on or about the 25th day of September, 1933, in Tuscaloosa County, Alabama, murdered a negro by the name of Dennis Cross.

"It appears from press reports that men, in the false guise of officials, went to his home, called him out in the night under the pretense of requiring him to make a larger bond for a bailable offense and then murdered him.

"This offense on its reported face is so heinous, that without the call from an official of the county, this reward of $400 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the offenders, hoping this will encourage and stimulate not only the officials but citizens to double their energy and efforts to end such crimes by a speedy arrest, trial and conviction of the guilty parties.

"The laws must be obeyed, if not the guilty must be punished."

About two weeks ago, Dennis was arrested following a report by a young white woman that she had been seized by a negro near the Tuscaloosa Country Club, and later was identified by the young woman as her assailant. After being held in jail for about a week on a charge of assault, Dennis was admitted to bail of $300, which was furnished by the owner of the farm where the negro lived.

According to information from Tuscaloosa, a group of six or seven men went to the negro's home Sunday morning around 2 o'clock, and telling him they were officers, said he would have to go to the sheriff's office and make a bigger bond. Taking Dennis with them, they then drove away. Neighbors of Dennis reported the occurrence to the office of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin. The Sheriff immediately ordered an investigation, after he found no city officers had been detailed to bring Dennis in.

Deputies were dispatched to the negro's home, but no trace of him was found, until daybreak, when his body was discovered near the Country Club. He had been shot three times. Nearby the prints of automobile tires, and several bullets were found. So far as is known, there is no clue to the identity of the slayers.

According to Sheriff Shamblin, the young woman seized was not attacked.

The slaying of Dennis is the third of its kind that has taken place in Tuscaloosa County within the past six weeks. On the morning of Aug. 13, while sheriff's deputies were removing to Birmingham for safekeeping, Dan Pippen, Jr., A. T. Harden and Elmore Clark, negroes, all under indictment for criminally assaulting and murdering a young white girl, a mob forced the officers to surrender the negroes. Pippen and Harden were shot to death. Clark, with a number of bullet wounds in his body, escaped, and was later located by Tuscaloosa County authorities.

An order was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster, for the reconvening on Oct. 2 of the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury, to resume its investigation of the lynching of Pippen and Harden.

GRAND JURY OPENS PROBE OF LYNCHING

Advertiser

Tuscaloosa Judge Calls For Investigation Of Slaying Of Negro

10-10-33

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A new Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury today opened an investigation into the lynching of Dennis Cross, negro by a band of men posing as officers, after Judge Henry B. Foster had charged them on the crime.

In his charge, Judge Foster told the Grand Jury that it, or any subsequent Grand Jury could delve into the lynchings of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, young negroes, last Aug. 13.

"There is no statute of limitations preventing the prosecution of a guilty person for murder," Judge Foster said.

The jurist condemned lynching as murder and called upon the citizens of the city and county to bring it to an end.

Montgomery

Cross was at liberty under $300 bond on charges of attempting to attack a white woman, when lynched. The group of men, six or seven in number, called at his home early on the morning of Sept. 24, and told him he had to go to jail to increase his bond.

The body of the negro was found several hours later by Sheriff R. L. Shamblin and deputies, near the Tuscaloosa Country Club. The negro had been shot to death.

Only last Monday a special Grand Jury, convened on Aug. 15, to investigate the lynching of Pippen and Harden reported it was unable to find sufficient evidence to return a true bill in the case.

Pippen and Harden were under indictment for attacking and slaying Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old white girl, in rural Tuscaloosa County.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
October 10, 1933

GRAND JURY OPENS PROBE OF LYNCHING

Tuscaloosa Judge Calls For Investigation Of Slaying Of Negro

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A new Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury today opened an investigation into the lynching of Dennis Cross, negro by a band of men posing as officers, after Judge Henry B. Foster had charged them on the crime.

In his charge, Judge Foster told the Grand Jury that it, or any subsequent Grand Jury could delve into the lynchings of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, young negroes, last Aug. 13.

"There is no statute of limitations preventing the prosecution of a guilty person for murder," Judge Foster said.

The jurist condemned lynching as murder and called upon the citizens of the city and county to bring it to an end.

Cross was at liberty under $300 bond on charges of attempting to attack a white woman, when lynched. The group of men, six or seven in number, called at his home early on the morning of Sept. 24, and told him he had to go to jail to increase his bond.

The body of the negro was found several hours later by Sheriff R. L. Shamblin and deputies, near the Tuscaloosa Country Club. The negro had been shot to death.

Only last Monday a special Grand Jury, convened on Aug. 15, to investigate the lynching of Pippen and Harden reported it was unable to find sufficient evidence to return a true bill in the case.

Pippen and Harden were under indictment for attacking and slaying Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old white girl, in rural Tuscaloosa County.

Indictments Lacking In Alabama Lynching

10-15-33

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 14.—(AP) Reporting that it had been unable to obtain evidence sufficient for an indictment, the Tuscaloosa county grand jury today failed to bring charges in the lynching of Dennis Cross, negro.

The grand jury investigated 119 cases and returned 70 indictments.

Dothan, Ala. Eagle
October 3, 1933

JURORS FAIL TO INDICT LYNCHERS

Evidence Not Sufficient to Find True Bills, Report of Jury Asserts

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 3 (AP) —A special Grand Jury that met four times in six weeks to investigate the lynching of two young Negroes Monday reported that it had not found sufficient evidence on which to base an indictment.

The Grand Jury was convened on Aug. 15 to investigate the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, both Negroes, who were under indictment charging attack and murder of Miss Vaudine Maddo, 21-year-old white girl near the Hale County line.

In making its report, the Grand Jury expressed confidence in Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, adding that nothing in the investigation reflected on his integrity or abiltiy as a law enforcement officer.

Support of Law Urged

Support of all citizens of officers in the enforcement of the laws was urged by the Grand Jury in its report to Judge Henry L. Foster who emphannelled the body on Aug. 15 and urged that every effort be made to bring the lynchers before the bar of the court.

Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr. at the request of local officials, conducted the investigation which was spread over a long period to permit a thorough search for evidence.

The two Negroes, and Elmore Clark who was wounded by the mob, were taken from officers by a masked band just over the Jefferson County line early Sunday, Aug. 13.

After ordering the three deputies sheriff who were moving the Negroes to the Jefferson County Jail at Birmingham to prevent violence, to continue up the road, the masked band of 10 or 12 men took the Negroes to near Woodstock in Bibb County where they were shot to death.

One Escapes Death

Harden and Pippen fell pierced by a dozen bullets, but Clark was struck only three times and seriously wounded. After the mob had left him for dead, Clark freed himself from manacles and made his way to the home of a friend. Medical aid was summoned and the Negro was surrendered to officers.

Clark appeared before the Grand Jury. He at present is in Kilby Prison where he has been under treatment for his wounds.

Officers blamed the unexpected development of violence against the Negroes on activity of the International Labor Defense in attempting to intercede in the case. Pippen and his parents denied that they had asked the I. L. D. to supply counsel and Judge Foster ruled the attorney retained by the organization out of the case.

The attorneys, Irvin Schwab, Allen Taub, both of New York, and Frank Irwin, of Birmingham, were given a military escort from the city after the jurist's decision

---

To Probe Murder of Tuscaloosa Negroes

Daily Worker
11-2-33

Southerners in Group Going to Alabama This Week

New York, N.Y.

NEW YORK.—A delegation of prominent Northern and Southern writers and educators will go to Tuscaloosa, Ala., this week, to investigate three recent lynchings in that town, including the double lynching of Dan Dipper, Jr., and A. T. Harden, Negro youths. The Southern members of the delegation include Bruce Crawford, Norton, Virginia, Editor of Crawford's Weekly; Vann Woodward, formerly professor at the Georgia School of Technology; Grace Lumpkin novelist, of South Carolina, and author of "To Make My Bread," and Howard Kester, of Nashville, Tenn., Southern Secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

The Northern members of the delegation, who will leave this city today, are Jessica Henderson, Boston; Hollace Ransdel of Pennsylvania, investigator for the American Civil Liberties Union; Alfred Hirsh, Secretary of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, which organized the delegation.

The delegation will arrive in Alabama on Monday. It's first move will be to call on Governor Miller of Alabama to protest the terror against Negroes and demand an answer to the charges of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners that Alabama officials are implicated in the lynchings of Dippen and Harden and the attacks on I.L.D. attorneys. Miller has promised he would answer these charges by Nov. 1.

Eastern Committee To 'Look Into' Lynching

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Nov. 3—(AP)—The News today said it has been informed a committee from the National committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners is en route from New York to Tuscaloosa to conduct its own investigation into the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A.T. Harden, negroes, on Aug. 13.

The delegation comprises mostly Southern men and women, who are Howard Kesters, Southern secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation; Van Wood-

---

COMMITTEE HERE ON WAY TO PROBE ALABAMA KILLINGS

Constitution
11-7-33
Atlanta, Ga.

Seven men and women acting as a group from the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners stopped in Atlanta Monday night en route to Tuscaloosa, Ala., and other points in that state. Leaders of the group said that "specific cases will be investigated," and that during their visit in the south, they will interview the governor and attorney general of Alabama.

Moved by "the startling increase of lynchings in the south," the group was organized several weeks ago. The committee will be in Alabama for only a few days, they said.

Members of the party said they would specifically investigate the cases of two negroes, Dan Pippen, Jr. and A. T. Harden, who, while being transferred from one jail to another were seized by a mob and shot. The third defendant, Elmore Clarke, with five bullets in his body, was left for dead, it was said. Dennis Cross was another victim of violence whose case will be investigated, the group announced.

Spokesmen for the party said that four of the group are women, all southerners or of southern extraction. Among them are Miss Barbara Alexander, Miss Grace Lumpkin, novelist, both of Georgia; Miss Hollace Ransdell, of Kentucky. Mrs. Jessica Henderson, of Massachusetts, is also on the committee. Others are Bruce Crawford, of Virginia; Howard Kester, of Tennessee, and Alfred H. Hirsch, of New York.

The group planned to leave Atlanta late today or early Wednesday for Tuscaloosa where they will "proceed with their investigations."

Knight Threatens to Jail Witnesses In Lynching Probe

Daily Worker
11-11-33

Ku Klux Klan Parades In Effort to Scare Negroes

New York

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 10.—Prosecution in the courts of "any person" who aids the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners delegation in its investigation of Tuscalosa lynchings was threatened yesterday by Attorney General Knight. Knight not only has refused permission to the delegation to examine Grand Jury proceedings against the murdered Negroes, but declared yesterday:

"If any person allows you to see these records or gives any information concerning them, it will be my duty to prosecute them."

The threat followed Knight's brazen approval of lynchings contained in his statement that the lynchings of Pippen and Harden were justified because Knight is "thoroughly convinced the defendants were guilty." Knight is leading the prosecution of the Scottsboro boys who face a new lynch trial on Nov. 27 in the lynch-infested town of Decatur.

While Knight issued his threats against the investigating committees and its witnesses in an attempt to stifle an expose of lynch condiions, terror, fed by the Alabama press continued to grow in Tuscaloosa.

In that city the arrival of the National Committee inevstigators was preceded by a Ku Klu Klan parade th Negro districts. One hundred of these terrorists, masked and in full regalia, rode through the streets of Tuscaloosa as a "warning" to Negroes.

The American Legion in Alabama, meeting at Florence, passed an inflammory resolution 'condemning the practice of organizations from outside the State sending foreign lawyers into the State of Alabama."

Knight Declines Aid In Outsiders' Lynching Probe

Advertiser
11-9-33
Montgomery, Ala.

Committee For Defense Of Political Prisoners On Its Way To Tuscaloosa

Escort Is Refused

Attorney General Informs Visitors Alabama Does Not Need Their Help

Declining to cooperate with a committee sponsored by the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners that has come to Alabama to investigate the lynching of three negroes in Tuscaloosa County during the past Summer, Atty. Gen. Knight told members of that committee who called on him in his office at the capitol yesterday, that the people of Alabama resent the injection of outside influences into the administration of justice in this State.

He further told them that while these outside influences and the interference and meddling on the part of organized groups among which he named specifically the International Labor Defense, did not in any sense excuse the lynchings, they did, in his opinion, constitute a sinister and powerful influence toward the commission of these crimes.

Denouncing the methods of the I. L. D. and its "scurrilous criticism" of Alabama and its citizens, Mr. Knight declared that the conduct of the people who have come here from other sections of the country representing the "influences" referred to, possibly aided by sympathizers in Alabama, was in his judgment, responsible in a large degree for the mob violence in Tuscaloosa County.

"The people of Alabama," he said, "will not tolerate deliberate efforts to stir up race hatred and class strife in this State and neither will I."

Call On Governor

Before going to see the Attorney General, the committee called on Gov. Miller to ask his cooperation in their proposed investigation and request that he send an official representative along. The Chief Executive advised the callers they were at liberty to make any investigation of the lynchings they chose, but declined to send a representative. He did not regard this as necessary, he said, recalling that the State's investigation was being conducted through the Attorney General, the circuit solicitor and the county Grand Jury.

Lynchings-1933

II.

Alabama

4106

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

KNIGHT DECLINES AID IN OUTSIDERS' LYNCHING PROBE

(Continued From Page 1)

were charged with criminally assaulting a white woman.

The interview between the visitors and Gov. Miller was brief, lasting five minutes or less. Their talk with Mr. Knight, however, was of considerably longer duration.

Condemning lynching and deploring the lynchings in Tuscaloosa County and their reflection upon the State, Atty. Gen. Knight at the same time declared he did not regard a person charged with rape as a "political prisoner" though such a person was, of course, entitled to the same protection of law as all other prisoners.

11-9-33

As to the requested permission to study records of the proceedings of the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury in its investigation of the lynching of Pippin and Harden, Mr. Knight advised members of the committee that if any person permitted them to see those records or gives any information concerning the records, it would be his duty to prosecute the one doing so. In this connection the fact was brought out that it was a violation of the law in Alabama to reveal to the public at large any information as to what occurred in a Grand Jury room.

"Alabama Needs No Help"

Alabama, the Attorney General informed the committee, did not need any help in enforcing its laws. He had no suggestion to offer to the visitors, he said, adding: "I cannot and will not cooperate with you. I do not question your motive in coming here to make any investigation you choose. It may be a worthy and conscientious one. I do not know, nor am I interested in knowing, but I cannot cooperate with any group of people coming here from another section of the country who may, for all I know, go back and scurrilously criticise the State of Alabama and its people, when no criticism is justified."

Declaring the trip of the visitors to Tuscaloosa and its announced purpose were their affair, Mr. Knight advised them that if, while there, they conducted themselves as they would if they were citizens of this state, they would be treated with every courtesy.

His office in conjunction with that of the Solicitor of Tuscaloosa County, was investigating the lynchings, Mr. Knight said, with the same orderly procedure as other crimes were investigated. "We know we are doing our duty," he declared, "and we will continue to do so. What those in other States think about the manner in which we are proceeding and have proceeded, is not of the slightest interest or consequence to me, neither is any investigation they may wish to undertake. The investigation that is being made by the duly constituted authorities of Alabama is the only one regarding which I am concerned."

Asked if it did not appear to him that the presence of the women members of the committee did not indicate that in their opinion, the charges against the three men lynched, were unfounded, the Attorney General inquired what was the source of their knowledge of the facts in the respective cases. His question was countered by one as to what his belief was concerning the guilt of the negroes. He replied that his official knowledge regarding the Cross case was limited, but as to Pippin and Harden, it was his personal opinion that both were guilty.

Mr. Knight was personally in charge of investigation by a special Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury, of the lynching of Pippin and Harden.

Members of the investigating committee include four women, all but one of whom, it was announced was of Southern extraction, all qualified to membership in the D. A. R., while the ancestors of three fought on the side of the South in the War Between the States. Their names and the respective State each was originally from, were given as follows: Miss Grace Lumpkin of Columbia, S. C.; Miss Hollace Ransdell, of Kentucky; Miss Barbara Alexander originally of Georgia, now of New York, and Miss Jessica Henderson, of Massachusetts.

Other members of the committee were Howard Kester, Nashville, Tenn.; Bruce Crawford, Norton, Va., and Alfred H. Hirsch of New York.

The investigating body presumably left Montgomery yesterday afternoon for Tuscaloosa to begin its lynching inquiry.

DECLARES INNOCENCE OF ONE MOB VICTIM

Amsterdam

ATLANTA, Nov. 8.—Of the four Negroes recently shot by lynching mobs in the vicinity of Tuscaloosa, Ala., three of them fatally, one was undoubtedly innocent and all the other three possibly so, according to a report made public Friday by the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching, after a careful investigation of the whole situation. No convincing proof of guilt was found in either case.

11-8-33

County officers, charged with the protection of these men, either connived with the mob, says the commission, or else "exhibited inexcusable inefficiency and stupidity." It is suggested that certain of these officers should be impeached by the Supreme Court of Alabama and removed from office by the governor, if found guilty of either charge.

INVESTIGATORS OR CASE-MAKERS?

Advertiser

Seven men and women, several of whom are Southerners, are in Alabama to investigate the lynchings of three Negroes near Tuscaloosa last August.

These men and women, it is to be assumed, have come to Alabama with open minds to try to learn how and why the three Negroes were lynched.

It is to be assumed that these men and women will be content to investigate even though it be at the sacrifice of case-making.

11-9-33

The members of this committee are Bruce Crawford, editor of Crawford's Weekly, Norton, Va.; Howard Kester, of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, Nashville, Tenn.; Vann Woodward, former professor at the Georgia School of Technology; Grace Lumpkin, Georgia novelist; Jessica Henderson, former Boston suffrage leader; Hollace Ransdell, investigator for the American Civil Liberties Union; Alfred H. Hirsch, secretary of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners.

Montgomery, Ala.

It was reported in New York that the investigators would ask Governor Miller and Attorney General Knight for "protection" while in Alabama.

The ladies and gentlemen, we believe are handicapping open-mindedness by assuming that they will not be safe in the land of the barbaric Alabamians.

We do not think that it is necessary for the Governor of Alabama or the Attorney General of Alabama to provide a bodyguard for ladies and gentlemen no matter what their mission may be in this State.

If any member of this investigation committee receives the slightest discourtesy while attempting to learn the truth about the lynchings, The Advertiser should like to know of it. If any member of this committee receives direct or indirect threats of bodily harm we are certain that the police authorities and the Governor and the Attorney General should like to know of it.

The Negroes were lynched. There is no question of that. No excuses can be offered for the lynchings by Alabama or Alabamians.

But it is to be hoped that the investigators will seek to learn the truth as they find it in Alabama and not attempt to indict the people of a community on prejudice formed even before coming into the State.

It is to be hoped that case-makers, propagandists and maudlin sentamentalists are not among them.

It is to be hoped that they will move quietly, investigate without bitterness and return to their respective homes to make an unbiased and courageous report.

A Private Investigation of A Lynching

Journal and Guide

TWO TUSCALOOSA COUNTY grand juries investigated the lynching in this ALABAMA county of four men, accused of crime, without fixing the blame on anybody. A private investigation of this lynching has just been completed by the SOUTHERN COMMISSION FOR THE STUDY OF LYNCHING, and the report is published on another page of this issue of the JOURNAL AND GUIDE. It makes interesting reading.

11-11-33

The chairman of the SOUTHERN COMMISSION FOR THE STUDY OF LYNCHING is GEORGE FORT MILTON, of Chattanooga, Tenn. It is a Southern organization in all of its ramifications. To start with, this report says:

> "One of the four mob victims was undoubtedly, two others probably, the fourth possibly innocent."

Norfolk, Va.

That is the sober judgment of trained investigators, directed by Southern white men. They have gone to the bottom of things in and around TUSCALOOSA. They have conducted, as far as possible, an ex-parte trial of the cases. Their verdict is before the world.

The result of this investigation is the average findings on lynchings by the SOUTHERN COMMISSION FOR THE STUDY OF LYNCHING during recent years. The COMMISSION early this year issued a 499 page book, entitled The Tragedy of Lynching, which is a resume of the investigation of 21 lynchings in 1930, and of the lynching problem as a whole. After studying these findings, arrived at by competent and fair investigators, one is shocked beyond description, by the inescapable conviction that lynchers are not at all particular about whether they get the right man, or whether the man they lynch is innocent or guilty. All that is necessary to produce a lynching is to have a Negro accused. The mob then is interested primarily in venting its madness upon the race of the accused man.

An intersting phase of the findings of the COMMISSION in connection with the TUSCALOOSA horrors is the absolute confirmation that Southern law officers dare not punish lynchers, and that the majority of them openly sympathize with the mobs, participate in them, and have no intention of doing anything about a lynching after one occurs. That is the lynching situation today.

Selma, Ala. Times
November 10, 1933

LYNCHING PROBE AT TUSCALOOSA

Political Defense League Continues Inquiry

TUSCALOOSA, Nov. 10.—A committee of five from the League for Defense of Political Prisoners today was continuing its investigation into the lynching of three negroes here recently.

The committee came here late yesterday and discussed the lynchings with County Solicitor William J. Foster, Sheriff R. L. Shamblin and Chief Deputy Sheriff Festus M. Shamblin.

Officials interviewed said the committee sought information on the lynchings, general conditions, voting privileges and other affairs of negroes. The officials described the grand jury investigation of the lynchings which resulted in no true bills for lack of evidence and were informed that the investigation was continuing under county authorities.

The committee sought to confer with Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster and Circuit Solicitor Edward de Graffenreid, but both were busy in circuit court.

After the conference here the committee left with the announcement that it would return today apparently returning to Birmingham for the night.

The committee sought information on the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden who were under indictment for murder and attacking Miss Viola Maddox, young white girl, and a third negro, several weeks later, who was charged with an attempted attack on a white woman.

Lynch Investigators Get Scant Courtesy from Alabama Officials

Afro American

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—A liberal group of five Southerners and three Northerners, all white, visiting lynch locales to gather data, were bruskly treated by Thomas E. Knight, attorney-general, here last Wednesday.

"I wish you would mind your own business," he is reported as having told the group, grimly warning it that local sentiment is against outsiders interferring in the Tuscaloosa lynching investigation.

Two youths, A. T. Harden and Dan Pippen, Jr., were lynched there August 13, with a suspect leader asserting that the sheriff willingly handed over the keys to the prison.

The delegation will visit other lynch scenes, including Princess Anne, Maryland.

Those in the group are: Jessica Henderson of Boston; Hollace Ransdell and Alfred H. Hirsch, of New York; Bruce Crawford, editor of Norton, Va.; Vann Woodward, former professor of Georgia School of Technology; Grace Lumpkin, of South Carolina, writer; Barbara Alexander, of Georgia; Howard Kester, of Nashville, Tenn., southern secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

OFFICIALS DECLINE TO DISCUSS LYNCHING

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 11.—(AP) The "Tuscaloosa delegation" of the national committee for the defense of political prisoners today said Deputy Sheriff Murray Pate, W. L. Huff and H. W. Holman declined to be interviewed by them [illegible] the lynching of Dan Pippen Jr. and A. T. Harden, negroes.

"We are not going to make any statements except in court," the committee quoted Deputy Pate as replying to Alafred H. Hirsch, secretary of the national committee.

Lawyer Gets Verdict For I. L. D. Telegram

Advertiser

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Nov. 14—(AP)—A Tuscaloosa County Circuit Court jury today awarded $1,499 damages to Jack McGuire, attorney for three negroes seized by a mob in a suit against the Postal Telegraph Company involving transmission of a telegram from an International Labor Defense official to Judge Henry B. Foster.

11-15-33

The telegram demanded that Judge Foster discharge the "lynch lawyers" in the case. McGuire, one of the attorneys, sued for $2,90[illegible] like suit by Charles LaFrance, another attorney in the case,, is pending.

LaFrance and McGuire represented A. T. Harden, Dan Pippen, Jr., and Elmore Clark, charged with murder in the death of Miss Vaudine Maddox.

The negroes were taken from deputies by a mob and Pippen and Harden lynched. Clark was wounded but is recovering.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Alabama.

4105

AFFIDAVIT NAMES 31 IN DECATUR WHO TRIED TO LYNCH NEGRO WORKER

Daily Worker

11-14-33

Exposure of Alabama Lynch Terror to Be Presented at Baltimore Conference—State Officials Refuse to Act

The Daily Worker today continues its series of exclusive exposures of preparations of the Alabama ruling class to lynch the nine innocent Scottsboro boys, and of lynch terror and oppression of Negroes throughout the country.

New York

Today the "Daily" reveals the names of 31 Decatur, Ala., men named in affidavits obtained by the International Labor Defense as the men who attempted to lynch Thomas Brown, framed Negro worker, in Decatur last August.

The background of the recent lynching of George Armwood, Negro worker, in Princess Anne, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, as given in a report by a Daily Worker investigator, working in co-operation with the League of Struggle for Negro Rights, into the social and economic conditions of white and Negro workers there, will be published in the Daily Worker tomorrow.

* * *

The names of 31 residents of Decatur charged with attempting to lynch Thomas Brown, Negro charged with "rape" in a crude frame-up last August, are given in an affidavit by an investigator, made public yesterday by the International Labor Defense, the League of Struggle for Negro Rights, and the Daily Worker. The affidavit is made by an investigator for the I.L.D., who went through Decatur shortly after the lynching, collecting evidence of lynch-incitement against the Scottsboro boys.

The same men, affidavits definitely intimate, are responsible for the lynching, on the same day, August 23, of James Royal, a Negro boy.

The sworn affidavit, signed by John Williams, states:

"A. J. Banbee, 108 W. Cherry St., said that he was the one who had rounded up the boys in the neighborhood to try to lynch Thomas Brown, a Negro who was being held by the sheriff, accused of an alleged crime of rape against a white woman. He further said:

"'The time to break this raping up is when it is like a young tree, because a tree is easy to pull up when it's young, and when the raping first starts is the time to lynch them right then.'

Gives Names

"He gave the names of those who were with him when they attempted to lynch Thomas Brown. They are as follows:

"A. B. Phillips, John Shirley, C. F. Scoggins, Dan James, Tom Sloan, Thomas Gang, Pick Rooper, E. G. Sanches, Sam E. Lewis, C. M. Gilliam, P. S. Patterson, W. G. Farmer, S. E. Elymore, J. G. Phillips, L. P. Stover, C. W. Selby, David A. Smith, C. G. Simmons, Charles Richardson, J. D. Woodall, S. J. Hazel, W. W. Kincaid, G. M. Southand, B. T. Roberts, F. B. Curry, G. O. Smith, Elanor Woodall, B. D. Mix, W. B. Dil, M. W. Holland.

"All of the above live in Decatur."

The addresses of all these people, omitted here, are in the possession of the I.L.D. The affidavit continues:

"Deponent spoke with many of those last-named and it was the opinion of every one that 'niggers like those (Scottsboro defendants) should be taken out and swung from a limb.' That it was a waste of money trying the Scottsboro Negroes in court. They said: 'It should be handled like it's always been handled—take them out and finish the job.' That 'we will get that nigger Brown when he'll be brought up for a preliminary hearing here in Decatur.' . . .

"Lynch Leibowitz, Bates"

"Your deponent heard many of the last above-named say in substance and effect: 'If that New York lawyer, Leibowitz, ever puts his foot in this place again, there will be a lynching.' Speaking of the Tuscaloosa lynchings . . . they said: 'That's the way the Scottsboro niggers should have been handled.'

"They said also: 'Ruby Bates ought to be swung up herself, just like those niggers. She was bought over with Jew money.'"

The intensive lynch-incitement by the white landlord press of Alabama, whose directors are fearful of losing their prey through the tremendous mass movement for the lives and freedom of the Scottsboro boys, is directly responsible for this spirit of murder abroad in Alabama and throughout the country.

Behind this press are Attorney-General Thomas E. Knight of Alabama, Judge W. W. Callahan, Ku Klux Klaner appointed by Chief Justice Anderson of the Alabama State Supreme Court to "try" the Scottsboro cases, beginning Nov. 27, and to hear the arraignments of the nine innocent defendants Nov. 20, in the lynch-ridden town of Decatur.

Other affidavits now in the possession of the Daily Worker quote more than 500 persons in Decatur and Morgan County as in favor of lynching the Scottsboro boys. Through other sources information has been received of definite plans to stage the lynching, including the importation of lynchers from other states.

All this material the Daily Worker will publish from day to day, and it will be presented to the Baltimore Anti-Lynch Conference Commission of Inquiry Into Lynchings, Saturday. The conference is called by the L.S.N.R. and the I.L.D., and will be held Sunday. More than 400 delegates from the Atlantic seaboard are expected to participate in its work.

LYNCHING PROBE ON

Committee Quizzes Solicitor And Sheriff At Tuscaloosa

11-10-33

Birmingham

TUSCALOOSA—(AP)—A committee of five from the League for Defense of Political Prisoners Friday was continuing its investigation into the lynching of three Negroes here recently.

The committee came here late Thursday and discussed the lynchings with County Solicitor Foster, Sheriff Shamblin and Chief Deputy Shamblin.

The officials interviewed said the committee sought information on the lynchings, general conditions, voting privileges and other affairs of Negroes. The officials described the Grand Jury investigation of the lynchings which resulted in no true bills for lack of evidence and were informed that the investigation was continuing under county authorities.

The committee sought information on the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden who were under indictment for murder and attacking Miss Viola Maddox, young white girl, and a third Negro, several weeks later, who was charged with an attempted attack on a white woman.

Ala. Pushes Investigation of Lynchings

8-19-33

Birmingham

Ala.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 17—(Special). That the state of Alabama is serious about its intention of probing to its depths the lynching that claimed the lives of two Negroes and resulted in the wounding of another was shown in the action of state and Tuscaloosa county authorities as the Tuscaloosa county grand jury continued its hearings into the incident which is regarded as one of the most disgraceful blots on the name of the state.

"Lynching by mobs is murder," Judge Foster, veteran presiding jurist and Baptist deacon, told the special grand jurors, as they started their work, "I want you to make a thorough investigation to ascertain the persons who participated in any way, directly or indirectly, in the lynching."

Dan Pippen, jr., 16, and A. T. Harden, 18, were shot and killed and Elmore Clark, 28, wounded, early Sunday when the trio were taken from a squad of deputies conducting them to Birmingham for safekeeping. Clark managed to make his getaway, and, although at first believed dead, was found many hours later close to the scene of the lynching, several bullet wounds in his body. Pippen and Harden were killed.

The holdup of the deputies and their prisoners, who were accused of killing a young white woman, took place nearly half way between this town and Birmingham. They were under indictment for the crime at the time and a previous trial of young Pippen had been postponed by Judge Foster following a clash between appointed lawyers and I.L.D. lawyers over the right to represent the three young men. At that time Judge Foster ruled that the appointed local lawyers should handle the case and the I.L.D. lawyers were escorted out of the town by national guardsmen. The jurist said that there was no feeling against the Negroes but that there was a high feeling against the I.L.D. coming into the case. Negro ministers had protested against the presence of the I.L.D. while Mrs. Pippen, mother of the lad, denied signing an affadavit asking the I.L.D. to assume control of the case, and said that she was satisfied with the local white lawyer given for the defense of her son.

The testimony of Elmore Clark, who managed to escape the full fury of the mob, was heard Wednesday behind closed doors as national guardsmen patrolled the area around the courthouse and county jail. According to information leaking out he said that he dodged the bullets of the lynchers when he fell under the bodies of his two comrades as a volley was fired by the lynchers. He is also said to [illegible] much about the mobbers as they were all masked. Following his testimony, he was rushed to Birmingham to the Jefferson county jail for safekeeping.

It is expected that the three deputies, who were assigned to guard the prisoners, will also be called before the grand jury before its investigation is complete.

8-19-33

Birmingham

Ala.

POST $400 DOLLARS TO STIMULATE INTEREST IN BRINGING ABOUT SPEEDY ARREST

Advocate 10-14-33

IMPERSONATE OFFICERS OF LAW TO LURE MAN FROM HIS HOME

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 10—(ANP) The governor of Alabama, B. M. Miller, is moved. Irked by the mob murder of Dennis Gross at Tuscaloosa, the third lynching there in a month, Governor Miller offered a reward of $400 for the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Gross. Seven men went to his home, posed as officers, and took him away. He was later found shot to death.

Portland, Oregon

"This offense on its reported face is so heinous," Goevrnor Miller said, "that without call from an official of the county, this reward of $400 is effered for the arrest and conviction of the offenders, hoping it will encourage and stimulate not only the officials, but the citizens to double their energy and efforts to end such crime by speedy arrest, trial and conviction of the guilty parties."

Gross had been arrested for an alleged attempted attack on a white woman, but the very fact that he was released under $300 bond, indicated the flimsiness of the evidence against him.

N. Y. EVENING POST

NOV 14 1933

Lynching Inquiry Plans Are Mapped

National Defense Committee to Lay Findings Before Alabama Governor

ATLANTA, Nov. 13 .(AP)—Bent on making a "thorough investigation" of Alabama lynchings, seven members of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners converged here to draft plans for their campaign that will be taken to Governor B. M. Miller.

The lynching of three Negroes in the vicinity of Tuscaloosa concerns them immediately, but they have their eyes open for evidence concerning any other instances of mob violence.

Alfred M. Hirsch of New York, secretary of the committee, said the delegation would question county authorities at Tuscaloosa and anybody else who might know about the lynching. Having accomplished that, the investigators intend to proceed to Montgomery, the capital, and lay their evidence before Governor Miller.

They are armed with voluminous memoranda of mob violence that brought death to Dan Pippen Jr. and A. T. Harden on a highway between Tuscaloosa and Birmingham August 12, and also the slaying of Dennis Cross September 24.

Pippen, Harden and Elmore Clarke were accused of killing a white girl and the sheriff was en route with them to the Birmingham jail for safekeeping. A band of men took the Negroes from him, however, and riddled them with bullets. Pippen and Harden were killed but Clarke recovered.

In the other case, Cross, fifty-year-old farmer, was arrested for a reputed attack on a white woman. Men posing as officers spirited him away and killed him.

The committee's memoranda said there was no evidence against Pippen, Harden and Clarke.

The memoranda further quoted the Montgomery Advertiser as saying authorities had determined Cross did not attack the woman, although she was accosted.

Alabama

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

4107

Lynching Inquiry Resumes Monday

Advertiser 8-18-33 Montgomery Ala.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The markings on a leaden slug removed from the body of one of the victim's was studied today as science was called in to help trace [illegible] members of the band [illegible] lynched two negroes and wounded another, near here last Sunday.

With the bullet taken from the body of Dan Pippen, Jr., in the hands of a ballistis expert, Judge Henry B. Foster ordered the special Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury to cut short a recess called last night and return Monday to complete its investigation.

Declaring that the situation demanded "prompt and decisive action" Judge Foster said he believed the recess until Sept. 4 was too long and directed the investigators to re-assemble next week and press their efforts to bring members of the mob to justice.

Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., who was placed in charge of the special grand jury investigation said he would be unable to return here Monday because of another engagement. County authorities requested him to change his plans if possible and return to continue the probe.

No report or indictment had been returned when the recess was taken last night and there was no indication that such action was probable.

Lynched with Pippen was A. T. Harden. Another negro, Elmore Clark, under indictment with them on a charge of murdering a white woman, was wounded and is being held in prison at Montgomery for safekeeping.

U.S. Prosecution Asked In Alabama Lynching

Constitution 8-25-33

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Federal prosecution of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa county, Ala., was asked of Attorney General Cummings today by a group of attorneys who charge the officer with gross negligence or collusion in the lynching of two negroes while in his care.

Mr. Cummings assured the group of his sympathy, told them their plea would be given every consideration and said he was sure they recognized the legal difficulties involved.

Telegram

AUG 17 1933

LYNCHING JURY RECESSES

Alabama Grand Jurors to Resume Inquiry on September 4.

By the Associated Press.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 17.—The special Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury investigating the lynching early Sunday of two Negroes recessed yesterday until September 4 without returning any indictments. No report was made pending further inquiry.

During the day a bullet was removed from the body of Dan Pippen, Jr., one of the victims, and will be examined by a ballistic expert in an effort to identify the owner of the weapon from which it was fired. The bullet, of .39 calibre was the only one of a dozen slugs that struck the Negro and failed to pass through his body.

NEW YORK TIMES

AUG 20 1933

ALABAMA CONDEMNS LYNCHING OF NEGROES

'Blood on the Great Seal of the State' Through Killing of Two Men.

BETTER ELEMENT SHOCKED

Disposition Seen to Place the Blame on International Labor Defense as 'Instigators.'

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Editorial Correspondence, THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 16.—The lawyer whose own witness testifies unexpectedly against him in court is in a position not half so unhappy as that in which Alabama finds itself this week as a result of the lynching by a group of masked men last Sunday morning of two Negroes accused of the rape and murder of a white girl near Tuscaloosa.

Alabamians who have hotly defended the State against hostile criticism resulting from the Scottsboro case are tongue-tied at this indefensible turn, and those who have contemplated the Scottsboro case with patriotic misgivings are saddened beyond words. The civilized majority here is joined in utter condemnation of the crime and of the shame that has been visited upon this State. Since 1892, when, there were twenty-four lynchings in Alabama, mob murders here have declined. In the last ten and a half years there have been only four, and in six of those years there were none at all. The lynching last Sunday was the first since Aug. 5, 1931.

Press Condemns Act.

Reaction to this outrage against Alabama's name and law is bitter in all the press comment that has come to this writer's eye. "There is blood on the great seal of Alabama," declares The Montgomery Advertiser. "Because this group of armed zealots, inflamed with hatred and fear—hatred of influences which invited hate, fear that the machinery of justice was to be clogged by sinister efforts—seized the three prisoners and shot two of them to death, Alabama must suffer shamefully in the eyes of the world." "It is an afront to the better citizenship of Alabama," says The Birmingham Post. "We commend Governor Miller and Judge Foster for their promptness in beginning the investigation of the crime and urge that it be prosecuted relentlessly until the guilty persons are properly punished. Doubtless the activities of the international labor defense attorneys and agitators influenced the lynching, but that fact cannot condone the crime nor serve to absolve the officers whose duty is was to protect the prisoners. Lynching will not solve the problem which Alabama faces."

"A State Disgraced."

The Birmingham News believes that "Alabama stands disgraced in the eyes of the civilized world. Shame of the blackest dye has been brought on this State. * * * People elsewhere will not understand that the atrocity was the act of a few hotheads, a small band of barbarians. Most Alabamians doubt that this crime would have taken place had it not been for the unwarranted interference in the case on the part of the International Labor Defense. To say that is not to condone it in the least. On the contrary, the crime deserves to be condemned only the more strongly on that ground. But the I. L. D. did encourage a few hotheads to the point of violence. To that extent the blood of the victims be on the hands of the I. L. D."

"A stain has been placed upon the records of Alabama," says The Anniston Star. "This newspaper," says The Tuscaloosa News, "in common with all thoughtful people, deplores the spirit of mob violence. We thought it had gone from our midst forever. May God forgive the carpetbaggers of today who have returned this foul thing to our midst—human hearts cannot."

I. L. D. Is Blamed.

The indicated tendency to blame the International Labor Defense arises from the attempt last month of attorneys for this organization to act as counsel for the accused Negroes. The Negroes refused their services, and when the attorneys left Tuscaloosa there were demonstrations against them hostile enough to require National Guardsmen for their protection. The hostility derives largely from the Scottsboro case and from the conviction of nearly all Alabamians that the I. L. D. is exploiting the case for communistic propaganda among the Negroes. But, inasmuch as the Negroes at Tuscaloosa had refused to accept I. L. D. lawyers for their counsel, the crime of the lynchers was as stupid and impolitic as it was vicious. It may be that it would not have been committed if the radical troublemakers had not attempted to interfere, but the disgrace that Alabama feels today is not covered by any alibi, and there are some who feel that those who stress the excuse while scoring the crime are robbing the State of the left-handed dignity that can go with unamended shame. The Huntsville Times think the "excuse that the I. L. D. lawyers caused the lynching is just a screen to cover up cowardice and official delinquency."

The same day that brought to Alabama news of this lynching brought reports of the State's exceptionally fine record in "doing its part" for the NRA appeal. With more Blue Eagles than any other Southern State save Texas, Alabama is forced now to blush before each eagle and to find a very particular and important part woefully undone by a little group of hidden faced men.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
August 16, 1933

Court Launches Lynching Probe

Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury Starts Deliberation; Negro Describes Attack

Elmore Clark, 28-year-old negro who suvived the fusillade of an infuriated mob near Tuscaloosa Sunday morning, arrived here from Birmingham at 12:18 a.m. today, guarded by 12 Tuscaloosa National Guardsmen.

The negro, clad in blue overhalls and jumper, and with his wounded left arm in a sling, was immediately taken to a cell on the second floor of the jail.

Capt. W. A. Dominick and First Lieut. J. H. Johnson, who were in charge of the detail, said the journey to Montgomery by train was without incident. The party occupied a special compartment aboard the Pan-American which left Birmingham at 10:09 p.m.

Clark previously had been taken to the Jefferson County Jail at Birmingham for safe-keeping following his appearance before a special Grand Jury at Tuscaloosa yesterday.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 15—(AP)—Behind closed doors of the Grand Jury, Elmore Clark, 28-year-old negro, today related his experiences in the hands of a mob which wounded him and lynched two other negroes under indictment on a charge of killing a white woman.

As National Guardsmen paced the area about the court house and the county jail nearby, Clark went before the Grand Jury which had been called into special session and charged by Judge Henry B. Foster earlier in the day to make a determined effort to bring the lynchers to justice.

After completing his testimony Clark was placed aboard a train, accompanied by a escort of National Guardsmen, and carried to Birmingham, where he was placed in the Jefferson County Jail. He left Birmingham late tonight, being taken to Montgomery by National Guardsmen.

Three deputies from whom the masked band seized Clark, A. T. Harden, 16 and Dan Pippen, Jr., 18, as the three were being transferred to Birmingham, early Sunday also were expected to be called before the Grand Jury before it completes its work. Harden and Pippen were the negroes lynched.

In charging the Grand Jury, Judge Foster declared that "lynching by mobs is murder" and directed the inquisitors to make a thorough effort to ascertain the persons who participated in anyway, directly or indirectly in the lynching"

"No modern community can afford to tolerate lynchings. No fair-minded and law-abiding community, bent on protecting its citizens will permit such a crime to go unchallenged. No sovereign State can allow such a violation of its peace and dignity to go unpunished."

Upon completion of the judge's charge the Grand Jury began its investigation under the direction of Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., and Circuit Solicitor Edward de Graffenreid.

In an interview reported to have been had from Clark by a reliable authority an account of the lynching was published by The Tuscaloosa News.

The paper said the negro corroborated statements of the three officers that two carloads of men overpowered them at the point of guns and pistols and took the prisoners.

Placing them in one of the automobiles, in which the band was traveling Clark said he and the other two negroes handcuffed together were driven several miles to a woods where they were lined up and shot.

Before opening fire Clark said a spokesman for the group asked Harden who was responsible for the killing for which the trio were indicted and that he replied by pointing toward Pippen.

As the group directed a fusillade of shots at them, Clark said he fell beneath the bodies of Harden and Pippen with bullet wounds in his left upper arm, left shoulder and right hip. He said he lay still until the men left then "prayed to the Lord to tell me what to do."

Clark said he found a rock and knocked the handcuff from his withered left arm "as the Lord told me to" and wandered until he came upon the home of a negro near Vance, where he was found by officers last night. His wounds, not considered serious, were dressed there before the officers were notified of his whereabouts.

As each member of the lynching party was masked, Clark said he would be unable to identify any of them.

International Labor Defense attorneys who attempted to enter the case as counsel for Pippen when his trial was called several days ago were declared by Sheriff Shamblin to be "directly responsible for this violence." The ILD attorneys were barred from the case at the request of Pippen.

The negroes were under indictment in the slaying of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old daughter of a farmer who was attacked and brutally murdered near her home in rural Tuscaloosa Counties last June.

Russians, Chinese And Other I. L. D. Members Protest

Either for the purpose of comprehensiveness, or economy, or possibly both, telegrams received yesterday at Gov. Miller's office from points north and east, denouncing the lynching by a mob of Dan Pippin, Jr., and A. T. Harden, negroes, and the wounding of a third negro, Elmore Clark, all charged with assaulting and murdering a young white girl in Tuscaloosa County, repeatedly made reference to the "Scottsboro boys" in "demands" made as to action by the Chief Executive. One of these "demands" was for the arrest of Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, of Tuscaloosa.

The Novy Mir, a Russian weekly published in New York, wired: "We express our protest and indignation at the bestial lynching of Dan Pippin, Jr., Elmore Clark and A. Harden. We demand the arrest of Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin of Tuscaloosa as responsible for the lynching. We demand the death of all lynchers. Hold you responsible for safety of Willie Jimmeson and Dan Pippin, Sr. Demand their immediate safe release, likewise immediate, unconditional release of Scottsboro boys." Willie Jimmeson is one of the negroes arrested in connection with the interracial clashes last Winter in Tallapoosa County. Dan Pippin, Sr., is presumably the father of one of the two negroes slain by the mob.

Another Russian organization, in Philadelphia, Penn., telegraphed: "Protest lynching of negro youths, Pippin, Harden, Clark. Demand arrest death penalty of lynchers. Hold you responsible for safety remaining two and Scottsboro boys. Demand their release." This message like the preceding one was obviously dispatched before news reached Philadelphia of the finding of Clark wounded, but alive. It is not clear who the "remaining two" referred to are. The Philadelphia wire was signed, "Russian National Mutual Aid Society of America, Daniel Kasustchik, Secretary."

A telegram from the Ohio District of the International Labor Defense, forwarded from Cleveland, stated: "In name of thousands of members in Ohio we vigorously protest against lynching of three negroes in Tuscaloosa. We hold Judge Foster, Sheriff Shamblin responsible for these lynchings. We demand their immediate arrest and prosecution. We hold you directly responsible for safety of Scottsboro boys. We pledge ourselves to arouse mobilize all workers against lynchings and terror."

The New York District of the International Labor Defense sent the following message: "Strongest protests against lynching Tuscaloosa frameup victims. Judge Foster, Sheriff Shamblin directly responsible. Demand immediate arrest death penalty. Lynching directly planned and executed for terrorism negro masses. Greatest danger now threatens Scottsboro boys. Hold you responsible safety two remaining Tuscaloosa and nine Scottsboro defendants. We demand their immediate release."

Secretary C. Chen, of the Chinese Branch of the International Labor Defense, in New York, sent a telegram recommending that Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin be arrested and prosecuted "for complicity in the murder," and the arrest of Judge Foster and the Sheriff was also recommended in a message from New York, signed by C. Young, secretary of the Chinese Anti-Imperialist Alliance, New York Branch.

A message from the United Council of the Working Class Women, of Newark, N. J., after vigorously protesting against the lynching of the "three negro boys at Tuscaloosa," added: "We hold you responsible for the lives of the nine Scottsboro boys who are also in danger of being lynched and we demand the release of the nine Scottsboro boys and other class war prisoners."

In addition to the telegrams, a letter was also received from the American Civil Liberties Union, in New York, stating that organization was in receipt of a copy of a threatening letter, postmarked Coffeeville, Ala., which was sent by a number of citizens of Mitchem beat, "whose names, amazingly, are signed." The letter was addressed to the International Labor Defense or their attorneys who endeavored recently to represent some negroes in Tuscaloosa, it was stated.

It is understood the communication said, that a copy of the letter has been sent to the Governor by the International Labor Defense, and it is added that: "While we have no connection with that organization, we are interested in any issue of the civil rights of any citizen."

The Governor was requested to either make a statement to discourage "the threatened mob violence conveyed by the letter" or refer it to the proper officials "for such attention as can be given it." The Civil Liberties Union was advising the International Labor Defense, it was stated, "that the evidence should be put before Postoffice Department officials for such action as they may take under the law."

Women Ask Action In Lynching Affair

9-1-33

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 31 (AP) Thirteen leading women of Birmingham today called upon Governor S. M. Miller to do everything in his power to arrest and convict the persons responsible for the lynching Aug. 13 of two Negroes who were being removed from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham for safekeeping pending trial on charges of attacking and killing a white girl.

In an open letter to the chief executive, the women stated they were "shocked and horrified" and declared that "the only way in which the shame of this outrage against law can be blotted out is an early and prompt apprehension of the lawless mob that committed the crime."

Another Group Demands Prosecution Of Shamblin

Advertiser
8-28-33

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union announced today it has written Atty. Gen. Cummings, adding its voice to the plea of other organizations for Federal action in the lynching of two Alabama negroes Aug. 13.

Montgomery Ala

The union endorsed a plea made last week to the Attorney General that Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., be prosecuted for giving up to a mob Dan Pippen, Jr., A. T. Harden and Elmore Clarke, three negroes charged with killing a white woman. Pippen and Harden were killed and Clarke was wounded.

OMINOUS WINGS OVER ALABAMA

Advertiser
9-6-33
Montgomery
Ala

The belled buzzards have returned to Tuscaloosa.

With blood not yet cold on their beaks and talons they return to tear wounds of hatred and bigotry, to taunt the people and anger the courts.

The intruders would make children of Alabamians. They should like nothing better than to cause the State to slap back in anger.

That the belled buzzards should try to push themselves into a case in which already they had caused hatred and suffering—and death—was to be expected.

The Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury should continue its investigation of the lynchings of the two Negroes as if the unscrupulous agitators were not in existence.

Judge Foster and officials of Tuscaloosa County did well to refrain from commenting on the latest entry of the belled buzzards into the inquiry.

The investigation must be handled thoroughly and diligently without thought of outside interference into the case.

DELEGATION ASKS SHERIFF BE PROSECUTED

Afro-American

Both Races Join in a Demand That U. S. Handle Ala. Sheriff.

9-2-33

RECEIVED LITTLE ENCOURAGEMENT

Baltimore Md.

Taub, I.L.D. Lawyer, Present.

WASHINGTON—(CNS)—Federal prosecution of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, of Tuscaloosa County, Alabama, on charges of criminal negligence and complicity in permitting two prisoners in his care to be lynched on August 13, while en route from Tuscaloose to Birmingham, was demanded of Attorney General Cummings by an interracial delegation of more than twenty leaders here Thursday.

Mr. Cummings and his assistant gave the delegation headed by Chas. H. Houston, of the Howard Law School, and Allan Taub one of the I. L. D. attorneys. slight encouragement as they presented the charges to the legal representatives of the Department of Justice.

Waited Three Hours

Scheduled for an interview with Assistant Attorney General William Stanley at 12 o'clock noon the delegation dis not gain admission to his presence until 3:30. Mr. Houston presented the delegation to Assistant Attorney General Stanley and Allan Taub, one of the I.L.D. Attorneys, who was driven out of Tuscaloosa by a mob for attempting to defend the two victims, presented a brief setting forth the charges against the sheriff and outlining his personal experiences in the southern town, and especially the hostile attitude taken by the people of the town| both citizens and officials.

After a full presentation of the case to the Assistant Attorney General, the delegation also called on Mr. Cummings, the Attorney General.

Among the delegation who called on the Attorney General and his assistant were: Charles H. Houston, Allan Taub, Carol W. King, secretary of the International Judicial Association, New York City; Augustus W. Gray, President of the Washington Bar Association; James G. Tyson, Washington; Edward P. Lovett, Washington; Charles E. Mullen and John G. White of Philadelphia; Edward Kuntz, Max Posner and Samuel Goldberge, attorneys for the I.L.D., of New York City; Bishop E. D. W. Jones of the A.M.E. Zion Church, Southeastern Diocese; B. V. Lawson, D. K. Nichols, Benard Ades, of the famous Euel Lee Case; Mr. Levins, Miss A. M. Detzer, of the International League for Peace and Freedom; F. W. Adams, Regional Director of the National Bar Association, Nathan Dobbins and Mrs. Posner.

Nashville, Tenn. Banner
September 25, 1933

Orders Investigation Of Second Lynching

Negro Charged With Attack Shot to Death

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Sept. 25—(AP)—The second lynching in Tuscaloosa County within the past six weeks was under investigation by the Sheriff's department today.

Sheriff R. L. Shamblin ordered the inquiry Sunday after the body of Dennis Cross, Negro under bond on a charge of assaulting a white woman was taken from his home by men posing as officers and shot to death.

The Sheriff said he was told the group of six or seven men appeared at the Negro's home and told Dennis it was necessary for him to go to Tuscaloosa and post a bond larger than that required when he was released on bail a week ago.

The visit of the group was reported to Shamblin by neighbors of Dennis and a search was started which resulted in the finding of the Negro's body near the Tuscaloosa Country Club Sunday at daybreak. Dennis had been struck three times by pistol bullets.

Shamblin said the charge against Dennis was a bailable offense as the victim of the alleged assault had not been attacked. The woman had identified the Negro as her assailant.

The slaying of Dennis followed by six weeks to the day the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, Negros under indictment on a charge of murdering the daughter of a Tuscaloosa County farmer. Pippen and Harden were killed and Elmore Clark, another Negro, was wounded by a group of masked men who seized the prisoners from Tuscaloosa County officers hurrying them to Birmingham for safekeeping.

An investigation into the lynching of Pippen and Harden, ordered by Judge H. B. Foster of Tuscaloosa County is in recess pending the recovery of Attorney-General Thomas E. Knight, Jr., who was wounded by the accidental discharge of a rifle while the grand jury's investigation was under way several days ago.

Alabama

4108

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

4108

I. L. D. Demands the Arrest of Tuscaloosa Judge and Sheriff

Daily Worker
8-15-33
New York, N.Y.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—A report today said the body of Elmore Clarke, third victim of the Tuscaloosa lynchings, was found tied to a tree, riddled with bullets, near Woodstock, Ala.

* * *

NEW YORK.—Demand for the arrest of Judge Henry B. Foster and [illegible] L. [illegible] of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, for the lynching of three Negro boys framed and indicted on murder charges, was made yesterday in a wire to Governor Miller by the ILD. The wire demanded guarantee of safety, and the immediate release, of the two defendants still held in Tuscaloosa. Other wires to Foster and Shamblin charged them with direct responsibility for the murder, and held them responsible for the safety of the other two.

The three Negroes lynched were Dan Pippen, Jr., 18, A. T. Harden, 15, and Elmore Clarke, 28. Still held in Tuscaloosa are Willie Jimison, held for investigation, and Dan Pippen, Sr., charged with "obstructing the investigation."

Meanwhile, dispatches from Tuscaloosa disclosed that during the day a fourth Negro, whose name authorities did not reveal, was murdered by police officers in the town [illegible] Sunday. The excuse was put forward that he "attempted to resist arrest."

The ILD raised the question of how Dan Pippen, Jr., was in Tuscaloosa, Saturday night, when a court order was made August 2, that he be taken to Kilby Prison, Montgomery, Ala., until the trial was resumed. In the answer to this question, the ILD asserted, will be further proof, if any were needed, of the direct complicity of Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin in the case.

Reports that Governor Miller and Judge Foster had ordered investigation into the lynching was characterized by the ILD as nothing more than a maneuver to cover up the track of the lynchers.

"The first thing to do if such an investigation were sincere would be to arrest Foster and Shamblin and proceed with murder charges against them," Frank Spector, assistant national secretary of the ILD, said. "Both have admitted that they knew of the lynchers' intention in advance. Shamblin is not even reported as pretending that he made any resistance to the gang that took their victims from his hands. He has brazenly admitted that he sent back his convoy of deputies, and when the time came, simply turned over his prisoners to a gang of armed men. The question of whether such a gang even existed, arises here. Or did the sheriff himself, and the two deputies with him, constitute the gang which turned the three over to themselves and proceeded to murder them?"

Daily Worker
8-15-33
N.Y. N.Y.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 14.—The official version of the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., A. T. Harden, and Elmore Clarke, full of discrepancies, holes, and contradictions, as given out by Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, is as follows:

Pippen (who was supposed to be in Kilby Prison, Montgomery, according to a court order made on Aug. 2), Harden, and Clarke, were threatened with lynching in the Tuscaloosa lock-up.

The sheriff therefore took them out, selected an unfrequented road to Birmingham, and set out there with them to put them into the Jefferson County jail. He and two deputies were in a car with the defendants. Another car loaded with deputies followed as a convoy.

Dismisses Convoy

Twenty miles out of Tuscaloosa, he dismissed his convoy.

About twenty miles further, just inside the Jefferson County line, 23 miles from Birmingham, Sheriff Shamblin said, two cars, loaded with a dozen armed and masked men, stopped him and demanded that he turn over the prisoners he had in his custody to them.

He turned them over without any pretense of resistance, and returned to Tuscaloosa to report the "incident." Later, searching parties found the bodies of Pippen and Harden near Woodstock, in Bibb County, handcuffed together, by the side of the road, with more than twenty-five bullet wounds in them. The body of Clarke has not been found. The sheriff, without even pretending to give a source for this information said he believed Clarke has been turned loose.

No explanation of how any gang of men could have discovered the trail taken by the sheriff and waylaid them, without being informed by the sheriff or Judge Foster, was made

---

N. Y. SUN

AUG 15 1933

TROOPS GUARDING ALABAMA COURT

Barbed Wire Surrounds Jail as Lynch Inquiry Begins.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 15 (A. P.).—National guardsmen patroled the courthouse block behind barbed wire barricades today as the Tuscaloosa county Grand Jury was convened in a special session to investigate the lynching of two Negroes and the wounding of a third, all of whom were under indictment on a charge of killing a white woman.

The troops went on duty early today and the area was blocked off after the wounded Negro, Elmore Clark, 28 years old, was found near the scene of the lynching and brought to the county jail, adjacent to the courthouse.

A holiday was declared for all offices in the courthouse and no persons were permitted to enter except by special permission. The only activity in evidence was in the Grand Jury room and the Circuit Court room as members of the jury began to assemble.

Opening of the Grand Jury session was delayed pending the arrival of Attorney-General Thomas E. Knight from Montgomery, who was en route here to take charge of the investigation.

Clark, who suffered injuries to his left shoulder, left upper arm and right thigh, was not considered seriously wounded and at the jail it was said that he was expected to be called before the Grand Jury. Sheriff R. L. Shamblin said, however, that the Negro had made no statement, other than that he could not recognize any member of the lynching party as each was masked.

The Negro was wounded by a band of men who halted a group of county deputies carrying Clark, Tom Pippen, 18, and A. T. Harden, 16, to Birmingham for safe keeping, after reports were circulated that a plot was under way Saturday night to storm the jail here. Pippen and Harden were killed.

Meanwhile, the city was quiet and but for a few curiosity seekers who peered through the barbed wire entanglements set up by the guardsmen, there was little evidence of interest in the case.

NEW YORK TIMES

AUG 15 1933

ASKS STATE TO SIFT ALABAMA LYNCHING

Tuscaloosa Prosecutor Calls on Attorney General to Direct Grand Jury's Inquiry.

WOULD CONVICT LYNCHERS

He Also Wires Governor for Aid—Search Is Pressed for Third Negro Prisoner.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 14 (AP).—The legal arm of the State today was called upon to take charge of the investigation into the lynching of two Negroes accused of killing a white woman and the disappearance of another Negro, after they were taken from Tuscaloosa county officers by a band of armed men.

In telegrams to Governor B. M. Miller and Attorney General Thomas E. Knight Jr., at Montgomery, Circuit Solicitor Edward de Graffenreid requested that the Attorney General come here and personally direct the grand jury ordered for tomorrow.

"I am deeply anxious that everything possible be done to ascertain the personnel of the lynchers and convict them," the solicitor stated.

The special grand jury session was called by Judge Henry B. Foster, while Sheriff's deputies spread their search for Elmore Clark, 28, the missing prisoner, whose fate was unknown. Clark was taken from the officers yesterday along with Dan Pippen, 18, and A. T. Harden, 16, whose bodies were found later, bearing bullet wounds.

Judge Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, the latter declaring activities of attorneys for the International Labor Defense in the case were "directly responsible for this violence," today received telegrams from I. L. D. headquarters at Birmingham and New York, demanding "the death penalty for lynchers."

When Pippen's trial was called lawyers for the International Labor Defense sought to serve as his counsel, but were ruled out.

ILD Wires Demand to Roosevelt for Arrest of Foster

Daily Worker
8-14-33
New York City
New York

Federal Guarantee of Safety for Three Also Demanded

NEW YORK, Aug. [illegible].—Demand for direct action by President Roosevelt, to safeguard the lives of three Negro prisoners held in Tuscaloosa county jail and threatened with lynching, and federal arrest of Judge Henry B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, on the basis of the complete breakdown of law and law enforcement in Alabama, was made today in a wire to the president by Frank Spector, assistant national secretary of the International Labor Defense.

The three in Tuscaloosa county jail are Elmore Clark, who escaped death at the hands of the small gang which lynched Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, Sunday, and was found wounded by pistol shots late Monday; Willie Jimison and Dan Pippen, Sr., held in connection with the same murder for which Pippen and Harden were indicted. The I.L.D. has charged and offered to prove that the cases were "the crudest frame-up perpetrated in years."

Failure of Governor Miller to arrest Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin for Sunday's lynchings, and his permitting them to conduct the "Investigation" of lynchings in which they themselves have been charged with direct responsibility, as well as the new threats today against the lives of the Negroes in Tuscaloosa prison were the basis of the I.L.D. demand to President Roosevelt.

An immediate answer as to what steps the president was taking was demanded in the wire.

Governor Asks Lynching Probe

Tuscaloosa Judge Issues Call For Grand Jury To Find Negroes' Slayers

As a result of an exchange of telegrams between Gov. B. M. Miller and Judge Henry B. Foster, of the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit, which includes Tuscaloosa County, a Grand Jury will be empanelled in Tuscaloosa and will begin a thorough probe into the lynching of three negroes somewhere near the place where three county lines, Bibb, Tuscaloosa and Jefferson corner.

Gov. Miller wired Judge Foster Sunday morning that he had information from Sheriff Chamblin of Tuscaloosa that fearing mob violence if the negroes were kept in the Tuscaloosa County Jail Sheriff Chamblin, acting under orders from Judge Foster, removed the negroes from the jail and started with them to the Jefferson County Jail in Birmingham.

Judge Foster in answering Gov. Miller's wire assured the Governor that the best citizens of Tuscaloosa were outraged by the lynching and that every effort would be made to bring the guilty parties to account for the "horrible crime."

Gov. Miller's telegram to Judge Foster was as follows:

"Sheriff Chamblin of your County wired me today as follows: 'Suspicioned mob was going to take prisoners and the Judge ordered Pippen, Clarke and Harden, negroes, transferred to the Jefferson County Jail for safe-keeping. The prisoners were started under heavy guard and were met at the county line by a mob and overpowered and the prisoners taken.'"

"He fails to state the county in which the offense was committed. This crime should be thoroughly investigated by a Grand Jury of county having jurisdiction under a special charge and instructions from the court and the guilty parties indicted and tried. You will appreciate fully its gravity and heniousness and see that the law as to the duty of the sheriff and the offense of the mob are made known to the Grand Jury if the offense was committed within the jurisdiction of your court.

(Signed) "B. M. MILLER,
"Governor."

Judge Henry B. Foster, of the Tuscaloosa Circuit, replied to Gov. Miller's telegram as follows:

"Best citizens here outraged and distressed on account of the horrible crime. My information from the sheriff's office is that the seizure of prisoners occurred a mile or more in Jefferson County. Two bodies discovered near Woodstock, in Bibb County, but probably in a quarter of a mile of Tuscaloosa County. The body of Clark is not yet found. I announced immediately this morning a special session of the Grand Jury will be drawn and summoned tomorrow and empanelled on Tuesday. The Grand Jury will be fully charged as to the duty of the sheriff and offense of the mob. We will leave no stone unturned to make the investigation thorough and completed.

(Signed) "HENRY B. FOSTER,
"Judge Sixth Judicial Circuit."

Advertiser
8-14-33
Montgomery
Ala

Mobile, Ala., Press
August 18, 1933

MOB BULLETS STUDIED BY BIRMINGHAM EXPERT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 18.—(U.P.)—Bullets removed from the bodies of two negro murder suspects who were lynched last Sunday when seized from officers who were bringing them here from Tuscaloosa for safekeeping today were turned over to George R. Stuart, ballistics expert.

Stuart will attempt to determine from what calibre weapon they were fired.

At Montgomery, Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, Jr., announced today he will return to Tuscaloosa Monday to resume the investigation. He and Circuit Solicitor Edward De Graffenreid are directing the inquiry.

I. L. D. Demands Arrest Of Sheriff, Judge, And Mob

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The International Labor Defense announced tonight it had sent the following telegram to Gov. B. M. Miller, of Alabama, in connection with the slaying of two negroes, Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, and the seizure of a third, Elmore Clark, near Tuscaloosa:

"Hold Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin, Tuscaloosa, directly responsible organization lynch mob which murdered Pippen, Harden, Clark. Demand immediate arrest of them and of all deputies and private persons concerned, and immediate prosecution and enforcemnet death penalty. Can prove mob incitement by officials."

The telegram was signed by William L. Patterson, national secretary of the I. L. D.

At the same time, Frank Spector, assistant national secretary, issued a statement saying, in part:

"A lynch spirit has been whipped up in Tuscaloosa for weeks, ever since it was announced that the I. L. D. had been asked to enter the case. These boys were being railroaded in one of the crudest lynch frameups ever perpetrated. This was part of a program of terror against the negroes of Tuscaloosa, who have been bearing the full weight of the losses of the cotton plow-under program and in whom resentment against robbery by their landlords was rising high.

"As soon as it was learned that the I. L. D. was to come into the case, a program of terrorization was begun, to prevent the exposure of the frameup which was becoming inevitable......Finally, the courtroom was packed with a lynch mob and under this pressure, Pippen and his parents were forced to say they did not want the I. L. D., but wanted local lawyers."

Advertiser
8-14-33
Montgomery
Ala

Lawyers In Capital Demand Negro Rights

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—A committee of seven lawyers, including Samuel Liebowitz, Scottsboro attorney and Allan Taub, organized under the joint auspices of the International Labor Defense, the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, and the American Civil Liberties Union, left New York for Washington Wednesday, to demand of Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings that the federal government enforce the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments in Alabama, it was announced today.

The delegation was formed as a result of the lynching of Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, Negroes, in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, on Aug. 13.

Daily Worker
8-24-33

Court Launches Lynching Probe

Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury Starts Deliberation; Negro Describes Attack

Elmore Clark, 28-year-old negro who survived the fusillade of an infuriated mob near Tuscaloosa Sunday morning, arrived here from Birmingham at 12:18 a.m. today, guarded by 12 Tuscaloosa National Guardsmen.

The negro, clad in blue overhalls and jumper, and with his wounded left arm in a sling, was immediately taken to a cell on the second floor of the jail.

Capt. W. A. Dominick and First Lieut. J. H. Johnson, who were in charge of the detail, said the journey to Montgomery by train was without incident. The party occupied a special compartment aboard the Pan-American which left Birmingham at 10:09 p.m.

Clark previously had been taken to the Jefferson County Jail at Birmingham for safe-keeping following his appearance before a special Grand Jury at Tuscaloosa yesterday.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 15—(AP)—Behind closed doors of the Grand Jury, Elmore Clark, 28-year-old negro, today related his experiences in the hands of a mob which wounded him and lynched two other negroes under indictment on a charge of killing a white woman.

As National Guardsmen paced the area about the court house and the county jail nearby, Clark went before the Grand Jury which had been called into special session and charged by Judge Henry B. Foster earlier in the day to make a determined effort to bring the lynchers to justice.

After completing his testimony Clark was placed aboard a train, accompanied by a escort of National Guardsmen, and carried to Birmingham, where he was placed in the Jefferson County Jail. He left Birmingham late tonight, being taken to Montgomery by National Guardsmen.

Three deputies from whom the masked band seized Clark, A. T. Harden, 16 and Dan Pippen, Jr., 18, as the three were being transferred to Birmingham, early Sunday also were expected to be called before the Grand Jury before it completes its work. Harden and Pippen were the negroes lynched.

In charging the Grand Jury, Judge Foster declared that "lynching by mobs is murder" and directed the inquisitors to make a thorough effort to ascertain the persons who participated in anyway, directly or indirectly in the lynching."

"No modern community can afford to tolerate lynchings. No fair-minded and law-abiding community, bent on protecting its citizens will permit such a crime to go unchallenged. No sovereign State can allow such a violation of its peace and dignity to go unpunished."

Upon completion of the judge's charge the Grand Jury began its investigation under the direction of Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., and Circuit Solicitor Edward de Graffenreid.

In an interview reported to have been had from Clark by a reliable authority an account of the lynching was published by The Tuscaloosa News.

The paper said the negro corroborated statements of the three officers that two carloads of men overpowered them at the point of guns and pistols and took the prisoners.

Placing them in one of the automobiles, in which the band was traveling Clark said he and the other two negroes handcuffed together were driven several miles to a woods where they were lined up and shot.

Before opening fire Clark said a spokesman for the group asked Harden who was responsible for the killing for which the trio were indicted and that he replied by pointing toward Pippen.

As the group directed a fusillade of shots at them, Clark said he fell beneath the bodies of Harden and Pippen with bullet wounds in his left upper arm, left shoulder and right hip. He said he lay still until the men left then "prayed to the Lord to tell me what to do."

Clark said he found a rock and knocked the handcuff from his withered left arm "as the Lord told me to" and wandered until he came upon the home of a negro near Vance, where he was found by officers last night. His wounds, not considered serious, were dressed there before the officers were notified of his whereabouts.

As each member of the lynching party was masked, Clark said he would be unable to identify any of them.

International Labor Defense attorneys who attempted to enter the case as counsel for Pippen when his trial was called several days ago were declared by Sheriff Shamblin to be "directly responsible for this violence." The ILD attorneys were barred from the case at the request of Pippen.

The negroes were under indictment in the slaying of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old daughter of a farmer who was attacked and brutally murdered near her home in rural Tuscaloosa Counties last June.

Advertiser
8-16-33
Montgomery
Ala

Tuscaloosa, Ala., News
September 28, 1933

LIVINGSTON TO HEAR 'LYNCH LAWYER' SUIT

Lawyer Appointed Acting Judge For Trial November 13

J. Ed Livingston, Tuscaloosa attorney, has been appointed acting judge for non-jury trial of the two $2,999 "lynch lawyer" damage suits against the Postal Telegraph Company, set for November 13 in circuit court. The suits were filed several weeks ago in behalf of Jack McGuire and Charles LaFrance, young attorneys who were counsel for Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, negroes accused in the Maddox murder case.

The damages are asked from the telegraph company for its transmission of a telegram from the International Labor Defense in New York to Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster here, in which the counsel for the negroes were termed as "local lynch lawyers."

Talladega, Ala., Home
September 27, 1933

Governor Miller is to be commended for his quick action and interest in the latest Tuscaloosa county lynching. Without request from the county the Governor offered a reward of $400 for the arrest and conviction of the parties guilty of this heinous offense. In posting the reward the governor declared "the law must be obeyed, if not, the guilty must be punished." With his known determination and ability as a fighter, it is to be hoped the Governor will keep in close touch with this and other similar cases, and press action, seeing that official interest in apprehending the guilty does not lag.

Alabama

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

4109

II ↑ cont.

DELEGATION SEES ATTORNEY GENERAL

9-9-33

Houston Charges Federal Law Violation By Sheriff.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. [illegible]—At the instance of a dispatch from Rodger Baldwin of the American Civil Liberties Union of New York, Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, selected Dean Charles H. Houston, of the Howard University School of Law, to head a delegation of outstanding lawyers and civic workers to see Attorney General Homer S. Cummings last Thursday. The delegation was charged with the responsibility of protesting the lynching of 18-year-old Dan Pippen, Jr., and 15-year-old A. T. Hardin on Sunday, August 13, near Birmingham, Ala.

Earlier efforts by Dean Houston in an attempt to see President Roosevelt before his recent departure to his Hyde Park "summer White House," were to no avail. White House officials stated that the President was too busy with the N. R. A. codes to see the delegation. It was further stated that the President would not be available until after Labor Day.

Attorney General Seen

Both Assistant Attorney General Carusi and William Stanley, executive assistant to Attorney General Cummings, were interviewed by Dean Houston before the delegation appeared before the Department of Justice head.

During an interview, Dean Houston claimed that because of their "seeming indifference," he was forced to explain to both Mr. Carusi and Mr. Stanley that the delegation was not composed of "persons picked from off the streets." Dean Houston stated further that Mr. Stanley "evidently overlooked the appointment," scheduled for noon last Thursday. Realizing the importance of their mission, the entire committee waited several hours for Mr. Stanley.

Among those composing the delegation headed by Dean Charles H. Houston, were: Bishop Edward D. W. Jones of the A. M. E. Zion Church; Attorney Augustus W. Gray, president of the Washington Bar Association; Attorney Nathan Dobbins, ex-president of the Howard University Law Alumni; Miss Dorothy Detzer of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; former Assistant District Attorney Frank Adams; Attorneys Schwab and Allen Taub, both of New York, who with Frank Irvin of Birmingham, were "run out of Alabama" for attempting to defend the lynched youths; Bernard Ades of Baltimore, Md., Harry I. Levin of Washington, Edward Lovett, Peter Tyson, William H. Hastie, George Jefferson, Nelson Nicholas and Arthur James (a citizen).

This entire body appeared before Attorney General Cummings to seek Federal intervention which would indict Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa county for allowing the mob to seize and lynch the Alabama youths.

Federal Action Asked

Dean Houston, speaking for the delegation, told the Attorney General that Sheriff Shamblin's actions were in violation of Section 52, Title 18, of the United States Code. This section was passed in the Reconstruction Legislation to prevent intimidation by State officers against freed colored persons in the United States.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings requested that the delegation submit a brief which would show a violation of the Federal Code in Sheriff Shamlin's case.

Earlier, Miss Dorothy Detzer charged that the crime of lynching, which is committed against the poorer classes, should have the same Federal action for its curbing as the crime of kidnapping which is perpetrated against the wealthy classes. Miss Detzer's stand came as a blow to the Department of Justice officials.

At one point, during the delegation's audience with the Attorney General Dean Houston and the Justice Department chief argued the committee's charges that the case of the Tuscaloosa County sheriff constituted a violation of the United States Code. Matters of actual proof were involved.

Vann Praised By Attorney General

Through its leader, the delegation charged that the aim of the crime of lynching is to terrorize and intimidate persons who are in the weaker brackets of the American social pattern. As an officer of the law, Sheriff Shamblin was acting in violation of Section 52, Title 18, of the Unitcd States Code, by being a party to the crime which resulted in the lynching of Dan Pippen and A. T. Hardin of the State of Alabama.

During the conference with Attorney General Cummings, the Department of Justice head took the occasion to highly compliment the work of the Honorable Robert L. Vann, special Assistant to the Attorney General of the United States. The Justice Department chief added that he was glad to have Mr. Vann associated with him in the work in the Department.

The double-lynching protest delegation was busily engaged this week in the preparation of the brief which is aimed to lead to an indictment of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa County, Ala.

4109

See Way to Punish Lynch Sheriff in Alabama Case

Defender 9-9-33

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—Two little used sections of the federal laws were dug up and made the basis of a request of the department of justice for prosecution of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa, Ala., as the result of the lynching of two prisoners by an Alabama mob recently.

A delegation headed by Charles H. Houston, vice dean of the Howard law school and a member of the district board of education, and Allen Traube (white) of the International Labor Defense, brought the two statutes to the attention of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings last Thursday.

To Study Brief

The attorney general asked that briefs be submitted to him and said that if he should be convinced of his authority to proceed under the law he would do so.

The statutes were enacted in 1909, d though little [illegible] there have n various [illegible] under m. Incidentally, they were on the tute books during all the time ere was agitation for enactment of federal antilynching law. If held pplicable to such a case as the one in labama, in which Dan Pippen, 18; A. T. Harden, 16, and Elmore Clark, 28, were turned over to a mob by Sheriff Shamblin and the next day the bodies of two of them were found underneath a tree, handcuffed together, riddled with bullets, and a day later the third was found in hiding, wounded, it can be generally applied to cases of mob violence.

The two laws are sections 19 and 20 of the act of March 4, 1909, codifying, revising and amending the penal laws of the United States. They come under the subdivision dealing with offenses against the elective franchise and civil rights of citizens.

Section 19 is as follows:

"If two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or because of his having exercised the same, or if two or more persons go in disguise on the highway, or on the premises of another, with intent to prevent or hinder his free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege so secured, they shall be fined not more than $5,000 and imprisoned not more than 10 years, and shall, moreover, be thereafter ineligible to any office or place of honor, profit or trust created by the Constitution or laws of the United States."

Covers States

Section 20 is as follows:

"Whoever, under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation or custom, willfully subjects, or causes to be subjected, any inhabitant of any state, territory or district to the deprivation of any rights, privileges or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution and laws of the United States, or to different punishments, pains or penalties, on account of such inhabitant being an alien, or by reason of his color or race, than are prescribed for the punishment of citizens, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both."

The Blame For a Lynching

THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE, a legal organization founded and supported by the Communist party, is held responsible for the recent double lynching at Tuscaloosa, Alabama, by leading Alabama citizens, newspapers and law authorities, because lawyers representing the I. L. D. essayed to defend the three men charged with the crime which brought the I. L. D. lawyers into the picture.

9-9-33

A paper so consistently sound and fair-minded as The Birmingham Age-Herald even takes the position that if the I. L. D. lawyers had not come into the case there would have been no lynching, and, without condoning the lynching, or any lynching, implies that unless Alabama is left to handle Negroes' prosecution and defense in the customary way there will be other lynchings like the one at Tuscaloosa.

Norfolk Va.

In view of this new slant of public opinion in Alabama, sanctioned generally throughout the South—if newspaper commentators are to be taken as a true indication of the drift of public opinion—it would seem to be reasonable to inquire what prompted the lynching of 296 Negroes in Alabama before the International Labor Defense was formed. It might also have some pertinent bearing to ask how local custom and legal machinery permitted 46 white persons to be lynched in Alabama between 1882 and 1930. Then, how would Alabama account for the lynching at Decatur since the Tuscaloosa affair?

Up to the induction of the present Governor Miller in office Alabama had a State Law Enforcement Department which empowered the governor to deal directly with mob activities. He could dispatch the militia or deputize State police to take charge of a situation without consulting or waiting for the consent of local authorities. Governor Miller's predecessor, Governor Bibb Graves, made effective use of this authority several times during his term of office. But the circumvention of Alabama mobs by a State legal set-up irked Alabamans, and the State Law Enforcement Department became an issue in the political campaign of 1930, when Governor Miller was elected, on a platform which promised the abolition of the Department. True to promise, as soon as Governor Miller was seated, he abolished the State Law Enforcement Department.

It would appear, therefore, that Alabama not only resents the interference with mob action from the outside — if the International Labor Defense is considered in that light—but from the inside as well, or Alabamans would not have dismantled the only machinery that has been set up for preventing lynchings and other forms of mob violence.

Whatever may be said in Alabama or elsewhere against the legal interference of the I. L. D., its lawyers finally convinced the trial judge in the Scottsboro case that the defendants were given a death sentence contrary to the law and the evidence. Had it not been for the I. L. D. lawyers one of the complaining witnesses would not have had time to recant and go on the witness stand and swear that she perjured the men she was prosecuting. Alabama has been scotched in the Scottsboro case by an Alabama court, through the intercession of the I. L. D. lawyers, and the state has been spared the shame of executing eight boys in a manner that would have amounted to a legal lynching. Of course, the Scottsboro case is not yet settled, and if public opinion in Alabama continues in its present course it is doubtful if the defendants will be saved from another conviction, despite the fact that the two complaining witnesses flatly contradict each other.

EUFAULA, ALA.
TRIBUNE
SEP 1 1933

Women ask Action In Lynching Affair

MONTGOMERY, Sept. 1—Thirteen leading women of Birmingham yesterday called upon Governor B. M. Miller to do everything in his power to arrest and convict the persons responsible for the lynching Aug. 13 of two negroes who were being removed from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham for safekeeping pending trial on charges of attacking and killing a white girl.

In an open letter to the chief executive, the women stated they were "shocked and horrified" and declared that "the only way in which the shame of this outrage against law can be blotted out is an early and prompt apprehension of the lawless mob that committed the crime."

Daily
Statesville N. C.
AUG 31 1933

More From Alabama.

Greensboro News.

It is with keen delight that the Daily News chronicles the more or less unusual circumstance of an Alabama sheriff who thwarted not one mob but two in their efforts to obtain a prisoner, an alleged negro attacker, who looked to him for that protection which the forces of law and order are supposed to accord.

Twice during the course of the same day armed groups appeared at the Huntsville jail and demanded Thomas Brown. As the Associated Press puts it, "The answer of Sheriff Ben Giles was a command that all his deputies stand guard and swing into action at the first sign of violence. The officers were armed with shotguns, pistols and tear gas bombs." There is likewise revelation that, as a precautionary measure, "national guardsmen were told to stand by."

Sheriff Giles' action, while winning the praise due any officer who performs his sworn duty, especially in Alabama and under the circumstances which obtain there, is further and more convincing evidence that mobs are as cowardly as they are bestial, that a show of resistance can generally be counted upon to deter their mobbery and that responsibility for safety of prisoners lies largely in the will of the officer to whose custody they are intrusted. Thwarting of these Huntsville mobs makes all the more odious conduct of fellow officers who less than a fortnight ago yielded two negro prisoners to two automobile loads of mobsters, obviously not over 10 or 12, who halted them near Tuscaloosa, without even so much as a single shot or a word of protest; that is, if dispatches from Tuscaloosa did justice to the minions of the law.

The congratulations to one Alabama sheriff rebound, on that basis, to bring more severe indictment of others who not only disregarded their oath of office and brought the law into disrepute but manifested a downright sympathetic attitude for acts and spirit of the mobsters themselves.

X3

Miller Volunteers Reward Of $400 For Newest Tuscaloosa Lynchers

Advertiser
9-27-33
Montgomery, Ala.

Voluntarily authorizing a reward of $400 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons or any of them, who representing themselves as officers, spirited Dennis Cross, negro, away from his home near Tuscaloosa and shot him to death early Sunday morning, Gov. Miller in a statement issued yesterday declared he hoped the reward would stimulate officials and citizens to redouble their efforts to "end such crimes by a speedy arrest, trial and conviction of the guilty parties."

The Chief Executive said that the crime as reported, was "so henious" that he had issued the reward order without a request to do so from any county official. Following is the text of his statement:

"A reward of $400 is hereby offered for the arrest and conviction of the unknown person or persons, or of any one of them, who on or about the 25th day of September, 1933, in Tuscaloosa County, Alabama, murdered a negro by the name of Dennis Cross.

"It appears from press reports that men, in the false guise of officials, went to his home, called him out in the night under the pretense of requiring him to make a larger bond for a bailable offense and then murdered him.

"This offense on its reported face is so heinous, that without the call from an official of the county, this reward of $400 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the offenders, hoping this will encourage and stimulate not only the officials but citizens to double their energy and efforts to end such crimes by a speedy arrest, trial and conviction of the guilty parties.

"The laws must be obeyed, if not the guilty must be punished."

About two weeks ago, Dennis was arrested following a report by a young white woman that she had been seized by a negro near the Tuscaloosa Country Club, and later was identified by the young woman as her assailant. After being held in jail for about a week on a charge of assault, Dennis was admitted to bail of $300, which was furnished by the owner of the farm where the negro lived.

According to information from Tuscaloosa, a group of six or seven men went to the negro's home Sunday morning around 2 o'clock, and telling him they were officers, said he would have to go to the sheriff's office and make a bigger bond. Taking Dennis with them, they then drove away. Neighbors of Dennis reported the occurrence to the office of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin. The Sheriff immediately ordered an investigation, after he found no city officers had been detailed to bring Dennis in.

Deputies were dispatched to the negro's home, but no trace of him was found, until daybreak, when his body was discovered near the Country Club. He had been shot three times. Nearby the prints of automobile tires, and several bullets were found. So far as is known, there is no clue to the identity of the slayers.

According to Sheriff Shamblin, the young woman seized was not attacked.

The slaying of Dennis is the third of its kind that has taken place in Tuscaloosa County within the past six weeks. On the morning of Aug. 13, while sheriff's deputies were removing to Birmingham for safekeeping, Dan Pippen, Jr., A. T. Harden and Elmore Clark, negroes, all under indictment for criminally assaulting and murdering a young white girl, a mob forced the officers to surrender the negroes. Pippen and Harden were shot to death. Clark, with a number of bullet wounds in his body, escaped, and was later located by Tuscaloosa County authorities.

An order was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster, for the reconvening on Oct. 2 of the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury, to resume its investigation of the lynching of Pippen and Harden.

Knight To Resume Lynching Inquiry

Advertiser
10-1-33
Montgomery, Ala.

Though the wound in his right foot, caused by the accidental discharge of a rifle belonging to a deputy in attendance at the last session of the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury, has not yet healed, and he is able to get about only very slowly, with the use of crutches, Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., will leave for Tuscaloosa today for the reconvening of the county inquisitorial body there tomorrow morning.

The Attorney General will resume charge of the Grand Jury's investigation of the lynching on Aug. 13 of two negroes and the serious wounding of a third, after they were seized by a mob that overpowered the officers who had them in charge and were transferring them to Birmingham from Tuscaloosa, for safekeeping, pending their trials. All three negroes were under indictment for criminally assaulting and murdering a young Tuscaloosa County white girl.

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Alabama

4110

Birmingham, Ala., News
August 20, 1933

FROM MR. DE GRAFFENREID

To the Editor The News:

I noticed in Friday morning's Age-Herald an editorial in regard to the grand jury of Tuscaloosa County now investigating the lynching which recently occurred.

I have always found your paper to be eminently fair, and for that reason address this letter to you with the request that you publish it in the "Voice of the People" column. For the grand jury, for the attorney general and for myself, I wish to state that we are doing everything in our power to ascertain the parties guilty of this heinous crime. We realize deeply the disgrace which has been cast upon the entire state and feel that the only way it may be lessened is by ascertaining the guilty parties and bringing them before the bars of justice.

It is true that we did not examine the three deputies. We are by no means suspicious of these men in regard to the crime, but at the same time as a matter of caution, we deemed it wise not to use them as witnesses, because if we were later to find out they were implicated in the crime, they could not be prosecuted if they had testified as witnesses before the grand jury. We knew that they were unable to identify the members of the alleged masked band, and therefore did not take a chance of calling them before the grand jury.

We recessed until Sept. 4 for the reason that we thought it might be that the Negro would become calmer in that space of time ~~and~~ would possibly throw additional light on the matter after getting over his fright and pain, and further, we wished to make an investigation independent of the grand jury in regard to the caliber of bullets fired into the bodies of the Negroes and then try to find the pistols which fired the same. We did not believe that we would have time to do this before Sept. 4, and we are inclined to think that, not having any additional material testimony to present to the grand jury at this time, it may be useless to call them together.

Sometimes facts leak out after the lapse of a few days in regard to a crime which are not known at first. People talk and this talk gradually spreads through a community until it reaches the ears of investigators.

As a servant of the people of Tuscaloosa County and the state of Alabama, I wish to assure you that I am deeply conscious of the great wrong which has been done our state on account of this hot-headed crime, and I am not using any I. L. D. interference as an excuse, or any other excuse, and am doing and will continue to do all in my power to bring these criminals to justice.

EDWARD DE GRAFFENREID,
Solicitor of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Alabama.
Tuscaloosa.

IT IS NOT A SHOW

News comes from Tuscaloosa that Judge Henry B. Foster has cut short the recess of the special Grand Jury called to investigate the lynchings of A. T. Harden and Dan Pippen to "prevent the appearance of putting this whole thing to sleep."

It is well that Judge Foster and other Tuscaloosa authorities realize that Tuscaloosa is in the eyes of the world and that even "appearances" msut not be allowed to cause misinterpretation of what is happening there.

Montgomery, Ala

And the only way to assure the outside world that Alabama courts are attempting to bring the murderers of the two Negroes to justice is to conduct an investigation so relentless, so thorough, that disinterested observers cannot doubt even the appearance of the investigation.

8/22/33

Yet Alabamians do not want to conduct their courts as mere shows for the benefit of those persons ever ready to find fault. They do not want to conduct their courts just to satisfy outside critics.

They want to conduct their courts in a manner in which justice may be properly dealt for the protection of organized society and all of the people living in this State.

Montgomery Advertiser

Criticism from the outside should not be ignored. It is not. Sometimes it is repudiated. Sometimes adverse criticism is without foundation. But Alabamians are sensitive to criticism from worthy sources, whether from within or without.

It is an unhappy thought in the minds of a few Alabamians though, that our courts primarily should be so operated as to "satisfy" outside observers.

Our courts should be above suspicion. The only way to operate them so that they will be above suspicion in the minds of honest, conscientious outside observers who have no axes to grind is to operate them to the satisfaction of conscientious Alabamians who love justice.

The grand jurors called to investigate the lynchings have the power to satisfy the conscience of Alabamians.

JURY POSTPONES PROBE OF LYNCHING

Advertiser 8-22-33

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Meeting for a short time today, the Tuscaloosa county grand jury investigating the lynching of two negroes and the wounding of another on August 13, recessed again until September 5.

In a statement the grand jury said:

"We are awaiting results of an investigation which we know is being conducted and when that is completed the grand jury cannot consistently and decisively dispose of the matter.

"It is the disposition of the grand jury to take decisive action, but we feel that speed in this instance must be postponed for a thorough investigation that justice be obtained and the dignity of the law upheld."

Montgomery Ala

Raleigh, N. C., News & Observer
August 18, 1933

THIS CIVILIZED WORLD

Yesterday in Alabama a grand jury continued its investigation of the lynching of two Negroes last Sunday morning.

Yesterday in Havana machine gun and rifle fire broke the calm which followed the revolution and the flight of Machado.

Yesterday in Toronto Jews and Gentiles fought in the streets as a result of the display there of the swastika of Hitler.

Yesterday Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald hurried back to London upon hearing the news that more than 600 Christian Assyrians had been killed by Irak soldiers and Kurdish irregulars on the Irak-Syria frontier.

Yesterday in Poona, India, Mahatma Gandhi began a new fast "to the death" as a final protest in his campaign against British rule over the millions of India.

This was one day in the world. But this one day indicates that whatever the economic advances may be, the world is a long way from a New Deal in the human heart.

Prosecution Of Shamblin Asked

Attorneys Accuse Sheriff Of 'Gross Negligence' In Tuscaloosa Lynchings

Advertiser 8-23-33 Montgomery Ala

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Federal prosecution of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa County, Ala., was asked of Atty.-Gen. Cummings today by a group of attorneys who charged the officer with gross negligence or collusion in the lynching of two negroes while in his care.

Mr. Cummings assured the group of his sympathy, told them their plea would be given every consideration, and said he was sure they recognized the legal difficulties involved.

The attorneys, several of whom were negroes, contended that, under a law enacted in reconstruction days, any individual depriving a negro of rights granted by the [illegible] answerable to the Federal courts, with a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine and a year in prison.

Presenting the case to William Stanley, assistant attorney general, Allan Taub, counsel for the International Labor Defense told the circumstances of the lynching. He said that, in transferring three negroes, charged with slaying a white girl, from Tuscaloosa to Montgomery, the prisoners were placed in an automobile with Sheriff Shamblin, while a party of deputies rode in a second machine.

Some distance from Tuscaloosa, he added, the deputies turned back and Shamblin and the negroes continued, 30 miles or more farther, where, he said, two automobiles filled with masked men stopped the sheriff's car, killed two of the negroes, and wounded a third.

Taub contended that, in permitting the deputies to turn back, Shamblin was guilty of negligence or collusion.

Evidence Slows Lynching Probe

Advertiser

8-22-33

Grand Jury Will Resume Investigation On Sept. 5; Clark Negro In Hospital

Montgomery Ala.

Returning last night from Tuscaloosa following the recessing there of the grand jury of which he was in charge, Atty. Gen. Knight stated further investigation is necessary before that body takes final action.

The grand jury which reassembled yesterday morning to continue its inquiry into the lynching by a mob on the morning of Aug. 13, of two negroes and the wounding of a third, all charged with assaulting and murdering a young Tuscaloosa County white woman, recessed again yesterday afternoon until Sept. 5.

"It is the purpose of prosecuting officers," the Attorney General said, "to exhaust every resource at our command to determine the identity of the guilty parties and bring them to justice. The investigation now in progress to produce additional evidence will be pushed with the utmost vigor."

Mr. Knight's statement is in full accord with his position expressed several days ago, that it is his desire the grand jury be recessed from time to time in order that the investigation be complete and thorough, and that evidence be placed before the grand jurors from time to time, as it is developed.

Recessing, the grand jury reported yesterday afternoon to Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster there was no further evidence before them, but that the members know an investigation is being made and they did not want to adjourn, but wished to be recessed until Sept. 5, or such other time as might be suggested to the trial judge by the prosecuting officers.

Their reason for making the request, the grand jurors said, was that they did not feel they could conscientiously make a final report until the investigation which they knew was being conducted by the prosecuting officers, has been completed.

The two negroes lynched were Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, who with the third negro, Elmore Clark, were being transferred to Birmingham for safekeeping by Tuscaloosa sheriff's deputies when the officers were held up by the mob and forced to surrender the prisoners.

Pippen and Harden were shot to death by the mob. By a ruse, Clark escaped with five bullet wounds in his body. Brought to Montgomery and lodged in the county jail after he had appeared before the Tuscaloosa Grand Jury, Clark was transferred to the Kilby Prison hospital for treatment of his injuries, by order of Gov. Miller.

Yesterday, it was learned that though Clark's condition is satisfactory, he is not yet out of danger. He is being treated for wounds in both shoulders, the right arm, and both sides. The wound in the left side is regarded as the most serious, it is understood

Russians, Chinese And Other I. L. D. Members Protest

Advertiser

8-16-33

Either for the purpose of comprehensiveness, or economy, or possibly both, telegrams received yesterday at Gov. Miller's office from points north and east, denouncing the lynching by a mob of Dan Pippin, Jr., and A. T. Harden, negroes, and the wounding of a third negro, Elmore Clark, all charged with assaulting and murdering a young white girl in Tuscaloosa County, repeatedly made reference to the Scottsboro boys" in "demands" made as to action by the Chief Executive. One of these "demands" was for the arrest of Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa.

The Novy Mir, a Russian weekly published in New York, wired: "We express our protest and indignation at the bestial lynching of Dan Pippin, Jr., Elmore Clark and A. T. Harden. We demand the arrest of Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin of Tuscaloosa as responsible for the lynching. We demand the death of all lynchers. Hold you responsible for safety of Willie Jimmeson and Dan Pippin, Sr. Demand their immediate safe release, likewise immediate, unconditional release of Scottsboro boys." Willie Jimmeson is one of the negroes arrested in connection with the interracial clashes last Winter in Tallapoosa County. Dan Pippin, Sr., is presumably the father of one of the two negroes slain by the mob.

Montgomery Ala

Another Russian organization, in Philadelphia, Penn., telegraphed: "Protest lynching of negro youths, Pippin, Harden, Clark. Demand arrest death penalty of lynchers. Hold you responsible for safety remaining two and Scottsboro boys. Demand their release." This message like the preceding one was obviously dispatched before news reached Philadelphia of the finding of Clark wounded, but alive. It is not clear who the "remaining two" referred to are. The Philadelphia wire was signed, "Russian National Mutual Aid Society of America, Daniel Kasustchik, Secretary."

A telegram from the Ohio District of the International Labor Defense, forwarded from Cleveland, stated: "In name of thousands of members in Ohio we vigorously protest against lynching of three negroes in Tuscaloosa. We hold Judge Foster, Sheriff Shamblin responsible for these lynchings. We demand their immediate arrest and prosecution. We hold you directly responsible for safety of Scottsboro boys. We pledge ourselves to arouse mobilize all workers against lynchings and terror."

The New York District of the International Labor Defense sent the following message: "Strongest protests against lynching Tuscaloosa frameup victims. Judge Foster, Sheriff Shamblin directly responsible. Demand immediate arrest death penalty. Lynching directly planned and executed for terrorism negro masses. Greatest danger now threatens Scottsboro boys. Hold you responsible safety two remaining Tuscaloosa and nine Scottsboro defendants. We demand their immediate release."

Secretary C. Chen, of the Chinese Branch of the International Labor Defense, in New York, sent a telegram recommending that Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin be arrested and prosecuted "for complicity in the murder," and the arrest of Judge Foster and the Sheriff was also recommended in a message from New York, signed by C. Young, secretary of the Chinese Anti-Imperialist Alliance, New York Branch.

A message from the United Council of the Working Class Women, of Newark, N. J., after vigorously protesting against the lynching of the "three negro boys at Tuscaloosa," added: "We hold you responsible for the lives of the nine Scottsboro boys who are also in danger of being lynched and we demand the release of the nine Scottsboro boys and other class war prisoners."

In addition to the telegrams, a letter was also received from the American Civil Liberties Union, in New York, stating that organization was in receipt of a copy of a threatening letter, postmarked Coffeeville, Ala., which was sent by a number of citizens of Mitchem beat, "whose names, amazingly, are signed." The letter was addressed to the International Labor Defense or their attorneys who endeavored recently to represent some negroes in Tuscaloosa, it was stated.

It is understood the communication said, that a copy of the letter has been sent to the Governor by the International Labor Defense, and it is added that: "While we have no connection with that organization, we are interested in any issue of the civil rights of an citizen."

The Governor was requested to either make a statement to discourage "the threatened mob violence conveyed by the letter" or refer it to the proper officials "for such attention as can be given it." The Civil Liberties Union was advising the International Labor Defense it was stated, "that the evidence should be put before Postoffice Department officials for such action as they may take under the law."

Lynching Probe Recess Ordered

Grand Jury Adjourns Until Sept. 4 Without Report After Exhuming Bodies

Advertiser

8-17-33

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The special Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury investigating the lynching early Sunday of two negroes between Tuscaloosa and Birmingham, recessed today until Sept. 4 without returning any indictments in the case.

No report was made by the Grand Jury pending further inquiry slated when the body reconvenes.

During the day, a bullet was removed from the body of Dan Pippen, Jr., one of the two negroes lynched [illegible] examined by a ballistic expert in an effort to identify the owner of the weapon from which it was fired.

Montgomery Ala

The body was exhumed at the order of the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury investigating the lynching of Pippen and A. T. Harden and the wounding of Elmore Clark, negroes indicted on a charge of killing a white woman, who were seized from deputies transferring them to Birmingham.

The bullet, of .38 calibre, was the only one of a dozen slugs that struck the negro and failed to pass through his body.

The jurors examined the .44 calibre pistols carried by the three officers from whom the negroes were taken, but had not questioned the officers.

A sworn deposition made by Clark in which he repeated an account of the lynching was released during the day by the sheriff's office. The statement was made by the negro before national guardsmen transferred him to Montgomery last night for safekeeping.

In his account of the affair the negro said the masked men occupying two automobiles blocked the highway, and that the deputies attempted to draw their guns, but that members of the band were upon them too quickly. He said there was a dozen men in the crowd and that each carried a gun.

Clark reiterated that he would be unable to identify any member of the mob.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
August 14, 1933

Governor Asks Lynching Probe

Tuscaloosa Judge Issues Call For Grand Jury To Find Negroes' Slayers

As a result of an exchange of telegrams between Gov. B. M. Miller and Judge Henry B. Foster, of the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit, which includes Tuscaloosa County, a Grand Jury will be empanelled in Tuscaloosa and will begin a thorough probe into the lynching of three negroes somewhere near the place where three county lines, Bibb, Tuscaloosa and Jefferson corner.

Gov. Miller wired Judge Foster Sunday morning that he had information from Sheriff Chamblin, of Tuscaloosa that, fearing mob violence if the negroes were kept in the Tuscaloosa County Jail, Sheriff Chamblin, acting under orders from Judge Foster, removed the negroes from the jail and started with them to the Jefferson County Jail in Birmingham.

Judge Foster in answering Gov. Miller's wire assured the Governor that the best citizens of Tuscaloosa were outraged by the lynching and that every effort would be made to bring the guilty parties to account for the "horrible crime."

Gov. Miller's telegram to Judge Foster was as follows:

"Sheriff Chamblin of your County wired me today as follows: 'Suspicioned mob was going to take prisoners and the Judge ordered Pippen, Clarke and Harden, negroes, transferred to the Jefferson County Jail for safe-keeping. The prisoners were started under heavy guard and were met at the county line by a mob and overpowered and the prisoners taken.'"

"He fails to state the county in which the offense was committed. This crime should be thoroughly investigated by a Grand Jury of county having jurisdiction under a special charge and instructions from the court and the guilty parties indicted and tried. You will appreciate fully its gravity and heniousness and see that the law as to the duty of the sheriff and the offense of the mob are made known to the Grand Jury if the offense was committed within the jurisdiction of your court.

(Signed) "B. M. MILLER,
"Governor."

Judge Henry B. Foster, of the Tuscaloosa Circuit, replied to Gov. Miller's telegram as follows:

"Best citizens here outraged and distressed on account of the horrible crime. My information from the sheriff's office is that the seizure of prisoners occurred a mile or more in Jefferson County. Two bodies discovered near Woodstock, in Bibb County, but probably in a quarter of a mile of Tuscaloosa County. The body of Clark is not yet found. I announced immediately this morning a special session of the Grand Jury will be drawn and summoned tomorrow and empanelled on Tuesday. The Grand Jury will be fully charged as to the duty of the sheriff and offense of the mob. We will leave no stone unturned to make the investigation thorough and completed.

(Signed) "HENRY B. FOSTER,
"Judge Sixth Judicial Circuit."

I. L. D. Demands Arrest Of Sheriff, Judge, And Mob

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The International Labor Defense announced tonight it had sent the following telegram to Gov. B. M. Miller, of Alabama, in connection with the slaying of two negroes, Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, and the seizure of a third, Elmore Clark, near Tuscaloosa:

"Hold Judge Foster and Sheriff Shamblin, Tuscaloosa, directly responsible organization lynch mob which murdered Pippen, Harden, Clark. Demand immediate arrest of them and of all deputies and private persons concerned, and immediate prosecution and enforcemnet death penalty. Can prove mob incitement by officials."

The telegram was signed by William L. Patterson, national secretary of the I. L. D.

At the same time, Frank Spector, assistant national secretary, issued a statement saying, in part:

"A lynch spirit has been whipped up in Tuscaloosa for weeks, ever since it was announced that the I. L. D. had been asked to enter the case. These boys were being railroaded in one of the crudest lynch frameups ever perpetrated. This was part of a program of terror against the negroes of Tuscaloosa, who have been bearing the full weight of the losses of the cotton plow-under program and in whom resentment against robbery by their landlords was rising high.

"As soon as it was learned that the I. L. D. was to come into the case, a program of terrorization was begun, to prevent the exposure of the frameup which was becoming inevitable...... Finally, the courtroom was packed with a lynch mob and under this pressure, Pippen and his parents were forced to say they did not want the I. L. D., but wanted local lawyers."

Lynch Investigating Committee Met With Threats of Attack

Daily Worker

11-8-33

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 7. — As the delegation of eight Southerners, representing the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, crossed the boundary line of Alabama today, to begin an investigation of the lynch terror sweeping over the South, they were met with veiled and obvious threats from the leading newspapers of the town, the Age Herald.

New York

"At the risk of seeming inhospitable," the paper stated editorially, "the visitors should be guided by the logic of events and return to their homes."

Among the delegation are Grace Lumpkin, Hollace Ransdall, Barbara Alexander, Bruce Crawford, Prof. Vann Woodward and Howard Kester, all of Southern birth.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

California

4370

California Lynchings

Governor James Rolph, Jr., of California says he will pardon the entire 5,000 lynchers if any of them are convicted or if any one of them is convicted of lynching the slayers of the young kidnaped Hart boy. He thinks the lynching was a fine lesson for the nation, and that it will reduce kidnaping in this country. He commends the mob for making a good job of the lynchings.

Telegraph

11-28-33

People who know what a severe strain organized society must undergo in its war against organized crime cannot agree with Governor Rolph. He's giving fine backing indeed to the fifty loyal and upright officers of the law who battled with the mob of 5,000 until resistance was no longer possible. The governor and every officer of the law is under oath to make people obey the law, and also to protect a prisoner that is brought into the custody of the law.

Macon Ga.

So far as the 5,000 members of the mob are concerned Governor Rolph has said a very politic thing. Perhaps he said it for policy's sake—but that's the kinds of politics that give anarchy a good race with organized government. This country is in a sad plight when nobody is left to defend the majesty of the law—when the governor will applaud its degradation. It is again sad when farmers against whom a court has rendered a legal decision in a mortgage case will through mob spirit take the judge and carry him out and spit on him to show their contempt of him and his court. It is a sad situation when a Maryland judge pleads with the mob to cease their efforts to lynch a Negro, telling them he knows the leaders, and then after the lynching, he finds that he does not dare remember one of the lynchers. Governor Rolph says the people created the law and they are superior to it. But did they not make it to keep any individual or set of individuals from becoming superior to it? They left no provision for lynching. If they want to lynch for certain crimes or under certain circumstances, certainly they have a right to give themselves the privilege, but under the mob plan any man or set of men may kill any other man or set of men at will, and get applause for doing so.

Organized crime is preying upon organized society. It is kidnaping and robbing and murdering at will, and society needs to pull itself together and hold itself together for self-protection, if for no better reason.

While the mob was fanning itself into a fury in California, the senate sub-committee on crime prevention was working with ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith and others in public meetings in New York to see what the government shall do when the profits on whisky selling are supposed to be taken away from organized crime and put into other channels. Those meetings seem to agree that it is certainty of punishment that deters crime, and not the severity of punishment, and it was pointed out that the United States has already the greatest number of punishable crimes and the longest terms of punishment found in any of the leading nations, but too many criminals feel like Governor Rolph's mob feels—all who commit crime have many chances of finding a Governor Rolph or a Maryland judge.

ROLPH IS EXPELLED BY VETERANS BODY

Times

California Governor Removed From Advisory Board Over Attitude on Lynching.

New York

HIS IMPEACHMENT URGED

National Association Calls on Other Groups to Join in Censure of Executive.

12-6-33

Governor James Rolph Jr. of California has been expelled as a member of the National Advisory Board of the National War Veterans Association, on motion of D. George Paston, past national commander, who appointed Mr. Rolph. The expulsion, because of Governor Rolph's "actions and statements in connection with the San Jose lynching," occurred at a meeting of the national executive committee at the Pennsylvania Hotel Monday night.

Mr. Paston's resolution called upon the citizens of California to take steps to impeach Governor Rolph, pledged the aid of the organization in this action and requested that other organizations of veterans adopt similar resolutions. The resolution not only condemned the San Jose affair, but said: "We deplore said lynching and any and all lynchings."

In offering the resolution Mr. Paston presented a covering letter which read:

"During my term as national commander, I had the privilege and honor of appointing several distinguished persons as members of the National Advisory Board. Included among them, Governor Rolph of California accepted an appointment.

"Recently a lawless lynching took place in San Jose, Calif. The Governor of the State, the head of the executive branch of the State government, relied upon to enforce its laws and who, before assuming office, took an oath to uphold the law, instead of taking steps to prevent the carrying out of the announced intentions of the wild mob, remained idle and later condoned their acts, proved himself the real leader of those who would take the laws into their own hands.

"He thereby disqualified himself as a Governor and placed himself in a worse category than the ordinary citizen, who must obey the laws of the supposed civilized community in which he lives."

The executive committee unanimously adopted the resolution of condemnation and expulsion.

IDENTITY OF LYNCHERS SOUGHT AT SAN JOSE

Constitution

SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Identification of leaders of the mob that lynched the kidnap-slayers of Brooke Hart was sought by authorities here today after District Attorney Fred L. Thomas announced he would prosecute if "proper evidence" is presented.

12-9-33

Sheriff William J. Emig, injured by the mob as it stormed the jail and seized Thomas H. Thurmond and John M. Holmes, who confessed to killing Hart in a $40,000 extortion plot, said no immediate arrests are contemplated.

California Lawyers Favor Rolph Ouster

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Lawyers' Club, in a heated session today, voted 19 to 12 for a resolution demanding the impeachment of Governor James Rolph Jr., and a few minutes later voted to reconsider the question and submit it by mail to all members.

The motions for reconsideration and for submission by mail were passed by a narrow margin, after opponents of the impeachment resolution charged that insufficient time had been permitted for discussion of the question. In debate, both sides charged that the other was seeking "political preferment" in favoring or opposing adoption.

Meanwhile, Governor Rolph declined again to make any comment on the remarks last night by President Roosevelt condemning lynchings.

Rolph Is Expelled From War Vet Board

12-6-33

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The national executive committee of the National War Veterans Association, Inc., today made public a resolution expelling Governor Rolph of California, from its national advisory board.

The resolution was adopted yesterday. It charged "that Governor Rolph's proven gubernatorial unfitness so obviously demonstrated by his actions and statements in connection with the San Jose lynchings, has likewise made him unfit to be continued in an advisory or in any other capacity in or with this organization."

The resolution also urged "the good citizens of the state of California, in order to save their own reputations as law-abiding citizens of the fair state of California, of our beloved United States, should take immediate steps to impeach their present nominal governor."

YOUTH ARRESTED AS MOB MEMBER

Telegraph

Anthony Cataldi Held on Charges Brought After Civil Liberties Union Inquiry

12-13-33

SAN JOSE, Calif., Dec. 12. (AP)—The first step toward prosecution of the lynchers of Thomas H. Thurmond and John H. Holmes, confessed abduction killers of Brooke Hart, was taken here today when an 18-year-old youth was arrested, on information furnished by representatives of the American Civil Liberties union, and charged with being a member of the mob.

Macon Ga.

While the youth, Anthony Cataldi, was being booked on a charge of violating the new state law against lynching—a statute providing penalties of one to 20 years imprisonment—Governor James Rolph, Jr., whose celebrated condonation of the mob hanging here November 26 stirred the nation, asserted in San Francisco he had not changed his views "one iota" as to his promise to pardon anyone convicted of participation.

Young Cataldi was named in a warrant sworn out by District Attorney Fred Thomas after A. L. Wirin and Ellis O. Jones, representatives of the Civil Liberties union, had pressed his efforts toward prosecution.

Telegraph

Sheriff William J. Emig, who directed the defense of the county jail while the mob smashed down its doors with battering rams, routed the officers and seized Thurmond and Holmes, said the arrest were merely a move to hold Cataldi pending presentation of the case to the county grand jury. He said several other alleged leaders of the mob probably would be arrested.

12-13

The warrant was issued after Wirin and Jones had worked several days gathering alleged evidence in the form of photographs and statements. Young Cataldi, subsequent to the lynching, had been quoted by some newspapers as saying he obtained the rope and helped to round up the crowd which smashed its way into the jail to seize and hang the accused men.

On being arrested the youth declined to talk. Bond was set at $5,000 cash.

Youth Arrested For San Jose Lynching

Advertiser
12-13-33

SAN JOSE, CALIF., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The first step toward prosecution of the lynchers of Thomas H. Thurmond and John H. Holmes, confessed abduction killers of Brooke Hart, was taken here today when an 18-year-old youth was arrested, on information furnished by representatives of the American Civil Liberties Union, and charged with being a member of the mob.

Ala

While the youth, Anthony Cataldi, was being booked on a charge of violating the new State law [illegible] lynching—a statute providing penalties of one to 20 years imprisonment—Governor James Rolph, Jr., whose celebrated condonation of the mob hanging here Nov. 26 stirred the nation, asserted in San Francisco he had not changed his views "one iota" as to his promise to pardon anyone convicted of participation.

Young Cataldi was named in a warrant sworn out by Dist. Atty. Fred Thomas after A. L. Wirin and Ellis O. Jones, representatives of the Civil Liberties Union, had pressed efforts toward prosecution.

Sheriff William J. Emig, who directed the defense of the county jail while the mob smashed down its doors with battering rams, routed the officers and seized Thurmond and Holmes, said the arrest was merely a move to hold Cataldi pending presentation of the case to the County Grand Jury. He said several other alleged leaders of the mob probably would be arrested.

Lynchings - 1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

General

4111

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS

DEC 21 1933

ROLPH AND McALISTER

TAKING AN ATTITUDE sharply contrasting to that held by Governor Rolph of California, who promised a blanket pardon for the San Jose lynchers, Governor McAlister of Tennessee has posted $1,000 reward for the arrest of men in the Columbia mob. The California executive praised those who stormed the jail and hanged the two confessed kidnapers, as having given all the Nation a lesson. The Tennessee Governor denounced the lynching of a negro who had been no-billed by the grand jury, as "a disgrace to the State." Probably Governor Rolph would endorse that assertion, holding—as he did with regard to the recent Missouri lynching—that the circumstances were different. Anyhow, from his viewpoint it would be easier to see that Tennessee, rather than California, stood shamed before the world by a mob's act.

What Governor Rolph evidently did not see and persists in refusing to see, is that the principles involved in the three cases—and in all such crimes—are identical. The circumstances do not affect those principles. Whether the mob's victim be accused of a horrible crime or a relatively minor offense, or even whether he be guilty or innocent, properly should not enter into consideration at all. In one case or the other the law has been flouted, public authority defied and justice outraged. Under no circumstances can lynch "law" be condoned.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Georgia
6

4112

LYNCHING PROBE BRINGS THREATS

~~Constitution~~

NEWTON, Ga., June 27.—(AP)—Sheriff Jud Griffin, of Baker county, investigating the lynching of two negroes near here two weeks ago, said tonight he wasn't worried much about threats made against his life "but my wife is upset a little bit." 6-28-33

The sheriff has been investigating the lynching of T. J. Thomas, negro, who was killed by a mob after a fight between some white boys and negroes. A white boy was killed in the fight.

The fight occurred more than two weeks ago, and the night of June 12 a mob called at the negro's house, forced him into woods nearby and lynched him.

Five days later, Richard Marshall, negro, also was lynched not far from where Thomas was killed.

Sheriff Griffin said tonight he believed the fight between the white boys and negroes led to the lynching of Thomas, "but I don't know why they killed Marshall."

His investigations, he said, brought threats that he would be killed if he got "too nosey."

"But I'm not afraid of them," the south Georgian said tonight. "They haven't got the nerve to shoot me in the day time, but they may try to bushwhack me at night."

Bushwack means ambush down here.

"Anyhow," said Sheriff Griffin," I'm going to keep investigating."

Arlington, Ga., Courier
June 30, 1933

DOUBLE LYNCHING BEING PROBED IN BAKER COUNTY

Sheriff Jack Griffin, of Baker county, investigating the lynching of two negroes in Baker county three weeks ago, said he wasn't worried much about threats made against his life "but my wife is upset a little bit."

The sheriff has been investigating the lynching of T. J. Thomas, who was killed by a mob after a fight between some white boys and negroes in which a white boy was killed.ffl

The fight occurred more than three weeks ago, and the night of June 12 a mob called at the negroe's house, forced him into woods nearby and lynched him.

Five days later, Richard Marshall, negro, alsa was lynched not far from where Thomas was killed.

Sheriff Griffin said he believed the fight between the white boys and negroes led to the lynching of Thomas, but "I don't know why they killed Marshall."

His investigations, he said, brought threats that he would be killed if he got "too nosey."

"But I'm not afraid of them." "They haven't got the nerve to shoot me in the day time, but they may try to bushwhack me at night."

"Anyhow," said Sheriff Griffin, "I'm going to keep investigating."

Atlanta, Ga. Journal
June 28, 1933

Sheriff Threatened As Lynching Inquiry Continues at Newton

NEWTON, Ga., June 28.—(AP)—A persistent investigation of two reported lynchings within five days of one another, have brought threats of death against Sheriff Jud Griffin, of Baker County, but he says his inquiry will continue.

The sheriff said a negro named T J. Thomas was killed after a fight between a group of white boys and negroes about two weeks ago. A white boy died in the fight. Five days later, the sheriff said, Richard Marshall, another negro, was slain not far from where Thomas was killed.

Sheriff Griffin said he blamed the fight between the negroes and whites for the lynching of Thomas, but was unable to say why Marshall should have been killed. His investigations, he said, had brought threats of death if he got "too nosey," but that he was unworried and would push the inquiry.

Bristol, Va., Herald-Courier
June 30, 1933

Insolence Of a Mob.

A dispatch from Newton, Georgia, states that Sheriff Judd Griffin's life has been threatened because of his persistent investigation of two lynchings that have occurred near that town within the last few days. A Negro was taken from his home and killed by a mob after a fight between a group of white boys and Negroes in which a white boy died. A few days later another Negro was lynched near where the first was killed. The Sheriff reports that his investigation of these lynchings has brought threats of death if he became "too nosey," but declares he will push the inquiry.

Possibly both lynchings were perpetrated by the same parties, who not only flouted constituted authority and committed two murders but are insolent enough to attempt to intimidate the Sheriff whose sworn duty it is to apprehend the lynchers and bring them into court. It is to be hoped Sheriff Griffin is in earnest in his search for the members of the mob or mobs, that he has the courage to continue the search regardless of any personal danger that he may face, and that he will find the guilty men.

In this connection it is in order to inquire what has becom[illegible] of a recent double lynching [illegible] nnessee. The Sheriff of that county declared his determination to hunt down the members of the mob that took two white men from jail and brutally killed them, but some weeks have passed without any further word from him. Evidently he has not found the lynchers, else the fact would have been reported. It would be encouraging to know that at least he is still looking for them.

Macon-Ga. News

28-6-33

GEORGIA SHERIFF PROBING LYNCHING

Baker County Officer Receives Threats but Will Continue His Investigation

NEWTON, Ga., June 28. (AP)—A persistent investigation of two lynchings that occurred within five days of one another near here have brought threats of death against Sheriff Jud Griffin of Baker county but he says his inquiry will continue.

The sheriff said a Negro named T. J. Thomas was killed by a mob after a fight between a group of white boys and Negroes about two weeks ago. A white boy died in the fight. Five days later, the sheriff said, Richard Marshall, another Negro, was lynched not far from where Thomas was killed.

Sheriff Griffin said he blamed the fight between the Negroes and whites for the lynching of Thomas but was unable to say why Marshall should have been killed. His investigations, he said, had brought threats of death if he got "too nosey" but that he was unworried and would push the inquiry.

Atlanta, Ga. Constitution
June 28, 1933

LYNCHING PROBE BRINGS THREATS

NEWTON, Ga., June 27.—(AP)—Sheriff Jud Griffin, of Baker county, investigating the lynching of two negroes near here two weeks ago, said tonight he wasn't worried much about threats made against his life "but my wife is upset a little bit."

The sheriff has been investigating the lynching of T. J. Thomas, negro, who was killed by a mob after a fight between some white boys and negroes. A white boy was killed in the fight.

The fight occurred more than two weeks ago, and the night of June 12 a mob called at the negro's house, forced him into woods nearby and lynched him.

Five days later, Richard Marshall, negro, also was lynched not far from where Thomas was killed.

Sheriff Griffin said tonight he believed the fight between the white boys and negroes led to the lynching of Thomas, "but I don't know why they killed Marshall."

His investigations, he said, brought threats that he would be killed if he got "too nosey."

"But I'm not afraid of them," the south Georgian said tonight. "They haven't got the nerve to shoot me in the day time, but they may try to bushwhack me at night."

Bushwack means ambush down here.

"Anyhow," said Sheriff Griffin," I'm going to keep investigating."

LYNCHING PROBE BRINGS THREATS

Constitution

NEWTON, Ga., June 27.—(AP)—Sheriff Jud Griffin, of Baker county, investigating the lynching of two negroes near here two weeks ago, said tonight he wasn't worried much about threats made against his life "but my wife is upset a little bit."

The sheriff has been investigating the lynching of T. J. Thomas, negro, who was killed by a mob after a fight between some white boys and negroes. A white boy was killed in the fight. The fight occurred more than two weeks ago, and the night of June 12 a mob called at the negro's house, forced him into woods nearby and lynched him.

Five days later, Richard Marshall, negro, also was lynched not far from where Thomas was killed.

Sheriff Griffin said tonight he believed the fight between the white boys and negroes led to the lynching of Thomas, "but I don't know why they killed Marshall."

His investigations, he said, brought threats that he would be killed if he got "too nosey."

"But I'm not afraid of them," the south Georgian said tonight. "They haven't got the nerve to shoot me in the day time, but they may try to bushwhack me at night."

Bushwack means ambush down here.

"Anyhow," said Sheriff Griffin," I'm going to keep investigating."

DOUBLE LYNCHING IS BEING PROBED

Telegraph

Sheriff Griffin of Baker County Not Afraid of Threats, Continues Inquiry

6-28-33

NEWTON, Ga., June 27. (AP)—Sheriff Jud Griffin of Baker county, investigating the lynching of two Negroes near here two weeks ago, said tonight he wasn't worried much about threats made against his life "but my wife is upset a little bit."

The sheriff has been investigating the lynching of T. J. Thomas, Negro, who was killed by a mob after a fight between some white boys and Negroes. A white boy was killed in the fight.

Macon Ga.

The fight occurred more than two weeks ago, and the night of June 12 a mob called at the Negro's house, forced him into woods nearby and lynched him.

Second Negro Lynched

Five days later, Richard Marshall, Negro, also was lynched not far from where Thomas was killed.

Sheriff Griffin said tonight he believed the fight between the white boys and Negroes led to the lynching of Thomas "but I don't know why they killed Marshall."

His investigations, he said, brought threats that he would be killed if he got "too nosey."

"But I'm not afraid of them," the south Georgian said tonight. "They haven't got the nerve to shoot me in the day time, but they may try to bushwhack me at night."

"Anyhow," said Sheriff Griffin, "I'm going to keep investigating."

Alleged Mob Leader Paroled by Governor

Constitution

Major Brown, who in 1925 pleaded guilty to a charge of murder after he is alleged to have led a mob which lynched a white man accused of murdering a woman and a child, Wednesday was paroled by Governor Eugene Talmadge.

11-9-33

The paroling of Brown, who had served more than eight years in prison, ends one of the most noted cases in Georgia's history. With a group of other men, Brown, it was charged, took the alleged murderer, Dave Wright, from the Coffee county jail and lynched him after he had been indicted for the murders.

Atlanta Ga

All members of the mob were indicted for murder, but only Brown pleaded guilty. Twelve others went to trial and agreed to a consent verdict convicting them of mob violence. They were given terms of from one to three years and have long since completed their sentences.

Brown is said to be one of the few men ever given a life term as the result of a lynching.

Convicted Lyncher Is Granted Parole

Telegraph

X

ATLANTA, Nov. 8 (AP) — Major Brown, serving a life sentence for taking part in the lynching of a white man in Coffee county in 1925, was paroled today by Governor Talmadge.

11-9-33

Dave Wright was taken from the county jail and lynched after being indicted for the murder of a woman, the record of his clemency application showed.

Macon Ga.

All others convicted in the case already have been freed.

Lynchings - 1933

Legal Punishment for Lynchers.

Honolulu, Hawaii.

4113

Massie Case Suspect Admits Third Assault

Constitution

HONOLULU, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Henry Chang, one of four men awaiting a second trial on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, pleaded guilty today to a charge involving a sex crime and faced the possibility of being made to serve a 15-year sentence for a third similar offense for which he was paroled. 2-5-33

Although territorial and Honolulu officials declined to comment, it was learned authorities planned to nolle prosse the Massie case against the four defendants today.

Atlanta Ga.

Chang, a Chinese, admitted improper relations with a girl under 16 years old. District Judge Francis Brooks fixed Chang's bond at $50 and deferred sentence until February 11. He said he would refer the case to the parole board.

Chang was one of a group of youths convicted in 1928 of criminally assaulting a Chinese girl of the Kaluwela school. For this he was sentenced to the maximum term of 15 years. He still is under parole for this offense and the board of paroles may order him to serve the entire term.

Lynch 'Em; Then Try 'Em

Joseph Kahahawai, hapless victim of the Thomas H. Massie "honor killing," might have looked down from some spirit world with a good deal of interest last week when a Honolulu circuit court found that all the evidence upon which he was violently wiped off this mundane sphere, was wrong.

Even Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley recommended his dismissal on the grounds that there was no substantiation of the testimony given by Mrs. Massie upon which her husband and mother took the law into their own hands and shot Kahahawai to death. But the Honolulu court's decision won't start the blood to flowing in the Hawaiian's body nor give him the God-given right to live again.

With the determination on the part of Mrs. Massie to keep herself "vindicated," the truth about that mysterious night when she left her husband and a party in the Honolulu night club to stroll down a lonely street, may never come to light. News dispatches quote her as saying now that the recent decision was the result of a "deal" she made with the authorities to leave the island and drop the prosecution.

That a woman could make a "deal" which involved a record on her honor and which would vindicate the men she said attacked her leaves a lot of room for thinking as to whether the evidence with which she fired the Southern justice of her husband, was not also something in the nature of a "deal" and a raw one at that.

END OF MASSIE CASE.

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, central figure in a series of scandals in Honolulu, should advise her that the less she says the better, relative to the dropping of charges against the surviving four of five men whom she accused of criminally assaulting her in September, 1931.

Age

2-25-33

New York

Mrs. Massie's statement that she made a deal with the authorities to leave the islands and drop the prosecution in order to save her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie of the U. S. Navy, from jail for the slaying of Joseph Kakahawai, one of the five natives implicated in the cordid affair, is not convincing when it is recalled that she precipitately left Honolulu, aided by Navy men, who did all in their power to thwart the civil officials in serving papers on her and compelling her to prosecute the men under indictment. If Mrs. Massie had made a deal with the prosecution why did she make so spectacular and undignified an exit?

Prosecutor John C. Kelley, who distinguished himself by doing his sworn duty and refusing to be bulldozed and influenced by the Navy clique, refers to Mrs. Massie's statement as "bunk," and says she hurriedly left Honolulu on the advice of her lawyer, Clarence Darrow. Attorney General Harry Hewitt emphatically denies knowledge of any such "deal."

The fair-minded section of the public is more apt to believe Messrs. Kelley and Hewitt. Certainly it cannot be said that Mrs. Massie has made an enviable reputation for veracity, much of what she has said by way of explanation having failed of substantiation. The report of J. C. Frazier, a Pinkerton operator, upon which Mr. Kelley based his reason for moving to nolle prosse the four indictments, referred to the fact that at the time the complaining witness alleged she was assaulted she was wearing a green evening gown of frail material and evening slippers. Yet a careful examination of this dress and other articles of apparel worn by her failed to show any evidence of an attack, such as she described, the garments being in perfect condition, neither rumpled nor torn.

The Pinkerton operator concluded his report by saying:

> "Our investigation embraced a careful examination of the alibi of the accused, and we failed to discover any important circumstances disproving in any manner any portion of the statement which they (the defendants) made immediately upon their arrest. In other words, the movements of the accused on the night of the alleged assault remain precisely as they were originally accounted for.
>
> "The testimony of Mrs. Massie at the trial of the accused with respect to her opportunities to see and identify them while in their control and the apparent close and careful observation which she took of these details in view of her lack of knowledge of these same important details when interviewed by numerous persons immediately after the alleged assault, must of necessity give rise to grave doubt as to the accuracy of any of her statements with reference to the accused."

Ben Ahakuelo, Henry Chang, Horace Ida and David Takai have been exonerated and freed. Mrs. Massie's reputation for truth and veracity has been badly damaged. Joseph Kakahawaii is dead. Lieutenant Massie, Mrs. Fortescue and the two enlisted men charged with murdering him are enjoying their liberty, having been convicted and freed after an hour's imprisonment. Though officially branded as a murderer, Lieutenant Massie is still in the service. For the honor of the Navy and white womanhood must be upheld at any cost.

AN ECHO OF THE MASSIE CASE

Courier 6-3-33

Pittsburgh Pa

EVER since the celebrated Massie lynch-murder case in Honolulu, which offered our leading white people and their press an enviable opportunity to vent their race prejudice, a [illegible] has been afoot to appoint a governor for the territory from the Mainland. The officers of the army and navy, and certain hypocritical politicians, have been behind the movement, their ultimate object being to deprive the residents of Hawaii of territorial status. The vast majority of these American citizens are brown and yellow people; less than 20,000 are white. Each year the darker peoples are assuming a larger control of the government. During the Massie case the Ku Klux interests in this country were distressed because the majority of the Massie jurors were not white, while officials there were disposed to consider the evidence in the case rather than white supremacy.

It is regrettable that President Roosevelt has apparently yielded to the importunities of these sinister interests and in a brief special message asked for "suitable legislation temporarily suspending that part of the law which requires the Governor of Hawaii to be an actual resident of the islands," on the ground that it is "particularly necessary to select . . . a man of experience and vision who will be regarded by all citizens of the islands as one who will be absolutely impartial in his decisions on matters as to which there may be a difference of local opinion."

Ever since Hawaii became an American territory, the Governors have all been Hawaiian residents and perfectly satisfactory to the people of Hawaii and the various Presidents. If suitable Governors could be found in the past, why is it supposed difficulty will be experienced in the future? Although the present Governor leaned over backwards in whitewashing the Massie murder gang, it is apparent that the enemies of Hawaii are not satisfied. They evidently want to be sure future governors will see eye to eye with the majority opinion on the mainland regardless of justice.

Hawaii is the one place under the Stars and Stripes where there is no discernible color prejudice. This is due to its traditions, its overwhelming colored population and the fact that the leading white families are intermarried with the natives. A governor selected from among the residents is far more likely to reflect the opinion of his neighbors than that of Mississippi, Texas and Georgia.

We have supported every progressive act of the President and have urged Congress to do likewise, but we hope that in this case it will not pass the requested legislation.

MASSIE CASE NOT DEAD, BUT JUDD PREFERS SILENCE

Courier 9-2-33

Pittsburgh Pa.

By LANGSTON HUGHES
(The Famous Poet for ANP)

HONOLULU, August 24—Governor Lawrence M. Judd, when I interviewed him at the Palace last week for the Associated Negro Press, refused point blank to discuss the recent Massie case that last year held the front pages of the American papers. Gov. Judd said, "Young man, I do not discuss the Massie case. It is dead and buried, as far as I am concerned. I do not want to be a factor in disinterring the bones."

When I called the governor's attention to the great interest which this case held for thousands of readers of Negro papers I represented, Gov. Judd interposed, "No good purpose can be done either Hawaii or the Union by discussing it any further." The subject was closed.

It will be recalled that Governor Judd, although Mr. Massie and his friends in spite of Clarence Darrow's eloquence had been convicted of the murder of a Hawaiian youth, granted them a pardon within an hour after sentence had been passed. The room in which I interviewed the governor adjoined the chamber where the Massies had chatted with friends and reporters while waiting for the pardon which they were certain had been prepared for them.

Before the Massie case the Hawaiian Islands were considered by many observers as an excellent example of practical inter-racial harmony and good will. Natives, orientals and whites lived side by side without friction. Neighborliness and peace were prevalent. Now this state of friendliness is sadly altered. The Massie case brought sharply to the fore all the domineering characteristics of the whites, creating a violent gulf between them and the darker residents of the Islands that will take years, if ever, to mend. The whites—only some 45,000 in a population of 380,000 are determined to exercise pronounced domination over Hawaii. To that end they have recently, among other steps, begun to "Nordicize" the police department. The Hawaiian chief and other native officials have lately been replaced by whites for the first time in the history of the islands.

Sensible and leading citizens of Hawaii, of all races greatly regret the Massie incident. But most residents of prominence, white or colored, are extremely reticent in speaking of the case to strangers. An opinion, one way or the other, might prove dangerous to one's personal and political well-being today. It is not difficult to sense, however, behind their non-committal silence newly awakened hatreds and fears that had once been almost put to sleep in thes eislands where for generations Hawaiians, Japanese, Chinese, Negroes, Portugese and whites have lived as friends. It took a crude and lying little Southern white woman to awaken the sleeping dogs of race-hatred that, now, even the Nordics wish she had let lie.

The Massie case may be dead and buried, as the governor says, but the bones still stink—even under ground. One has only to step ashore at Honolulu to smell them.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Honolulu, Hawaii.

4114

Pinkerton Detective Report Discredits Woman's Story

Defender 2-18-33
Chicago, Ill.

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Feb. 17.—The notorious Massie case has come to a close. It ended officially Monday when Circuit Judge Charles Davis signed the papers releasing from custody four Hawaiians who had been held for more than a year, charged with having assaulted Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie of the United States navy.

Judge Davis' action was based upon a recommendation made to him by John C. Kelly, public prosecutor, and Mr. Kelly was moved to this act by a report submitted by the Pinkerton Detective agency in which it was pointed out that there was too many discrepancies in Mrs. Massie's statements to warrant further prosecution of the Hawaiians.

The Massie case has been one of the sensations of the past two years. It has carried along in its sweep an assault, an alleged rape, a lynching, two court trials, all sorts of appeals to race prejudice and numerous inflammatory articles in American newspapers and periodicals against Hawaii. It started in the fall of 1931 when Mrs. Massie, after a hilarious night at Ala Wai inn near Honolulu, stumbled into her home with a fractured jaw and reported that she had been beaten and raped by some Hawaiians.

Whites Indignant

Immediately the indignation of white Americans in Honolulu was aroused and a clamor went up for revenge. Mrs. Massie's word was taken on its face value, and little if any effort was made to ascertain the truth of all her charges. In the course of a few days, five men, Hawaiians, one Chinese and two Japanese, were arrested. Mrs. Massie identified them as the ones who had attacked her, but the jury, after deliberating 97 hours in the case of Joseph Kahahawai, a Hawaiian, and the first one tried, disagreed. Kahahawai and the other defendants, Ben Ahakuelo, Henry Chang, Horace Ida and David Takai, were freed on bail.

Early in 1932 Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie and wife of a major in the United States army, journeyed to Hawaii and very shortly thereafter took an active part in a lynch party in which Kahahawai was the victim. The Hawaiian's body was discovered in an automobile in which were riding Mrs. Fortescue, Massie and two naval enlisted men. They were charged with manslaughter and tried by the Hawaiian court. Prosecutor Kelly, a Harvard graduate, acted for the government while Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago criminal lawyer, journeyed to this city to defend the white people, using a plea to race hatred for his defense.

Massie Found Guilty

After a stormy trial, in which the press of America joined, urging that the defendants be acquitted, the jury returned its verdict of guilty and the defendants were sentenced to 10 years in prison. But Governor Judd commuted their sentences to one hour and allowed them to serve this as his guests. In the meantime, the four other men were awaiting their second trial on Mrs. Massie's charge.

It was in answer to the criticisms of American white people and the American press that Governor Judd called the Pinkerton detectives into the case. For several months they investigated secretly, checking up on Mrs. Massie's statement and on the statements brought out at the trial. Their findings, which have resulted in the dismissal of the charges against the four men, are substantially:

1. That there is no evidence that Mrs. Massie ever was raped.
2. That, if she was raped, there never was a complete identification of the men charged with the crime.
3. That, although Mrs. Massie was known to have been in a drinking party at the inn out from Honolulu on the night of the alleged attack, there are no witnesses to the alleged rape, or was there anyone to check up on her movements between the hours she was last seen at the inn and the time she appeared at her home.
4. That Mrs. Massie, unintentionally or deliberately failed to tell all she knew about the assault when she first reported the case to her husband and to the police.

Prosecutor Kelly, in summing up his report to the judge said: "The evidence adduced at the criminal assault trial was such that it is not surprising that a verdict of conviction was not obtained, and in view of the fact that the subsequent investigations have uncovered no additional evidence, there is certainly no more likelihood that a conviction can be obtained at another trial."

Lieutenant Massie still has his commission in the United States navy, in spite of his conviction, and is attached to the battleship New Mexico which is now in the Philadelphia navy yard.

CHARGES DROPPED IN MASSIE ATTACK

Four Defendants Freed in Honolulu Assault on American's Wife.

Constitution
2-14-33
Atlanta, Ga.

By WILLIAM H. EWING.

HONOLULU, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The finale of a case which shook Hawaii to its social and governmental foundations was written today when charges against four men of mixed blood accused of criminally attacking Mrs. Thalia Massie, bride of a naval officer, were dropped at the request of the prosecution.

A nolle prosequi, or discontinuance, was noted in the case, freeing the four men who had been held under bond more than a year and clearing, so far as the prosecution is concerned, the name of another, Joseph Kahahawai, who was kidnaped and slain.

Abducted by Mrs. Massie's mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her husband, Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, and two enlisted men of the navy, Kahahawai was shot to death by Massie.

In requesting dismissal of the charges, John C. Kelley, public prosecutor, whose fiery work led to the conviction of Mrs. Fortescue and the three navy men on charges of manslaughter, made public the report of a private detective agency saying an investigation had failed to substantiate Mrs. Massie's identification of Kahahawai and the others as her assailants.

The investigation was made at the instance of Governor Lawrence M. Judd and other authorities.

Three minutes in court put an end to the case which had been pending since September, 1931.

Circuit Judge Charles Davis stopped proceedings in another trial, glanced at a typewritten brief which Kelley handed him and ordered the discharge of the living defendants, Ben Ahakuelo, Henry Chang, Horace Ida and David Takai.

The territorial board is considering charges of another sex crime against Chang to decide whether he shall serve the remainder of a 15-year sentence for criminal assault imposed in 1929 and from which he was paroled after serving six months.

In the brief which Kelley submitted in support of dismissal he said an analysis revealed several weaknesses in the prosecution's case against the men accused by Mrs. Massie.

Defender
2-4-33
Chicago

And so Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, wife of a lieutenant in the United States navy, was not raped at all! More than a year after four men were arrested in Hawaii, tried for rape and assault, freed when a jury could not agree on a verdict, rearrested and thrown in jail—more than a year after Lieutenant Massie, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, his wife's mother, and a naval enlisted man took the law into their hands and conducted a private lynching party in Honolulu in the approved Dixie fashion—more than a year after they were arrested, tried for the crime of murder, sentenced to 10 years and freed after an hour—more than a year after all this has happened, authorities in Hawaii make public a report of the Pinkerton Detective agency which routs the story told by Mrs. Massie that she had been raped!

More than a year after all these things happened, the four defendants who had been in jail were freed and the charges against them dropped.

So the question now arises, What will the United States navy do about Massie? Even if his wife had been raped by native Hawaiians he was not justified in lynching a human being. He was especially wrong in taking the law into his hands while wearing the uniform of a naval officer. But American newspapers—American opinion—American bunk about the sanctity of womanhood (white womanhood)—all these contributed to the Massies and Mrs. Fortescue's return to America as national heroes and heroines after their lynching and their trial in Hawaii.

It didn't matter that one law had been violated by an officer of the navy—he had done it to avenge the honor of his wife—a white woman. Now it comes to light that there was more to the case than ever came out in court. Mrs. Massie, it appears in the report of the Pinkerton Detective agency, had been to some sort of night club near Honolulu and had engaged in a drinking spree. Where she went between the time she was last seen by friends and the time she turned up with a fractured jaw there was only her word to say. Yet on her word five men were arrested and tried, and one was lynched.

What, we ask again, is the United States navy going to do about Massie? We say he ought to be kicked out in disgrace! He ought to be ordered to turn in his uniform and get in line with the other members of the army of unemployed. He has no right to wear

THE END OF THE MASSIE CASE

THE infamous Massie case is closed. The surviving four of the five men accused of raping Mrs. Massie have been freed after the report of the Pinkerton detective agency discredited Mrs. Massie. It is unlikely that any of the professional advocates of white supremacy and Nordic morality will ask for a reopening of the case.

Courier 2-25-33

Pittsburgh Pa

One innocent Hawaiian has been murdered callously, cruelly, coldly. His four white murderers, their guilt established beyond doubt, have been pardoned in obedience to the orders of our government officials, which has thus placed the seal of official approval upon lynching. Lieutenant Massie, who admitted firing the fatal shot that ended the earthly existence of an innocent man, is still an "officer and a gentleman" in the United States Navy, with full citizenship restored. The Honolulu police and Hawaiian justice have been vindicated. The American ruling and governing class and its journalistic spokesman, who cried like Georgia crackers for execution of the alleged rapists and clemency for the four white lynchers, stand discredited and disgraced. Believers in justice, tolerance and the orderly, unbiased administration of law and order everywhere will rejoice.

In connection with the Massie case, the most tragic figure is Clarence Darrow. Old, his fortune probably wrecked by the slump, and his law practice none too lucrative, the noted advocate of tolerance, cosmopolitanism and unfettered thinking, turned about face and, with pathetic eagerness, seized the opportunity to recoup his fortune by defending four lynchers of an innocent young man.

Clarence Darrow could offer no adequate defense, because there was none. He pulled out all of the stops on the emotions and pumped for all he was worth, but nothing came forth except an insignificant squeak. He was glad when it was all over, because he knew he was on the wrong side. It was uncomfortable, because he had always before been on the right side. His recent article on the Massie case in Scribner's Magazine was a pathetically weak apologia based on unwarranted assumptions that would have shamed a fledgling law student.

Poor old Darrow! And yet we must not forget the mighty blows he has struck for human freedom. We must not forget his valient defense in the Sweet case and his wonderful victory. Although we cannot forget his defense of Kahahawai's murderers, we must not hide the fact that he has fought well at times for us.

And the next time a Nordic lady cries "Rape!" and accuses four men, we would advise her to tear more clothing than one stocking and to at least rumple her evening dress. the uniform and the badge of authority in the service of this country! And we want to know what is going to be done about him.

Our navy is not the democratic institution it should be—all of us know that. It is far from representative of the people who support it. But heretofore it has at least made a pretense of being honorable, just and fair. Heretofore we could not with certainty point to the navy and say it harbors one who has disgraced the flag. We might suspect it, but we could not say it. About Massie, we say it openly. He has disgraced the flag of this country by his lynch activities in Hawaii. Now that there is no shred of justification for his conduct we call upon the authorities to take action in his case!

Kentucky.

4115

X

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

KENTUCKY JAILER REMOVED

Would that the governor of every state had the stamina and legal backing of Governor Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky who removed a jailer because he permitted a mob to remove a prisoner from the jail and lynch him. Such summary punishment would cause sheriffs and others to lend more protection to prisoners and not fall so easily (?) when they are appealed to by a mob. The account states:

Curt Jones, Caldwell county jailer, today was removed from office by Governor Ruby Laffoon on grounds that he permitted a mob to remove a prisoner from the jail. Walter Merrick, 48, farmer, was lynched a year ago by a mob. Lynching of any prisoner, declared Gov. Laffoon, is prima facie evidence under Kentucky law of neglect of duty on the part of the jailer. Citizens of Caldwell county and the American Civil Liberties Union had petitioned for Jones' dismissal.

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL
MAY 19 1933

AT LAST THE GOVERNOR ACTS

Within two weeks of the first anniversary of the lynching and after attracting nation-wide attention, Governor Laffoon, by removing the jailer of Caldwell County, has complied with the statute requiring him to oust a peace officer from whom a mob has taken a prisoner. On June 1, 1932, a man, charged neither with murder nor rape, was taken from the jail at Princeton and lynched. Governor Laffoon had knowledge of the affair; for he announced that he would not investigate but abide by the action of the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury took no action, neither did the Governor.

The Courier-Journal last August referred to the mandatory character of the statute. The American Civil Liberties Union heeded the statement, if the Governor did not. Its headquarters in New York asked for the number of the section referred to and engaged an attorney to present the case before Governor Laffoon. Then he acted.

Meanwhile, of course, the National anti-lynching organization and the Tuskegee statistician had this Kentucky lynching listed as one in which the State authorities refrained from acting. Yet this statute is a direct mandate of the people of Kentucky. It was enacted at the first session following the adoption of a constitutional amendment designed to prevent lynchings. The purpose was to throw the burden of proof on an officer whose prisoner is taken from him to show that he couldn't prevent it. The statute pre-supposes that an officer will defend his prisoner with his life. It permits one excuse for surrendering a prisoner, literally being over-powered by physical force, not merely intimidated.

Having forced Executive action, it would not be like the American Civil Liberties Union to forget the incident. It can be depended upon to stand by and produce all the facts of the lynching. The Governor is the judge of the valor with which the officer defended his prisoner. He already has put Kentucky in a bad light, contrary to the will of Kentuckians as expressed in their Constitution. He is going to perform this Executive function in view of the whole Nation.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.
VINDICATOR
MAY 22 1933

Loss of Office for Neglect

Governor Laffoon of Kentucky has exercised the authority given him by a statute and removed from office a jailer from whom a prisoner was taken a year ago and lynched. Jailers in that state are elected by popular vote, and their office is different from that of sheriff.

There is no explanation of the delay of a year in enforcing a statute which provides that any jailer whose prisoner is taken from him and lynched shall be promptly removed from office, but the removal of the Caldwell County jailer will serve as notice in all the counties that letting a prisoner be taken from custody and lynched is proof on the face of neglect of duty.

Some states in the South, where lynchings were of common occurance, provided for removal of officers from whom prisoners were taken by lynching mobs. Since then there has been shown on some occasions remarkable courage upon the part of officers to face determined mobs and protect prisoners. It is no longer presumed to be politically perilous to resist a mob to the injury of any member.

An Ohio paper, commenting upon the action of the Kentucky Governor, suggests that "laws making the taxpayers of counties in which lynchings occur, liable for damages to dependents of persons lynched might tip the scales of public opinion, meanwhile, in favor of the lawful way of dealing with accused men." Thirty years or more ago, a lynching in the southwestern part of the state was followed by such legislation at Columbus. It was some years after the law became effective that a county faced a demand for damages. Making the counties liable had the desired effect, for since then care has been taken to let laws take their course.

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL
MAY 14 1933

THE GOVERNOR AND THE MERRICK LYNCHING

To the Editor of The Courier-Journal.

Former Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, in his lectures on the common law, says that the law must express the prevailing sentiment of the community. The sentiment in Kentucky is against lynching and for the removal of any officer who permits a mob to take a prisoner from their custody and lynch him, as indicated by the people voting an amendment to the Constitution in 1919 authorizing the Legislature to enact a law providing for the removal of such delinquent officials. Fourteen years after the people of Kentucky voted this amendment to the Constitution, Governor Laffoon introduces resolutions at a meeting of the Kentucky branch, Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching, in Louisville, "calling upon our public officials, Sheriffs, the people of the State, the church, the press, social and civic groups so to aid us in building up public opinion that Kentucky in the future may stand guiltless in the eyes of the other States and the Nations of the world."

I was so in sympathy with Governor Laffoon's resolutions and efforts to build up public opinion against lynching, that I obtained the necessary affidavits that are required by law showing reasons why he should remove the Caldwell County jailer from office for permitting a mob to take Walter Merrick from his jail and lynching him June 1, 1932, and the American Civil Liberties Union prepared and presented a petition to Governor Laffoon based on the facts of these affidavits and requested him to remove the local jailer. I feel that I have complied with the law by backing these charges with facts, and now it remains for Governor Laffoon to give practical expression to his desire "that Kentucky follow legal procedure."

I heartily agree with Governor Laffoon when he says, "a community where the mob spirit rules is uneasy." The citizens of this county do feel uneasy since mob murder is taken so lightly by the law-enforcing officers, and the Governor has completely ignored the law in the face of facts and permits the Caldwell County jailer to remain in office. Governor Laffoon's resolutions sound good on paper to those who are not acquainted with the facts of the lynching of Merrick, but we who know the facts of conditions consider it a very pitiful gesture towards "covering up" and an inadequate substitute for official action.

In his resolutions he said: "The right of trial by jury is our greatest heritage under the constitution. There is no greater crime against society than removal of that right." I wish to call his attention to the fact that Merrick was denied his constitutional and civil rights when a mob took him from the Princeton jail without any resistance whatever being offered by the jailer and law enforcing officers, yet no arrests have been made and neither has the Governor made an official public inquiry of the jailer's conduct. Since the local authorities have been unable to find a single clue that would enable them to solve the mystery of the Merrick lynching, it appears that it was a phantom mob that committed the crime. The court records show that the Caldwell County Jail has been visited four times by phantom mobs since 1890. The first was October 2, 1890; the second was October 15, 1894; the third, June 4, 1915, and the fourth was Walter Merrick, June 1, 1932. All of these mobs completely vanished immediately after lynching their victims, leaving no clues whatever and no one has ever been arrested for participating in these outrages.

"Of course, mob violence is a serious thing, but no more serious than violation of any other law." For the action of the Caldwell County authorities indicates that it is a more serious violation of law to bomb a strong politician's general merchandise store, for Merrick was arrested, indicted and sent to his death cell on this charge because he could not execute a $5,000 bond. The same court that held Merrick in jail in default of a $5,000 bond offered to release a first-degree murderer since then on a $2,000 bond. The local authorities, according to the financial report of Caldwell County, published in the Caldwell County Times, January 28, 1933, found it necessary to spend $161.52 on the investigation of the bombing of the storehouse; the arrest and indictment of Merrick, while nothing was listed as being spent upon the investigation of the lynching of Merrick. The actions of the officers in these cases is consistent with the theory of Locke, one of the greatest philosophers, who once said, "Where there is no property, there is no injustice."

Merrick was indicted for "willfully exploding an explosive substance under a house," and one of the attorneys that prosecuted Merrick in his examining trial on March 24, 1932, filed suit for P'Pool, the owner of the store, against the Home Insurance Company for $2,700 January 13, 1933, claiming that the store was completely destroyed by fire. If the store was destroyed by fire, as P'Pool claims it was in his petition filed with the Caldwell County Circuit Court Clerk, then Merrick was falsely indicted. It is assumed that P'Pool should know what occurred, for he was in the store at the time it was destroyed and the "fire" fractured his skull and leg.

Governor Laffoon knows these facts, yet he calls upon the people of the State and the press to help build up public opinion against lynching. Since Governor Laffoon has asked the press to help build up public opinion, I am sure that The Courier-Journal is willing to assist him, for I am backing these statements with affidavits and court records. It is my opinion that the next time the Kentucky Branch, Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching, has a meeting in Louisville, Governor Laffoon won't see fit to dominate it and introduce the resolutions condemning lynching, but will remain in Frankfort and "let George do it." If Governor Laffoon doesn't see fit to oust the local jailer on the charges preferred against him, it is quite possible that he can be prevailed upon to add the Caldwell County jailer to his staff of Colonels. JOHN W. TAYLOR.

Princeton, Ky.

Louisiana.

4116

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Parish Officials Probe Lynching

Advertiser

2-21-33

Montgomery, Ala.

RINGGOLD, LA., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Parish officials investigating the lynching of Nelson Nash, 24-year-old Leesville negro, following the slaying of a bank cashier and an attempted assault on the cashier's wife, said today a thorough inquiry was being made but no arrests had been ordered.

Coroner J. L. Wade of Arcadia, and Sheriff Henderson Jordan of Bienville Parish, came here today to conduct an inquest and to question local residents.

The negro was alleged to have confessed before he was taken from officers by several score citizens that he had abducted J. P. Bachelor, 50, cashier of the Ringgold bank, and Mrs. Bachelor, and had forced them in their night clothing to accompany him to the bank, where he planned to rifle the vault.

When Bachelor said he could not open the vault, the couple were taken into the suburbs where Bachelor was beaten to death while trying to prevent an assault on his wife. Nash was arrested several hours later and then seized by citizens who hanged him to a tree and riddled his body with with pistol shot.

Mrs. Bachelor was reported in a state of collapse today.

Lynchings-1933
&
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4117

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN

JAN 1 1933

WHAT ABOUT LYNCHINGS?

It is more than a year since a Wicomico county mob lynched a Negro on the Court House green at Salisbury and cremated his body in the presence of thousands of onlookers. Nothing has been done in the intervening months to redress that heinous crime. There have been no indictments, no prosecutions.

Indictments and prosecutions have been lacking because the machinery of law enforcement broke down. Local prosecuting officers worked on the case. Governor Ritchie designated Attorney-General Lane to assist. There was an investigation before the Wicomico grand jury. Yet at the end of all the effort the grand jury was forced to report that it found "absolutely no evidence that can remotely connect anyone with the instigation or perpetration of the murder." This report represented a confession of legal helplessness, an admission that the law could do nothing in the presence of the most bestial crime of its character in the recent history of Maryland.

The collapse of the machinery of law enforcement ought to be a matter of the most serious concern during the session of the Legislature to begin this week. One of the first duties of the session ought to be a careful appraisal of the disabilities under which State and local officers, particularly the former, labor in the presence of the crime of lynching. One of the first objectives ought to be the consideration of measures to relieve those disabilities and to equip the authorities to deal with emergencies such as that which confronted the State in December, 1931.

Other States have pointed a way in this direction which Maryland might appropriately follow. Virginia, the pioneer Southern State, enacted an anti-lynching law in 1928, which made all participants in a lynching guilty of murder and which placed responsibility for the investigation and prosecution of lynching cases on the State's Attorney-General. Nebraska passed a law in 1927 which makes a county liable in the sum of $1,000 to the legal representative of any mob victim, and authorized the county to recover such sum from the members of the mob itself. The adaptability of these measures to the Maryland constitutional system needs to be thoroughly and sympathetically explored.

Consideration might also be wisely extended to some provision for the compulsory removal to another jurisdiction of all Negro prisoners accused of capital offenses against white persons, in order that the danger of mob violence might be reduced at the very inception of a difficult case. The propriety of empowering the Governor to offer a reward for evidence leading to the apprehension or conviction of members of a mob would also seem to require the most careful study. Had it been possible to offer a reward in the Salisbury case the State might have surmounted the serious obstacles in the way of securing evidence.

The first line of defense against a repetition of the Salisbury disgrace is, of course, an aroused public opinion. But legal remedies against the perpetrators of mob violence would serve to offset shortcomings in that quarter. A strengthening of the quite evident weaknesses in the present law would place weapons in the hands of officials who are now without power to act. A heavy obligation rests on Governor Ritchie and all members of the Legislature in this critical matter. It is for them to say whether Maryland shall be authorized to redress a disgraceful crime and redeem its own good name from the blots which a few irresponsible citizens may now create.

Ask Carolina Governor To Punish Lynchers

[illegible]

NEW YORK, Oct.—A request that Governor Ibra C. Blackwood of South Carolina and his attorney general aid the officials of Greenwood county in punishing the men accused of lynching Bennie Thompson at Ninety-Six, S. C., October 8, was sent Monday by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The letter said:

"The lynching at Ninety-Six has the distinction of being the first one on record in many years where one of the accused lynchers makes a plain public statement that the chief of police assisted the lynching party by leaving the jail door open so they could get the victim."

Judge Who Railroaded Euel Lee Appointed to 'Investigate' Lynching

10-23-33

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 23.—Governor Albert C. Ritchie indicated today he would appoint Judge Robert F. Duer, one of the main lynchers of George Armwood, to head the "investigation" into the lynching. He declared Judge Duer is the proper person to direct an investigation" of the lynching last Wednesday at Princess Anne "if he will do it."

Ritchie's proposal has evoked opposition even in the boss press, which considers it too crude to deceive the masses. The Baltimore Evening Sun states in an editorial "Not Judge Duer:"

"A judge who sits quietly in his home while the law is being trampled into the mud right outside his door is obviously not the judge to investigate the occurrence, since his own conduct is questionable."

It was Judge Duer who helped to railroad Euel Lee to a death sentence, denying him his constitutional right to a change of venue and the right to choose his own attorneys, until mass protest organized by the International Labor Defense compelled the removal.

Judge Duer is up for re-election.

RITCHIE IS BLAMED IN NEGRO'S DEATH

Telegraph

Investigation of Maryland Lynching Launched as Socialists Attack Officials

10-20-33

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19 (AP)—While investigations were launched today into last night's lynching in Princess Anne, a demand was made here for the impeachment of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

Macon, Ga

The demand came from the state committee of the Socialist party of Maryland in a special meeting. Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty."

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset county, and called for their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

Removal Criticized

The governor was criticised for having permitted the removal to Princess Anne from Baltimore of George Armwood, a Negro, held for assaulting an 81-year-old white farm woman.

"Apparently few people understand the governor's authority in such matters," said Ritchie when informed of the Socialists' resolution and the general criticism. "So I have asked the attorney general to set them straight.'

"Governor Ritchie had no authority in the matter," said Attorney General William Preston Lane, Jr., "as a matter of fact, under the Maryland law neither did the judge nor the state's attorney. There is just one individual responsible for the custody of a prisoner, just one individual that can order his removal, and that's the sheriff.

Governor Powerless

"All Governor Ritchie could do, in fact all anybody except Sheriff Luther Dougherty could do, was to advise the sheriff. And when Sheriff Dougherty came to Baltimore to get that prisoner, he was acting within his rights and neither the governor nor anyone else could stop him. The Maryland law does not give the governor as much authority as some other states.' '

Armwood was lynched by a mob that stormed the jail and overpowered state police. He was hung to a tree after being dragged behind an automobile through the town's main streets, and his gasoline-saturated nude body was burned in front of the court house.

The Negro was arrested Monday after the woman was attacked near her home in lower Somerset county. Police said Armwood confessed.

He was brought to Baltimore immediately after his arrest but after spending Tuesday in jail here was taken back to Princess Anne.

Assurance Given

In placing the blame on Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins for the lynching, Ritchie said the state's attorney had insisted that Armwood be returned to Somerset county and Judge Duer had assured him the Negro would be safe.

Neither Judge Duer or the state's attorney would comment on the governor's statement today.

At the same time the Socialists adopted their resolutions, Bernard Ades, attorney here for the Communistic International Labor Defense, said "if Governor Ritchie is sincere in his statement that responsibility rests not on him but on Judge Duer and Dr. Robins, let him order their arrest."

The governor today placed the investigation of the lynching in the hands of William Preston Lane, Jr., Maryland's attorney general.

MARYLAND LYNCH PROBE IS STARTED

Advertiser

Socialists Demand Impeachment Of Ritchie, Who Blames Judge, Attorney

10-20-33

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19—(AP)—While investigations were launched today into last night's lynching in Princess Anne, a demand was made here for the impeachment of Gov Albert C. Ritchie.

The demand came from the State committee of the Socialist party of Maryland in a special meeting. Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty."

Montgomery, Ala.

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Atty. John B. Robins, of Somerset County, and called for their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

The Governor was criticized for having permitted the removal to Princess Anne from Baltimore of George Armwood, negro, held for assaulting an 81-year-old white farm woman.

Armwood was lynched by a mob that stormed the jail and overpowed state police. He was hung to a tree after being dragged behind an automobile through the town's main streets, and his gasoline-saturated nude body was burned in front of the court house.

The negro was arrested Monday after Mrs. Mary Denston, the farm woman, was attacked near her home in lower Somerset County. Police said Armwood confessed.

He was brought to Baltimore immediately after his arrest but after spending Tuesday in jail here was taken back to Princess Anne.

In placing the blame on Judge Duer and State's Atty. Robins for the lynching, Ritchie said the State's attorney had insisted that Armwood be returned to Somerset County and Judge Duer had assured him the negro would be safe.

Neither Judge Duer or the State's attorney would comment on the governor's statement today.

At the same time the Socialists adopted their resolutions, Bernard Ades, attorney here for the Communistic International Labor Defense said "If Gov. Ritchie is sincere in his statement that responsibility rests not on him but on Judge Duer and Mr. Robins, let him order their arrest."

The Governor today placed the investigation of the lynching in the hands of William Preston Lane, Jr., Maryland's attorney general.

Conferences were held during the morning in Crisfield, 20 miles from Princess Anne, between State's Atty. Robins, Sheriff Luther Daugherty ,the State

MARYLAND BEGINS LYNCHING INQUIRY

Times

Governor Orders Action and Reiterates That Somerset Officials Are to Blame.

10-20-33

HIS IMPEACHMENT ASKED

New York, N. Y.

Socialists Make Demand—Roosevelt Intervention Is Urged by Negro Group.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—By order of Governor Ritchie an investigation was begun today into the lynching last night of George Armwood, Negro, and the wounding of thirteen State troopers by an infuriated mob of men and women at Princess Anne.

William Preston Lane, Attorney General of Maryland, was directed to conduct the inquiry.

State police have obtained the names of seven or eight of the lynching party. These men are under surveillance and their arrest will be ordered soon as the names of others implicated are learned.

Meanwhile, Magistrate Edgar Jones, acting coroner of Somerset County, impaneled a jury is preparation for an inquest.

Governor Ritchie placed upon Judge F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset County the responsibility for the Negro being at Princess Anne until the mob seibed him.

Governor Cites Advice.

The Governor said he had been ready yesterday afternoon to order Armwood's removal to Baltimore following rumors of impending trouble, but that he had been assured by Judge Duer and Mr. Robins that they believed the prisoner safe from attack.

Captain McK. Johnson, head of the State police, joined in the arguments which made him change his mind, the Governor said.

In a statement soon after the lynching Judge Duer said he had been depending upon the law abiding citizens of Princess Anne and vicinity to prevent any disorder.

He admitted he had been deceived into thinking there was no mob spirit in the area, but he blamed the actual lynching upon persons from outside the county.

When asked if he would take any steps to impeach the local authorities, Governor Ritchie said.

"I have no power to impeach any one. The Constitution of the State places the power of impeachment in the Legislature."

Accident Nearly Hangs Negro.

A Negro was nearly hanged by accident here today as a large number of Communists and members of the International Labor Defense assembled in City Hall Plaza to protest the lynching an the hanging of Euel Lee, convicted of an eastern shore murder two years ago. Governor Ritchie has set the Lee hanging for Oct. 27.

The Negro, his neck in a noose under an imitation gallows, was standing in a truck which was labeled "protest lynching of George Armwood."

Police were escorting the truck to the meeting place when it hit a bump in the pavement. The Negro lost his balance and for a moment gave a realistic exhibition of a hanging but was quickly set upon his feet.

Ritchie Impeachment Is Asked.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—A demand for the impeachment of Governor Ritchie was made today by the State committee of the Socialist party in a special meeting. Governor Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty" in the Armwood lynching.

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins of Somerset County.

"Apparently few people understand the Governor's authority in such matters," said Mr. Ritchie when informed of the Socialist resolution and the general criticism. "So I have asked the Attorney General to set them straight."

Attorney General Lane then commented:

"Governor Ritchie had no authority in the matter, as a matter of fact, under the Maryland law, neither did the judge nor the State's Attorney. There is just one individual responsible for the custody of a prisoner, just one individual that can order his removal, and that's the Sheriff."

By The Associated Press.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 19.—State's Attorney Robins was asked today if he had an answer to the governor's charge that he and Judge Duer were responsible for the Armwood lynching.

"I have nothing to say at this time," he answered.

police and the special force of officers sent from Baltimore.

State police said they had the names and addresses of three men, said to have been among the leaders in the mob. They said they had names of others who threw bricks, rocks and other missiles at the jail guard.

While the protests were being registered in Maryland against the action of State and county officials, Harlem, the center of New York's negro population, was the scene of several group demonstrations.

An appeal was sent to President Roosevelt by Walter White, secretary of the National association for the advancement of the colored people, asking him to instruct the attorney general "to proceed to the fullest extent with the law against lynchers."

Judge Duer said he could not say how the investigation ordered by the governor would be carried out.

"I intend to confer with my associates and until I have had an opportunity to do that there is nothing much I can say," he commented.

Protest Is Made to Roosevelt.

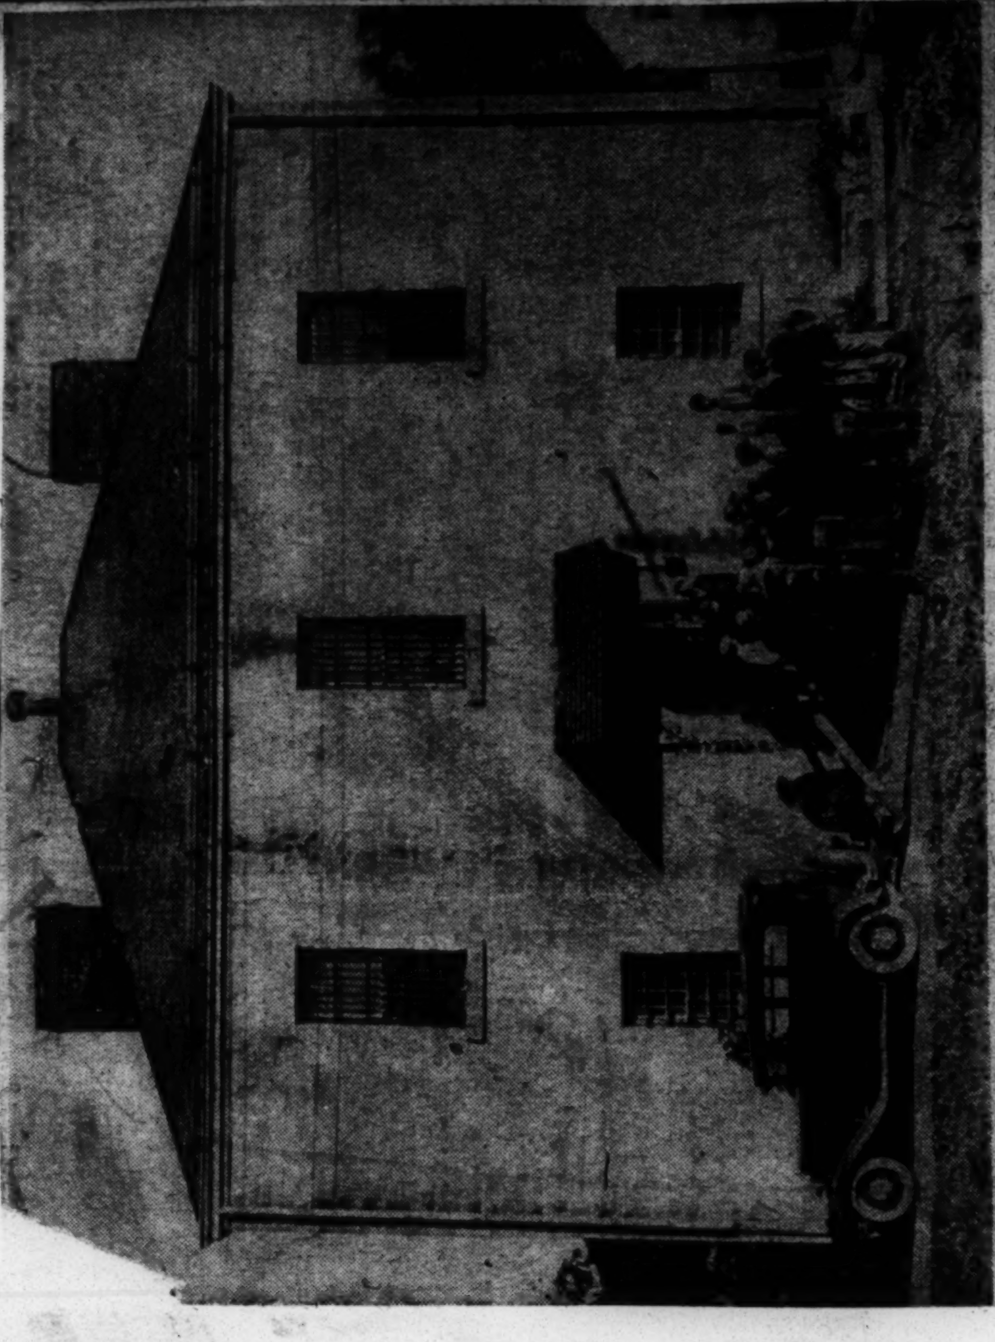
Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, at 69 Fifth Avenue, sent a telegram to President Roosevelt yesterday asking for Federal intervention to stop lynching and requesting the President to make a radio address against mob murders. The message was inspired by the Armwood lynching at Princess Anne.

Mr. White's tlegram said this was the twenty-first known lynching since Jan. 1.

"In ten months of 1933 more than twice as many mob murders have taken place than in all of last year, when ten occurred," the message said.

A statement by the League of Struggle for Negro Rights asked that leaders of the mob be arrested and demanded the removal from office of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robbins. Governor Ritchie was held responsible for the lynching for "refusing to have Armwood brought back to Baltimore before the Roman holiday."

A group of Negroes made a demonstration in Harlem before the offices of The Liberator, the newspaper published by the league.



Associated Press Photo.

MARYLAND JAIL FROM WHICH NEGRO WAS TAKEN BY MOB.

The Somerset County prison at Princess Anne, Md., from which George Armwood was dragged ou of his cell by a mob which later hanged him to a tree. One of the battering rams used by the mob to ope the jail can be seen in front of the door.

Lynchings - 1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4377

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
VENING PUBLIC LEDGER

NOV 29 1933

Salisbury Still Seething With Ire Against Ritchie After One-Day 'Civil War'

By HENRY O
Evening Ledger S

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 29.—I came back to Salisbury today and found rebellion still seething close beneath the surface.

Punched, mauled and driven out of town yesterday with a dozen or so other newspapermen by a crowd that howled for a lynching, I was told by the chief of police last night that it would not be safe for us to return.

But this morning the passions of the mob seemed to have subsided temporarily. Businessmen and people I met on the street expressed regret for the rough treatment accorded newspapermen yesterday after national guardsmen had battled their way out of town with four suspects in the George Armwood lynching.

Local residents blamed the attack on newspapermen on the general belief that Governor Albert C. Ritchie had been goaded into calling out the troops yesterday by the activity of Baltimore newspapers. It was freely stated that reporters from Baltimore would be "run out of town" whenever found, but men from other cities were assured a measure of safety.

Back Mob Activity

Despite these reflections from men in a calmer mood, the impression persisted that yesterday's outbreak of lawlessness had the support of practically all residents of the town.

The people one met on the streets, shop clerks and small business proprietors all expressed regret at the violence of the outbreak, but indorsed the attack upon the troops who snatched the four suspects without the formality of preferring charges from their homes in and near Princess Anne.

All joined likewise without hesitating in predicting a demonstration when the four men are returned to this section What its form will take depends upon whether or not guardsmen reappear upon the scene in connection with the case.

"What's the Governor think he is going to do about it?" was the question of a barber's helper. "He can't keep the troops here to make a show always. We pay for the troops, but we don't pay them to gas us to death. This isn't Russia. He'll find that out next election."

"Ritchie was just showing off to the grandstand," said an attorney. "legal process requires that the men be returned to the local jurisdiction. There is no power in the world that can remove the power of indictment from the Grand Jury of the county in which the crime was committed.

Hits Show of Force

"A Grand Jury might possibly have indicted some one for the so called lynching before the troops came. No Grand Jury will indict now. The silly show of force and asinine use of tear gas bombs blasted all possibility of getting any indictments returned.

"Ritchie's only hope of going through with his show would have been through declaration of martial law. Duel legal steps are required to induce a stage of martial law. Ritchie neglected to take these steps. That is the complete tip off that the arrest yesterday was all a fake."

Local lawyers are preparing to have witnesses on hand for the proceedings scheduled at 3 P. M. today before Judge Duer.

"We have no thought of asking bail," declared Henry Dashiell, attorney for William H. (Doc) Thompson, Princess Anne druggist and leading citizen, one of the four suspects arrested by the guardsmen yesterday.

"I am going to ask absolute freedom for my client. The supposed case falls flat against him. We have a wealth of evidence exonerating him from even the possibility of participation in the alleged lynching.

"I had an understanding with the Attorney General of the State. He told me he would arraign the men in Princess Anne when I met him at 6 A. M. yesterday preceding the arrest. He did not keep his agreement.

"Furthermore, I was unable to get in communication with him by telephone, being put off with claims he was in conference or could not be reached when I called him."

The residents of Salisbury, who have never been partial in a political way to Governor Ritchie, are particularly incensed because they feel they have been made innocent accessories to an occurrence in which they have no interest. They became involved when the troops sought refuge in the armory here with prisoners they arrested in neighboring Princess Anne County.

The citizenry here, aroused by statements issued by their legislators yesterday condemning the action of the Governor, have certainly not written finis to the one-day "civil war." Just what form their indignation will assume is problematical, but there is going to be some reprisal and reputable influential citizens are not mincing any words saying so.

If open hostilities do not break out again, it is freely predicted that vengeance will be wreaked upon the Governor next November, when he becomes candidate for his fifth term.

The outward calm reflected here today as the scene of action shifted to neighboring Princess Anne was in strong contrast to the violent scenes of yesterday.

I was one of twelve newspaper reporters and photographers trapped in the Wicomico Hotel here while hundreds of frenzied men from Salisbury and its environs shouted in the streets as they sought to fire the bulilding about our ears:

"Lynch the ——!"

"Kill the newspapermen!"

Two Maryland State troopers stood between us and that mob. Lack of active leadership in the crowd probably saved us as much as the presence of the two troopers.

Four of our number were beaten by frenzied men, who outnumbered us 100 to 1. Four of our automobiles were wrecked and fired. Half a dozen cameras were smashed.

I was attempting to find the identity of the owner of an automobile that had been overturned by the mob outside the armory when a man in hunting clothes stepped up and punched me in the stomach. I attempted to argue with him, but the crowd became threatening. I retreated to the hotel.

William I. Irving, the EVENING LEDGER photographer assigned with me, staggered in a moment later. His camera had been smashed to bits, the crowd seizing pieces of it as souvenirs, and he was backed against a wall, a big hand choking him, when some of the cooler heads in the crowd interceded for him.

Automobiles Destroyed

The other newspapermen also made for the hotel. Albert Nazdor of Baltimore, had been punched in the face and roughed up while he was trying to make a picture of the crowd. Automobiles belonging to George Waters and Fred Cole, of Washington, were destroyed by fire.

Mr. Waters also had been beaten by the crowd before he reached the hotel. There were two other automobiles belonging to the newspapermen that were burned by the mob, but I don't know who the owners were.

The management of the hotel gave us four rooms on the third floor, but we moved to a parlor on the eighth floor when the mob started to yell. We could hear them plainly: "Lynch the ——." "Kill the newspapermen."

Some of the hotel employes showed us how to reach the roof if we had to retreat further, but that wasn't necessary.

Burning Waste Thrown

At the height of the excitement, some of the men in the crowd threw burning wads of waste on the roof of a low shed attached to the hotel. Firemen were called to put out the flames.

Finally we were able to sneak out a side door, one at a time, and escaped in taxicabs to a bus office where seven of us assembled. We escaped from the town in the automobile of Mr. Irving. We tried to stop at Laurel, about eleven miles away, but there were some suspicious-looking men following us and we came on to Seaford.

We started back for Salisbury later, but we came to a point where three cars were lined up, blocking the road. We turned around, and the cars started after us. We had to travel at sixty-five miles an hour to get away from them.

Another group of Philadelphia newspapermen were chased out of town at a sixty-five-mile-an-hour clip in an automobile driven by George Mawhinney, Philadelphia Inquirer reporter. After they had driven fifteen miles they stopped to telephone, but were soon overtaken by a group of grim-faced men in five cars, who warned:

"We told you to scram, didn't we? Now scram."

Not until they had driven twenty miles more did they feel safe. Besides the automobiles burned and cameras smashed, an expensive truck equipped with newsreel apparatus was seized by the mobsters, overturned and wrecked.

Maryland

4119

Lynchings—1933 & Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

FOUR MEN ARE RELEASED BY COURT IN MARYLAND

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Nov. 29.—Four men suspected of lynching a negro were set free on habeas corpus writs today while the [illegible] packed the courthouse [illegible] over the grounds [illegible] wildly.

The prisoners, whose arrest yesterday brought on a battle between a mob and state police and national guardsmen, were freed by Judge Robert F. Duer for "insufficient evidence."

The men were brought here late today by Henry [illegible] Martin, veteran warden of the Baltimore city jail. Martin insisted on making the trip alone with the prisoners and he went unarmed.

Arrival of Martin and the four men was the signal for an ovation that increased as efforts were made to get the hearings under way.

Time after time, court attaches endeavored to quiet the crowd. Two of the prisoners mounted tables and pleaded for order.

Asks Quiet.

One of them, Irving Adkins, a special town officer, shouted: "So please be quiet so they can go ahead and let us free."

The crowd broke into another cheer and it was some moments before the hearing actually started.

The writs, granted after the prisoners were brought to Baltimore last night, were considered by Judge Duer, sitting with Chief Judge John R. Pattison, of Cambridge. [illegible] Judge Joseph L. Bailey, of Salisbury, sent word that he would not be present.

Maryland remained uneasy tonight however, as criticism was heaped on Governor Albert C. Ritchie, who sent national guardsmen into Salisbury to arrest the men yesterday.

Arrival of the guards yesterday started a battle in the streets, in which officers were forced to resort to tear-gas bombs.

The governor today reiterated that his action was the only course left open to him and he virtually washed his hands of the case in a lengthy telegram to State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset county, where the lynching and rioting occurred.

Evidence Procured.

"More than 10 days ago," the governor wired, "the attorney-general procured testimony which justified the arrest of a number of people for leadership in the Armwood lynching," and he urged State's Attorney Robins to arrest these men and hold them for the grand jury. The state's attorney refused to do so.

"The entire situation was fully presented to the three judges of the circuit, with the request that they appoint special counsel to represent the state. They have not done that.

"Since the local officials of Somerset county would not perform the constitutional duties imposed on them, it became my responsibility as governor of the state to exercise the authority conferred upon me by the law of this state for such an emergency and cause the men to be arrested through the agency of the national guard. . . .

"The men having been arrested, the responsibility of the local judicial machinery to proceed with the conduct of the charge is clean and inescapable."

Solons Divided.

Both houses of the Maryland legislature in special session rang with criticism and defense of the governor.

Representatives from the eastern

Constitution 11-30-33 Atlanta, Ga.

---

eral Roy McKittrick, "this office will assist and aid in the prosecution."

Sawyer was instructed to co-operate with the sheriff and the prosecuting attorney of Buchanan county "in obtaining the facts."

Held Unjustified.

Governor Park, who ordered out a national guard tank company last night in a vain attempt to save the negro from the mob of 8,000 which stormed the county jail and forced Sheriff Otto Theisen to surrender Warner, said in a statement today:

"Mob violence whether in punishment of crime or in attempt to obtain alleged civil rights is always wrong and destructive of good government. To condone such an offense is to encourage lawlessness, deny the efficiency of the courts and the power of constituted authority."

Quiet had returned to the city after the scenes of violence which ended in the hanging of the negro to a tree near the courthouse and the burning of his body before the eyes of thousands of shouting men, women and children. There had been no arrests tonight.

At the battered county jail gray-haired Sheriff Theisen, who capitulated to the mob after the steel jail door had been pulled off, said he had no other course but to turn the negro over to the lynchers. Tear-gas bombs had proved ineffectual in driving back the mob.

Did Best.

"I did everything I could to stop them," he reiterated. "We fought them even after they got inside the jail, but I saw it was of no use. I had nine negroes in jail and I was afraid the mob would lynch them, too. The crowd was wrecking everything in sight. Why, they wouldn't have left anything standing if I hadn't given in."

Many called at the sheriff's office to reassure him that he had done all that he could without causing bloodshed.

After seizing the negro, mob leaders dragged him out of the building and down a street and hanged him to the tree. They drenched his body with gasoline and built a fire under it. The rope soon burned and the body fell into the fire while hundreds pressed around.

Lynching of the negro followed his reported confession, later repudiated, that he had dragged a white girl of 21 into an alleyway and assaulted her Sunday night, leaving her tied with her own stockings. A long knife found at the scene led to Warner's arrest. Officers charged she was the second woman attacked by the negro youth.

SAN JOSE SHERIFF HINTS HE MAY IDENTIFY LYNCHERS

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 29.—(UP) Sheriff William J. Emig, who was injured when 5,000 citizens stormed the Santa Clara county jail Sunday and lynched two kidnap-slayers, intimated tonight that he knew the identity of some of the lynchers.

It was the first indication that any action might be forthcoming against leaders of the mob. The county grand jury met and organized today, but did not discuss the lynchings.

The mutilated bodies of the kidnapers, Thomas H. Thurmond, 28, and John M. Holmes, 29, were buried in Oak Hill cemetery today without incident.

Emig said he was convinced through a statement made by Thurmond just before the mob reached his cell that Thurmond and Holmes alone were implicated in the kidnaping and murder of Brooke L. Hart, 22, son of a wealthy San Jose family.

In opposition to statements from other sources, Emig held the riot and seizure to be deliberately planned.

"This was no crew of college boys, but a well-organized band," said Emig, propped up in bed at San Jose general hospital.

"My deputies and I saw them reconnoitering the jail for a week before the attempt was made.

"After the attack on the jail had begun, I considered moving my prisoners and looked around for a way out, but guards were posted at all four corners of the jail. Had there been a hundred doors I could not have gotten them out."

FOUR IN MARYLAND HELD AS LYNCHERS FREED BY COURT

Times

Warrants and Witnesses Are Ruled Lacking Against Men Seized by the Militia.

11-30-33

EASTERN SHORE JUBILANT

'New State' Talk Is Revived as Outcome Is Hailed as 'Victory Over Ritchie.'

MISSOURI INQUIRY BEGUN

Gov. Park Orders It Saying There Was 'No Justification' for Hanging of Negro.

Lynching Developments

Four men, arrested by Maryland National Guardsmen as members of a mob which lynched a Negro, were freed on writs of habeas corpus.

On orders of the Governor of Missouri an investigation was begun into the lynching of a Negro at St. Joseph.

A group of prominent Californians among them ex-President Hoover, issued a statement deploring the action of Governor Rolph in condoning the lynching of two kidnappers.

A Federal anti-lynching bill will be introduced at the next session of Congress, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced here. It also demanded the impeachment of Governor Rolph.

Maryland Suspects Are Freed.

By JAMES MacDONALD.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Nov. 29.—In a small court room charged with the emotions of hundreds of grim looking sympathizers, the four men arrested early yesterday by National Guardsmen in connection with the lynching of a Negro here last month were discharged late this afternoon.

Lack of warrants and witnesses was the ground.

The freeing of the men on habeas corpus writs after a ten-minute hearing was hailed by the citizenry as a victory over Governor Ritchie, under whose orders 300 steel-helmeted and fully armed members of the Fifth Maryland Regiment had combed this district, taken the men into custody and retired to Baltimore with them after a mob had tried to free them.

Although the discharge of the men helped to cool the inflamed feelings of farmers and townsmen in a dozen near-by counties, bitterness and resentment against high State officials remained.

'New State' Talk Revived.

One significant development of the whole case is that small town business men have revived the talk of forming a new State in the Union out of the eastern shore district, comprising Delaware, parts of Maryland and parts of Virginia. This proposal was first advocated by civic organizations five or six years ago.

Fully 2,000 people, most of them men who had dropped their farm chores or other workaday duties, flocked today to this hamlet, the seat of Somerset County and the scene of the lynching on Oct. 18 of George Armwood, a 24-year-old Negro, who had confessed to attacking an aged white woman.

On the surface, the crowd showed none of the riotous tendencies which had been given free rein in Salisbury, Wicomico County, before and after the departure of the military yesterday.

But there were smoldering feelings underneath, and vehement expressions were heard on every hand. Here and there the conviction was expressed that the four prisoners would certainly not spend another night in the Baltimore city jail as they did last night.

The tension was relieved when the packed court room and the waiting throng outside heard the decision of President Judge John L. Pattison of the First Judicial Circuit Court, that gave the four men their liberty.

Men Accused as Mob Members.

The prisoners had been accused of being in the mob that lynched Armwood, and their arrest had been made at the behest of Attorney Gneral William Preston Lane Jr. The men were William H. Thompson, a druggist and a leading citizen of Princess Ann; Irving Adkins of Somerset Heights, a railroad foreman; William McQuay of Pocomoke City, a chain store employe, and William Hearn of Shad Point, a storekeeper.

No representative of the State Attorney General or of any other high State official appeared in court to oppose the motions for their discharge. Moreover, the motions were unopposed by the local prosecutor, State's Attorney John [illegible]. Robins of Somerset County.

Mr. Robins announced at the hearing, however, that "in any eventuality" the county grand jury would be recalled to inquire into the lynching.

Thereupon some one in the back of the room gave a close imitation of a cackling hen. A previous investigation of the lynching by a coroner's jury got nowhere.

The writs of habeas corpus, obtained by three attorneys for the men, called on Warden Harry Martin of the Baltimore city prison to produce them in court at 3 P. M.

In anticipation of the hearing, residents of this and nearby counties poured into the village in the forenoon and afternoon, displaying increasing excitement and anticipation as the hours passed.

Owing to various delays, the four men did not arrive at the courthouse until 4:30 P. M.

Crowd Is Restless at Delay.

When they failed to appear at the hour set for the hearing, the sympathizers became plainly restless.

Somehow word had been transmitted to the prisoners that a large crowd was waiting for them, and soon a telephone call came through from Easton, Md., with Thompson telling a friend that he and his companions were en route.

He said he hoped the crowd would do nothing to cause trouble for Warden Harry C. Martin of the Baltimore city jail or the deputy warden, who was with him, because Mr. Martin had treated them with every courtesy, had provided decent beds for them and had not locked the doors of their cells.

Then C. Edwin Hayman, a local lumberman, addressed the throng from the front steps of the court house, assuring them that their friends were being accompanied neither by State troopers nor militiamen, and giving them the message about Warden Martin's kindness. He was cheered.

Finally a sleek limousine drove up with the prisoners. The excited men, women and children in the crowd cheered and yelled as they might have at the homecoming of heroes.

As the crowd made a path for the prisoners to walk up the main steps of the courthouse, some men halted Warden Martin to shake hands with him.

Courtoom Is Jammed.

The crowd then swept into the courtroom on the second floor, packing every available inch of space, standing on the spectators' benches and crowding through the rail to the lawyers' tables beneath the bench. There was a babel of shouts, laughter and strong language.

A half hour passed, then some one shouted:

"Where are the judges? We want action!"

The cry was taken up when President Judge Pattison and one of his two colleagues on the circuit bench, Judge Robert F. Duer, a local resident, failed to appear.

In a few minutes, however, Judge Duer entered, obtained quiet by repeated bangs of the gavel, and explained that he and Judge Pattison were awaiting the arrival of the third member of the court, Judge Joseph L. Bailey of Salisbury. He retired to his chambers again.

Evidently fearing that the spectators' feelings might get out of control, a man who appeared in unusually high spirits climbed on the lawyers' table and genially called upon every one to be as quiet as possible.

After he had called for three cheers for Warden Martin, which were readily given, and three for State's Attorney Robins, he hoisted Thompson to the table and at once all was still. Thompson, the former head of the local American Legion Post, has been the object of sympathy because he has witnesses to support his story of his being at a motion picture show in alisbury, fourteen miles away, on the night of the lynching.

Throat Sore From Gas.

Hoarsely, Thompson explained that his throat was sore from the tear gas let loose by the soldiers at Salisbury yesterday. He added that Warden Martin had "treated us like perfect gentlemen."

He jumped down and Adkins got up, urging that "everybody be quiet and get this over with."

At 5:30 P. M. Judges Pattison and Duer entered and called the court to order, explaining that owing to a misunderstanding Judge Bailey would not be present.

B. Calvin Trice, attorney for McQuay and Hearn, arose, saying:

"We find that there appears to be no warrant for their arrest or any papers setting forth the charges on which they are held. Likewise, there are no witnesses to give reasons for their being held. I move that they be released."

Loud shouts of "Hooray" and a burst of hand clapping greeted his motion, but Judge Pattison checked the outburst.

"You are in a court of law and I appeal to you to keep your enthusiasm down as much as possible," he declared.

Harry C. Dashiell, attorney for Thompson, and Magistrate Edgar A. Jones, attorney for Adkins, made motions similar to those of Mr. Trice. Then Judge Pattison called on the State.

State's Attorney Robins told the court the Attorney General had not provided him with any writs or warrants for the arrests, and that he therefore had "no objections to the release of the prisoners."

Judge Pattison pronounced the verdict. A few minutes later, the horns and sirens on automobiles parked outside the building shrieked as in a Fourth of July celebration.

MISSOURI OPENS LYNCHING INQUIRY

Times

Governor, Declaring There Was 'No Justification for Mob,' Orders Speedy Action.

11-30-33

SHERIFF TELLS OF ATTACK

New York, N.Y.

Says Surrender of Negro Was Case of 'Have to'—Citizens Back His Stand.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 29.—A State investigation ordered by Governor Park was begun here today into the lynching last night of Lloyd Warner, 19-year-old Negro accused of attacking a white girl.

Following a statement in which he declared there was "no justification for the action of the mob," the Governor directed Attorney General McKittrick to launch the inquiry. The latter instructed William Sawyer, an Assistant Attorney General whose home is in St. Joseph, to "cooperate with the prosecuting attorney and sheriff of Buchanan County in obtaining the facts and to attempt to fix the responsibility."

Mr. McKittrick said his office "would assist and aid in the prosecution."

Statement of the Governor.

The Governor's statement was as follows:

"While it appears from press reports that Lloyd Warner, Negro boy lynched by the mob in St. Joseph last night, confessed guilt of a heinous crime, punishable by death, yet there is no justification for the action of the mob.

"Mob violence, whether in punishment of crime or in attempt to obtain alleged civil rights, is always wrong and is destructive of good government. To condone such an offense is to encourage lawlessness, deny the efficiency of courts and the power of constituted authority."

Meanwhile, this Missouri River city was quiet today, following the outburst of last night when Sheriff Otto Theisen yielded Warner to the mob after the interior of the Buchanan County Jail had been wrecked.

He declared it was a case of "have to" when the mob, spurred to action by the appearance of the tank corps of the Thirty-fifth Division and the tossing of a tear bomb into the crowd pressing around the jail, demanded the victim.

Tanks Were Wrecked.

The crowd wrecked the tanks, which had been ordered out by the Governor, and surged on despite the tear gas.

Sheriff Theisen and his family, who live in the jail, were inside it at the time. The Sheriff and twenty or so deputies kept behind the steel door.

"We were not harming any one," the Sheriff said. "I knew if any innocent men were harmed the mob would not be controlled under any circumstances. We just waited.

"Finally we heard the banging on the last door between the jail and the County Court building. We knew they would come in at any time. What were we to do? There were about nine other prisoners, Negroes, in the jail. Would the mob take all of them?"

The Sheriff said he then decided to give in for the safety of his men and the other Negro prisoners, and Warner was surrendered.

The crowd surged into the street with its victim. Shouts went up to "Get it done." The Negro was struck repeatedly and dragged and carried, then strung up.

About fifteen minutes later some one threw gasoline on the body and lighted it. That fire burned a while and died out. Then wood was brought and placed on the asphalt street under the body. Gasoline was poured on it, and this was ignited. The flames shot upward.

For hours crowds pressed around the body. Motor car traffic was jammed.

After attention to the lynching had waned the crowd turned to offer its sympathy to the Sheriff, especially regarding his broken furniture.

Today the city buzzed with discussions of the lynching.

"It's a fine lesson," one sidewalk speaker said to a group. "It won't happen again very soon, you watch and see."

"But what about the dignity of the law?" a doubter asked.

"That's good enough for law," was the reply.

The opinion was expressed generally that the Sheriff did the only thing possible in yielding up the victim. He faced the possibility of bloodshed among the thousands of the mob and his officers, and held that it was better to give in, as the mob was on the verge of breaking the last barrier of the jail.

Confession Reported Repudiated.

By The Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 29.—Lloyd Warner was reported to have repudiated a confession police said he made that he had attacked a young white woman.

After appearing in court yesterday, where he tried to plead guilty, the lynching victim told William B. Raez, attorney appointed by the court to represent him, that he did not attack the woman and that he wished to plead not guilty.

Mr. Raez explained today that he went back to the court and reported the Negro's change of mind, but the news was out then that Warner had confessed and it was thought best not to risk bringing him back into court to hear his plea of not guilty for fear of mob action at that time.

Mr. Raez added, however, that he believed the Negro would have changed his mind today and pleaded guilty.

Colonel Marvin Casteel, Superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, who was sent to the scene last night by Governor Park, expressed the opinion that Sheriff Theisen and his deputies had done "a good job under the circumstances."

"It was a regrettable occurrence," Colonel Casteel said, "but there was too much risk of taking human lives to take any other course."

Unofficial records show the lynching was the twenty-third in Missouri since 1900 and the ninetieth since 1889.

note
this Clipping belongs
under Missouri

Lynchings-1933
&
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4120

MARYLAND TROOPERS REPEL MOB'S ATTACK WITH GAS AND STEEL

FOUR ARRESTS FOR LYNCHING START BATTLE

Telegraph

Salisbury Rioting Ends Only After Soldiers Withdraw With Prisoners

11-29-33

GOVERNOR IS THREATENED

Macon Ga.

Trouble It Result of Surprise Move After Prosecutor Refuses to Act

SALISBURY, Md., Nov. 28 (AP)—A mob of more than a thousand men stormed the state armory here today in an unsuccessful effort to free the four men accused of participating in last month's lynching at Princess Anne.

Beaten back by tear gas and bayonets, the mob dispersed only after the state troopers sent by Governor Albert C. Ritchie to arrest the alleged slayers of George Armwood, a Negro, abandoned their headquarters in the armory and returned to Baltimore with their prisoners.

Cries of, "Lynch Ritchie" and "Lynch Lane" could be heard as the crowd hurled stones at the soldiers surrounding the armory. William Preston Lane, Jr., is the state attorney general and it was during his investigation of the lynching of Armwood last month that the names of nine alleged participants were obtained.

His requests that the state's attorney of Somerset county, John B. Robins, order the nine men arrested were refused by the state's attorney, who contended a grand jury investigation was the proper procedure.

Reporters Are Beleaguered

Even after the state troopers, under the leadership of Lane and Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, state adjutant general, had withdrawn from Salisbury, the mob continued its activities and for a time beleaguered reporters in the city's principal hotel. A movie sound truck was captured and sunk in the Wicomico river.

The turbulent events of the day came directly on the heels of a surprise move by Ritchie and Lane to have the men accused of the lynching arrested.

Troops were mobilized in Baltimore last night and were transported under secrecy to Salisbury, where before daybreak they conducted expeditions into Somerset county, where the lynching occurred, and made the arrests.

However, news of the mobilization leaked out and but four of the nine could be found.

These were brought to Salisbury and placed under special guard in the armory while the troops made additional plans to try to seize the others and prepared to take the prisoners to Princess Anne for a preliminary hearing.

The latter plans were rudely interrupted about mid-morning when the roads leading from nearby counties on the Eastern Shore, Delaware and Virginia brought vehicle after vehicle loaded with men.

Prisoners Taken to Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Nov. 28 (AP)—Battered, bruised and drenched, national guardsmen and state police arrived in Baltimore tonight with the four Princess Anne lynching suspects over whom the officers battled a mob in Salisbury today.

Less than 100 persons gathered about the city jail as the bus carrying the officers and their prisoners arrived at dusk. There was no demonstration.

Many of the guardsmen, their uniforms still wet from barrages of water that shot into them from a Salisbury fire house, bore cuts and scratches.

The trip from Salisbury was without incident.

RITCHIE ABANDONS ANTI-MOB EFFORT

Local Authorities Will Be Allowed to Proceed Against Men Accused of Lynching

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30 (AP)—The investigation into the lynching of a Negro at Princess Anne last month was dropped by state authorities today to allow the officials of Somerset county, where the mob hanging occurred, to proceed as they had suggested.

Telegraph
12-1-33
Macon Ga.

George Armwood, the Negro, accused of attacking an aged white woman, was taken from the Princess Anne jail on the night of Oct. 18 by a mob of more than 1,000 men, women and youths, and hanged. An attempt was made to burn his body.

Having failed to secure from the civil authorities the arrests and procedure they asked, and having secured four of those arrests through the use of troops, only to see the prisoners turned loose by the district judges on writs of habeas corpus, Governor Ritchie and Attorney General William Preston Lane, Jr., today announced they would retire from the forefront of the picture.

The local authorities, on the other hand, will proceed as the local prosecutor suggested in the first place. The evidence against the lynching suspects will be brought out—but in a secret grand jury hearing rather than a public hearing asked by the state.

Tomorrow or the next day the three judges of the first judicial district—two of whom turned loose the troop-arrested prisoners yesterday—will meet at Cambridge with the local prosecutor, State's Attorney John B. Robins, and decide when the Somerset county grand jury will be recomended. The judges already have said the jury will be called but have not set the date.

Attempt Of Mob To Free Lynch Suspects Foiled

Advertiser
11-29-33

Enraged Citizens Pursue State Attorney General, Demand Ritchie's Scalp

Montgomery, Ala.

Troops In Action

But Firemen Turn Water On Soldiers As Rioting Spreads In Maryland

SALISBURY, MD., Nov. 28.—(AP)—A mob of more than a thousand men stormed the State Armory today in an unsuccessful effort to free the four men accused of participating in last month's lynching at Princess Anne.

Beaten back by tear gas and bayonets, the mob dispersed only after the State troopers, sent by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to arrest the alleged slayers of George Armwood, a negro, abandoned their headquarters in the armory and returned to Baltimore with their prisoner.

Cries of "Lynch Ritchie" and "Lynch Lane" could be heard as the crowd hurled stones at the soldiers surrounding the armory. William Preston Lane, Jr., is the State attorney general and it was during his investigation of the lynching of Armwood last month that the names of nine alleged participants were obtained.

His requests that the State's Attorney of Somerset County, John B. Robins, order the nine men arrested were refused by the State's Attorney, who contended a Grand Jury investigation was the proper procedure.

Mob Continues Active

Even after the State troops, under the leadership of Lane and Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, State adjutant general, had withdrawn from Salisbury, the mob continued its activities and for a time beleaguered reporters in the city's principal hotel. A movie sound truck was captured and sunk in the Wicomico River.

The turbulent events of the day came directly on the heels of a surprise move by Ritchie and Lane to have the men accused of the lynching arrested.

Troops were mobilized in Baltimore last night and were transported under secrecy to Salisbury, where before daybreak they conducted expeditions into Somerset County, where the lynching occurred, and made the arrests.

However, news of the mobilization leaked out and but four of the nine could be found.

These were brought to Salisbury and placed under special guard in the armory while the troops made additional plans to try to seize the others and prepared to take the prisoners to Princess Anne for a preliminary hearing.

Throngs Closed Roads

The latter plans were rudely interrupted about mid-morning when the roads leading from nearby counties on the Eastern shore, Delaware and Virginia brought vehicle after vehicle loaded with men.

They gathered around the armory.

As they gradually pushed to the doorways, the officers ordered them to disperse.

"Get back," Reckord called. "We don't want to hurt you."

"What right have you got to come here and rule our streets?" a middle-aged man shouted.

The crowd continued to come forward and the soldiers responded by cutting loose a barrage of tear gas. The crowd fell back momentarily, but again advanced. This necessitated another barrage and this time the crowd stayed back. The soldiers maintained their vigil with drawn bayonets.

In Annapolis Gov. Ritchie, who has been ill, was informed of the plight of the soldiers. He talked to Gen. Reckord by telephone and was informed that the situation was "well in hand."

At noon, the movement away from the armory was begun and the soldiers and State patrolmen, who had accompanied them, bundled the four prisoners in the buses waiting for them and moved slowly out of Salisbury.

Crowd Seeks Lane

The crowd then began to search for Atty. Gen. Lane and as he left, the windows of the automobile in which he was riding were broken.

Another automobile, mistakenly believed to be Lane's, was overturned. The occupant, who remained unidentified, protested he was not Lane as he crawled out.

Two other automobiles were overturned, and one of them caught fire.

Then the crowd moved to the nearby hotel and demanded of the management that newspaper reporters be brought out. Most of the reporters were sent out by a side entrance, but several remained until late in the afternoon when Secretary of State [illegible] Winebrenner, III, sent an automobile for them.

Advertiser
11-29-33
Montgomery Ala.

MARYLAND QUITS SIFTING LYNCHING

Advertiser

Even I. L. D. Dissatisfied With Ritchie's Actions; Future Of Probe In Doubt

12-1-33

Montgomery, Ala

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30—(AP)—The investigation into the lynching of a negro at Princess Anne last month was dropped by State authorities today to allow the [illegible] County, where the mob-hanging occurred, to proceed as they had suggested.

George Armwood, the negro, accused of attacking an aged white woman, was taken from the Princess Anne Jail on the night of Oct. 18 by a mob of more than 1,000 men, women and youths and hanged. An attempt was made to burn his body.

I. L. D. SCOWLS TOO

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—William L. Patterson, national secretary of the International Labor Defense, today sent the following telegram to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland:

"Demand use of militia and arming of Eastern shore negroes to protect selves against mobs incited by your provocative expedition. Protest your provocation followed by withdrawal of protection. Demand indictment by State Legislature of Armwood lynchers. Indictment of leaders of gang who drove negroes out Princess Anne last night."

Having failed to secure from the civil authorities the arrests and procedure they asked; and having secured four of those arrests through the use of troops only to see the prisoners turned loose by the district judges on writs of habeas corpus, Gov. Ritchie and Atty. Gen. William Preston Lane, Jr., today announced they would retire from the forefront of the picture.

The local authorities, on the other hand, will proceed as the local prosecutor suggested in the first place. The evidence against the lynching suspects will be brought out—but in a secret Grand Jury hearing rather than a public hearing asked by the State.

Tomorrow or the next day the three judges of the First Judicial District—two of them turned loose the troop-arrested prisoners yesterday—will meet at Cambridge with the local prosecutor State's Atty. John B. Robins, and decide when the Somerset County Grand Jury will be reconvened. The judges already have said the jury will be called but have not set the date.

RITCHIE ABANDONS LYNCHING ACTION

Press

Governor Leaves the Princess Anne Hanging to Court in Somerset County.

12-1-33

DISTRICT JUDGES TO MEET

New York, N.Y.

Three Will Call Grand Jury Monday to Sift Evidence of Mob Attack on Jail.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30 (AP).—The investigation into the lynching of a Negro at Princess Anne last month was dropped by State authorities today to allow the officials of Somerset County, where the mob hanging occurred, to proceed as they had suggested.

George Armwood, the Negro accused of attacking an aged white woman, was t aken from the Princess Anne jail on the night of Oct. 18 by a mob of more than 1,000 men, women and youths and hanged. An attempt was made to burn his body.

Having failed to obtain from the civil authorities the arrests and procedure they asked, and having made four arrests through the use of troops only to see the prisoners turned loose by the district judges on writs of habeas corpus, Governor Ritchie and Attorney General Lane announced today that they would let the judiciary handle the case.

The county authorities will proceed as the local prosecutor suggested in the first place. The evidence against the lynching suspects will be brought out, but in a secret grand jury hearing rather than a public hearing asked by the State.

Tomorrow or the next day the three judges of the First Judicial District, two of whom turned loose the troop-arrested prisoners yesterday, will meet at Cambridge with the State's attorney, John R. Robins, and decide when the Somerset County grand jury will be reconvened. Hhe judges have said the jury will be called but have not set the date.

"And when the jury is convened," said Mr. Robins today, "I will summon all wtinesses, including those State policemen who in affidavits given to the Attorney General named some men they say participated in the lynching."

Policemen Named 4 Released.

Mr. Robins said that the affidavits of the State policemen, who were beaten back when the mob which stormed the Princess Anne jail, named among others the four men who were arrested by troops and released by the judges.

They were William Thompson, Princess Anne druggist; Irving Adkins, Princess Anne special police officer; William Hearn of Shad Point and William McQuay of Pocomoke City.

When Mr. Robins said he had a copy of the affidavits made by the policemen he was asked why he told Judges John R. Pattison and Robert F. Duer at the habeas corpus hearing yesterday that he had no evidence.

"Why, you can't introduce affidavits in a case like that," he answered. "Those prisoners were entitled to be faced by the witnesses against them, and to cross-examine those witnesses. I can't imagine what the Attorney General was thinking about. He ought to have known I could not do that."

Turbulence Dies Down.

By JAMES MacDONALD.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Nov. 30.—The turbulence which has raged here and in neighboring communities for three days gave way today to a feeling of general satisfaction at the release yesterday of four white men arrested by militia Tuesday morning in connection with the lynching of a Negro Oct. 18.

In contrast to the atmosphere of defiance of law and order which prevailed after the arrests, this village, the seat of Somerset County, and surrounding communities settled down to a contented celebration of Thanksgiving.

The lynching of Armwood will be taken up by the Somerset County grand jury soon, but there appeared today to be little doubt among the citizenry that no one would be accused of his slaying.

The grand jury is composed, of course, of taxpayers of Somerset County. Residents of the county have almost unanimously deplored the arrests of the four men before daybreak Tuesday in connection with the lynching.

W. H. Thompson one of those arrested by the militia, bustled behind his soda fountain today, conducting business as usual, receiving congratulations from his neighbors at his release and chatting amiably with friends. He refused abruptly to make any statement to reporters.

The other men who were released with him were not reached.

Negro Shot by Accident.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Nov. 30 (AP).—William Jones, 26, a Negro, was shot in the leg early today by a group of young white men celebrating the release of four men arrested for the lynching of a Negro here last month. The shooting was said to be accidental. No arrest was attempted.

The young men had gathered in the street around a fire of Baltimore newspapers which carried accounts of the arrest by soldiers of the four alleged lynchers. While the flames mounted high, one of the group began firing a revolver. Five or more shots were fired. Jones was some distance away when he was hit.

The Negro was taken to a doctor by white men, who later carried him home.

Two Men Are Jailed In Missouri Lynching

Enquirer

12-3-33

Cincinnati, O.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 2.—(UP) Two men were arrested by local police today as suspects in the lynching of Lloyd Warner, confessed negro attacker of a white girl here Tuesday night.

Police withheld names of the suspects. One was known to have denied a charge that he attached a chain to the main door of the Buchanan county jail, where the negro was confined. A truck was used to pull the door from the building.

The arrests came after assistant Attorney General W. O. Sawyer, detailed to make an investigation of the mob action on behalf of the state, reported that he had made no progress.

Sawyer announced he would remain here and continue his investigation.

Ritchie Sends Troops To Lynching Vicinity

11-28-33

BALTIMORE, Nov. [illegible]—(Tuesday)—(AP)—The fifth regiment of the Maryland national guard early this morning left Baltimore headed toward Somerset county. The Baltimore Sun says the soldiers were sent to arrest nine alleged participants in last month's lynching at Princess Anne.

Officers in charge refused to make any statements as the soldiers, carrying full equipment and accompanied by trucks loaded with food, left the city headed for the Eastern Shore.

The mobilization of the troops, according to the Sun, is the governor's answer to State's Attorney John B. Robins who has refused to arrest the nine men whom state policemen have identified as participating in last month's lynching at Princess Anne.

LYNCH ACTION IS SOUGHT BY COUNTY

News

Prosecution Planned After State Officials Step Out Of Picture

12-2-33

BALTIMORE — (AP) — Somerset County Friday moved along its course to bring the persons who participated in last month's lynching of a Negro at Princess Anne, to trial without the aid and suggestion of state officials.

Birmingham, Ala.

The three judges of the First Judicial Circuit were to meet in Cambridge Friday or Saturday to set the date for the recall of the Grand Jury to hear any evidence to be produced by State's Attorney Robins.

Gov. Ritchie and Atty. Gen. Lane announced Thursday, after their efforts to hold four men for alleged participation in the lynching had failed, that they had withdrawn from the picture.

Saying he planned "a wide and exhaustive investigation immediately," State's Attorney Robins asserted he would summon before the Grand Jury "all witnesses, including state policemen who in affidavits given the attorney general named some men they say participated in the lynching."

The criticism by Gov. Ritchie that the habeas corpus hearing of four suspects arrested by the militia sent by him into the section was held without the attorney general being given sufficient time to prepare his evidence, brought a formal denial from Judge Duer of Princess Anne.

Judge Duer said the attorney general had been notified at least six hours before the hearing and "if Atty. Gen. Lane was ready for a hearing on the day of the arrest, there was no valid reason why he could not be ready for a hearing on the afternoon of the following day."

Princess Anne, where George Armwood was hanged by a mob Oct. 18, was quiet during the past 24 hours, after the celebration over the release of the four arrested suspects—William H. Thompson, Irving Adkins, William Hearn and William McQuay.

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4121

Birmingham, Ala., News
November 19, 1933

Maryland Moves To Punish Her Lynchers

Some weeks ago Gerald W. Johnson wrote in The Baltimore Evening Sun a peculiarly emotional article in which he expressed strong disbelief that Maryland would do anything whatever about the brutal lynching of a Negro at Princess Ann on Oct. 18. In his article, Mr. Johnson passionately declared that anyone who expected that efforts would be made to punish the perpetrators of the crime would indeed be an optimist.

But subsequent events in Maryland give rise to the opinion that Gerald Johnson may have expressed an undue amount of hopelessness. The latest word from Baltimore is that the state authorities have taken leadership in the Princess Ann affair. In fact, the attorney general of Maryland has gone so far as to request the arrest of nine persons supposed to have been connected with the beastly performance which took place in the backward eastern section of that fine state.

In a message to the state's attorney at Princess Ann, Atty. Gen. Lane identified "by name, address and occupation nine persons who participated in the crime." Further than this, Mr. Lane also described the part which each of the named individuals played in the horrible affair of last month. "To kill by lynching is to commit murder," declared Atty. Gen. Lane in his message to the attorney at Princess Ann. "The leading of the crowd to the jail, the assault upon it and any effort to break into it, or inciting the mob to do so, and the taking of the Negro out of the jail, are all a part of the same crime."

Evidently the guardians of the good name of the state of Maryland are not willing to allow this disgraceful lynching to be ignored by the passive, and apparently self-assured, officials of Somerset County. Recognizing the fact that the local officials have shown not the slightest inclination to uphold the dignity of the law in their community, the respectable central government of Maryland has determined to play a strong hand. Instead of relying upon an apathetic set of local officials, state police and Baltimore detectives took steps leading to the identification of members of the mob.

Of course it must be understood that the identification of the Maryland lynchers was relatively easy. Men, women and children seem to have taken part in the daylight affair. There was nothing hidden or secret about the personnel of the hysterical procession. Thus, the point is not so much that the state of Maryland is to be congratulated upon its detective work as upon its apparent determination to impress the population of its Eastern Shore that the taking of life by mob violence is a crime which the state will not tolerate, even if the local officials do not see fit to take any action in such matters.

NO MOVE YET IN ARMWOOD LYNCH INQUIRY

Afro-American 11-25-33

Circuit Court Judges Adjourn; Don't Consider Evidence.

Baltimore, Md.

ROBINS REFUSED TO TAKE ACTION

Ritchie Has Faith in Officials' Integrity.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md.—Running counter to the expectations of Governor Albert C. Ritchie, who announced that he had confidence in their ability to make a decision, Judges Dyer, Pattison, and Bailey adjourned their joint conference Monday without taking action on the nine names submitted, by Attorney General Preston Lane, Jr., as participants in the lynching of George Armwood.

The judges made no formal announcement of any concrete achievement in spite of the fact that their conference came as an aftermath of State's Attorney John B. Robins's flat refusal to arrest any of the alleged mob members.

With Somerset County officials refusing to arrest nine alleged participants in the lynching of George Armwood, at Princess Anne on October 18, further action in the matter was left up to Attorney-General Preston Lane, by Governor Albert C. Ritchie, Monday.

Following the refusal of John B. Robins, attorney for Somerset County, to arrest nine persons identified by name, address, occupation and the part they allegedly took in the lynching, Attorney General Lane threatened to bring charges of malfeasance in office against the county state's attorney, Governor Ritchie ordered the three judges of the first judicial circuit, Joseph L. Bailey, John R. Pattison and Robert F. Duer, to attend a meeting at Cambridge on the lynching and possible arrest of the alleged lynchers.
possible arrest of the alleged lynchers.

Got Evidence.

On Thursday, Attorney General William Preston Lane, sent a registered letter to John B. Robins, state's attorney of Somerset County, with the names of nine persons stating their names, addresses, occupation and the part they allegedly took in the lynching of Armwood. The attorney general demanded their arrest and that they be brought before a magistrate for a hearing.

Feared Trouble.

The following day Robins forwarded a letter to Lane refusing to swear out warrants for the arrests of the nine persons on the grounds that to do so would cause trouble and that the routine was not as he wanted it. He flatly refused to have the nine persons arrested, stating that the matter of procedure in the case should be that the evidence be secretly given before the grand jury they find true bills, that the arrests be made. Mr. Lane then asked for magistrates' warrants.

Accusations that the county prosecutor was violating the oath of his office were made by Mr. Lane, who stated that Robins did not want a magistrate's hearing, as it would make public the evidence and the names of the accused persons. Should the evidence be given before the grand jury and that body fail to indict, which is probable, the facts and names of the accused persons would never be disclosed. A map showing what the nine men did and where they did it was also sent by Attorney General Lane.

During the whole dispute between the county officials and the attorney general, Governor Ritchie when questioned on the matter after reading the original letter and the county official's reply stated he would make no comment until he had discussed the matter with Lane, if at all.

OUSTER IS HINTED IN LYNCHING CASE

Ritchie Suggests Judges Remove Attorney Who Refused Arrests.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1[illegible]—(AP)—Governor Albert C. Ritchie today suggested that circuit judges remove State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset county unless he [illegible] arrested the nine men, who eye-witnesses have sworn had a part in the lynching at Princess, Md., last month.

"If Mr. Robins does persist (in refusing to have the men arrested) then the judges will, I feel sure, consider the appointment of some one in Mr. Robins' place to [illegible] as state's attorney in the prosecution and trial of these charges, and perform the duties which Mr. Robins will not perform," stated the governor.

The evidence against the nine was collected by Attorney-General William Preston Lane Jr., largely from policemen who were beaten back by the mob which stormed the Somerset jail and lynched George Armwood, negro charged with attacking an aged white woman.

Lane forwarded the evidence to Robins and asked that the nine be arrested immediately and brought before a magistrate to decide whether or not they should be held for the grand jury. Robins refused to make the arrests, saying that he believed a mob would take the men from the jail if the magistrate sent them there. He suggested instead that the evidence be submitted to the grand jury at its customary secret meeting.

Lane's reasons "are obviously sound," stated Ritchie today. "If there is a hearing before a committing magistrate the facts will be disclosed to the public and the responsibility for following them through will be clearly centered."

MAKE LYNCHERS PAY, IS WALTER WHITE'S PLAN

Afro-American 11-25-33

Maryland Is Behind Other States in Anti-Mob Legislation.

Baltimore, Md.

FIGHT LAUNDRY CODE IN D.C.

Md. to be the Scene of Teachers' Pay Battle.

BALTIMORE, Md.—

"When you hit the pocketbook nerve of a lyncher you can hit no nerve more vital," declared Walter White, N.A.A.C.P. secretary, speaking at Metropolitan M.E. Church Friday night in a protest meeting against lynching and a review of the Crawford case, called by the local branch of the NA.A.C.P.

Mr. White went immediately into his talk, speaking swiftly and concisely, in a rapid-fire array of facts and information.

He expressed grave concern over the "recrudescence of the bestial crime of lynching," stating that mob action was all the more important because of its fundamental causes.

Mr. White said that there could be accurately counted 22 lynchings this year, with cases now being investigated expected to swell that number. He contrasted this with 10 lynchings in 1932, seeking to assign a reason for this increase.

He mentioned the lynching by Dixie posses, cloaking the lawless acts of mob-minded persons with the majesty of the law.

Hughes Fled for Life

Paying his respects to the NRA he told of the case of the Rev. Mr. Hughes of Selma, Alabama, who, asked to countenance an NRA wage differential, giving Negroes lower pay, flatly refused and was forced to flee the town to save his life.

Mr. White cited an opinion by an eminent jurist, supporting the statement that Federal officials have authority to punish lynchers. He mentioned this authority in reference to the Tuscaloosa, Ala., lynching of Pippen and Harden, in which the sheriff is said to have handed over the keys to the mobsters.

Maryland Is Behind

"Maryland is behind many other states which are further South," said the speaker, "in the matter of writing lynch legislation on its statute books."

Citing from a book of statutes, he stated that Maryland's only anti-lynch legislation consisted of a clause providing damages where a mob injured or destroyed property. The injuring or destroying of human life in this state brought no punitive damages upon the state or its citizens, he said.

Mr. White urged the passage of anti-lynching legislation in Maryland. He deplored the activity of this state in concerning itself with liquor regulation when the more vital problem of lynching was being virtually ignored.

Will Present Bill

At the coming session of Congress, he said, there will be introduced a Federal anti-lynching law. This bill will be ready for presentation on the opening day, he stated.

The Mississippi flood project next drew the attention of the speaker, as he told of workers being underpaid and overworked. Before N.A.A.C.P. intervention in this case, 10 cents an hour for from 14 to 18 hours a day work was the case.

Now, 40 cents an hour is being paid for a 30-hour week, he said adding that a quarter of a million dollars a year in wages was thus secured.

Applause was drawn from the audience when Mr. White declared that there "is no discrimination in the levying of taxes," although discrimination and segregation are found everywhere else.

Jim Crow Schools Bad

He paid his respects to segregated schools, in passing, calling them a shortsighted and vicious practice. It was his belief that colored teachers should be admitted to all schools as teachers.

The unequal salaries paid teachers in North Carolina is being made the basis of a fight now being waged by the N.A.A.C.P., he said, adding that Maryland will be the scene of a similar fight, soon to get underway.

Labeling the recently proposed laundry code as the most vicious ever presented, Mr. White spoke strongly against the offer of 14 cents an hour to Southern women laundry workers. He said that when the code hearing opened in Washington this week, briefs protesting it would be presented, in an effort to have it fail of being accepted by the NRA.

Praises Crawford Lawyers

The speaker swiftly recounted the Crawford case in Virginia where he was a spectator. The lawyers for the defense drew warm praise from Mr. White, for the "able, brilliant and courageous" way in which they handled the case.

"It means a new day in Loudoun County," he said, in telling of the dignified manner in which Charles Houston, Howard law school dean and head defense counsel, forced the court to admit that there were qualified colored jurors in Loudoun County.

Sheepish grins were seen as the speaker said, "The Baltimore branch of the N.A.A.C.P. is lethargic, although at times emerging into an outburst of activity. Always, such outbursts are followed by another lethargic spell." He urged a more active interest by local members in the national association and the local branch.

Could Prevent Lynchings

That the local branch, had it been wide-awake and active, could have prevented the lynchings of Matthew Williams and George Armwood, was the opinion of Mr. White, as he asked that the Baltimore branch be built up into an effective organization.

The Rev. Mr. Trigg read a resolution demanding that the Maryland legislature pass an anti-lynching bill "with teeth in it." The resolution also asked for a Federal anti-lynch law. Governor B. M. Miller of Alabama, was also asked in the resolution, to protect the Scottsboro boys at the November 27 trials.

This resolution was adopted by N.A.A.C.P. members present.

Others taking part on the program were: the Southern Quartet, singing two selections; the Rev. George B. Curry, district superintendent of the North Baltimore District of the M.E. Church; the Rev. George F. Bragg, Jr., and Howard Gross, principal of P.S. 101.

Reds Outside

At the conclusion of the meeting the body unanimously adopted a resolution endorsing the passage of an anti-lynching bill. As the meeting was being held, Communist organizers were distributing bills outside the church announcing the lynch tribunal to be held Saturday night. Mr. White expected to be heckled by Red sympathizers because he refused to accept an invitation to attend, but no trouble developed.

The resolution adopted was as follows:

RESOLUTION

Citizens of Baltimore in mass meeting assembled unanimously demand that the present special session of the legislature of Maryland pass a law with teeth in it to suppress the barbaric practice of lynching. We urge that this take precedence over all other legislation for human life is involved and is infinitely more important than regulating the manner in which people shall drink.

We call upon Governor Albert C. Ritchie to exert himself to the utmost to insure the prompt passage of this legislation. We specifically urge that provision be made in the law for payment of not less than twenty-five hundred dollars (2,500) to the nearest of kin of the person lynched by the county in which the lynching occurs and that authority be given to the Governor to send troops to any part of the state where a lynching is threatened without waiting for request from the county for such troops. We further urge that the Governor be given authority to remove summarily sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, or any other officials charged with the responsibility of protecting prisoners automatically upon the occurrence of a lynching.

We further call upon the two United States Senators from Maryland and each member of the lower house of Congress from the state to pledge unequivocally in writing that he will support and vote for a federal law against lynching which will be introduced in the coming session of Congress, such law being necessary to supplement state action. We serve notice herewith upon state legislators, Congressmen and senators that we will accept no weasel words or equivocation in this matter. Failure to vote for such legislation will be considered prima facie evidence of hostility to the interests of Negroes who are chief sufferers from lynching. We pledge ourselves to keep a careful record of the actions and words of each of these elected officials and to act accordingly upon their presenting themselves for re-election.

We further urge Governor B. M. Miller, of Alabama, to take every means at his command, even to the extent of calling for federal troops, to prevent mob violence at the coming trial of the Scottsboro cases.

ASK RITCHIE IMPEACHMENT

Lynching Foes Invade Maryland State House With Bill.

New York

12-5-33

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 4.—Bernard Ades, Communist lawyer, today led a delegation of one white man and nineteen Negroes from Baltimore into the State House and demanded the impeachment of Governor Ritchie and the elimination of all racial discrimination throughout the State.

Ades and his group presented their request to Senator E. Milton Altfeld and Delegate Alexander Goodman, both of whom represent the fourth district, which contains a large part of Baltimore's Negro population.

Delegate Goodman promised he would introduce the bill which Ades brought with him—a measure providing life-term punishment for all members of lynching mobs and wiping out all racial discrimination. Goodman did not promise to support the bill.

Ades denounced Governor Ritchie because the National Guard withdrew from the eastern shore and left the Negro population "to the fury of the lynch mob."

"The subsequent driving out of 300 Negroes from their homes by the mob can be placed directly at the door of the Governor," Ades said.

State's Demand For Lynching Arrests Defied

NOV 18 1933

Maryland Prosecutor Refuses to Jail Suspects Lest New Mob Liberate Them

N. Y. HERALD

Awaits Grand Jury Action

Nine Identified by Eye-Witnesses, Legal Head Says

By The Associated Press

CRISFIELD, Md., Nov. 17.—State's Attorney John B. Robins said today that if he submitted to Attorney General William Preston Lane jr.'s request to have nine men arrested for the Princess Anne lynching of October 18, another mob probably would take them out.

"I don't believe those men would stay in jail," said Robins. "I believe a crowd would form and take them away."

The Attorney General announced last night he had forwarded the names of nine persons alleged to have been members of the mob that lynched George Armwood, a Negro, and asked Robins to have them arrested and taken before a magistrate.

Refuses to Make Arrests

"If Lane wants those men arrested let him come down here and arrest them," the Somerset County State's Attorney said today.

"I am in full accord with the Attorney General in wanting a full and thorough investigation, but I am opposed to the procedure he advises.

"He wants to have the nine men arrested and taken before a magistrate. If we did that there would be lots of excitement and lots of publicity. The magistrate might feel that he should order those men held on a charge of murder and they would be put in jail without bail.

"I seriously doubt that they would stay there.

"I gave Lane my reasons in the letter he received this morning. I told him that the grand jury would be recalled whenever he wanted it and that we would take all his witnesses before the grand jury. If indictments were returned, we could then have the men arrested on a capias."

Robins made his statement today after Lane, in Baltimore, had declined to make public Robins letter.

Eye-Witnesses Name Man

"I have stated my position," said the Attorney General. "If Robins wants to make his views public, I have no objections.

"I don't know what he will do, but it's up to him. I can't go down there and dictate to him."

Lane said he would write Robins today.

Last night the Attorney General announced that he had sent Robins information concerning eye-witness testimony naming nine men and giving the part each was alleged to have taken in the lynching.

"I even drew maps showing what they did and where they were," he said.

Lane asked that Robins have the nine arrested and brought before a magistrate for a preliminary hearing. If the magistrate found probable cause, the nine then would be held for the grand jury, he said.

MARYLAND SHERIFF REFUSES TROOP REQUEST

12-9-33

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Dec. 8.—(UP)—Earl Collins, charged with slaying Mrs. Minnie Taylor, [illegible], was in the county prison tonight after an armed posse captured him in the marshes of lower Maryland.

A request for state police to aid in guarding the man was denied, Sheriff Luther Daugherty said.

Collins is accused of killing the girl when she is said to have spurned his advances shortly after she left her husband three months ago. The shooting occurred last Wednesday as Mrs. Taylor was talking with friends in her father's grocery store at Crisfield.

Daugherty was summoned to take charge of Collins after the posse, led by Mrs. Taylor's father, Lee Jones, and eight of her brothers, surrounded him after a two-day search.

"I have advised everybody in the county that we don't want any more lynchings on the Eastern Shore" the sheriff told the United Press, "and I am sure that the law will take its course."

Daugherty unsuccessfully attempted to prevent a mob lynching a negro, charged with attacking an aged white woman, several months ago.

N. Y. TIMES

NOV 18 1933

FEAR OF MOB BARS LYNCHING ARRESTS

Maryland Prosecutor Tells Attorney General Jailing of 9 Means 'Trouble.'

ASKS INDICTMENTS FIRST

Ritchie Praises State Official for Identifying the Alleged Leaders in Killing of Negro.

X

(1)

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—If any attempt is made to arrest the nine persons named by Attorney General William Preston Lane of Maryland as having participated in the lynching Oct. 18 of George Armwood, a Negro, in the town of Princess Anne, Somerset County, serious mob violence probably would arise, State's Attorney John B. Robins of that county advised Mr. Lane in a long letter today. The Attorney General had asked for the arrest of the nine.

Mr. Robins warned that "we cannot judge the temper of a crowd inflamed by passion," and indicated clearly that, if arrests were made, the citizens of the county would promptly liberate the prisoners.

"If the Sheriff should endeavor to take them to Baltimore City for safe keeping, I doubt seriously if it could be done without serious trouble," Mr. Robins wrote.

When Attorney General Lane received Mr. Robins's letter, he said:

"The fact that Mr. Robins does not agree to my position and that he has so far not made any arrests, does not necessarily mean that he will not. I can't go down there and dictate to him, though. The matter is up to him."

Governor Ritchie, aware of the interchange of letters between the two prosecuting officials, praised Mr. Lane for his activity in the lynching investigation. The Governor denied making a statement attributed to him that "the entire responsibility for further investigation now lies with the Somerset County authorities."

Mr. Robins, replying to this report, declared that on the contrary, the next move was up to Mr. Lane. In his letter to the Attorney General, he said, he suggested that the Somerset County grand jury be reconvened and all lynching data be placed before it.

In his letter to Mr. Lane, he said that, aside from the imminent danger of mob action to release the nine from jail if they should be imprisoned, he disagreed with Mr. Lane as to the procedure in arresting the men named, in advance of an indictment by the grand jury.

Lynchings-1933 I.
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4118

16 Witnesses Called In Lynching of Negro

Constitution

10-24-33

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 23. (AP)—State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset County, announced tonight he had summoned 16 civilians, described as eye-witnesses, to appear at the opening of the hearing tomorrow into the lynching last Wednesday night of George Armwood, a negro accused of attacking a white woman.

Robins declined to reveal the identity of his witnesses, but asserted that none was believed to have participated actually in the actions of the mob in dragging the negro from the county jail after a fight with the state police and hanging him near the village limits.

DEMAND RITCHIE OUSTER

Courier

10-27-33

Pittsburgh Pa.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26—While investigations were launched Thursday into Wednesday night's lynching in Princess Anne, a demand was made here for the impeachment of Governor Albert Ritchie.

The demand came from the state committee of the Socialist party of Maryland in a special meeting. Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty."

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset county, and called for their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

The governor was criticized for having permitted the removal to Princess Anne from Baltimore of George Armwood, colored, held for an alleged assault upon an 81-year-old white farm woman.

"Apparently few people understand the governor's authority in such maters," said Ritchie when informed of the socialists' resolution and the general criticism. "So I have asked the attorney general to set them straight."

"Governor Ritchie had no authority in the matter," said Attorney General William Preston Lane, Jr. "As a matter of fact, under the Maryland law neither did the judge nor the state's attorney. There is just one individual responsible for the custody of a prisoner, just one individual that can order his removal, and that's the sheriff."

Armwood was lynched by a mob that stormed the jail and overpowered the state police. He was hung from a tree after being dragged behind an automobile through the town's main streets, and his gasoline-saturated nude body was burned in front of the court house.

Armwood was brought to Baltimore immediately after his arrest, but after spending Tuesday in jail here was taken back to Princess Anne.

In placing the blame on Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins for the lynching, Ritchie said the state's attorney had insisted that Armwood be returned to Somerset county and Judge Duer had assured him the prisoner would be safe.

N. Y. HERALD

OCT 20 1933

Socialists Urge Ritchie's Ouster Over Lynching

Maryland State Committee of Party Calls Governor 'Neglectful of His Duties'

Reds Also Join in Furor

Inquiry in Death of Negro at Princess Anne Is Begun

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—While investigations were started today into last night's lynching in Princess Anne, a demand was made here for the impeachment of Governor Albert C. Ritchie. The demand came from the state committee of the Socialist party of Maryland in a special meeting. Governor Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty."

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset County, and called for their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

The Governor was criticized for having permitted the removal to Princess Anne from Baltimore of George Armwood, a Negro, held for assaulting an eighty-one-year-old white farm woman.

Armwood was lynched by a mob which stormed the jail and overpowered state police. He was hanged to a tree after being dragged behind an automobile through the town's main streets, and his gasoline-saturated nude body was burned in front of the courthouse.

The Negro was arrested on Monday after Mrs. Mary Denston, the farm woman, was attacked near her home in lower Somerset County. Police said Armwood confessed. He was brought to Baltimore immediately after his arrest, but, after passing Tuesday in jail here, was taken back to Princess Anne.

Communists Demand Pardon

Under guard of eighty policemen, several hundred persons gathered at the City Hall Plaza this afternoon to listen to speakers of the International Labor Defense League urge a pardon for Euel Lee, a Negro, under sentence to be executed for murder.

The gathering was simultaneous with a hearing in Governor Ritchie's Baltimore office, where attorneys for Lee unsuccessfully pleaded for clemency. At the conclusion the Governor denied their request and set October 27 as the date for Lee's execution.

The Negro was convicted of the murder of Green K. Davis, an Eastern Shore farmer. He also was charged with shooting and hacking into pieces Davis's wife and their two children.

The murders occurred two years ago, but, after one conviction, Lee obtained a new trial because there were no Negroes on the jury panel. A second trial resulted in conviction, and several weeks ago the United States Supreme Court declined to review the evidence.

Ritchie Assigns Onus for Act

In the gathering at the City Hall Plaza the speakers talked from the open body of a light truck on which they had erected a gibbet from which dangled a rope noose. Marchers accompanying the truck carried placards bearing legends which read: "Euel Lee shall not hang" and "Down with Jim Crow laws."

In placing the blame on Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins for the Princess Anne lynching, Governor Ritchie said the State's Attorney had insisted that Armwood be returned to Somerset County and Judge Duer had assured him the Negro would be safe. Neither Judge Duer or the State's Attorney would comment on the Governor's statement today.

At the same time the Socialists adopted their resolutions, Bernard Ades, attorney here for the Communistic International Labor Defense, said "If Governor Ritchie is sincere in his statement that responsibility rests not on him, but on Judge Duer and Mr. Robins, let him order their arrests."

Attorney General Investigating

The Governor today placed the investigation of the lynching in the hands of William Preston Lane jr., Maryland's Attorney General. Conferences were held during the morning in Crisfield, twenty miles from Princess Ane, between State's Attorney Robins, Sheriff Luther Daugherty, the State Police and the special force of officers sent from Baltimore.

State Police said they had the names and addresses of three men, said to have been among the leaders in the mob. They said they had names of others who threw bricks, rocks and other missiles at the jail guard.

While the protests were being registered in Maryland against the action of state and county officials, Harlem, the center of New York's Negro population, was the scene of several group demonstrations. An appeal was sent to President Roosevelt by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, asking him to instruct the Attorney General "to proceed to the full extent with the law against lynchers."

New York Evening Journal

OCT 19 1933

RITCHIE LAYS LYNCH BLAME ON JUDGE

Lynchings Double

The Lynch record:

1932.		1933.
Arkansas	1	Alabama	5
Florida	2	Florida	1
Georgia	1	Georgia	3
Louisiana	1	Louisiana	4
Kentucky	1	Maryland	1
Kansas	1	Mississippi	1
Ohio	1	N. Carolina	1
S. Carolina	1	S. Carolina	2
Texas	1	Tennessee	2
	10		21

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 19 (By International News Service).—Responsibility for the lynching of George Armwood, Negro, by a Somerset County mob last night, was placed upon Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

Discussing Armwood's return to Princess Anne, after he had been removed to Baltimore for safekeeping, Ritchie said:

"This was done without consulting me and without any prior knowledge on my part. I have been informed the man was returned to Somerset County under instructions from Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins.

"I told Robins that if Armwood was left at Princess Ann, the responsibility for his safekeeping would rest with him."

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 19 (By International News Service).—Two companies of Maryland National Guard were encamped here today, following last night's lynching of George Armwood, 40-year-old Negro. Armwood was taken from the Somerset County Jail and hanged by a mob of more than a thousand men, women and children. His body was burned on the public square.

Armwood was accused of having attacked Mrs. Mary Denston, 71, wife of a Somerset County farmer, on Monday. John Richardson, a white man, implicated in the case, was removed to Baltimore.

The Negro was dragged from his cell in the Somerset County Jail by a mob which overpowered 25 State Troopers on guard, after refusing the pleas of Judge Robert F. Duer, who resides next to the jail. Eight deputy sheriffs sustained cuts and bruises in attempting to protect Armwood from the fury of the mob.

After taking the Negro from his cell the mob attempted to hang him to a tree on Judge Duer's place, but finding none strong enough, moved to a neighboring lot.

The mob gathered shortly after nightfall, and after first retreating before an attack of tear gas from the jail returned with heavy timbers and battered their way into the jail. Most of them were masked. Sheriff's deputies and the 25 State Troopers fought with the mob but did not use their firearms.

Nobody Recognized Mob In Maryland

10-25-33

PRINCESS ANNE MD., Oct. 24.—(AP)—Each of the 21 witnesses who testified at the coroner's inquest into the death of George Armwood, negro lynched here last Wednesday night, today testified they did not recognize a single member of the lynching mob.

The inquest was continued for consideration of additional evidence at some indefinite date.

"I could not recognize any of them, they were strangers," stated Sheriff Luther Daugherty, who was swept aside by the mob after it had broken down the jail door.

"How many were there?" asked State's Atty. John B. Robins who questioned the witnesses.

"About 50 or 60."

"Out of those 50 or 60 men you say you recognized no one?"

"That's right."

Such, in substance, was the testimony of other officers and eye witnesses. All insisted that the lynchers did not live in this vicinity.

In Baltimore, Atty. Gen. William Preston Lane, Jr., who is to come here within the next day or so to assist in the investigation, discussed the case with the members of the State police who were beaten and swept from the jail door which they tried to guard. Lane said that the State officers would not be called as witnesses at the inquest but would be left for the Somerset Grand Jury, which is to be convened when Lane and Robins have their evidence ready.

CONSPIRACY OF SILENCE IN MD. LYNCHING ORGY

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 26—Formal investigation of the lynching of George Armwood, 22-year-old alleged attacker of a 71-year-old white woman last Wednesday, got under way on Monday, when officials questioned persons said to have been eye-witnesses. Efforts to make identification of participants in the killing were greatly hampered by the "conspiracy of silence" which has veiled this little Eastern Shore village of about 1,000 in population.

John B. Robins, State's attorney for Somerset county, and Attorney General William Preston Lane Jr. have charge of the inquiry.

Aside from the "conspiracy of silence," it has been already pointed out that fully 3,000 persons coming from other Maryland counties, portions of Virginia and Delaware, and "parts unknown," participated in last Wednesday's outrage. It is held that this will add to the difficulties of the Maryland officials.

Eye Witnesses Named

On last Sunday Luther Dougherty, sheriff of Somerset county, spent the day attempting to gather names of eye-witnesses to the lnyching He turned these names over to Baltimore police, who arrived here early Monday of this week. Machinery was put into operation to trace the names.

It was said that the eye-witnesses' names have been obtained by Sheriff Dougherty from State police, who attempted to prevent the mob from battering down the iron door of the jail at the time Armwood was dragged from his cell.

Protests began pouring into the Baltimore and Annapolis offices of Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, immediately following the first flashes of the news of the horrible crime to the outside world. Persons from every type of organization, from every color and creed added to the volumes of protests and demands for a clean and thorough investigation.

Armed Police "Overpowered"

Accused of attacking Mary Denston, 71-year-old woman, George Armwood was dragged from the Somerset county jail last Wednesday by a mob of 3,000 men, women and children and was lynched.

He was hanged from a tree after the mob had stripped him of his clothing, attached a rope around his neck and pulled him behind an automobile for about a mile through the town. As the accused man was dragged from the jail, a boy about [illegible] years old whipped out a knife and cut off one of his ears.

As the mob made its slow progress, members leaped at Armwood screaming and cursing. The prisoner was apparently dead when the crowd reached the hanging scene.

Later, the body was cut down and was taken to the public square, where it was burned. The rope was cut into small pieces and distributed as souvenirs.

Courier
10-28-33
Pittsburgh

In breaking into the jail, the mob "overpowered" 25 heavily armed State policemen sent here to guard Armwood. No shots were fired by the guard. Eight of the officers were injured from sticks and stones hurled at them by mob members.

Was In Safe Place

George Armwood was brought to Princess Anne early last Wednesday from Baltimore, where he was taken last Monday night for safekeeping. County authorities informed the Governor that there would be no trouble and emphasized this belief in the face of rumors that a mob would attack the accused man.

Governor Ritchie had talked with Judge Duer and the State's attorney earlier last Wednesday and was assured by them that there would be no difficulty. After this the Governor issued a statement that he would not have Armwood removed from the Baltimore lockup.

Hanged Near Judge's Home

While the alleged attacker was in Baltimore, where he was rushed to avoid a mob shortly after his capture, State police said that he signed a written statement admitting an attack on the woman.

The hanging occurred near the home of Judge Duer, who had attempted to dissuade the mob when it first formed at the jail. The crowd, incensed at Duer's remarks, first went to the judge's home, but moved to a neighboring house when they were unable to find a tree sufficiently large.

After the mob took Armwood to the public square and burned him beyond recognition, the crowd of fiends disbanded.

White Man Carried To Safety

While the mob was engaged in the crime of lynching Armwood, John Richardson, a white man, who was under arrest charged with being an accessory after the fact in the assault of the farm woman, was taken from the jail by officers and taken to Baltimore.

Richardson was accused of taking Armwood away from the vicinity of the alleged assault and transporting him to another section of the county.

Tear gas bombs were thrown into the mob which had gathered at the jail shortly after nightfall. Kicking the bombs aside, the crowd rushed the police guard. A hand-to-hand combat ensued, but it was broken up by the arrival of a gang bearing heavy timber from a nearby lumber yard. With this timber used as a battering ram, the mob succeeded in smashing down the steel door to the jail. Armwood was seized as he cowered in his little narrow cell. The officers "stood helpless nearby."

Ritchie Blames Duer

Sheriff Luther Dougherty reached the jail at this time and ran to Armwood's cell, crying "don't break in here."

"The responsibility for Armwood's being at Princess Anne," said Governor Ritchie, shortly after being informed of the outrage, "rests squarely on the shoulders of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins."

Following this statement the Governor ordered a full investigation of the mob-crime. He ordered Police Commissioner Charles Gaither of Baltimore to send four detectives to begin an inside inquiry.

BALTIMORE, MD.
POST
OCT 19 1933

PLANS TO SPEED ANTI-LYNCH LAW

Delegate Alexander Goodman Will Re-Introduce Bill at Special Session

Prompt re-introduction of a state anti-lynching bill at the special [redacted] Maryland Legislature, expected to be called shortly, was promised today by Alexander Goodman, Fourth District delegate, who introduced a similar bill at the Legislature's last session.

"The bill was introduced in the House of Delegates at the last session," said Mr. Goodman, "and was referred to the judiciary committee.

'It Ought to Pass'

"But for the emergency bank legislation, I think, it would have received favorable action. Now, after yesterday's happenings on the Eastern Shore, it certainly ought to pass."

Mr. Goodman characterized the lynching last night of George Armwood, Negro, as "the most horrible thing I ever heard of.

$5,000 to Victim's Estate

"However, I don't think the Governor is to blame," he said. "The question of what to do about the Negro was a judicial one, and the judicial authorities on the Eastern Shore—State's Attorney Robins and Judge Duer—are to blame. It wasn't necessary to take the man back down there."

The law introduced by Mr. Goodman provides that a county in which a lynching occurs shall pay $5,000 to the estate of the victim.

NEW YORK TIMES
OCT 21 1933

URGES RITCHIE ACT IN NEGRO'S LYNCHING

Dr. Broadus Mitchell Calls for Impeachment of Officials—Cummings May Get Plea.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20.—Dr. Broadus Mitchell of Johns Hopkins University demanded at a Governor's hearing today that Governor Ritchie take steps looking to impeachment of Judge Robert F. Duer as a result of the lynching Wednesday night of George Armwood, Negro.

The hearing was accorded to several societies after pleas had been made to the Governor for a thorough investigation of the lynching of Armwood, who was accused of attacking a white woman.

Representatives of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Socialist party, the National Urban League, the Labor Defense League, the Colored Ministerial Union, Republican and Democratic colored organizations were present.

Dr. Mitchell, who is an associate professor of political economy, said in his plea:

"Our purpose in coming here, your Excellency, is to urge, and demand, that you, as Governor of Maryland, use all means in your power to impeach Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John D. Robins of Somerset County.

"We also demand, as law-abiding citizens, that you take steps to discharge from public office all State policemen who were on guard duty at the Princess Anne jail Wednesday night when the lynching happened. Theirs was an exhibition of a gross neglect of public duty."

Governor Ritchie said that an investigation of the lynching would be made by Attorney General W. Preston Lane and others.

"Failure" by Maryland authorities to accord to Negroes their rights under the Constitution may result in an appeal to Attorney General Cummings, Bernard Ades, attorney for the Labor Defense League, said tonight.

Members of the New York Labor Defense League, headed by William L. Patterson, indicated that they would proceed to Washington tomorrow and try to obtain an interview with the Attorney General.

NEW YORK WORLD-
Telegram
OCT 19 1933

RITCHIE ORDERS LYNCHING PROBE; BLAMES JUDGE

Governor Puts Responsibility for Negro's Death on Jurist and Prosecutor.

JAIL DEFENDERS FELLED

Mob Burns Body in Maryland Street After Dragging It Through Town.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 19.—Responsibility for the lynching of George Armwood, Negro who was dragged from the jail here last night and hanged from a tree near the town limits, was placed today by Governor Ritchie on Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Princess Anne.

Governor Ritchie directed Judge Duer and Mr. Robins "to take immediate action to set in motion the necessary legal machinery for the apprehension of those who were responsible for or who participated in

Lynchings-1933 II

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland.

4122

4122

the lynching."

Armwood, brought here from Baltimore less than seventeen hours earlier to face accusations of attacking an aged white woman, was wrenched from the protection of twenty-five State policemen last night and his body was finally left in a gasoline-soaked pyre on the main business corner.

Batters Down Doors.

The mob of more than 1,000 men, women and youths, stopped temporarily by a tear gas attack from the State police, stormed the jail, battered down the heavy steel doors and after ripping most of the clothes from his body and fastening a rope around his neck, dragged the Negro out into the street.

Eight defenders of the jail fell during the attack, cut by flying stones and bricks. Several members of the mob were seen being carried away.

Armwood was captured Monday night near Pocomoke City as the Negro who earlier in the day grabbed Mrs. Mary Denston, 81-year-old wife of a Somerset farmer, as she was walking home after spending the night with her daughter.

[illegible]

Police Protested Return.

State police rushed the Negro to Baltimore for safekeeping when mobs began to collect in Eastern Shore communities. Early yesterday, over protests of the State police, he was returned to Princess Anne. State police said Armwood had signed a confession.

D. 10-19-33

Despite assurance of Judge Duer and Mr. Robins to the Governor "that there would be no trouble," a mob began collecting early last night outside the jail. When it became threatening, additional State policemen and National Guardsmen were ordered to the scene.

Judge Duer drove to the scene and pleaded to the mob, but he was jeered.

Governor Ritchie offered the services of the State police and other State agencies to assist in the investigation and asked Charles D. Gaither, Police Commissioner of Baltimore, to send several of the city's detectives to "render all the assistance they could."

RITCHIE IMPEACHMENT SOUGHT IN LYNCHING

Constitution

Socialists Accuse Maryland Governor of "Criminal Neglect."

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—(AP)—While investigations were launched today into last night's lynching in Princess Anne, a demand was made here for the impeachment of Governor Albert C. Ritchie.

Atlanta Ga. 10-20-33.

The demand came from the state committee of the socialist party of Maryland in a special meeting. Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty."

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset county, and called for their prosecution "on charges of second-degree manslaughter."

The governor was criticized for having permitted the removal to Princess Anne from Baltimore of George Armwood, a negro, held for assaulting an 81-year-old white farm woman.

"Apparently few people understand the governor's authority in such matters," said Ritchie when informed of the socialists' resolution and the general criticism. "So I have asked the attorney-general to set them straight."

"Governor Ritchie had no authority in the matter," said Attorney-General William Preston Lane Jr. "As a matter of fact, under the Maryland law neither did the judge nor the state's attorney. There is just one individual responsible for the custody of a prisoner, just one individual that can order his removal, and that's the sheriff.

"All Governor Ritchie could do, in fact all anybody except Sheriff Luther Dougherty could do, was to advise the sheriff. And when Sheriff Dougherty came to Baltimore to get that prisoner, he was acting within his rights and neither the governor nor anyone else could stop him. The Maryland law does not give the governor as much authority as some other states."

Armwood was lynched by a mob that stormed the jail and overpowered state police. He was hung to a tree after being dragged behind an automobile through the town's main streets, and his gasoline-saturated nude body was burned in front of the courthouse.

The negro was arrested Monday after Mrs. Mary Denston, the farm woman, was attacked near her home in lower Somerset county. Police said Armwood confessed.

He was brought to Baltimore immediately after his arrest but after spending Tuesday in jail here was taken back to Princess Anne.

In placing the blame on Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins for the lynching, Ritchie said the state's attorney had insisted that Armwood be returned to Somerset county and Judge Duer had assured him the negro would be safe.

INTERRACIAL HEAD SEES CHANCE FOR PRECEDENT

Dr. Will W. Alexander, director of the interracial commission, today telephoned Governor Ritchie, of Maryland; to "set challenging precedent to those states further south where officials habitually fail to apprehend and convict members of lynching mobs."

"Maryland has an opportunity to render most valuable service to civilization by indicting and convicting members of the mob at Princess Anne," Dr. Alexander said in his message. "Such action would set challenging precedent to those states further south where officials habitually fail to apprehend and convict members of lynching mobs, even when confronted as at present with marked increase of mob violence."

The Commission on Interracial Cooperation consists of leading members of the white and negro races and works for the mutual interests of both. It has taken a leading part in fighting lynching, not only in the south but throughout the United States.

New York American

OCT 20 1933

IMPEACHMENT DEMANDED FOR GOV. RITCHIE

Maryland Socialists Also Ask Removal of Prosecutor and Judge in Lynching Case

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19 (AP).—While investigations were launched today into last night's lynching in Princes Anne, a demand was made here for the impeachment of Governor Ritchie.

The demand came from the state committee of the Socialist Party of Maryland, which charged Ritchie with "criminal neglect of duty." The committee also asked for removal of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robbins of Somerset County and called for their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

POLICE OVERPOWERED.

Ritchie was criticized for having permitted the removal to Princess Anne from Baltimore of George Armwood, a Negro held for attacking an aged white woman. Armwood was lynched by a mob that stormed the jail and overpowered state police.

The Negro was arrested Monday after Mrs. Mary Denston had been attacked and was brought to Baltimore. After spending Tuesday in jail here he was taken back to Princess Anne. In placing the blame on Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins for the lynching, Ritchie said Robins had insisted Armwood be returned to Somerset County and Duer had assured him the Negro would be safe.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

The Governor placed the investigation in the hands of William Preston Lane, Jr., Maryland's Attorney General.

Lane said tonight:

"Governor Ritchie had no authority in the matter. As a matter of fact, under the Maryland law, neither did the judge nor the State's Attorney. All Governor Ritchie could do, in fact all anybody except Sheriff Luther Dougherty could do, was to advise the Sheriff. And when Sheriff Dougherty came to Baltimore to get that prisoner, he was acting within his rights and neither the Governor nor anyone else could stop him."

State police said they had the names and addresses of three men, said to have been among the leaders in the mob. They had names of others who threw bricks, rocks and other missiles at the jail guard.

Lynching Arouses Indignation in Harlem

Harlem seethed yesterday in protest against the lynching of George Armwood, Negro, at Princess Anne, Md., the Associated Press reports.

Several demonstrations were held. One group of Negroes massed before the offices of the Liberator, newspaper published by the League of Struggle for Negro Rights.

An appeal to President Roosevelt, asking Federal intervention to stop lynching, was telegraphed by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The lynchings, White said, "are primarily caused by efforts of certain Southern forces to terrorize Negroes into acceptance of wage differentials and lower economic status under the National Recovery Act."

The League of Struggle for Negro Rights issued a statement asking the arrest of the leaders of the lynch mob and demanding the removal of State's Attorney John B. Robbins and Judge Robert F. Duer.

The League held Governor Ritchie responsible for the lynching "for refusing to have Armwood brought back to Baltimore before the Roman holiday."

—Spend a Dollar and Make a Job—

Yes! I Saw It

WILLIAM F. DENSTON

Son Of Woman In Maryland Case Is Mum

Tribune

10-21-33

Philadelphia Pa.

Refuses to Remake Boasts Which Were Told White Papers

By KENTON JACKSON

Despite the fact that he had proudly boasted of the manner in which he had "looked on" while Maryland justice was meted to a defenseless Negro by two thousand of his fellow fiends, William F. Denston, son of the allegedly asaulted 81-year-old Maryland woman, "clammed up" when faced at the Lower Merion Township police station last Sunday.

"I have nothing to say."

Repeated questions concerning his pride in the piece of rope which he brought back from the backwoods as a souvenir and his statement concerning the meagerness of the punishment given, only received in staccato that answer:

"I have nothing to say!"

Denston has been attached to the police force for the last five years and lives at 150 St. Paul Road, Ardmore, with his wife and two small daughters.

He would neither affirm nor deny that he made any statement to the daily press.

The representative first went to his home at the St. Paul Road address where Mrs. Denston was seen. She was courteous. "My husband is not at home but if you want to wait, he will be home about 4:30."

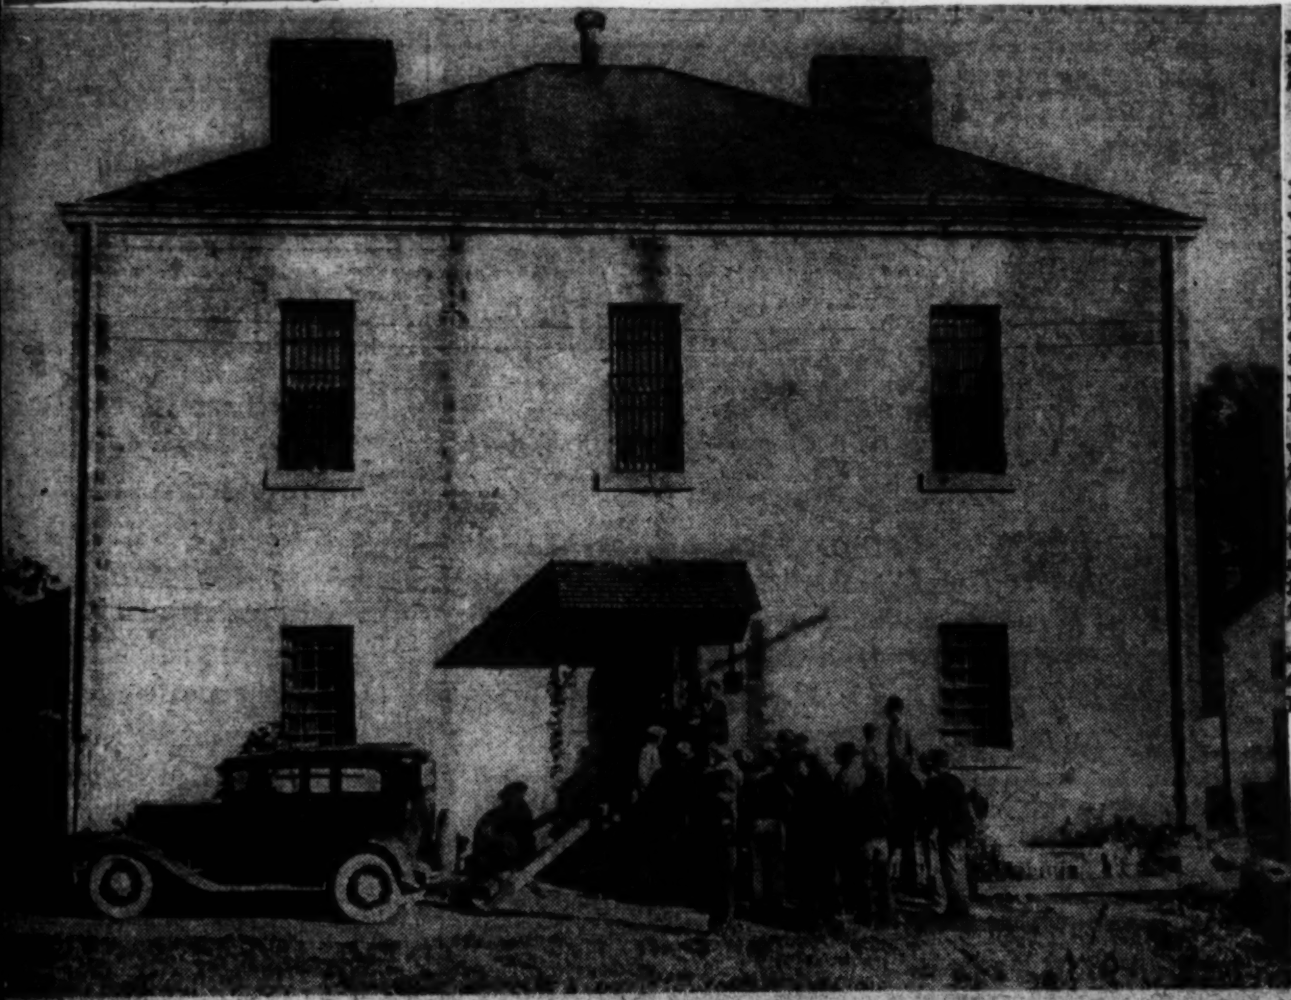
Denston arrived soon after, sat down and asked politely: "Do you want to see me?" But when I identified myself as a reporter, he refused to have anything to say.

In Ardmore Denston boasts a fair reputation among the townsfolk. Negroes of the section seem to have never had any trouble with him during the five years he has been on the police force.

One man, who would not give his name, expressed the belief that "maybe he didn't know that he was talking to a reporter when he boasted of being at the lynching Wednesday night.' Another one said that he was a "pretty good guy", and could give no explanation for his action at the lynching.

NEW YORK TIMES

OCT 20 1933



Associated Press Photo.

MARYLAND JAIL FROM WHICH NEGRO WAS TAKEN BY MOB.

The Somerset County Prison at Princess Anne, Md. One of the Battering Rams Used by the Mob to Open the Jail Can Be Seen at the Door.

MARYLAND BEGINS LYNCHING INQUIRY

Governor Orders Action and Reiterates That Somerset Officials Are to Blame.

HIS IMPEACHMENT ASKED

Socialists Make Demand—Roosevelt Intervention Is Urged by Negro Group.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—By order of Governor Ritchie an investigation was begun today into the lynching last night of George Armwood, Negro, and the wounding of thirteen State troopers by an infuriated mob of men and women at Princess Anne.

William Preston Lane, Attorney General of Maryland, was directed to conduct the inquiry.

State police have obtained the names of seven or eight of the lynching party. These men are under surveillance and their arrest will be ordered as soon as the names of others implicated are learned.

Meanwhile, Magistrate Edgar Jones, acting coroner of Somerset County, impaneled a jury in preparation for an inquest.

Governor Ritchie placed upon Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset County the responsibility for the Negro being at Princess Anne until the mob seized him.

Governor Cites Advice.

The Governor said he had been ready yesterday afternoon to order Armwood's removal to Baltimore following rumors of impending trouble, but that he had been assured by Judge Duer and Mr. Robins that they believed the prisoner

When asked if he would take any steps to impeach the local authorities, Governor Ritchie said.

"I have no power to impeach any one. The Constitution of the State places the power of impeachment in the Legislature."

A Negro was nearly hanged by accident here today as a large number of Communists and members of the International Labor Defense assembled in City Hall Plaza to protest the hanging of Euel Lee, convicted of an Eastern Shore murder two years ago, and the lynching of George Armwood. Governor Ritchie has set the Lee hanging for Oct. 27.

The Negro, his neck in a noose under an imitation gallows, was standing in a truck which was labeled "Protest Lynching of George Armwood."

Police were escorting the truck to the meeting place when it hit a bump in the pavement. The Negro lost his balance and for a moment gave a realistic exhibition of a hanging but was quickly set upon his feet.

Ritchie Impeachment Is Asked.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—A demand for the impeachment of Governor Ritchie was made today by the State committee of the Socialist party in a special meeting. Governor Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty" in the Armwood lynching.

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins of Somerset County.

Protest Is Made to Roosevelt.

Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, at 69 Fifth Avenue, sent a telegram to President Roosevelt yesterday asking for Federal intervention to stop lynching and requesting the President to make a radio address against mob murders. The message was inspired by the Armwood lynching at Princess Anne.

Mr. White's telegram said this was the twenty-first known lynching since Jan. 1.

A statement by the League of Struggle for Negro Rights asked that leaders of the mob be arrested and demanded the removal from office of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robbins.

A group of Negroes made a demonstration in Harlem before the offices of The Liberator, the newspaper published by the league.

NEW YORK SUN

OCT 20 1933

Ritchie Powerless in Lynching

Governor Declares His Hands Are Tied by State Law—Sheriff Held Responsible.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—After protests against the lynching of a Negro at Princess Anne and demands for action against members of the mob and local public officials reached his office, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie asserted he was powerless to act.

His statement followed adoption of resolutions by the executive committee of the Socialist party in Maryland calling for impeachment of the Governor "for criminal neglect of duty" and the removal of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset county.

The Socialist resolutions also asked for the arrest of the two officials of Somerset county where George Armwood, Negro accused of assaulting a white woman, was lynched by a mob on Wednesday night, and their prosecution "on charges of manslaughter."

Attorney-General William P. Lane Jr. said in reply to an opinion from the Chief Executive, "Gov. Ritchie had no authority in the matter. As a matter of fact, under the Maryland law neither did the Judge nor the State's Attorney."

He said the individual responsible for the custody of the prisoner was Sheriff Luther Dougherty.

John Richardson, held as an accessory after the fact, early today was lodged in the Baltimore city jail for safe keeping. He had been held in the Princess Anne jail for aiding in Armwood's escape after the alleged assault.

No date has ben set for a Coroner's inquest at Princess Anne into the death of Armwood. Three Baltimore detectives who were sent to Princess Anne to make an investigation returned to Baltimore after spending less than a day at the scene of the lynching.

Maryland

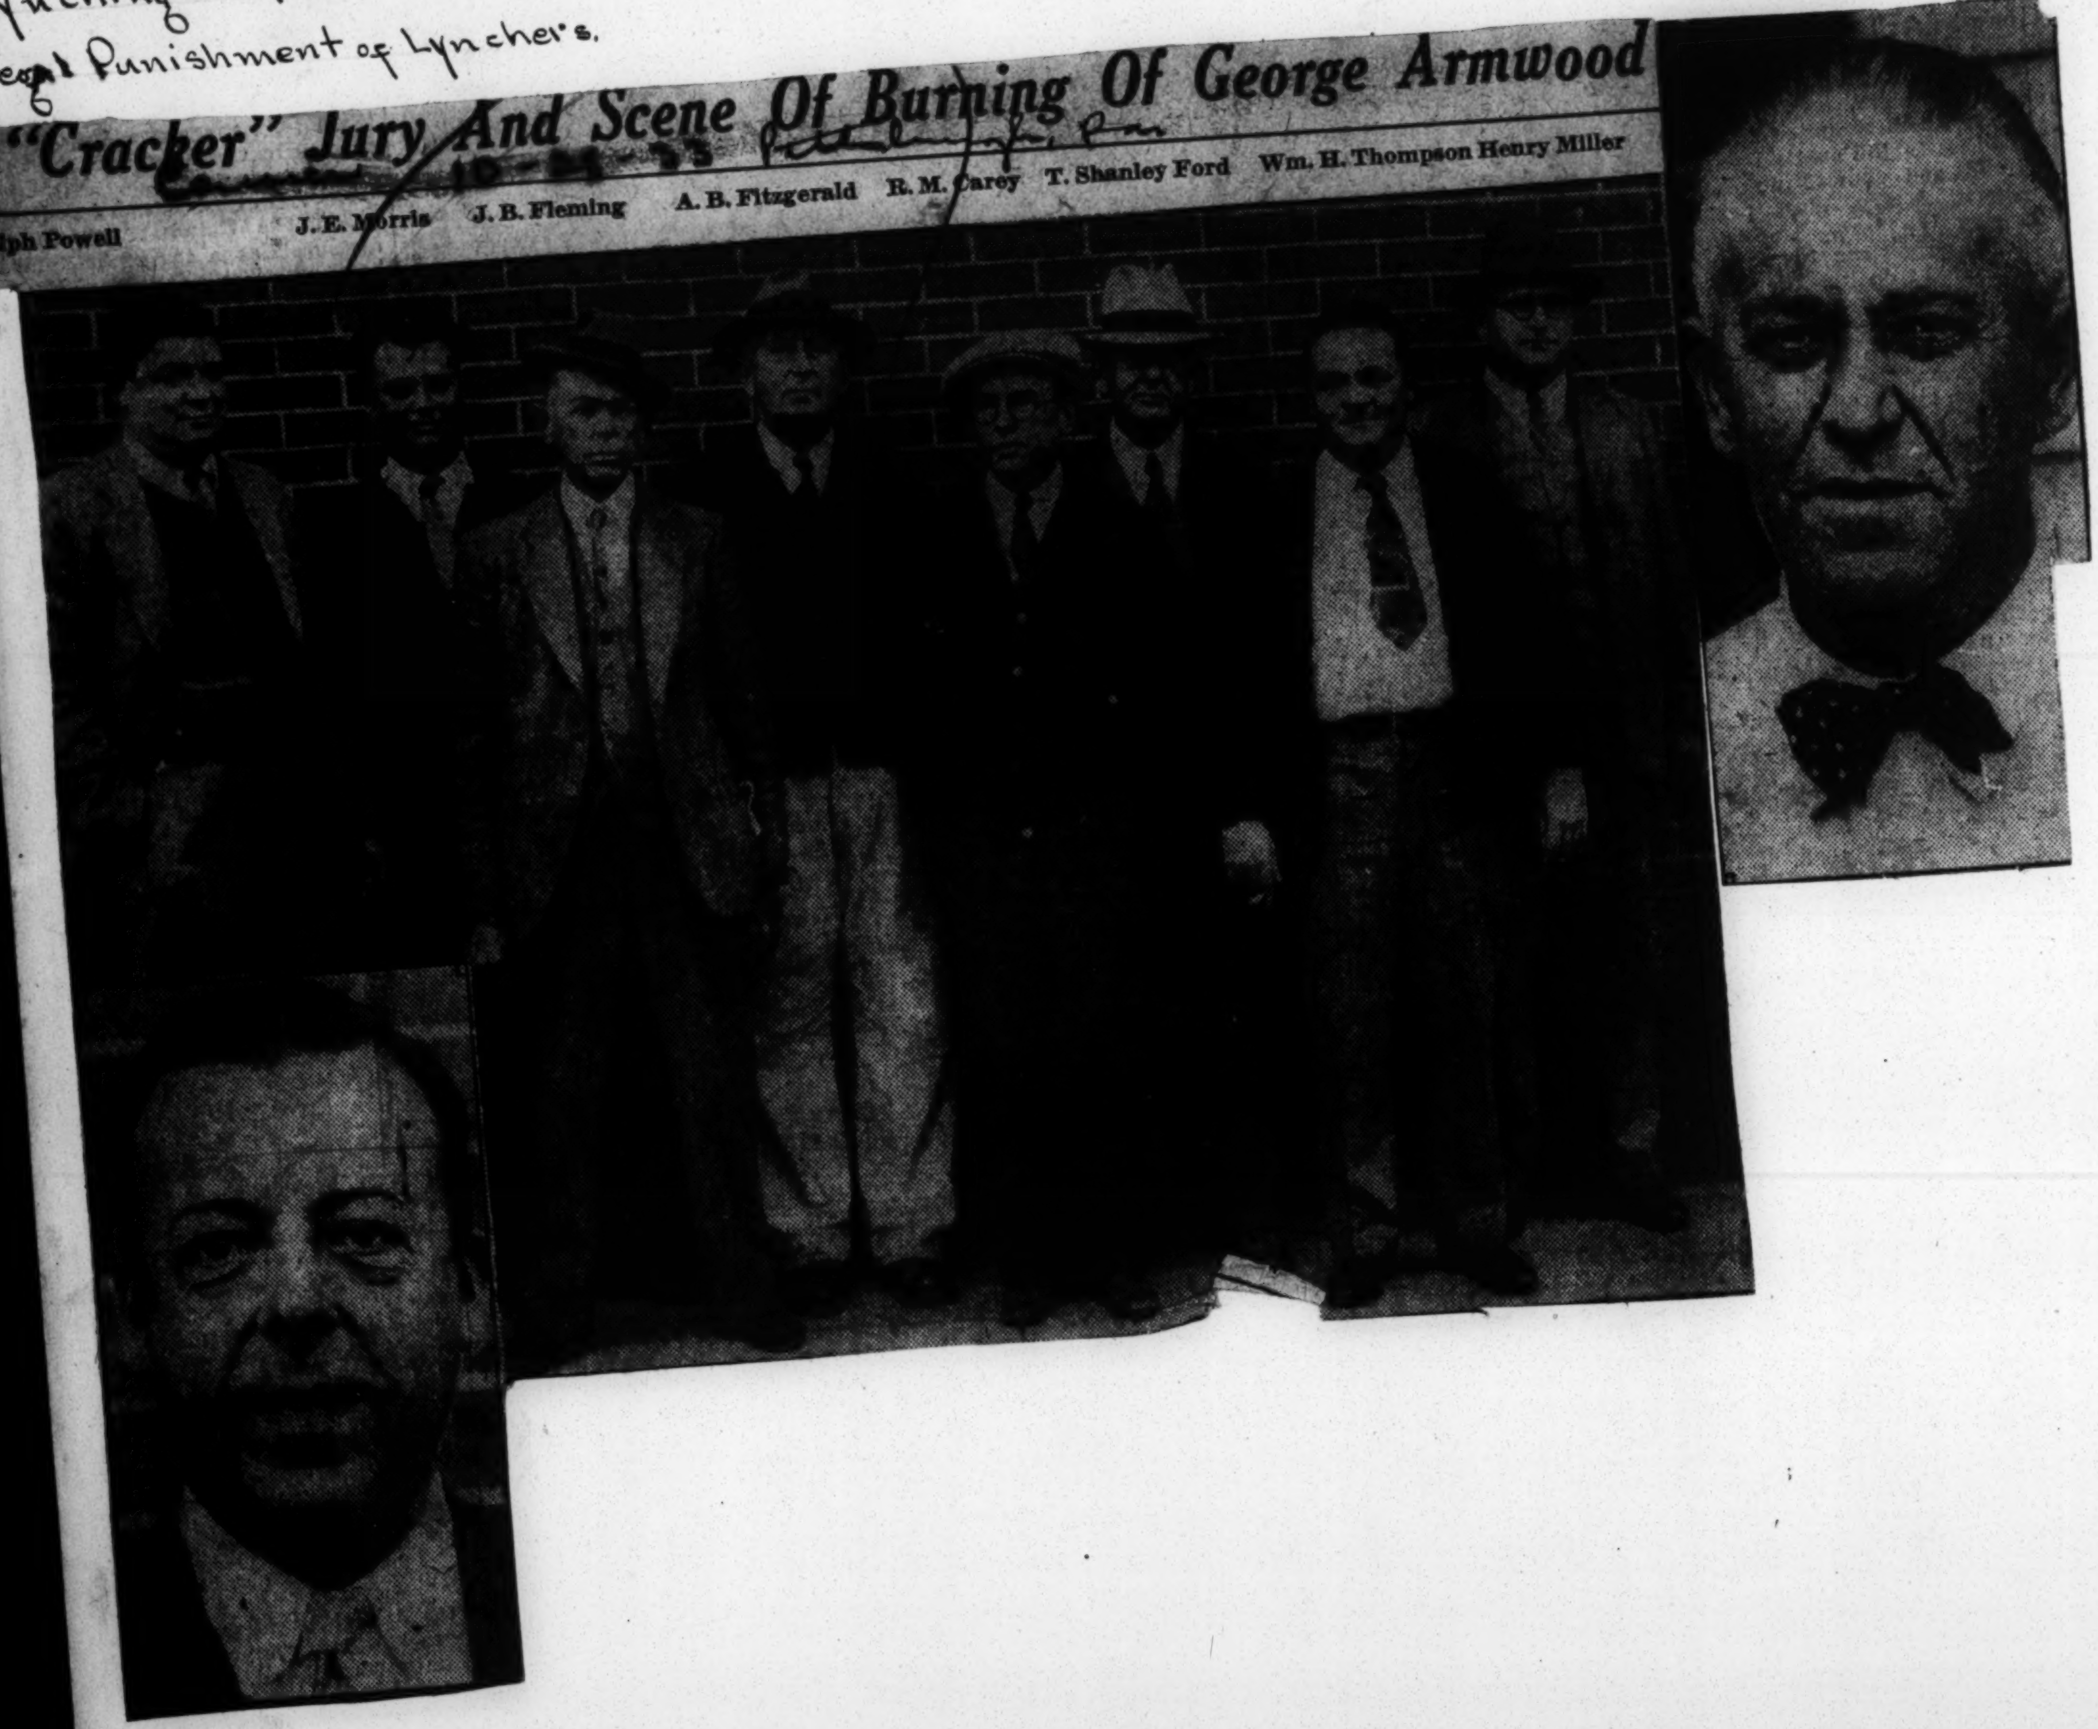
4123

Lynchings - 1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

"Cracker" Jury And Scene Of Burning Of George Armwood

Courier 10-21-33 Pittsburgh, Pa.



Ralph Powell J. E. Morris J. B. Fleming A. B. Fitzgerald R. M. Carey T. Shanley Ford Wm. H. Thompson Henry Miller

NEW YORK SUN

OCT 19 1933

Gov. Ritchie Demands Speedy Arrest of Lynching Leaders

Acts Quickly After Mob Storms Princess Anne Jail and Seizes Negro, Who Is Burned to Death on Main Street.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Responsibility for the lynching of George Armwood, Negro who was dragged from the jail here last night and hanged from a tree near the town limits, was placed today by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie squarely on the shoulders of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Princess Anne.

Gov. Ritchie directed Judge Duer, a member of the bench of the First Judicial district, and State's Attorney Robins "to take immediate action to set in motion the necessary legal machinery for the apprehension of those who were responsible for or who participated in the lynching."

Armwood, brought back here from Baltimore less than seventeen hours earlier to face accusations of attacking an aged white woman, was wrenched from the protection of twenty-five State policemen last night and his body finally left in a gasoline-soaked pyre on the main business corner.

The mob of more than a thousand men, women and youths, stopped temporarily by a tear gas attack from the State police, stormed the jail, battered down the heavy steel doors and after ripping most of the clothes from his body and fastening a rope around his neck, dragged the Negro out into the street.

Jail Defenders Felled.

Eight defenders of the jail fell during the attack, cut by flying stones and bricks. Among them was Capt. Jack McK. Johnson, head of the State police, who was knocked unconscious. Several members of the mob were seen being carried away, but their number and injuries were not revealed.

Armwood was captured Monday night near Pocomoke City as the Negro, who earlier in the day grabbed Mrs. Mary Denston, eighty-one-year-old wife of a Somerset farmer, as she was walking home after spending the night with her daughter.

The State police rushed the Negro to Baltimore for safekeeping when mobs began to collect in Eastern Shore communities. Early yesterday, over protests of the State police, he was returned to Princess Anne in preparation for the convening of the Grand Jury next week.

The State police said Armwood had signed a confession in Baltimore, admitting the attack on the woman.

Despite the assurance of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins to the Governor "that there would be no trouble," a mob began collecting early last night outside the jail. When it became threatening additional State policemen and National Guardsmen from Pocomoke City and Crisfield were ordered to the scene.

Judge Pleads With Mob.

Judge Duer, interrupting his dinner to drive to the scene, made a personal plea to the mob to let the Negro remain in jail—promising a speedy trial for the prisoner.

But his plea was answered from the group by cries of "How about Euel Lee?" and "We ain't gonna have no Euel Lee in Somerset county!"

They referred to the Negro now under sentence to be hanged for the murder two years ago of Green K. Davis, a farmer of an adjoining county. The case has been carried through the State courts and only last week the United States Supreme Court refused to review the evidence.

Dr. George W. Jarman, prominent physician of Princess Anne, who accompanied Judge Duer, also spoke informally to the mob, but he also was received with jeers mingled with friendly gibes.

Shortly after their departure the mob, apparently without any leaders but with the single purpose of getting the Negro, began pressing the police lines around the jail. The officers retreated to the jail door and then tossed tear gas bombs at the attackers.

Pausing only a few minutes, the mob got two large pieces of timber from a nearby lumber yard and rushed toward the outer steel doors, battering them down. The second jail doors were opened from the inside.

Take Cell Keys From Warden.

Deputy Sheriff Norman Dryden, warden of the jail, said some men took the keys out of his pocket, adding "I was just scared they were going to get the wrong man."

Sheriff Luther Daugherty appeared on the scene and tried to persuade the invaders to leave but they pressed on to the second floor and soon returned with the Negro. He was gashed on the head and chest but made no outcry.

Partly pulling him on a run and partly dragging him in the road, the mob led him out the main street to the home of Judge Duer. There was no large tree there so they threw the rope over a limb of an oak tree on the adjoining lawn.

Armwood was limp when the mob reached the tree and apparently was dead.

Rope Cut Into Souvenirs.

After the men failed in an attempt to set fire to what remained of his trousers, the Negro was dropped to the ground and dragged to the main intersection, where the body was saturated with gasoline and set afire. The rope was cut into short pieces and distributed as souvenirs.

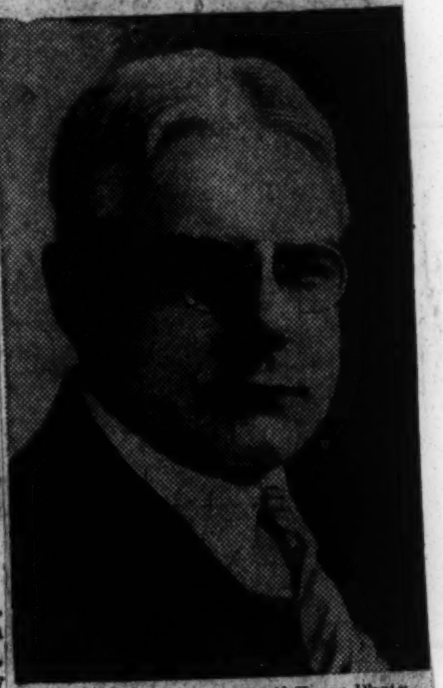
The body laid in the street several hours as local undertakers refused to touch it. Finally the State police put it in a truck and took it away.

Judge Duer later said he was "badly mistaken in my judgment of what would happen," but State's Attorney Robins could not be reached.

Gov. Ritchie, in Annapolis, said "I am shocked beyond expression at this horrible lynching."

He offered the services of the State police and other State agencies to assist in the investigation and asked Charles D. Gaither, Police Commissioner of Baltimore, to send several of the city's detectives to "render all the assistance they could."

DECRIES LYNCHING



Associated Press Photo.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4124

NEW YORK MIRROR

OCT 20 1933

Negro, Accused of Attack on Woman, Lynched By Mob

(International)

This photo of George Armwood, Negro, was taken while he was en route to the Princess Anne, Md., jail in custody of officials, accused of attacking Mrs. Mary Denston, 81-year-old white farm woman. Shortly afterwards, an armed mob dragged the prisoner from his cell, hanged him next to the home of Judge Robert Duer (held responsible for official negligence) and then burned the body.

Judge Gets Blame for Lynching

New York Mirror

10-20-33

Special Dispatch to Daily Mirror.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 19.—This little community is quiet today, resting from its orgy of blood and fire in which the life of George Armwood, a Negro, was bestially taken by a mob, the numbers of which virtually equal the 1930 census for the municipality.

Gov. Ritchie

Quiet under the watchful eyes of two companies of militiamen encamped here to insure that quiet. Quiet under the barrage of investigations, one of which was ordered by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to be pushed by Attorney General W. Preston Lane, Jr.

Armwood was dragged from jail by a masked army of men and boys, beaten to death and hanged, stripped, then cut down, dragged to the city square and there burned.

He had been arrested on suspicion of attacking an eighty-one-year-old farm woman, Mrs. Mary Denston.

Governor Ritchie holds responsible States Attorney John B. Robins and Judge Robert F. Duer. It was next to the judge's home the Negro was hanged by the mob almost equally infuriated at the Judge for attempting to stop their act. The Governor believes that the officials should have taken the prisoner out of the locality. He had offered them protection which was refused as "unnecessary."

State troopers did come here to guard the Negro, but they were routed by the sheer force of bodies in the mob and twelve of them were severely beaten. Three are still in hospital.

Judge Duer is closeted at his home, refusing all visitors. State's Attorney Robins is noncommital concerning the Governor's placing of the blame on his shoulders and says simply that he is doing the best in his power to bring the ringleaders of the mob to justice.

He denied that he had the names of any suspects.

Magistrate Edgar Jones, acting as Coroner, called a jury today and showed the jurors the body of the murdered Negro, then adjourned the session indefinitely.

Mass Anger Forces Talk of Federal Probe of Lynchings

Daily Worker

By MARGUERITE YOUNG

(Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The Department of Justice today informed the Daily Worker that federal investigation of the lynching of George Armwood in Maryland and Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden in Tuscaloosa, Ala., is now receiving serious consideration in the Department.

11-4-33

"We are now studying both of these matters," an official close to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, said. "If we have authority to investigate, we will use it. Both questions are in the hands of an assistant attorney general."

New York

The demands for investigation of the shameful Princess Anne lynching were transmitted to Attorney General Cummings by Louis

Henry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, who received them from a delegation of white and Negro spokesmen for mass organizations. The group, led by William L. Patterson, secretary of the International Labor Defense, gave Howe evidence to show that constitutional rights are being scotched by the failure of Maryland authorities, from Governor Ritchie down, to bring about prosecution of known leaders of the mob who murdered George Armwood, Negro worker.

The attorney general personally received specific demands for federal prosecution of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa, Ala., who deliberately delivered Pippen, Harden and Elmore to a bloodthirsty mob. The gang murdered Pippen and Harden and attacked Clarke and left him, apparently believing him dead, on a lonely Alabama road. The case was presented by spokesmen for the I.L.D., the American Civil Liberties Union, the National Committee for Defense of Political Prisoners and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

That was last August. The attorney general asked the delegation to submit a brief. This was done, and weeks having elapsed without action, two more memorandums were submitted, on Aug. 24 and Oct. 13, respectively, by the International Juridical Association.

And in these communications the whole train of the barbaric events that led to the mass murders is traced for the attorney general, along with a summary of the two other lynchings which followed in Tuscaloosa.

BALTIMORE, MD.

MORNING SUN

OCT 31 1933

LANE IS IN DOUBT ON VISIT TO SHORE

Uncertain As To Date He Will Start Lynching Investigation There

TOMORROW, HE THINKS

Names Of Three Witnesses Given By State Police To Probers

William Preston Lane, Jr., Attorney-General, does not know yet for certain when he is going to the Eastern Shore to probe the Princess Anne lynching he said yesterday. He thinks he may go tomorrow.

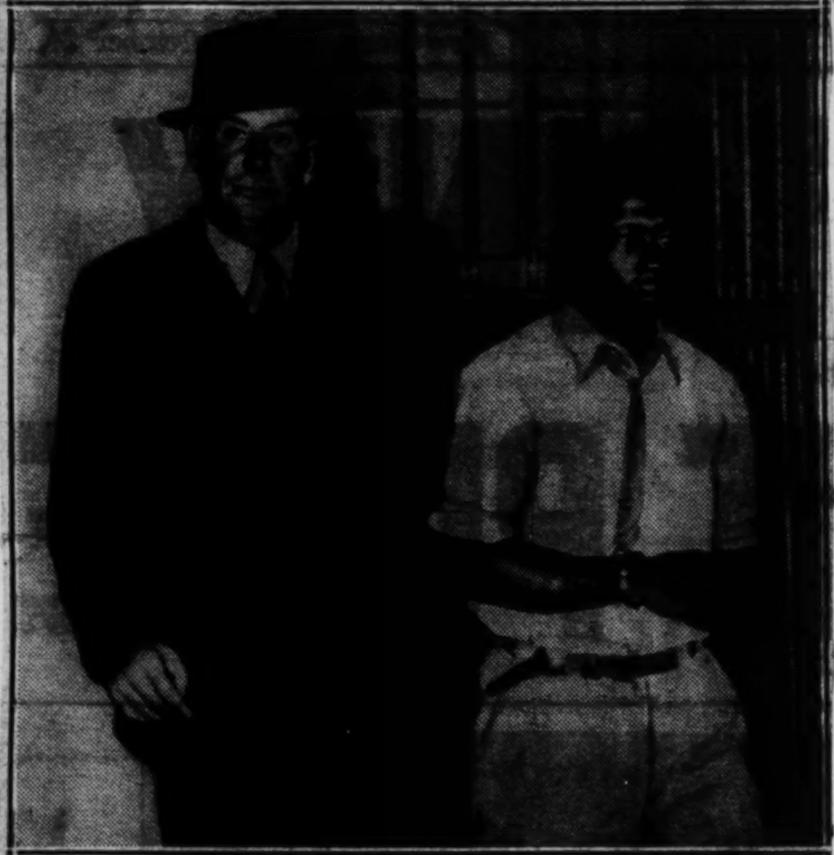
The names of three witnesses which were obtained by State police who were at the jail the night of the lynching have been given to the investigators, it has been reported.

Two of them are said to be residents of Princess Anne.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

OCT 2 0 1933

Impeach Gov. Ritchie! Cry in Lynch Probe



(By Acme)

George Armwood, lynched in Maryland, with Sheriff Luther Daugherty of Somerset County, Md., shortly before the prisoner was seized by mob. Daugherty said he didn't recognize any one in lynch mob.

Maryland Executive Places Blames on Local Officers.

(By Associated Press)

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19—While investigations were launched today into last night's lynching in Princess Anne, a demand was made here for the impeachment of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

The demand came from the State committee of the Socialist Party of Maryland in a special meeting. Ritchie was charged with "criminal neglect of duty."

The committee also asked for removal from office of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset County, and called for their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

Judge Robert F. Duer

Mrs. Mary Denston

The Governor was criticized for having permitted the removal to Princess Anne from Baltimore of George Armwood, colored, held for assulting Mrs. Mary Denston, an 81-year-old white farm woman.

First Taken to Baltimore.

Armwood was lynched by a mob that stormed the jail and overpowered by State police. He was hanged to a tree after being dragged behind an automobile through the town's main streets, and his gasoline-saturated body was burned in front of the courthouse.

He had been brought to Baltimore immediately after his arrest Monday, but after spending Tuesday in jail here was taken back to Princess Anne.

Gov. Ritchie, however, placed the blame on Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins for the lynching. Gov. Ritchie said the State's Attorney had insisted that Armwood be returned to Somerset County and Judge Duer had assured him the prisoner would be safe.

Bernard Ades, attorney here for the communistic International Labor Defense, said: "If Gov. Ritchie is sincere in his statement that responsibility rests not on him but on Judge Duer and Mr. Robins, let him order their arrest."

Harlem Sends Protest To President Roosevelt.

Harlem yesterday boiled with protest meetings and demonstrations against the lynching of colored George Armwood at Princess Anne, Md. Street corner orators attracted large crowds.

Formal protest to President Roosevelt was made by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He declared that the slain colored man was a mental defective and should have been in an institution.

"We respectfully urge you as President to express in unequivocal terms your opposition to mob law through public pronouncement, as did your distinguished predecessor, Woodrow Wilson," the association telegram to President Roosevelt read.

$1,000 REWARD OFFERED FOR MD. LYNCHERS

Courier 11-11-33

Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(CNS)—Declaring that no genuine effort is being made by public officials to identify the lynchers of George Armwood at Princess Anne, Md., the American Civil Liberties Union offers a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the final conviction in the courts of any member of the lynch mob which murdered Armwood on October 17, 1933.

"The A. C. L. U. has posted this offer of a reward," said Roger N. Baldwin, director, "because it is plain that without such an incentive witnesses will not talk. It is already apparent that no genuine effort is being made by the public officials charged with the investigation. The state of feeling on the Eastern Shore is evidently such that any witness runs considerable risk in coming forward with specific identification. Yet obviously many members of the mob can be identified by State troopers, officials and bystanders.

"In no lynch case in recent years were members of the mob so easy to identify. Failure to do so condemns the administration of justice in Maryland. While we offer this reward in the hope that identifications will be made, indictments found and convictions obtained, we have already indicated our doubts by appealing to the Attorney General of the United States for a Federal investigation, to be followed by appropriate action in the Federal courts. Our attorneys advise us that such an investigation is authorized by stotute and that proceedings may be had in the Federal courts where the State courts fail to act."

Ritchie In Center Of Political Row; Asked To Retire

Advocate 11-18-33

[illegible] Fla.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Governor Albert C. Ritchie, for 14 years chief executive of Maryland and last year a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination within the past few weeks has become the center of a fight between his critics and defenders in political, religious, and inter-racial circles in every section of the State.

ALBERT C. RITCHIE

Some critics are demanding his impeachment, others distributing petitions asking him not to run again. His friends are rushing to his defense in the press and at public meetings. Last week arrangements were for 800 plates at a dinner in his honor. Two thousand attended.

The recent lynching at Princess Anne, after the Governor had been advised to have the negro removed from the jail, his long term in office, and his advocacy of a State-operated lottery are being used as the basis for many of the attacks.

His pioneer work for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, his efforts for a revision of the State criminal court procedure, and his recent fights against proposed increases in the State's bonded indebtedness are among the points being raised in his defense.

The Governor has given no indication if he would be a candidate to succeed himself, but 10,000 individual petitions were distributed recently by his opponents asking him "for the best interest of our people" not to be a candidate for a fifth term.

The only announced Democratic candidate for governor Dr. Charles H. Conley, a Frederick physician, has based his early remarks almost entirely on an attack of the administration.

Maryland.

4125

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

GOV. OVERLOOKS RACE IN NAMING LAW COMMITTEE

Afro-American

Thought of Appointing Negroes Never Occurred to Him.

11-14-33

PLANS SPEEDY TRIALS IN STATE

Baltimore, Md.

Move to Keep Out All Organization Lawyers.

BALTIMORE, Md.—

Queried as to why he had failed to appoint a Negro representative on the newly found judicial committee to facilitate legal machinery, Governor Albert C. Ritchie stated that the idea of such an appointment never occurred to him.

The Governor in a statement to the AFRO said that he saw no reason why he should now add a colored member to the board which has been functioning for ten days.

The Governor asserted that he had appointed men whom he deemed capable of handling the problem and since their time of report was so near he did not think it would be wise to appoint any more.

Will Accept Advice.

He reported that advice would be accepted and welcomed, but he realized he couldn't see the point in making any additions at this late date. In the meantime the committee, under the direction of State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Conor, moved the [illegible] "Lily White" juries this week by considering a proposal to [illegible] a uniform method of selecting jurymen.

The investigators have been drawn from the ranks of jurists, State officials and practicing lawyers, with [illegible] that they will be able to [illegible] a more speedy type of justice [illegible] state courts and thereby [illegible] mob violence.

Ades Raps Move.

[illegible] was openly branded as a means of increasing the danger of race convictions, when the defendants were innocent, by Bernard Ades, of the International Labor Defense. Mr. Ades pointed out that justice needed to be slow in order to give any semblance of a fair trial.

The case of Euel Lee, which was drawn out over a period of two years, is being used as the classic illustration of justice's failure to be efficient under our present laws, by State officials.

It is expected that the commission will report to the special sesson of the legislature within the next two weeks. Special attention is being given to methods whereby the trials in each county may be made more prompt.

Three Sub-Committees.

Mr. O'Conor has appointed three sub-committees to study the need of bills on various phases of the subject to be introduced at the special session of the legislature.

The first under the direction of Chief Judge Samuel K. Dennis, white, will consider the advisability of requiring the immediate removal of the prisoner, in capital and other extraordinary cases, to a remote place for safekeeping.

It will also attempt to determine the necessity of making it mandatory upon the court to resummon the grand jury for the consideration of such cases. The requiring of the assignment of the case to be tried within a certain period, the resummoning of the petit jury, and the holding of the sheriff responsible for any violence done to the prisoner will also be studied by this group.

Edgar Allen Poe, white, heads the second sub-committee, which has as its aim the securing of a provision to provide for an able defense counsel "free from outside interests of a conflicting nature"; the bearing of the removed prisoner's transportation expenses by the state; elimination of discrimination in the selection of juries; limitation of the general public's right to attend trials, to consider the desirability of preventing juries from deciding on the law; and provisions relating to insanity as a defense in criminal cases.

A third committee under Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond, also whte, will attempt to set a period within which appeals should be noted, to consider whether original transcript can be sent to the Court of Appeals, to set a period within which briefs must be sent to the aforementioned court, the setting of definite time in which the court shall hear arguments, and an announcement of the decision as soon as possible.

Lynchings - 1933
&
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland.

4126

State's Attorney Refuses To Jail Lynch Suspects

11-18-33

CRISFIELD, MD., Nov. 17—(AP)—The Somerset County prosecutor today denied the request of the Maryland State administration for the immediate arrest of nine men whom eye witnesses, in sworn affidavits, charged with participation in last month's lynching of a negro at Princess Anne.

If the men were jailed, said the prosecutor, State's Atty. John B. Robins, a crowd probably "would come and take them away."

Robins also declined the request of Atty. Gen. William Preston Lane, Jr., to hold a public hearing of the evidence against the nine men before a magistrate.

"If we did that there would be lots of excitement and lots of publicity," he declared.

"The magistrate might feel that he should order those men held on a charge of murder and they would be put in jail without bail. I seriously doubt they would stay there."

Robins added, however, that he believed Lane had evidence sufficient to warrant reconvening the Grand Jury and that this would be done at the Attorney General's request.

State Action Sought In Lynching Probe

11-19-33

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Attorney-General William Preston Lane Jr. today endeavored to enlist the three judges of the first judicial district in his efforts to secure the immediate arrest of nine men whom eye-witnesses swore had a part in the lynching of George Armwood, negro, at Princess Anne, last month.

Lane sent the judges the correspondence between him and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset county, who has declined to have the arrests made and the men brought before a magistrate for a public hearing. He gave his own position and Robins' statement that to arrest the nine men at this time would be to invite another mob to form and take them from jail.

ARRESTS REFUSED IN LYNCHING CASE

Constitution

Maryland Prosecutor Declines To Round Up 9 Named in Affidavits.

11-14-33

CRISFIELD, Md., Nov. 17—(AP)—The Somerset county prosecutor today denied the request of the Maryland state administration for the immediate arrest of nine men whom eye-witnesses, in sworn affidavits, charged with participation in last month's lynching of a negro at Princess Anne.

If the men were jailed, said the prosecutor, State's Attorney John B. Robins, a crowd probably "would come and take them away."

Robins also declined the request of Attorney-General William Preston Lane Jr., to hold a public hearing of the evidence against the nine men before a magistrate.

"If we did that there would be lots of excitement and lots of publicity," he declared.

Jury May Reconvene.

"The magistrate might feel that he should order those men held on a charge of murder and they would be put in jail without bail. I seriously doubt they would stay there."

Robins added, however, that he believed Lane had evidence sufficient to warrant reconvening the grand jury and that this would be done at the attorney-general's request.

Lane today reiterated his statement, previously made to Robins, that a secret grand jury investigation was just what he wanted to avoid.

"I want this evidence made public," said the attorney-general. "That will put the matter squarely up to the Somerset jury with the public knowing what evidence it has before it."

Awaits Action by Lane.

Robins said he would make no move until he had "further advices" from Lane.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie today agreed with Lane that a secret grand jury hearing "is just what we want to avoid."

Robins yesterday received from Lane a brief of the evidence the attorney-general had collected through state policemen and Baltimore detectives. The evidence and information, said Lane, named nine men, giving the address and occupation of each, and described the part each took when a crowd stormed the jail, swept le state policemen and dragged out George Armwood, negro accused of an attack on an aged white woman.

"Why, I even drew maps, showing where each of the nine was," said Lane today.

Arrests Requested.

Lane asked Robins to have the men arrested at once and arrange for a hearing before a magistrate who could order the nine held if the evidence justified a finding of "probable cause."

"If Lane wants those men arrested, let him come down here and arrest them," said Robins today.

In his letter to the attorney-general, however, he said that his difference with the attorney-general was as to local conditions and procedure rather than any difference in desire to press the case against the nine men.

"You are in Baltimore and, I believe, do not realize the situation here," he wrote the attorney-general. "The swearing out of warrants and the arrest of these parties would, in my humble judgment, create a condition that might be serious."

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN

NOV 6 1933

LYNCH PROBE GROUP PLANS TO SPEED QUIZ

Robins To Confer With Judges, Sheriff In Somerset Today

A conference between the three judges of the First Judicial Circuit and State's Attorney John B. Robins and Sheriff Luther Daugherty, of Somerset county, was to be held this afternoon on the Eastern Shore in an effort to speed up the investigation into the lynching of George Armwood.

It was expected that the meeting would be held at Cambridge, either at the home or the office of Chief Judge John R. Pattison.

Associate Judges Robert F. Duer and Joseph L. Bailey are attending the meeting. It was not known whether Robins and Daugherty would be accompanied by any other officials of Somerset county.

Plans Not Revealed

The future course of the State's investigation has not been revealed either by the Shore officials or by Attorney-General William Preston Lane, Jr. It is expected, however, that this afternoon's conference may do much toward determining the course of action.

Decision to hold the conference between the judges and the county officials was made as a result of a meeting Friday afternoon in the offices of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, at Annapolis. Lane made a report at the Annapolis meeting to the Governor and to the judges.

Ritchie Gets Report

The three judges were expected to ask Robins at today's conference whether his probe has turned up any evidence at all which might lead to the identity of the lynchers of George Armwood. So far, Robins has said, neither he nor the Sheriff has been able to identify anyone even remotely connected with "the overt act."

A number of eyewitnesses have been located, but all these men have agreed unanimously that they didn't see anybody they knew at the lynching.

Plans for recalling the coroner's jury may be made soon as a result of the conference today. The jury was adjourned by Coroner Edgar A. Jones without having returned a verdict, at the request of the Attorney-General. The State policemen who were overpowered by the mob are still to be questioned.

LYNCH CONFEREES MAINTAIN SILENCE

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—None of those present would reveal what was said behind closed doors last Friday during a four-hour conference between Governor Albert C. Ritchie and three judges of the First Judicial District, with William Preston Lane, Jr., attorney-general, who is directing the investigation of the Armwood lynching.

It was pointed out that if it is decided to present whatever information Mr. Lane has obtained before the coroner's jury, the data would be made public before it reaches the grand jury of Somerset County.

Suffolk, Va., News-Herald
October 20, 1933

SOCIALISTS ASK REMOVAL OF TWO AT MOB SCENE

After Criticizing Lynching of Negro At Princess Anne and Asking Impeachment of Governor Ritchie, Go After Judge and Sheriff.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20. (AP)—After protests against the lynching of a Negro at Princess Anne and demands for action against members of the mob and local public officials reached his office, Governor Albert C. Ritchie asserted he was powerless to act.

His statement followed adoption of resolutions by the executive committee of the Socialist party in Maryland calling for impeachment of the Governor "for criminal neglect of duty" and the removal of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset County.

The Socialist resolutions also asked for the arrest of the two officials of Somerset County where George Armwood, Negro accused of assaulting a white woman, was lynched by a mob Wednesday night, and their prosecution "on charges of second degree manslaughter."

Attorney General William P. Lane, Jr., said in reply to an opinion from the chief executive, "Governor Ritchie had no authority in the matter. As a matter of fact, under the Maryland law neither did the judge nor the state's attorney."

He said the individual responsible for the custody of a prisoner was that of Sheriff Luther Dougherty.

John Richardson, held as an accessory after the fact, early today was lodged in the Baltimore city jail for safe keeping. He had been held in the Princess Anne jail for aiding in Armwood's escape after the alleged assault.

No date has been set for a coroner's inquest at Princess Anne into the death of Armwood. Three Baltimore detectives who were sent to Princess Anne to make an investigation returned to Baltimore after spending less than a day at the scene of the lynching.

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
NOV 7 1933

GRAND JURY RECALL IN LYNCHING SLATED

Shore Judges And Prosecutor Decide Evidence Now Warrants Move

Somerset county's grand jury will be recalled within three weeks to take up the investigation into the lynching of George Armwood at Princess Anne. The decision to recall the body was made late yesterday at a conference between the three judges of the First Judicial Circuit and State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset county.

The summoning of the grand jury means, it was said, that the probe so far has turned up enough evidence to warrant the recall. Some days ago Robins said he had no evidence to present to the jury even if it were reconvened.

Evidence Held Sufficient

Chief Judge John R. Pattison and Associate Judges Robert F. Duer and Joseph L. Bailey begin a term of court in Dorchester county next Monday. Hence it is impossible to recall the Somerset grand jury at once. It may be possible to call the body, however, in a little more than two weeks, it was said.

Details of yesterday's conference, held at Cambridge, were not revealed today. It was understood, however, that part of the discussion concerned whether there was enough evidence to warrant recalling the grand jury. The judges decided that there was enough evidence.

Coroner's Problem

Another question still to be decided is this: Shall the coroner's inquest be concluded at once, or shall it be continued until after the grand jury is reconvened? Continuing the inquest now might mean the public airing of evidence which, some investigators feel, might better be presented in secret to the grand jury.

This question was not discussed at the conference at Cambridge, it was said. The decision probably will be left to Attorney-General William Preston Lane, Jr., since it was at his request that the inquest was adjourned before State policemen had been questioned. The police witnesses are officers who were overpowered by the mob that hanged and burned Armwood.

Withholds Decision

Asked if he would recommend that the coroner's investigation be continued or concluded, Lane said that he was unable to answer until he had conferred with Judge Pattison. The words he expected to have with the Chief Judge of the Eastern Shore Circuit, he indicated, would settle the issue.

Lane said that he had talked to Judge Pattison over the telephone today and that he would meet with the judge tomorrow in Annapolis after the session of the Court of Appeals.

It is expected that the future course of the probe will assume a clear-cut character after the meeting tomorrow.

When questioned this morning Lane was closeted with Assistant Attorney-General G. C. A. Anderson, Detective Lieutenant Joseph Itzel and State Police Lieutenant Ruxton Ridgely. Each of these has been active in the investigation of the lynching.

Yesterday's conference was called as a result of a meeting at the office of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie last Friday. The three judges and the Attorney-General conferred for several hours, and Lane reported on the progress of his investigation.

BALTIMORE, MD.
POST
NOV 4 1933

SECRET QUIZ ON SHORE PLANNED IN LYNCH PROBE

Attorney General Lane May Visit Somerset County Over Week-End

CONFERS AT ANNAPOLIS

Governor, Three Judges, and Prosecutors Hold Parley To Push Inquiry

A secret visit to Somerset County by Attorney General William Preston Lane over the week-end in his investigation of the Armwood lynching was reported probable today, following a conference of judges and state prosecutors with Governor Ritchie at Annapolis yesterday.

Mr. Lane, who has been delaying his proposed trip to the Eastern Shore, was present at the conference, as was one of his aides, Assistant Attorney General G. C. A. Anderson.

Following the conference, the two prosecutors returned to Baltimore. Reports were that Mr. Lane, and possibly Mr. Anderson also, might go to Somerset County this afternoon.

Detectives at Parley

Also present at the conference yesterday were Detective Lieut. Joseph Itzel and Detective Sergt. William Flynn, who returned from the Eastern Shore last Wednesday night after a flying trip to check up on six angles of the lynching that Mr. Lane wanted investigated.

Three judges from the lower Eastern Shore—Chief Judge John R. Pattison, of the First Judicial Circuit, and Associate Judges Robert F. Duer and Joseph L. Bailey—also attended the conference, held in Governor Ritchie's office in the State House.

Debate Procedure

It is said their principal topic was the procedure to be followed henceforth in the lynching investigation. For the past two weeks the investigators have been considering placing all the information they have learned in the lynching before the coroner's jury, which was convened a day or so after the lynching and which was never dismissed. Attorney General Lane asked that the jury be adjourned subject to call, and such was done.

If the evidence is laid before the coroner's jury it will be done in public—quite a different proposition from placing evidence in secret before the grand jury. The investigators propose to do away with the secrecy which followed the investigation of the Salisbury lynching two years ago. This latter probe resulted in the indictment of no one.

NINE ARRESTS ASKED IN LYNCHING PROBE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Attorney-General, William Preston Lane Jr. tonight announced that he had asked Somerset county authorities to arrest nine men on charges of participating in the lynching of George Armwood, negro, at Princess Anne, Md., on the night of October 18.

ORDER TO ARREST LYNCHERS DEFIED

Macon Telegraph

Prosecutor Refuses to Obey Request of State Officials in Princess Anne Case

Macon Ga.

CRISFIELD, Md., Nov. 17. (AP)—The Somerset county prosecutor today denied the request of the Maryland state administration for the immediate arrest of nine men whom eye witnesses, in sworn affidavits, charged with participation in last month's lynching a Negro at Princess Anne.

11-18-33

If the men were jailed, said the prosecutor, State's Attorney John B. Robins, a crowd probably "would come and take them away."

Robins also declined the request of Attorney General William Preston Lane, Jr., to hold a public hearing of the evidence against the nine men before a magistrate.

"If we did that there would be lots of excitement and lots of publicity," he declared.

Secret Inquiry Opposed

"The magistrate might feel that he should order those men held on a charge of murder and they would be put in jail without bail. I seriously doubt they would stay there."

Robins added, however, that he believed Lane had evidence sufficient to warrant reconvening the grand jury and that this would be done at the attorney general's request.

Lane today reiterated his statement, previously made to Robins, that a secret grand jury investigation was just what he wanted to avoid.

Robins said he would make no move until he had "further advices" from Lane.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie today agreed with Lane that a secret grand jury hearing "is just what we want to avoid."

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
NOV 5 1933

PROCEDURE STUDIED BY LYNCH PROBERS

Inquiry Held Up As Lane And Judges Decide On Course To Follow

NEXT MOVE UNCERTAIN

Attorney-General Says He Does Not Know When He Will Go To Princess Anne

The investigation into the lynching of George Armwood, Negro, at Princess Anne, Md., seventeen days ago is being held up while William Preston Lane, Jr., Attorney-General for Maryland; the three judges of the First Judicial Circuit and Somerset county authorities decide on a future course of procedure.

When the group will or can be expected to reach a decision is not known. Speaking last night from Governor Ritchie's suite at the Hotel Belvedere, Mr. Lane said he did not know when the next move would be made or when he would go to Princess Anne.

Trips Postponed

On several occasions within the last week or ten days, Mr. Lane has indicated a time for his expected visit to the lynching scene. On each occasion, however, the trip was postponed.

As far as Somerset county authorities are concerned, they have done nothing since a coroner's jury, impaneled to determine the cause of Armwood's death, held an initial hearing October 24.

Jury Not Discharged

At the request of Mr. Lane, the jury was not discharged and did not return a verdict at the conclusion of the hearing, but was dismissed subject to call. The request of the Attorney-General presumably was taken on the theory that additional testimony would be produced before the group.

No evidence was produced at the initial hearing pointing to the identity of any of the mobsters who broke into the Princess Anne jail, took Armwood from a cell, dragged him through the streets at the end of a rope and then hanged him, burning the body later.

Neither has there been any indication that Mr. Lane's inquiry, conducted from Baltimore with the aid of city detectives and members of the State police, has produced any evidence along this line.

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland.

4127

Two More Armwood Lynchers Exposed

Daily Worker

10-31-33

Trade Union Group Demands Roosevelt Act

New York, N.Y.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. — Additional evidence on the identity of the lynchers of George Armwood, Negro worker, was handed President Roosevelt's secretary by a trade union delegation which demanded a federal investigation of the lynching and the arrest and punishment of the officials and civilians named in Capt. Spencer's affidavit as the leaders of the mob which lynched Armwood in Princess Anne, Eastern Shore, Maryland, on October 18.

The delegation added to the list of the known lynchers the names of John Aimes, a relative of Mrs. Dennison, the white woman whose arm Armwood was accused of grabbing on the street, and a niece of the woman who, the delegation states, was in Princess Anne the day of the lynching, frantically inciting the mob. Aimes, a police officer in a town near Princess Anne, is said to have returned to his post boasting of his participation in the lynching.

The Trade Union delegation is composed of elected representatives of the Needle Trades Industrial Union, Food Workers, Shoe Workers and other militant unions.

No Safety for Lynch Witness

Daily Worker

10-30-33

New York, N.Y.

Attempt to Bribe Capt Spencer Revealed

By JOHN L. SPIVAK

(Special to the Daily Worker)

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 29.— Somerset County, which almost two weeks ago brutally lynched George Armwood, a Negro, today bluntly told the Daily Worker that it would not guarantee that Capt. Frank Spencer, World War veteran whose affidavit names the mob leaders, would leave Princess Anne alive if he goes there testify.

The statement for the County was made by State's attorney John B Robins who is in charge of the lynching investigation. Robins added that he would not undertake to protect the former army man who accuses him (the state's attorney) of participating in the mob action.

When I informed him that Spencer could not be expected to appear if he knew it would be suicide, Robins shouted angrily:

"I don't care whether he comes or not."

Tried To Bribe Spencer

With Ralph Matthews, city editor of the Baltimore Afro-American, the largest Negro newspaper in the East listening in on an extension wire I telephoned the state's attorney at his home in Christfield and read him a statement Capt. Spencer gave Clarence M. Mitchell, an Afro-American staff reporter, but which the Afro-American did not publish. This statement charges that when Spencer appeared at the coroner's inquest in Princess Anne last week Robins would not permit him to testify, and that later the state's attorney offered Spencer $100 to leave the Eastern Shore.

This story, as written by Mitchell follows:

"'I was not permitted to make a statement at the Armwood inquest held in Princess Anne today,' Frank Spencer, eye-witness of the whole affair, told an Afro-American reporter on Tuesday.

"According to Spencer, he arrived in Princess Anne on Tuesday morning and immediately reported to District Attorney Robins. He was not cordially received and was asked by the official why he was on the Eastern Shore.

Gave Story To Local Paper

"Spencer then informed Mr. Robins of his knowledge of the lynching and stated that he already had given a signed story of it to the Afro-American. He further pointed out that he felt the only right thing to do would be to appear at the investigation and tell what he knew.

"At this juncture Spencer asserts that Robins asked him how he would like to be strung up. His reply was that after experiences in the World War he was not afraid of a pack of would-be-men like those on the Eastern Shore.

"Robins is then alleged to have asked Spencer if he had any money and what he expected to get out of the affair. Spencer reports that he told the district attorney that he had no money and only wanted to get a clear conscience out of the whole affair.

Daily Worker

"After a brief pause the official is said to have offered Spencer one hundred dollars if he would leave the shore and forget all about the whole affair—everything that he had seen and heard. 'I told him,' said Spencer, 'that I was not interested and he replied that the Eastern Shore was pretty well worked up and the best thing for me to do was to get away.'

10-30-33

"This failed to upset Spencer and he reports that he told the attorney that he was going to tell Capt. Baldwin of the Civilian Investigation Department in Washington, D. C. everything that he knew. This would mean a Federal investigation, according to Spencer.

New York, N.Y.

Jail Keys Given To Mob

"Robins is alleged to have begun a series of questions one of which was 'How do you know that the keys of the jail were handed over to some member of the mob earlier in the day?' Spencer answered this by saying, 'They were handed over to a man named Henderson, who used to be a friend of mine, between five and five-thirty Wednesday afternoon just before the lynching.'

"The witness states that a conversation with Henderson revealed how the keys had been surrendered by the jailer. Robins, who is said to be attempting to identify some members of the mob, is reported to have told Spencer to come back at 2 p. m. on Wednesday, because he wasn't sure that such testimony could be used."

In the middle of reading this story to the state's attorney, Robins exclaimed excitedly:

Robins Loses His Temper

"He's a damned liar. I'd like to get hold of him. Can you produce him before me?"

I said I would take that up as soon as I finished reading. When I finished the wire was suddenly disconnected. It was some minutes before I got Robins back on the phone His voice was much calmer.

"Do you know the people in and around Princess Anne?" I asked.

"I do."

"Do you know Morrison?"

"I do not. I want to get hold of Spencer. Will you produce him?"

"Will you guarantee his safety if he goes to Princess Ann? Will you call state police to protect him?"

"Regular" Protection

"I will not," Robins said excitedly "We'll give him the regular protection. There's the sheriff and his deputies—"

"But the Sheriff is mentioned in the affidavit as being one of the mob."

"The Sheriff was not in the mob!' Robins shouted.

"How do you know since you claim to have been in Chrisfield at the time of the lynching?"

"Why, it's nonsense!"

"We're getting off the subject. Will you or will you not give assurances that Capt. Spencer's life will be safe if he appears in Princess to testify?'

"I can't give you any more than that the Sheriff's deputies will take care of him."

"That is insufficient. The Sheriff's deputies and even state police were not enough to protect Armwood."

"I can't promise any more than that." He paused for a moment and then exclaimed excitedly:

"I don't give a damn whether you bring him or not!"

"You can't expect Capt. Spencer to go to Princess Anne to commit suicide. You must agree to protect him."

A long silence followed this demand.

"Will you protect him?" I repeated

"No!" Robins shouted.

"Then you can't expect him to appear."

"I don't care whether he appears or not."

"Don't you want to get to the bottom of the lynch mob?"

'I'll be glad to see Spencer."

"Not unless you guarantee that he leaves Princess Anne alive."

Ritchie "Running This Thing"

'If you wan't protection for him, the state's attorney shouted furiously, "why don't you go see the Governor? He's running this thing!

The shockingly frank statement that "The Governor is running this thing" opens up the whole ghastly background of the Armwood lynching. It is a common conversation in Princess Anne and other towns on the Eastern Shore that the Governor IS "running this thing" for political advantage and that when Armwood was taken from Baltimore to Princess Anne the Governor knew the Negro was on his way to be lynched. And when the Governor told Dr. Broadus Mitchell of Johns Hopkins University that he (the Governor) did not know that Armwood was being taken to Princess Anne he was lying deliberately.

James C. Mulliken, assistant city editor of the Baltimore Post, states that he is ready to sign an affidavit that he personally informed the Governor, telling him that Armwood was being taken back to Princess Anne and that there was danger of lynching.

Was Vote-Gaining Play

The line-up that shows why Armwood was thrown to the Eastern Shore deliberately for political advantages follows:

The Ritchie political machine aided and supported by the much-publicized "liberal" Sun papers, which have held Maryland in a tight grip for more than fifteen years, is tottering. The Eastern Shore, where the lynching took place, is essentially Republican. During the last gubernatorial election, Ritchie was able to carry only two of the Eastern Shore counties. With an election looming next year and the machine tottering, failure to carry these two counties on the Eastern Shore might mean losing the Governorship.

Sentiment on the Eastern Shore roused by the Euel Lee case and the Williams lynching two years ago is bitter against the Governor. Eastern Shore men are poor. The Euel Lee case cost one county $10,000. The report spread around that the cost was really $25,000. With the International Labor Defense most likely stepping in to defend Armwood on the charge of grabbing a white woman's arm, Somerset County saw before it another long and expensive litigation which they could ill afford and decided that the best thing to do would be to lynch the Negro

Mulliken, in his statement regarding conversations he had with the Governor, states:

"I informed the Governor shortly after noon on Tuesday that the Sheriff of Somerset County was on his way to Baltimore to take over custody of the Negro and remove him to Princess Anne.

"The Governor said that he had not heard of the contemplated transfer of the Negro back to Somerset County. He said, however, that if the transfer was accomplished, the Negro would be given ample protection by the state police.

"About a half hour after this conversation the Governor called me back by phone and repeated his assurance that if Armwood was taken back to Princess Anne, he would be given ample protection."

Mulliken's statement tells how he discussed the danger of a lynching with State's Attorney Robins and also received assurances that "we are a law-abiding people and the Negro will be well taken care of when he returns here." Mulliken called the Governor and told him of Robins decision to take Armwood to Princess Anne. The Governor said, according to Mulliken:

"I have no authority to take any hand in this matter now. You say Mr. Robins is sure there will be no trouble; well then, what right would I have to take the matter out of his hands?"

In a subsequent conversatio Mulliken had with the Governor a Ritchie's suite at the Belvedere Hotel, the Governor said to him: "You phone call was the first I knew tha they planned to take the man bac to Princess Anne."

"Thus it must be evident," Mulliken concluded, "that the Governor i mistaken in telling Dr. Mitchell tha he knew nothing of the plans to tak Armwood back and the same statement he issued publicly after th lynching."

It is quite evident that the Governor's memory [illegible]; so excellent o other matters could not have faile him at this crucial point.

Captain Edward McK. Johnson, i charge of the state police, was struc on the head with a brick during th attack on the jail. Other state policemen were hurt.

In Princess Anne the resident laugh about this.

"We weren't afraid to attack because we knew Johnson had order not to shoot! If he shot into us an hurt any of the Eastern Shore me the Governor would have been wipe out during the next election."

Captain Johnson, immediately afte the lynching, was taken to his hom and refused to see anyone.

Col. Austin E. Baughman, Stat Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, i over Captain Johnson. The Moto Vehicle Department controls th state police. Commissioner Baughman, descended from one of Maryland's "first families" and a leadin social light in the state, is one of th Governor's chief political advisors In Princess Anne, they say th Governor told Col. Baughman to instruct Captain Johnson not to shoo under any circumstances. That's wh they were not afraid to attack.

On the day of the lynching also according to Captain Frank Spencer's affidavit, State's Attorney Robins said that he did not want to b around "if there was going to b any trouble."

Robins was not around. Betwee 7:30 and 8 o'clock on the night o the lynching, while the mob wa gathering, State's Attorney Robin planted himself before the movi theatre in Chrisfield and, though i was a windy evening stood for a ful half hour greeting his fellow townsmen. He is usually a busy man. The state's attorney has an iron-clad alibi as to his whereabouts.

Then Governor Ritchie was asked why the state police did not shoot into the mob as they were bound t do according to the law.

"If they had fired," said the Governor, "the situation would have been far worse than it is today. Captain Johnson has told me that there were 200 or 300 guns in the crowd. There would likely have been numerous casualties.

"I consider it fortunate that the state police did not fire."

To the people of the Eastern Shore this means that the Governor would wink at the law which makes it mandatory to protect a prisoner even a the cost of other lives, if that prisoner was a "nigger."

BALTIMORE, MD
EVENING SUN
OCT 30 1933

LANE TO VISIT LYNCH SCENE IN SOMERSET

Attorney-General Is Reported To Have Names Of Three Eyewitnesses

Attorney-General William Preston Lane, Jr., is expected to go to Somerset county this week to continue his investigation of the Princess Anne lynching. Baltimore detectives and State police officials probably will accompany him on his trip.

There is a report that the names of at least three men who were present at the lynching are in the possession of the investigators. Two of the men are said to be residents of Princess Anne. It is expected that these men will be questioned by the investigators before the coroner's inquest is resumed.

Witnesses Not Yet Called

Names of the men to be questioned were obtained by State police on the night of the lynching, it is said, and these witnesses have not yet been called before the coroner's jury.

State's Attorney John B. Robins, of Somerset county, has pointed out, however, that the location of eye-witnesses is very simple, compared to the identification of men who participated in the actual lynching. A number of eye-witnesses already questioned have declared themselves unable to identify any of the lynchers.

Has Not Revealed Plans

The Attorney-General said he expects to go to Somerset county abou the middle of the week, perhaps Wednesday or Thursday. How much investigating he expects to do before recalling the coroner's jury has not bee revealed.

State policemen who were on dut at the jail when George Armwood wa dragged out to be hanged and burne have not yet been questioned befor the jury. Lane, however, has questioned them in his office in Baltimore. The recall of the county grand jur to consider evidence in the lync probe has not been made. State's Attorney Robins said on Saturday tha he has no evidence which would warrant recalling the grand jury at th time.

AFRO POSTS SUM FOR CONVICTION OF MOB LEADERS

Afro-American

Publication Seeks to Place Responsibility for Lynching.

11-11-33

A.C.L.U. ALSO OFFERS $1,000

Baltimore

State, County Probe Still Awaited.

A reward of $1,000 for information which will facilitate the arrest and conviction of the leader of the mob which hanged and burned George Armwood, 22-year-old attack suspect at Princes Anne, Md., was announced thi week by the AFRO-AMERICAN.

The announcement comes clo upon the heels of an offer [illegible] made by the American [illegible] Liberties Union for the arrest an conviction of the lynchers.

Investigation into the Armwoo lynching has about reached a standstill as far as the state official and authorities of Somerset County in which the lynching occurre are concerned. A promised visi to the scene of the lynching b William Preston Lane, attorney-general of the state, has been postponed upon several occasions.

Probe Lags.

The latest word in the propose probe is that Mr. Lane, the thre judges of the First Judicial District and Somerset County authorities are trying to decide on "a future course of procedure." Mr Lane on Sunday declared that h did not know when the next mov would be made or when he would go to Princess Anne.

So far the "investigation" of the lynching has proved little short of a farce, 21 witnesses being called with not one furnishing evidence of the identity of a single member of the mob that stormed the jail and took Armwood's life.

PRISONERS FREE AFTER LYNCHING, SAYS EX-INMATE

Afro-American

11-11-33

Baltimore, Md.

22 Freed after Armwood Lynching, Report States.

DIDN'T WANT TESTIMONY

Tells of Being Beaten by Mobbists.

PHILADELPHIA. — Authorities of the jail at Princess Anne, Md., freed 22 colored prisoners within 30 hours after the brutal lynching and burning of George Armwood, suspected attacker of an aged white woman resident of the town, so they could not testify to the horror that rode through the jail that bloody night of October 18 should any body of probers desire to hear them.

This was charged Monday by Philadelphia Briefs, a weekly tabloid newspaper, which claims possession of exclusive information from a former inmate of the prison at present in this city.

"He told his story," the article in Briefs sets forth, "so the people of the country would realize just how far these maddened mobs will go in wreaking vengeance on colored people accused of crimes against women.

Wants Name Withheld.

"This convict asked that his name be withheld," the article continues, "as he is now in business and becoming active in politics here."

Philadelphia Briefs is a white publication.

"I was sentenced to jail for 18 months on May 27, 1932," he is reported to have said. "I was sent to the Princess Anne jail. When I reached there, I was dressed as usual and my valuables were taken from me. I had in my possession over $300.

"During my confinement, my many friends in Philadelphia tried to obtain a parole for me. Twice application was made to the parole board in Baltimore.

"Letters from prominent judges and business men in Pennsylvania were attached to these applications. No word was ever heard from them either by me or my friends.

"Along came the night when George Armwood was brought in. Most of us were serving sentences for robbery, drunken conduct, vagrancy, etc., and we did not like the idea of having this woman-attacker with us.

"However, there was nothing to do about it. Finally the authorities must have been informed of the sentiment of the people thereabouts, for Armwood was bundled off to Baltimore for safekeeping. Then for some reason he was returned to the prison later in the week.

Mob Gathers.

"As dusk was gathering on the lazy little town, on October 18, a mob also gathered and set out for the jail. We colored prisoners—there were 23 of us including Armwood—grew frightened. However some of us re-assured the others saying that the sheriff and his deputies could hold the jail and anyhow the mob would bother only Armwood, if they did get in.

"Reinforcements in the way of state police arrived and we felt a whole lot safer. The mob grew, however, and its fury mounted with each group that joined it.

"Soon there were thousands outside and we could hear their calls and shouts and could feel the lust for blood in them even behind the stone walls of the prison. At last we heard a shout of triumph as from an army of men and our hearts sank.

"We all pitied Armwood as he groveled in his cell, because he did not have a trial yet and was positively innocent as far as we knew.

"When the mob swept in they had the keys for every cell in the place. They opened every cell and entered each one.

"They pretended they were hunting for Armwood, but that was just a ruse to beat us with heavy clubs and kick us around to their hearts' content, for Armwood was seized as soon as the mob entered the jail.

Lynchings - 1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4128

Bristol, Va., Herald-Courier
October 21, 1933

Brutal Lynching In Maryland.

One of the most brutal lynchings reported in recent years was perpetrated Wednesday night at Princess Anne, Maryland, when a mob visited vengeance upon a Negro, accused of attacking an aged white woman. The mob is said to have been composed of more than a thousand men, women and children. It stormed the Somerset County jail, overpowered a detail of twenty-five State Police who had been sent to guard the prisoner, seized the Negro and stripped him of part of his clothing, attached a rope to his neck and dragged him behind an automobile through the main streets of the town, hanged him from a tree, and then cut the body down and took it to the public square and burned it.

Governor Albert G. Ritchie of Maryland placed the responsibility for this outrage squarely on the shoulders of Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins of Princess Anne, who had assured him that there would be no trouble. On the other hand, the Executive Committee of the Socialist Party in Maryland adopted resolutions which, while calling for the removal and arrest of Judge Duer and Attorney Robins, also called for the impeachment of Governor Ritchie "for criminal neglect of duty" in permitting the Negro to be removed from Baltimore to Princess Anne. The Governor met these resolutions and other protests with the assertion that he was powerless to act.

Wherever the responsibility for the failure to prevent it may rest, the fact that this savage lynching seems to have aroused much public indignation and resentment in Maryland is an encouraging indication. If the victim of the mob was guilty as accused he should have paid the extreme penalty of the law for his crime, but he should have paid it at the hands of the State. There was no defense for him, but neither is there any defense for his executioners. They took the law into their own hands, flouted constituted authority from the Governor down to the Sheriff, and committed an inexcusable murder. The State can not, of course, bring more than a thousand men, women and children to account for this outrage; but it can, if it determines to do so, find and punish the ringleaders of the mob. That is now the duty of the State. It is the duty of Governor Ritchie, of Judge Duer and Prosecutor Robins and of Sheriff Dougherty of Somerset County. If these officials perform that duty faithfully they will convince the public that none of them feels responsible for the lynching and that all of them condemn it. Governor Ritchie has placed the investigation of the affair in the hands of William P. Lane, Jr., Maryland's Attorney-General. The outcome will be awaited with interest.

A Bridge and a Law to End Lynching

Afro-American
11-18-33
Baltimore

The Maryland branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, on Saturday, sent a resolution to Governor Ritchie urging him to make every effort to secure the passage of an effective state anti-lynching bill.

The League also approved membership in the Maryland Anti-Lynching Federation, which is chief sponsor for anti-lynching legislation.

The Maryland legislature meets next week. The AFRO joins with the league and the federation in asking that the Governor put his official influence behind a state anti-lynching bill.

We go further, and urge Governor Ritchie to cease his opposition to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge project.

While a bridge across the Chesapeake Bay, linking up the Eastern and Western shores at first sight might seem to have no connection with an anti-lynching bill, the two are vitally inter-related.

The anti-lynching bill will stop mobs by providing means to resist them and to punish them.

The bay bridge will bring the isolated and benighted Eastern Shore so close to Baltimore, Washington, and Western Shore influence that sweetness and light will have a chance to change these hick Shoremen into something approximating intelligent American citizens.

To reach Salisbury (Maryland's Lynchtown No. 1) and Princess Anne (Lynchtown No. 2) from Baltimore, an automobile trip around the shore of the bay is necessary. Trains go by way of Wilmington, Delaware.

With a bridge across the Chesapeake, either of these towns could be reached in a two- to three-hour trip.

We need the anti-lynching law to put an end to lynchings in Maryland at once. We need the bridge across the bay to end the Lynching Shore's isolation.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
NEWS
NOV 7 1933

Rewards Offered for Lynchers

Reward of $1000 for information leading to the final conviction of any member of the mob that lynched George Armwood, colored, at Princess Anne, Md., last month, is being offered by the American Civil Liberties Union, Inc., with headquarters at 100 Fifth-av, New York City.

MOVES TO COMPEL MOB PROSECUTION

Times

Governor Ritchie Asks Judges to Displace State's Attorney in Maryland Lynching Case.

11-20-33

New York City

BALTIMORE, Nov. 19 (AP).—Governor Albert C. Ritchie today suggested that circuit judges displace State's Attorney John B. Robins of Somerset County unless he arrests the nine men whom eyewitnesses have sworn had a part in the lynching at Princess Anne, Md., last month.

"If Mr. Robins does persist [in refusing to have the men arrested], then the judges will, I feel sure, consider the appointment of some one in Mr. Robins's place to act as State's Attorney in the prosecution and trial of these charges and perform the duties which Mr. Robins will not perform," the Governor stated.

New York

The evidence against the nine was collected by Attorney General William Preston Lane Jr. largely from policemen who were beaten back by the mob which stormed the Somerset jail and lynched George Armwood, a Negro charged with attacking an aged white woman.

Mr. Lane forwarded the evidence to Mr. Robins and asked that the nine men be brought before a magistrate to decide whether they should be held for the grand jury. Mr. Robins refused to make the arrests, saying that he believed a mob would take the men from the jail if the magistrate sent them there. He suggested that the evidence be submitted to the grand jury at its customary secret meeting.

The Governor and Attorney General said that the procedure suggested by Mr. Robins was within the law and that his refusal to follow the Attorney General's advice was no legal cause to remove him from office, but the three judges of the circuit could remove him from this particular case.

Consequently, the Governor asked the judges to meet tomorrow "to consider procedure."

ILD Demands Gov't Act on Lynch Wires

Daily Worker
11-2-33

Scores Western Union for Accepting Wires, Refusing Protest

New York, N.Y.

NEW YORK.—A demand for federal action against Eastern Shore, Maryland, lynchers who, in several telegrams to Bernard Ades, International Labor Defense attorney, threatened to duplicate the fiendish lynching of George Armwood and William Matthews, was sent to U. S. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings by William L. Patterson, National Secretary of the I. L. D.

Two of the lynch telegrams sent over the Western Union, which a few days ago had refused to accept several telegrams protesting against the plans of the State of Maryland to legal murder Euel Lee, were published by the Daily Worker

Patterson also sent a letter to the Western Union denouncing its action in accepting the lynch wires while barring the protest wires.

At the same time he instructed I. L. D. attorneys to take such action as they may deem necessary in the localities where protest telegrams were refused by the telegraph companies. Patterson's letter to Cummings follows:

Homer S. Cummings,
United States Attorney General,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:

Enclosed find a copy of a telegram received on the 28th of October by Bernard Ades, an attorney who has been extremely prominent in defense of white and Negro workers in the courts.

Mr. Ades handled the defense of Euel Lee, a Negro farm worker, framed and convicted on charges of murder of his employer and family. Even the opportunity to exhaust all of the remedies supposedly guaranteed under the due process of law clause of the United States Constitution were denied to Euel Lee and the innocent man went to the gallows on October 27th.

The term used in this telegram, "Your pal's body," refers to Euel Lee. The telegram as a whole speaks plainly. The promise of a duplication of the vicious Salisbury lynching of William Matthews, two years ago, is obvious. The Western Union Telegraph Co. openly transmitted this lynch threat against innocent Negro people; but it has refused to take telegrams from labor groups which contained the statement to state officials, ostensibly elected for the purpose of ensuring the law, that they would be held responsible for its enforcement. We are instructing our organizers in the various districts to prepare mass demonstrations in front of those offices which attempt to deny to white and Negro workers their rights to the use of telegraph facilities.

This cynical violation of your laws contains, however, not only a direct threat of murder, it is an incitement to all who handle it to commit violence. We hold that the officials of the telegraph office are equally guilty with its formulators of violation of your laws.

This office but a few days ago presented to Mr. Howe, Secretary to the President, the names of men who participated in the bloody lynch holiday in Princess Anne, Maryland. It demanded at that time that the President immediately direct your office to begin a federal investigation. Failure on the part of your office to act in such cases of provocation to murder is tantamount to an endorsement of lynching. The hypocrisy of your "law and order" becomes thus more obvious to American workers and their sympathizers.

We are demanding an immediate reply to this letter as to the steps your office will take to bring these prospective lynchers to book for their violation of the law in sending such a telegram, and what action will be taken against the officials of the Western Union Telegraph Co. for transmitting this message.

Arrest of Armwood Lynchers Ordered On Eve of Inquiry

Daily Worker
11-18-33
New York

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—Alarmed at the preparations for the Anti-lynching Conference Public Inquiry on the Armwood lynching, called by the League of Struggle for Negro Rights, headlines in this morning's "Baltimore Sun" shows the Ritchie Machine engaging in desperate manouvers to head off the exposure of complicity of State and County officials in the brutal lynching of Armwood. The Public Inquiry will take place tomorrow (Saturday) night at the New Albert Auditorium, at 1224 Pennsylvania Ave., and will be followed by the Conference, which will be held in the same hall.

Yesterday, the Arrangements Committee served Gov. Ritchie and Attorney General Lane with demands they attend the Public Hearing Saturday night and defend their actions before the toiling masses. As a result of this pressure, Lane after weeks of inactivity during which he adjourned the Grand Jury supposed to be investigating the Armwood lynching, and practically abandoned the investigation, yesterday asked State's Attorney Robbins, one of the lynchers exposed in Captain Spencer's affidavit, to arrest and prosecute nine known lynchers. Lane's letter to Robbins is referred to by the "Baltimore Sun" as containing the names, addresses and occupations of the lynckers and details of the part they played in the lynching of Armwood. Robins has refused to arrest them.

A legislature committee which will be meeting in Annapolis next week has authority to indict lynchers, regardless of the action of Robbins or Eastern Shore grand jury. Judges Duer, Bailey and Pattison will each have authority to remove the hearing to Baltimore if the Legislature Committee returns the indictments.

Meanwhile, the Urban League, through its secretary, Edward L. Lewis, has refused an invitation to participate in the Anti-Lynching Conference, and with the leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is supporting the Ritchie Machine in its attempts to smash a real investigation of the lynch terror on the Eastern Shore. The N.A.A.A.C.P. leaders have made no reply so far to a similar invitation to join the Anti-lynching Conference. Walter White, National Secretary of here tonight at a pro-Ritchie meeting.

NEWS
Princess Anne — Md.
NOV 4 1933

NO PROGRESS REPORTED IN LYNCHING PROBE

States Attorney Knows No More Witnesses And Attorney General Has Not Been On Scene

At the request of Attorney General Preston Lane, the Coroner's jury recessed on the 24th of October until such time as he could be present to examine State Police and any other witnesses to the lynching of George Armwood that might be produced.

Since that time local authorities have had no word from Mr. Lane as to what progress he is making in the investigation nor as to when he expects to come to Princess Anne. The Baltimore press reported that he expected to come down the middle of this week and continue his investigation and perhaps ask that the Coroner's jury be reconvened so that evidence might be produced before it. Neither the State's Attorney nor the Coroner had this report verified and as a matter of fact Mr. Lane did not come down at that time.

Several Baltimore detectives have been here on the case but what, if any, information they have secured has not been revealed. On Thursday morning they had a consultation with the Sheriff, Mr. Luther Daugherty. That official had no additional information to give them, except the names of eight persons given him as witnesses to the affair. Mr. Daugherty said that he had tried to locate these persons, but had not been successful and he had about come to the conclusion that the names were fictitious.

The State's Attorney offered all the evidence in his possession at the first session of the jury. Since then he has been unable to uncover anything of importance. Unless the Attorney General is able to discover witnesses who can place responsibility there seemes little likelihood of the grand jury being called in special session.

It is known that the Attorney General has interviewed all of the State police who were on guard when the jail was stormed and Armwood removed. Just what information he got from them has not been disclosed. Most of these officers were new men on the Shore and it is entirely possible that they knew no members of the mob. The officers who had been stationed in this section might have been able to recognize faces but it is hard to believe that even they could have picked out persons whose names were known to them, for at best, they actually know few persons in this vicinity. They ride through frequently but it is impossible to become acquainted with many persons in that manner.

Right now, the result of the whole investigation seems to rest on what Mr. Lane and his force are able to uncover. Local officers have run up against a stone wall and the citizens as a whole have dismissed the matter from their minds.

To recall the grand ujry would only serve to revive the talk and give the newspapers something to play up. Nothing material could be accomplished and the taxpayers feel that it would be a needless expense.

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
NOV 13 1933

$1,000 Reward Offered In Shore Lynching Case

American Civil Liberties Union Seeks Conviction Of Participants In George Armwood's Death

[Special Dispatch to The Sun]

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 12—An offer of $1,000 reward is offered in an advertisement inserted in a Princess Anne newspaper this week by the American Civil Liberties Union, New York, for the "final conviction in the courts of any member of the mob that which murdered George Armwood, Negro, on October 17, 1933."

The advertisement is signed by Lucille B. Milner. secretary.

GOVERNOR RITCHIE GIVES LYNCHERS BACK TO COUNTY

Standard Times

Warden Will Return Four Men to Eastern Shore on Writs of Habeas Corpus.

11-29-33
Brooklyn, N.Y.

By United Press.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 29.—Warden Martin, of the Baltimore County jail, travelling alone planned to return to Southern Maryland today the four alleged lynching suspects, who were seized yesterday by State militia and brought here after a battle with 3,000 citizens at Salisbury, Md.

A writ of habeas corpus requiring two of the suspects to be produced in court at Princess Anne scene of the lynching six weeks ago, was handed to the warden early today. Writs for the other two were expected later this morning.

Warden Martin indicated he would leave for Princess Anne as soon as the new writ was received. He said he planned to take no State troopers or other guards with him.

Will Not Fight Case

Attorney General Preston Lane, in Annapolis, said he would not go to Princess Anne to contest the habeas corpus proceedings, and so far as could be learned no arrangements were made to present the State's evidence against the four.

Sheriff Luther Daugherty, of Somerset County, arrived at the Baltimore City Jail at 2 A. M., and filed copies of writs requiring two of the prisoners to be produced before Judge Robert F. Duer, in Princess Anne at 3 P. M.

The writs were issued for William H. Thompson, a druggist, and Irving Atkins, a special police officer, both of Princess Anne, where they were alleged by the State to have participated in the lynching six weeks ago of George Armwood, 28-year-old colored man, who confessed attacking an aged white woman.

Governor Ritchie in a formal statement explaining his reasons for sending militia to arrest the participants pointed out that Brig. Gen. M. A. Reckford, adjutant of the Maryland National Guard, had planne dto take the men before a Magistrate in Somerset County yesterday.

"But the temper of the crowd was such that General Reckford considered this action unwise, and for that reason the men were brought to Baltimore and not given a hearing in their own county," the Governor said.

"The men accused have now been arrested and the testimony against them can be openly heard either before a Magistrate or on habeas corpus. Indictments, of course can only be returned by the Somerset County Grand Jury.

County to Settle Case

"I have always insisted on the right of the counties to settle their own affairs. I wanted Somerset County to do that. I wanted the county officials to handle these cases as the Constitution provides and made every possible effort to induce them to do so. But they would not.

"It is my plain duty as Governor of Maryland to see that the law is supreme, and it was only when local officians failed to perform their duties that I acted."

Sheriff Daugherty, immediately after delivering the writs to the city jail here, started back for Princess Anne without waiting to accompany the prisoners.

No preparations were evident of any plans for further use of the State militia. The battaloin of 30 members of the Fifth Maryland Infantry Regiment, who engaged in yesterday's expedition, were mustered out soon after they returned here with their prisoners.

Grave of Lynched Man Violated in Maryland

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 29.—Marauders incited by yesterday's violence scraped all the earth off the grave of George Armwood, lynched colored man, but did not break open the coffin, S. O. Hopkins, county almshouse superintendent, reported today.

He said the grave was violated late last night, but that the tamperers apparently thought better of their mission before they reached the body.

Lynchers-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Maryland

4129

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
NOV 2 1933

LYNCHING PROBERS DUE IN CITY TODAY

Two Baltimore Detectives Expected Back From Eastern Shore

LANE WILL GET REPORT

Attorney-General May Go To Princess Anne Today Or Tomorrow

After spending two days on the Eastern Shore investigating certain "clues" in connection with the George Armwood lynching, Lieut. Joseph H. Itzel and Sergt. William J. Flynn, both of the Detective Bureau, are expected back in Baltimore early today.

The detectives were working under orders from William Preston Lane, Jr., Attorney-General, and it is understood that Mr. Lane was delaying his departure for Princess Anne pending a report from Lieutenant Itzel. He expects to leave Baltimore for the Eastern Shore this afternoon or tomorrow.

Attorney-General Reticent

The detectives and the Attorney-General have been in communication several times, but Mr. Lane declined to divulge the nature of the investigation or comment on the results obtained.

It is understood, however, that the detectives were checking on nine separate items, and their work took them at least to one other county besides Somerset, in which county the lynching of the Negro occurred October 18.

It was the wish of Mr. Lane that the presence of the detectives on the Eastern Shore be given as little publicity as possible.

State Police Questioned

Mr. Lane has questioned members of the State police contingent, who were present when the mob stormed the jail and dragged the Negro from it.

The investigation conducted by Mr. Lane, it was said, has resulted in at least partial identification of several men connected with the lynching.

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
NOV 1 1933

DETECTIVES RETURN TO LYNCHING SCENE

Baltimore Officers Sent To Princess Anne By Attorney-General

Working under orders from Attorney-General William Preston Lane, Jr., two Baltimore detectives—Lieut. Joseph Itzel and Sergt. William Flynn—made a fast trip to Princess Anne last night to take up their investigation aimed at the identity of the lynchers of George Armwood.

The detectives were in communication with Mr. Lane today by telephone. Their preliminary work was about half finished early in the morning, it was understood, and they were expected to make a complete report to Lane late today.

Itzel and Flynn are expected to return to Baltimore and make a verbal report to the Attorney-General, who will make his plans accordingly. Lane is prepared to go to Somerset county himself to lead the probe as soon as certain information is made available.

Checking Separate Items

It is understood that Lieutenant Itzel was checking on nine separate items or "clues" in Somerset county today.

When Lane goes to Somerset county to correlate his efforts with those of State's Attorney John B. Robins, he will probably be accompanied by State police officials. Today's probe, however, was being conducted as quietly as possible by the two detectives.

The Attorney-General is not willing to discuss details of his investigation. It is known, however, that the investigation conducted here at his office has identified several men who have not so far been named in the proceedings before Coroner Edgar A. Jones, of Princess Anne.

It was at Lane's request that the coroner's inquest was adjourned before any of the State policemen were called to testify. One State police official, it is known, has in his possession the names of at least three men who were at the jail on the night when the mob dragged Armwood out to be lynched and burned.

Much of the information already available has not been made public as yet, and several important witnesses are still to be called. Judge Robert F. Duer, who spoke to the mob at the jail, is one of those who has not been called yet as a witness, although Robins said he was ready to call the judge if Lane desires it.

Another witness is Dr. George Jarman, who was with Judge Duer and who also spoke to the mob at the jail

---

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
NOV 2 1933

LANE GETS OFFICERS' LYNCH PROBE REPORT

Hears Information Itzel And Flynn Obtained On Somerset County Trip

A detailed report on the Princess Anne lynching investigation was given to Attorney-General William Preston Lane, Jr., by two Baltimore detectives at a conference which started late last night and continued until nearly 3 A. M. today. Lieut. Joseph Itzel and Sergt. William Flynn made the report.

Itzel and Flynn spent yesterday on the Eastern Shore, most of the time in Somerset county, and returned to Baltimore late last night. They went into conference with Lane immediately, discussing the information obtained on their trip.

More Witnesses Found

The detectives were in communication with Lane yesterday by telephone and the Attorney-General gave them instructions to be followed out. There were nine separate items of information which Lane wanted checked.

Whether the investigators have identified any of the actual lynchers of George Armwood has not been revealed. It is known, however, that a number of witnesses have been identified who have not yet been called before the coroner's jury.

Lane To Phone Robins

Lane is expected to decide soon when he will go to the Shore to take up the lynching probe on the scene. He is expected to confer by telephone with State's Attorney John B. Robins before making the trip.

BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS
OCT 31 1933

CITY POLICEMEN BACK TO SHORE

Two Baltimore detectives, under veiled orders, were again detailed today to Princess, Anne, Md., for resumption of investigation into the Armwood lynching in that Somerset county seat more than two weeks ago.

Meanwhile Attorney General W. Preston Lane, Jr., indicated he would go to Princess Anne tomorrow for continuation of the investigation. The Baltimore detectives detailed to Princess Anne are Lieut. Joseph Itzel and Sergt. William Flynn of the Bertillon Bureau. Both have investigated the Armswood case and are said to have gained many friends on the Eastern Shore through their activities in the last several years.

Public Inquiry Gets Proof of Ritchie's Guilt in Lynching

Daily Worker

11-20-33

New York, N.Y.

1,500 Persons Attend the Hearing in Baltimore

By LOUIS COLMAN

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 19.—More than 1,500 persons, one-third of them white, in the New Albert Hall, heard evidence presented Saturday night completely proving the guilt of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, State's Attorney Robins, and Eastern Shoremen named in the "Daily Worker" affidavit, in the fiendish lynching of George Armwood. Negro worker, on the Eastern Shore on Oct. 18.

The evidence was presented before a tribunal headed by Harry F. Ward, of the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, and composed of liberals and intellectuals from Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York, with worker members from Chester, Pa., and New Jersey cities in addition to the cities named above.

In addition to the 450 delegates here for the anti-lynching Conference which opens today, the audience was composed of steel and marine workers, Negro and white, their wives, and hundreds from the broad toiling masses and the petty-bourgeoisie, black and white, of this city.

Ades Tells Of Lynch Preparations

Among the delegates were a dozen Negroes from the Eastern Shore oyster dredges, canneries and farms.

Bernard Ades, International Labor Defense attorney, made the main presentation of the evidence in the Armwood lynching, pointing out the political purposes of the Ritchie machine in throwing Armwood to the Eastern Shore lynchers, and relating in vivid detail the monstrous story of the preparations for the lynching and of the process of buck-passing now going on between State's Attorney Robins, Attorney General Lane and Gov. Ritchie. He called attention to the fact that only on the eve of the Public Inquiry did Attorney General Lane act to order the arrest of the known lynchers whose names were published several weeks ago by the "Daily Worker." He commented caustically on the refusal of State's Attorney Robins to make the arrest, and pointed out that Robins himself was named as one of the chief instigators of the lynching. Robins has declared that if arrested, the lynchers would be released by an Eastern Shore mob.

Daily Worker

11-20-33

Investigator Reports Eastern Shore Conditions

Rose Bradley, a Baltimore white girl and an investigator for the League of Struggle for Negro Rights and the "Daily Worker," gave a report on the social and economic contions on the Eastern Shore which have been exposed in the "Daily Worker" as the basis created by the capitalists for the lynch terror against the Negro masses. She quoted prominent citizens she had interviewed in her investigation. Mr. Keller, Somerset County agent, had told her "we have mostly Negro labor around here. They work under supervisors, but even so they're not worth anything. Sometimes we get rid of one, ha-ha-ha—we just got rid of one recently." His statement clearly referred to George Armwood, lynched on Oct. 18, and evoked a hearty laugh from a woman relief supervisor who was sent to the Eastern Shore from Baltimore.

Eastern Shoremen Laugh In Telling Of Lynching

Dr. Collins, public health physician of Crisfield, Md., told her "I don't notice that Negroes need much attention. We don't hear much from them. They keep their places and we keep in ours. Occasionally we have to string one up, ha-ha-ha."

Mr. Hampden, editor of the Eastern Shore "Republican," whom she also interviewed, boasted that he had seen the Armwood lynching and generally expressed approval of lynch terror:

"Yes, I saw the Armwood lynching," he declared. "Covered it for the A. P. and U. P., and the Baltimore 'Sun.' I was on the telephone when I heard the crowd dragging him past my house. I said, you'll have to excuse me but they're dragging a nigger past with a rope around his neck and I have to go to see about it.

"Nothing To It" Says Boss Editor

"There was nothing to it. They just got a nigger out of jail, stabbed him, dragged him up and down the street and hung him on a tree. He was dead before they hung him. He didn't try to stand or anything like that the way some papers said. I don't know why the papers print such things. There wasn't any of that singing or dancing around the tree. He wasn't up there more than a minute and a half, then they dragged him back to the court house and somebody poured gasoline over him and set a match to him. It flared up and then died down. There wasn't anything to it."

"Lynchings Are Bread and Meat to Me"

All the time Hampden was describing with evident relish the hideous details of the lynching, he was rocking a baby on his knee, and another 10-year-old daughter sat facing him with wide, serious eyes. The investigator particularly commented on this revolting picture of family life among the "best people" of the Eastern Shore, and then quoted Hampden further, as declaring:

"I don't care if they have another lynching tomorrow. Lynchings are bread and meat to me."

Another newspaper man, Mr. Truitt, editor of the "Salisbury Times", openly boasted of the part played by his paper in inciting to the lynching of Matthew Williams, a year ago on the Eastern Shore. He told the investigator:

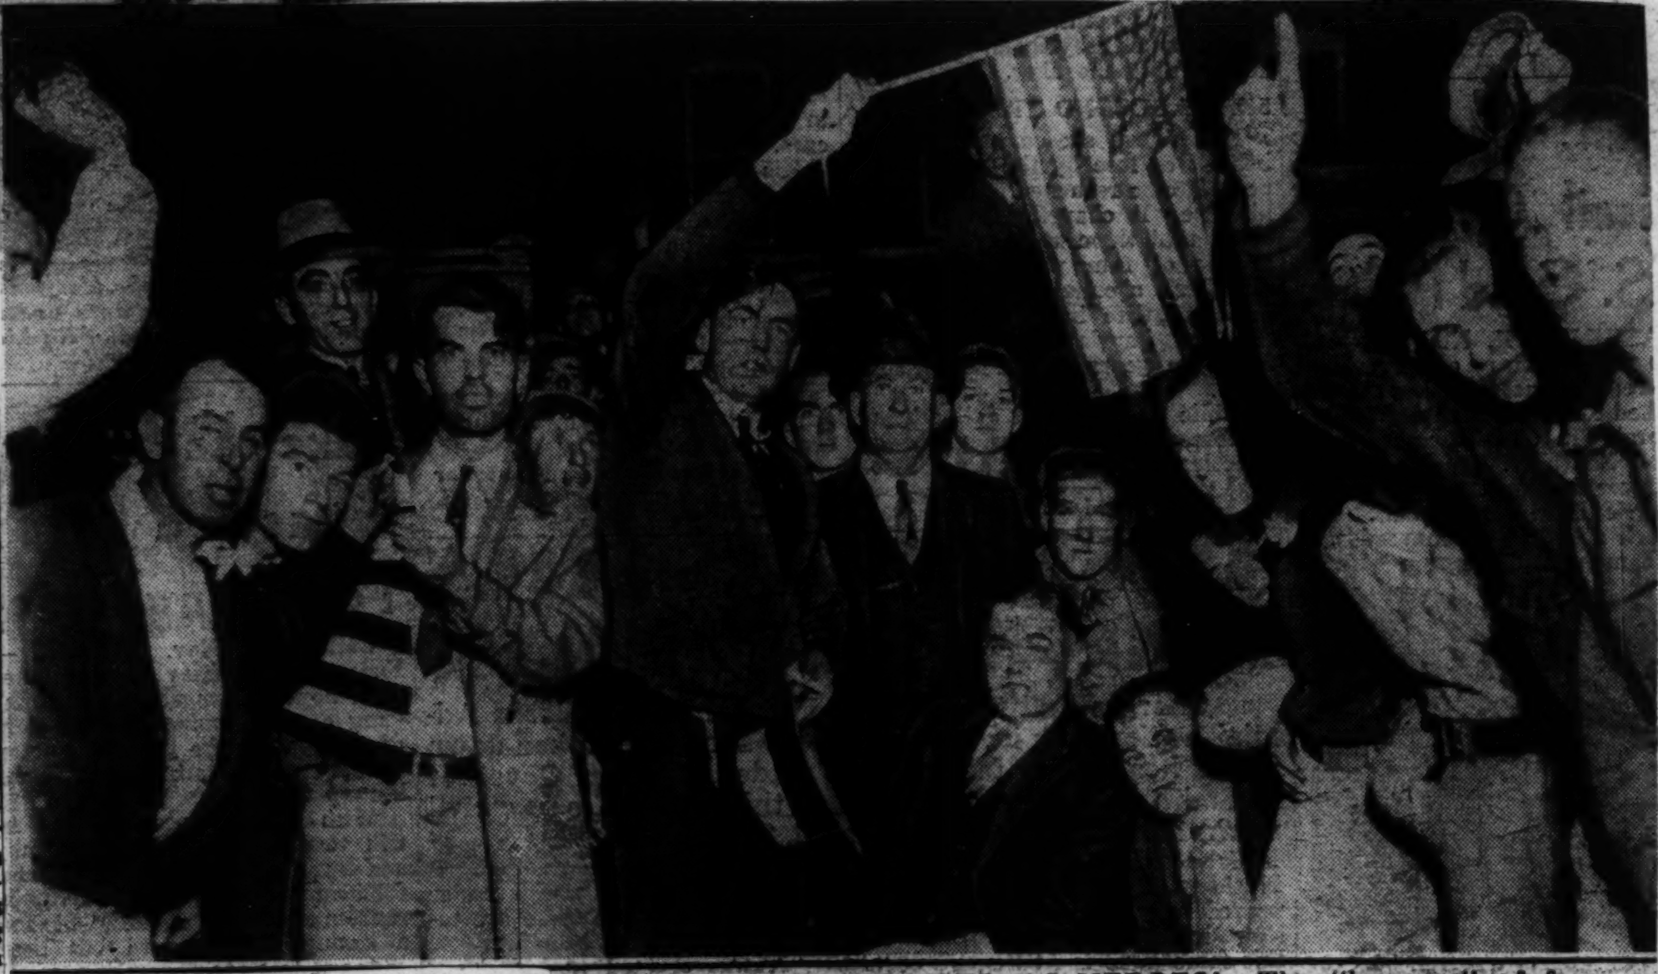
"Matthew Williams was lynched on account of a statement made by State's Attorney Bailey that Williams had confessed to him, saying he had shot his employer on the basis of a secret order from the I.L.D. and that four more were picked to be killed.

"Our paper, with that statement in it, was out on the street at five o'clock, and that same evening they lynched him."

The investigator reported a widespread sentiment on the part of Eastern Shore Negroes in favor of the International Labor Defense. She said this sentiment was not openly expressed for fear of reprisals, but that it was only awaiting a connecting-up with the nation-wide liberation movement of which they have heard, despite their isolation.

NEW YORK MIRROR

DEC 1 [illegible]



LYNCH SUSPECTS HAILED AS HEROES!—The "bravery" of four men in leading at the lynching of George Armwood (colored), brought this accolade of cheers and flag-waving as the quartette was released by Circuit Court at Princess Anne, Md. The day before, the crowd, in a belligerent mood, had tried to free them by force.

Lynchings - 1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Mississippi.

4130

ORLANDO, FLA.
SENTINEL

JUL 1 9 1933

The Downtrodden Negro

A MISSISSIPPI GRAND jury the oth-r day indicted five or six white men for attacking an aged negro. One of those indicted was a former county commissioner. Others were fairly well to do farmers.

What should be sensational information to certain newspapers of the north and particularly the Chicago Tribune, which for years have carried on a war of prejudice and hatred against the south.

If the Tribune and others of its class would seriously attempt to discover the facts, it would find, of course, that the negro in the south is far more decently treated by the whites than he ever would be treated in the north.

The southern negro as a matter of fact, is a liability to the white man, in many cases. The negro leans heavily on his "white folks" for financial and other assistance and the white man, accustomed through the years to provide for him, habitually comes through.

Mississippi.

4131

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
July 13, 1933

15 Mississippians Held For Lynching Of Negro

LOUISVILLE, MISS., July 12.—(AP)—Seventeen indictments charging mob violence in connection with the death of a 65-year-old negro, returned by a Choctaw County Grand Jury, resulted in arrest of 15 men today and purported confessions from five of those in custody.

The office of Sheriff M. M. Ellis, of Choctaw County, reported the arrests this morning, making public the names of all but the two men who are yet unapprehended.

The mass indictments charge the men with the death of Reuben McCou, aged negro, whose body, bearing evidence of whipping and a gunshot wound, was found six miles southwest of Louisville three and a half months ago.

Deputy Sheriff H. M. Ellis said the negro had had an altercation with Lee McDowell the day before his body was found.

Dothan, Ala. Eagle
July 13, 1933

15 MISSISSIPPIANS HELD FOR LYNCHING OF NEGRO

LOUISVILLE, Miss., July 12.—(AP)—Seventeen indictments charging mob violence in connection with the death of a 65-yera-old Negro, returned by a Choctaw county grand jury, resulted in arrest of 15 men today and purported confessions from five of those in custody.

The office of Sheriff M. M. Ellis, of Choctaw county, reported the arrests this morning, making public the names of all but the two men who are yet unapprehended.

The mass indictments charge the men with the death of Reuben McCou, aged Negro, whose body, bearing evidence of whipping and a gunshot wound, was found six miles southwest of Louisville three and a half months ago.

Deputy Sheriff H. M. Ellis said the Negro had had an altercation with Lee McDowell the day before his body was found.

---

17 INDICTED IN DEATH OF MISSISSIPPI NEGRO

Commercial Appeal

Revenge Motive Blamed By Officers For Slaying.

7-13-33

15 ARE AWAITING TRIAL

Memphis, Tenn.

Murfder Said to Have Taken Place in Winston County. Negro, 70, Was Acused of Slapping Youth.

(1)

Special to The Commercial Appeal.

LOUISVILLE, Miss., July 12.—Accused of slaying a 70-year-old negro man as retaliation for a slap given a youth by the negro, 17 men were indicted here by the Winston County grand jury and 15 are in jail here now awaiting trial Monday.

The body of Reuben McCou, the victim, was found riddled with bullets in a drainage canal four miles southwest of here three months ago and an investigation conducted by District Attorney Ford resulted in the arrests and the indictments.

Seventeen Accused.

Those accused are R. L. McClure, J. P. McClure, Boyd McClure, Buster Collins, Willie McDowell, Frank Stacks, Lee McDowell, Bird Pope, W. T. McDowell, Sr., Birthon Hunter, J. T. Shaw, Ed Hill, Clacy Dakus and Felix Moss. W. T. McDowell, Jr., and John Sargent were also indicted but have not been arrested. They are understood to be in a reforestation camp.

W. T. McDowell, Sr., has been a leader in public affairs in Choctaw County for several years and is president of the board of trustees of the Ackerman Consolidated High School. The negro was said to have attacked his son, Lee McDowell. All the accused live in Choctaw County but the slaying is alleged to have taken place in Winston County.

Confessions by two of the prisoners, Dakus and Moss, officers declare, indicate that the group of men and boys undertook to whip the victim for striking McDowell, but the intense feeling of some of the members resulted in his murder. Confessions by Noel McClure, Bird McClure and Buster Collins have been repudiated.

---

15 Mississippians Held For Lynching Of Negro

Advertiser
7-13-33
Montgomery, Ala.

LOUISVILLE, MISS., July 13.—(AP)—Seventeen indictments charging mob violence in connection with the death of a 65-year-old negro, returned by a Choctaw County Grand Jury, resulted in arrest of 15 men today and purported confessions from five of those in custody.

The office of Sheriff M. M. Ellis, of Choctaw County, reported the arrests this morning, making public the names of all but the two men who are yet unapprehended.

The mass indictments charge the men with the death of Reuben McCou, aged negro, whose body, bearing evidence of whipping and a gunshot wound, was found six miles southwest of Louisville three and a half months ago.

Deputy Sheriff H. M. Ellis said the negro had had an altercation with Lee McDowell the day before his body was found.

TWO PLEAD GUILTY IN NEGRO'S MURDER

Atlanta [illegible]
7-14-33
Ga.

LOUISVILLE, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Trial of a group of Choctaw countians on a charge of murdering Reuben Micou, 65-year-old negro, has been set in Winston county circuit court for July 17.

Fifteen of the 17 under indictment were arraigned today in circuit court here and 13 entered pleas of not guilty.

Felix Moss and Clacy Dacus, both of whom officers said had previously confessed to a part in the slaying, pleaded guilty.

---

17 Whites Indicted In Mississippi For Lynching of Negro

Call
Kansas City, Mo.
7-21-33

LOUISVILLE, Miss. — (ANP) — With the indictment of 17 white men for the lynching of a 65-year-old Negro man last April, a mild sensation was created. The case is attracting statewide interest because all of the indicted whites are prominent and widely known throughout the state.

Reuben Micu was the lynched man. Mieu had a fight with Leo McDowell of Choctaw county April 1. The next day he was taken from his home by the mob. His whipped and bullet-riddled body was found several miles away.

The Winston county grand jury is conducting the investigation. According to county officers, five of the men have confessed to their part in the lynching. Fifteen of the indicted men are of Choctaw county.

MISSISSIPPI LYNCHING IS SHELVED BY COURT

Atlanta Constitution
7-18-33
Atlanta, Ga.

LOUISVILLE, Miss., [illegible]—(AP) Trial of 17 citizens of Choctaw and Winston counties, charged with the mob slaying of a negro, Reuben Micou, after he allegedly engaged in an altercation with one of the group, has been indefinitely postponed.

The charges yesterday were remanded to the files when called for trial and all of the 17 men pleaded not guilty. They were indicted by the Winston county grand jury two weeks ago.

Court attaches said the case would probably never come to trial.

NEW YORK WORLD-
Miss. Telegram

JUL 13 1933

15 HELD FOR LYNCHING.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Miss., July 13.—Seventeen indictments charging mob violence in the death of Reuben Micou, 65, Negro, resulted in arrest of fifteen men today and purported confessions from five.

VICKSBURG, MISS.
HERALD

JUL 13 1933

FIVE CONFESS TO TAKING PART IN LYNCHING NEGRO

Seventeen Indictments Returned in Death of Reuben Micou

Louisville, Miss., July 12.—(AP)—Seventeen indictments charging mob violence in connection with the death of a 65-year-old negro, returned by a Choctaw county grand jury, resulted in arrest of 15 men today and purported confessions from five of those in custody.

The office of Sheriff M. M. Ellis of Choctaw county, reported the arrests this morning, making public the names of all but the two men yet unapprehended.

The mass indictments charge the men with the death of Reuben Micou, aged negro, whose body, bearing evidence of whipping and a gunshot wound, was found six miles southwest of Louisville three and a half months ago.

Deputy Sheriff H. M. Ellis said the negro had had an altercation with Lee McDowell the day before his body was found.

Those arrested are: W. T. McDowell, Lee and Willie McDowell, L. McClure, Paul McClure, Noel McClure, Boyd McClure, Byrd Pope, Ed Hill, Bertrand Hunter, Jim Tom Shaw, Frank Stacks, Buster Collins, Felix Moss and Clacy Dacus.

Ellis said Boyd and Noel McClure, Moss, Pope and Dacus had signed confessions in the presence of District Attorney A. F. Ford of Ackerman and the chancery clerk of Choctaw county.

Several of those under arrest are widely known in this section, W. T. McDowell being a former county supervisor and at present head of the board of supervisors of the Ackerman high school.

Jackson, Miss., News
July 15, 1933

The old question of whether or not white men can be convicted for participating in a negro lynching may get an answer up in Choctaw county where 15 persons have been indicted for the lynching of Reuben Micou, a 65-year-old negro. It is said that five members of the mob made confessions on which the indictments were based. It will be a memorable legal battle, with some of the best lawyers in the state participating.

(2)

17 INDICTED IN MISSISSIPPI FOR LYNCHING NOT LISTED BY TUSKEGEE; FIVE OF MOBBISTS CONFESS

Journal and Guide 7-22-33
Norfolk, Va.

LOUISVILLE, Miss., (ANP)—With the indictment of 17 white men for the lynching of a 65-year-old colored man last April, a mild sensation was created last week. The case is attracting statewide interest because all of the indicted whites are prominent and widely known throughout the state.

Reuben Micou was their victim. It is alleged that Micou had a fight with Lee McDowell of Choctaw County on April 1. The next day he was taken from his home by the mob. His whipped and bullet-ridden body was found several miles away.

The Winston County grand jury is conducting the investigation which started Monday, July 10. According to county officers, five of the men have confessed to their part in the lynching. Fifteen of the indicted men are of Choctaw County.

This lynching was not included among the six lynchings for the first six months of 1933, as recorded by Tuskegee Institute.

ALBANY, N. Y.
NEWS
JUL 18 1933

Indicted for Lynching

MISSISSIPPI has given assurance that the South does believe in justice for the Negro and that it frowns on lynching. A grand jury has just indicted 15 men on a charge of participating in the lynching of a Negro three months ago.

Unfortunately, for many years the feeling has prevailed that if any Negro were lynched in a Southern state that was the last of it for no one would move against members of a lynching party. In cases where crimes have aroused public indignation it has been considered futile to take any action against those who took the law into their own hands and punished the offender.

But Mississippi has demonstrated that this is not always so and a grand jury has done its duty. Mississippi is doing something to abolish lynching and other Southern states [illegible] have moved against lynching. It [illegible] and just movement and it will have an effect on those self-imposed judges who commit a crime to avenge one.

Orlando, Fla., Sentinel
July 19, 1933

The Downtrodden Negro

A MISSISSIPPI GRAND jury the other day indicted five or six white men for attacking an aged negro. One of those indicted was a former county commissioner. Others were fairly well to do farmers.

What should be sensational information to certain newspapers of the north and particularly the Chicago Tribune, which for years have carried on a war of prejudice and hatred against the south.

If the Tribune and others of its class would seriously attempt to discover the facts, it would find, of course, that the negro in the south is far more decently treated by the whites than he ever would be treated in the north.

The southern negro as a matter of fact, is a liability to the white man, in many cases. The negro leans heavily on his "white folks" for financial and other assistance and the white man, accustomed through the years to provide for him, habitually comes through.

Old Man Lynched, Mobsters Go Free

Defender 8-[illegible]-33
Chicago Defender

ACKERMAN, Miss., Aug. 4.—Despite the fact that 17 indictments were returned and written confessions obtained from five men, all white, and [illegible] in connection with the brutal murder of Reuben Micon, they were all given their liberty when the case came up for trial Monday.

The indictments were returned July 10 in circuit court before Judge John F. Allen, the district attorney being A. L. Ford. The prisoners were lodged in jail, but, it is reported, between the return of the indictments and the date set for the trial the witnesses were threatened and left their homes, refusing to testify. The case was nol-prossed, with leave to reinstate.

The brutal, wanton murder of Micon is without parallel even in this state notorious for its crimes of violence against members of the Race. He was a pious farmer, a deacon in Jerusalem Baptist church and respected by all his fellow citizens. Micon was [illegible] years old, had lost one eye and was a cripple, which necessitated his using a cane.

Last April, following a quarrel with a young neighbor named McDowell, who became incensed because he found some of Micon's hogs on his farm, the aged man and the youth came to blows.

Micon, according to reports, was on his way to church when he was attacked by McDowell, but the old man, using his walking stick as his defense, beat off McDowell and gave him a sound thrashing.

The next day, April 24, the mob collected, found Micon at a neighbor's house, and, despite his pleas for mercy, Micon was dragged from the house and lynched. The body was taken from Choctaw county to Winston county and there thrown into a creek.

Micon's body was discovered a week later by fishermen, who notified the sheriff. Sentiment is running high here among members of the Race because of the cold-blooded murder of the aged, defenseless man and because his murderers remain unpunished.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
NEWS
JUL 25 1933

INDICTMENTS FOR LYNCHING

This is good news from Mississippi. Three months ago a negro was lynched in that state. Yesterday a grand jury indicted 15 men, charging them with participation in the crime. Five of the 15 are said to have confessed. The extent of lynching in the South at one time was a black stigma on that section. In recent years this crime has been so reduced that the South compares favorably with some of the Northern states. But whether in the South or in the North, indictment of lynchers is uncommon. Even when the authorities know or have reason to suspect the participants in mob law, there is reluctance to bring them to account if the crime charged against the victim is one calculated to impassion the community. Yet more frequent conviction and punishment of lynchers would contribute greatly to the suppression of mob violence. Perhaps Mississippi is about to give the country a notable and salutary example of justice.—Kansas City Star.

KANSAS CITY, MO
STAR
JUL 14 1933

Indictments for Lynching.

This is good news from Mississippi. Three months ago a Negro was lynched in that state. Yesterday a grand jury indicted fifteen men, charging them with participation in the crime. Five of the fifteen are said to have confessed.

The extent of lynching in the South at one time was a black stigma on that section. In recent years this crime has been so reduced that the South compares favorably with some of the northern states. But whether in the South or in the North, indictment of lynchers is uncommon. Even when the authorities know or have reason to suspect the participants in mob law, there is reluctance to bring them to account if the crime charged against the victim is one calculated to impassion the community. Yet more frequent conviction and punishment of lynchers would contribute greatly to the suppression of mob violence. Perhaps Mississippi is about to give the country a notable and salutary example of justice.

Hattiesburg, Miss. American
July 14, 1933

REAL NEW DEAL

Indictment of 17 Choctaw men on murder charges in connection with the death of 65-year-old negro is a real new deal in Mississippi as far as criminal procedure is concerned.

Fifteen of the men have been arraigned at Louisville, Winston county, in which the slaying is alleged to have occurred. Two of the 15 pleaded guilty to the charges against them while trial of the other members of the group has been tentatively set for July 17.

Action of the Winston county officials will attract the attention of the whole country upon Mississippi which has a rather unsavory lynching record. Great progress to remedy the mob violence evil has been made in recent years and the state has gone a long way toward removing this undesirable stigma.

When mobs attempt to administer justice, they manhandle the law more than they do their victims. If people became properly aroused over the insufficiency and inefficiency of the statutes and the poor enforcement and application thereof, there would be no cause for mob violence because the law would be made to function.

Winston county is setting an example for every other county in Mississippi and the entire south by bringing indictments against the men who are accused of doing to death the negro, victimized for nothing more than a minor row with two members of the group.

Hereafter, Mississippi will make a more determined effort to keep the mob stain off the state's standard which has been pretty well besmudged in the past.

Lynchings – 1933 I.
& Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Missouri.

4134

Four More Arrested In Missouri Lynching

Constitution

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Four more men were being held at police headquarters here today for questioning in connection with the lynching here last week of Lloyd Warner, negro youth accused of attacking a white woman.

Their detention brings to six the number of persons held. No charges had been filed against the quartet today and their names were not made public.

They are to be questioned by William O. Sawyer, assistant attorney-general, who is in charge of the state's investigation of the mob's action. Meanwhile Sawyer was busy collecting the names of 50 witnesses he plans to have examined by a grand jury next week.

12-7-33
Atlanta, Ga.

Catholic Mob Members Ordered to Confess

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Rev. Victor Meagher, pastor of St. Francis Xavier church, told his Catholic parishioners yesterday that presence in the mob that last Tuesday night hanged Lloyd Warner, negro accused of attacking a white girl, was a "sin that must be confessed."

"The mere presence of any Catholic in that mob is a matter of confession," Father Meagher said. "I don't care whether presence there was only curiosity. The very fact that you were there and watched that murder makes it a sin that must be confessed."

Constitution
12-5-33
Atlanta, Ga.

FOUR UNDER ARREST IN ST. JOSEPH LYNCHING

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Four men are in custody in connection with the lynching November 28 of Lloyd Warner, 19-year-old negro, said by police to have confessed an attack on a young Jewish girl.

Aaron Levin, junk dealer, and John F. Zook, former policeman, are charged with first degree murder. Both pleaded not guilty and are held without bond for next week's grand jury.

Carl Fisher, charged with possession of a pistol stolen from the Buchanan county jail, pleaded guilty. Sentence was deferred.

Walter Garton also pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious destruction of property in connection with the jail attack.

Constitution
12-9-33
Atlanta, Ga.

Arrest 2 Lynchers of Lloyd Warner

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 8.—Police today arrested two leaders of the mob which took Lloyd Warner, Negro youth, out of jail and lynched him last week. Police refused to divulge the names of the arrested lynchers.

The arrests followed wide protests after Assistant Attorney-General W. O. Sawyer, detailed to "investigate" the lynching, had reported "no progress."

New York

HOLD FORMER OFFICER AS LYNCHING LEADER

Commercial Appeal

Accused Charged With Pouring Gasoline on Victim

12-7-33

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 6.—(AP)—A warrant charging first degree murder was issued here tonight for John Zook, a former St. Joseph policeman, [illegible] in connection with the lynching last Tuesday night of Lloyd Warner, 19, negro, who confessed attacking a young white woman.

Memphis

Zook, according to the charges, is the man who poured gasoline on the negro's body after it had been strung up to a tree a short distance from the Buchanan County jail, where the mob seized him after a three-hour battle. Zook denied he participated in the lynching. Officers said, however, that he had been indentified by witnesses as a mob leader.

Walter Garton, 34, World War veteran, is accused of malicious destruction of property for allegedly assisting in tearing a door from the jail and Carl Fisher is awaiting sentence on a charge of illegally possessing a pistol stolen from Sheriff Otto Theisen during the fight over Warner. Fisher pleaded guilty.

Two Men Are Held In Lynching Case

Telegraph
12-4-33

Officers Seeking Evidence in Killing of Negro

Macon, Ga.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 3.—(AP)—With two men in custody, officers today were investigating "tips" which they said may lead to additional arrests of men sought as possible leaders of the mob that lynched Lloyd Warner, 19, Negro, here last Tuesday.

Declining to reveal the source, officers admitted they were in possession of information which they believed would enable them to identify the leaders of the mob.

Police arrested Carl Fisher, 24, after they had learned he was attempting to sell a revolver. The revolver, officers said, was the property of Sheriff Otto Theisen and was taken from his living quarters in the Buchanan county jail building after the mob had forced entrance and dragged the Negro forth to his death.

Frank Jutten, a deputy sheriff said Fisher named a 45-year-old World war veteran as being one of the men who fastened a chain from a motor truck to the steel rear door of the jail, by which means the door was torn from its hinges.

This man also was taken into custody and is being held for questioning, officers said. They declined to disclose his name.

LEADER OF MOB IN MISSOURI SOUGHT

Two Men Held In Lynching Of Negro; 'Tips' Are Being Followed Up

Advertiser

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Dec. 3.—(AP)—With two men in custody, officers today were investigating "tips" which they said may lead to additional arrests of men sought as possible leaders of the mob that lynched Lloyd Warner, 19, negro, here last Tuesday.

Declining to reveal the source, officers admitted they were in possession of information which they believed would enable them to identify the leaders of the mob.

12-4-33

Police arrested Carl Fisher, 24, after they learned he was attempting to sell a revolver. The revolver, officers said, was the property of Sheriff Otto Theisen and was taken from his living quarters in the Buchanan County Jail Building after the mob had forced entrance and dragged the negro youth to his death.

Montgomery

Frank Jutten, a deputy sheriff, said Fisher denied he was a leader of the mob, but admitted being present when the negro was hanged and burned. Fisher told officers a boy gave him the sheriff's revolver.

Jutten said Fisher named a 45-year-old World War veteran as being one of the men who fastened a chain from a motor truck to the steel rear door of the jail, by which means the door was torn from its hinges.

This man also was taken into custody and is being held for questioning, officers said. They declined to disclose his name

Officers said no other persons have as yet been arrested in connection with the lynching.

The negro was lynched in the presence of a crowd of 7,000 persons, including many women and girls, after the mob had stormed the jail for three hours.

Warner was accused of criminally attacking a 21-year-old white girl.

Second Suspect Held as Lyncher

Telegraph
12-8-33
Macon, Ga.

Junk Dealer Charged With Murder in Missouri Case

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 7 (AP)—A second warrant charging first degree murder in connection with the lynching of Lloyd Warner, Negro, was issued late today.

Aaron Levin, 50, a junk dealer, is charged in the warrant with being one of the men who procured the gasoline which was hurled on the Negro's body and set afire after he had been hanged to a tree a short distance from the Buchanan county jail.

Police said Warner confessed attacking a 21-year-old Jewish girl.

The first murder warrant in the case was issued for John F. Zook, ex-policeman and wrestler, who was accused by authorities of pouring the gasoline on the victim's body.

Arraigned, both Zook and Levin pleaded not guilty and were held without bond to await action of the grand jury which has been called to meet Monday.

Evidence Will Be Offered

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7 (AP)—Asserting he possessed proof of identities of two members of the crowd which lynched the confessed San Jose slayers of Brooke Hart, A. L. Wirin, Los Angeles attorney representing the American Civil Liberties union, said today he would turn the evidence over to United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings if California authorities fail to take action.

Lynch Prober Issues Third Murder Warrant

Constitution
12-15-33

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The third murder warrant was issued today in the investigation of the lynching of Lloyd Warner, 19, negro, here November 28.

Atlanta, Ga.

Emery Donnelly, 21, was charged with first degree murder in a complaint filed by W. O. Sawyers, assistant attorney-general. Sawyers accused Donnelly of handling the rope from the tree to which Warner was hanged. Donnelly denies the charge.

The cases against Donnelly and John Zook and Aaron Levin, also charged with murder, will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow. Four others are held on warrants charging destruction of public property, and indictments will be asked for them, Sawyers said.

FORMER POLICEMAN IS CHARGED WITH MURDER IN MISSOURI LYNCHING

John F. Zook, Former policeman, with two others was charged with first degree murder in St. Joseph, Mo., in connection with the recent lynching of a negro there. (Associated Press Photo.)

NEW YORK
[redacted] WORLD —
Telegram
DEC 6 1933

NEW LYNCHING ARREST

Missouri Seizes Man Who Is Said To Have Started Fire.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 6.—William O. Sawyers, Assistant Attorney General, says officers have arrested the man who poured gasoline on the body of Lloyd Warner, 19-year-old Negro, hanged and burned a week ago by a mob.

Pursuing an investigation of the lynching, Sawyers said warrants probably would be issued today for the arrest of at least two of four men questioned last night. No names were disclosed. Two other men also are in custody.

ALL MEN IN MOB CALLED SLAYERS

Judge Asks Murder Indictments Against Every One in Missouri Lynching Party

12-12-33

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 11. (AP)—In a stern denunciation of lynch law, Circuit Judge J. V. Gaddy told a special grand jury today that every person who was active in the mob that lynched Lloyd Warner, Negro youth, the night of Nov. 28 "is guilty of murder in the first degree."

The jurist called upon the grand jury to return indictments.

"It is now necessary to punish the guilty members of that mob, if we are to protect ourselves against the danger of the mob," Judge Gaddy said.

"The man who pulled off the jail door, or any man who helped in any way to break into the jail is just as guilty of murder as the man who placed the rope around Warner's neck."

The Negro, charged with attacking a white woman, was seized after the mob had stormed the county jail for several hours. He was beaten, stabbed, hanged to a tree near the court house and his body burned in the presence of a crowd of about 8,000.

"Every man who was active in that mob is guilty of murder in the first degree and should be indicted," Judge Gaddy charged the grand jury, which is made up of prominent citizens and headed by Henry Krug, banker and president of the public library board.

"The danger of the mob lies in the letting down of individual responsibility," said the jurist. "It wasn't a desire to administer justice or prevent a recurrence of Warner's crime which sent the mob against the jail. It was hate, the same passion that engenders any murder.

"When you find the real leaders of that mob, you will find men of not much higher moral standards than the man they murdered. If you had been there that night, I doubt if you could have picked 12 men from that mob who would have had the courage to convict and hang Warner as members of a jury in a court of justice. Their action was murder in its most despicable form and an assault on the institutions you pay for and charge to administer justice."

New York Evening Post

DEC 6 1933

Missouri Holds 3 In Negro Lynching

One Prisoner Accused of Pouring Gasoline on Body of Youth—Other Arrests Due

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 6 (AP).—William O. Sawyers, an Assistant Attorney General, says the man is in custody who poured gasoline on the body of Lloyd Warner, nineteen-year-old Negro, hanged and burned a week ago by a mob.

Pursuing vigorously an investigation of the lynching of the confessed attacker of a white girl, Mr. Sawyers said warrants probably would be issued today for the arrest of at least two of four men questioned last night. No names were disclosed pending filing of charges.

Two Others in Custody

Two other men also are in custody. One is Carl Fisher, who has pleaded guilty to possession of a pistol, belonging to Sheriff Otto Theisen, which was stolen from the sheriff's living quarters in the attack on the jail November 28.

Police said Fisher named Walter Garton, forty-three, as having been one of the mob leaders, but Garton denied participation in the attack or lynching.

JOHN F. ZOOK SAID TO BE MAN THAT POURED GASOLINE ON WARNER

12-8-33

St. Joseph, Mo.—John Zook, 30 year old truck driver, ametuer wrestler and former policeman who was allowed to parade the streets of St. Joseph with a gun as a guardian of the law, was arrested December 6 for murder in the 1st degree being charged among other crimes, with having poured the gasoline upon Lloyd Warner's body, whereby it was burned to a crisp after Warner was lynched by a blood thirsty mob of hoodlums who broke in the St. Joseph jail which held Warner, destroying hundreds of dollars worth of property in their savage attempt to satify their fiendish lust for the blood of an innocent 19 year old Negro boy who was lynched by the mob which excused itself with the pretext that Warner had confessed attacking a white woman. According to recent reports, the mother of the alleged victim denied that such an attack occurred.

The Plaindealer

A total of eight people have been arrested in connection with the lynching of Warner, and from present evidences, it appears that the investigation will assume larger proportions than did the one following the Maryville lynching at which a Negro man, charged with the usual crime, was burned to death atop a school house while women and children danced merrily around the death fire. The recent unfavorable publicity given to Governor Rolph, and the scathing denunciation given mob action by newspapers and political leaders throughout the country have rendered it necessary for the state of Missouri, despite the southern traditions it has, to clear itself of the horrible shame which has been attached to its name by the St. Joseph lynching.

President Roosevelt's Wednesday night address condemning mob action broke the silence of the national government as to lynchings and mob violence, and in accordance with the campaign convictions of the state administration at Jefferson City, the state laws of Missouri which condemn murder in any form, are being upheld.

Zook pleaded not guilty Thursday to a charge of first degree murder in the death of Warner. The ex-patrolman is accused of pouring gasoline over the victim. Judge J. V. Gaddy in the criminal division of the circuit court ordered Zook held without bond. Zook told the court he will ask permission to appear before the grand jury next week.

New York Evening Post

DEC 7 1933

Lynching Is Laid To Ex-Policeman

Alleged Leader of Missouri Mob Said to Have Thrown Gasoline on Negro

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 7 (AP).—A former policeman has been charged with first-degree murder in connection with the lynching of a Negro; two other men are in custody on lesser charges, one having pleaded guilty, and investigators continue a roundup of mob leaders, who directed the hanging and burning last week of Lloyd Warner, nineteen-year-old confessed attacker of a white girl.

John F. Zook faces the murder charge. His arraignment was scheduled for today. He denies he took part in the lynching but officers said he had been identified by witnesses as a leader. He is alleged to have tossed gasoline on the Negro's body before it was burned, after the hanging.

Grand Jury Convenes Monday

Since leaving the St. Joseph Police Department several years ago, Zook has worked for a packing plant.

William O. Sawyers, an Assistant Attorney General in charge of the investigation, said Roy McKittrick, Attorney Genral, may come here for the convening of a Grand Jury next Monday. More than fifty lynching witnesses have been subpenaed to testify before the jury.

CHILLICOTHE, MO.
CONSTITUTION

DEC 1 1933

A LYNCHING IS DEPLORED

Three St. Joseph Organizations Passed Resolutions; An Investigation Underway.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 1.—(U.P.)—Resolutions from three St. Joseph organizations today deplored the lynching here early Wednesday of Lloyd Warner, Negro who confessed attacking a ~~white~~ woman.

Investigation of the lynching by state and county authorities went forward slowly, checked yesterday by the Thanksgiving holiday. The attorney general's office promised a thorough investigation and the county prosecutor pledged cooperation.

The St. Joseph Ministerial Alliance deplored the lynching, the crime which incited mob action and extended sympathy to the girl victim of Warner, recovering in a hospital here. The St. Joseph Laymen's federation took similar action. The St. Joseph Peace Council condemned the lynching and charged that peace officers failed in their duty.

Meantime, identity of leaders of the mob of more than 9,000 persons who stormed the Buchanan County jail was sought. Although none attempted to conceal his identity during the five-hour battle with officers and national guardsmen, or when the Negro was hanged and burned on a downtown street, investigators had made little progress.

JUDGE HOLDS MOB 'MURDERED' NEGRO

St. Joseph Jurist Calls Upon Grand Jury to Return First Degree Indictments

12-12-33

KANSAS KILLER CONFESSES

New York

Cowboy, in State Reformatory for Safe-Keeping, Admits Slaying Couple.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 11 (AP).—In a stern denunciation of lynch law, Circuit Judge J. V. Gaddy told a special grand jury today that every person who was active in the mob that lynched Lloyd Warner, Negro youth, the nghit of Nov. 28 "is guilty of murder in the first degree."

The jurist called upon the grand jury to return indictments.

"It is now necessary to punish the guilty members of that mob, if we are to protect ourselves against the danger of the mob," Judge Gaddy said.

"The man who pulled off the jail door, or any man who helped in any way to break into the jail is just as guilty of murder as the man who placed the rope around Warner's neck."

The Negro, charged with attacking a white woman, was seized after the mob had stormed the county jail for several hours.

The grand jury is made up of prominent citizens and headed by Henry Krug, banker and president of the Public Library Board.

"The danger of the mob lies in the letting down of individual responsibility," said the jurist. "It wasn't a desire to administer justice or prevent a recurrence of Warner's crime which sent the mob against the jail. It was hate, the same passion that engenders any murder.

"When you find the real leaders of that mob you will find men of not much higher moral standards than the man they murdered. If you had been there that night, I doubt if you could have picked twelve men from that mob who would have had the courage to convict and hang Warner as members of a jury in a court of justice. Their action was murder in its most despicable form, and an assault on the institutions you pay for and charge to administer justice.

"Women are no safer in St. Joseph today by reason of that murder. And I want to tell you men of the grand jury that the Negroes of this community are as law-abiding as our white citizens. I am not offering a defense of the victim or the lynching. Perhaps he had no defense. * * If Buchanan County institutions are to exist there must be a complete investigation of this lynching."

Lynchings-1933 II

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Missouri.

4132

James McDonald, 52 years old, of 39 India Street, Brooklyn, a member of the crew of the tug Man-O-War, was injured fatally yesterday in a fall from a ladder to the deck of the tug. He died later in the Greenpoint Hospital. McDonald, a widower, is survived by two daugh-

Judge Gaddy commended W. O. Sawyers, Assistant State Attorney General, for his diligence in directing the investigation and his co[illegible] question about 200 more witnesses before presenting the case to the grand jury.

---

2 Suspects Arrested In Missouri Lynchings

N.Y. [illegible]

12-3-33

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 2 (U.P.).—Two men were arrested by local police today as suspects in the lynching and burning of Lloyd Warner, colored attacker of a white girl, here Tuesday night.

Police withheld names of the suspects. One was known to have denied a charge that he attached a chain to the main door of the Buchanan County Jail, where the negro was confined. A truck was used to pull the door from the building.

Lynchers Called Guilty Of Murder

Age-Herald

12-12-33

Montgomery Ala.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Dec. 11.—(AP)—In a stern denunciation of lynch law, Circuit Judge J. V. Gaddy told a special grand jury today that every person who was active in the mob that lynched Lloyd Warner, negro youth, the night of Nov. 28 "is guilty of murder in the first degree."

The jurist called upon the grand jury to return indictments.

"It is now necessary to punish the guilty members of that mob if we are to protect ourselves against the danger of the mob," Judge Gaddy said.

"The man who pulled off the jail door, or any man who helped in any way to break into the jail is just as guilty of murder as the man who placed the rope around Warner's neck."

The negro, charged with attacking a white woman, was seized after the mob stormed the county jail. He was beaten, stabbed, hanged to a tree near the courthouse and his body burned in the presence of a crowd of about 8,000.

MISSOURI LYNCHING BRINGS AN INQUIRY

Gov. Park Condemns It and Instructs Attorney General to Prosecute.

Greensboro, N. C. News
December 17, 1933

SHERIFF IS UNDER PROBE

Gave Up Negro Prisoner to Save Others Innocent of the Crime.

By LOUIS LA COSS.

Editorial Correspondence, THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 29.—Within forty-eight hours after a mob in San José, Calif., had lynched two confessed kidnappers and murderers, a mob of 7,000 battered down the doors of the jail at St. Joseph, Mo., hauled Lloyd Warren, 19-year-old Negro who had admitted attacking a white girl, to a tree in the public square and hanged his body at the end of a rope.

If the action of Governor Rolph of California in condoning the lynchers of his State with a promise to pardon all convicted of the crime caused the Missourians to believe that their own Governor would follow a similar course of leniency, they were mistaken. Contrary to the policy of Governor Rolph, who refused to call out State troops to protect the prisoners, Governor Park ordered out a hastily mobilized tank company of the Missouri National Guard, and directed it to assist Sheriff Otto Theisen of Buchanan County in thwarting the attack which brewed for several hours before it broke.

Furthermore, Governor Park in a subsequent statement in which he said there was no justification for the act, stated that a full investigation would be made and punishment meted out if the members of the mob were apprehended.

State Will Prosecute.

Attorney General McKittrick, in announcing that "if responsibility for the lynching can be fixed, this office will assist and aid in the prosecution," sent William Sawyer, one of his assistants, to the scene "to get the facts."

All investigation probably will centre around gray-haired Sheriff Theisen, who, after fighting the mob for two hours only to see his jail doors battered from their hinges as a swarming horde of men rushed in, eventually opened the cell door in which the cringing Negro was hiding and surrendered the youth to them. Sheriff since 1909, with a record of fearlessness akin to defenders of the law in the days of the old West, he declared his act was not prompted by fear of personal harm but because there were at least nine other Negro prisoners, jailed for minor offenses, who might have been taken by the mob and hanged although innocent of the crime with which Warner was charged.

Reports from St. Joseph are that the action of the Sheriff has been upheld by a majority of citizens, and Colonel Marvin Casteel, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, who was dispatched from Jefferson City by Governor Park when word of the mob violence was received, has said that Theisen and his deputies did a good job "under the circumstances."

Arrests Are Expected.

That there will be arrests is expected, as the mob, under organized leadership, milled around the jail for several hours before the final break was made. Several times during that interval they rushed the prison and were repulsed with tear gas, and even when State Guards appeared continued their assaults. It is therefore believed that numerous men can be identified as members of the mob and their names will be given to Assistant Attorney General Sawyer for possible indictment.

Missouri, which is only nominally in the South, where lynching bees for Negroes are something of a tradition, has a rather sanguinary record in this respect. There have been ninety such illegal hangings in the State since 1889, twenty-three within the past thirty years and seven in the last fourteen years. All of the latter were Negroes.

State newspapers generally, commenting on the lynching and unanimously deploring it, refer to the attitude of three Governors on lynch law. Governor Rolph praised it as "California's lesson to the world," Governor Ritchie of Maryland sent troops this week to arrest the leaders of the violence last month at Princess Anne, and Governor Park of Missouri has found "no justification" for violence.

Grand Jury Blames Sheriff In Lynching

Advertiser

12-31-33

Montgomery Ala.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Eleven indictments against suspects in the lynching of Lloyd Warner, 19, negro, here Nov. 28 were returned late today by the Buchanan County Grand Jury, which recommended the ousting of Sheriff Otto Theisen and members of the Police Department who yielded to the mob.

"We ask that steps be taken to request the resignation of Sheriff Otto Theisen and members of the Police Department for neglect of duty," the jury said.

It characterized as "unsound" Sheriff Theisen's explanation to the jury that he believed the jail to be impregnable.

The negro was taken by the mob from the County Jail, hanged to a tree and burned as he awaited arraignment on a charge of having criminally attacked a young white woman.

Officers gave up the prisoner only after a long fight. National Guardsmen were called out by Gov. Guy D. Park in a vain effort to save the prisoner. Tear gas and clubs were used in the defense.

ELEVEN INDICTED IN LYNCHING CASE

Telegraph

Grand Jury Demands Ousting of Sheriff as Result of Mob Murder in St. Joseph, Mo.

12-31-33

Macon Ga.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 30. (AP)—Eleven indictments against suspects in the lynching of Lloyd Warner, 19, Negro, here Nov. 28 were returned late today by the Buchanan county grand jury, which recommended the ousting of Sheriff Otto Theisen and members of the police department who yielded to the mob.

"We ask that steps be taken to request the resignation of Sheriff Otto Theisen and members of the police department for neglect of duty," the jury said.

It characterized as "unsound" Sheriff Thiesen's explanation to the jury that he believed the jail to be impregnable.

The Negro was taken by the mob from the county jail, hanged to a tree and burned as he awaited arraignment on a charge of having criminally attacked a young white woman.

Officers gave up the prisoner only after a long fight. National guardsmen were called out by Governor Guy D. Park in a vain effort to save the prisoner. Tear gas and clubs were used in the defense.

The names of only three of those indicted were made public immediately. They were Aaron Levin, a junk dealer; John Zook, former policeman and wrestler; and Walker Garton, a cook. All were charger with first degree murder, while a charge of malicious destruction of property also was returned against Garton.

In its report, the jury divided blame for the lynching on the sheriff and police for alleged "failure to protect the victim," on the lynchers, and on the spectators "who by their presence lent encouragement to the lynchers."

4132

Missouri.

4133

Lynchings - 1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Nation
12-27-33
Vol. 137, no. 3573
New York, N.Y.

THREE WARRANTS charging murder in the first degree have already been issued in St. Joseph, Missouri, for the lynching of Lloyd Warner, Negro, on November 28. Following an admirable statement by Governor McKittrick denouncing mob violence wherever it occurred, Circuit Judge J. V. Gaddy, in charging a grand jury to bring indictments for every person suspected of having had a part in the lynching, did not mince words. "That lynching was not done by good, outraged citizens," he said. "It was done by men whose moral standards, you will find, are little higher than those of the man who was lynched. That lynching was murder, nothing but cowardly, despicable murder. . . . The man who pulled off the jail door, or any man who helped in any way to break into the jail, is just as guilty of murder as the man who placed the rope around Warner's neck." Shall not the same thing be said of the Governor of a State who declares he will not send troops to interfere with persons who are about to take the law into their own hands by murdering a fellow-citizen? Anthony Cataldi of San José, who boasted, in an article which appeared in a number of newspapers the day after the California lynching, that he had rounded up the mob and had led them to the jail, has been arrested on information supplied by the American Civil Liberties Union. Governor Rolph, when informed of the arrest, declared he had not changed "one iota" his intention of pardoning anyone convicted of participation in the San José lynching. The man is incorrigible. It remains to be seen whether the same is true of enough citizens of California to reelect him to the office which he has defamed.

Call
12-29-33
[illegible]

No Indictments Yet in St. Joe Lynching Probe

ST. JOSEPH. — The Buchanan county grand jury which is investigating the lynching of Lloyd Warner, 19, here November 28 has not yet returned any indictments.

About 10 witnesses appeared before the jury Monday morning, including Emery Donnelly, [illegible], charged with first degree murder in connection with the murder. Donnelly waived immunity and told his story, the details of which were not divulged, to the jury.

One member of the grand jury said that the jury would take its full time before adjournment. The jury must adjourn December 31.

North Carolina

4135

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

North Carolina Lynchers All "Went Blind" At The Same Time. Testify

Courier 9-16-33

Pittsburgh, Pa.

Fifty Persons Who Attended Lynching Orgy of Doc Rogers All Declare That They Missed Seeing Riddling of Victim—Solicitor Surprised At Doubtful Testimony.

BURGAW, N. C., Sept. 14—(ANP)—Most significant of the facts disclosed Friday at the hearing into the lynching of Doc Rogers, held in a vacant store, with Judge E. H. Crammer presiding, was that all of the lynchers went blind at the same time.

One witness after another took the stand to testify that he had seen Rogers before and after the lynching, but none of them saw when he was riddled with bullets.

Solicitor Woodus Kellum, conducting the inquiry, was nonplussed several times by this aspect of the matter and commented upon the strange fact that everybody should go blind at the time of the actual killing. Although he did not say so, the solicitor acted as though he thought the witnesses were lying.

Sheriff J. T. Brown, who had Rogers in custody when he was seized naively told the court that he "didn't know just what to do" after Rogers had been filled with bullet holes and thrown into a ditch.

The hearing concluded without the filing of any charges. At the time Rogers was murdered there were about fifty persons present, but "blindness" kept them from seeing one another.

Probe of Lynching In North Carolina Ends Minus Action

Journal and Guide

9-16-33

GURGAW, N. C.—The investigation here last week into the lynching of Doc Rogers came to a close without the filing of any charges against either the mobbists or the officers in whose charge the victim was when he was kidnaped and mob murdered.

The most significant development at the hearing, held Sept. 8, was the statement of Sheriff J. T. Brown, of Pender County, that he was present at the lynching but that after viewing the bullet-ridden body of his prisoner he "just didn't know what to do." The probe was conducted by Solicitor Woodus Kellum and presided over by Judge E. H. Cranmer as a committing magistrate.

RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS OBSERVER
SEP 10 1933

THE REMAINING QUESTION

Before Solicitor Woodus Kellum began the investigation of the killing of Dock Rogers, Negro, at Burgaw this week there was some contention that no lynching had occurred. His investigation ends with the definite establishment of the fact that Rogers was still alive when he was riddled with bullets by a mob

The only question now remaining is whether the solicitor and other officers of the law can punish the men who committed the crime, and used violence not only against the Negro but also against the laws and justice of North Carolina.

Lumberton, N. C. Robersonian
December 4, 1933

TO PREVENT LYNCHING

A model act for prevention of lynching is presented by J. H. Chadbourne, member of the law faculty of the University of North Carolina, in his "Lynching and the Law", issued by the University press.

The proposed act would make any county or counties through which the lynch-mob passes liable to each lynched person or his estate for not less than $2,000 nor more than $10,000, the amount to be exempt from all creditor's claims.

Give the governor power and make it mandatory to remove the sheriff in any county a person is lynched; force the governor to remove any peace officer from whom a person is taken and lynched when such officer has not "done all in his power" to prevent the lynching; and such officers removed shall remain forever ineligible for public office.

Give the governor power to send military forces to prevent a threatened lynching without waiting for a request for aid and officers of the militia would be subject to removal should they fail to prevent the lynching unless exerting their utmost energies to prevent the occurence.

No doubt the fear of causing somebody to lose a job and the certainty of laying the county liable to a heavy money settlement would give pause where other considerations fail. Also the act might provide for prompt impeachment of any governor who should make such dangerous such incendiary remarks as Governor Rolph of California made in commending the lynching mob in his state.

Greensboro, N. C., News
December 5, 1933

BACK OF THE STATUTE.

The latest program for the prevention of lynchings comes from J. H. Chadbourn, law faculty member at the University of North Carolina, in his "Lynching and the Law" recently issued by the University press.

Professor Chadbourn proposes a "model law" which would, among other things, make any county or counties through which the lynch-mob passes liable to each lynched person or his estate for not less than $2,000 nor more than $10,000, the amount to be exempt from all creditor's claims; give the governor power and make it mandatory to remove the sheriff in any county where a person is lynched; force the governor to remove any peace officer, who would forever after remain ineligible for public office, from whom a person is taken and lynched when such officer has not "done all in his power" to prevent the lynching; give the governor power to send military forces to prevent a threatened lynching without waiting for a request for aid and make officers of the militia subject to removal should they fail to prevent the lynching unless exerting their utmost energies to prevent the occurrence.

The proposed measure, while perhaps the most drastic, everything considered, that has yet been advanced to curb, if not eliminate, the lynching evil, rests, in the final analysis, upon the same foundation on which any other law depends, a fortifying, strengthening and demanding public opinion. South Carolina, for instance, has a statute which makes a county liable for any lynching which occurs within its confines. Judgment has actually been rendered against one Palmetto county, but if collection has occurred, months after the court's decree, the chroniclers of events have somehow or other missed it. Removal of the sheriff would be mandatory, but in each of the other provisions loopholes obtain. Governors, like every one else in public office, are susceptible to sentiment, feeling and popular opinion, as California and Maryland will testify. A law that is absolutely ironclad is certain to cause injustice by its rigidity; if it is left elastic, there can be no doubt that it will be stretched to cover at least some mob demonstrations.

The proposal is welcomed as an indication of advanced thinking upon the lynching evil and a readiness to take more drastic steps towards its curbing. At the same time, it offers no felease from a program of education and development of a civilization which has more than a thin veneer between it and the jungle.

Lynchings-1933

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

South Carolina

4136

CAROLINA GOVERNOR PUSHES LYNCH PROBE

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(ANP)—With unprecedented fairness, Governor Blackwood has been relentless in his probe into the slaying of Morris Dendy on July 5. The governor told officers conducting the investigation, "It is not a matter of how long it takes. It is my purpose to persevere in the prosecution of this case as long as I am governor or until the guilty parties are tried."

7-22-33

Dendy on July 4 was arrested for striking a white man in a row. The next day four men seized him from the jail, flogged, bound and killed him. His body was found in a churchyard seven miles from Clinton. At that time Governor Blackwood described the lynching as "murder."

"I have enlisted the services of two of the best state detectives and the matter is being thoroughly investigated," said the governor, last week.

Journal and Guide

Norfolk, Va.

Dendy was a graduate of Allen University, the son of one of the leading laymen in the A. M. E. church, nephew of a former A. M. E. presiding elder, the late Rev. R. [illegible] Dendy, and also a relative of Principal Dendy of the Spartanburg High School.

Private investigations are being made and the results of these investigations are expected to create a sensation as well as place the blame squarely on those responsible for the lynching.

---

4 Held in Killing Of Negro Prisoner

Constitution

NINETY SIX, S. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A coroner's jury late today ordered four men held on a charge of murdering Bennie Thompson, youthful negro who was taken from the jail here last night and beaten to death.

This action was taken by the jury after Burley Leppard read a statement admitting he and three white men took the negro from his cell and whipped him with "automobile tire tubes."

10-10-33

The other men implicated by Leppard were J. F. Morris, "Lesty" Mayes and "Toody" Webb. Leppard, a textile worker, and Mayes were in jail tonight, but officers were still searching for the other two men.

The negro was arrested and put in jail after he had reportedly drawn a pistol on Leppard.

Atlanta, Ga.

Leppard accused the chief of police of having left the jail unlocked so the negro could be taken out.

Columbia, S. C. State
October 10, 1933

FOUR ARRESTED FOR LYNCHING

Police Chief Denies Implication in Affair.

NINEY-SIX TRAGEDY

Blackwood Pleased With the Prompt Handling of Case.

Ninety-Six, Oct. 9—(AP)—A coroner's jury late today ordered four men held on a charge of murdering Bennie Thompson, youthful Negro, who was taken from the jail here last night and beaten to death.

This action was taken after Burley Leppard, a textile worker, admitted that he and three other white men took the Negro from his cell and whipped him with "automobile top tubes."

The other men implicated by Leppard are J. F. Morris, "Lesty" Mayes and "Toody" Webb. Leppard and Hayes were in jail tonight, but officers were still searching for the other two men.

"We and the others had some trouble with the Negro at a cafe last night and he drew a pistol on us. The Negro was arrested and put in jail," Leppard said.

"Late the four of us went to the jail and asked the jailer to turn the Negro over to us. He refused, telling us we would have to hee the chief.

"Chief of Police Rush came in a few minutes later and we made the same request of him. He told us to wait until dark and come back and we would find the jail unlocked.

"We went back to the jail a short time later and we found the door open and the lock hanging in the cell door, pushed together as if it had been locked.

"We took the Negro out and drove him down the road in my car. All of us beat him with automobile top tubes and left him beside the road still alive."

Leppard said this was at 7:30 o'clock last night.

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, the Negro's body, terribly scarred, was found in plain view of the highway by a small Negro boy.

Solicitor H. F. Blackwell, who attended the inquest, said he would ask that Chief of Police Rush be indicted as an accessory to the killing.

Chief Rush made a statement tonight denying the textile worker's charge that he had aided them in taking the Negro from his cell:

"I have been an officer a long time and I will never be guilty of such a dirty trick like that," he said. "I let four boys talk to the Negro last night after he had been locked up and Leppard asked me to let him have the Negro, but I refused to do it and I said nothing about leaving the jail unlocked."

Governor Blackwood expressed gratification yesterday at the prompt action taken by Sheriff E. M. White of Greenwood county, in connection with the lynching to Bennie Thompson, Negro, at Ninety-Six last night.

The governor said he had not received a report of the episode and assumed that Sheriff White had not found it necessary to call upon state officers for assistance.

Blackwood said he was "bitterly opposed" to lynchings, and wished to see authorities fix the blame for the Ninety-Six affair.

Selma, Ala. Times
October 11, 1933

Prisoner Confesses Part In Lynching Of South Carolina Negro

NINETY-SIX, S. C., Oct. 11—(AP)—A quick investigation of the lynching of Bennie Thompson, youthful negro whose lacerated body was found on a roadside Monday morning, today had landed four cotton mill workers in jail on murder charges.

Following his arrest, Burley Leppard, confessed that he and three companions took the negro from the jail here Sunday night and beat him into unconsciousness with "tubes" from an automobile top and left him in a field to die.

Those implicated by Leppard were "Lesty" Mayers, who was picked up a few hours later, and Kenneth F. Morris and Howard Webb, who surrendered to Sheriff E. M. White yesterday. A coroner's jury ordered all four held on a charge of murder.

Leppard in his statement said Chief of Police J. Calvin Rush by pre-arrangement left the negro's cell unlocked, but the police chief emphatically denied conspiracy in the lynching. Solicitor Homer S. Blackwell announced he would ask the grand jury to indict Rush as an accessory.

COLUMBIA, S. C.
STATE
OCT 14 1933

What Is a Lynching?

To the Editor of The State:

If the widow of the Negro put to death recently at Ninety-Six shall go through with her announced intention of suing Greenwood county for $2,000 the law allows to the dependents of a person lynched, we shall get a judicial determination of the proper definition of the word "lynching," or at least shall have more or less defined what is not a lynching. A loose habit has grown up, which does the South no good, of terming almost any sort of killing, especially of a Negro, by more than two persons, a lynching; which word nobody would think of applying to a similar incident in the North.

JUDICATUS.

Opelika, Ala. News
October 10, 1933

FOUR MEN HELD IN CAROLINA LYNCHING

Ninety Six, S. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—A coroner's jury late Monday ordered four men held on a charge of murdering Bennie Thompson, youthful negro who was taken from the jail here Sunday night and beaten to death.

This action was taken by the jury after Burley Leppard read a statement admitting that he and three white men took the negro from his cell and whipped him with "automobile top tubes."

Greenville, S. C. News
October 17, 1933

WEBB DISCLAIMS PART IN LYNCHING

Affidavit Filed In Behalf Of One Of Accused In Thompson Case

NEWBERRY, Oct. 16.—(AP)—An affidavit was filed here today alleging that Howard Webb had no part in the lynching of Ben Thompson, negro, at Ninety Six recently, as Webb was admitted to $2,500 bail while two of three others charged in the crime waited until tomorrow for action on their applications.

Burley Leopard made bond last week of $2,500 in the case while Lefty Mayes and K. F. Morris expect Judge J. Henry Johnson to consider their application tomorrow.

Chief Justice Eugene S. Blease named the bail today for Webb as Webb's attorney, W. K. Charles, Greenwood attorney, filed the affidavit that said Webb was at home during the time Thompson was taken from jail, beaten and left to die several miles from Ninety Six.

In the affidavit, Webb said he went with Chief of Police J. C. Rush of Ninety Six to arrest the negro who allegedly had threatened a group of men. Later, Webb said, he went to the jail with Leopard who asked that Thompson be released and that Rush told them to "go home" and come back the next day for the trial of the negro.

Webb said he went home and did not leave the house during the remainder of the night.

Meanwhile, Webb remained in jail with Mayes and Morris pending furnishing of his bond.

---

17 Carolinians Held In Slaying of Negro

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Two more arrests were made today in connection with the slaying of George Green [illegible] Taylor, negro, by a masked mob on November 16, bringing to 17 the number of arrests in the case.

11-30-33

Those arrested today were M. R. Freeman and E. E. Parnell. The warrants for them, charging murder, were sworn out before Magistrate Lonie E. Smith by State Constable [illegible] Newman, who has been here for several days by order of the governor investigating the slaying.

Both the men were released on bonds of $2,000. The amount was set by an order signed by Judge C. J. Ramage, who is presiding over common pleas court here.

James S. Allison, who was arrested Monday, and J. F. Westbrooks, taken into custody yesterday, were still in jail today. All other defendants have made bond and been released.

(2

X

FOUR MORE HELD FOR MOB KILLING

Telegraph

Total of Fifteen Arrests Made as Result of Negro's Death at Hands of Maskers

11-29-33

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 28 (AP)—Four additional arrests, making a total of 15, were made today in connection with the nocturnal slaying of George Green, 73-year-old Negro, by a masked and hooded mob that invaded his home near Taylors in this county, Nov. 16.

Macon Ga

G. C. Banks, J. B. Davis, J. F. Westbrooks, and J. H. Bradley, all of Greenville county, were those taken into custody today.

Several of the 15 arrested since Fred Newman, state investigator, launched an inquiry into the slaying have posted bonds of $2,000 each and been released.

In his warrant, Newman charged that the Ku Klux Klan chapter of Greenville had been requested by the white landlord of Green to "do whatever was necessary" to get the tenant out of his home, but a statement issued in behalf of the organization denied that the Klan had any connection with the case.

Green's wife told officers her husband was shot by a member of a masked band when he resisted an effort upon the part of the mob to enter his home.

Charges of murder have been preferred against some of the defendants, while others are named in warrants as alleged accessories.

KLAN MURDER CHARGED

Five Members of Band Accused of Killing Negro

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 25.—(INS)—Slaying of a negro tenant farmer was laid at the door of the Ku Klux Klan in a renewal of night-riding terrorism today in murder charges against five men.

Confessions which county authorities said they obtained from the five men stated they went to the farm shack of George Green, slain negro tenant, after C. F. James, landlord, had appealed to the Ku Klux Klan to oust the negro.

Murder charges have been lodged against G. L. Smith, H. J. Duncan, W. B. Harter, E. W. Davis and J. D. Daley. James and Andrew Monk are charged as accessories.

Lynchings - 1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

South Carolina

4137

COLUMBIA, S. C.
RECORD
OCT 21 1933

Shifting the Emphasis.

Ada Thompson, widow of Ben Thompson, negro, who was taken from the Ninety-Six jail and beaten to death, is suing Greenwood county for $2,000 damages, as the law allows in lynching cases.

And this haste, it seems to The Record, is unfortunate. It shifts the emphasis in the case from the criminal court to the civil court and the important fact is not that some person may be entitled to civil damages, which might wait, but that the laws of South Carolina have been violated in the brutal slaying of a man, a prisoner of South Carolina.

Easley, S. C. Progress
October 19, 1933

Ada Thompson, widow of the negro who was lynched at Ninety-Six some days ago, is suing Greenwood county for $2,000 for the death of her husband. A South Carolina law provides that relatives of a person lynched may recover at least $2,000 from the county. Four of the alleged participants in this lynching have been released from jail on bond

Sumter, S. C., Item
October 17, 1933

Bail Granted Another Ninety-Six Lyncher

Newberry, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Howard Webb, one of four men charged with the lynching at Ninety-Six of Ben Thompson, negro, was admitted to $2,500 bail here today by Chief Justice Eugene S. Blease while consideration of bail for two others will come up tomorrow before Judge Henry J. Johnson presiding in common pleas court.

W. K. Charles, Greenwood attorney for Webb, said his client expected to furnish the bond this afternoon and at the same time filed an affidavit in which Webb denied any connection with the slaying of the negro.

In the affidavit, Webb said he went with Chief of Police J. C. Rush of Ninety-Six to arrest Thompson who allegedly threatened a group of men with Burley Leopard, another accused in the lynching, who asked Rush to release the negro.

The officer told the men to "go home" and come back the next day for the trial, the paper said and Webb affirmed that he then did as the officer instructed and did not leave his home again that night.

Leopard was admitted to $2,500 bail last week at Abbeville. The other two charged in the lynching are Lefty Mayes and K. F. Morris.

Anderson, S. C., Record
October 17, 1933

Ada Thompson, widow of the negro who was lynched at Ninety-Six some days ago, is suing Greenwood county for $2,000 for the death of her husband. A South Carolina law provides that relatives of a person lynched may recover at least $2,000 from the county. Four of the alleged participants in this lynching have been released from jail on bond.

GREENVILE, S. C.
NEWS
OCT 21 1933

DEFINING "LYNCHINGS"

A suit filed to collect $2,000 from the county of Greenwood for the alleged lynching of a young negro who was taken from the Ninety Six jail may have the interesting result of bringing a judicial opinion as to just what constitutes legally, a lynching.

In the Ninety Six event, the "mob" was composed of a very small group of men who went about their work very deliberately. The affair seems to lie in the twilight zone between a "lynching" and just an ordinary murder.

All lynchings, in the legal view, are murders, but not all murders, of course are "lynchings." The state law does not provide for payment of any damages by counties for murders committed within their boundaries. And that, we must say, is rather fortunate for the solvency of South Carolina counties—considering the unusually high homicide rate which this state "enjoys."

BANNER
Abbeville, S.C.
OCT 19 1933

NOT LYNCHING

Greenwood County is being sued for $2,000 as the result of a negro being taken from a jail and killed. It's called a lynching in order that the county may be liable, under the law. Abbeville has narrowly escaped lynchings and the payments of money, but they would have been lynchings. The negro was killed, there is no doubt, but certainly we can't see who could construe the killing as a lynching. In a lynching the perpetrators are never known.

Pensacola, Fla. News
October 10, 1933

TWO HELD, TWO ARE SOUGHT IN NEGRO LYNCHING

Youth Is Taken From Jail And Beaten To Death By Four Whites

(By The Associated Press)

Ninety-Six, S. C., Oct. 10.—Two white men were held here today and officers were seeking two others following a coroner's inquest into the lynching of Bennie Thompson, a youthful negro with whom the four men had had an "argument" a few hours earlier.

The coroner's jury ordered Burley Leppard, a textile worker, and three of his companions held on charges of murder after Leppard admitted that they had taken the negro from his cell and whipped him with "automobile top tubes."

Two Sought

The other men implicated by Leppard were J. F. Morris, "Lesty" Mayes and "Toody" Webb. Leppard and Mayes were arrested late yesterday, but deputies were unable to locate the other two men.

"We and the others had some trouble with the negro at a cafe and he drew a pistol on us," Leppard told the coroner's jury. "The negro was arrested, and later in the night the four of us went to the jail and asked the jailer to turn him over to us."

Unlocked

The jailer refused their request he said, telling them they would have to see Police Chief Rush.

"When the chief came in," Leppard said, "we made the same request of him. He told us to wait until dark and come back and we would find the jail unlocked."

Chief Rush, however, denied that he had left the negro's cell unlocked, or that he had made such a promise to Leppard.

Blames Officer

Solicitor H. C. Blackwell, who attended the inquest, said he would ask the grand jury to indict the police chief as an accessory to the killing.

Leppard said he and his companions, after whipping the negro, left him by the roadside, still alive. Yesterday morning his scarred body was found by a small negro boy in plain view of the highway.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
NEWS
OCT 17 1933

WHAT'S THE USE?

Under the South Carolina state law, whereby relatives of persons lynched may recover damages of not less than $2,000 from the county in which the lynching occurred, the widow of Bennie Thompson, taken from jail at Ninety-Six and beaten to death, allegedly with co-operation of the chief of police, has instituted proceedings against the county of Greenwood.

The action drew prompt retort from Rupert F. Davis, county attorney, who said it would be contested as a question of fact whether Thompson's death was a lynching or a murder.

That contention brings on more talk. A lynching, in the generally accepted sense of the word, is invariably a murder; but a murder need not necessarily be a lynching. Webster's New International Dictionary, which is more or less a guide around the sanctum, defines the verb murder "to kill (a human being) unlawfully and with premeditation and malice, or willfully, deliberately and unlawfully." To lynch, however, is "to inflict punishment upon, especially death, without the forms of law, as when a mob captures and hangs a suspected person." Bennie Thompson was in jail, under the protection of the county and the state, awaiting trial on minor charges preferred against him by the confessed leader of the group who subsequently beat him to death.

To the lay mind, the definitions and their application seem comparatively simple, although there is no divining what may or can be done to simple definitions when they get into lawyers' hands, especially in states where there are racial justice and a more or less popular condonment of lynch law.

After all, however, the argument is probably so much wasted breath, as it is recalled that, let's see, how many years ago was it, a negro was taken from the Walhalla jail and his widow subsequently awarded, believe it or not, damages against Oconee county. Nowhere in the annals, however, is the account marked paid; nor has Oconee county, a rather difficult feat to accomplish at that, or any of the responsible officials thereof been sent to jail for failure to comply with a court order.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
NEWS

OCT 16 1933

The Definition Stands

South Carolina has a law, a somewhat remarkable law, that relatives of a person lynched may recover $2,000 from the county in which the lynching occurred and that the county in turn is entitled to recover the amount of whatever judgment is rendered from the party or parties found guilty of the crime. Relatives of the Negro recently removed from the ~~jail at~~ Ninety-Six and flogged to death have brought such action against Greenwood county.

Which doesn't begin to dispel the contention that this was not a lynching but a murder. The popular if not the legal understanding of a lynching is that it is preceded by a crime for which the state itself, if given the opportunity, would demand nothing less than the death penalty. Criminal assaults by Negroes upon white women and murders of whites by blacks come in this category.

South Carolina's latest victim had committed, however, neither of these high crimes. He had simply waved what first was reported as a knife and later as a gun in the faces of a group of white men, and while we don't condone such behavior, least of all by reckless Negroes, no more does it at all justify the summary execution which followed.

Regardless of what court action the dead man's relatives may take, South Carolina still has a murder case on its hands. It is going to be extremely interesting to see what develops.

Columbia, S. C. Record
November 14, 1933

On a Greenville Chaingang.

Four Greenville county chaingang guards have been ordered held by a coroner's jury in connection with the investigation of the death of a negro convict following a flogging on October 24.

The Record knows nothing of the details of the case and does not attempt to sit in judgment on the four men. Greenville is investigationg the occurrence and may be expected to take such action as the facts warrant.

But the incident is additional testimony to the already demonstrated fact that chaingangs are sorry things at best, dangerous institutions, which any reason to believe that the chaingang had any the state could profitably do without. If there were especial value in reforming criminals there might be some excuse for the risks involved and the death of one more person might be less important than it is. But experience teaches no such thing and the state were it inclined to be "different" might abolish them all to its own considerable gain.

---

5 HELD IN MURDER OF CAROLINA NEGRO

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—A six-day investigation of the slaying of George Green, a 73-year-old negro, by a band of masked men, today had led to the detention of five persons in connection with the case.

One of them, J. D. Bailey, 50, was held on a charge of murder, while four others, whose identities officers declined to divulge, were held in jail here "pending further investigation." No formal charges had been lodged against them, officers said.

The aged negro was shot through the chest as he stood in his shack and resisted the entrance of the robed and hooded men. On the same night two negroes were taken from their home in the near-by town of Greer and severely flogged by a masked band.

No motive for the slaying of Green has been advanced.

(1)

Tennessee

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers

4139

TENNESSEE LYNCHING SCORED BY GOVERNOR

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The lynching in Maury county last week of Cord Cheek, 19-year-old negro, was condemned by Governor McAlister tonight as a "very cruel, lawless thing."

Cheek was abducted here Friday shortly after being released from jail following the Maury county grand jury's failure to indict him in connection with an alleged attempted attack on a young white girl. Following an anonymous telephone call to the Maury county sheriff, the negro's body was found hanging to a tree.

"It was a disgrace on the state, I am sorry to say," Governor McAlister said today, following his return from a trip out of town.

"No right-thinking citizen can condone it."

Investigations have been started in both Davidson (Nashville), and Maury counties.

Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart said tonight that he was preparing a special charge to be delivered to the Davidson county grand jury tomorrow in connection with the affair.

GRAND JURY DISMISSED IN PROBE OF LYNCHING

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Davidson county grand jury was disbanded today by Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart, who was told that the investigation into the week-old lynching of Cord Cheek, 19, negro, was [illegible].

Cheek was abducted here and was hanged in Maury county, where the grand jury had failed to return an indictment charging him with an alleged attempted assault on a white girl.

The grand jury has heard testimony from five negroes who saw a group of white men take the victim from the home of relatives here, but Tom Proctor, foreman, said he had been notified that the attorney-general and sheriff had no additional evidence to submit.

A new grand jury will be selected by January 1.

JURY'S INQUIRY INTO LYNCHING CONTINUES

Commercial Appeal

Committee May Ask President Roosevelt to Intervene

BY HILTON BUTLER
Commercial Appeal Staff Correspondent

NASHVILLE, Dec. 2[illegible].—President Roosevelt may be asked to take a hand in the Cord Cheek lynching case now occupying the attention of the Davidson County grand jury.

It was learned here tonight that a group of Maury and Davidson county citizens were forming a "law and order committee" with the avowed purpose of asking the president to remove the postmaster of Glendale if the grand jury investigation implicates him in the lynching.

Has Been Summoned

Robert Hancock, the postmaster of the small office between Nashville and Columbia, is already under subpoena from the grand jury along with several other Maury County citizens.

L. A. Bauman, sheriff of Davidson County, said that Postmaster Hancock was one of the persons in whose names the automobile licenses of the death cars were issued.

The license numbers were taken by two Fisk students near the Nashville home from which the young negro was removed and taken to a point south of Nashville and lynched.

Anonymous letters were received here today by District Attorney General Atkinson and by newspapers, giving names of the alleged members of the mob.

General Atkinson and Sheriff Bauman, going down into Maury County for a first hand investigation of the case at the scene of the alleged attack by the negro upon an 11-year-old white child, were reported from Columbia to have made statements that they believed the negro had been guilty of the crime.

Claude Godwin, Maury County sheriff, made a blunt statement upon arrival here today for grand jury testimony that "nobody in Maury County seems to be sorry the nigger was killed and as long as negroes rape little girls in Maury County they will be killed and there is nothing anybody can do about it."

He added that he would put all the evidence he could collect before a Maury County grand jury, but that he was willing "to bet 10 to 1 that there will be no indictments."

OFFER $1,000 REWARD FOR MAURY LYNCHERS

Commercial Appeal

Governor and Judge Order Full Investigation

12-19-33

NASHVILLE, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Describing the lynching of Cord Cheek Friday night as a "disgrace," Governor McAlister today posted a $1,000 reward for arrest of the negro's slayers as the county grand jury meanwhile laid aside all other matters to push a "thorough and complete" investigation.

While the 19-year-old negro's body was found hanging from a cedar tree near Columbia, in Maury County, it developed that he was kidnaped from the home of relatives here, and therefore Davidson County authorities assumed jurisdiction.

Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart, in a special lynching charge, instructed the grand jury to "immediately take such steps as may be necessary to bring the guilty parties to justice."

Accused of an attempted attack on a young woman, the negro had been held in the Davidson County jail for safe keeping prior to his release Friday on instructions from Columbia, where the grand jury had failed to indict.

Governor McAlister's decision to post the reward was made after a committee showed him a resolution adopted by the Nashville Pastor's Association asking him to "sound a note for law supremacy throughout our state and to summon afresh all officials to do their full duty without fear or favor, that everyone may enjoy his right of trial by a court of justice."

University Protests

Resolutions deploring the lynching were adopted also by several organizations including a group of service men and another of negro citizens. The latter group indorsed Sheriff L. A. Bauman's action in trying to ascertain the idtentity of the lynchers, and pledged its co-operation in "erasing this stain upon the fair name of the state of Tennessee by the conviction and punishment of the guilty parties."

Dr. Thomas Elsa Jones, president of Fisk University (for negroes) who headed the committee calling on Governor McAlister, also called on District Attorney General Richard M. Atkinson to urge that the case be pushed.

General Atkinson said: "I am going into this for a full and impartial investigation."

General Atkinson meanwhile made public a letter he had received about a week ago from Claude L. Boyd, attorney general of the district of which Maury County is a part, saying that the girl's family did not want Cheek indicted, and that hence he would be released. General Atkinson said he believed the family's decision was due to a desire to save the girl from the humiliation of having to appear.

In Judge Hart's charge to the grand jury he pointed out that Cheek had been shot in the head, and it was not known whether the shot was fired here or in Maury County, but this was immaterial since "certainly the accessories before the fact are triable here."

The scene of the abduction was fixed by Dr. Jones in his conference with Governor McAlister as a residence owned by Fisk University.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Describing the lynching of Cord Cheek Friday night as a "disgrace," Governor Hill McAlister today posted a $1,000 reward for apprehension of the negro's slayers as the county grand jury meanwhile laid aside all other matters to push a thorough and complete investigation.

While the 19-year-old negro's body was found hanging from a cedar tree near Columbia in Maury county, it developed that he was kidnaped from the home of relatives here and therefore Davidson county authorities assumed jurisdiction.

Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart, in a special lynching charge, instructed the grand jury to "immediately take such steps as may be necessary to bring the guilty parties to justice."

Meanwhile at Columbia Chief Deputy Sheriff W. A. Pinkston said an investigation had been started, but little progress made. "All we know," he declared, "is what was in the papers."

Accused of an attempted attack on a young white girl near Columbia, the negro had been held in the Davidson county jail for safe-keeping prior to his release Friday on instructions from Columbia where the grand jury had failed to return an indictment.

Governor McAlister's decision to post the reward was made after a committee showed him a resolution adopted by the Nashville Pastors' Association asking him to "sound a note for law supremacy throughout our state and to summon afresh all officials to do their full duty without fear or favor that everyone may enjoy his right of trial by a court of justice."

Resolutions deploring the lynching were adopted also by several other organizations, including a group of ex-service men and another of negro citizens. The latter group indorsed Sheriff L. A. Bauman's action in trying to ascertain the identity of the lynchers and pledged its co-operation in "erasing this stain upon the fair name of the state of Tennessee by the conviction and punishment of the guilty parties."

Tennessee's Lynchers Are Valued At $1,000

NASHVILLE, TENN., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Investigation of events preceding the lynching in Maury County Friday night of Cord Cheek, 19-year-old negro, will be resumed tomorrow by the Davidson County (Nashville) Grand Jury which will hear testimony of several Maury County residents.

12-20-33

The investigation was started on order of Criminal Court Judge Chester K. Hart, after it was disclosed that Cheek was abducted from the home of relatives here several hours before his body was found hanging from a cedar tree limb in Maury County.

Coincident with activity by county officials, Gov. McAlister announced a $1,000 reward for apprehension and conviction of those responsible for the crime.

The reward, Secretary of State Ernest S. Haston said, was the second largest ever offered by the State. A reward of $1,5000, he recalled, was offered in 1924 for the slayer of Samuel Smith, 16-year-old negro who was dragged from a hospital bed and lynched after he had been accused of shooting a white man.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
December 28, 1933

Reaction Against Lynching.

(Houston Post.)

Indicative of the strong reaction against the lynching evil, which has followed the wave of mob murders that hit the country a few weeks ago, is the action of the governor of Tennessee in offering a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of members of the mob that lynched a Negro in that state recently, and the announcement that the grand jury in the county where the lynching took place is making a thorough investigation.

Gov. McAlister has denounced the action of the mob in no uncertain terms, and is determined to bring the perpetrators of the crime to justice.

This lynching was all the more deplorable and inexcusable, because the victim had been exonerated of the crime of which he had been suspected, a grand jury having refused to indict him. Twelve white men had, after investigation, been unable to connect him with the offense for which he had been arrested. It is a practical certainty, therefore, that the victim of the mob was innocent of the crime for which he was hanged.

It is small wonder that the authorities of Tennessee are anxious to bring the members of that mob to justice.

From many outstanding American leaders have come stinging denunciations of mob violence and strong rebuke of lynchers since the San Jose tragedy last month. President Roosevelt, former President Hoover, Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland; former Gov. Sterling, of Texas, and others have unqualifiedly condemned murder by mob.

Another American statesman of a former period also had something to say about lynching. Only July 28, 1918, Woodrow Wilson, in an address, gave utterance to these immortal words:

"I say plainly that every American who takes part in the action of a mob, or gives it any sort of countenance, is no true son of this great democracy but its betrayer."

Tennessee Governor Offers Reward Of $1,000 For Arrest Of Negro's Slayers

LYNCHING PROBE RUSHED BY JURY NEAR COLUMBIA

Montgomery Advertiser

"Disgraced," Declares McAlister After Pastors Association Urges Action

12-19-33

NEGRO UNIVERSITY HEAD WANTS INQUIRY RUSHED

Montgomery Adv.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Describing the lynching of Cord Cheek Friday night as a "disgrace," Gov. Hill McAlister today offered a $1,000 reward for apprehension of the negro's slayers as the County Grand Jury meanwhile laid aside all other matters to push a "thorough and complete" investigation.

While the 19-year-old negro's body was found hanging from a cedar tree near Columbia in Maury County, it developed that he was kidnaped from the home of relatives here and therefore Davidson County authorities assumed jurisdiction.

Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart, in a special lynching charge instructed the Grand Jury to "immediately take such steps as may be necessary to bring the guilty parties to justice."

Meanwhile, at Columbia, Chief Deputy W. A. Pinkston said an investigation had been started but little progress made. "All we know," he declared, "is what was in the papers." Accused of an attempted attack on a young white girl near Columbia, the negro had been held in the Davidson County Jail for safekeeping prior to his release Friday on instructions from Columbia where the Grand Jury had failed to return an indictment.

Pastors Want Action

Gov. McAlister's decision to post the reward was made after a committee showed him a resolution adopted by the Nashville Pastors' Association, asking him to "sound a note for law supremacy throughout our State and to summon afresh all officials to do their full duty without fear or favor that everyone might enjoy his right of trial by a court of justice."

Resolutions deploring the lynching were adopted also by several other organizations, including a group of ex-service men and another of negro citizens. The latter group endorsed Sheriff L. A. Bauman's action in trying to ascertain the identity of the lynchers and pledged its cooperation in "erasing this stain upon the fair name of the State of Tennessee by the conviction and punishment of the guilty parties."

Dr. Thomas Elsa Jones, president of Fisk University (for negroes) who headed the committee calling on Gov. McAlister, also called on Dist. Atty. Gen. Richard M. Atkinson to urge that the case be pushed.

"I am going to do my duty," Gen. Atkinson said. "I am going into this for a full and impartial investigation.".

Letter Revealed

Gen. Atkinson meanwhile made public a letter he had received about a week ago from Claude L. Boyd, attorney general of the district of which Maury County is a part, saying the girl's family did not want Cheek indicted, and that hence he would be released. Gen. Atkinson said he believed the family's decision was due to a desire to save the girl from the humiliation of having to appear.

The letter added:

"If that negro comes back here, I am quite sure he will be killed. I want you to get a chance to talk to the negro (Cord Cheek) and tell him for me that he had better not ever come back to Maury County or anywhere near here, and that when he is discharged he had better go the other way and keep going.

Cheek, Gen. Atkinson said, declared that he had no intention of returning to Maury County.

The lynching of Cheek is the third in Tennessee this year but the first in which a negro was the victim.

Hart's Charge

In Judge Hart's charge to the Grand Jury he pointed out that Cheek had been shot in the head and it was not known whether the shot was fired here or in Maury County but this was immaterial since "certainly the accessories before the fact are triable here."

"To say the least of it," the charge continued, "a kidnaping has occurred within a stone's throw of the Davidson County Courthouse, and in broad daylight."

The scene of the abduction was fixed by Dr. Jones in his conference with Gov. McAlister as a residence owned by Fisk University and within two doors of the campus. Dr. Jones said that students at Fisk and Meharry Medical College (for negroes) held a mass meeting Saturday and decided to march on the Statehouse and City Hall with banners protesting the lynching. He dissuaded them from this, however, by promising to present the matter to authorities himself.

Greenville, S. C. News
December 31, 1933

AFTER A "QUIET" LYNCHING

Gov. Hill McAlister of Tennessees ranges himself with Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, and Governor Murray, of Oklahoma, in the warfare against the unreason of lynching. He has termed the mob murder of a negro at Columbia last week a disgrace to his state and has offered a rewanrd of $1,000 for the arrest of the murderers.

This is the sort of talk and action to be expected from the executive of a civilized Commonwealth. Tennessee has received a great deal of unfavorable publicity as the result of sundry events a few years ago in the village of Dayton. But after what Governor McAlister has done, the citizens of Tennessee can afford to look down their noses at the citizens of the state over which Governor Rolph presides. It is bad to have a "monkey law" on your statute books, but it is even worse to have a governor who publicly condones brutal and uncivilized outbreaks of mass violence.—Baltimore Sun.

Tennessean

NASHVILLE

TENNESSEE

DEC 29 1933

To Reopen Cordie Cheek Probe.

Leading citizens of Davidson County, spurred by the kidnaping in this county and the murder by a gang from another county of a negro youth, have banded together to support law and order, to protest against the lynching of that negro youth and to do their utmost to prevent "such catastrophes" in the future.

Following the mass meeting here Wednesday when the group was organized, Judge Charles Gilbert gave assurance that the next grand jury, to be selected Monday, will "leave no stone unturned" in probing the Cordie Cheek kidnaping and killing.

The negro youth was accused of attempting to attack a young white girl in Maury County. The case was considered by the Maury County grand jury and no true bill was returned. Upon the adjournment of the grand jury, Cheek, who has been held in the Davidson County jail, was released, there being no legal reason for holding him further. Within less than an hour he was taken by men in Maury County cars from the home of a relative in this city and was strung up to a tree in Maury County.

Clearly a crime was committed when the negro was kidnaped at his relative's home here. The sovereignty of this county was ignored by a gang from Maury County in the abduction of this negro. There is a crime for the Davidson County grand jury to investigate, and the new Central Committee has asked that especial care be taken in selecting men of the highest calibre to form the jury which will be entrusted with this investigation, when it is reopened next month.

If proper zeal is shown in the investigation of the Cheek kidnaping, it is not unlikely that the abductors can be brought to the bar of justice. That done, a signal victory will have been won for law and order.

Cordie Cheek was not killed as the result of the sudden inflaming of a community into hasty mob action. Weeks lapsed between the time of his alleged crime and his murder. The abduction was carefully planned to follow upon his release here and it was carried out in a cold and skillful manner. His abduction in Davidson County and his killing in this or Maury County were the result of well considered plans It was a gang killing rather than a mob lynching.

There may be doubt whether it can be established whether the negro youth was killed in Davidson County, but there is no doubt that he was abducted in Davidson and a law-respecting community wants the gang responsible for this crime brought to trial.

MEMPHIS, TENN.
COMMERCIAL APPEAL

DEC 25 1933

WHEELS OF JUSTICE MOVE

Governor McAlister will be strongly commended by the citizens of the State for promptly offering a reward of $1,000 for the apprehension of the parties engaged in the kidnaping and lynching of the eighteen-year-old Negro accused of criminal attack upon a Maury County girl a month ago but released from custody after the grand jury had failed to indict him.

His action does, indeed, "sound a note for law supremacy throughout our State," and is a "summons afresh to all officers of the law to let it be known beyond a shadow of a doubt that lynching will not be tolerated in Tennessee, and that those who take the law out of the hands of the court into their own hands, whatever the provocation, must expect themselves to pay the penalty the law provides."

The Governor recognized the fact that the crime was not merely directed against an individual, but against the State, society, government and the supremacy of law as the foundation defense of life and liberty.

The gravity, the audacity, the ruthlessness of the offense constituted such a challenge to public opinion and to every law enforcement agency that action quickly followed publication.

The demand for prompt apprehension and severe punishment of those engaged in the crime was immediate and unmistakable.

It was voiced in action taken by religious and educational bodies, by churchmen and laymen alike, by civic leaders and citizens prominent in every walk of life.

The unmistakable feeling was that the perpetrators of the crime had placed a stain upon the State which could be removed only by bringing them, whoever they may be, to the bar of justice, without delay, and compelling them to pay the penalty for their misdeeds and their utter disregard for the reputation and rights of the commonwealth and their communities.

The wheels of justice are in motion; but it is imperative that they be held firmly and courageously to their course till the ends of justice be so clearly and fully accomplished that the State of Tennessee is not a safe place for lynchers. —Nashville Banner.

Lynchings-1933
Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

Tennessee

4140

Progress Reported In Lynching Probe

Advertiser

HUNTSVILLE, TENN., June 13.—(AP)—Sheriff Esau Laxton said he was making progress today in his investigation of the identities of mob members who lynched two persons last Thursday but he was not ready to make an announcement he had expected today.

Thursday night a mob of about 25 persons forced its way into the jail and removed Jerome Boyett and Harvey Winchester, held on charges of murder. Several hours later their bullet riddled bodies were found near a road out from Huntsville.

"I am still making progress," Sheriff Laxton said tonight, "but I think it will take two or three days to clear up the investigation '

Boyett according to the sheriff, had confessed to the slaying of Sheriff G. B. Winnigham and his son, Floyd, of Pickett County. Winchester was being held on charges of slaying Eskar Thompson and Namon Perry at Winfield.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
June 12, 1933

Progress Reported In Lynching Probe

HUNTSVILLE, TENN., June 13.—(AP)—Sheriff Esau Laxton said he was making progress today in his investigation of the identities of mob members who lynched two persons last Thursday but he was not ready to make an announcement he had expected today.

Thursday night a mob of about 25 persons forced its way into the jail and removed Jerome Boyett and Harvey Winchester, held on charges of murder. Several hours later their bullet riddled bodies were found near a road out from Huntsville.

"I am still making progress," Sheriff Laxton said tonight, "but I think it will take two or three days to clear up the investigation '

Boyett according to the sheriff, had confessed to the slaying of Sheriff G. B. Winnigham and his son, Floyd, of Pickett County. Winchester was being held on charges of slaying Eskar Thompson and Namon Perry at Winfield.

Murphreesboro, Tenn. News-Jnl.
June 12, 1933

Huntsville Lynchings

Last week an armed mob of some twenty-five masked men stormed the Huntsville, Tennessee, jail and executed two prisoners who were accused of murder. The sheriff has since conducted an investigation and promises to bring certain members of the mob to justice. If he can identify and bring about the conviction of some or all of the hoodlums of the mob he will do a great service to law and order. Sheriffs, especially in the South, too often find it convenient to ignore lynchings and if the Huntsville officer keeps his promise he will establish a worthy precedent.

Athens, Tenn., Herald
June 15, 1933

LYNCH LAW IN SCOTT

"I have launched an investigtion that shall never end until the perpetrators have been found," declared Sheriff Esau Laxton, of Scott county, in speaking of the lynching of two white prisoners which a masked mob took from the county jail and inhumanly did to death.

Jerome Boyett, twenty-two years old, and Harvey Winchester, twenty-three, were probably bad characters, each being charged with a double murder, but four wrongs do not make two rights, and if sentiment was as strong as it seemed to be against these prisoners, doubtless convictions would have been had in the regular course of trial. As the case stands now the prisoners have been made to pay without the sanction of the law, in such a manner that many other men are themselves guilty of the same class of crime which they sought to atone.

Their punishment should be greater, if possible, because their strength was in numbers and their unreason greater than the reason of any one of them. A plowline brought from some hillside farm was fastened around Winchester's neck and one end held by a mobster, while, squealing, the helpless prisoner was forced to run in a circle as his body was riddled with shots. The evidence showed that Boyett was stripped naked and allowed to run through the brush as the lynchers took potshots at him, with so little chance to escape as a sportsman would give more to a rabbit.

This brings Scott countys' score up to seven in the past few years, it is said, as five others have been taken and hanged or shot. The perpetrators of such crimes should be as speedily brought to justice as can possibly be. It is hoped that the sheriff of the county is in deadly earnest in his promise. It may be that the sheriff could make himself mighty unpopular in some parts of the county by finding and convicting these mobsters; but such examples would do the county much good, and followers of law and order everywhere would applaud.

Chattanooga, Tenn. News
December 19, 1933

Stand Against Lynching

GOV. M'ALISTER has posted a reward of $1,000 for apprehension of those who lynched a Negro near Columbia this week. It is gratifying to the South for a Southern Governor thus to take his stand for law and against mob violence, in striking contrast to California's Gov. Rolph.

Other refreshing evidences of the public reaction against lynching were shown in Nashville yesterday. Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart, in a special charge to the grand jury at Nashville said "steps must immediately be taken to bring the guilty parties to justice." And the Nashville Pastors' Association asked the Governor "to sound a note for law supremacy throughout our State, and to summon afresh all officials to do their full duty without fear or favor, that everyone may enjoy his right to trial by jury." The Negro youth was seized in Nashville and taken to Columbia, where he was hanged.

Gov. McAlister's determined stand, and the posting of the $1,000 reward, should spur this State onward in the effort to stamp out lynching.

LYNCHING PROBED; REWARD OFFERED

Telegraph

Officers Investigating Death of Cord Cheek Friday Report Little Progress

12-19-33

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 18 (AP)—Describing the lynching of Cord Cheek Friday night as a "disgrace," Governor Hill McAlister today posted a $1,000 reward for apprehension of the Negro's slayers as the county grand jury meanwhile laid aside all other matters to push "a thorough and complete investigation."

While the 19-year-old Negro's body was found hanging from a cedar tree near Columbia in Maury county, it developed that he was kidnaped from the home of relatives here and therefore Davidson county authorities assumed jurisdiction.

Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart in a special lynching charge instructed the grand jury to "immediately take such steps as may be necessary to bring the guilty parties to justice."

Meanwhile, at Columbia Chief Deputy Sheriff W. A. Pinkston said an investigation had been started but little progress made. "All we know," he declared, "is what was in the papers."

Grand Jury Refused Indictment

Accused of an attempted attack on a young white girl near Columbia, the Negro had been held in the the Davidson county jail for safe keeping prior to his release Friday on instructions from Columbia where the grand jury had failed to return an indictment.

Governor McAlister's decision to post the reward was made after a committee showed him a resolution adopted by the Nashville Pastors' association asking him to "sound a note for law supremacy throughout our state and to summon afresh all officials to do their full duty without fear or favor that everyone may enjoy his right of trial by a court of justice."

Resolutions deploring the lynching were adopted also by several other organizations, including a group of ex-service men and another of Negro citizens. The latter group endorsed Sheriff L. A. Bauman's action in trying to ascertain the identity of the lynchers and pledged its co-operation in "erasing this stain upon the fair name of the state of Tennessee by the conviction and punishment of the guilty parties."

Nashville, Tenn. Banner
December 22, 1933

M'ALISTER AND RITCHIE

(Baltimore News)

Gov. Hill McAlister of Tennessee ranges himself with Governor Ritchie of Maryland and Governor Murray of Oklahoma in the warfare against the unreason of lynching. He has termed the mob murder of a Negro at Columbia last week a disgrace to his State and has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the murderers.

This is the sort of talk and action to be expected from the Executive of a civilized commonwealth. Tennessee has received a great deal of unfavorable publicity as the result of sundry events a few years ago in the village of Dayton. But after what Governor McAlister has done, the citizens of Tennessee can afford to look down their noses at the citizens of the state over which Governor Rolph presides. It is bad to have a "monkey law" on your statute books, but it is even worse to have a Governor who publicly condones brutal and uncivilised outbreaks of mass violence.

Lynchings - 1933

Virginia

4141

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS LEADER

JUL 1 5 1933

VIRGINIA'S LYNCHING LAW.

Is it true that, when a person is lynched in this state, it causes the state to pay a sum of money? If so, what is the amount and what is the money used for?—Mrs. J. H. C., Kinsale, Va.

No. Governor Byrd's anti-lynching bill, in its original form, imposed a fine of $2,500 on the locality when a person was lynched. The proceeds were to be paid the victim's heirs. The bill was passed, however, in February, 1928, without this proviso. As it now stands on the statute books, each member of a mob which injures a person is subject to imprisonment of not less than one year or more than ten years. If the victim is killed, every member of the mob is liable to trial for murder. Civil damages may be claimed by the family of the victim from any participant in a mob. Where a lynching oocurs, the governor is authorized to designate the attorney-general, or other special attorney, to assist in the prosecution, and he is empowered to spend whatever sums may be necessary "for the purpose of seeking out the identity and apprehending the members of such guilty mob."

Lynchings-1933

West Virginia

Legal Punishment of Lynchers.

4142

INDEPENDENT
Lewisburg, W. Va
JAN 20 1933

LYNCHING LAW UPHELD

The constitutionality of a statute providing for the recovery of $5,000 damages from the county court for each prisoner taken from a jail and lynched by a mob was upheld Monday by Circuit Judge Arthur P. Hudson at Charleston.

Overruling a demurrer of the Greenbrier county court to the declarations of the administrators of the estates of two negroes lynched Dec. 10, 1931, the judge ruled that the legislature had the right to enact such laws as deemed necessary in the exercise of police powers. The demurrer interposed by Prosecuting Attorney J. M. Holt of Lewisburg stated that the act was unconstitutional. The attack on the constitutionality was centered upon the contention that the legislature had attempted to usurp the powers of the judiciary and that the act inflicted punishment upon the county court without a judicial trial. Damages of $5,000 each are asked by Thelma Mullens of Leslie, administrator of the estate of Geo. Banks, and by Margaret Jackson of Huntington, administrator of the estate of Thomas Jackson. Banks and Jackson were taken by a mob from the Greenbrier county jail and hanged from a telephone pole along the Midland trail. The two suits are set for trial in circuit court at Charleston on Jan. 30.

[illegible]

Lynch Law to Be Tested in Court

Constitutionality of Indemnity Clause Is Questioned

The constitutionality of a section of the state anti-lynch law will be tested in the Kanawha circuit court during the next week, it was learned yesterday.

The constitutionality will be questioned in regard to that section of the law which provides for the payment of $5,000 by the county court of any county in which a lynching occurs to the dependents of the person or persons lynched.

The case, which comes from Greenbrier county, is styled Thelma Mullens, administratrix of the estate of George Banks, and Mrs. Margaret Jackson, widow of Thomas Jackson, against the county commissioners of Greenbrier county.

Greenbrier Lynching

The case involves suits for the recovery of $5,000 for the death of George Banks and $5,000 for the death of Thomas Jackson, who were taken by a mob from the Greenbrier county jail at Lewisburg and lynched about one mile west of that town on December 10, 1931.

LAW ASSESSES COUNTY $10,000 FOR LYNCHINGS

Afro-American

Families of Lewisburg W. Va. Victims to Get the Money

2-11-33

LEWISBURG, W. Va.—Judgments of $5,000 each against the county court of Greenbrier were awarded by Judge Arthur P. Hudson in Kanawha County Court last Monday, to the administrators of the estates of George Banks and Tom Jackson, who were taken from the Lewisburg jail on the morning of December 10, 1931, and lynched two miles west of this city by a mob.

Mrs. Thelma Mullens, a sister, is administratrix of the Banks estate while Mrs. Margaret Jackson, widow, is administratrix of her late husband's estate.

Banks and Jackson, under in[illegible]tment for the murder of Con[illegible]ble Joe H. Myles and Jack [illegible]own, both white, at Leslie, W. V[illegible]., were strung to the cross arms of a telephone pole on the Midland Trail and their bodies riddled with bullets. The white men were killed on the night of Nov. 22, 1931.

Suspects Freed

The two women were represented by T. G. Nutter, Charleston attorney. Following the lynching, Governor Conley ordered a strict investigation. Four persons were arrested but the grand jury of Greenbrier County refused to indict them. Following application for the appointment of administrators in the estates of the lynched men, Mrs. Mullens and Mrs. Jackson were appointed, each presenting a claim for $5,000 to the county court.

Damages were sought under a state statute providing for the recovery of the sum of $5,000 damages for each person taken from a jail by a mob of five or more persons and lynched. The Greenbrier court refused the claims and suit was begun at Charleston in the Kanawha County Circuit Court.

Appeal Denied

James H. White, the prosecuting attorney, filed a demurrer claiming that suit should have been begun in Greenbrier County Circuit Court and Judge Hudson upheld his contention. The Supreme Court, however, held that under the law, suit could be brought in any county in the state, and denied the appeal.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.
MAIL
JAN 29 1933

NEGRO LYNCHING CASE UP MONDAY

Hudson to Hear Greenbrier Suits; City Damage Suit Called for Tuesday

Two suits instituted for the recovery of $5,000 damages each for the lynching of two Negroes by a mob in Greenbrier county on December 10, 1931, will come up for trial in circuit court on Monday before Judge Arthur P. Hudson.

The actions were brought by Thelma Mullens, of Leslie, administrator of the estate of George Banks, and by Margaret Jackson, of Huntington, administrator of the estate of Thomas Jackson. Banks and Jackson were taken from the county jail at Lewisburg and hanged from a tree along the Midland trail. They were being held for the murder of Constable J. H. Myles, of Greenbrier county.

Judge Hudson on January 16 overruled a demurrer interposed by Prosecuting Attorney Joseph M. Holt, of Greenbrier county, attacking the anti-lynching statute as being unconstitutional. While the statute provides for a jury trial for the defendant, the Greenbrier county court, the proof would be confined to the plaintiffs showing that the lynchings occurred and that more than five persons were in the mob. It was indicated that a stipulation of fact may be reached between counsel for plaintiffs and Prosecutor Holt with the case being submitted to the court.

Set for trial Tuesday is the suit of Miss Edith O. Toler against the City of Charleston, asking damages for personal injuries received when struck by a falling limb in Truslow street.

INDEPENDENT
Lewisburg, W. Va.
FEB 3 1933

LYNCHINGS COSTLY!

Judgments are Given Sister and Wife of Negroes Hanged by Mob.

In the Kanawha county circuit court on Monday Judge Arthur P. Hudson awarded two judgments for $5000 each against the County Court of Greenbrier, the plaintiffs being Thelma Mullens, administratrix of Geo. Banks, and Margaret Jackson, administratrix of the estate of Tom Jackson. Banks and Jackson are the negroes who were taken from the Greenbrier county jail in Lewisburg early on the morning of December 10, 1931, and lynched from the crossarm of a telephone pole on Wilson hill almost two miles west of Lewisburg on the Midland trail, their bodies being riddled with shot and bullets by the mob which wreaked vengeance upon them. They were under indictment for the murder of Constable Joe H. Myles and Jack Brown at Leslie on the night of Nov. 22, 1931. The Mullens woman is a sister of Banks and the Jackson woman is Tom Jackson's widow. Gov. Conley ordered a strict investigation made of the lynching and all the power of the state police was called into play. Four persons were arrested in connection with the lynching, but the grand jury refused to indict and the personnel of the mob that lynched the negroes still remains a mystery.

After the lynching application was made for the appointment of an administrator in the estate of each of the dead negroes and Banks' sister and Jackson's widow were named and qualified. Each presented a claim to the county court for $5000 damages under a statute providing for the recovery of $5000 damages for each person taken from authorities or a jail by a mob of five or more persons and lynched. The court refused to allow the claims and suit was begun at Charleston in the Kanawha county circuit court. James H. White, then prosecuting attorney, filed a demurrer claiming that suit should have been begun in the Greenbrier county circuit court. Judge Hudson upheld his contention, but the supreme court held that suit could under the law be brought in any county in the state.

When Joe Holt became prosecuting attorney he entered a demurrer to plaintiff's suits, setting up the claim that the law was unconstitutional. Judge Hudson overruled him. Mr. Holt in attacking the constitutionality of the law charged that the law in effect was a bill of attainder, inflicting punishment against the county court without the right of a judicial trial. The statute, Mr. Holt asserted, was a legislative "usurpation" of the authority of the judiciary.

He took the position that the provision in the law for a trial by jury would avail nothing, because after the administrators proved the lynching and the fact that five or more persons constituted the mob there would be nothing for the court to do except award the damages.

Mr. Holt said that the action of the circuit judge would be appealed to the supreme court on similar grounds alleged in the demurrer which Judge Hudson overruled.

The court on Monday entered judgement after the right to a jury trial was waived by Mr. Holt. The case was presented on a stipulation of agreed facts, setting forth the incarceration of George Banks and Thomas Jackson for the murder of Constable J. M. Myles of Grenbrier county, their subsequent indictment, and their deaths at the hands of a mob.

If on appeal to the supreme court the judgments are affirmed the work of the mob will cost every taxpayer of Greenbrier county a levy of about 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation to pay the judgments, costs and interest.

Ronceverte, W. Va., News
Saturday, January 14, 1933

NEW PROSECUTOR MAKES DEMUR IN LYNCHING CASES.

Greenbrier county's new prosecuting attorney, Joe M. Holt, argued a demurrer in the Kanawha county circuit court at Charleston Wednesday, to two suits instituted there against the Greenbrier County Court asking the statutory $5,000 damages in each case for the benefit of the estates of the two Negroes lynched west of Lewisburg by a mob in December 1931.

Prosecutor Holt attacked the anti-lynching statute as a legislative "usurpation" of judicial authority, asserting that under the statute, the County Court would be deprived of property without due process of law and that the law in effect was a bill of attainder inflicting penalties without the intervention of the judiciary. The prosecutor further argued that although the state statute provides for a trial by jury, that there was nothing for the jury to decide, after the plaintiffs had proved that five or more men constituted the mob that entered the jail and took out the prisoners and hanged them, but to award damages in each case.

The damages are sought by Thelma Mullens, of Leslie, administrator of the estate of George Banks, and Margaret Jackson, of Huntington, administrator of the estate of Thomas Jackson. Banks and Jackson were in jail under indictment for slaying Constable Joe H. Myles and his deputy, Jack Brown, at a Negro dance hall at Leslie during a row which Myles and Brown were attempting to quell.

It was once held that the suits under the lynching statute should be tried in the Greenbrier court, and later this was reversed and suits instituted in Kanawha county.

FAIRMONT, W. VA.
TIMES

FEB 18 1933

Just Judgement

The judgement of $10,000 against Greenbrier County awarded to the estates of two negroes who were lynched there a year ago is approved by the Wheeling Daily News and the News says:

"Evidently, if any punishment is to be meted out for gross violation of the law, and inflicting an injury or injustice to individuals, a fine is the only punishment that can be imposed, and why shouldn't the county that permits, either by its negligence, or through misguided sentiment, a gross violation of the [illegible] the penalty for that vi[illegible]

"Probably if we had more $10,000 verdicts against careless and indifferent county officials, or careless and indifferent county courts, we would have more respect for the la weverywhere."

Lewisburg,
FEB 10 1933
W.Va.

"GREENBRIER MUST PAY."

Such is the heading in Earl Smith's Fairmont Times of an editorial in reference to the 10,000 judgments rendered against the Greenbrier county court by Judge Arthur P. Hudson in the Kanawha county circuit court for the death of Banks and Jackson, negroes indicted for murder, who were taken from jail here and lynched on Dec. 10, 1931. Commenting the Times says:

"Constitutionality of the law was upheld by Judge Hudson. This law is fair. Too often county authorities when faced by inflamed mobs, fail to give their prisoners proper protection. Mobs do not think but county officers should be forced to think. They should not be permitted to let passion rule them. Their duty is to see that their prisoners are given trial under the law.

"Greenbrier county should pay the damages that have been awarded the estates of the lynched negroes. We cannot condone mob rule. Lynching is the result of mob rule."

It is true that "lynching is the result of mob rule," but there was no mob rule in the entire affair. Neither were there any outbursts to lead to the belief that violence was intended toward the accused. The jail was taken by a surprise attack, no officers were "permitted to let passion rule them," but nevertheless the law-abiding citizens of Greenbrier county, preponderantly in the majority, must it seems inevitably pay for the lawless act of a small lota of the population working under cover of the night when all except those abroad on a secret and furtive mission are home in bed.

Wheeling, W. Va. Register
Tuesday, February 7, 1933

Through the Pocketbook

From the Morgantown Post

The verdict of Judge Hudson, of Kanawha county, in awarding the estates of two lynched negroes judgment for $10,000 against Greenbrier county may seem harsh and unfair to Greenbrier taxpayers, but this verdict must be considered in the light of the problem which it seeks to solve.

When the two negroes were taken from the Greenbrier jail by a mob and hanged to the cross arms of a telegraph pole, Greenbrier county committed an offense against the peace, dignity and name of the state which ought not to go unpunished.

If public sentiment in Greenbrier county had not favored this lynching or, at least, looked upon it with an undisturbed tolerance, the lynching would have been impossible.

Moreover, if the authorities of Greenbrier county had made any serious effort to prevent the lynching, it could not have occurred. The number of lynchings which have been consummated against firm and unyielding resistance by the authorities is so small as to be almost negligible. Only when the authorities offer no real resistance to the mob is it able to carry out its purposes.

The West Virginia legislature has provided, wisely we think, that the estate of any person who is lynched may recover a judgment against the county wherein the lynching occurred.

It ought not to be necessary to have this kind of law, but unfortunately it is true that even in the protection of human life, we must sometimes act upon the theory that you can't reach the people except through their pocketbook.

WEST VIRGINIA COUNTY LOSES APPEAL IN LYNCHING CASES

Defender 6-10-33
Chicago, Ill.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 9. — The supreme court of appeals of West Virginia has confirmed the decision of the circuit court of Kanawha county in the Greenbrier lynching cases in which the circuit court awarded $5,000 damages to the administrators of the estates of Tom Jackson and George Banks, who were lynched in Greenbrier county over a year ago.

Suit was brought by the administrators of the estates of Jackson and Banks in the circuit court of Kanawha county, although the lynchings took place in Greenbrier county. Greenbrier county filed demurrer to the declarations of the plaintiffs, alleging that Kanawha county circuit court did not have jurisdiction in the matter because the lynchings took place in Greenbrier county. The Capehart antilynch law provides that suit may be brought in any state court.

Appeal Cases to Supreme Court

The cases were appealed to the supreme court by Greenbrier county on the question of jurisdiction of the circuit court of Kanawha county, and the supreme court held that suits under the statute could be brought in any county in the state. Prosecuting Attorney White represented Greenbrier county and T. G. Nutter and Sam D. Lopinsky of the firm of Salisbury & Lopinsky represented the estates of Jackson and Banks.

After the supreme court decided that Kanawha county had jurisdiction, Greenbrier county court filed demurrer questioning the constitutionality of the Capehart act. But the lower court declared the act constitutional and awarded damages to the administrators of Jackson and Banks in the sum of $5,000 in each case, from which verdict the circuit court of Greenbrier county sought to appeal. On Monday, May 29, the supreme court handed down a decision refusing to review the action of the circuit court, thereby confirming the ruling of the circuit court that the act was constitutional.

State Must Pay

These suits were brought under the Capehart act, of which Hon. Harry J. Capehart, now assistant United States district attorney for southern West Virginia, is the author. The law was passed by the legislature of 1921. It was drawn after the statutes of Ohio and Illinois and provides that "the county in which a person is charged with crime, and wherein such person has been taken from a state, county or municipal officer and lynched and put to death, shall be subject to a forfeiture of $5,000 which may be recovered by appropriate action therefor, in the name of the personal representative of the person put to death, for the use of his dependent family or estate. Such action may be brought in any state court," the object in permitting suit to be brought in any state court being to give the plaintiff the privilege of getting away from local influence by taking the action to some county other than that in which the lynching took place.

Lynchings-1933
Legislation Relating to.

4390

BALTIMORE, MD.
POST

DEC 26 1934

MAKING A CASE

THE STATES this year are building up a fine case for the enactment by Congress next year of a federal anti-lynching law.

How many innocent men and women are lynched may be judged from a report of the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching. The report found that out of 21 persons lynched in 1930 two "certainly" were innocent, 11 others "possibly" were. Mobs are not deterred by questions of sex, color or locality. They are not deterred by the innocence of their victims.

Tennessee's latest lynching, her third this year, runs the national total for 1933 to 27. Of these, four were whites.

Some believe that the federal government, under present laws, can intervene to punish lynchers in states where the law breaks down. In a brief just filed with the attorney general the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People cites a congressional act of 1870 making it a misdemeanor for an officer of the law to permit an inhabitant of any state to be deprived of the right to person or property. The citation was in justification for a plea for the federal government to punish the sheriff of Tuscaloosa County, Alabama, for failure to prevent a double lynching last August. The brief says:

"A government which can invade a sovereign foreign state to protect the lives of its citizens and exact reparation for a deprivation of their rights abroad, yet cannot, or will not, through lack of official courage to enforce the written law, protect its own citizens within its borders, abdicates to the mob."

Regardless of conflicting interpretations of existing law, the fact that the federal government has not felt free to act hitherto is sufficient evidence of the need for a federal anti-lynching law.

SAN ANGELO, TEX.
STANDARD

DEC 29 1933

ANTI-LYNCH LAW

Like almost everything else these days, the prospective congressional dispute over anti-lynching legislation promises to cut hit-and-miss across party lines.

For years, legislation has been pending to make lynching a federal instead of a state offense. Mainly, it has been urged by republicans, and several successive republican national conventions have gone on record for it. Much of the opposition has come from southern democrats who raised the issue of "state's rights."

The developments of the past few weeks, however, complicated this situation at the same time they were insuring an especially determined effort next session on the part of those organizations which long have advocated a federal anti-lynching law.

From a party viewpoint, the difficulty is that the lead in refusing to prosecute lynchers has been taken by a republican—Governor Rolph of resistance to law as occurred in late California — while such excessive resistance to law as occurred in late November on the eastern shore of Maryland has developed democratic signs of weakening in opposition.

Any such enactment still is a long way from the statute books.

Lynchings-1933
Legislation Relating to.

Gainesville, Fla. Sun
December 5, 1933

REVIVING THE DYER LAW

(Miami Herald)

Three lynchings, occurring within a few days of each other in three widely separated states, have aroused national attention, and, as a result, there will be repercussions in congress when it meets in January.

It is now announced that a federal lynching law will be introduced at an early day in congress and, with the present temper of the people, will probably find ample support in that body.

More than 10 years ago Representative Dyer of Missouri introduced a drastic bill in congress, which was passed by the house of representatives but was filibustered to death in the senate.

That bill provided, among other things, that a county in which a lynching occurs shall be mulcted in damages to an extent not to exceed $10,000, the money derived from the judgment to go to the families of the persons illegally executed.

Naturally, there was much public opposition to that particular provision of the Dyer bill. It would punish a large population for a crime in which they did not participate and which they would have prevented if they had been aware that a lynching was in prospect.

Aside from the question of the constitutionality of a federal law which, beyond a doubt, invades the police powers of the state, there is the question of absolute right, if the bill now in prospect incorporates the Dyer idea as to damages.

Edmund Burke said that he could not prepare an indictment for a whole people. This measure, if the Dyer proposition forms a part of it, would not only indict a whole county for the unlawful acts of a very few, but would convict all the inhabitants and impose damages upon them.

In spite of the recent failures of the three states to prevent lynching the invasion of the constitutional rights of the states would have more far-reaching consequences than does the occasional failure of justice in an individual state.

De Land, Fla.
Sun News
Dec-12-1933

REVIVING THE DYER LAW

(Miami Herald)

Three lynchings, occurring within a few days of each other in three widely separated states, have aroused national attention, and, as a result, there will be repercussions in congress when it meets in January.

It is now announced that a federal lynching law will be introduced at an early day in congress and, with the present temper of the people, will probably ind ample support in that body.

More than 10 years ago Representative Dyer of Missouri introduced a drastic bill in congress, which vas passed by the house of representatives but was ilibustered to death in the senate.

That bill provided, among other things, that a ounty in which a lynching occurs shall be mulcted n damages to an extent not to exceed $10,000, the money derived from the judgment to go to the amilies of the persons illegally executed.

Naturally, there was much public opposition to that particular provision of the Dyer bill. It would punish a large population for a crime in which they did not participate and which they would have prevented if they had been aware that a lynching was in prospect.

Aside from the question of the constitutionality of a federal law which, beyond a doubt, invades the police powers of the state, there is the question of absolute right, if the bill now in prospect incorporates the Dyer idea as to damages.

Edmund Burke said that he could not prepare an ndictment for a whole people. This measure, if the Dyer propcsition forms a part of it, would not only ndict a whole county for the unlawful acts of a very few, but would convict all the inhabitants and mpose damages upon them.

In spite of the recent failures of the three states to prevent lynching the invasion of the constitutional ights of the state would have more far-reaching consequences than does the occasional failure of ustice in an individual state.

Greeneville, Tenn. Democrat-Sun
December 14, 1933

ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

Washington Correspondence

Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, may think twice about renewing his anti-lynching bill campaign this winter. A favorite topic with him for years it has been very troublesome for his democratic colleagues across the aisle from the "solid south."

With a republican governor in California openly applauding lynchers in that state and a democrat in Maryland calling out troops to arrest alleged lynch mob members, the thing loses its partisan values

---

Tallahassee, Fla. Democrat
December 20, 1933

Dyer Act Unfair and Unsound

An outbreak of mob violence in various sections of the country has revived discussion of the Dyer act which would have penalized each county where a lynching might take place $10,000 to be given to the family of the victim.

The Daily Democrat has consistently opposed mob rule and still does and would support any sane law to prevent lynchings. But the Dyer act is neither sane nor sensible.

The only conceivable excuse to penalize an entire county for the violence of a few would be to stir the citizenry to action to prevent lynchings. This might work in a few cases where the intention of the mob might be well advertised in advance, but if it did the result would be to reduce the number taking part and require more stealth and secrecy.

Since a band as small as 25 men can waylay an officer on a highway, seize a prisoner and hang him to a nearby tree before the citizens of the county could get into action, this would not be effective.

The penalty would be paid by the property owners and the lynchers might be irresponsible persons without holdings of any sort.

To avoid the penalty, lynching parties could take their victim across a county line and thus shelve the cost upon another county, another group of taxpayers.

There are even persons who would start false rumors and even give untrue testimony against members of their own families in order to collect the $10,000 reward.

The Dyer act has little to recommend it and much to be avoided. Mob rule can be put down by public opinion and by rigid law enforcement.

In Tampa not many years ago several persons were killed by guardsmen so that the state could legally execute a prisoner. If necessary, let officers show their determination to uphold the laws of organized society at the point of loaded guns. It is not the intended victim who should be protected but the laws we are living under.

CLEVELAND, O.
PRESS
DEC 4 1933

AN ANTI-LYNCHING LAW

UNLESS governors and local officials display more courage in curbing blood lust of mobs, Senator Costigan of Colorado will find the sentiment of the United States rolling up behind his promised federal anti-lynching bill by the opening of Congress. On Wednesday occurred another revolting lynching in Missouri, following the recent ~~mob~~ crimes in Maryland and California.

None believes that the federal government is a repository of the nation's conscience. We are not ready for the federalization of police powers. But just as it took the federal government to make effective war on kidnapers so it is necessary to invoke federal power to stop lynching.

Civilized America will not, cannot brook these barbarous outbreaks against the law. If sheriffs fail to hold their prisoners secure the state governments must move in and help them. If governors like California's Rolph invite and condone rabble rule, or, like Maryland's Ritchie delay adequate state protection, what is left but federal action?

A federal anti-lynching law has been discussed for years. The Dyer bill almost passed Congress in 1922 when it went through the House on a vote of 230 to 119 to be filibustered to death in the Senate.

There have been 27 lynchings already this year, compared with 10 for the whole year of 1932.

Since only a few states have passed adequate anti-lynching laws a federal law is required. It should have teeth enough to insure that the lowliest American, regardless of his race or the charge against him, gets the protection of due process of law as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Memphis, Tenn., Com'rcial Appeal
December 21, 1933

The Federal Lynching Bill

Senator McKellar chose an opportune time to express vigorous opposition to the proposed anti-lynching law. This measure has been before Congress a number of years. It is directed particularly against the south. Its sponsors, in the main, are northern Republicans who use their advocacy of the measure to solidify negro support behind them.

Southern members of Congress, supported by members from other sections of the country, who see in the measure dangers which cannot be justified by political expediency, have been able to prevent the passage of the bill. Lynchings in California, Maryland and Missouri no doubt have added something to the weight of influence for a federal law. It can be pointed out that it is no longer directed specifically against the south. It also affords southern representatives an opportunity to oppose the measure on its merits without being subject to the charge that their opposition is sectional.

The bill is exceedingly drastic. It provides for the removal of the sheriff and other officers responsible for the safekeeping of the victim. It provides that the family of the victim may obtain judgment against the officers and provides also, as we recall, a substantial payment of public funds to the victim's family.

The bill is a direct invasion of the rights of states. As Senator McKellar says, if the government should undertake to punish lynchers it could with equal justification relieve the states of responsibility for any or all criminal prosecutions.

The most important reason for opposing federal intervention in lynchings is that the states immediately would relinquish to the federal government all authority for the prosecution of such cases. A law enacted contrary to public opinion would result in the states giving the government little or no co-operation. The object of the law would thereby be defeated.

The states are putting forth their best effort to wipe out the stigma of lynching. The record is encouraging. The number of lynchings is gradually on the decline. The states can do this job themselves. It is their duty to do it. It is certainly outside the jurisdiction of the federal government to assume authority for prosecuting cases in which the states are solely concerned.

Speaker Rainey Backs Anti-Mob Bill

Anticipate Action in Both Houses Jan. 3

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Another milestone in The Chicago Defender's long fight for a federal antilynching law came in Washington Tuesday when Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey, Democrat, of Illinois, gave assurance of immediate action on such legislation Jan. 3, 1934, in the lower house of congress.

Defender

"The bill," pointed out Speaker Rainey, "should be passed without a dissenting vote in the house of representatives.

"This week's events, particularly the public statements of the governors of Illinois, Florida, Utah and Virginia, insisting that law and order and not mob rule and lynchings must be insisted upon by those sworn to uphold the Constitution, shows the trend.

12-2-33

"Governor Ritchie's determined effort in sending national guardsmen to arrest lynchers on the eastern shore of Maryland proved conclusively the attitude, according to Speaker Rainey, "of Democratic public officials."

Chicago

The Chicago Defender was assured by Senator Hamilton F. Kean, Republican, New Jersey, Tuesday night that he was having a bill drawn up up by expert constitutional lawyers including a well-known Race authority, for introduction in the senate Jan. 3.

Senator Kean issued a strong public statement deploring the recent reoccurence of mob law and orgies of lynchings. "It is a moral issue, not a race matter," declared Senator Kean, the first United States senator to come out openly, backing The Chicago Defender's federal antilynching law.

EL PASO TEX.
HERALD
DEC 22 1933

Making a Case

THE states this year are building up a fine case for the enactment by congress next year of a federal anti-lynching law.

To the gruesome record of recent lynch horrors, Tennessee has added another. A negro, accused of attacking a white girl, was found hanging from a cedar tree near Columbia, his dead body riddled with bullets. The appalling brutality of the latest lynching lay in the fact that this mob victim had been arrested and then freed by action of the grand jury who found no evidence against him!

How many innocent men and women are lynched may be judged from a report of the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching. The report found that out of ~~21 persons~~ lynched in 1930 two "certainly" were innocent, 11 others "possibly" were. Mobs are not deterred by questions of sex, color or locality. They are not deterred by the innocence of their victims.

Tennessee's latest lynching, her third this year, runs the national total for 1933 to 27. Of these, four were whites. California, Maryland and Missouri this year have joined the lynch states.

Some believe that the federal government, under present laws, can intervene to punish lynchers in states where the law breaks down. In a brief just filed with the attorney general the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People cites a congressional act of 1870 making it a misdemeanor for an officer of the law to permit an inhabitant of any state to be deprived of the right to person or property. The citation was in justification for a plea for the federal government to punish the sheriff of Tuscaloosa county, Alabama, for failure to prevent a double lynching last August. The brief says:

> A government which can invade a sovereign foreign state to protect the lives of its citizens and exact reparation for a deprivation of their rights abroad, yet cannot, or will not, through lack of official courage to enforce the written law, protect its own citizens within its borders, abdicates to the mob.

Regardless of conflicting interpretations of existing law, the fact that the federal government has not felt free to act hitherto is sufficient evidence of the need for a federal anti-lynching law.

4392

Lynchings-1933
Legislation Relating to.

The Federal Lynching Bill

Commercial Appeal
Memphis Tenn.
12-23-33

Senator McKellar chose an opportune time to express vigorous opposition to the proposed anti-lynching law. This measure has been before Congress a number of years. It is directed particularly against the south. Its sponsors, in the main, are northern Republicans who use their advocacy of the measure to solidify negro support behind them.

Southern members of Congress, supported by members from other sections of the country, who see in the measure dangers which cannot be justified by political expediency, have been able to prevent the passage of the bill. Lynchings in California, Maryland and Missouri no doubt have added something to the weight of influence for a federal law. It can be pointed out that it is no longer directed specifically against the south. It also affords southern representatives an opportunity to oppose the measure on its merits without being subject to the charge that their opposition is sectional.

The bill is exceedingly drastic. It provides for the removal of the sheriff and other officers responsible for the safekeeping of the victim. It provides that the family of the victim may obtain judgment against the officers and provides also, as we recall, a substantial payment of public funds to the victim's family.

The bill is a direct invasion of the rights of states. As Senator McKellar says, if the government should undertake to punish lynchers it could with equal justification relieve the states of responsibility for any or all criminal prosecutions.

The most important reason for opposing federal intervention in lynchings is that the states immediately would relinquish to the federal government all authority for the prosecution of such cases. A law enacted contrary to public opinion would result in the states giving the government little or no co-operation. The object of the law would thereby be defeated.

The states are putting forth their best effort to wipe out the stigma of lynching. The record is encouraging. The number of lynchings is gradually on the decline. The states can do this job themselves. It is their duty to do it. It is certainly outside the jurisdiction of the federal government to assume authority for prosecuting cases in which the states are solely concerned.

ASSOCIATION AGAINST LYNCHING PROPOSED

Commercial Appeal

McAlister May Speak at Meeting Wednesday

12-23-33

BY HILTON BUTLER
Commercial Appeal Staff Correspondent

NASHVILLE, Dec. 22.—A statewide mass meeting to form an Anti-Lynching Association in Tennessee has been called for next Wednesday in Nashville. Governor McAlister will be sought as the principal speaker.

Judge John R. Aust, of Nashville, was named chairman of the committee to form the organization. All cities and counties were asked to have representatives at the meeting.

Commendation of the governor for his sharp expression against lynching after the Cord Cheek case here last week was made in a resolution adopted today by the committee laying plans for the organization.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
December 7, 1933

FEDERAL ANTI-LYNCHING LAW AGAIN.

Agitation for enactment by Congress of legislation making lynching a Federal crime, which attained considerable proportions several years ago and then died down as lynching subsided, would seem to be scheduled for revival.

Senator Costigan, of Colorado, has promised to have an anti-lynching bill ready for introduction when Congress meets next month. "Unless Governors and local officials display more courage in curbing blood lust of mobs," the Senator "will find the sentiment of the United States rolling up behind his promised bill," remarks the Knoxville News-Sentinel.

Are the States, especially those of the South, in which most of the lynchings occur, prepared to welcome a Federal anti-lynching law? Some idea as to what such a measure might contain may be gathered from the fact that the bill which some advocated several years ago called for the apprehension of lynchers by the Federal Government, for their trial in Federal Court, which would often be far from their homes, and for the imposition of fines on counties in which lynchings occurred.

The best way to prevent the passage of such a Federal law is for State and local authorities to protect their prisoners and, when lynchings do occur, to bring the lynchers to the bar of justice and punish them.

Anti-Lynch Meet in Buffalo Tonight

Daily Worker

Conference Tomorrow on Scottsboro Case

12-23-33

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 22.—The City Council has been forced to grant the use of the Broadway Auditorium to the Provisional Committee for the Western New York Conference against lynching for a Scottsboro anti- lynching protest meeting tomorrow night.

New York

Attempts are now being made to secure the use of a local radio station for an announcement of the meeting. The League of Struggle for Negro Rights and the International Labor Defense are closely co-operating with the Provisional Committee and are urging all workers and sympathizers to make this meeting one of the biggest ever held in Buffalo.

Speakers will include Rev. T. Davis of the Friendship Baptist Church, James Campbell of the American Federation of Labor, I. Greenberg, attorney; and representatives of the L.S.N.R., the I.L.D. the Communist Party and the Steel and Metal Workers Industrial Union.

On Sunday an anti-lynching Conference will be held at the Masonic Temple at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the Provisional Committee. Delegates are expected from many unions, churches, clubs, etc. It is expected that the conference will establish a permanent Committee of Action against lynching, and against all forms of discrimination and for the freedom of the Scottsboro boys.

ANTI-LYNCH LAW CONFAB SUNDAY

Informer

Houston.—A delegation of white and Negro citizens visited Austin Dec. 14 and 15, to see Governor Ferguson and obtain an interview for Daniel E. Gregory, father of David Gregory, Negro lynched in Kountze, Texas, and to present to Governor Ferguson certain demands which would help to prevent lynchings. Also to ask why she did not send the national guards to Kountze when for six days newspapers admitted the danger, the certainty of violence, a representative of the I. L. A. told The Informer.

The governor absolutely and definitely refused to see Mr. Gregory, or the committee; she would only see one spokesman, who presented the demands to her in the presence of her two secretaries, it was stated.

It was also said that a full report on steps that have been taken and plans for further action to prevent lynchings, will be made at a mass anti-lynching conference to be held Sunday, Dec. 24, at 2:30 p. m., at the Pilgrims temple, 222 W. Dallas, Houston.

BIG DAILY FOR ANTI-LYNCH LAW—SENATOR M'KELLER AGAINST IT

Atlanta Independent
12-23-33

A big boost was given the proposal of a Federal Anti-Lynching Law when a tentative endorsement of such a law appeared in an editorial of the great Atlanta Constitution. This was followed by a not very convincing argument against it by Senator Kenneth [illegible] McKellar of Memphis, Tenn., when in Nashville this week. Senator McKellar was reported as unable to see the need for a Federal Anti-Lynching Law, though approving the already enacted Federal statute against kidnapping.

The Atlanta Constitution editorial is as follows:

As a Federal Offense

(Editorial, Atlanta Constitution, Dec. 9, 1933)

As a result of the recent mob law outrages in widely separated section of the country, it is probable that a law making lynching a federal offense will be urged at the approaching session of congress.

The enactment of such a law would be in line with the action of congress in enacting a measure making kidnapping a federal offense when that crime became so general in its scope that it assumed the proportion of a national menace. The federal activities made possible by this law have resulted in greatly reducing the kidnapping evil, the apprehension and conviction of most of the criminals responsible for the kidnappings of the past six or eight months, and the prospect that the evil will soon be exterminated.

Now that mob law is no longer a sectional evil, the most conspicuous examples of it recently being in states other than the South, it is not surprising that congress should deal with the evil in the same manner in which it proceeded against the kidnapping menace.

There is no room in the United States for mob law under any conditions. If our civilization is to be protected, the punishment for crime must be left to the courts. There is no midway ground.

A law making lynching a national offense would undoubtedly have a strongly deterren effect upon those inclined to place the authority of the mob above that of the courts.

Albany-Decatur, Ala. Daily
December 22, 1933

Lynching Law

The League for Industrial Democracy, in New York, this week adopted resolutions addressed to President Roosevelt and the two senators from New York, asking them to sponsor the Costigan anti-lynching bill in congress.

According to a dispatch in The Daily Herald, of Columbia, the resolutions were adopted with only one dissenting vote—that of a man who said that statements of Judge W. W. Callahan had been misunderstood in the Scottsboro trial.

The Daily agrees heartily with Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, that there is no reason whatever for passage of an anti-lynching law. There is no excuse to place a heavy financial burden, as suggested, on the people of any county in the United States because a lynching occurs within the confines of that county. It is entirely possible that the mob might be composed of citizens of some other sections, yet it is proposed to have the federal government automatically impose a $10,000 fine on the county within which the victim was found.

The proposed federal legislation will not prevent lynching, as reprehensible as lynching is. If criminals will stop committing crime—that will stop lynching, but nobody seems to have paid any attention to that feature.

If courts will mete speedy justice to convicted criminals—that will stop lynching, but again the enthusiastic members of the I. L. D. and similar organizations lose sight of that feature.

PASTORS BACK PROPOSED U. S. LYNCHING BILL

Oakland Tribune

Eastbay Ministerial Fellowship Adopts Resolution Approving Senator's Plan

California

Approval of a bill making lynching a federal offense, which is to be introduced by Senator E. P. Costigan of Colorado on the opening day of Congress next month, was voiced by the Eastbay Ministerial Fellowship, in session at the North Oakland Baptist Church yesterday afternoon. 12-20-33

The resolution followed addresses by three leading Negro ministers of Oakland. They were Dr. Gordon C. Coleman, host pastor; Rev. H. T. S. Johnson, Taylor Memorial M. E. Church, and Dr. Daniel G. Hill, First African M. E. Church.

SAD COMMENTARY

Pastor Johnson declared that "Lynching orgies are a sad commentary on Christianity in America." He pointed out that Christianity is now on trial, and declared there is a possibility that young people of the Negro race may turn to Communism in preference to Christianity. Communism, Reverend Johnson pointed out, does not draw a color line. He appealed to all white ministers to voice their convictions in the matter of race prejudice and lynching, not alone out of justice to the Negro race, but also to save Christianity.

Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, former rabbi of Temple Sinai, lauded the Negro preachers and reminded the ministers that 560,000 Jews are now suffering persecution in Germany.

"Hitler is the most dangerous man in the world today," said Dr. Coffee. "Hitler is no messiah. He is a madman. If Hitlerism spreads throughout America, Christianity is doomed," said Dr. Coffee. "Hitlerism is already in the East. And just today I saw a Nazi emblem in an Oakland window.

"Let me commend those splendid churchmen of Germany, 4000 of them, who refused to cast out Jesus Christ from the Lutheran Church and set up Hitler in his place. That was the first time Hitler has had to back down," said Dr. Coffee.

DR. BAIRD PRESIDES

Dr. Jesse H. Baird, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, presided. William H. Groat, executive secretary of the Oakland Council of Churches, announced 28 ministers signed up to participate in the annual pulpit exchange to be held January 7.

Attention was called to the United Christmas service to be held by Protestant churches of the city and the Masonic fraternity at the Scottish Rite Temple, 1547 Oak Street, next Sunday afternoon. Charles T. Besserer will begin an organ recital at 2:30, followed by the program at 2:45. Greetings are to be brought by Justice William Waste. Rev. Harold Camp is to give the invocation and Dr. J. H. Baird the benediction. Addresses will be offered by Robert B. Gaylord, past grand master, Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., and Dr. J. A. B. Fry, pastor of the Epworth Methodist Church, Berkeley.

CLEVELAND, O.
PRESS
DEC 29 1933

Urges Federal Law Against Lynching

To the Editor of The Press:

Nowhere else in the civilized and uncivilized world is lynching such an ingrained custom as it in in the United States. There have been twenty-nine lynchings already this year compared with ten for last. According to the studies for the last several years of the Atlanta Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching as well as those of the Chattanooga News, between two-thirds and three-quarters of the lynchings in this country ever since 1890 have had nothing whatever to do with offences or outrages against women while there has been a real doubt of guilt as to at least half of these victims of lynching and mob violence.

The majority of lynchings, especially of cotton belt lynchings, grow out of disputes between white landlords and their colored renters or share-croppers who are shot or hanged or beaten to death for almost nothing at all. It has been found that lynching is usually by a type of whites who are in economic conflict with the colored man. The mob is often know~~n to take~~ innocent lives in its lust for excitement and revenge.

State laws are ineffective in the south since the police are relatively weak in the semi-rural communities where lynchings are the most prevalent and where the southern police officer and the jurors are likely to be neighbors or acquaintances or friends. However by Article Four, Section Four of the Federal Constitution, the United States shall guarantee to every state in the union a Republican form of government, which provision would seem to open the way for federal intervention when a state by its own instrumentalities is unable to prevent lynching.

It is therefore of the utmost importance that the federal anti-lynching bill to be introduced in the Senate of the United States and in the House of Representatives next month shall be enacted into law and rigidly enforced to safeguard everyone against mistake and to insure that the lowest American regardless of his color or of the charge against him is properly identified at least for punishment, and that real force and meaning will be given to Article Five of the Constitution of the United States that no person shall be deprived of his life without due process of law.

Tom Ireland
Bulkley building.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
Post
DEC 20 1933

Making a Case

The various states this year are building up a fine case for the enactment by congress next year of a federal anti-lynching law.

To the gruesome record of recent lynch horrors, Tennessee has added another. A negro, accused of attacking a white girl, was found hanging from a cedar tree near Columbia, his body riddled with bullets. The appalling brutality of the latest lynching lay in the fact that this mob victim had been arrested and then freed by action of the grand jury who found no evidence against him.

How many innocent men and women are lynched may be judged from a report of the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching. The report found that out of 21 persons lynched in 1930 two "certainly" were innocent, 11 others "possibly" were. Mobs are not deterred by questions of sex, color or locality. They are not deterred by the innocence of their victims.

Tennessee's latest lynching, her third this year, runs the national total for 1933 to 27. Of these, four were whites. California, Maryland and Missouri this year are among the states shamed by mob murder.

Some believe the federal government, under present laws, can intervene to punish lynchers in states where the law breaks down. A brief just filed with the attorney general cites a congressional act of 1870 making it a misdemeanor for an officer of the law to permit an inhabitant of any state to be deprived of the right to person or property. The citation was in justification for a plea for the federal government to punish the sheriff of Tuscaloosa county for failure to prevent the double lynching last August.

Despite California's Governor Rolph and others of his ilk, the rank and file of the American people will not condone mob outrages. Sooner or later, if local and state governments cannot stop men from taking the law in their own hands, the federal government will step in.

Lynchings-1933
Legislation Relating to.

4393

Miami, Fla. Herald
December 9, 1933

FEDERAL LAW AGAINST LYNCHING ADVOCATED

Georgia Council of Southern Women Speak Approval of Curbing Mobs

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ATLANTA, Dec. 8.—The subject of a federal anti-lynching law was brought forward in the Georgia Council of Southern Women for the prevention of lynching here today, after the council had been told that 27 persons had suffered death in the United States this year to date through lynching.

Several members informally expressed approval of anything to curb lynching, but the council itself recommended that the association of Southern women for the prevention of lynchings consider the question at their meeting in Atlanta January 9.

The council expressed its "hearty appreciation" of the recent condemnation of lynching by President Roosevelt and Attorney General Cummings, and condemned the steps taken by Governor Ritchie of Maryland and Governor Park of Missouri in lynching cases in their states.

"These were the more notable by a contrast with Governor Rolph's abject surrender to the mob and the official inaction so commonly observed in such cases," the resolution by the council said, after several speakers had criticized the statement of the California governor relative to the San Jose lynching.

Of the lynchings by states this year, Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames, executive director of the council, said that Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana and South Carolina had four each. Mississippi followed with 3, Tennessee 2, California 2, Maryland 1, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, and Texas 1.

A letter was read to the council which Mrs. W. J. Neel of Forsyth, the chairman, said had been written to her by Governor Talmadge. The letter contained the following statement:

"Lynching is generally a culmination of the people's impatience and resentment of the technicalities and delays of the courts.

"Lynching in the last analysis is anarchy and shows a disregard of the law.

"If the same eeffort and zeal were put forth in upholding the law that the mob has to put forth in a lynching, this country would be served a great deal better."

Mrs. Ames told the council that "I think the women are very much less committed to the ark of the covenant of states rights than men."

Atlanta, Ga. Constitution
December 10, 1933

ANTI-LYNCH GROUP MAY MAKE STUDY OF ALL SUCH CASES

Personal investigation of every lynching in 1934 and publication of the "real story behind each" will be among the subjects for discussion by the Southern Association of Women for the Prevention of Lynching at its Atlanta meeting January 9.

The investigations would be made by members of the women's council of each state in which lynchings take place, said Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames, executive director of the council. The results of the investigations would be printed in pamphlet form and distributed to the members of the council, law offcers, judges and other leading men and women.

Mrs. Ames stressed this personal investigation as one of the objectives before the southern women when she reported yesterday to the Georgia council that 27 persons had been lynched in the United States this year.

Another topic on the program at the January meeting is the suggestion for consideration of a federal anti-lynching law. This topic promises to be one of unusual interest.

Mrs. Attwood Martin, of Louisville, Ky., is chairman of the southern council, and Mrs. W. A. Newell, of Salisbury, N. C., is secretary-treasurer.

There will be delegates from 13 southern states in attendance.

Orlando, Fla., Sentinel
December 9, 1933

FEDERAL LYNCHING LAW DEMANDED

Georgia Council Of Women Ask Stern Ruling

ATLANTA, Dec. 8—(AP)—The subject of a federal anti-lynching law was brought forward in the Georgia council of Southern women for the prevention of lynching here today, after the council had been told that 27 persons had suffered death in the U. S. this year to date through lynching.

Several members informally expressed approval of anything to curb lynching but the council itself recommended that the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching consider the question at their meeting in Atlanta, Jan. 9.

The council expressed its "hearty appreciation" of the recent condemnation of lynching by Pres. Roosevelt and Att'y Gen. Cummings and commended the steps taken by Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, and Gov. Park, of Missouri, in lynching cases in their states.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
MORNING PUBLIC LEDGER
DEC 3 1933

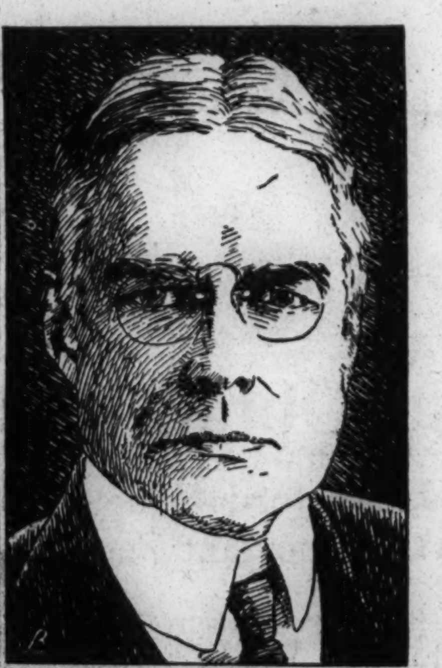
U. S. WILL ACT ON LYNCHERS

Congressional Leaders Planning Move To Penalize Negligent Local Officials; Respect for Law Called Biggest Need

By JAMES W. BOOTH

Washington, Dec. 2.

WITH lynchings last week in San Jose, Calif., and St. Joseph, Mo., and Maryland's Eastern Shore citizens rioting because of the arrest of four suspected leaders of the recent lynching at Princess Anne, the multiple dangers of mob violence are forcefully injected into America's already cumbersome crime problem.



GOVERNOR RITCHIE
Upholds Law in Maryland

So far this year twenty-seven lynchings have taken place in the United States, 150 per cent more than for the entire year of 1932, when ten lynchings were recorded. It is the worst year since 1926, when thirty persons were lynched. Only five States—Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont — have never had a lynching.

Spurred to action by recent demonstrations of mob violence in California, Maryland and Missouri, congressional leaders in Washington are planning the introduction of Federal anti-lynching legislation at the approaching session of Congress.

In 1922 the House of Representatives approved a Federal anti-lynching bill, but it was defeated in the Senate by a filibuster.

Although plans for formulating the new measure have not been completed, revival of the Dyer bill imposing penalties upon counties whose officers fail to protect prisoners from angry mobs has been suggested.

Meanwhile, Colonel James A. Moss, president general of the United States Flag Association, which is conducting a nation-wide crusade against crime, warns of the futility of mob violence, hysteria and emotion in curbing crime.

Sharply criticizing Governor Rolph, of California, for what he describes as "condoning murder by lynching," and upholding the action of Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, in ordering the arrest of the Princess Anne lynchers, he calls for the creation of a more healthy public opinion for respect of law.

Cites Lack of Respect for Law

"THE carnival of crime with which the country is afflicted today is due in no small measure to the lack of respect for the law which exists among our people," Colonel Moss declared. "This, in the minds of many outstanding leaders of thought, is the most serious problem with which the Nation is at present confronted.

"Crime cannot be curbed by mob violence and hysteria. Lynching is a crime and should be treated as such. It is wrong, and two wrongs do not make a right. Only through the orderly process of Government can crime eventually be stamped out.

"Lynching may instill fear in the heart of a kidnapper and criminal for a time, perhaps a week, perhaps a month, but it will never cause him to abandon his nefarious trade.

"When the Governor of a sovereign State of the Union upholds lynching and stimulates mob violence by promising to pardon those who might be proved guilty of lynching, as Governor Rolph is reported having done, he is not only delivering a staggering blow at the sanctity of the law but he is violating his oath of office which imposes upon him the obligation of upholding and maintaining the law.

What Rolph Could Have Done

"HAD Governor Rolph, upon the apprehension of Jack Holmes and Thomas H. Thurmond, promptly issued a public statement pledging the full power of his office and his personal effort to the end that the prisoners accused of the Hart kidnapping would be immediately brought to trial and that no delay would be tolerated in executing sentence in the event of conviction, he would have emphasized the power of the State and the law of the land to bring to justice those convicted of crime.

"With Governor Rolph's vigorous support these men could have been tried, and if convicted, hanged within a few days. Such a procedure would have set a wonderful example of how it is possible to dispose of criminals under the American system of Government.

"Instead of pursuing the sound and normal course—the course, in fact, to which he is sworn—Governor Rolph has contributed to mob violence. His action can have only an unfortunate effect on the solution of America's crime problem."

Would Smash "Unholy Alliance"

LOOKING at crime in the hard light of reality, Colonel Moss does not paint an encouraging picture of a speedy solution of the problem. He cites figures to show that crime in the United States has increased 350 per cent since 1900 and believes that it will be at least a generation, possibly two, before it is sufficiently curbed.

In eradicating lynching, as well as all other forms of crime, he contends that first the cause must be eliminated. The basic or primary cause of all crime, he contends, is nonenforcement of law because of lack of respect for the law.

By breaking up the "unholy alliance" that exists between corrupt Judges, law-enforcement officers, attorneys and the underworld, restricting the sale of small arms, preventing easy bail and curbing the narcotic drug traffic, some progress, he believes, will be made toward eradicating crime.

"But even with all these things accomplished," Colonel Moss said, "unless a healthy public opinion for respect for the law is created the objective will not have been reached. So-called mob justice will not accomplish it. Education is the only thing that will do it. It will take time, a generation or so possibly, but it can and must be done."

Palatka, Fla. News
December 9, 1933

-:- Other Editorials -:-

REVIVING THE DYER LAW

Three lynchings, occurring within a few days of each other in three widely separated states, have aroused national attention, and, as a result, there will be repercussions in congress when it meets in January.

It is now announced that a federal lynching law will be introduced at an early day in congress and, with the present temper of the people, will probably find ample support in that body.

More than 10 years ago Representative Dyer of Missouri introduced a drastic bill in congress, which was passed by the house of representatives but was filibustered to death in the senate.

That bill provided, among other things, that a county in which a lynching occurs shall be mulcted in damages to an extent not to exceed $10,000, the money derived from the judgment to go to the families of the persons illegally executed.

Naturally, there was much public opposition to that particular provision of the Dyer bill. It would punish a large population for a crime in which they did not participate and which they would have prevented if they had been aware that a lynching was in prospect.

Aside from the question of the constitutionality of a federal law which, beyond a doubt, invades the police powers of the state, there is the question of absolute right, if the bill now in prospect incorporates the Dyer idea as to damages.

Edmund Burke said that he could not prepare an indictment for a whole people. This measure, if the Dyer proposition forms a part of it, would not only indict a whole county for the unlawful acts of a very few, but would convict all the inhabitants and impose damages upon them.

In spite of the recent failures of the three states to prevent lynching the invasion of the constitutional rights of the state would have more far-reaching consequences than does the occasional failure of justice in an individual state.
—Miami Herald.

Miami, Fla., News
December 6, 1933

Ten years ago Representative Dyer of Missouri introduced in congress a federal anti-lynching bill. It was opposed by the southern states. Their representatives said such a law would be used to bring them again under the heel of federal military force.

Had that bill been passed instead of being killed by a filibuster in the senate, the fir t state to feel its force might have been the great northern state of California.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
STAR

DEC 1 1933

ROOSEVELT GIVEN ANTI-LYNCH PLEA

Thomas and Waldman Send Appeal to President for Public Declaration.

President Roosevelt had before him today a request from the Socialist party that he take steps to prevent further lynchings.

At the same time, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was working on an anti-lynching bill, to be presented to the next session of Congress, and sentiment against mob violence was growing in other quarters.

Speaking at Thanksgiving services at the Washington Hebrew Congregation, Rabbi Abram Simon assailed the recent lynchings in Maryland, California and Missouri.

Appeal in Telegram.

The appeal to the President was made in a telegram sent to him at Warm Springs, Ga., by Norman Thomas and Louis Waldman, heads of the Socialist party's Public Affairs Committee. The message follows:

"Gov. Rolph's shocking eulogy of lynchings has evidently accelerated wave of lynchings, which disgraces America. Urge that you use power and prestige of your high office to arouse decent sentiment of our country to check epidemics of sadistic terror by issuing public declaration against lawlessness, and on reassembling Congress specifically recommend to it Federal anti-lynching legislation."

Charges Right Maintained.

In a statement, Thomas, Socialist candidate for President in the last election, charged the Democrats "still maintain that the right to lynch people is of the essence of the States' rights principles for which they contend."

A campaign for anti-lynching legislation will be waged by the Socialists, Thomas said, and petitions will be circulated in an effort to obtain congressional support.

The bill being prepared by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be introduced in Congress by Senator Costigan, Democrat, of Colorado, it was stated.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
December 4, 1933

Anti-Lynching Bill.

Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, may think twice about renewing his anti-lynching bill campaign this winter. A favorite topic with him for years, it has been very troublesome for his democratic colleagues across the aisle from the "solid south."

With a republican governor in California openly applauding lynchers in that state and a democrat in Maryland calling out troops to arrest alleged lynch mob members, the thing loses its partisan values.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
NEWS

NOV 28 1933

TO REPORT ON ANTI LYNCHING CONFERENCE

There will be a meeting tonight at the Worker's Center, 1141 Dwight street, cone Ringgold, at 8 o'clock, to present the reports of the delegates to the Eastern Anti-Lynching conference recently held in Baltimore. Leaflets announcing the meeting call on "Negroes who feel the effects of discrimination, segregation, and terrorism on your living conditions! White workers who know that only by unity with the Negro toilers can we achieve freedom for all!"

The leaflet invites them to come to "hear a definite program for building an organization to end the persecution of the bosses who want to separate the Negro and white workers in order to rule them more easily."

It states that "two delegates were elected to represent Springfield at this conference, which was made necessary by the intensification of the oppression of the Negro people, by the lynching of George Armwood, the legal murder of innocent Euel Lee, and the approaching trials of the Scottsboro boys in a town and court pervaded with an atmosphere of race hatred and lynch hysteria."

The meeting was also called to lay the basis for building a branch of the League of Struggle for Negro Rights in Springfield, which will take up the fight against local discriminations. Part of the program of the L. S. N. R. is as follows:—

For complete social, economic and legal equality for the Negro nation; to fight against Jim-Crowism, discrimination, and "white supremacy"; to enforce the death penalty for lynchers, and form self-defense groups of Negro and white workers; to enforce the right of Negroes to vote, hold office, and sit on juries; immediate improvement of the living conditions of Negroes; and the adoption by the United States Congress and the enforcement of the Bill of Civil Rights for the Negro people presented by the L. S. N. R. The meeting has been arranged by theInternational Labor Defenseand the Provisional committee for the League of Struggle for Negro Rights. Admission is free.

Lynchings-1933
Legislation Relating to.

4394

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
OCT 26 1933

One Anti-Lynching Law.

Governor Ritchie is at present busy studying anti-lynching laws. When new legislative ground is being broken, it is always well to see how others have gone about it. West Virginia enacted an anti-lynching law in 1921, and here are some of its provisions:

Any collection of individuals, five or more in number, assembled to offer violence, is defined as a "mob."

The putting to death of any person by a mob is defined as murder, and every person participating is declared to be guilty of murder.

Any person who participates in a mob for the purpose of inflicting damage or injury shall be subject to fine and imprisonment; if the mob does any damage he shall be guilty of a felony.

Those are a few of the provisions, but most interesting of all is the manner in which the law fastens ultimate responsibility not on individuals but upon the community. "The county in which . . . [the lynchee] has been taken from a state, county or municipal officer, and lynched and put to death, shall be subject to a forfeiture of $5,000," which goes to the dependent family or estate of the person lynched.

This scheme for placing the burden not merely on the individuals composing the mob, but on a county which countenances such a mob, is surely worth the Governor's consideration.

Columbia. S. C. Record
November 17, 1933

Repudiated.

When the gentlemen of the North and West, who believe that they can run things better in South Carolina than the South Carolinians can, come to propose:

Federal anti-lynching law, providing for federal action in punishing lynchers and peace officers in whose jurisdictions lynchings may occur.

Federal compulsion to require the states to provide for negro jurors, overturning and nullifying verdicts in instances where negroes are not permitted to serve on juries.

Federal child labor laws, prohibiting the employment of children on farms where there is still child labor in South Carolina despite the NRA codes.

Federal intervention to guarantee suffrage to the negroes or otherwise regulate heretofore state-controlled elections.

Federal supervision of education by means of federal aid for schools or through a federal department of education.

There will be those, opposed to federal intervention in these matters, who will realize that state rights involves more than a drink of liquor.

But South Carolina, by a majority of 3,214 votes, will be estopped from pleading state rights in opposing these federal invasions. South Carolina has repudiated the doctrine of state rights by a vote of 36,710 to 33,496.

◆

The hard part of religion to understand is why it makes people so mad at one another.

PLANS ANTI-LYNCH BILL

Colorado Senator Says Mob Violence Should Be Curbed

DENVER, Nov. 29.—(INS)—United States Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado said today that he would introduce an anti-lynching bill on the first day of the next session of Congress.

"If mob violence is to run riot in America, in place of orderly justice, the end of free government on this continent will have come," he declared.

SENATE WILL GET ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

Group for Welfare of Negro Says Here Measure Will Be Given to Next Session.

11-30-33

FEDERAL AID HELD VITAL

New York

Local, and State Units Called Unable to Act Against Mobs—Rolph's Impeachment Asked,

A Federal anti-lynching bill will be introduced in the United States Senate in January, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced here yesterday.

Senator Edward P. Costigan of Coolrado will introduce the bill, Walter White, secretary of the association, said. The measure is expected to receive the support of Senators Hamilton F. Kean of New Jersey, Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota and others who already have urged passage of such a law, he declared.

The bill is being drafted by the national legal committee of the organization with the assistance of experts in constitutional law. The association pointed out that it would be the second attempt of the organization to obtain the passage of a Federal law against mob violence. The first bill it drafted was introduced by Representative L. C. Dyer of Missouri and passed the House in 1922, only to be killed by a filibuster in the Senate.

Federal Action Demanded.

"We are seeking a Federal law against lynching," Mr. White said, "because our twenty-five years' experience has taught us that rarely if ever do local or State authorities act against mobs. Federal intervention is the only power local communities fear. Witness the drop in the lynching total from sixty-one in 1922 to twenty-eight in 1923, just after the agitation for Federal intervention.

"The anarchistic pronouncement of Governor Rolph [of California], the open battle against State law officers on the eastern shore of Maryland and the lynching Tuesday night in St. Joseph, Mo., demonstrate conclusively that a new power beyond the influence of neighbors and youthful speakesay habitués must step in if we are to have government by law instead of government by mobs.

"This association charges Governor Rolph with inciting the already wild Eastern Shore Marylanders to battle against the militia and Governor Ritchie. Governor Rolph told mobs all over the country in effect that Governors had no right to interfere, and especially to send soldiers, after 'the people' had decided what they wanted to do. We charge Governor Rolph with inciting the St. Joseph (Mo.) mob. The technique used by the Missourians was precisely that of the San Jose mob, even to the use of iron pipe to batter down the jail doors. There was the same spirit of 'let the people rule' advocated by Governor Rolph."

Ritchie Is Praised.

The association sent a telegram of congratulation to Governor Ritchie of Maryland, praising his "vigorous and uncompromising action," but urging him "to continue without letting up for Maryland is on trial as well as is the law."

Denunciations of Governor Rolph for the laudatory comment he made about the San Jose lynchers continued to mount yesterday with Jacob Panken urging the California Governor's impeachment and indictment on a murder charge.

Mr. Panken pointed out that "we are reaping the fruits of the whirlwind." Governor Rolph, he said, by his own statements knew that murder was about to be committed at San Jose. Because of the Califonria Governor's public statement, he said, "the lyncher, the lawless, the mobster is glorified. He has become a hero. God knows how this will end unless sanity prevails and the Governor of California brought to trial for his misdeeds."

Y. W. C. A. Assails Rolph.

The National Board of the Y. W. C. A. went on record as deploring Governor Rolph's attitude, and sent a telegram to Governor Ritchie "expressing its profound gratitude to him for his courageous efforts to bring to justice the leaders in the Princess Anne lynching."

The National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking for a "Federal rebuke" for Governor Rolph and dispatch of troops to Decatur, Ala., to protect the Negroes being tried there for implication in the Scottsboro case. The committee also urged Governor Miller of Alabama, to send troops to Decatur, and condemned Governor Parke of Missouri, for failing to order troops to fire on the mob that lynched the Negro at St. Joseph.

The International Labor Defense, a Communist affiliated organization, which is financing the defense of the Scottsboro prisoners, also "demanded" that troops be sent to Decatur, and urged the Federal arrest of San Jose lynchers, the impeachment of Governor Rolph and prosecution and the death penalty for the St. Joseph lynchers.

New York American

NOV 30 1933

Costigan to Offer Anti-Lynching Bill

DENVER, Nov. 29 (US).—United States Senator Edward P. Costigan, of Colorado, said today he would introduce an anti-lynching bill on the first day of the next session of Congress. He said:

"If mob violence is to run riot in America, in place of orderly justice, the end of free government on this continent will have come."

Miami, Fla. Herald
December 3, 1933

REVIVING THE DYER LAW

THREE lynchings, occurring within a few days of each other in three widely separated states, have aroused national attention, and, as a result, there will be repercussions in congress when it meets in January.

It is now announced that a federal lynching law will be introduced at an early day in congress and, with the present temper of the people, will probably find ample support in that body.

More than 10 years ago Representative Dyer of Missouri introduced a drastic bill in congress, which was passed by the house of representatives but was filibustered to death in the senate.

That bill provided, among other things, that a county in which a lynching occurs shall be mulcted in damages to an extent not to exceed $10,000, the money derived from the judgment to go to the families of the persons illegally executed.

Naturally, there was much public opposition to that particular provision of the Dyer bill. It would punish a large population for a crime in which they did not participate and which they would have prevented if they had been aware that a lynching was in prospect.

Aside from the question of the constitutionality of a federal law which, beyond a doubt, invades the police powers of the state, there is the question of absolute right, if the bill now in prospect incorporates the Dyer idea as to damages.

Edmund Burke said that he could not prepare an indictment for a whole people. This measure, if the Dyer proposition forms a part of it, would not only indict a whole county for the unlawful acts of a very few, but would convict all the inhabitants and impose damages upon them.

In spite of the recent failures of the three states to prevent lynching the invasion of the constitutional rights of the states would have more far-reaching consequences than does the occasional failure of justice in an individual state.

N. Y. SUN

DEC 4 1933

Federal Lynching Bill Urged

Roosevelt's Aid in Obtaining Fair Trial for Scottsboro Defendants Also Asked Here.

President Roosevelt has been called upon to support a Federal antilynching bill in Congress. A resolution asking him to support such a measure and to use his good offices to see that the defendants in the Scottsboro case received fair trials was adopted by a mass meeting of Jews, Catholics and Protestants yesterday in the great hall of City College at 139th street and Convent avenue.

The same resolution, adopted unanimously by the 1,500 persons there, decried Gov. James Rolph's approval of the San Jose lynchings as "encouragement to crime and the criminal elements through stimulating the spirit of lawlessness."

Speakers at the meeting were Bishop William T. Manning, Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the American Jewish Congress and president-elect of the Board of Aldermen; Alfred J. Talley, representing Cardinal Hayes, and Charles H. Tuttle, former United States Attorney.. All vigorously condemned Gov. Rolph and the lynchers.

Darlington Recants Approval.

Earlier in the day the Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington, pastor of the Church of Heavenly Rest, recanted his approval of Gov. Rolph's attitude toward the lynchings. In a brief statement to his congregation, which he read before his sermon, he said that he had sent the telegram of commendation to the Governor while he was "deeply stirred."

"Upon further consideration of the facts," he continued, "I have come to the conclusion that it should not have been sent. It is the duty of all good citizens to uphold the law, and I do not condone in any way the attempt of groups of individuals to take matters into their own hands."

While he was reading his statement a group of the students division of the League for Industrial Democracy were picketing the church, carrying placards assailing Dr. Darlington's stand. When they were informed of his change of attitude they departed, but not until they had brushed with a member of the congregation, Mrs. Mary Brown of 79 East Ninety-first street.

As she approached the church she snatched a sign from Louis Goldberg, 25 years old, of 1482 Forty-first street, Brooklyn and attempted to seize another carried by Lillian Migrath, 21, of Butler, N. J.

Patrolman Halts Trouble.

A crown assembled, and Patrolman Philip Callahan took the participants to the East 104th street station. There Mrs. Brown charged that the two students and a companion, William Chamberlain, 27, of Lakeside, Mich., a student at Union Theological Seminary, with disorderly conduct. They received summons to appear today in Harlem Court. Miss Migrath said later that the desk sergeant refused to entertain a counter charge against Mrs. Brown.

If Gov. Rolph's attitude toward lynching is condoned, the country is headed for disaster, Bishop Manning asserted at the mass meeting.

"At this great meeting of citizens of New York and all faiths we should, I think, do three things," said the Bishop.

"1. Let us send our sympathy to the great State of California in the shame and dishonor that has been brought upon it.

"2. Let us call upon all who hold public office in these United States to do their duty, to meet such situations like men, and in the name of right and justice to suppress such outbreaks with the whole strength and might of the law.

"3. Let us send word to Gov. Rolph that, in common with good citizens everywhere, we condemn and denounce the failure in duty, the betrayal in trust, the deliberate incitement to mob violence and lawlessness of which he stands guilty before the American people."

San Jose Minister Praised.

The Bishop then read a telegram from the Rev. Dr. Benjamin Gould, president of the Ministers Association of San Jose, stating that its members had publicly denounced mob violence. The following telegram was sent to Dr. Gould by the meeting:

"Your message received and read at mass meeting now assembled in New York representing all faiths. We who are here assembled send our congratulations to you and the ministers of San Jose and vicinity upon your faithful and courageous stand in behalf of law and justice. We join with you in your condemnation of mob violence, we call upon public officials everywhere to put down lynching with the whole strength of the law and we unqualifiedly condemn Gov. Rolph for the betrayal of trust and the incitement to mob lawlessness of which he stands guilty before the State of California and the people of the United States."

One incident marred the harmony of the meeting. A woman in the audience arose while Mr. Tuttle, the chairman, was speaking on the resolutions and took issue with him on their propriety.

She walked to the front of the hall and shouted that New York city should "wash its dirty linen" before daring to pass judgment on other parts of the country. During her outburst she spoke to Mr. Tuttle as "you dirty thing." After her harangue she stalked out of the hall. Her name was not learned.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Additional arrests in connection with the lynching of Lloyd Warner, nineteen-year-old Negro, were expected today by county and State officers.

With two men already in custody, county officers said they had information which they believed would enable them to identify leaders of the mob which last Tuesday night hanged and burned the confessed attacker of a white girl.

William O. Sawyers, an assistant State Attorney-General, said he expected to issue warrants for suspected mob leaders today.

Officers said both of the men in custody had denied being leaders of the mob, although both admitted being present at the time of lynching. One of those under arrest was Carl Fisher, 24, arrested, the police said, after he had attempted to sell a revolver allegedly stolen from the living quarters of Sheriff Otto Theisen. Officers declined to disclose the name of the other man

Lynchings - 1933
Legislation Relating to.

4395

UNIONTOWN, PA.
EVENING GENIUS

NOV 3 1933

Anti-Lynching Laws

AS A RESULT of the recent lynching in Maryland, Governor Ritchie has announced that a special session of the legislature called for this month will be asked to consider the enactment of an anti-lynching statute.

A great many of the states have enacted laws aimed at lynchings, but statistics indicate that lynchings still occur in states with such laws. Opinions differ as to how much effect the laws have had in reducing the number of lynchings.

Some of the laws merely provide that a sheriff or jailor responsible for the custody of a prisoner who is lynched may be removed from office by the governor on proof of negligence or cowardice. Several of the laws subject a sheriff or jailor to fine or imprisonment in such cases.

A number of the state laws attempt to forestall lynchings by providing for a special and speedy trial for a prisoner against whom threats of violence have become serious. However, lynchings occur of persons already under sentence of death.

Many of the laws provide fines and jail sentences for those convicted of unlawful personal violence against an individual. Where the violence results fatally, the guilty persons may be sentenced to death or life imprisonment. Most of the laws of this type differentiate between an active participant in the lynching and a mere spectator, but several laws provide that mere presence in a lynching mob justifies an indictment for murder.

Some state laws levy a fine against a county or municipality in which a lynching occurs. The dependents or heirs are generally the recipients of the fine. Several of the laws merely authorize the dependents or heirs of the victim to sue the county or municipality of the lynching. Attempts are made to relieve a county or city of unfair financial punishment by providing that the amount of the fine may be recovered by the city or county from the guilty individuals. A city or county fined for being the seat of a lynching is allowed by several laws to recover the fine from another county if the lynching mob originated in the latter.

Several states authorize a sheriff to organize a posse of citizens to protect a prisoner in danger of lynching, and provide punishment for those who refuse to join the posse. Others fine or jail those who refuse to be witnesses in a trial for lynching, and several disqualify from sitting on a jury in a lynching trial all who have shown sympathy with the lynchers.

Despite this mass of legislation, punishment is seldom meted out for lynching when local public opinion supports the lynchers.

In recent years, the Dyer-lynching bill has been regularly introduced in Congress. It passed the House in 1922 by a 2 to 1 vote, but was prevented by a filibuster from coming to a vote in the Senate. The bill provided federal punishment for state or local officers neglecting to provide proper protection for prisoners threatened with lynching, fined counties in which lynchings occurred, and subjected to fine and imprisonment individuals found guilty of lynching. There was considerable doubt of the constitutionality of the act even among those in sympathy with its aims.

MARION, O.
STAR

NOV 4 1933

Anti-Lynching Laws.

Maryland's recent lynching is having unexpected repercussions in political circles. Even Governor Ritchie, who has seemed sometimes to have proprietary rights on the governorship, has been shaken by the blast of indignation that has mussed things up generally.

A result of national interest is expected. Circumstances make it imperative that Maryland devise some kind of anti-lynching law. Governor Ritchie has announced that the special session of the legislature called for this month will be asked to consider enactment of a statute.

Serious consideration is being given a law, already in effect in some states, which enables the state to levy a fine against a county or municipality in which a lynching occurs. It is, perhaps, the most ingenious method of preventing lynching that has been attempted.

There are numerous other methods, of course, which have been tried here and there over the country. When it is recalled that there were eight lynchings in 1932 and 175 in 1889, the evidence seems to indicate material progress in suppression of the outrage by law.

It is significant, however, that punishment seldom is administered under existing laws when local public opinion supports the lynchers. In its desperation to remove the stain of its most recent lynching, Maryland should take this fact into account. The best method of stamping out lynching is to raise the level of intelligence high enough to remove the attraction of mob rule.

UNIONTOWN, PA.
HERALD

NOV 3 1933

Anti-Lynching Laws

AS A RESULT of the recent lynching in Maryland, Governor Ritchie has announced that a special session of the legislature called for this month will be asked to consider the enactment of an anti-lynching statute.

A great many of the states have enacted laws aimed at lynchings, but statistics indicate that lynchings still occur in states with such laws. Opinions differ as to how much effect the laws have had in reducing the number of lynchings.

Some of the laws merely provide that a sheriff or jailor responsible for the custody of a prisoner who is lynched may be removed from office by the governor on proof of negligence or cowardice. Several of the laws subject a sheriff or jailor to fine or imprisonment in such cases.

A number of the state laws attempt to forestall lynchings by providing for a special and speedy trial for a prisoner against whom threats of violence have become serious. However, lynchings occur of persons already under sentence of death.

Many of the laws provide fines and jail sentences for those convicted of unlawful personal violence against an individual. Where the violence results fatally, the guilty persons may be sentenced to death or life imprisonment. Most of the laws of this type differentiate between an active participant in the lynching and a mere spectator, but several laws provide that mere presence in a lynching mob justifies an indictment for murder.

Some state laws levy a fine against a county or municipality in which a lynching occurs. The dependents or heirs are generally the recipients of the fine. Several of the laws merely authorize the dependents or heirs of the victim to sue the county or municipality of the lynching. Attempts are made to relieve a county or city of unfair financial punishment by providing that the amount of the fine may be recovered by the city or county from the guilty individuals. A city or county fined for being the seat of a lynching is allowed by several laws to recover the fine from another county if the lynching mob originated in the latter.

Several states authorize a sheriff to organize a posse of citizens to protect a prisoner in danger of lynching, and provide punishment for those who refuse to join the posse. Others fine or jail those who refuse to be witnesses in a trial for lynching, and several disqualify from sitting on a jury in a lynching trial all who have shown sympathy with the lynchers.

Despite this mass of legislation, punishment is seldom meted out for lynching when local public opinion supports the lynchers.

In recent years, the Dyer-lynching bill has been regularly introduced in Congress. It passed the House in 1922 by a 2 to 1 vote, but was prevented by a filibuster from coming to a vote in the Senate. The bill provided federal punishment for state or local officers neglecting to provide proper protection for prisoners threatened with lynching, fined counties in which lynchings occurred, and subjected to fine and imprisonment individuals found guilty of lynching. There was considerable doubt of the constitutionality of the act even among those in sympathy with its aims.

New York Evening Journal

DEC 1 1933

Federal Lynch Law Urged In Appeal to Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Roosevelt today was urged to recommend anti-lynching legislation in the next session of Congress.

The plea, launched in the name of the Socialist party, which explained that Senator Costigan, of Colorado, would sponsor such a bill, was telegraphed to President Roosevelt at Warm Springs. The message, signed by Norman Thomas and Louis Waldman, stated:

"Governor Rolph's shocking eulogy of lynchings has evidently accelerated a wave of lynchings which disgraces America. We urge that you use the power and prestige of your high office to arouse decent sentiment of our country to check epidemic of sadistic terror, by issuing public declaration against lawlessness, and on reassembling of the Congress, specifically recommend to it Federal anti-lynching legislation."

TAUNTS DEMOCRATS.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is co-operating with the Socialists in urging anti-lynching legislation, Thomas admitted, while flinging this taunt at the Democratic party:

"The Democratic Party seems to maintain that the right to lynch people is the essence of States' rights."

Walter White, secretary for the Association for the Advancement of colored people, said:

"Mob violence can only be wiped out through Federal power. Local or State authorities rarely act against mob outrages."

MARYLAND ACTS.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Dec. 1.—The Someret County grand jury will be called into session within a week to consider charges against four alleged ringleaders of the Princess Anne mob that lynched George Armwood, Negro, last October, Judge Robert F. Duer announced.

The four men were released on habeas corpus writs, after Governor Ritchie had ordered out a National Guard detachment to arrest them.

Judge Duer said that a definite date for the grand jury hearing will be set after a conference between associate jurists and the State's Attorney.

Three hundred Negro residents who were driven from their homes during the height of the town's anger over the Governor's action filtered back into town today as the feeling subsided, giving place to celebration of the release of the four men.

HOOVER, ROLPH CLASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—Former President Hoover and Governor Rolph appeared today as central figures in the aftermath of the lynching of Thomas Thurmond and John Holmes.

Following issuance of a statement in which the former President and twenty-five other prominent citizens deplored the lynching and attacked the Governor's stand, Rolph had countered with a declaration recalling the use of troops against bonus marchers during Hoover's Administration.

U Hoover retaliated with a prepared statement. It asserted that the Governor's reference to the bonus marchers was based on ignorance of the facts.

RECALLS SHOOTING.

Governor Rolph's reply to the statement of Hoover and 25 co-signers came in Sacramento, and said:

"The criticism of the former Jresident recalls the shooting hich occurred near the White House at the time of the bonus march.. I have never forgotten that tragedy, with its mowing down of marchers in the streets of Washington.

"That was the thought uppermost in my mind when I declined to order out the National Guard in San Jose.

"There was no shedding of innocent blood in San Jose. Compare that to the situation that developed near Mr. Hoover's White House. We fared much better in San Jose."

CHARGES IGNORANCE.

In direct reply to this, the former President said:

"One trouble with Governor Rolfe's statement is his gross ignorance of the facts. Not a single shot was fired, not a single person was injured by the tropps called out in Washington in response to the appeal of local authorities. The troops entered the bloodshed, which was then in progress through conflict between rioters and police.

"The issue here is plain and not to be obscured by such misstatement. The Governor has been advocating lynch law. It is a subversion of the very spirit of organized society. It is un-American. It is a reflection on the State of California. It is not supported by its citizens."

ROLPH'S RETORT.

From his office in the State Building in San Francisco, the Governor, enroute to a Thanksgiving dinner at the home of his son-in-law in Berkeley, issued the following answer to Hoover's statement:

"I do not think that the ex-President's statement calls for any response by me. His statements and mine speak for themselves: The American people think for themselves. It is unbecoming for me, as Governor of this State, to be carrying on a controversy with the ex-President.

"I cannot allow to stand, however, the ex-President's statement that I advocate 'lynch law.' On the contrary, I have said and I repeat that I always will have profound respect for law and the sane and orderly conduct of justice through the courts.

"And I repeat what it said in my original statement — that while the law should have been permitted to take its course, the people by their action have given notice to the entire world that in California kidnaping will not be tolerated."

New York Times

NOV 30 1933

SENATE WILL GET ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

Group for Welfare of Negro Says Here Measure Will Be Given to Next Session.

A Federal anti-lynching bill will be introduced in the United States Senate in January, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced here yesterday.

Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado will introduce the bill, Walter White, secretary of the association, said. The measure is expected to receive the support of Senators Hamilton F. Kean of New Jersey, Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota and others who already have urged passage of such a law, he declared.

The bill is being drafted by the national legal committee of the organization with the assistance of experts in constitutional law. The association pointed out that it would be the second attempt of the organization to obtain the passage of a Federal law against mob violence. The first bill it drafted was introduced by Representative L. C. Dyer of Missouri and passed the House in 1922, only to be killed by a filibuster in the Senate.

The association sent a telegram of congratulation to Governor Ritchie of Maryland, praising his "vigorous and uncompromising action," but urging him "to continue without letting up, for Maryland is on trial as well as is the law."

The National Board of the Y. W. C. A. went on record as deploring Governor Rolph's attitude, and sent a telegram to Governor Ritchie "expressing its profound gratitude to him for his courageous efforts to bring to justice the leaders in the Princess Anne lynching."

The Rev. George Drew Egbert, president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, also made public a telegram sent to Governor Rolph on behalf of the society in which the Governor's reported remarks were described as "an attack on orderly government."

The National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking for a "Federal rebuke" for Governor Rolph and dispatch of troops to Decatur, Ala., to protect the Negroes being tried there for implication in the Scottsboro case.

Lynchings-1933
Legislation Relating to.

4396

NEW YORK WORLD - Telegram

OCT 23 1933

WAR ON LYNCHING URGED

Roosevelt Asked ~~to Support~~ Federal Bill After Maryland Mobbing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—President Roosevelt was asked today in a letter from the Women's International League to initiate and support federal anti-lynching legislation in the coming session of Congress.

The organization urged the step as a result of a recent lynching at Princess Anne, Md. Contending, "This crime, within two hours' distance of the Capitol of the United States, cannot help but sharpen the sense of duty of all responsible American citizens toward the minority race in our country."

N. Y. HERALD

OCT 23 1933

Roosevelt Asked to Back Federal Lynching Curbs

Women's International League Seeks Action by Congress

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP).—President Roosevelt was asked today in a letter from the Women's International League to initiate and support Federal anti-lynching legislation in the coming session of Congress. The organization urged the step as a result of a recent lynching at Princess Anne, Md., contending, "This crime, within two hours distance of the Capitol of the United States, cannot help but sharpen the sense of duty of all responsible American citizens toward the minority race in our country."

The letter continued: "During the last month we have been tremendously gratified by the concern on the part of the Federal government in taking action with regard to the crime of kidnaping. This menace, however, chiefly affects the lives and property of the wealthy and privileged members of our society. We believe that the state owes even a greater responsibility to the helpless in our nation.

"We would, therefore, Mr. President, ask if you will not immediately lend your great power to the solution of this hideous problem in American life, by openly declaring your intention of initiating and supporting Federal anti-lynching legislation upon the reconvening of the Congress."

New York American

OCT 23 1933

Anti-Lynching Laws Urged on Roosevelt

WASHINGTON Oct. 22 (AP).—President Roosevelt was asked today in a letter from the Women's International League to initiate and support Federal anti-lynching legislation in the coming session of Congress.

The organization urged the step as a result of a recent lynching at Princess Anne, Md., "within two hours distance of the Capitol of the United States."

RICHMOND, VA.
TIMES DISPATCH

OCT 21 1933

Our Anti-Lynching Law

THE Baltimore Sun, which usually is very charitably disposed toward GOVERNOR RITCHIE, is severely critical of him in the matter of the lynching of a Negro in Princess Anne County, Md. It scores him on two counts; first, for failure to send adequate forces into the disturbed area to protect the beleaguered man, and, second, for his coldness during the last session of the legislature toward a proposal to enact an anti-lynching law.

In the latter matter the paper says:

> What is needed is State authority and State power to go after lynchers. Such authority and power have been established in other States. The Sun urged in the last session of the legislature that they be established here. The governor did nothing. He will have another chance in the special session. He must not leave a zero record the second time.

Virginia is one of those States mentioned by the Sun which can go after lynchers, using all of its force against them. The law on this subject was enacted in 1928, at the instance of HARRY BYRD, who was then Governor. It imposes upon the Commonwealth's attorney the duty "to promptly and diligently endeavor to ascertain the identity of persons composing the mob and to have them apprehended and prosecuted." It reads further:

> Such attorney for the Commonwealth may be assisted in all such endeavors by the Attorney-General or other prosecutor designated by the Governor for such purpose; and the Governor shall have full authority to spend such sums as he may deem necessary for the purpose of seeking out the identity and apprehending the members of such guilty mob.

Under this law, lynching is defined as murder, and representatives of the estate of a lynched person may recover damages from the lynchers.

This is the sort of statute needed in Maryland.

BALTIMORE, MD.
POST

OCT 24 1933

GOVERNOR SEEKS ANTI-LYNCH LAW

Ritchie Urges Action to 'Revise Legal System' at Special Session Soon

"Drastic revision of the state's legal system in an attempt to forestall lynchings" was cited today by Governor Ritchie as being one of the four points to be considered by the special session of the General Assembly to meet shortly.

This action, the Governor's announcement said, is the direct result of the Princess Anne lynching last week.

It will embrace the passage of anti-lynching laws, "of a nature yet to be determined," and a revision of the state's legal system to expedite action in the courts. The Governor laid particular emphasis upon the necessity for increasing the speed of the county courts.

'No Details Now'

Asked whether or not he contemplated making specific suggestions to the Legislature, the Governor replied:

"I am not in a position to go into details now. I'm sorry; I'd like to have something more definite, but I can't. You're a little bit too early for me.

"All I can say is what I said at first. I'm going to study the question of preventing a recurrence of any such thing as that which happened last week. As to whether or not I'm going to present a plan to the Legislature, I can't say now."

'To Stop Lynchings'

"Will you propose an increase in the number of judges in the counties?" he was asked.

"Now you're asking me questions I can't answer right now. I don't know yet whether I'll ask for more judges or not. I first have to study the thing in more detail. All I can say now is that I'm going to do everything I can to work out a plan to stop lynchings."

Liquor Regulation

In addition to lynching, other points of the program for the special session are the regulation of liquor after repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the authorizing of counties to incur further indebtedness to get relief funds and the opening of the Patomic River to oyster dredgers.

The Governor stipulated liquor legislation as being first on the program, but in his announcement he went into considerable detail to discuss the anti-lynching program.

"This session is principally to regulate liquor," the Governor said "but the legal system will be examined with a view to bringing it up to a point where it can meet situations like that on the Eastern Shore last week.

'Counts Slow in Counties'

"These efforts will include consideration of an anti-lynching law and speeding up on trials.

"In Baltimore, where there are a considerable number of judges, trials are handled expeditiously.

"In the counties, there are only three judges to a circuit of three counties, with these jurists having to act in several capacities.

"Members of the bar in the counties are not so numerous. Attorneys many times have to appear in the conduct of a number of cases of the various kinds coming before the county court. These factors have a bearing on the docketing of cases."

The Governor was asked what provisions of an anti-lynching law he has under consideration, but he declined to amplify his statement.

Relief Legislation

The object of the relief legislation, it was explained, will be to enable counties better to meet the requirements for obtaining federal relief funds. The present law forces the locality, city, county or state, to put up 70 percent of the necessary amount. The federal government then contributes the remaining 30 percent.

Under existing laws the counties are unable to borrow to obtain 70 percent and are thus ineligible for federal funds. New legislation will be designed to remove these barriers.

The question of allowing oyster dredgers in the Potomac River is a relic of the last session of the General Assembly. At that time the proposal aroused bitter opposition and precipitated a filibuster.

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN

OCT 25 1933

RITCHIE STUDIES ANTI-LYNCH LAW

Tells 45 Negro Baptist Pastors And Laymen He May Go To Legislature

WOULD SPEED TRIALS

Governor Tells Delegation He Will Do All Possible To Bring Lynchers To Justice

[By the Associated Press]

Annapolis, Oct. 24—After hearing a group of forty-five Negro Baptist ministers and laymen of Baltimore express their views on lynching and some of the problems of their race, Governor Ritchie today assured them that he would use all the power and authority he possessed to apprehend and punish the individuals responsible for the recent lynching of George Armwood.

The Governor also declared that he felt there was a strong sentiment on the part of a considerable portion of the people that there should be an anti-lynching law. He said he was giving it careful study "to see if something can be done." In addition, he pointed out the legal system of the State would be reexamined in an effort to speed up trials.

Say Prayer For Ritchie

The group, members of the civic committee of the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Baltimore City, left after praying that the Governor be given divine guidance and assuring him of their gratitude and cooperation. For nearly an hour they had heard him review his activities from the time he heard of Armwood's arrest to the present and the laws of the State governing criminal investigations.

Grouped around a table in the Governor's reception room, they closely followed his detailed narration of his conversations with the local authorities of Somerset county and Capt. Edward McK. Johnson, of the State police, the night of the lynching and the assurance he received that Armwood would be safe. Many of the ministers took notes during the Governor's statement and of his answers to their questions. Before they left the Governor shook hands with the members of the group.

Delegation Speakers

Junius Gray, pastor of the Psalmist Baptist Church, chairman of the committee, presided. The speakers were the Rev. G. A. Crawley, pastor of St. Paul's Baptist Church; the Rev. A. J. Payne, pastor of Enon Baptist Church; the Rev Albert Josiah Green, pastor of Grace Memorial Church; the Rev. E. W. White, pastor of Providence Church, and the Rev. J. Timothy Boddy, pastor of the Union Baptist Church.

Green, pointing out that the ministers represented 50,000 faithful, law-abiding citizens, read a resolution of the committee asking the Governor to use his office and influence:

To bring to justice every man on the scene of the lynching who was in any way aiding or abetting, whether or not they actually struck a blow.

To impeach every officer of the law "from the judge down and from the deputy sheriff up" who participated in the removal of Armwood from Baltimore and failed to protect him.

To use his influence with the Legislature to enact a law that would give every citizen of Maryland "that protection guaranteed in the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

Called Bigger Mistake

"That a great mistake was made in allowing Armwood to be carried back to Princess Anne no one will deny," the minister continued. "But this mistake will be nothing as compared to the mistake that will be made if these culprits are not run down and convicted."

Referring to the fifteen lynchings in Maryland in the last forty-five years, the Rev. Crawley declared that it appeared that the attitude of officers of the law regarding these lynchings had much to do with encouraging such affairs. He said that it seemed that they did not have a disposition to carry out fully the obligation they take when they enter into office. He pointed out that citizens had been killed by officers when the crimes for which they were arrested would have been punishable by imprisonment for "only a year or so."

"I would like to know what the colored man has done that he receive so little protection," he continued. "Or what it is that he should have done. I ask you to use your office to see that these kind of things are not repeated."

Payne prayed while all present stood. He asked that the "stigma of murder" be removed from the State.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
POST

OCT 23 1933

Curb on Lynching Asked of Congress

Women Request President to Seek Legislation.

Introduction of antilynching legislation in the coming session of Congress was asked of President Roosevelt yesterday by the Women's International League.

In a letter to the Chief Executive members of the league described lynching as "America's hideous problem." The letter urged that Federal authorities take a hand as they did in curbing the activities of kidnapers.

"Kidnaping chiefly affects the lives and property of the wealthy and privileged members of society," the letter read, "but we believe the State owes even a greater responsibility to the helpless in our Nation."

The letter cited Maryland's recent Eastern Shore lynching as a basis for the Presidential request.

BALTIMORE, MD.
POST

OCT 24 1933

NEW LAW ISN'T ENOUGH

THE NEWS that Governor Ritchie now favors an anti-lynching law is gratifying. Now that ~~another mob has~~ done its work, the lesson which should have been learned after the first lynching has finally taken effect.

A bill should be carefully worked out, and should be passed at the special legislative session.

But we are faced with something more important than the bill.

A law—any law—is valuable only if the public knows it is going to be enforced. There was plenty of law against the two lynchings which have occurred on the Eastern Shore. The anti-lynching law may help a bit; it may simplify the problem of punishing mobsters, but actually it is far from essential.

Actually, the men who committed last week's lynching can be punished if the authorities want to punish them.

And that is the crux of the whole matter. There is no point in passing any more laws as long as the public has eloquent evidence that the authorities have not the will or the wit to enforce them.

Neither Governor Ritchie nor any other officials can cover up the present situation merely by passing a high-sounding bill for the future. The law should be passed, but first and most important, potential lynchers must be shown that we have a state government; that laws mean something; that they are enforced. That can be done only by punishing the men who became beasts last Wednesday.

If Governor Ritchie still insists that he doesn't know how to accomplish this, we take the liberty of referring him to an editorial printed in these columns last Saturday, outlining a simple plan.

N. A. A. C. P. ANTI-LYNCHING BILL CARRIES INDICTMENTS AGAINST OFFICERS WHO SUBMIT TO MOBS

Black Dispatch
11-3-33 Oklahoma City

CONGRESS TO GET PROPOSED ACT

Urge Appeals For Enactment Of Bill Be Sent To President Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—A new federal anti-lynching bill is being drafted by the legal committee of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, is was announced here today.

"It is plain to everyone that the states are unwilling or unable to stop lynching," said Walter White, N. A. A. C. P. secretary. "The officers of the law either aid the lynchers actively or else stand idly by and let the mob do its work. Governors order investigations which never discover anything. Grand juries find no evidence for indictments. In the two Tuscaloosa, Ala., lynchings of August 12 and the Ardwood lynching in Princess Anne, Md., October 18, we have the plainest proof that action by the federal government is needed if lynching is to be stamped out.

"We call upon every branch of the N. A. A. C. P. and every organized group of colored people in every community to test their congressmen and senators first according to their willingness to vote for a federal anti-lynching bill. No man who refuses to vote for such a bill can be a true representative of Negro voters, no matter what else he stands for. We urge them to write or call in person upon their congressmen before the November election and secure their pledges to vote for such a bill.

"A personal investigation of the Ardwood lynching by Louis L. Redding of Wilmington, Del., member of the N. A. A. C. P. legal committee reveals anew the necessity for this legislation. The association is intensifying a nation-wide, relentless campaign on lynching and additional details will be announced from time to time."

The N. A. A. C. P. also urges all individuals everywhere to write President Roosevelt and urge the federal government to stop lynching.

Lynchings-1933
Legislation Relating to.

4397

OAKLAND, CAL.
TRIBUNE

JAN 27 1933

Anti-Lynch Bill Before Assembly

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 27. — An anti-lynching bill was introduced in the Legislature today by Assemblyman William F. Knowland of Alameda County, and Frederick Roberts of Los Angeles.

The measure would define lynching to be "the taking by means of a riot of any person from the lawful custody of any peace officer" and would define the penalty therefor to be imprisonment in the State prison for not more than 20 years.

The authors of the measure explained that many other states have anti-lynching laws and that their measure is designed to bring California into uniformity with statutes in these other states.

THE ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

Call 2-17-33
Kansas City Mo.

The anti-lynching bill introduced in the legislature answers a need that has been very real since the burning of the half-wit boy at Maryville. Missouri has never broken out virulently with lynching, but it has carried a rash for many years. Maybe at last it realizes mob must be stopped altogether.

This anti-lynching bill comes not because of any special demand by Negroes. The state seems to be awakening to the dreadful loss it suffers when communities throw away law and civilization and debauch themselves in blood.

Negroes would have seen long ago that they lose little when the mob lynches an alleged rapist if they had not been so deeply ashamed. The individual killed is little compared to what the whites lose when communities run amuck and an indifferent state does not punish them. Excuse lynching as they do, yet down in their heart of hearts white people know they kill because they want a part in the killing, not because the law will be lax in convicting and punishing a Negro accused of the "usual" crime. The law convicted two white men in Joplin and hanged them for rape. It certainly would be as stern with any Negro. Missouri has lynched Negroes because it wanted to, not because there was the slightest excuse.

If this anti-lynching legislation is really in line with the thinking of the white people of the state, it means they are sick of seeing their relatives and associates howling like savages about a burning man. They want to rescue their self-respect which after all is the law's strongest bulwark.

Once the law frowns upon summary punishment at the hands of a mob, we may look forward to the day when the courts also will give even-handed justice. It is the man, not his race, that commits crime and ought to be punished. Let's have no more lynching in our court or out of it, either by judge and jury or by mob.

PASADENA, CAL.
POST

APR 2 1933

ASSEMBLY VOTES 'LYNCHING LAW'

Measure Prescribes Penalty For Crime in California

SACRAMENTO, April 1. (INS) —Lynching was defined as a crime punishable by no more than twenty years in prison by the terms of a bill approved by the state assembly today and sent to the Senate for action. At present there is no lynching law in California.

The measure, introduced by Assemblyman William Knowland of Oakland and Frederick Roberts of Los Angeles, specifies that taking of any person from the custody of a peace officer by force constitutes lynching. If the victim should be murdered a murder charge would supersede the lynching charge.

Act to Curb Mob Violence In State Legislature

Measure Introduced in House Would Make Counties Pay $5,000 to Victims' Relatives. Provides Punishment for Mob Members and Negligent Officials.

Afro American
Baltimore Md.
3/4/33

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — An anti-lynching bill, which will impose upon counties a fine of $5,000 for every lynch victim and provide punishment for members of the mob as well as negligent officials, was introduced in the House of Delegates, Friday.

The measure, which was prepared by Delegate Alexander Goodman, Fourth district, Baltimore, follows along the lines of a similar measure passed by the Virginia State body.

Defines "Mob"

The bill defines a "mob" as five or more men who act together with the intent of doing damage to person or property without due process of law. Four sets of penalties are are provided by the measure.

When a mob sets out with the intention of doing damage to any person or property, whether they accomplish their purpose or not, according to the bill, each and every member of such a mob has committed felony and is subject to fines of not less than $100, not more than $1,000, and prison terms of from one to ten ears. If the action of such a mob results in the injury of person or property the fines ma reach $5,000.

Counties Responsible

The bill sets forth that the county in which the mob forms and in which the victim is arrested, is responsible for the lynching or injury to person or property, even when the victim may be taken to another county, and must be held responsible for such damages as result.

In turn, counties may impose fines on officials, who, through negligence, or lack of proper protection, allow a person in their custody to be lynched or injured.

On Juries

The bill also disqualifies for jury service any person who, by word or deed, indicates that he condones, or is in favor of, mob violence for any cause.

Delegate Goodman told the AFRO-AMERICAN just prior to introducing the measure that the bill was favored by a large number of the delegates and that he believed there would be no serious opposition to it.

ALHAMBRA, CALIF.
POST-ADVOCATE

MAR 29 1933

Severe Punishment Demanded in State on Lynching Charge

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 29. (AP)—Lynching would be a crime punishable by imprisonment up to 20 years, under terms of a bill approved today by the Assembly crime problems committee. Lynching is defined in the bill as the taking of a person from custody of a peace officer by means of a riot.

Authors of the proposal are Assemblyman Frederick Roberts of Los Angeles and William F. Knowland of Alameda.

CHICO, CAL.
ENTERPRISE

MAR 29 1933

Asks 20 Yr. Term Lynching Penalty

SACRAMENTO, March 29.—(AP)—Lynching would be a crime punishable by imprisonment up to 20 years under terms of a bill approved today by the assembly crimes problems committee. Lynching is defined in the bill as the taking of person from custody of a peace officer by means of a riot.

Santa Barbara, Calif.
PRESS

MAR 30 1933

NEW LYNCH LAW

SACRAMENTO, March 29.—(AP)—Lynching would be a crime punishable by imprisonment up to 20 years, under terms of a bill approved today by the assembly crime problems committee. Lynching is defined in the bill as the taking of a person from custody of a peace officer by means of a riot.

OAKLAND, CAL.
TRIBUNE

MAR 30 1933

20-Year Term for 'Lynching' Approved

SACRAMENTO, March 30—(AP)—Lynching would be a crime punishable by imprisonment up to 20 years under terms of a bill approved today by the Assembly crime problems committee. Lynching is defined in the bill as the taking of a person from custody of a peace officer by means of a riot. Authors of the proposal are Assemblyman Frederick Roberts of Los Angeles and Wm. F, Knowland of Alameda.

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL

MAY 25 1933

ANTI-LYNCHING LAW WEAK

The hearing on the application of the Caldwell County Jailer for reinstatement is another instance to show that merely enacting a law in conformity with popular opinion does not suffice to execute the popular will. John W. Taylor, of Princeton, raises a quite serious objection to holding the hearing at Frankfort, 200 miles from where the Jailer's prisoner was lynched.

No provision seems to have been made for the expenses of witnesses. The Jailer, being interested in regaining his position and supported by his political friends, can be depended upon to present everything favorable to himself. Kentucky, which has been disgraced by an unpunished assault on one of its jails and the lynching of a citizen, is a party, as Commonwealth's Attorneys are wont to say in criminal proceedings. In a criminal case the law presumes the defendant to be innocent until his guilt is proven beyond a reasonable doubt; but in this case the law presumes the Jailer to be guilty of neglect of duty so great as to merit the forfeiture of his office and the burden is on him to prove that he did everything he could to protect his prisoner. It is important to have all the evidence against him at the hearing; but who is there to go to that expense if the State does not?

According to Mr. Taylor's summary of the Jailer's story, a mob kicked in the door of his apartment at the jail and took the prisoner. The Jailer's wife, who has been appointed Jailer in his place by the County Judge, slept through the noise upstairs. The Sheriff's force was out scouring the county for a robber and the police were absent from the city hall next door to the jail. The grand jury exonerated the Jailer and could identify none of the mob. Governor Laffoon, in whose judicial district the lynching took place a year ago, did not remove the Jailer, as the law directs, until the National Civil Liberties Union demanded action.

It isn't practicable to take that door the mob kicked in to Frankfort, though Mr. Taylor's description of it makes the door an important exhibit. The general average of citizenship in Caldwell is high and it probably would be beneficial to hold a public hearing at Princeton. This, according to another national association, quoted by Mr. Taylor, is the fourth lynching in Caldwell County and the seventh in that judicial district for which no one was punished. That's a bad record. Good citizens should be shown who is to blame.

If the case against the Jailer is fully presented, it will be because a national organization has raised the money, employed an attorney and arranged to convey the witnesses and evidence 200 miles to Frankfort. As Mr. Taylor says, the Governor could leave Frankfort to hold this hearing as easily as he left the capital to make a speech against mobs to the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching; but, since he may do as he pleases, the law should be strengthened by placing the duty on some officer to rebut the defense and providing for the necessary expenses.

Find Old Federal Statutes Covering Lynch Prosecution

WASHINGTON.—Two little used sections of the Federal laws were dug up and made the basis of a request of the Department of Justice for prosecution of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, as the result of the lynching of two prisoners by an Alabama mob recently.

A delegation headed by Charles H. Houston, vice dean of the Howard Law School and a member of the District Board of Education, and Allen Taub, white, of the International Labor Defense, brought the two statutes to the attention of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings last Thursday.

The Attorney General asked that briefs be submitted to him and said that if he should be convinced of his authority to proceed under the law, he would do so.

Enacted in 1909.

The statutes were enacted in 1909 and although little used, there've been various prosecutions under them. Incidentally they were on the statute books during all the time there was agitation for enactment of a Federal anti-lynching law. If held applicable to such a case as the one in Alabama, in which Dan Pippen, 18; A. T. Harden, 16, and Elmore Clark, 28, were turned over to a mob by Sheriff Shamblin and the next day the bodies of two of them were found underneath a tree, handcuffed together, riddled with bullets, and a day later the third was found in hiding, wounded, it can be generally applied to cases of mob violence.

The two laws are sections 19 and 20 of the act of March 4, 1909, codifying, revising and amending the penal laws of the United States. They come under the subdivision dealing with offenses against the elective franchise and civil rights of citizens.

$5,000 Fine Provided.

Section 19 is as follows:

"If two or more persons conspire to injure, oppress, threaten, or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or because of his having so exercised the same, or if two or more persons go in disguise on the highway, or on the premises of another, with intent to prevent or hinder his free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege so secured, they shall be fined not more than $5,000 and imprisoned not more than ten years, and shall, moreover be thereafter ineligible to any office, or place of honor, profit, or trust created by the Constitution or laws of the United States."

Section 20 is as follows:

"Whoever, under color of any law ordinance, regulation, or custom willfully subjects, or causes to be subjected, any inhabitant of any State, Territory, or District to the deprivation of any rights, privileges or immunities secured or protected by the Constituon and laws of the United States, or to different punishments, pains, or penaltie account of such inhabitant b alien, or by reason of his color, or race, than are prescribed for the punishment of citizens, shall be fined not more than $1,000, or imprisoned not more than one year or both."

Courier

AN ANTI-LYNCHING LAW

THE recent increase in the number of lynchings culminating in the latest horror in Princess Anne, Maryland, brings again to the attention of Negroes the necessity for an anti-lynching law. We have been lamentably negligent in pushing this progressive and protective legislation. There is no better time than the present to do so. It can be done if we put enough effort, time and money behind it.

10-28-33

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is the only logical organization to organize and further the campaign for such a law. It almost succeeded in getting such a law passed several years ago. It can succeed now where it failed before IF NEGROES WILL GIVE IT THE SUPPORT THEY SHOULD. In order to do so, however, it must have ample funds to pay talented lobbyists in Washington. That money must be given by Negroes themselves. The best way to contribute to such a campaign is for every Negro to immediately take out a membership. That costs but one dollar, or slightly less than two cents a week.

Pittsburgh Pa.

Those with long memories can remember the widespread favorable effect of the full page advertisements placed in several newspapers by the N. A. A. C. P. at the time when the first anti-lynching law campaign was at its height. This can and should be done again on a much larger scale, and the N. A. A. C. P. will do it if Negroes will only support the organization financially. Considering the present state of race relations in the United States, there is no censure too sharp for the colored person who withholds his or her membership.

Lynching must be attacked nationally, just as kidnaping is being fought. It has been demonstrated time and again that local and state officials will not or cannot cope with the evil. It is up to the government to do it. But the government will not do it unless an aroused Negro population brings tremendous, intelligently directed pressure. The time to do it is now, and the way to strengthen the hand of the N. A. A. C. P. is to become a member without delay. If there were as many N. A. A. C. P. members as Negro church members in the United States, this evil could be forever banished from the nation.

BALTIMORE, MD.
EVENING SUN
OCT 19 1933

Proposes Anti-Lynching Action At Special Session

Goodman Wants Assembly To Adopt New Law When It Meets To Draft Liquor Legislation

An anti-lynching bill Delegate Alexander Goodman, Democrat, of the Fourth district, introduced at the last session of the Maryland Assembly, will be reintroduced at the special session to be held next month to frame new liquor control legislation, Mr. Goodman said today. He added he would press anew for its passage.

At the last session the measure was referred to the Judiciary Committee and in the press of bank and budget legislaiton it died there. Briefly, it would make the county in which a mob outbreak occurs financially liable to the victim or his estate.

Measure Indorsed

The bill was indorsed editorially and otherwise when it was introduced in the 1933 session of the Assembly and was termed by one of its indorsers "a sound legislative approach to the lynching problem." Its principle, it was stated, already is recognized in the Maryland code in cases in which a mob damages property.

The Goodman measure designates as a mob any group of five or more persons gathered to offer violence to the person or property of any one supposed to be guilty of a law violation. The death of anyone at the hands of such a group would be murder. Heavy penalties are provided for mob offenses.

Suggests $5,000 Forfeit

The county in which a lynching occurs would be required to pay to the family or estate of the victim $5,000, collectable by State court action. Any county officer failing to comply with the provisions of the bill would be subject to punishment.

A county in which a mob formed and took its victim elsewhere still would be liable to the $5,000 forfeit. Counties through which the mob passed would be liable only if their officers aided or encouraged the offense.

Other Provisions Cited

Any county sued for the forfeit provided for in the bill would be entitled to sue for its return from any officer it considered negligent in his duty, the principle being that a county whose officers fail to protect individuals in their personal rights is responsible for the failure.

Mr. Goodman said Maryland now has no legislation bearing on the specific offense of lynching. To proceed against lynchers, those sections of the code dealing with conspiracy and assault must be invoked.

Lynchings-1933
N.A.A.C.P., Reports on.

4398

LYNCHINGS ROSE 180% IN NATION LAST YEAR

Total Was 28, Against 10 in 1932, Negro Advancement Group Declares in Review.

Times
1-2-34
New York

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, through its secretary, Walter White, made public yesterday its review of twenty-eight known lynchings last year, calling attention to an increase of 180 per cent in "mob murder" over 1932, when ten lynchings were reported. During 1933, the report said, there was a "surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs."

The double lynching at San Jose, Calif., on Nov. 26 of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes, both white, "was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Governor James H. Rolph Jr. to send the National Guard, as requested by the Sheriff," it was asserted.

"In this instance, and for the first time in American history," the report continued, "the Governor of an American State actually condoned a lynching and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

In this "collusion of law officers and mobs" the association saw "an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

The report showed that Alabama had five lynchings during 1933; Georgia and Louisiana, four each; South Carolina and Tennessee, three each; California and Mississippi, two each; Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas, one each.

Thirteen of the lynch victims were shot to death and two of the bodies burned, the report said. Eight were hanged and two of their bodies burned. Three were beaten to death, two were hanged and shot, one was beaten and shot and one was beaten, shot and strangled.

Collusion Between Law Officers and Mobs Seen as Most Ominous Tendency Evident In 1933 Lynching Epidemic

Journal and Guide
1-6-34
Norfolk, Va.

Special to Journal and Guide

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In making public its compilation of 28 known lynchings during the past year, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, through Walter White, its secretary, called attention this week not only to the nearly 200 percent rise in mob murder during 1933 from the total of ten for 1932, but to the surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs.

In the double lynchings at Tuscaloosa, Ala., on August 13 of two Negro youths, Dan Pippen and A. T. Hardin, while being taken from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham for safekeeping, the victims were taken by the mob without any apparent effort on the part of the officers to protect them.

At Clinton, S. C., on July 4th, four white men experienced no difficulty in "spiriting" the victim from the jail. The same thing happened in the lynching on October 8, of Bennie Smith at Ninety Six, S. C., where an alleged lyncher when arrested claimed the chief of police left the jail open.

There seems little doubt that the lynching of George Armwood at Princess Anne, Md., on October 18 was made possible by the local judge's assurance to Governor Albert C. Ritchie that Armwood would be in no danger if returned from Baltimore whence he had been taken.

The double lynching at San Jose, Calif., of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes (both white) on November 26 was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Governor James H. Rolph, Jr., to send the National Guard as requested by the sheriff.

"In this instance, and for the first time in recent history," Mr. White said, "the governor of an American state actually condoned a lynching and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

In this collusion of law officers and mobs, the Association's secretary sees an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action.

Alabama Leads

The lynching record by states for 1933 is topped by Alabama with five, followed by Georgia and Louisiana with four each; South Carolina and Tenessee with three apiece; California and Mississippi with two each, while Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, and Texas each lynched one.

Journal and Guide
1-6-34
Norfolk, Va.

Four of the mob victims were white, twenty-four were Negroes.

The alleged offenses for which the victims were lynched are listed as murder (7), attack on white woman (3), attempted attack on white woman (2), insulting white woman (3), assault on white man (1), wounding white man (1), quarrel with white man (3), planning suit against white man (1), killing in search of another (1), stealing (1), offense unknown (4).

Rape Seldom Charged

Of the 28 recorded lynchings, the association calls attention to the fact that rape, the alleged excuse for lynching, was charged only in three instances, while attempted rape was charged only in two instances.

At best, then, rape or attempted rape was charged in only five instances or about 18 percent of the total lynchings. In the Cordie Cheek lynching on December 16 at Columbia, Tenn., the victim was mobbed despite failure of the grand jury to indict him for attempted assault.

How Victims Were Lynched

Thirteen of the lynch victims were shot to death and two of the bodies burned, eight were hanged and two of their bodies burned, three were beaten to death, two were hanged and shot, one was beaten and shot, and one was beaten, shot, and strangled.

A Federal anti-lynching bill is to be introduced in Congress by Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado, it has been announced.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

JAN 1 1934

1933 Lynchings, 28, Are 200 P. C. More Than 1932

Lynchings in 1933 increased 200 per cent. over the previous year in the United States, Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, announced yesterday. He vigorously attacked the policy of Gov. James H. Rolph Jr. of California and other law officers.

Of the twenty-eight victims of mob vengeance, four were white, twenty-four colored and all were men.

Alabama led the lynch States list with five; Georgia and Louisiana, each four; South Carolina and Tennessee, each three; California and Mississippi, each two, and one each for Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas.

LYNCHING TOLL 28; PRESIDENT APPEALS

Argus

An Increase Of 180 Percent Over 1932 Is Reported By The N.A.A.C.P

Roosevelt Asks Action In Address.

1-5-34

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—There were 28 lynchings in the United States in 1933, a 180 per cent increase over the previous year when 10 mob slayings were reported, the N. A. A. C. P. announced Tuesday through National Secretary, Walter White. At the same time it was announced that an anti-lynching bill sponsored by the association was ready for introduction in the 73rd Congress, during its first regular session, which opened Tuesday.

St. Louis

Only 4 White Victims

Four of the victims lynched last year, were white men and the remainder colored and the "mob killings" were distributed among states as follows: Alabama 5, Georgia and Louisiana 3 each, California and Mississippi 2 each; Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas 1 each.

The report declared there was a "surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs, in which there was an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

To Introduce Bill

It was said Senator Castegan (Dem.) Colorado, has promised to sponsor the anti-lynching bill, backed by the association, and Senator Wagner (Dem.) New York, has given his approval.

The measure gives Federal power to act when states and counties fail to prosecute lynchers, and allows for punishment of officers derelict in their duty in protecting prisoners.

President Denounces Crime.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—President Roosevelt stepped out of the usual practice of the Country's Chief Executive Tuesday and delivered his own annual address to Congress at the opening of the first general session of the 73rd Congress. He let it be known that the country's highest legislative body should work for the advancement of the recovery program which has been launched in the country. He took an opportunity to strike at organized crime including lynching. He asked a

Argus
1-5-34
St. Louis

stringent "preventive or regulatory measures" in the nation's business affairs and a governmental and public war against crime.

The President denounced tax evaders and stock gamblers and speaking of organized crime said:

"In the other category, crimes of organized banditry, cold-blooded shooting, lynching and kidnaping have threatened our security.

"These violations of ethics and these violations of law call on the strong arm of the government for their immediate suppression; they call also on the country for an aroused public opinion."

Opelika, Ala. News
December 22, 1933

LYNCHINGS FOR YEAR REACH TOTAL OF 28; 5 WERE IN ALABAMA

New York—(AP)—The lynching of Cord Creek, 20-year-old negro, near Columbia, Tenn., brought the total number of lynchings in the United States so far this year to twenty-eight, according to the records of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

This compares with only ten last year and is the highest total since 1926, when thirty-four were listed.

The records, which extend back to 1889, show that 3,686 persons have been lynched since that year. The highest number for any one year was 226 in 1892. In recent years lynchings have shown an irregular decline until last year, the lowest total of ten was reached. The increase this year sends the curve upward once more.

The 1933 total of 28 comprises 24 negroes and 4 white men. By states the figures for 1933 show:

Alabama, 5; Florida, 1; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 2; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 3; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 1; California, 2; Missouri, 1. All were negroes except two in Tennessee and two in California.

The 1932 records list lynchings as follows:

Arkansas, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 1; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 1; Ohio, 1; South Carolina, 1; Texas, 1. Of these eight were negroes and two white. One of the white men was lynched in Kansas the other in Kentucky.

Miami, Fla., News
January 7, 1934

Lynchings and Law

There were 28 known lynchings in 1933, an increase of 180 per cent over the 10 of the preceding year. Reporting this rise, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People finds also "a surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs." In California Governor Rolph not only refused to heed the plea of the sheriff for the aid of the National Guard, but condoned the lynching and promised to pardon any of the participants convicted. Elsewhere sheriffs delivered their prisoners to the mobs. The association sees in these acts "an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

Though the lynching suspects arraigned in Maryland go free, others may not fare so well. One of the most impressive steps against the evil has been taken in Missouri, where a grand jury voted indictments against 11 persons, three of them for first degree murder, and recommended ousting of the sheriff and members of the police department. In South Carolina a few days ago four more lynching suspects were indicted for murder. A Tennessee grand jury is under special instructions to investigate a lynching and "promptly indict" the perpetrators if their identity can be discovered.

The common argument of those who condone lynching is that the failure of the courts effectively to do their work makes it necessary or at least excusable. This is poor logic. The Tennessee mob which lynched its victim after a grand jury had freed him for lack of evidence is typical of the fairness and wisdom with which mobs may be expected to serve the ends of justice.

In any event and whatever the relation to lynching, there have been all too many cases in which the law has broken down. The tightening up of the judicial system would be none the less imperative if lynching were unknown. The Association of Grand Jurors of New York County calls for complete revision of state and federal criminal laws and procedure, modeled along the lines of the Canadian system, "to speed up justice." Certainty of punishment once guilt is established is more important.

The federal government in its fight on organized crime has given an example which individual communities if they will can copy. Sure justice is possible, but not through the agency of the mob.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

JAN 3 1934

LYNCHING

FIGURES compiled by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reveal that the number of lynchings during 1933 rose 180 percent over what it was in 1932; there were 10 such crimes in 1932 and 28 last year. To find an increase in this form of communal madness is discouraging since the general trend has for many years been away from the cruel ferocity of mob violence.

There have been 4311 persons lynched in this country since 1885: of these 1051 were white men and 3260 were Negroes. In 1892 we sank to our lowest depths of recent years when 255 persons were thus killed, and it was not until 1909 that the number was brought below 100 to remain there. There has never been a year in which less than 10 lynchings took place.

After making all due allowances for the emotional strain of the past three years which undoubtedly has greatly shortened the tempers of our people the record remains a ghastly one. Apologize as we may, the stark fact remains that the United States is the only civilized country on earth which still has to deal with this soul-destroying species of crime.

Nashville, Tenn. Tennessean
January 1, 1934

SEES OMINOUS TENDENCY IN LYNCHING COLLUSIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(AP)—Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advance of Colored People, said today that he considered "the collusion" of law officers and mobs in lynchings during 1933 "an ominous tendency likely to grow threatening."

The society issued statistics on 28 know lynchings during 1933 which, White said, was a "200 per cent rise in mob murder from the total of ten for 1932."

In condemning the alleged collusion of law officers and mobs the association called particular attention to what it said were the circumstances surrounding lynchings at Tuscaloosa, Ala., at Clinton, S. C.; at Ninety Six, S. C., at Princess Anne, Md., and at San Jose, Calif.

"The double lynching at San Jose of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes, both white men, on November 26," White said, "was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Governor James H. Rolph, Jr., to send the National Guard as requested by the sheriff.

"In this instance and for the first time in recent history the governor of an American state actually condoned a lynching and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

NEW YORK MIRROR

JAN 3 1934

Lynching the Constitution

A report of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People shows that lynchings in the United States, with 28 known cases, have increased 180 per cent over last year. Twenty-eight nooses are dangerous to liberty and to the Constitutional throat as well. Congress, when it opens, should furnish legal backing to that great American document sturdy enough to resist the outlaw's arm. While the American fathers wrote their historic charter of liberty on white paper, they made no stipulation in color.

Lynchings - 1933
N.A.A.C.P., Reports on.

Brooklyn, N. Y. Eagle

JAN 2 1934

28 LYNCHINGS IN 1933

Twenty-eight lynchings occurred in 1933, making an increase of 160 percent over 1932, according to the report issued yesterday by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
January 1, 1934

CHARGES OFFICERS AIDES TO LYNCHERS

Colored Advancement Scribe Says Law in 'Collusion.'

Denounces Gov. Rolph for Not Sending Guards—Statistics for Year Set Forth.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP).—Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said today that he considered "the collusion" of law officers and mobs in lynchings during 1933 "an ominous tendency likely to grow threatening."

The society issued statistics on twenty-eight lynchings during 1933 which, White said, was a "200 per cent. rise in mob murder from the total of ten for 1932."

In condemning the alleged collusion of law officers and mobs, the association called particular attention to what it said were the circumstances surrounding lynchings at Tuscaloosa, Ala., at Clinton, S. C.; at Ninety Six, S. C.; at Princess Anne, Md., and at San Jose, Cal.

"The double lynching at San Jose of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes, both white men, on Nov. 26," White said, "was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Gov. James H. Rolfe, Jr., to send the national guard as requested by the sheriff.

"In this instance and for the first time in recent history the governor of an American state actually condoned a lynching and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

The association's statistics on lynching by states for the year were:

Alabama, 5; Georgia and Louisiana, 4; South Carolina and Tennessee, 3; California and Mississippi, 2; Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas, 1.

Other statistics showed:

Four of the mob victims were white, twenty-four were Negroes.

Alleged offenses for which victims were lynched: Murder, 8; attack on white woman, 3; attempted attack on white woman, 2; insulting white woman, 3; assault on white man, 1; wounding white man, 1; quarrel with white man, 3; planning suit against white man, 1; killing in search of another, 1; stealing, 1; offense unknown, 4.

Thirteen of the victims were shot to death and two of the bodies burned; 8 were hanged and 2 of their bodies burned; 3 were beaten to death; 2 were hanged and shot; 1 was beaten and shot, and 1 was beaten, shot and strangled.

Lynching's Ominous Growth

Literary Digest
1-13-34
New York
Vol. 117.
No. 2.

An increase of 180 per cent in the number of lynchings in 1933 over 1932 in the United States was made public by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People last week. The compilation was reported by Walter White, Secretary of the Association, and reveals that there were twenty-eight lynchings in 1933 as compared with ten in the previous year. The report also calls attention to the "surprizingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs."

Of the double lynching at San Jose, California, on November 26, of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes, both white, the report said:

"In this instance, and for the first time in recent American history, the Governor of an American State actually condoned a lynching, and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

In this "apparent collusion between law officers and mobs," the Association saw "an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

The report showed that Alabama had five lynchings in 1933; Georgia and Louisiana, four each; South Carolina and Tennessee, three each; California and Mississippi, two each; Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas, one each.

New York Times

JAN 2 1934

LYNCHINGS ROSE 180% IN NATION LAST YEAR

Total Was 28, Against 10 in 1932, Negro Advancement Group Declares in Review.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, through its secretary, Walter White, made public yesterday its review of twenty-eight known lynchings last year, calling attention to an increase of 180 per cent in "mob murder" over 1932, when ten lynchings were reported. During 1933, the report said, there was a "surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs."

The double lynching at San Jose, Calif., on Nov. 26 of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes, both white, "was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Governor James H. Rolph Jr. to send the National Guard, as requested by the Sheriff," it was asserted.

"In this instance, and for the first time in American history," the report continued, "the Governor of an American State actually condoned a lynching and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

In this "collusion of law officers and mobs" the association saw "an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

The report showed that Alabama had five lynchings during 1933; Georgia and Louisiana, four each; South Carolina and Tennessee, three each; California and Mississippi, two each; Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas, one each.

Columbia, S. C. State
January 1, 1934

"COLLUSION" CHARGED TREND IN LYNCHING

New York, Dec. 31—(AP)—Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said today that he considered "the collusion" of law officers and mobs in lynchings during 1933 "an ominous tendency likely to grow threatening."

The society issued statistics on 28 known lynchings during 1933, which, White said, were a "200 per cent. rise in mob murder from the total of 10 for 1932."

In condemning the alleged collusion of law officers and mobs, the association called particular attention to what it said were the circumstances surrounding lynchings at Tuscaloosa, Ala., at Clinton, S. C., at Ninety-Six, S. C., at Princess Anne, Md., and at San Jose, Calif.

"The double lynchings at San Jose of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes, both white men, November 26," White said, "was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Governor James H. Rolph, Jr., to send the National Guard as requested by the sheriff.

"In this instance and for the first time in recent history, the governor of an American state actually condoned a lynching and promised to pardon ny lynchers convicted of the crime."

The association's statistics on lynchings by states for the year were:

Alabama, 5; Georgia and Louisiana, 4; South Carolina and Tennessee, 3; California and Mississippi, 2; Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas, 1.

Other stotistics showed:

Four of the mob victims were white; 24 were Negroes.

Alleged offenses for which victims were lynched—murder, 8; attack on white women, 3; attempted attacks on white women, 2; insulting white women, 3; assaults on white man, 1; wounding white man, 1; quarrel with white men, 3; planning suit against white man, 1; killing in search or another, 1; stealing, 1; offense unknown, 4.

Thirteen of the victims were shot to death, and two of the bodies burned; eight were hanged and two of their bodies burned; three were beaten to death; two were hanged and shot; one was beaten and shot; one was beaten, shot and strangled.

Lancaster, S.C.,
News
January 23, 1934

LYNCHING'S OMINOUS GROWTH

An increase of 180 per cent in the number of lynchings in 1933 over 1932 in the United States was made public by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People last week. The compilation was reported by Walter White, Secretary of the Association, and reveals that there were twenty-eight lynchings in 1933 as compared with ten in the previous year. The report also calls attention to the "surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs.'

Of the double lynching at San Jose, California, on November 26, of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes, both white, the report said:

"In this instance, and for the first time in recent American history, the Governor of an American State actually condoned a lynching, and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

In this "apparent collusion between law officers and mobs," the Association saw "an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

The report showed that Alabama had five lynchings in 1933; Georgia and Louisiana, four each; South Carolina and Tennessee, three each; California and Tennessee, three each; California and Mississippi, two each; Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas, one each.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.
MAIL

JAN 8 [illegible]

Lynchings Increase

Cause for national shame is contained in the figures showing an increase of 180 per cent in lynchings last year. A total of 28 persons were victims of mob murder as against 10 in 1932.

The figures were announced by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Not all of the lynchings occurred in the South, although that section of the country was the scene of most of them. Alabama headed the list with five to its discredit. One of the most sensational acts of mob violence was the double lynching in California, with both victims being white, which brought from the governor a statement condoning the lynching and promising pardons to any persons convicted of taking part in it.

That lynchings often represent "collusion of law officers and mobs" is a conclusion reached by the association and one which seems amply justified. Even though officers are not active participants in the violence, their failure to make use of the full powers of their office to prevent such outbreaks often smears their hands with blood.

West Virginia's record with respect to lynchings has not always been clean, but that it was unmarred last year is a matter of which the citizens of this state without one exception should feel proud.

CHELSEA, MASS.
EVENING RECORD

JAN 3 1934

LYNCHING

Figures compiled by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reveal that the number of lynchings during 1933 rose 180 per cent. over what it was in 1932; there were 10 such crimes in 1932 and 28 last year. To find an increase in this form of communal madness is discouraging since the general trend has for many years been away from the cruel ferocity of mob violence.

There have been 4311 persons lynched in this country since 1885; of these 1051 were white men and 3260 were Negroes. In 1892 we sank to our lowest depths of recent years when 255 persons were thus killed, and it was not until 1909 that the number was brought below 100 to remain there. There has never been a year in which less than 10 lynchings took place.

After making all due allowances for the emotional strain of the past three years which undoubtedly has greatly shortened the tempers of our people the record remains a ghastly one. Apologize as we may, the stark fact remains that the United States is the only civilized country on earth which still has to deal with this soul-destroying species of crime.—Boston Globe.

NORWICH, CONN.
BULLETIN

JAN 3 1934

1933'S LYNCHINGS

Although it was hoped, when it was shown at the end of 1932 that there had been but eight lynchings that year, that such a record indicated that we were rapidly approaching the time when there would be no more lynchings, that law and order would get proper recognition and that mob rule would cease to be, it was too much to expect.

Lynchings have had their ups and downs. Good educational work among the people of the states where it was practiced has had good effect and the reductions in such deliberate taking of life were most certainly welcome. But the ebb tide has been followed by a flood tide, and 1933's record reveals 28 instances where there was a refusal to respect constitutional rights and an unwillingness to let the law take its course. In some of these instances the lynchers had hastened the inevitable outcome. They punished crime by committing another. There were other instances where persons were killed without their guilt being established and, as usual, there were those cases where capital punishment was inflicted for crimes which carried no such penalty under the law.

Not only because of the increase in the number of lynchings, but because of the manner in which support and encouragement were given to it, was 1933's record conspicuous. The National Association for Advancement of Colored People points to the surprisingly large number of instances where there was apparent collusion between officers of the law and the mobs, and the whole country knows what a disgraceful position was taken by the governor of California in endorsing the double lynching that occurred in that state, where he even promised that if any attempt was made to convict the lynchers and it succeeded he would grant them a pardon.

Fortunately, this attitude was not general. It was just the opposite of other governors who insisted upon the arrest and prosecution of the guilty, although that encountered in Maryland a surprising lack of cooperation on the part of the court.

But it was apparent that all sentiment does not give support to the lynching fever for there were 37 instances where the officers of the law were alive to their responsibilities and took steps that prevented mobs from staging lynching bees, resulting in the saving of 48 persons from such violence. Had those 48 attempts been added to the 28 cases where the lynchers were successful, it would have been the severest kind of indictment upon the states in which such cases occurred and upon the nation as a whole for not taking a more determined stand against such criminal activity on the part of those who profess to be stirred by crime.

MIAMI, FLA.
NEWS

JAN 7 1934

Lynchings and Law

There were 28 known lynchings in 1933, an increase of 180 per cent over the 10 of the preceding year. Reporting this rise, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People finds also "a surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs." In California Governor Rolph not only refused to heed the plea of the sheriff for the aid of the National Guard, but condoned the lynching and promised to pardon any of the participants convicted. Elsewhere sheriffs delivered their prisoners to the mobs. The association sees in these acts "an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

Though the lynching suspects arraigned in Maryland go free, others may not fare so well. One of the most impressive steps against the evil has been taken in Missouri, where a grand jury voted indictments against 11 persons, three of them for first degree murder, and recommended ousting of the sheriff and members of the police department. In South Carolina a few days ago four more lynching suspects were indicted for murder. A Tennessee grand jury is under special instructions to investigate a lynching and "promptly indict" the perpetrators if their identity can be discovered.

The common argument of those who condone lynching is that the failure of the courts effectively to do their work makes it necessary or at least excusable. This is poor logic. The Tennessee mob which lynched its victim after a grand jury had freed him for lack of evidence is typical of the fairness and wisdom with which mobs may be expected to serve t ends of justice.

In any event and whatever the relation to lynching, there have been all too many cases in which the law has broken down. The tightening up of the judicial system would be none the less imperative if lynching were unknown. The Association of Grand Jurors of New York County calls for complete revision of state and federal criminal laws and procedure, modeled along the lines of the Canadian system, "to speed up justice." Certainty of punishment once guilt is established is more important.

The federal government in its fight on organized crime has given an example which individual communities if they will can copy. Sure justice is possible, but not through the agency of the mob.

Lynchings-1933
N.A.A.C.P., Reports on.

4400

New Orleans, La., Item
January 6, 1934

The Lynch Record

AN ugly record is complete—lynchings rose 180 percent in this Country last year. The 1932 total was 10, that for 1933 was 28. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reports for 1933 "a surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs." In this it sees "an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action."

Immediately following the San Jose outrage we heard much talk of a national anti-lynch law. Passage of such legislation may be advisable. It must not be forgotten, however, that the final responsibility for extirpating lynching rests upon the people of our individual American communities.

In the era before prohibition many communities decided that they would have done with the liquor traffic. By local option they put it outside their town and city limits. This undoubtedly has been the most effective ban upon intoxicants ever applied in America. State prohibition was less effective, national prohibition abjectly failed.

This same scale of diminishing returns upon governmental edicts is likely to hold true with lynching. Any county, village, or town which the leaders of thought and government determine shall be guiltless of lynching will usuallly be free of it, whether State or Federal government act toward that end or not.

The lowbrows and roughnecks almost invariably do all the lynching. But the better class of citizens can usually control them if they really try. Occasional exceptions appear. But the intelligent elements control most communities.

Lenoir, N. C. News-Topic
January 8, 1934

LYNCHINGS IN U. S. REACH 28 IN YEAR

The lynching of Cord Creek, 20 year old negro, near Columbia, Tenn., Dec. 15. brought the total number of lynchings in the United States so far this year to 28, according to records, revealed at New York.

This compares with only 10 last year and is the highest total since 1926, when 34 were listed.

The records, which extend back to 1889, show that 3,686 persons have been lynched since that year. The highest number for any one year was 226 in 1892. In recent years lynchings have shown an irregular decline until last year the lowest total of 10 was reached. The increase this year sends the curve upwards once more.

The 1933 total of 28 comprise 24 negroes and four white men. By states show:

Alabama, 5; Florida, 1; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 2; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 3; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 1; California, 2; Missouri, 1. All were negroes except two in South Carolina and two in California.

Lynchings-1933
N.A.A.C.P., Reports on.

4401

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
WISCONSIN NEWS
JAN 28 1933

Fewer Lynchings

A hopeful sign of better race relations in the South is afforded by the decrease in lynchings last year as compared with 1931.

According to figures from the New York headquarters of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, there were eleven lynchings in 1932, whereas in 1931 there were fourteen. Two of the persons lynched last year, moreover, were whites.

Lynching is not confined exclusively to the South, one of the 1932 cases being in Ohio. And, considering the North's record for murder and assassination, it is perhaps not too much to conclude that "lynch law," once among the most sinister types of crime, is becoming a relatively minor matter. The impromptu executions of gangsters and of innocent bystanders at the hands of gunmen in the great Northern cities make most parts of the South look like Sunday school communities by contrast.

Anderson, S. C. Mail
Tuesday, February 7, 1933

DENY LYNCHING

MARION, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Marion county authorities today denied the statement of the National Association of Colored People that a person was lynched in this county last year and pointed to records which they said proved there has never been a lynching in Marion county. The association listed the death of Henry Campbell, killed in this county last year, as a lynching. Authorities contend Campbell was not lynched but was shot while resisting arrest.

Columbia, S. C. State
Wednesday, February 8, 1933

ALLEGED LYNCHING DENIED BY MARION

Marion, Feb. 7—(AP)—Marion county authorities today denied the statement of the National Association of Colored People, that a person was lynched in this county last year and pointed to records, which they said proved there had never been a lynching in Marion county.

The association listed the death of Henry Campbell, killed in this county last year, as a lynching. Authorities contend Campbell was not lynched but was shot while resisting arrest.

Aiken, S. C. Journal & Review
Wednesday, February 1, 1933

NO LYNCHINGS IN STATE

South Carolina's Slate Clean for Two Years

A resolution supporting the "lynch less south" program was adopted a the second annual meeting of th South Carolina Council of the Assc ciation of Southern Women for th Prevention of Lynching, held in Cc lumbia recently.

A report showed no lynchings i South Carolina in 1931 and 1932.

Among those attending the meet ing were Mrs. George E. Davis, o Orangeburg, chairman; Mrs. Roge Fairy, of Orangeburg, secretary Miss Jessie King and Mrs. Roy Jones of Columbia; Mrs. Mason Carroll of York, and Mrs. Jessie Danie Ames, a dirtctor of the Souther Council. Atlanta.

4401

Mullings, S. C., Enterprise
Thursday, February 2, 1933

HENRY CAMPBELL REPORTED LYNCHED

Reported by Asso. For Advancement Of Colored People

IF SO, WHERE?

Local Attorney Has Been Asked To Inestigate Report

New York, Jan. 30.—The National Association for the advancement of colored people announced today that its records disclosed reports of 11 lynchings in 1932, compared with 14 in 1931. Two of those named were white, the remainder negroes.

Aged negro, February, body found in pond, Breaksville, Fla.

David Tillus, April 1, Crockett, Tex.

Richard Read (white), April 13, St. Francis, Kas.

Walter Merrick, (white), May 31 Princeton, Ky.

Luke Marion, June 7, Ironton, Ohio.

Henry Woods, June 7, Jasper, Fla.

Henry Russell, August 29, Newton, Ga.

Frank Tucker, Sept. 16, Crosset, Ark.

Shadrock Thompson, Sept. 16, Warrenton, Va.

Henry Campbell, November, Mullins, S. C.

Williams House, Nov. 19, Wisner, La.

"Satisfaction at this slight progress," said Walter White, secretary of the association, "must be tempered by the knowledge that Quasi-legal lynchings, shootings by members of posses, hasty court trials with results virtually dictated by mobs, as in Scottsboro, Alabama, are little if any better than open and unashamed mob murder.

"The lynching spirit remains the focal problem of law enforcement in America."

The above article appearing under an Associated Press date line lists the name of Henry Campbell, Mullins, S. C. lynched in November, 1932.

There was no lynching in Marion county during 1932. The name of Henry Campbell is a familiar name in this county, but the circumstances under which he met violent death has not been learned in Mullins, and it is not known in Mullins in what State this lynching occurred, if it did occur.

Warren Derrick, local attorney, has been asked to write to the Secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, which is responsible for origin of the above article and ascertain the facts in the matter.

Thibodaux, La., Journal
Saturday, January 21, 1933

FEWER LYNCHINGS

The number of lynchings during 1932 were less than those in recent years. The figures of the Tuskegee Institute are eight and those of the National Association for the Advancement of colored people are seven, the discrepancy being explained because of different definitions used by the two organizations in defining what a lynching is. Figures for previous years running back from 1932 are 13, 21, 10, 11, and 16 in 1927.

Southern sentiment has mobilized against lawless killings, although it is only fair to bear in mind that the South is not the only region where groups tak the law in their own hand Southern women, in particular have publicly expressed condem nation of lynchings, and thei leadership causes the Bosto Globe to say that "these wome deserve the hearty support o enlightened public opinion every where. They are doing for th honor of their States a wor which will one day be recognize as heroic." There is also a grow ing determination upon the par of officers of the law to protec their prisoners in their custody

---

BOSTON MASS HERALD
FEBRUARY 8, 1933

PREDICT EFFORT TO LYNCH NEGRO

Groups to Ask Ely Not to Send Alleged Murderer Back to Virginia

CHARGE HE IS USED TO SHIELD ANOTHER

The National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People and other reform groups interested in the methods of administration of justice in southern states yesterday entered the fight to block extradition from Massachusetts of George Crawford, Negro, accused of murdering a wealthy Virginia widow and her maid.

Claiming that Crawford, if extradited, wouldl receive an unfair trial, that racial prejudice would run amuck, and that an attempt would be made to lynch him, a white investigator for the association testified that influential persons in Virginia were reported trying to obtain Crawford's conviction in order to shield the real murderer.

Although defence counsel offered an alibi and said it would prove Crawford innocent, witnesses for the reform groups indicated they intended to make a "cause celebre" of the proceedings and would ask Massachusetts authorities to pass judgment on the methods of dealing justice in Virginia.

QUESTION FOR GOV. ELY

Possibility was seen that Gov. Ely, who recently wrote to Gov. Moore of New Jersey, in behalf of Robert E. Burns, fugitive from a Georgia chain gang, himself might be called upon to decide whether a fugitive held in Massachusetts would receive fair treatment in a southern state.

The hearing room was crowded with witnesses when the extradition proceedings were resumed yesterday before Asst. Atty.-Gen. Stephen D. Bacigalupo, who will report to Gov. Ely in a few days.

J. Weston Allen, former attorney-general and counsel for Crawford, alias Charles Smith, alias Taylor, accused of killing Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley, sportswoman, and her maid, Nina Buckner, in Middleburg, Va., Jan. 13, 1932, introduced Miss Helen Boardman of New York, white investigator for the Negro association.

Residents of Middleburg informed Miss Boardman that "mob riots reigned at the time of the crimes," she declared. "Residents expressed the opinion that there would have been a lynching if Crawford was captured at the time."

"Many of the persons interviewed felt something was being covered up and said the whole county would be at the trial," she said.

FEARED RAILROADING

"They believed he had no chance of acquittal and it would be better if he were tried in Alexandria. Many believed he would be railroaded to the chair as sure as fate. The residents interviewed believed the lynching would be by the rich people."

She said Roy Smeaton, justice of the peace at Middleburg, had told her he felt someone was being protected and that, because of his attitude, he had received threats. Other responsible persons told her that they felt Crawford, if involved, was only an accomplice.

She quoted Gen. William Mitchell, former head of the army aviation service, as saying he was sure Crawford was guilty and that if he had been caught a year ago, "there would have been a burning."

A drug clerk identified as Bowley told her certain "rich" and influential persons were so anxious to shield someone they would "be glad to have Crawford convicted."

Seven Negroes provided Crawford's alibi, claiming they saw him in Boston from November, 1931, through 1932. Three of them, Basil F. Hutchins, business man; Anthony Bailey, deacon of a large Negro church, and Irving Washington, friend of Crawford, placed him in Boston during January

N. Y. SUN

JUN 26 1933

FEWER LYNCHINGS

Still, There Were Ten of Negroes in 1932.

Ten lynchings of Negroes were reported during 1932, according to the twenty-third annual report of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, made public today. The figure was four less than in the previous year, the report states, "but satisfaction at this slight progress must be tempered by the knowledge that quasi-legal lynchings are little if any better than open and unashamed mob murder."

Field workers for the organization found widespread unemployment in the communities they visited during the year. It was estimated that more than 3,500,000 Negroes were jobless.

The report contains accounts of a campaign to have the War Department correct the treatment, "bordering on peonage," of Negroes employed on the Mississippi flood control project and of a protest by the organization at the refusal of the Hoover Dam contractors to employ Negro workmen at Boulder City, Nev. Later, a number were hired.

Atlanta, Ga. Journal
December 17, 1933

Lynchings for Year Reach Total of 28; 4 Were in Georgia

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The lynching of Cord Creek, 20-year-old negro, near Columbia, Tenn., Friday night brought the total number of lynchings in the United States so far this year to twenty-eight, according to the records of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

This compares with only ten last year and is the highest total since 1926, when thirty-four were listed.

The records, which extend back to 1889, show that 3,686 persons have been lynched since that year. The highest number for any one year was 226 in 1892. In recent years lynchings have shown an irregular decline until last year, the lowest total of ten was reached. The increase this year sends the curve upward once more.

The 1933 total of 28 comprises 24 negroes and 4 white men. By states the figures for 1933 show:

Alabama, 5; Florida, 1; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi 2; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 3; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 1; California, 2; Missouri, 1. All were negroes except two in Tennessee and two in California.

The 1932 records list lynchings as follows:

Arkansas, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 1; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 1; Ohio, 1; South Carolina, 1; Texas, 1. Of these eight were negroes and two white. One of the white men was lynched in Kansas, the other in Kentucky.

Birmingham, Ala., News
December 16, 1933

LYNCHINGS SHOW GAIN OVER NATION

Alabama Leads States, With 5 Reported For Year

NEW YORK—(AP)—The lynching of Cord Cheek, 20-year-old Negro, near Columbia, Tenn., Friday night brought the total number of lynchings in the United States so far this year to 28, according to the records of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

This compares with only 10 last year and is the highest total since 1926, when 34 were listed.

The records, which extend back to 1889, show that 3,686 persons have been lynched since that year. The highest number for any one year was 226 in 1892. In recent years lynchings have shown an irregular decline until last year the lowest total of 10 was reached. The increase this year sends the curve upward once more.

The 1933 total of 28 comprises 24 Negroes and four white men. By states the figures for 1933 shows:

Alabama, 5; Florida, 1; Georgia, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 2; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 3; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 1; California, 2; Missouri, 1. All were Negroes except two in Tennessee and two in California.

The 1932 records list lynchings as follows: Arkansas, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 1; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 1; Ohio, 1; South Carolina, 1; Texas, 1. Of these eight were Negroes and two white. One of the white men was lynched in Kansas, the other in Kentucky.

Records of lynchings since in the last decade follow: 1923, 28; 1924, 16; 1925, 18; 1926, 34; 1927, 21; 1928, 11; 1929, 12; 1930, 25; 1931, 14; 1932, 10; 1933. 28.

NAACP LISTS 28 LYNCHINGS FOR 1933

Afro-American

Association Blames Collusion Between Mob and Law, Sees 200 Per Cent Increase.

1-6-34
Baltimore, Md.

NEW YORK.—In making public today its compilation of 28 known lynchings during the past year, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, through Walter White, its secretary, called attention not only to the nearly 200 per cent rise in mob murder during 1933 from the total of ten for 1932, but to the surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs.

There seems little douubt, the report says, that the lynching of George Armwood at Princess Anne, Md., on October 18, was made possible by the local judge's assurance to Governor Albert C Ritchie that Armwood would be in no danger if returned from Baltimore whence he had been taken.

The lynching record by states for 1933 is topped by Alabama with five; followed by Georgia and Louisiana with four each; South Carolina and Tennessee with three apiece; California and Mississippi with two each, while Florida Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas each lynched one. Four of the mob victims were white, twenty-four were Negroes.

The alleged ocenses for which the victims were lynched are listed as murder, 8; attack on white women, 3; attempted attack on white women, 2; insulting white women, 3; assault on white man, 1; wounding white man, 1; quarrel with white men, 3; planning suit against white man, 1; killing in search of another, 1; stealing, 1; offense unknown, 4.

Of the 28 recorded lynchings, the association calls attention to the fact that rape, the alleged excuse for lynching, was charged only in three instances, while attempted race was charged only in two instances. At best, then, rape or attempted rape was charged in only five instances or about 18 per cent of the total lynchings.

In the Cordie Cheek lynching on December 16 at Columbia, Tenn., the victim was mobbed despite failure of the grand jury to indict him for attempted assault.

Thirteen of the lynch victims were shot to death and two of the bodies burned, eight were hanged and two of their bodies burned, three were beaten to death, two were hanged and shot, one was beaten and shot and one was beaten, shot and strangled.

A Federal anti-lynching bill is to be introduced in Congress by Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado, it has been announced.

NAACP SAYS 28 LYNCHED

Chronicle
1-6-33
Boston, Mass.

Eighteen more than Record of Preceding Year—ILD Claims Forty-seven for Same Period

New York—In making its compilation of 28 known lynchings during the past year, the NAACP, through Walter White, its secretary, called attention not only to the nearly 200 per cent rise in mob murder during 1933 from the total of ten for 1932, but to the surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs.

In the double lynching at Tuscaloosa, Ala., on August 13 of two Negro youths, Dan Pippen and A. T. Hardin while being taken from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham for safekeeping, the victims were taken by the mob without any apparent effort on the part of the officers to protect them. At Clinton, S. C., on July 4, four white men experienced no difficulty in "spiriting" the victim from the jail. The same thing happened in the lynching on October 8 of Bennie Smith at Ninety Six, S. C., where an alleged lyncher when arrested claimed the chief of police left the [illegible] open. There seems little doubt that the lynching of George Armwood at Princess Anne, Md., on October 18, was made possible by the local judge's assurance to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie that Armwood would be in no danger if returned from Baltimore whence he had been taken. The double lynching at San Jose, Calif., of Thomas H. Thurmond and John Holmes (both white) on November 26 was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Gov. James H. Rolph, Jr., to send the National Guard as requested by the sheriff.

"In this instance and for the first time in recent history," Mr. White said, "the governor of an American state actually condoned a lynching and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

In this collusion of law officers and mobs, the Association's secretary sees an ominous tendency to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action.

The lynching record by states for 1933 is topped by Alabama with five; followed by Georgia and Louisiana with four each; South Carolina and Tennessee with three apiece; California and Mississippi with two each, while Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas each lynched one. Four of the mob victims were white, twenty-four were Negroes.

The alleged offenses for which the victims were lynched are listed as murder (8), attack on white woman (3), attempted attack on white woman (2), insulting white woman (3), assault on white man (1), wounding white man (1), quarrel with white man (3). planning suit against white man (1), killing in search of another (1), stealing (1), offense unknown (4). Of the 28 recorded lynchings, the Association calls attention to the fact that rape, the alleged excuse for lynching, was charged only in three instances, while attempted rape was charged only in two instances. At best, then, rape or attempted rape was charged in only five instances or about 18 percent of the total lynchings. In the Cordie Cheek lynching on December 16 at Columbia, Tenn., the victim was mobbed despite failure of the grand jury to indict him for attempted assault.

Thirteen of the lynch victims were shot to death and two of the bodies burned, eight were hanged and two of their bodies burned, three were beaten to death, two were hanged and shot. one was beaten and shot and one was beaten, shot and strangled.

Lynchings - 1933
Prevented

Alabama.

4402

Talladega, Ala., Home
August 23, 1933

THE MOB OGRE.

The Madison county sheriff, who with his warden and deputies, successfully thwarted efforts of a murderous mob to secure a negro held in the Huntsville jail on a charge of assaulting a Morgan county woman, realized his responsibility as an officer of the law and his duty to the state. Too much cannot be said in praise of his action and that of his fellow officers. But while the state is grateful for this display of courage and intelligence in handling a bad situation, it is again shamed by the action of parties unknown in killing a negro in Morgan county near where the alleged assault occurred. This latter act shows the temper and brutality of a mob. If the negro in the Huntsville jail is guilty, the victim of unknown hands cannot be, and his slayers lose even the flimsy mob excuse of only seeking swift and certain punishment for the heinous crime of rape, and protecting womanhood from the necessity of appearing in court in her shame. The incidents in Tuscaloosa and Morgan counties furnish dual reasons why mob action must not be tolerated. On the one hand the prestige of the courts and respect for law and order are trampled under foot, and on the other, an inflamed mob even loses what little sense it may have when it sets out on a mission of vengeance, and wantonly murders innocents by the wayside. The latter spirit endangers the safety of any and every person, white or black. The spirit that would put one man to death would do likewise to another, without the slightest excuse, when once the blood lust is aroused and uncurbed. The last ten days are heart-sickening to a native born Alabamian, who has spent his life and labor in a state he loves, and not even the knowledge that within its confines are men and women who will battle to end this terrible savagery, can remove the shame. Favored communities which have been free of such occurences should not sit complacently by, for what has happened in one place, can, and will happen in another, unless the public conscience is aroused against lawlessness in all its forms. In just a few days we have seen this mob ogre jump from a county which contains the seat of the state's learning and culture, to the North into a county of some of Alabama's best and most treasured traditions. Verily, the entire state has been placed on trial before the bar of world public opinion. Scottsboro, Tuscaloosa and Decatur. There will be a next, if the enlightened part of our population, which thanks be, is in the majority, is not constantly on guard and in unceasing opposition to the things which are destructive to the very foundations of the state and society.

Negro Who Shot Miners Sent To Birmingham Jail

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Nov. 28—(AP)—Fearing mob violence, Sheriff A. N. Barrentine of Walker County today brought William Winston, 28, negro, to the Jefferson County jail here for safekeeping.

Advertiser

Winston is charged with assault with intent to murder in connection with the shooting of Travis Benton, 25, and Buck Guthrie, 19, both white miners at 11-29-33

Holly Grove, Ala., Sunday afternoon.

Sheriff Barrentine said Benton's condition was critical and that feeling in Walker County was such that he feared mob action.

The officer said the negro shot the two white men as they stopped him to ask if he had not made insulting remarks to Benton's sister.

Troops Ordered To Tuscaloosa

Advertiser
8-1-33

Communist Intervention In Negro Trial Responsible For Move By Governor

At the request of Circuit Judge H. B Foster, in a long distance telephone conversation yesterday with Gov. Miller, 65 Tuscaloosa National Guardsmen, 60 enlisted men and five officers, attending the field training camp at Fort McClellan with their regiment, the 167th Infantry, were transferred back to Tuscaloosa to report to Judge Foster and the county sheriff for duty in connection with the trial of three negroes there today for the slaying of Miss Vaudine Maddox on June 12.

After talking with Judge Foster, the Governor communicated with Col. Hartley A. Moon, adjutant general, who issued the necessary order for the transfer. The troops under command of Maj. M. Torrey Jemison, of Tuscaloosa, traveled by motor convoy.

While no disorder had been anticipated during the trial of the negroes, the recent announcement of the International Labor Defense that it would employ counsel for them, alleging they were victims of a "frame up," it was thought might have a disturbing effect by stirring up feeling that would react against the defendants, it was learned.

The presence of an adequate force of guardsmen to augment and cooperate with the sheriff and his deputies was therefore regarded as necessary as a precautionary measure in preserving order while the trial is in progress.

Lynchings-1933 I
6
Prevented

Alabama

4404

Memphis, Tenn., Com'rcial Appeal
August 2, 1933

TROOPS SAVE NEGROES FROM MOB VIOLENCE

Alabama National Guardsmen Forced to Use Tear Gas.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 1.—(UP)—National guardsmen used tear gas here late today to break up a mob of several hundred persons attempting to attack three negroes accused of murdering a girl.

The guardsmen also saved from the mob's attack two attorneys sent from New York and Birmingham by the International Labor Defense to Defend the Negroes. Several guardsmen accompanied the attorneys on a train for Birmingham.

Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster had ruled earlier in the day that the negroes must be represented by local counsel, thus shoving out of the case the I. L. D. attorneys, Irving Schwab of New York and Frank Irwin of Birmingham.

Trial of two of the negroes, Dan Pippen, 18, and Elmore Clark, 28, scheduled to start today, was postponed indefinitely. The third, A. T. Hardin, 16, faces trial later in juvenile court.

A company of national guardsmen was ordered here from Anniston by Gov. Miller last night as a precautionary measure.

The negroes are charged with the murder of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 18, found assaulted and beaten to death in a wooded spot off a little-used road after she had been missing from her home three days.

The defendants told the court today that they did not want to be represented by I. L. D. attorneys, who have figured in the Scottsboro case. The court ordered them tried by appointed local counsel, including John. D. McQueen, widely known criminal lawyer and former president of the Alabama Bar Association.

I. L. D. Lawyers Held To Blame For Racial Rifts

Advertiser
8-4-33

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 3.—(AP)—William P. Bloom, merchant and former vice-commander of the Alabama department, [illegible] Legion, today made public a copy of a letter he had written Rabbi Stephen Wise, in New York, asking his influence in keeping the International Labor Defense from trying to interfere in the trial of Dan Pippen, Jr., 18-year-old negro charged with murder.

"I wish to [illegible] to use all of your good influence to the end that no representatives of the International Labor Defense be allowed to come to Tuscaloosa, when the Pippen murder case comes up again," Bloom wrote.

"We wish to use every possible means to the end that the spirit of perfect harmony and understanding between the Jews and Gentiles shall not be disrupted by outsiders coming in to spread hatred and malice among the masses."

Bloom said he spoke the unanimous sentiment of Tuscaloosa Jews, who resented the intrusion of I. L. D. lawyers, two of whom were Jews, from New York.

National Guardsmen escorted the three I. L. D. attorneys, Irving Schwab and Allan Taub of New York and Frank Irvin of Birmingham—from the city after Judge Henry B. Foster, Tuesday had held they had no authority in the Pippen case. The trial was postponed indefinitely.

Pippen and two other negroes are charged with the slaying of 21-year-old Vaudine Maddox.

TRIAL POSTPONED AS COURT RULES OUT I.L.D. LAWYERS

8-5-33

THREE THOUSAND TUSCALOOSA COUNTIANS MILL ABOUT COURT HOUSE AS HEARING OPENS; NATIONAL GUARD TROOPS ARE CALLED OUT; ATTORNEYS SPIRITED AWAY UNDER MILITARY ESCORT

Birmingham, Ala.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Aug. 2—Things have settled to a normal state in this usually quiet Alabama city, following a day of some considerable excitement Tuesday when the case of Dan Pippen, 18-year-old Negro youth, was called in Judge Henry F. Foster's court. A crowd estimated variously from two to three thousand persons milled about the court house, guards prevented them crowding into the court room.

Governor B. M. Miller had ordered National Guard troops to the scene on Monday night to be on duty for the trial. The order for the Guardsmen, it is said, was requested by Judge Foster and the sheriff of Tuscaloosa County.

The presiding judge had appointed three leading attorneys of Tuscaloosa to defend the youths, but when the case was called Tuesday morning I. L. D. attorneys from Birmingham and New York presented their claims as counsel for the accused. Considerable time was taken in an effort to determine who were the authorized attorneys for the defense.

I. L. D. attorneys asked a postponement of the trial as they had not had time to talk with the defendant and prepare a defense, and succeeded in getting into the record that the alleged partial confession of one of the youthful defendants was obtained by beating and coercion.

Brief testimony was taken as to what set of attorneys were the proper representatives for the defendant and Pippen's parents denied giving I. L. D. attorneys any authority to represent the boy.

The court ruled against the Labor Defense attorneys and postponed the trial for the reason, it is said, that the jury heard part of the dispute over who should defend the accused.

Feeling ran so high against the attorneys that they were spirited out of Tuscaloosa Tuesday evening and reached Birmingham by train, with members of National Guard escorting them.

Dan Pippen, Jr., 18; Elmore Clark, 28, with a third, A. T. Harden, who is a juvenile, are charged with the murder of Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old white girl, near her farm home in Tuscaloosa County last June 12th.

Scottsboro, Ala., Age
August 3, 1933

the negro trial at Tuscaloosa this week, Judge Henry B. Foster took steps to prevent a repetition of the Scottsboro affair and appointed three of the ablest lawyers of the Tuscaloosa bar to defend the negroes. He stated that he did not want the interference of the I. L. D. lawyers. The negroes on trial had said they did not want their interferences. The best negroes of the county said they did not want them. However, the lawyers showed up at the trial and were politely escorted out of town by the State militia and told to say out. Had it not been for outside interference, there would never have been the notiriety attached to the Scottsboro case.

Columbus, Miss. Dispatch
August 4, 1933

WITH OTHER EDITORS

T28

THE PROPER WAY

(Huntsville, Ala., Times)

THREE negro boys go on trial at Tuscaloosa today, accused of attacking and then killing a young white woman of that county.

The evidence, which is entirely circumstantial, points strongly to their guilt.

But instead of having a repetition of the Scottsboro case, the presiding judge of the Tuscaloosa criminal court has taken steps that will avoid all semblance of that unhappy Jackson county trial, which has been the cause of unwarranted cost and undesirable national notoriety.

Judge Foster, in the Tuscaloosa trial today, has drafted three of the best members of that bar to serve as attorneys for the accused negroes, without cost.

One of the defense lawyers is a former president of the Alabama Bar Association; another is a former district judge; the third is an outstanding member of the Tuscaloosa bar.

A small detachment of the Tuscaloosa national guard has been called out, not to picket the courthouse, or to stand watch in the courtroom, but to remain at the armory as a precaution against any trouble.

The manner of Judge Foster in handling the trial has brought an appeal from 20 negro ministers of Tuscaloosa county that "outside influences" desist from interfering in the case, or injecting themselves into it in any way.

The reference was unquestionably to the International Labor Defense, which made itself so obnoxious in ~~the~~ Scottsboro and other negro cases of more recent date.

"We feel that the fair-mindedness and Christian integrity of citizens of this community will see to it that justice is given in these cases, and our conviction is that the defense of these cases ought to be left in the hands of competent local lawyers", said the statement given out by the negro ministers.

A fair trial is insured the accused negro youths, under the procedure adopted by Judge Foster.

Other judges of this state will do well to study and emulate the example of this Tuscaloosa jurist, when criminal attack and murder charges against negroes, where public feeling is running high, and impartial justice is a difficult matter, are being sifted or tried.

National Guard Leader Denies Mob Threatened Attorneys In Tuscaloosa

Advertiser 8-3-33 Montgomery Ala

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Maj. Torrey Jemison, commander of First Battalion, 167th Infantry, Alabama National Guard, in charge of troops here yesterday, today issued a statement denying remarks attributed to him in Birmingham last night where he escorted three attorneys of the International Labor Defense.

"I consider these statements not only untrue, but unfair to Tuscaloosa citizens and Tuscaloosa guardsmen," said Major Jemison. "The crowds which gathered, both around the A. G. S. Station and the courthouse were very cooperative with the guardsmen, and at no time did it become necessary to use physical force against anyone.

"One tear gas bomb was used to disperse a group which became disorderly a block from the courthouse. At the station the group was very quiet.

"I recall, that the train stopped somewhere between Tuscaloosa and a point several miles beyond Cottondale, but the train did not stop at Cottondale and I saw no crowd there. I am told that a group of about 15 gathered to watch the train pass.

"The three attorneys whom were assigned to protect were not touched by anyone at anytime, while being escorted from the circuit court room in Tuscaloosa until they were delivered to officials in Birmingham.

"The only statement given by me in Birmingham was a conversation with Chief McDuff of an official nature and concerning only my orders from Judge Henry B. Foster to the effect that the three lawyers be safely escorted from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham.

"I personally desire to commend the crowd for the cooperation and fine temper which it displayed throughout the demonstration. All statements attributed to me as to unruly conduct of the crowd are without foundation."

Maj. Jemison and several members of the National Guard detachment escorted Frank Irvin, of Birmingham, Irving Schwab and Allan Taub, of New York, from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham, because of feeling of resentment against them after attempting to intercede in the trial of Dan Pippen, Jr., and Elmore Clark, negroes, charged with murder.

Birmingham Police Quoted In Jemison Mob Statement

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Three International Labor Defense attorneys ruled out of participation in the trial of two negroes accused of killing a white girl were twice threatened by crowds as National Guardsmen hurried them from the hearing at Tuscaloosa, Maj. M. T. Jemison reported to police here.

The trial of the first of the negroes, Dan Pippen, Jr., 18, was called at Tuscaloosa yesterday and Attorneys Irving Schwab and Allan Taub of New York, both associated with the Scottsboro attack cases, and Frank B. Irvin of Birmingham sought to join defense counsel.

National Guardsmen had been ordered to Tuscaloosa and Judge Henry B. Foster said they were requested because of a public demonstration with several hundred persons around the courthouse and "expressions of resentment against outside lawyers injecting themselves into a case over the protest of representative negroes here and also the expressed wishes of the defendant, his father and mother."

After Pippen and his mother and father told the court they desired representation by attorneys other than Schwab, Taub and Irvin, Judge Foster ruled the three out of the case and postponed the trial along with that of Pippen's co-defendant, Elmore Clarke, 28.

The Pippens testified Charles La France and Jacob McGuire had been retained in the case.

The International Labor Defense lawyers, Maj. Jemison reported here, were hustled from the courtroom under military escort and guardsmen had to use their bayonets to push through the crowd. Tear gas was used in an attempted dispersal on the way to the train.

At Cottondale, Maj. Jemison went on, the air line on the train was broken by two men who leaped from it as it stopped. A crowd of approximately 100 men was gathered along the track but did not try to board before the train moved away. When the attorneys arrived here, they wore slough hats and were without coats as a means of disguising their identity. Local officers were sent back to Tuscaloosa to get their automobile.

Pippen, Clarke and A. T. Harden, a juvenile, were indicted for murder in the waylaying and attacking of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21, on her way to visit a neighbor in rural Tuscaloosa County June 12.

The I. L. D. attorneys did not indicate here whether they would press their claim of right to defend the negroes in future procedure. The venire had heard part of the argument over who should appear for the negroes and fear of prejudice led to postponement.

I. L. D. Officials Says Barring Was 'Illegal'

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—William L. Patterson, national secretary of the International Labor Defense, today characterized the barring of three attorneys from the trial of Dan Pippen, Jr., in Tuscaloosa, Ala., as "entirely illegal."

He said the attorneys were retained by relatives of the defendant and that the I. L. D. "will continue to fight" for their recognition in the case.

SLAPPED IN THE FACE

Advertiser 8-3-33 Montgomery Ala

Men may hold their temper when struck on the chin with a closed fist. They may strike back. But if they are wise they will not let their own anger lick them.

But it is hard for men to control anger when slapped in the face. A slap does not injure, it stings; it stings the pride more than it gives physical pain.

Now the International Labor Defense League has long since quit striking Alabama with its closed fist.

The gifted gentlemen sent to Alabama to taunt prejudice and indignation have slapped Alabama in the face. They have stuck pins in the temper of the people here.

And why? Because they believed that if they taunted long enough, if they slapped our cheeks enough times, if they continued to stick pins in our side that eventually we would lose our heads and strike back.

That is just what the ILD agitators want.

Nothing pleases them more than to point to mob disorder—or even public resentment that they may be able to construe as mob disorder.

For every mistreated ILD slanderer in Alabama there are hundreds of additional ILD friends flocking into the temples of ignorance.

Open resentment of the ILD insult-spewer in Alabama means the addition of hundreds of names to the International Defense League membership in the East.

Should bodily harm come to one of these scavengers by enraged Alabama hot heads, it is to be expected that the International Labor Defense sympathizers should gain by the thousands.

Alabamians must hold their temper.

But again to the honest liberals of the East we beg: Please keep these belled buzzards out of Alabama!

Tuscaloosa Trial Delay Granted

Advertiser 8-2-33

Effort Of I.L.D. Attorneys To Enter Case Balked By Family Of Defendant

Montgomery, Ala.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Judge Henry B. Foster this afternoon ruled that attorneys employed by the International Labor Defense had not been retained to defend Dan Pippen, Jr., 18-year-old negro, on charges of slaying Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21, and then postponed the case indefinitely. Pippen was indicted with two other negroes for the slaying.

The attorneys, Frank B. Irvin, of Birmingham; Irving Schwab and Allan Taub, both of New York, and associated in the Scottsboro case, were given a national guard escort when they left the city this afternoon.

Judge Foster, who asked the guard to protect the attorneys sent here by the I. L. D. said, in regard to the troopers' presence and escort:

"The guard escort was ordered, due to a public demonstration with several hundred persons around the courthouse and expressions of resentment against outside lawyers injecting themselves into a case over the protest of representative negroes here and also the expressed wishes of the defendant, his father and his mother.

"There is no feeling against the negroes here and guards were not needed to protect the defendants."

Judge Foster ruled that the three attorneys did not represent the negro, after Pippen, his father, Dan Pippen, Sr., and his mother, Lucindy Pippen, had testified they wished Charles LaFrance and Jacob McGuire, retained in behalf of the negro, to defend him.

A motion to postpone the case was then made by LaFrance who pointed out that the venire summoned for jury duty had heard part of the argument regarding which attorneys should represent the negro to the prejudice of the case. Judge Foster granted the motion.

When the case was called, Irvin presented claims that he and his associates, Schwab and Taub, had been retained by Pippen's mother, presenting documents to substantiate the contention.

Lucindy Pippen, however, while on the stand was shown the document, purportedly signed by her and authorizing Irvin to act for her son, and denied having ever seen it.

Judge Foster's ruling followed a few moments later.

Irvin Schwab and Taub were offered national guard escort outof the county by Judge Foster who earlier had said the troopers had been requested solely to safeguard the I. L. D. attorneys, as there was no feeling against the negroes here.

The three attorneys left for Birmingham late this afternoon without signifying whether they intended to press their claims to represent the negroes in future proceedings.

Advertiser

Crowd Halts Train Carrying Disguised I. L. D. Attorneys

8-2-33

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Aug. 1.—(AP)—An apparent attempt at Cottondale, near Tuscaloosa, to take three I. L. D. attorneys from a train on which they were being escorted from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham by Alabama National Guardsmen was reported to Chief of Police Fred H. McDuff tonight by Maj. M. T. Jemison, in charge of the National Guard unit.

Maj. Jemison told Chief McDuff that the air line on the train was broken at Cottondale by two men who leaped from the train when it stopped. Major Jemison said approximately 100 men were gathered along the railroad track. The train proceeded after a short halt Major Jemison said, without any move on the part of the crowd to get on board.

Montgomery Ala

Advertiser

The three attorneys, Allan Taub and Irving Schwab, of New York, and Frank Irwin, of Birmingham, today were ruled out of participation in the trial of two negroes at Tuscaloosa on charges of slaying a white woman.

They were brought to Birmingham under National guard escort on request of Judge Henry B. Foster, of Tuscaloosa who presided at the trial and issued the order barring them from the trial.

Major Jemison said tear gas was used near the Tuscaloosa courthouse in an attempt to disperse a crowd which he estimated at more than 1,000. The guard officer said the guardsmen were forced to fix bayonets to keep the crowd back while the attorneys were being taken to the train. He said he recognized one of his best friends in the crowd and that he had to threaten him with a pistol before he would stay back.

When they arrived here, the attorneys were dressed in slouch hats, and were without coats in addition to other methods to conceal their identity.

They remained at the Birmingham City Hall while local officers went to Tuscaloosa to obtain the attorney's automobile.

Troops To See Job-Hunting Lawyers To Birmingham

The 65 National Guardsmen, five officers and 60 enlisted men sent to Tuscaloosa Monday for duty in connection with trial there yesterday of three negroes charged with the murder of Miss Vaudine Maddox, were under orders last night to return to Ft. McClellan after they had escorted to Birmingham three International Labor Defense attorneys who appeared at Tuscaloosa to defend the negroes.

The attorneys are Irvin Schwob and Allan Taub, of New York, and Frank B. Irvin, of Birmingham. Taub and Schwob served as defense counsel in the submitting to the Supreme Court of Alabama of appeals in the Scottsboro cases.

Under the orders issued by Adjt. Gen. Hartley A. Moon, by direction of the Governor regarding the sending of the troops to Tuscaloosa, the Guardsmen, all of whom reside in or near Tuscaloosa, were to terminate their period of special duty when they had accompanied the three lawyers named to Birmingham.

When called Monday the citizen soldiers were undergoing field training at Ft. McClellan with their regiment, the 167th Infantry, having arrived there Sunday.

Trial of the negroes at Tuscaloosa was postponed by Circuit Judge Henry B. Foster yesterday afternoon.

Jefferson County Warden Denies Whipping Charge

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Warden F. L. Erwin, of the Jefferson County jail, this afternoon said that Dan Pippen, Jr., was not struck or otherwise harmed while confined in jail here for safekeeping.

Pippen had testified in Tuscaloosa he was beaten by "somebody" while incarcerated here for safekeeping pending trial on charges of murdering Miss

Lynchings - 1933

II

Alabama

4405

Prevented

Maddox.

"I was present each time the negroes were questioned by officers or any one else, and they were not harmed," Warden Erwin said. "They were very orderly prisoners and never gave us a minute's trouble."

8-2-33

Pippen, A. T. Harden and Elmore Clark were confined here several days, while officers were investigating the Tuscaloosa County slaying.

Advertiser 8-3-33 Montgomery Ala.

FOR JUSTICE, CALL OFF THE BELLED BUZZARDS

Dan Pippen, Jr., is an 18-year-old Negro on trial in Tuscaloosa, on charges of assaulting and murdering a white girl.

Two other Negroes are being tried for the same offense. But today we are concerned with the case of Dan Pippen.

This youth is charged with a crime for which the death penalty may be given in Alabama, as in most States.

The people of Alabama, through their courts, have only one interest in the trial of Dan Pippen. If he is guilty as charged the people want him punished as a jury sees fit.

If Dan Pippen is not guilty the people want the boy acquitted, and they want a continued search for the guilty person or persons.

Pippen's interest in the case is of more vital interest—to Pippen.

He is facing death.

The Negro, whether innocent or guilty, wants to save his own life. Right now nothing else matters. He does not want to sit in the electric chair at Kilby Prison.

Pippen does not want to be a martyr.

But Pippen is by way of becoming a martyr against his will. He is about to become a martyr because of the interference of organizations which hold "principle" above the value of human life.

Yesterday the Negro and his parents made it known that they had not retained three aggressive attorneys representing the International Labor Defense League who had thrown their brief cases on the defendent's table.

The Negro and his parents made it plain that they wanted counselors who would protect the interest of their client. They made it plain that they did not wish to risk the Negro's neck in the hands of men whose controlling purpose is to place the case in the headlines of the nation's newspapers, to foment hatred among the people living here and against the people living here—even at the price of human life.

The court has ruled out the attorneys retained by the International Labor Defense League, as courts would rule out any lawyer attempting to "defend" a prisoner against the prisoner's will.

But the ILD scavengers are not through with this case.

They have made their first point. They have succeeded in arousing the resentment of Tuscaloosa citizenry

The next move will be a barnstorming tour of the country, sobbing songs of oppression, preaching hatred, spreading lies—all in the name of Principle.

In describing such cattle as the International Labor Defense League hatred-distillers, Elmer Davis writes in this month's Harper's Monthly: . . . "Persons of principle are usually more interested in the vindication of the principle than in the fate of the victim who happens to exemplify it."

Mr. Davis is writing of the zealous souls whose greatest passion is protesting—protesting for the sake of making martyrs of hapless individuals who are fighting for a life or for freedom.

But the ILD and kindred organizations which have sent evangels of hate into Alabama to arouse race prejudice, to make bigots, to manufacture fake martyrs, are without principle. They are without mercy or pity. They care not for saving the lives of their victims nor for human justice.

Alabamians must insist upon fair and just trials for the most humble.

But the people here will not be swayed from the course of justice out of fear of outside sentiment.

Alabama juries must find defendants innocent or guilty as the evidence dictates. They must not and they will not be swayed in either direction by outside interference.

But to the so-called liberals in the East and in the South we make this plea:

Make any sane investigation of Alabama courts you wish. Employ any competent, honest defense attorney needed by any defendant in an Alabama court who wants your help.

Look upon these cases as they are—as criminal trials in which only one question is to be settled, the guilt or the innocence of the defendant.

But in the name of common decency and justice to the respectable people of a sovereign State and to the men on trial, call off the belled buzzards whose only motive is to foment trouble!

NEGRO BOYS WERE LYNCHED BY WELL-ORGANIZED GROUP, I. L. D. ATTORNEY REVEALS

Allen Taub, in Interview, Describes Events That Led to the Lynching of Framed Negro Lads

Daily Worker 8-15-33 New York N.Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The story of the events leading up to the brutal lynching of Dan Pippin, Jr., and A. T. Hardin, 18 and 16 years old respectively, by [illegible] Tuscaloosa, Ala. "[illegible]izens", was told today by Allen Taub, one of the lawyers forced from the murdered boys' defense by the local lynch court.

Taub told the story to a Daily Worker reporter—a story which proves that the lynching was perpetrated not by a 'frenzied mob,' but by a well-organized group intent on the boys' death.

"The announcement of the I. L. D. that it would enter the case of Pippen, aroused furious hostility among the ruling whites," Taub declared. "They terrorized the local Negroes; they called mass meetings of leading Negroes of Tuscaloosa and demanded that they pass resolutions against the I. L. D. Sheriff R. L. Shamblin refused us permission to see the defendants in jail, saying that he was not satisfied that we were the attorneys, although we had retainers signed by all the nearest-of-kin.

Armed Guards At Court

"We arrived at the Tuscaloosa courthouse on the morning of the trial, Aug. 2, at 9 o'clock. There was an immense crowd in front of the courthouse, and the corridors were jammed.

"Inside the building, barricading the entrance to the stairway, was a high wooden fence. Guarding this entrance were armed deputies.

"When we entered the courtroom, we found every seat taken. Many of the leaders of Alabama's ruling class were there, among them William Brandon, formerly governor of Alabama. There were many other officials, and quite a number of judges and former judges from other parts of Alabama.

Defense Needed Time

"Frank Irwin, our co-attorney in the case, a native of Birmingham, rose in court to make the following statement: that he had been retained by the defendants in the case; that he had gone to the jail in Tuscaloosa to see the defendants, but was not allowed to consult with them; that he had succeeded in seeing only young Pippen in the Jefferson County Jail in Birmingham; that although he had written the clerk of the court of his retainer in the case, he was not notified according to legal procedure of the date of the trial, but had to find this out through other channels; that because he had not been permitted to see his clients, he felt himself to be unprepared to proceed at once with the case and therefore asked a continuance. Irwin then showed the court the retainers signed by Dan Pippen, Jr., and by the nearest-of-kin of the other defendants.

"All this time the militia was being held in readiness half a block away, and the crowds at the courthouse door and in the corridors were as menacing as ever.

"A Sad Duty Indeed"

"At this point John D. McQueen, one of the attorneys appointed by the court for the defendants, called for a recess. The five 'defense' lawyers appointed by Judge Henry B. Foster, the lawyers for the prosecution and the judge himself, all retired for consultation.

"When they came back, McQueen arose and spoke words that had a startling resemblance to the words of Stephen Roddy, Ku Klux Klan lawyer appointed to 'defend' the Scottsboro boys at their first trial. "This is a sad duty, indeed," said McQueen. Defending these men is not something that I would have wished for myself. We are here just to carry out our duty, and we are here under direction of this court.'

"The state then put on the stand young Dan Pippen and forced from him a repudiation of the retainer he had signed in jail. Pippen had been thoroughly beaten in jail, and the bandages about his head had been removed only a few days before the trial.

I. L. D. Telegram Read

"A telegram was put into the judge's hands. It was from William L. Patterson, secretary of the International Labor Defense. It exposed in no uncertain terms the frame-up nature of the charge against the defendants; it denounced the attempts to terrorize the defendants and to keep the I. L. D. out of the case; it held the judge responsible for the safety of defendants and lawyers, and it expressed the determination of the I. L. D. fight for Negro rights.

"When Judge Foster read this telegram, the pretense of 'fairness' dropped from him like a mask. He clenched his hands and began to shout: 'I'll kill the son-of-a-bitch who wrote this telegram. I'll make him answer for this.' One of the deputies said: 'You don't have to do it, judge; we'll do it for you.'

"The militia now entered the building. They cleared it of all spectators and all clerks and other workers. National guardsmen surrounded the courthouse.

Lawyers Taken Away

"We were taken down to the ground floor, dressed in slouch hats, our coats were taken from us. Disguised in this way, we passed out of the building in single file and entered the cars provided by the guardsmen.

"When we got to the Tuscaloosa station, we found a crowd waiting for us. They shook their fists in our faces and cursed us. On the train, we were led into a private compartment, in which we remained throughout the trip.

"Thirteen miles out of Tuscaloosa, at Cottondale, the train came to a sudden stop. We found out later that the airline had been cut to hold the train while a lynch crowd boarded the car. We heard heavy footsteps tramping the corridors, searching for us. Once we heard someone say distinctly: 'There's three of them.' Probably about 100 men passed through the train at Cottondale. Finally the airline was repaired and we got into Birmingham.

"In Birmingham we were met by eight policemen and nine national guardsmen with mounted rifles. They put us in a patrol wagon and drove us to the city hall. Chief of Police Fred McDuff said that he had been informed of a group from Tuscaloosa headed for Birmingham. During our stay in the city hall, there were constant telephone calls from the lynchers asking our whereabouts. A policeman came in and reported that 20 autos were on the way from Tuscaloosa.

"There is no question that this lynch group had been organized against us by the ruling whites of Tuscaloosa, who then had a fine excuse for driving out attorneys pledged to show the frame-up nature of the case and raise issues of Negro rights."

Advertiser

8-2-33

Montgomery

Ala.

LIBERAL PAPERS, PLEASE COPY

The Advertiser, during the last two years, has been a zealous student of unsalted propaganda intended to arouse oppression-complexes, and sectional and racial hatred.

Not that this paper's interest in the efforts of some groups to arouse passionate prejudices among people in Alabama and outside of Alabama, is new. Nothing of the kind.

The Advertiser for more than 100 years has fought prejudice and bigotry in Alabama. It will continue to do so.

We mention this in no boastful spirit though this paper is proud of stands it has taken in the past. We merely mention it as a reminder to strangers and new friends and new enemies that this paper need not apologize for being what too many so-called liberal journals, including even some great Southern newspapers, have chosen to call "sectionally prejudiced."

True enough The Advertiser holds the interest of Alabama above that of any other State. It always has held the interests of the people here close to its heart. It intends to do so in the future.

But that same interest has been responsible for this paper's attack on home-grown bigotry through the tumultuous ante-bellum days when The Advertiser fought Know-Nothingism in Alabama. It has continued to do so up to the present time.

During the progress of the infamous Scottsboro case this paper believed that it was as capable of passing judgment on the trials as any other lay journal. And this paper believes that it was and is more capable of passing judgment on such cases in Alabama than any lay journal outside the State.

In the Scottsboro case and in other rape and murder trials in Alabama to which the International Labor Defense League has lent its helping hand, the press of the country, not excepting conscientious Southern papers in nearby States, has been harsh with the courts and people here.

The Nation, The New Republic and similar high-and-mighty liberal journals, and a few Harlem-inspired newspapers have been absurdly harsh in their condemnation.

But the press as a whole did not have and does not have any intention of being antagonistic toward the people in Alabama. Acting on available information, and spurred no doubt unconsciously by propaganda concocted by well-meaning sentimentalists and misinformed zealots as well as paid hate distillers, too much of the press either took much for granted or made hasty decisions in the Scottsboro and Decatur trials of the eight Negro rapists.

This was more to be regretted than resented.

There are, however, a few newspapers in the South—just as there are a few individuals—which have mistaken a yearning for applause for a sense of liberalism. These papers and these individuals think they are being courageous by taking a stand against their own people. Not that it does not take courage to point to the evils at home. It does take courage.

But sometimes it is hard to forsake applause from the sidelines. Sometimes it takes more courage to forsake applause from afar than it does to invite the displeasure of the home folks.

This week the Governor of Alabama sent National Guardsmen to Tuscaloosa to safeguard International Labor Defense attorneys who are defending three Negroes charged with raping and murdering a 16-year-old white girl.

To the liberal press we direct attention to this item.

How long will it be before the ILD penmen will be telling how it became necessary for State troops to be sent to guard lawyers who were trying to save the lives of innocent boys who were framed by the Alabama bigots?

How long will it be before lies, similar to the "Scottsboro" atrocity stories, will be heaped upon the people living in the East?

Now The Advertiser has not formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the three Negroes being tried in Tuscaloosa. That city is more than 100 miles from Montgomery. This paper has not yet investigated the case, and it would not care to pass judgment on a case which by all rights should be tried before a jury of 12 honest men who may hear and weigh the evidence.

Will the so-called liberal journals remain as unbiased?

It is feared that too many of them will not.

The people of Alabama have every reason to believe that the International Labor Defense League and the lawyers representing the league will throw as much mud against the map of the State as possible.

It has been done before.

The Advertiser, as an Alabama newspaper devoted to the interests of the people here, can only regret the possible unsalted propaganda which is swallowed by the Eastern press and the people of the East.

But The Advertiser, as will all law-abiding Alabamians who care for justice, will resent the lying propaganda which it expects once again will flow from the acid-dipped pens of the ILD slanderers.

The conscientious liberals who endorse the sending of the ILD trouble-makers into Alabama are foolish.

This State is impatient with their tactics. A people can stand just so much unscrupulous, conscienceless slander.

Why should a Roman circus be made of every capital criminal case in Alabama by organizations which are concerned with the show and not the welfare of the men they pretend to defend?

Why should such buzzards flock to Alabama every time there is a criminal trial involving Negroes?

Selma, Ala. Times
August 8, 1933

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE REPULSED AGAIN IN ALABAMA

Following announcement that the Internationa Labor Defense was planning to employ counsel t aid in defending three negroes charged with th murder of a young white woman, a group of colored ministers of Tuscaloosa and other leaders o the race in that community have made an appea to "outside influences" to refrain from injecting themselves into the trial. The petition was issue through the Tuscaloosa Colored Citizens Committee and stated that those signing it were convinced that the proper authorites would see to i that justice was done in the cases involved.

This action is in line with a request made recently by a negro under death sentence in Birmingham who asked that the International Labor Defense not interfere in his case and is therefor the second rebuke in the last few weeks from colored sources to outsiders seeking to cast reflections on Alabama court methods.

The sooner the leaders of the I. L. D. and similar organizations learn that the better elements of the colored citizenship of Alabama resent interference in trials of negroes in this state, just as the white citizens are opposed to outside influences in such affairs, the better it will be for all concerned.—Anniston Star.

Chattanooga, Tenn. News
June 22, 1933

ALABAMA MOB FAILS TO LOCATE NEGROES

Band Disperses After Storming Tuscaloosa Jail.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., June 22.—(A. P.)—A mob of approximately 150 whit men and youths congregated abou the Tuscaloosa county jail last nigh and demanded two Negroes held i the slaying of a white girl, but dispersed after officers convinced them the prisoners had been spirited away

Circuit Judge H. B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin addressed the group which left after two of their numbe who said they knew the Negroes, Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, wer conducted through the cells and faile to find the prisoners.

Later a part of the mob went t the city jail and demanded that the be allowed to search the cells for th Negroes, but departed upon orders o Chief of Police H. D. Billingsley and a group of officers. None of the group appeared to be armed, the officers said.

The victim of the slaying, Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old farm girl, was found with her head crushed by a heavy rock in rural Tuscaloosa county, sixteen miles from here. The coroner said she had been attacked

---

N. Y. EVENING POST

AUG 23 1933

JAIL UNDER GUARD IN LYNCH THREAT

Alabama Mob, Failing Twice, Promises to Come Back "1,000 Strong"

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 23 (AP).—Patrols armed with guns and tear gas guarded the Madison County jail today against a promised third attempt to lynch a Negro after an unsuccessful mob left the jail with a declaration they would return "a thousand strong" to get the prisoner.

Sheriff Ben Giles immediately ordered all deputies to duty to resist any attack on the jail. Threats of violence were reported.

Early to day, however, the scene was quiet and the Sheriff said: "The Negro is still in jail and I intend to see that he stays there." He added that he was ready for any eventuality should the threatened mob turn up today.

The Negro, Thomas Brown, twenty-three, was identified by a mother of seven children as the man who held a knife at her throat and attacked her at Decatur, in adjoining Morgan County. The prisoner was hurried here when a crowd assembled at the Morgan County jail after his arrest.

A Grand Jury is investigating the lynching of two Negroes and wounding of a third in Tuscaloosa County. The three were accused of killing white girl.

Lynchings—1933
Prevented

Alabama

4406

No Further Attempts Made To Lynch Negro

* * *

Gov. Miller Praises Madison County Sheriff For Thwarting Two Mobs

Advertiser
8-24-33
Montgomery, Ala.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Quiet prevailed here tonight as sheriff's deputies continued their guard at the Madison [illegible] where Thomas Brown, negro, is held for safekeeping following his transfer here from Morgan County where he was identified as the attacker of a white woman.

Sheriff Ben Giles reported no further attempt had been made by mobs to reach the prisoner following two unsuccessful attempts yesterday. Sheriff Giles said he would continue a close guard around the jail until all possible chance of violence had passed.

He said he was prepared for any eventuality, and that the "negro still is in jail and I intend to see that he stays there."

The negro was brought here from Decatur [illegible] had formed at the Morgan County Jail there.

Meanwhile, Judge Horton has ordered the Morgan County Grand Jury into session at Decatur Monday to investigate the slaying of James Royal, another negro, shot down from a passing auto near where Brown was arrested.

Gov. Miller in a telegram to Sheriff Giles, of Madison County yesterday, complimented him on his "performance of duty" in twice thwarting efforts of a mob to take a negro prisoner yesterday.

The Governor's telegram said:

"Have just read newspaper account of your action. It showed what an officer with proper recognition of duty and proper foresight, judgment, fearlessness and courage could do. Your determination for law enforcement was realized by its prospective violators and force and violence by them was thus prevented. You protected the name and law of Alabama as well as the body of your prisoner. You and your deputies did not yield to cowardice, negligence or collusion. The people of Alabama are grateful to you and commend you as an example to others."

N. Y. HERALD

AUG 16 1933

Troops Guard Negro Telling of Lynching of 2

Survivor Who Escaped Mob by Playing Dead Testifies

Before the Grand Jury

Judge Terms Act Murder

Strong Charge to Inquisitors Marks Start of Work

By The Associated Press

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 15.—Behind closed doors of a special grand jury room, Elmore Clark, twenty-eight-year-old Negro, related today his experiences in the hands of a mob which wounded him and killed two other Negroes under indictment on a charge of killing a white woman.

As 150 National Guardsmen paced the area behind barbed wire about the courthouse and the county jail, Clark went before the special grand jury which had been charged by Judge Henry B. Foster earlier in the day to make a determined effort to bring the lynchers to justice.

After completing his testimony, Clark was placed aboard a train, accompanied by an escort of National Guardsmen, and taken to Birmingham, where he was placed in the Jefferson County jail for safe keeping. [The United Press at Birmingham said that Clark was resting in the jail's hospital ward and would be taken later by train to the state prison at Montgomery.—Ed.]

Three sheriff's deputies from whom the masked band seized Clark, A. T. Harden, sixteen, and Dan Pippen jr., eighteen, as the three were being transferred to Birmingham early on Sunday, also were expected to be called before the grand jury before it completes its work. Harden and Pippen were the Negroes lynched.

In charging the grand jury, Judge Foster declared that "lynching by mobs is murder."

"Mob violence is the greatest enemy to the orderly process of the law," the court said. "It represents vicious disregard for the processes as they have been worked out by civilized peoples through hundreds of years of patient and conscientious effort.

"The most extreme form of mob violence is lynching. . . . No modern community can afford to tolerate lynchings. . . . No sovereign state can allow such a violation of its peace and dignity to go unpunished."

The grand jury then began its investigation under the direction of Thomas E. Knight jr., Attorney General, and Edward De Graffenreid, Circuit Solicitor.

In an interview represented as having been obtained from Clark by a reliable authority, an account of the lynching was published by "The Tuscaloosa News." The paper said the Negro corroborated statements of the three officers that two carloads of men overpowered them at the point of guns and took the prisoners.

Clark said he and the other two Negroes, handcuffed together, were driven several miles to a woods, where they were lined up and shot. Clark said he fell beneath the bodies of Harden and Pippen with bullet wounds in his left arm, left shoulder and right hip. He said he lay still until the men left, then "prayed to the Lord to tell me what to do."

After wandering all day Sunday and Sunday night, Clark said, he came upon a Negro house near Vance yesterday and there he received food and dressed the wounds in his left arm, left shoulder and right thigh. He told his interviewer he wanted to come on to town yesterday and surrender to officers but was too weak from loss of blood. The Negro said he would not be able to recognize any members of the band because they were all masked.

Appeal to Roosevelt Planned

A committee was being formed yesterday under the auspices of the National Scottsboro Action Committee, the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, and the American Civil Liberties Union to present to President Roosevelt a demand for immediate action in Tuscaloosa, Ala., to force the arrest of Judge Henry B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin in connection with the lynching of two Negroes on Sunday and to provide safeguards for the prisoners still in Tuscaloosa jail.

N. Y. HERALD

AUG 23 1933

Sheriff Defies 30 at Jail, Protects Negro Prisoner

Lynch Party Threatens to Return 'Thousand Strong'

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 22 (AP).—A second unsuccessful attempt to seize Thomas Brown, Negro, charged with attacking a white woman at Decatur, was made at the Madison County jail late today and the group of thirty men left declaring they would return "a thousand strong" tonight and get the prisoner.

Wardens said they recognized members of the group as residents of Decatur. The mob approcahed the entrance to the jail from three directions and demanded permission to enter.

Upon being refused admission, the wardens said the group left, threatening to return later tonight "a thousand strong" to take Brown, who was brought to the jail from Decatur last night.

Sheriff Ben F. Giles immediately ordered all his deputies on duty and announced that his entire force would stand guard armed with shotguns, pistols and tear gas bombs.

Brooklyn, N. Y. Eagle

AUG 23 1933

Armed Patrols Guard Negro From Lynchers

Huntsville, Ala., Aug. 23 (AP)—Patrols armed with guns and tear gas guarded the Madison County Jail today against a promised third attempt to mob a Negro charged with attacking a white woman. The second time the unsuccessful visitors left the jail with a declaration they would return "a thousand strong" to get the prisoner.

NEW YORK MIRROR

AUG 23 1933

MOB TRIES TO LYNCH NEGRO HELD IN JAIL

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 22.—An attempt to lynch Tom Brown, 23-year-old Negro charged with assaulting a Decatur white woman, was thwarted by local officers here today when three automobile loads of Morgan County citizens attempted to gain entrance to the jail here where the Negro is being held for safe-keeping.

TRANSFER BUNGLED
LYNCHING SURVIVOR

Elmer Clark, Protected by National Guardsmen, Not Molested As He Arrives In Birmingham.

Courier
8-26-33
Pittsburgh, Pa.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 24—Elmer Clark, lone survivor in another "Alabama Tragedy," which saw 18-year-old Dan Pippen Jr. and 16-year-old A. T. Hardin done to death by a white mob on a lonely road near Tuscaloosa, is being guarded here today, subject to being removed to the Kilby State prison at Montgomery.

Lodged in the jail hospital ward, and constantly watched by National Gaurdsmen, [illegible] length of his harrowing two days and nights of terror spent in the backwoods near Tuscaloosa after he had escaped from the automobile carrying the three prisoners to jail and bungled a triple lynching.

And today Alabama is once again under fire. Home state of the Scottsboro travesty, with the eyes of the entire civilized world upon them, accusations are being made that the sheriff and other officers sworn to defend and uphold the law were in league with the lynchers. The manner in which the second car, sent along with the first to protect the youth was sent back, is questioned. The authority of the sheriff in removing the lads is questioned. And the lack of any effort to defend the youths is being questioned. They're asking for the heads of those in whose safekeeping the boys were placed.

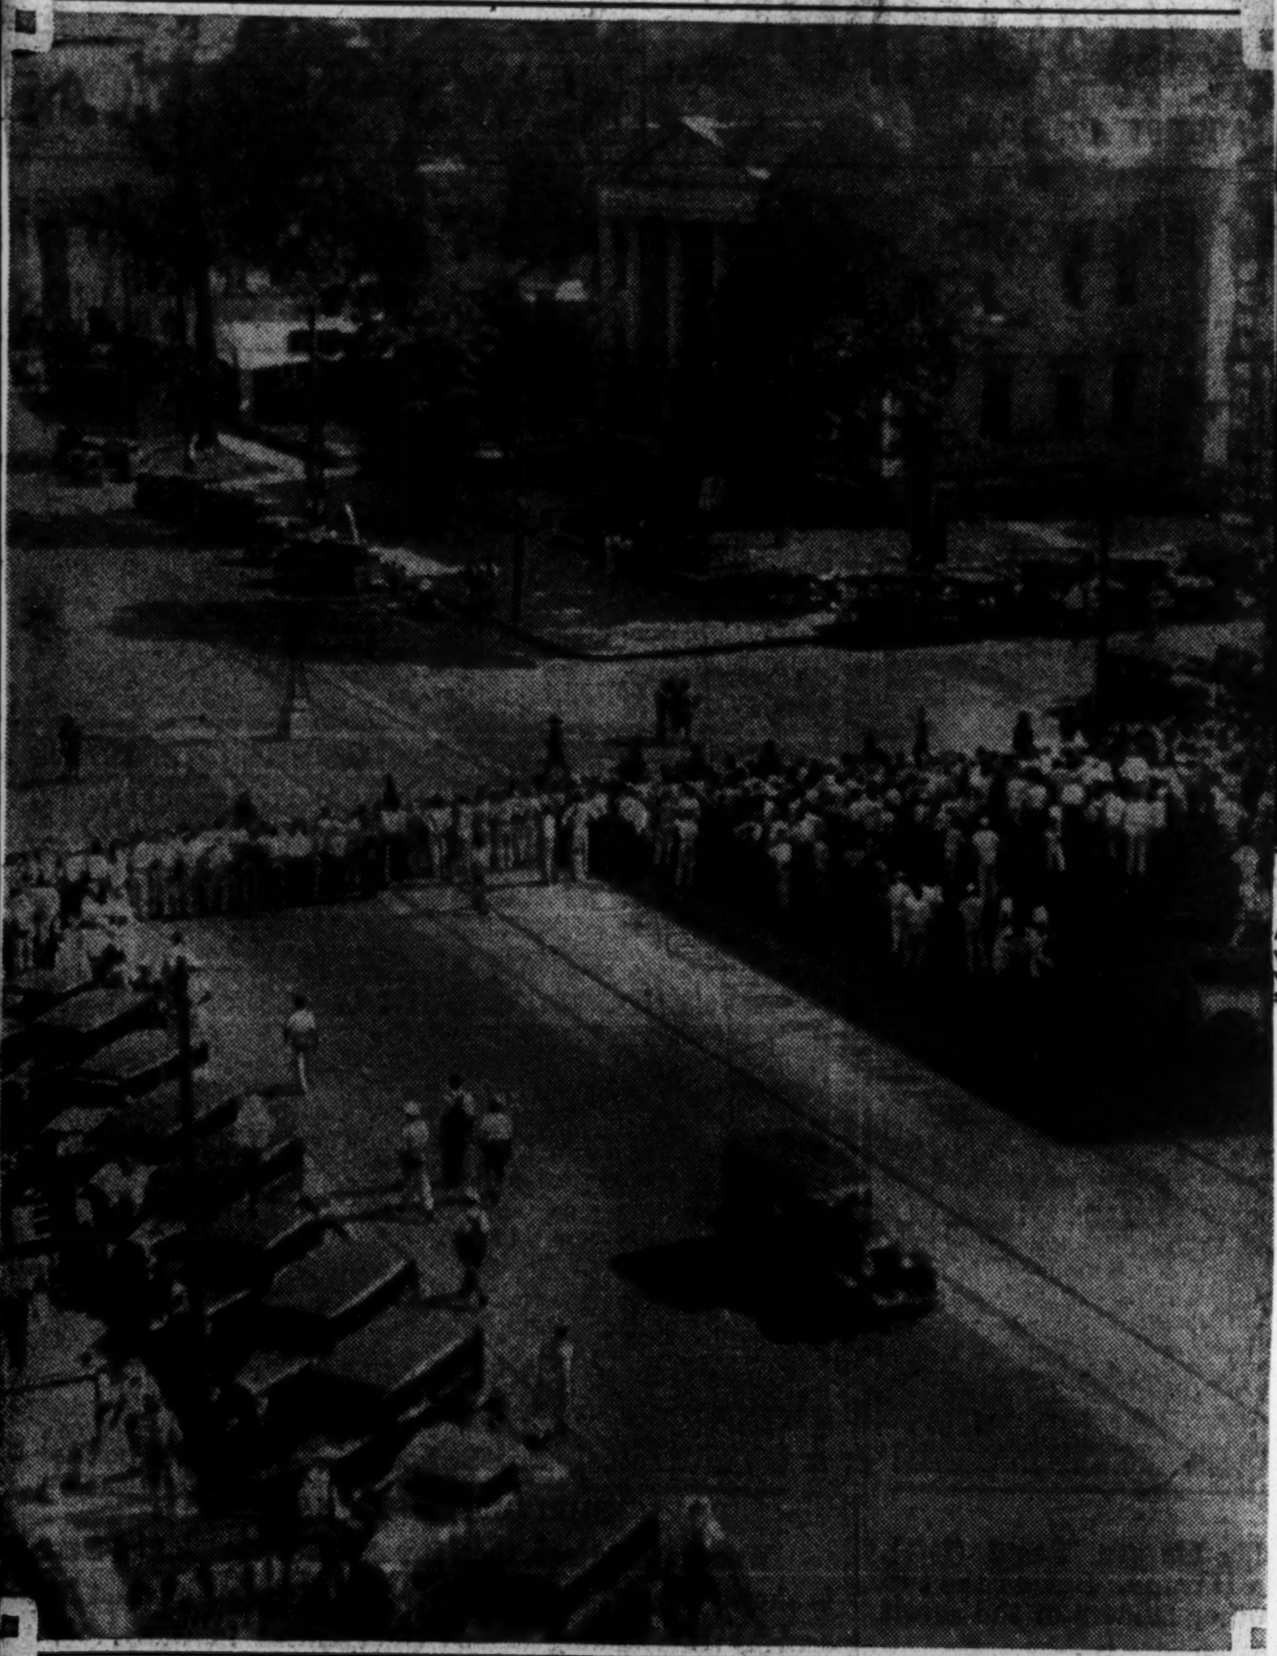
Meanwhile, Birmingham goes along about its business, unperturbed. There was no demonstration and no disorder when Clark, under indictment on a charge of slaying 21 year old Vaudine Maddox, arrived here.

The general opinion seems to be that the guilt of the remaining victim must be proven.

New York Evening Journal

AUG 17 1933

Holding Back Lynch-Bent Mob



Alabama National Guardsmen, aided by barbed wire, are shown holding back the crowds that tried to enter the Tuscaloosa County Courthouse, as Elmore Clark, Negro, testified before the Grand Jury investigation into he murder of a white girl. The two other Negroes who were accused of the girl's death, were captured by a blood-thirsty crowd and shot to death. Picture from International

---

VICTIM OF LYNCHERS

Defender 8-19-33

Chicago, Illinois.

ELMORE CLARK

Taken from the unwilling hands of Sheriff R. L. Shamblin of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Elmore Clark, 18-year-old farm laborer, was lynched by a mob of well-known citizens near Woodstock. Five others met death with Clark, who was accused of murdering a white girl, latest reports of which state she was slain by a jealous lover. —Photo by International Newsreel.

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

4407

Alabama

Sumter, S. C., Item
August 23, 1933

Alabama Sheriff Halts Lynching Mob

Huntsville, Ala., Aug. 23—(AP)—Sheriff Ben F. Giles of Madison county early yesterday thwarted an attempt by a group of 40 men to seize Thomas Brown, negro brought here for safekeeping after being identified as the attacker of a white woman at Decatur.

Forewarned that the gruop was coming here in eight or nine automobiles from Morgan county of which Decatur is the county seat, the sheriff said he was prepared for their arrival and escorted them back to the county line after they reached the city.

Giles said part of the group, occupying three automobiles succeeded in reaching the jail and attempted to enter on the pretext of bringing prisoners to be locked up.

The sheriff said the night warden, Sheriff Church, refused them admittance.

A search of the group, Giles said, disclosed a number of pistol in their possession. They too, were escorted to the county line and told not to return.

NEW YORK WORLD—Telegram
AUG 22 1933

FOILS ALABAMA MOB

Sheriff Saves Decatur Negro from Band of Forty.

By the Associated Press.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 22.—Sheriff Ben F. Giles of Madison County early today thwarted an attempt by a group of forty men to seize Thomas Brown, Negro, brought here for safekeeping after being identified as the attacker of a white woman at Decatur.

Forewarned that the group was coming here by automobile from Morgan County, of which Decatur is the county seat, the Sheriff said he was prepared for their arrival and escorted them back to the county line.

4407

New York Evening Journal
AUG 22 1933

NEW LYNCHING THREAT FOILED

DECATOR, Ala., Aug 22.—Fearing another lynching, officers today transferred Tom Brown, a Negro, to the Morgan County jail after the man had been arrested for allegedly attacking Mrs. George Dugger, mother of seven children.

The attack aroused feeling to a high pitch, coming as it did only a few weeks after the asserted attack of three Negroes upon Vaudine Maddox of Tuscaloosa, a 16-year-old white girl.

Mrs. Dugger identified Brown after a posse had captured him. She said the Negro threatened her with a knife and forced her to go with him to a nearby field.

THWART NEGRO LYNCHING.

Two Alabama Sheriffs Block Attempted Mob Violence.

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 22 (AP).—Thomas Brown, a Negro, identified as the attacker of a white woman here, was held for safe keeping in Huntsville jail today as Judge James E. Horton called the grand jury to meet Monday to investigate the attack.

Brown was arrested two hours after the woman reported she was attacked near her home. The Negro was spirited away last night.

A crowd which congregated at the jail dispersed after officers permitted some of them to go through the prison to convince them that Brown was not there.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 22 (AP).—Sheriff Ben F. Giles of Madison County early today thwarted an attempt by forty men to seize Thomas Brown, Negro brought here for safe keeping after being identified as the attacker of a white woman at Decatur.

Forewarned that the group was coming here by automobile from Morgan County of which Decatur is the county seat, the Sheriff said he was prepared for their arrival and escorted them back to the county line after they reached the city.

Advertiser
Montgomery, Ala
8-23-33

COMMENDABLE

Sheriff Ben F. Giles has set an example—though by no means a precedent—for Alabama law enforcement officers.

The Madison Sheriff had in his custody a Negro charged with attacking a white woman. A mob of about 40 men from the victim's home in an adjoining county attempted to seize the Negro.

Sheriff Giles, forewarned, met the mob several miles from the city and escorted it back to the county line.

The Sheriff also took additional precautions. He saw that the jail in which the Negro was held prisoner was well guarded by National Guardsmen before leaving.

Advertiser
8-23-33
Montgomery, Ala

Madison Sheriff Saves Attacker From Two Mobs

First Group Met At County Line By Officers And Sent Back To Decatur

Jail Guard Doubled

Second Band Is Repulsed At Jail, But Promises To Return Later For Negro

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Two mobs attempted unsuccessfully today to take a negro charged with attacking a white woman from the Madison County jail and one of the groups left threatening to return tonight "a thousand strong" to make another effort to get the prisoner.

Immediately after the second attempt was turned back and the 30 members of the group left with a declaration they would try again tonight, Sheriff Ben Giles ordered all his deputies on duty and placed them on guard about the jail, equipped with pistols, rifles, and tear gas bombs, while National Guardsmen stood by, ready for action on a moment's notice.

The second mob, which threatened to return, had not put in an appearance late tonight, as a heavily armed guard patrolled the jail.

Sheriff Giles reported everything quiet at the jail, saying, however, that he was prepared for any eventuality.

"The negro is still in jail," he said, emphatically, "and I intend to see that he stays there."

The Sheriff added that he did not believe a third attempt would be made to take the prisoner during the night.

Closing in on the jail entrance from three directions wardens said, the group of 30, whom they recognized as residents of Decatur, appeared this afternoon demanding entrance after another band had been turned back early today.

All Deputies On Guard

Immediately upon the appearance of the second group and the threat to return, Sheriff Giles ordered his entire force into service and called upon Maj. Edwin Jones, commander of the local unit of the 127th Engineers, Alabama National Guard, to have his men ready for action at the first sign of trouble. Giles said his deputies would stand guard at the jail throughout the night.

Assembling his deputies quickly after receiving notice of the approach of the first group from the neighboring county of Morgan, of which Decatur is the seat, Sheriff Giles succeeded in turning back a portion of the party outside the city limits early today.

Three of the nine automobiles in which the men were traveling ran the Sheriff's blockade, however, and reached the jail, but were denied entrance by the night warden.

Sought To Enter Jail

The warden, Sherman Church, said the men attempted to enter on the pretext of having prisoners to be locked in and that they threatened to shoot him after he told them they must first get permission from the Sheriff.

As the party went off in search of Giles at a fictitious address given by Church, the night warden sent word to the Sheriff, who overtook the men and escorted them to the county line with a warning not to return.

Some in the party were reported by the Sheriff to have had handkerchiefs about their necks, apparently to be used as masks. Otherwise, he said, they were unmasked.

The negro, Thomas Brown, 23, was identified by Mrs. George Dugger, mother of seven children, as the negro who held a knife at her throat and attacked her at Decatur yesterday. Brown was brought here after a crowd assembled at the Morgan County Jail, in Decatur, last night.

Grand Jury To Meet

Judge James Horton today ordered the Grand Jury to meet at Decatur Monday to investigate the attack and the killing of James Royal, another negro, near where Brown was arrested.

A coroner's jury returned a finding that Royal "came to his death at the hands of a person or persons unknown." Coroner Lewis Brown said testimony was presented the jury that indicated Royal was shot down from a passing auto. No clue that might lead to the identity of the occupants of the car was obtained.

The Coroner also said conflicting testimony was given regarding a report that a number of masked men visited a negro dance hall and ordered the dancers to leave shortly before the shooting of Royal, a block away.

The attempt to seize Brown was close on the heels of the lynching of two negroes and the wounding of a third by a mob in Tuscaloosa County, Aug. 13.

The three, Dan Pippen, Jr., A. T. Harden, and Elmore Clark, under indictment on a charge of assaulting and killing a white woman, were taken from Tuscaloosa County officers who were taking them to Birmingham for safekeeping. Pippen and Harden were lynched and Clark, now held in jail at Montgomery, was wounded.

Troops Guarded Clark

Troops were called out at Tuscaloosa to guard Clark when he was found at the home of a negro farmer near where he and the other two prisoners were lined up by the masked band and shot.

Judge Horton, who today ordered the Grand Jury investigation of the attack and the killing of the negro at Decatur, was in the news recently when he reversed the conviction and death sentence imposed by a Morgan County jury on Heywood Patterson, one of the nine negroes in the Scottsboro case, charged with attacking two white women.

The trial of Patterson was the first in the Scottsboro case to be held under order of the United States Supreme Court, which reversed death sentences imposed on seven of the nine defendants convicted on a charge of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, Huntsville cotton mill workers, aboard a freight train in Jackson County, March 25, 1931. The two other defendants in the case were held to be juveniles.

Patterson's third trial is scheduled to be held before Judge Horton at Decatur during the Fall term of court, scheduled for October.

The International Labor Defense furnished counsel for the negroes in the Scottsboro case and also for negro defendants in the Tallapoosa County racial disturbance several months ago, when county deputies were shot by negroes gathered at the home of a negro whose livestock the officers sought to attach.

An effort by the I. L. D. to enter the Tuscaloosa case as counsel for Pippen when his trial was called several weeks ago was unsuccessful, the Court directing them to withdraw upon the request of Pippen.

Advertiser
8-23-33
Montgomery, Ala

Telegraph
8-23-33
Macon, Ga.

PEACE OFFICERS ROUT TWO MOBS

Would-Be Lynchers Dispersed When They Try to Take Negro From Huntsville Jail

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 22 (AP) Two mobs seeking the same Negro were dispersed here today by peace officers.

But their members threatened to return tonight "a thousand strong" and get Thomas Brown, charged with criminally assaulting a white woman in Decatur.

The answer of Sheriff Ben Giles was a command that all his deputies stand guard and swing into action at the first sign of volence. The officers were armed with shotguns, pistols and tear gas bombs. Some of the mob members were armed with pistols.

National guardsmen were told to stand by.

Late tonight members of the second mob had not put in their promised appearance and Sheriff Giles reported everything quiet at the jail.

"The Negro is still in jail and I intend to see that he stays there," Sheriff Giles said.

Giles thwarted an attempt of a mob to get Brown early today after the Negro was brought here for safe keeping. Nine automobile loads of men came to town. Giles escorted six loads back to the county line. Three loads got to the jail and sought admittance on the pretext of bringing a prisoner. The night warden refused to let them in. Giles heard about the group and escorted it to the county line.

Late this afternoon another mob came to the jail and demanded that they be allowed to see the Negro. The demand was ignored, and the men went away threatening to return tonight and get Brown.

Brown Arrested Monday

Brown was arrested yesterday soon after a white woman at Decatur reported she had been assaulted. That's the same little north Alabama city where the retrial of the famous Scottsboro case was held. Judge James E. Horton, the judge who granted one of the Scottsboro principles a new trial after his second conviction, called the grand jury into session beginning next Monday to investigate the assault.

James Royal, another Negro, was shot to death last night near the scene where Brown was arrested. A coroner's jury decided he came to his death at hands of persons unknown and the coroner said testimony was given at the hearing that Royal was shot down by men in a passing automobile.

A crowd gathered at the Decatur jail last night, but dispersed when authorities allowed some of its members to go through the jail and satisfy themselves that Brown was not there.

The Negro had been spirited to this city.

MOB SPIRIT IN ALABAMA

Advertiser

8-24-33

Montgomery, Ala

On the heels of the Tuscaloosa lynchings came the attempts of mobsmen to seize a Negro prisoner in Madison County.

These outbursts of passion must receive the condemnation of every conscientious Alabamian who respects law and order and who hates rule by irresponsible mobs.

Commenting on the outbursts, The Birmingham Age-Herald says: "Almost one is led to say that a lynching wave is sweeping the State. It is as though, after having gone far toward freeing itself of the monster of mob law, Alabama is receding into a condition of riotous savagery. It is as though the Tuscaloosa episode had released pent-up passion to make a shambles of relations between the races. Enlightened Alabamians, facing this ghastly business, will have to draw liberally upon their spiritual powers in order to avoid a defeatist attitude. Yet it is quite unthinkable that they will be willing to throw up the sponge. Because the situation is so ominous, brave and intelligent people will feel all the more keenly the need for an effective counter attack. Manifestly matters have reached the point where all the resources of sanity and civilization in Alabama must be thrown into a sterling effort to destroy the terror. That means that our law enforcement agencies must gird themselves with a zeal competence and boldness against which no mob can take a stand. That means that Gov. Miller should take cognizance of the frightful situation, spurring officials to the sternest performance of duty wherever the dignity of the law is threatened. That means that a slashing campaign against lynchings and lynchers should be launched, so that public opinion may be an active force not merely to condemn but to prevent the enormities of the mob."

Aware of sinister influences without the State, The Age-Herald, nevertheless concludes:

> This is not the hour for finding excuses. There is nothing that can be offered by way of extenuation for what happened in the Tuscaloosa case. There is nothing that can be offered by way of extenuation for what has happened in Morgan and Madison Counties. Pointing our fingers at the ILD will get us nowhere. The only way in which we can undo the damage which has been wrought, the only way in which we can square ourselves with our own conscience, is to conduct an unrelenting fight on those who have brought dishonor upon us and to shape such a way of life and thought among us that lynchers simply will not have a place in our scheme of things.
>
> To bring this about, we must have an upsurge of sentiment in support of law and order such as Alabama has never experienced. The public will must harden into a consistent repudiation of any resort to mob action. Sheriffs and police must take on a fresh and unremitting hostility toward the lynching evil. The state government must be ready to assure its responsibility in this connection, now that automobiles make it possible for lynchers to dash across county lines for the accomplishment of their ends. Finally, if new legislation, directed at fixing official accountability, should be necessary, Alabama must have with the least possible delay a law calculated to make resort to mob violence a grimly dangerous and costly thing to everyone concerned.

There is, of course, a Cause for the unfortunate mob spirit that has flared up in the two Alabama counties within the last two weeks. But there is no excuse.

Officials share the immediate responsibility for protecting prisoners from vengeful mobs.

But a heavier responsibility rests upon the respectable citizens of Alabama.

It is their duty to make known not only their distaste for lynchings and trial by mobsmen, not only the brutality of lynchings, but its fallacy as a means to "quick justice."

Unless a quick stop is put to such outbreaks as have been witnessed in Alabama recently it will be the fault not so much of the ignorant vigilantes who actually take the law into their own hands as it will be the fault of respectable, justice-loving people who fail to condemn lynch tactics openly and loudly.

No matter how much a criminal may deserve death for an atrocious offense—there is no crime which warrants trial and judgment by mobsmen.

FEAR THIRD ATTEMPT TO LYNCH ATTACKER

Commercial Appeal

Mob Seeking Negro Threatens to Return With Reinforcements

8-23-33

ALL DEPUTIES ARE ON DUTY

Memphis, Tenn

Militia Ready for Action—Suspect Identified as Attacker of Alabama Mother of Seven Children.

By The Associated Press.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 22.—Two mobs attempted unsuccessfully today to take a negro charged with attacking a woman from the Madison County jail and a third threatened to return "a thousand strong" tonight to get the prisoner.

Immediately after the second attempt was turned back and the 30 members of the group left with a declaration they would make another try tonight Sheriff Ben Giles ordered all his deputies on duty and placed them on guard about the jail equipped with pistols, rifles and tear gass bombs, while National Guardsmen stood by, ready for action on a moment's notice.

Closing in on the jail entrance from three directions, wardens said the group of 30, whom they recognized as residents of Decatur, appeared this afternoon demanding entrance after another band had been turned back early today.

Immediately upon the appearance of the second group and the threat to return, Sheriff Giles ordered his entire force into service, and called upon Maj. Edwin Jones, commander of the local unit of the 127th Engineers, Alabama National Guard, to have his men ready for action at the first sign of trouble. Giles said his deputies would stand guard at the jail throughout the night.

Assembling his deputies quickly after receiving notice of the approach of the first group from the neighboring county of Morgan, of which Decatur is the seat, Sheriff Giles succeeded in turning back a partion of the party outside the city limits early today.

Autos Run Blockade.

Three of the nine automobiles in which the men were traveling ran the sheriff's blockade, however, and reached the jail, but were denied admittance by the night warden.

The warden, Sherman Church, said the men attempted to enter on the pretext of having prisoners to be locked in, and that they threatened to shoot him after he told them they must first get permission from the sheriff.

As the party went off in search of Giles, at a fictitious address given by Church, the night warden contacted the sheriff, who overtook the men and escorted them to the county line with a warning not to return.

Some in the party were reported by the sheriff to have had handkerchiefs tied about their necks, apparently to be used as masks.

The negro, Thomas Brown, 23, was identified by Mrs. George Dugger, mother of seven children, as the negro who held a knife at her throat and attacked her at Decatur yesterday. Brown was brought here after a crowd assembled at the Morgan County jail in Decatur last night.

Convenes Grand Jury.

Judge James E. Horton today ordered the grand jury to meet at Decatur Monday to investigate the attack and the killing of James Royal, another negro, near where Brown was arrested.

A coroner's jury returned a finding that Royal "came to his death at the hands of a person or persons unknown." Coroner Lewis Brown said testimony was presented the jury that indicated Royal was shot down from a passing automobile. No clue that might lead to the identity of the occupants of the car was obtained.

The coroner also said conflicting testimony was given regarding a report that a number of masked men visited a negro dance hall and ordered the dancers to leave shortly before the shooting of Royal, a block away.

The attempt to seize Brown followed close on the heels of the lynching of two negroes and the wounding of a third by a mob in Tuscaloosa County, Aug. 13.

The three, Dan Pippen, Jr., A. T. Harden and Elmore Clark, under indictment on a charge of killing a woman, were taken from Tuscaloosa County officers hurrying them to Birmingham for safekeeping. Pippen and Harden were lynched and Clark now held in jail at Montgomery was wounded.

Judge Horton who today ordered the grand jury of the attack and the killing of the negro at Decatur, was in the news recently when he reversed the conviction and death sentence imposed by a Morgan County jury on Heywood Patterson, one of the nine negroes in the Scottsboro case, charged with attacking two women.

The trial of Patterson was the first in the Scottsboro case to be held under order of the United States Supreme Court which reversed death sentences imposed on seven of the nine defendants convicted on a charge of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, Huntsville cotton mills workers, aboard a freight train in Jackson County, March 25, 1931. The two other defendants in the case were held to be juveniles.

The International Labor Defense furnished counsel for the negroes in the Scottsboro case and also for negro defendants in the Tallapoosa County racial disturbance participated several months ago when county deputies were shot by negroes gathered at the home of a negro whose live stock the officers sought to attach.

An effort by the I. L. D. to enter the Tuscaloosa case as counsel for Pippen when his trial was called several weeks ago, was unsuccessful the court directing them to withdraw upon the request of Pippen.

Lynchings-1933 I

Alabama

Prevented

4408

4408

Solicitor Saves Negro, Foiling Deatsville Mob

Advertiser

Object Of Crowd's Wrath Had Thrown Conductor From L. And N. Freight

8-4-33

50 Brandish Guns

Montgomery. Ala.

Huddleston Sees Scuffle And Captures Attacker; Puts Him Safely In Jail

DEATSVILLE, ALA., Aug. 3.—(Special)—Quick thinking on the part of Winston Huddleston, solicitor for the 19th Judicial Circuit, probably saved the life of George Smith, 28-year-old negro hobo, here this morning when an armed mob of about 50 persons tried to take the negro after he had attacked an L. and N. freight train conductor, beat him over the head and hurled him from the train.

The Solicitor out-talked the mob, whisked the negro away in an automobile and turned him over to John Golden, sheriff of Elmore County. Tonight the negro was in the jail at Wetumpka charged with assault to murder.

The conductor, J. T. Montgomery, of Deatsville, received two deep gashes on the head and face when the negro struck him after the conductor had ordered him to move on up the train closer to the engine. The conductor was treated by a doctor here.

Witnesses Attack

Solicitor Huddleston was seated on the porch of a store in Deatsville near the railroad track when a Southbound freight train switched to a siding. Just as the train started to pull out, the Solicitor and others noticed a negro beating a white man. Later they learned that the white man was Montgomery, 60-year-old conductor of the train.

When the negro jumped from the train and fled, the Solicitor, with Paul Nixon, Ben Roy and Henry Huie, all of Deatsville, got into an automobile and took a short cut in an attempt to head off the negro. The car was abandoned, however, and they pursued the negro on foot, chasing him through a cemetery and across a field until the negro finally threw up his hands and surrendered.

The Solicitor and the three other men loaded the negro into the automobile and drove to the postoffice here, where they were met by a shouting mob. Pistols and shotguns were brandished and cries of "we don't like the Scottsboro and Tuscaloosa justice!" were heard.

Solicitor Huddleston said that guns appeared from everywhere and that the crowd demanded that the negro be released to them. Nixon, 21-year-old Deatsville youth, and Huie stood by the Solicitor and helped keep the mob away from the negro. Witnesses said that the Solicitor pleaded with the crowd to allow him to turn the negro over to the Sheriff. Finally the Solicitor forced the negro into his car and drove to the doctor's office so that the injured conductor could identify him. There they were met by another crowd of armed men who demanded possession of the negro, but the Solicitor out-talked them again and drove away with the negro to meet Sheriff Golden.

Assailant Identified

The Conductor positively identified the Smith negro as the one who struck him, Mr. Huddleston said, and the negro himself admitted striking the elderly man, saying that he did not know that Montgomery was the conductor of the train. Others of the train crew said that the negro knew Montgomery was the conductor and that the negro had been ordered to leave the train.

Smith told officers and Mr. Huddleston that he lived in Montgomery, and that he had been to Birmingham and back on the freight train. The negro has served a prison term for knifing his wife, officials said.

It developed that the conductor had gone to the rear of the train, where several hoboes were congregated, to order them up to the front, nearer the engine, when the attack took place that the Solicitor and others witnessed from the porch of the store.

After the negro had been captured, many of these hoboes remained seated on a car. Some member of the crowd spotted them and led a surging charge toward the railroad car. The hoboes jumped from the car and fled to the woods.

During the time that the negro was in custody of the Solicitor at the postoffice and doctor's office, armed citizens approached the negro, shook guns under his face and struck at him. The Solicitor and his assistants had a busy time protecting the negro, witnesses said.

A preliminary hearing has not been set for the negro.

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald
August 3, 1933

Most Unfortunate

Conflicting reports touching the attitude of crowds in and near Tuscaloosa toward the New York lawyers who sought to force themselves into the trial of the Negro Pippin in that city make it fairly plain that these I. L. D. representatives moved in an atmosphere of menace until they reached Birmingham. The fact that they had to be given military protection is highly significant. Manifestly feeling had risen against these intruders until, in the opinion of the presiding judge, they stood in genuine danger.

That is something to be deplored. Irritating as the presence of these attorneys must have been, Alabamians had reason to expect from a community like Tuscaloosa a self-discipline not to be found in settings less hallowed by learning and culture. Even the threat of mob violence hardly goes with what this university town stands for in the admiration of the state. It is vastly regrettable that, following Judge Foster's refusal to let these attorneys interfere, smoldering passion should have burst forth into what might have been a searing flame.

If that can be said, it is no less clear that the I. L. D. spokesmen were outright trespassers. They had bumptiously thrust themselves into a situation where they did not belong. Their proffered contract of employment was specifically denied by the prisoner and his parents, the only persons who had a right to retain counsel. Never was there a more indisputable case of cheeky intrusion upon the administration of justice in Alabama. If proof was required that the I. L. D. is engaged in fomenting racial bitterness to feather its own nest, we have it in this patent attempt at encroachment.

Messrs. Schwob and Taub can now pose as the near-victims of a Southern mob. Their experience may be interpreted elsewhere as additional evidence of Southern savagery. For making possible such a conclusion, we must thank the hotheads at Tuscaloosa who played so handsomely into the hands of the I. L. D. and its sympathizers. But it takes more than such an unfortunate development to justify the persistent goading of this state by trouble-makers, of whom it can be said that the pretense of helping the Negro is but a mask for a conspiracy to stir up discord looking to class war and general anarchy.

Savannah, Ga. Press
August 2, 1933

THE ALABAMA MOB.

The uprising of the people around Tuscaloosa is to be deplored, of course.

Free speech and the appearance of counsel are in no way to be obstructed. The people have been outraged by the appearance of hired counsel for outside defense to defend the three negroes for murdering a young white girl. This is not the Scottsboro case, but the feeling of the community was intensified by the development in that notorious trial.

At the same time it is difficult to understand why the circuit judge should have ruled that the negroes could be represented only by local counsel. This was a protest, of course, against the movement of outsiders to defend culprits in the Alabama courts.

The young woman was found assaulted and beaten to death in a secluded spot and the uprising of the people was a protest against outside interference. The three attorneys of the International Labor Defense narrowly escaped violence and were only rescued by the military from the violence of the mob. Even those people, however, who sympathised with the community spirit cannot defend this action of the irate crowd or this ruling of the circuit judge who sought to limit the defense of the prisoners.

Alabama should recognize that the prisoners are entitled to counsel whether they are confined to that state or are drawn from other sources. Every man accused has a right to a hearing and the action of the mob yesterday around Tuscaloosa caused a postponement of the trial and in the end may defeat the enforcement of justice.

This only goes to sustain some complaints which have been lodged against the South, we fear.

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald
August 2, 1933

Sinister

Three Negroes are being tried in Tuscaloosa for the murder of a white woman. They were to have been represented by some of the best legal talent of that community. But such an arrangement would not have profited the I. L. D. at all. So a lawyer from Birmingham, retained by this exploiting organization, Tuesday made his appearance at the trial, asking for a continuance, on the ground that he and his New York associates, whose names have become familiar to the people of Alabama, had not had an opportunity to confer with one of the defendants.

Rounding out his article, "Scottsboro, the Third Crusade," in The American Review, Prof. Frank L. Owsley said that had an Alabamian represented the Negro tried at Decatur, the jury would in all probability have brought in a different verdict. That conclusion had been reached by most thoughtful observers. The policy of gratuitous irritation pursued by defendant's counsel, fresh from the sidewalks of New York and absorbed in tactics calculated to injure his client's case, had its inevitable effect. One gathers that the same premeditated opening of wounds is in prospect at Tuscaloosa, unless somehow intruders can be kept out of the case.

No one wishes to deprive these darkies of the most skillful and impressive defense which can be mustered in their behalf. When Alabamians read that John D. McQueen, retiring president of the Alabama Bar Association, was associated with counsel for the Negroes, they must have realized that Tuscaloosa was prepared to do its level best to make of these proceedings a test of Southern justice. To learn that this fine plan is in danger of being frustrated by the interference of agencies which are exclusively concerned with stirring up bitterness for the forwarding of their own malignant purposes is profoundly disheartening to all who recognize the delicacy of a situation which has been brought about by the sinister activities of the I. L. D.

Charleston, S. C., News & Courier
August 3, 1933

THey Are Natural Allies

No excuse can be offered for the mob of two thousand white people who, at Tuscaloosa, Alabama, threatened bodily harm to three lawyers of the International Labor Defense. The lawyers were aiding in the defense of two negroes, who were to be tried on charges of criminal assault.

Any lawyer in the United States has a right to practice in the courts of other states after admission to them and it is for the courts to see that he does not transgress the rules of propriety.

No lawyer of New York or other foreign city can by anything that he may say seriously damage public order in Alabama. It is stupid for Alabamians to resent the presence and utterances of these visitors, whether or not they represent a communistic or other silly organization.

The freedom of speech ought not to be denied a New Yorker in Alabama, and if an Alabamian would go into that part of New York city known as Harlem and defend lynching he should be heard for his absurd and infamous cause.

One recalls that governors of Southern states have defended lynching. Properly and severely they were condemned for it, but no one suggested that they be mobbed.

In truth, the representatives of the International Labor Defense and the members of the Alabama mob should be friends. Their ultimate purposes are identical. The Communists work for the destruction of existing law, though they would use it for their immediate purposes. These people defending Alabama negroes are not interested to save the negroes. They would have the negroes, as Mr. Elmer Davis has said in a recent article, martyred. They need martyrs. Despite their resort to Alabama law they wish to have it lynched.

The Alabama mob would destroy the law, and therefore is in complete sympathy with the Communists.

If the mob in Tuscaloosa had captured and assaulted the lawyers it would have been a signal victory for the International Labor Defense.

Whether or not there be a perfect understanding between the Alabama mob and the defenders of the negroes, their "cooperation" for results is well nigh perfect.

The persons most likely to suffer, are of course, negroes in Alabama.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
August 3, 1933

FOR JUSTICE, CALL OFF THE BELLED BUZZARDS

Dan Pippen, Jr., is an 18-year-old Negro on trial in Tuscaloosa, on charges of assaulting and murdering a white girl.

Two other Negroes are being tried for the same offense. But today we are concerned with the case of Dan Pippen.

This youth is charged with a crime for which the death penalty may be given in Alabama—as in most States.

The people of Alabama, through their courts, have only one interest in the trial of Dan Pippen. If he is guilty as charged the people want him punished as a jury sees fit.

If Dan Pippen is not guilty the people want the boy acquitted, and they want a continued search for the guilty person or persons.

Pippen's interest in the case is of more vital interest—to Pippen.

He is facing death.

The Negro, whether innocent or guilty, wants to save his own life. Right now nothing else matters. He does not want to sit in the electric chair at Kilby Prison.

Pippen does not want to be a martyr.

But Pippen is by way of becoming a martyr against his will. He is about to become a martyr because of the interference of organizations which hold "principle" above the value of human life.

Yesterday the Negro and his parents made it known that they had not retained three aggressive attorneys representing the International Labor Defense League who had thrown their brief cases on the defendent's table.

The Negro and his parents made it plain that they wanted counselors who would protect the interest of their client. They made it plain that they did not wish to risk the Negro's neck in the hands of men whose controlling purpose is to place the case in the headlines of the nation's newspapers, to foment hatred among the people living here and against the people living here—even at the price of human life.

The court has ruled out the attorneys retained by the International Labor Defense League, as courts would rule out any lawyer attempting to "defend" a prisoner against the prisoner's will.

But the ILD scavengers are not through with this case.

They have made their first point. They have succeeded in arousing the resentment of Tuscaloosa citizenry

The next move will be a barnstorming tour of the country, sobbing songs of oppression, preaching hatred, spreading lies—all in the name of Principle.

In describing such cattle as the International Labor Defense League hatred-distillers, Elmer Davis writes in this month's Harper's Monthly: . . . "Persons of principle are usually more interested in the vindication of the principle than in the fate of the victim who happens to exemplify it."

Mr. Davis is writing of the zealous souls whose greatest passion is protesting—protesting for the sake of making martyrs of hapless individuals who are fighting for a life or for freedom.

But the ILD and kindred organizations which have sent evangels of hate into Alabama to arouse race prejudice, to make bigots, to manufacture fake martyrs, are without principle. They are without mercy or pity. They care not for saving the lives of their victims nor for human justice.

Alabamians must insist upon fair and just trials for the most humble.

But the people here will not be swayed from the course of justice out of fear of outside sentiment.

Alabama juries must find defendants innocent or guilty as the evidence dictates. They must not and they will not be swayed in either direction by outside interference.

But to the so-called liberals in the East and in the South we make this plea:

Make any sane investigation of Alabama courts you wish. Employ any competent, honest defense attorney needed by any defendant in an Alabama court who wants your help.

Look upon these cases as they are—as criminal trials in which only one question is to be settled, the guilt or the innocence of the defendant.

But in the name of common decency and justice to the respectable people of a sovereign State and to the men on trial, call off the belled buzzards whose only motive is to foment trouble!

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
August 2, 1933

LIBERAL PAPERS, PLEASE COPY

The Advertiser, during the last two years, has been a zealous student of unsalted propaganda intended to arouse oppression-complexes, and sectional and racial hatred.

Not that this paper's interest in the efforts of some groups to arouse passionate prejudices among people in Alabama and outside of Alabama, is new. Nothing of the kind.

The Advertiser for more than 100 years has fought prejudice and bigotry in Alabama. It will continue to do so.

We mention this in no boastful spirit, though this paper is proud of stands it has taken in the past. We merely mention it as a reminder to strangers and new friends and new enemies that this paper need not apologize for being what too many so-called liberal journals, including even some great Southern newspapers, have chosen to call "sectionally prejudiced."

True enough The Advertiser holds the interest of Alabama above that of any other State. It always has held the interests of the people here close to its heart. It intends to do so in the future.

But that same interest has been responsible for this paper's attack on homegrown bigotry through the tumultuous ante-bellum days when The Advertiser fought Know-Nothingism in Alabama. It has continued to do so up to the present time.

During the progress of the infamous Scottsboro case this paper believed that it was as capable of passing judgment on the trials as any other lay journal. And this paper believes that it was and is more capable of passing judgment on such cases in Alabama than any lay journal outside the State.

In the Scottsboro case and in other rape and murder trials in Alabama to which the International Labor Defense League has lent its helping hand, the press of the country, not excepting conscientious Southern papers in nearby States, has been harsh with the courts and people here.

The Nation, The New Republic and similar high-and-mighty liberal journals, and a few Harlem-inspired newspapers have been absurdly harsh in their condemnation.

But the press as a whole did not have and does not have any intention of being antagonistic toward the people in Alabama. Acting on available information, and spurred no doubt unconsciously by propaganda concocted by well-meaning sentimentalists and misinformed zealots as well as paid hate distillers, too much of the press either took much for granted or made hasty decisions in the Scottsboro and Decatur trials of the eight Negro rapists.

This was more to be regretted than resented.

There are, however, a few newspapers in the South—just as there are a few individuals—which have mistaken a yearning for applause for a sense of liberalism. These papers and these individuals think they are being courageous by taking a stand against their own people. Not that it does not take courage to point to the evils at home. It does take courage.

But sometimes it is hard to forsake applause from the sidelines. Sometimes it takes more courage to forsake applause from afar than it does to invite the displeasure of the home folks.

This week the Governor of Alabama sent National Guardsmen to Tuscaloosa to safeguard International Labor Defense attorneys who are defending three Negroes charged with raping and murdering a 16-year-old white girl.

To the liberal press we direct attention to this item.

How long will it be before the ILD penmen will be telling how it became necessary for State troops to be sent to guard lawyers who were trying to save the lives of innocent boys who were framed by the Alabama bigots?

How long will it be before lies, similar to the "Scottsboro" atrocity stories, will be heaped upon the people living in the East?

Now The Advertiser has not formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the three Negroes being tried in Tuscaloosa. That city is more than 100 miles from Montgomery. This paper has not yet investigated the case, and it would not care to pass judgment on a case which by all rights should be tried before a jury of 12 honest men who may hear and weigh the evidence.

Will the so-called liberal journals remain as unbiased?

It is feared that too many of them will not.

The people of Alabama have every reason to believe that the International Labor Defense League and the lawyers representing the league will throw as much mud against the map of the State as pos-

Lynchings-1933 II

Prevented

Alabama

4403

sible.

It has been done before.

The Advertiser, as an Alabama newspaper devoted to the interests of the people here, can only regret the possible unsalted propaganda which is swallowed by the Eastern press and the people of the East.

But The Advertiser, as will all law-abiding Alabamians who care for justice, will resent the lying propaganda which it expects once again will flow from the acid-dipped pens of the ILD slanderers.

Advertiser 8-2-33 Montgomery, Ala.

The conscientious liberals who endorse the sending of the ILD trouble-makers into Alabama are foolish.

This State is impatient with their tactics. A people can stand just so much unscrupulous, conscienceless slander.

Why should a Roman circus be made of every capital criminal case in Alabama by organizations which are concerned with the show and not the welfare of the men they pretend to defend?

Why should such buzzards flock to Alabama every time there is a criminal trial involving Negroes?

THE DIGNITY OF THE NATIONAL GUARD

Advertiser 8-5-33 Montgomery, Ala.

In a well-considered editorial, The Columbia State says in a recent issue:

> Never before in the United States was the National Guard so trained and equipped for practical effectiveness as it is today and its service has increasingly attracted in recent years an admirable type of personnel.
>
> But the attractiveness of the National Guard for the right sort of young men will rapidly decrease, if they shall see many more such instances as latterly of its prostitution to the purposes of partisan politics, as in Oklahoma, Georgia and Louisiana.
>
> Nothing in the spirit and intent of the law, making the National Guard within a State disposable by the Governor for certain domestic uses, contemplates that these citizen soldiers shall be in any circumstances pawns in local politics. Officers, especially, must have resented deeply the humiliating spectacle Governor Talmadge made of them in Georgia, in a row which the civil courts could and should have adjudicated.
>
> Governors should be the more careful not to misuse the National Guard, for the very reason that, whatever may be the opinions and feelings of its members, they must in actual practice obey, instantly, fully and without question, the orders of their commanders. True it is that their oath obliges them to obey only the "lawful" orders of their superiors; but it is contrary to good military usage that soldiers become habituated to scrutinizing for legality the orders they receive; under military law a strong presumption runs that an order is legal, and the soldier whatever his rank, who, regarding it as illegal, takes it upon himself to disobey, does so at his own considerable risk of conviction and punishment by courtmartial. science-stricken lieutenant was making restitution in the name of his distinguished relative.

Which reminds us that, so far as we can now recall, the National Guard of Alabama has never been cheapened by a gubernatorial demagogue. The Guard of this State has never yet been used for political purposes, as in Oklahoma, Georgia and Louisiana. We hope that our Guardsmen will continue to be spared that humiliation.

Alabama, by the way, has had many types of Governors, men of varying temperaments. Some of them were demagogues, but only mildly, and few of them have been cheap and blatant. The Advertiser does not recall any ruler of this State who has not had a certain respectable dignity, a certain sense of good taste, and for as far back as there is any record Alabama's Governors have been men who hated lynchers and were prepared at all times to put their weight against mobs—except masked mobs that flogged in the night time. Of that more later.

It has been necessary for The Advertiser to oppose with vigor some of the policies of many of Alabama's Governors during its long lifetime, which practically parallels the lifetime of the State; but as a scourge of lynchers and fools The Advertiser has never felt humiliated by the cheapness of any Governor that the people of this State have elected.

There has been a singular basic respectability in Alabama Governors. The Advertiser hopes that historians will give them credit for this, however sharply they may deal with some of our Governors for other shortcomings and failures. They have not been blatant agitators against the helpless, our native demagogy taking a different turn.

For example, we have not yet had a Governor who was not willing to defend Negroes ~~against~~ mobs. We have had no Governor ~~who was a "nigger-baiter,"~~ however weak some of them may have been in other directions.

Certainly we have had none who were ready to call out the guard to enforce a cheap political prejudice.

On the whole The Advertiser thinks that Alabama's Governors have been much above the order of Governors in many other States that it could mention.

Certainly our Governors have not yet cheapened the National Guard.

NASHVILLE, TENN.
EVE. TENNESSEAN

AUG 3 193

Alabama Tires of I. L. D.

Efforts of the International Labor Defense to create another "great cause" in Alabama seem to have been checked by the citizens of Tuscaloosa and surrounding territory.

Two negroes charged with murder and assault were entitled to any counsel of their choosing as their trial was scheduled to begin. But they did not desire aid from the I. L. D., and in this stand were backed by leading negro citizens of Alabama.

Thus, when the three New York attorneys sought to inject themselves into the case, they were ruled out by the court, which wisely delayed the trial indefinitely. Two of the visitors were fortunate to have the aid of officers in escaping violence at the hands of an angry gathering. They boarded a train to Birmingham, from whence they will return to New York. The third member is supposed to have departed separately.

It is a matter of general gratification that Alabama has escaped the onus of another lynching, but it is not difficult to understand the attitude of her people. With the rest of the country, they have come to the conclusion that the I. L. D. is interested in more than mere justice. The evidence is too clear that this organization is happiest when it has the opportunity to feed the flames of racial and social unrest. The time has come when intelligent negroes do not want its help.

The disappointed attorneys, upon their return to New York, may be expected to capitalize their adventures, but they will hardly overlook the obvious fact that Alabama justice is able to function without aid, advice or coercion from organizations whose motives are a matter of decided suspicion.

Spartanburg, S. C., Herald
August 4, 1933

An Enraged Public

In the trial of a case at Tuscaloosa, Ala., in which a negro was charged with the murder of a young woman, Judge Henry B. Foster ruled that the attorneys for the defense had not been retained by the defendant and he then indefinitely postponed the trial of the case.

The defense attorneys were Irving Schwab and Allan Taub of New York, and Frank B. Irvin of Birmingham, who represented the defendant in the Scottsboro, Ala., case. Public opinion was so aroused in Tuscaloosa by the appearance of the attorneys that they were given a National Guard escort to get them out of the city in safety.

Judge Foster no doubt did the only thing that could have been done under the circumstances. The negro could not have had a fair trial because of the attempted interference with justice by these societies in New York which seem to have taken upon themselves the task of interfering with the orderly processes of the courts in the South. It is said that these lawyers represent Communist groups and are not in any way associated with the groups formed for the advancement of the negro race. The three meddlesome attorneys were fortunate to have the protection of the governor of Alabama and its peace officers in making their departure from Tuscaloosa.

Eufaula, Ala., Tribune
August 5, 1933

I. L. D. NOT NEEDED

The negro of Alabama who is unfortunate enough to fall into the hands of the law makes matters worse when he permits an I. L. D. lawyer to force himself into his defense. The course followed at Scottsboro and Decatur branded them as unfit for courts of this state. By their own tirades they created a condition under which a fair trial was next to impossible.

The whites and blacks of Alabama understand each other, they know how to handle their own problems and they resent the interference of outside "counsel." The other day in Tuscaloosa, two of these "defenders" appeared in court, stating that they had been employed to represent a negro defendant. The negro knew nothing about their coming, his parents denied employing them to defend their son, saying they had placed the case with a local law firm. Judge Foster, presiding, promptly ruled the intruders out of his court and continued the case until another jury can be drawn and the trial proceed without the presence of the militia. This was a wise step—for the negro and all concerned. Commenting on the action of the Tuscaloosa jurist, the Opelika News says:

When the family of the young negro facing murder charge at Tuscaloosa and the defendant himself declared they had not authorized certain "outside" lawyers to appear in defense, and Judge Henry B. Foster, presiding jurist, indefinitely postponed the trial, what would likely have proved a certain unfair trial was averted and the case will await proper attention at the proper time. Of course, the defendant, if guilty, will be found so, but he most assuredly will have a fairer trial than could have been hoped for had the case proceeded this week.

If the negroes of Alabama and the south who "run into trouble" will but use common sense and not allow themselves to be swayed by selfseeking influences from other sections, they will fare much better in the courts of the realms

---

Scottsboro, Ala., Age
August 3, 1933

Lawyers Fight Blocks Negro Murder Trial

Argument Develops Before Jury As To Attorneys For Defendants

An indefinite postponement of the trial of Dan Pippin Jr., 18 year-old negro on charges of slaying Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21, was granted Tuesday by Judge Henry B. Foster after an argument developed before the jury as to attorneys retained in the case.

Judge Foster did not rule as to which attorneys who had jurisdiction in the case, although Pippen, his father, Dan Pippen, Sr. and his mother Lucindy Pippen, were placed on the stand by Charles La France and Jacob McGuire to testify that they had bee retained.

Frank B. Irvin, of Birmingham who said he was retained by the International Labor Defense and had been authorized to act by Lucindy Pippen, had raised the question at the outset of the case.

Shown a document Irvin had presented in court purportedly signed by Lucindy Pippen authorizing his act for her son, the woman denied ever having seen it before.

All three of the Pippens testified they wished La France and McGuire with the three attorneys appointed by the court to conduct the defense of the negro.

Irvin old the court he held no authority to act for Elmore (Honey) Clark and that he had not talked with him.

Irvin, accompanied by Irvin Schwab and Allan Taub, both of New York and associated in the 'Scottsboro case' defense appeared Tuesday as attorneys employed by the International Labor Defense.

Their right to appear, after Irvin had moved for a continuance on the grounds he and his associates had not been able to confer with Pippen was contested by La France and McGuire.

A detachment of 63 national guardsmen was mobilized at the request of Judge Fostter who announced it was soley to protect the I. L. D. lawyers, as there was no feeling locally against the negroes.

The trial of Clark likewise was postponed by Judge Foster. A. T. Harden, 15, third negro indicted in the case is a juvenile and under Alabama law must be taken before juvenile authorities.

John D. McQueen, former president of the Alabama Bar association, and Reuben Wright and Freeman Rice local attorneys were appointed to aid counsel retained by the negroes.

An appeal from 20 prominent negroes and ministers was made public however, asking ''outside interests'' not to interfere.

Dothan, Ala. Eagle
August 8, 1933

CALL OFF THE SCAVENGERS

(Montgomery Advertiser)

Dan Pippin, Jr., is an 18-year-old Negro on trial in Tuscaloosa, on charges of assaulting and murdering a white girl.

Two other Negroes are being tried for the same offense. But today we are concerned with the case of Dan Pippen.

This youth is charged with a crime for which the death penalty may be given in Alabama—as in most States.

The people of Alabama, through their courts, have only one interest in the trial of Dan Pippen. If he is guilty as charged the people want him punished as a jury sees fit. If Dan Pippen is not guilty the people want the boy acquitted, and they want a continued search for the guilty person or persons.

Pippen's interest in the case is of more vital interest—to Pippen.

He is facing death.

The Negro, whether innocent or guilty, wants to save his own life. Right now nothing else matters. He does not want to sit in the electric chair at Kilby Prison.

Pippen does not want to be a martyr.

But Pippen is by way of becoming a martyr against his will. He is about to become a martyr because of the interference of organizations which hold "principle" above the value of human life.

Yesterday the Negro and his parents made it known that they had not retained three aggressive attorneys representing the International Labor Defense League who had thrown their brief cases on the defendant's table.

The Negro and his parents made it plain that they wanted counselors who would protect the interest of their client. They made it plain that they did not wish to risk the Negro's neck in the hands of men whose controlling purpose is to place the case in the headlines of the nation's newspapers, to foment hatred among the people living here and against the people living here—even at the price of human life.

The court has ruled out the attorneys retained by the International Labor Defense League, as courts would rule out any lawyer attempting to "defend" a prisoner against the prisoner's will.

But the ILD scavengers are not through with this case.

They have made their first point. They have succeeded in arousing the resentment of Tuscaloosa citizenry.

The next move will be a barnstorming tour of the country, sobbing songs of oppression, preaching hatred, spreading lies—all in the name of Principle.

In describing such cattle as the International Labor Defense League hatred-distillers, Elmer Davis writes in this month's Harper's Monthly: . . . "Persons of principle are usually more interested in the vindication of the principle than in the fate of the victim who happens to exemplify it."

Mr. Davis is writing of the zealous souls whose greatest passion is protesting—protesting for the sake of making martyrs of hapless individuals who are fighting for a life or for freedom.

But the ILD and kindred organizations which have sent evangels of hate into Alabama to arouse race prejudice to make bigots, to manufacture make martyrs, are without principle. They are without mercy or pity. They care not for saving the lives of their victims nor for human justice.

Alabamians must insist upon fair and just trials for the most humble.

But the people here will not be swayed from the cours of justice out of fear of outside sentiment.

Alabama juries must find defendants innocent or guilty as the evidence dictates. They must not and will not be swayed in either direction by outside interference.

But to the so-called liberals in the East and the South we make this plea:

Make any sane investigation of Alabama courts you wish. Employ any competent, honest defense attorney needed by any defendant in an Alabama court, who wants your help.

Look upon these cases as they are—as criminal trials in which only one question is to be settled, the guilt or the innocence of the defendant.

But in the name of common decency and justice to the respectable people of a sovereign State and to the men on trial, call off the belled buzzards whose only motive is to foment trouble."

Lynchings- 1933
Presented.

Alabama

4409

Troops Halt Mob Bent On Lynching

Courier 2-4-33
Pittsburgh C/R

GENEVA, Ala., Feb. 1—National Guardsmen were called out Tuesday night to help the sheriff's deputies of Geneva county disperse a mob of several hundred people which surrounded the county jail after the arrest of Yank Thomas, who was charged with attacking a white woman.

The sheriff was tipped off that a mob would attempt to rush the jail and seize the prisoner, but when they gathered and found the deputies reinforced by the National Guardsmen, they soon disappeared. The feeling was still running high today and the sheriff placed extra officers around the jail.

Troops Guard Sleeping Negro In Jail At Geneva

Advertiser
1-25-33
Montgomery Ala.

GENEVA, ALA., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Sheriff's deputies reinforced by National Guardsmen last night dispersed a mob of several hundred men which surrounded the Geneva County Jail following the arrest of a negro charged with attacking a white woman.

Sheriff Driver, tipped a crowd would attempt to rush the jail and get the prisoner, had his deputies and the Guardsmen in readiness and the mob which gathered quickly dwindled away after milling about the jail for several minutes.

Feeling continued to run high today, the Sheriff reported, and extra officers were placed around the jail. Sheriff Driver said the negro, Yank Thomas, was the only prisoner to sleep through the excitement last night.

Negro Is Held For Attack At Geneva

Advertiser
1-24-33
Montgomery

GENEVA, ALA., Jan. 23.—(Special)—County officials indicated here tonight that Yank Thomas, ~~21-year-old~~ negro, held in the County Jail for an attack upon an aged ~~white woman~~, would be moved to another jail for safekeeping. Feeling was running high, it was reported.

The negro went to the home of the 87-year-old woman, two miles south of Geneva, Sunday afternoon, officers said, and when she refused to give him some meat, he threw a coat over her head and hurled her to the ground. Her screams for help attracted neighbors and the negro fled, to be captured a short while later by officers.

Officers said when the negro was taken into custody his pockets were filled with padlocks he had taken from buildings in this vicinity.

The aged woman was reported in a serious condition today.

Tragic Death of W. A. Reynolds is Shock to Tuskegee Residents

Monroe N. Work, Ed Negro Year Book
8-18-33

Tuskegee News
3-2-33
Tuskegee, Ala.

Tuskegee was shocked and saddened Friday morning to hear of the tragic death of Mr. W. A. Reynolds, city night marshal. The events that led to the tragedy were the suspicious actions of 3 men, at about 4:30 A. M., seeking an opportunity to break in Price's Jewelry Store. On approaching the bandit at the corner of Howe's Filling Station, Mr. Reynolds was told to "stick-'em-up," but instead of obeying, Mr. Reynolds reached for his gun, whereupon the bandit shot Mr. Reynolds, who fell mortally wounded before Mr. Reynolds got his revolver into action. While falling Mr. Reynolds shot the bandit twice, who then tried to escape in the bandit's car, but was shoved from the running board by his confederates. The other two gunmen callously and calmly deserted their partner in crime. The bandit when arrested gave his name as Charlie Spencer. It was later learned that the bandit's name was Charles Simko. It seems that according to Spencer's confession he has a long criminal career behind him. He stated that he had served nine years in Sing Sing. The bandit was discovered and arrested an hour or two later near the home of Mr. E. R. Alexander. He refused to divulge the names of his companions and as yet nothing is known concerning them.

Charles Simko has been taken to the Montgomery County Jail, where he is confined for safekeeping.

Mrs. J. E. Heath was the first one to reach Mr. Reynolds. She called Mr. Wheeless who ran to Mr. Reynolds in his night clothes. Mr. W. M. Russell and others being aroused by the shooting and cries of Mr Reynold's family also arrived immediately.

Mr. Reynolds was rushed to a Montgomery hospital, where he died a few hours later. Mr. Reynolds was an upright citizen, honest in his dealings with his fellowman and held the obligations of his office in such sacred trust as to be willing to give his life. Fearless in his duty, it is the privilege of the citizenship of Tuskegee to pay tribute to this worthy man. No words of praise and commendation can be too great for the one who lost all ideas of personal safety and thought only of the protection of the life and property of others. He ever went about his duties calmly and efficiently and giving offense to none.

Mr. Reynolds was 54 years of age at the time of his death and was a member of the Baptist Church. He had been a resident of Little Texas before coming to Tuskegee. At one time he was connected with the Tuskegee Oil Mill and for six years had been night policeman of Tuskegee.

The beloved esteem in which Mr. Reynolds was held was evidenced by the throng of people who attended his funeral Saturday morning at the First Baptist Church.

Rev. W. P. Reeves conducted the services and spoke fittingly and beautifully of Mr. Reynolds. Dr. R. L. Bell, pastor of the Presbyterian church assisted.

Mr. Reynolds remains were laid to rest in the family lot in the Tuskegee cemetery.

Mr. Reynolds is survived by his widow, one brother, four daughters, Mrs. J. E. Heath and son, Mrs. K. N. Lowe and children of Reeltown, Misses Laura and Virginia Reynolds.

Huntsville, Ala., Times
Monday, March 20, 1933

NEGRO FACES LYNCH THREA

Own Race Aroused Over Attack On Young Girl

Threats of a lynching were heard around the city hall this morning when Jim Sledge, alias "Black Gal," negro man, was convicted on an assault charge, fined $25 and sentenced to 30 days on the street.

Sledge was arrested Saturday for beating a 15-year-old negro girl with a stick. Negro residents of the southern section of the city were aroused and the negro was threatened before he was placed in the city jail.

Sledge is an ex-convict, having served more than three years in the state prison about 12 years ago.

He was put to work on the street this morning with the city chain gang to serve out an 80-day sentence, of which 50 days was for non-payment of his fine.

Pete Wolever was fined $15 for destroying property not his own, in the only other case where a defendant was fined this morning.

Dave Lee Nevel, arrested early Sunday morning in an attempt to rob Roy Gold's grocery store on Pelham street, was placed in the county jail, on a burglary charge. Nevel was caught inside the store.

Huntsville, Ala., Builder
Friday, March 24, 1933

Lynch Threatened By Negro Residents

Negroes Become Incensed With One of Their Own Color

Jim Sledge, alias "Black Gal", a negro,, was arrested Saturday for beating a 15-year-old negro girl with a stick. Threats of a lynching were heard around the city hall Monday, by negro residents, who had threatened him before he was placed in jail.

Sledge, an ex-convict, was convicted of the assault charge and fined $25 with a sentence of 30 days on the street. As he was unable to pay the fine, he was put to work on the city chain gang with an 80-day sentence.

Mob Storms Jail At Tuscaloosa

Advertiser
6-23-33
Montgomery Ala.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., June 22.—(AP)—A mob of approximately 150 white men and youths congregated about the Tuscaloosa County jail last night and demanded two negroes held in the slaying of a white girl, but dispersed after officers convinced them the prisoners had been spirited away.

Circuit Judge H. B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin addressed the group which left after two of their number who said they knew the negroes, Dan Pippen, Jr., and A. T. Harden, were conducted through the cells and failed to find the prisoners.

Later a part of the mob went to the city jail and demanded that they be allowed to search the cells for the negroes, but departed on orders of Chief of Police H. D. Billingsley and a group of officers. None of the group appeared to be armed, the officers said.

The victim of the slaying, Miss Vaudine Maddox, 20-year-old farm girl, was found with her head crushed by a heavy rock in rural Tuscaloosa County, 16 miles from here. The coroner said she had been attacked.

Mob Disperses.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., June 22.—(AP) A mob of approximately 150 white men and youths congregated about the Tuscaloosa county jail last night and demanded two negroes held in the slaying of a white girl, but dispersed after officers convinced them the prisoners had been spirited away.

MILITIA IS CALLED OUT IN FRAME-UP TRIAL OF 3 ALABAMA NEGROES

[illegible]

8-2-33 [illegible]

Judge Bars I. L. D. Counsel, Appoints Three Local Attorneys for Mock "Defense"

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 1.—National Guardsmen were called today to attend the trial of three Negro workers here on framed charges of attack and murder, as Judge Henry B. Foster refused to recognize Irving Schwab and F. B. Irwin, I. L. D. attorneys representing the three boys, and appointed three local attorneys to "defend" the three.

The attorneys appointed by Foster in an effort to keep the I. L. D. out of the case, are John D. McQueen former president of the Alabama Bar Association, Reuben Wright, and Freeman Rice.

Two other Negro workers are being held, one on a charge of obstructing and interfering with the investigation of the case, and another on charges which have not been divulged by Sheriff R. L. Shamblin.

The Negroes were arrested when Vaudine Maddox, white girl, was found dead in a ravine. Although all evidence pointed to the murder of the girl by a friend, or at least a close acquaintance, Pippen, Jr., was arrested and charged with the murder, after being pointed out by a white man who owed the boy some money. Pippen, Sr., was arrested when he told the officers that his son had not been out of his sight that morning. Clarke and Harden were arrested, evidently, because they were friends of young Pippen. Jimison was arrested when he came before the grand jury to testify that Pippen had been at work in his field the day the crime was committed.

The lawyers for the International Labor Defense were not permitted by Sheriff R. L. Shamblin to see their clients. The day after it was definitely learned that the I. L. D. had been retained in the case, the defendants were rushed to arraignment, represented only by the lawyers appointed by the court.

The leading white ministers of Tuscaloosa, Dr. Branche and Dr. Boone, and Dr. Denny, head of the University of Alabama, drew up a petition stating that the signers had full confidence in the justice of the courts of Tuscaloosa and in Judge Henry B. Foster, and that they did not want any "outside interference." This petition was given to the Rev. Roland Smith, Negro minister, and he was told to get all the Negro ministers in town to sign it. A few signed.

Many Back I. L. D.

A meeting was later held of Negro and white ministers, members of the Interracial Commission and many other persons. The heads of the Interracial Commission and the white ministers urged the meeting to adopt a resolution opposing the entrance of the I. L. D. into the case, and expressing their desire to have the defendants represented by the cousel appointed by the court. The small Negro tradesmen and Negro professional men and workers present, refused to support the petition. The less prominent Negro ministers, who are for the most part workers and small farmers themselves, also refused to take a stand against the I. L. D. When asked if the Negroes had confidence in Judge Foster, Deacon E. S. Smith stated that no Negro in Tuscaloosa has any confidence in Judge Foster, and that "the Negroes fear Foster as the ruling whites fear Commuhism."

A Citizen's Committee for the Defense of the Tuscaloosa cases has been formed here, and is collecting funds for the frame-up victims.

I. L. D. LAWYERS ARE GIVEN GUARD

Telegraph

Trial of Negro Is Delayed When Court Rules Against Volunteer Defense Counsel

8-2-33

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 1 (AP)—Judge Henry B. Foster today held that attorneys employed by the International Labor Defense had not been retained to defend Dan Pippen, Jr., 18-year-old Negro, on charge of slaying Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21, and then postponed the case indefinitely. Pippen was indicted with two other Negroes for the slaying.

The attorneys, Frank B. Irvin, of Birmingham, Irving Schwab and Allan Taum, both of New York and associated in the Scottsboro case, were given a national guard escort when they left the city this afternoon.

Macon, Ga.

Judge Foster who asked the guard to protect the attorneys sent here by I. L. D., said, in regard to the troopers presence and escort:

"The guard escort was ordered, due to a public demonstration with several hundred persons around the court house and expressions of resentment against outside lawyers injecting themselves into a case over the protest of representative Negroes here and also the expressed wishes of the defendant, his father and his mother.

"There is no feeling against the Negroes here and guards were not needed to protect the defendants."

Mother Denies Retaining Irvin

Judge Foster ruled that the three attorneys did not represent the Negro, after Pippen, his father, Dan Pippen, Sr., and his mother, Lucindy Pippen, had testified they wished Charles La France and Jacob McGuire, retained in behalf of the Negro, to defend him.

A motion to postpone the case was then made by La France, who pointed out that the venire summoned for jury duty had heard part of the argument regarding which attorneys should represent the Negro to the prejudice of the case. Judge Foster granted the motion.

When the case was called, Irvin presented claims that he and his associates, Schwab and Taub, had been retained by Pippen's mother, presenting documents to substantiate the contention.

Lucindy Pippen, however, while on the stand was shown the document, purportedly signed by her and authorizing Irvin to act for her son, and denied having even seen it.

ILD LAWYERS DRIVEN FROM TUSCALOOSA

[illegible]

8-3-33

New York, N.Y.

Driven from Alabama Town; Later Taken to Birmingham Jail

MENACED BY ARMED MOB

Barred from Defense Of Framed Negroes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 2.—Allen Taub, Irving Schwab and Frank B. Irwin were late last night taken to the Birmingham police station. Irwin, a local lawyer, was released. Taub and Schwab, who are associated with the Scottsboro legal staff, are reported to have been escorted out of town. It was later reported that they returned to Birmingham this morning.

* * *

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 2. — Three International Labor Defense lawyers, barred by the court from the defense of three Negroes framed on charges of rape and murder, whose relatives had retained them, were taken out of town here yesterday by National Guardsmen, 65 of whom had been called out here. On the way to Birmingham the train on which they were riding was halted by a mob of one hundred, organized by Tuscaloosa county authorities, which threatened to lynch the three.

The lawyers were Allan Taub, Irving Schwab and Frank B. Irwin. They were retained to defend Dan Pippen, Jr., 18; A. T. Harden and Ernest Clarke.

Case Adjourned.

In the court room, crowded with members of the lynch mob, Pippen and his father and mother, Dan Pippen, Sr. and Mrs. Lucinda Pippen, were told that it would be "highly advisable" for them to repudiate the I.L.D. attorneys and to state they wanted the services of the local Ku Klux Klan attorneys appointed by the court. It was reported that the defendants were beaten to force them to repudiate the I.L.D.

Following the incident in the court, the case was adjourned and Dan Pippen, Jr., taken to Montgomery jail.

The I.L.D. attorneys had been denied permission to see their clients in jail previous to the trial, and had come to court with the intention of demanding a postponement of the trial on the ground that the defense could not be prepared. Judge Foster before the trial refused to order Sheriff R. L. Shamblin to permit the lawyers to see their clients on the ground that he did not "want another Scottsboro case", with its inevitable exposure of Southern lynch law.

It was reported from Birmingham today that the police would make an attempt to drive the lawyers out of that city also, but the I.L.D. announced that they would not only stay there, but would remain in the case, and demand an immediate change of venue for the trial.

In a gesture parallel to that of Judge A. E. Hawkins at the first Scottsboro trials, when he assigned "the entire bar of Scottsboro" to "defend" the nine innocent boys, Judge Henry B. Foster here appointed five local attorneys to "defend" Pippen and his four co-defendants.

Daily Worker 8-3-33

Evidence Shows Frame-up.

Besides Pippen, Ernest Clarke is charged with assault and murder and A. T. Harden with being an accessory. Both these boys were arrested apparently because they were friends of Pippen and belonged to the same singing club. Pippen, Sr., is charged with obstructing the investigation because he told police his son was working with him in the field of Willie Jimison at the time the crime was committed, and Jimison himself was arrested when he appeared before the grand jury to confirm this atement.

All evidence, as was admitted by e local capitalist press during the st few days after discovery of the ime, pointed to a white man as the urderer. Dan Pippen was arrested hen he was pointed out as having een near the scene of the crime, by man who owed him wages.

I.L.D. Lawyer Hounded

ALLAN TAUB

Lynchings-1933
Prevented.

Arkansas.

4414

WILSON CASE TO JURY AS BAYONETS BRISTLE

Commercial Appeal

Special Guards Provided In Bank Holdup-Murder Trial.

9-14-33

PARIS, Ark., Sept. 13.—(AP) — The jury hearing the case of Johnny Wilson of Fort Smith on a charge of slaying Dolph Guthrie, teller, in the robbery of the First National Bank here last May 29, tonight began deliberations.

Testimony today was under the muzzles of several machine guns, special guards being brought here from the Tucker state prison farm after officess apparently became alarmed at reports from Leo (Sleepy) Scarborough, escaped convict and desperado, and Clifton Harback, brother of Clifton, who also is charged in the slaying and robbery, was feared by officers and one machine gun was mounted at the entrance of the Logan County circuit court, while another was manned by a guard inside the courtroom. Additional armed guards were in evidence.

Defense attorney today sought to prove that Wilson was in Little Rock at the time of the slaying, and that Guthrie was accidentally slain by Andy Connaughton, city marshal, in the gun fight which followed the bank robbery. Connaughton also was wounded in the fight.

A dozen witnesses today testified that the bandit who escaped during the robbery and shooting was "taller and darker" than Wilson.

Officers watched all highways near here in a search for an automobile which was alleged to have passed through here yesterday, containing two men armed with machine guns, and which officers chased but failed to overtake.

Clifton and Gene Harback both were captured immediately after the gun battle and bank robbery in this vicinity, and Clifton has been positively identified by witnesses at the Wilson trial as one of the bandits. He escaped from the county jail here on the eve of his trial nearly a month ago, after both brothers had been indicted jointly. Gene Harback elected to remain in jail rather than escape.

Wilson was captured at Las Cruces, N. M., several wekes ago and returned here. Gene Harback was granted a seperate trial by J. O. Kincannon.

NEGRO ADMITS ATTACK

Chicago Defender

Confesses Assaulting Two Women Near Malden, Mo.

This is Missouri

MALDEN, Mo., Sept. 30.—C. D. Ward, 23, negro of Helena, Ark., confessed yesterday to attacking two women here. Ward was arrested at his home in Helena.

Emma Sheehy, 26, and Frances Sheehy, 38, in company with their father, C. A. Sheehy, and Sheriff Tom Donaldson nd Deputy Harry Hestor, went to Helena. The women viewed 10 negroes held in jail there and pointed Ward out as their attacker.

10-1-33

Ward had spent several days here in February and March and admitted that he returned during the latter part of May to commit the crime.

Memphis Press

Ward stopped the two women as they were returning to their home at the edge of Malden from church services. He commanded them to crawl over a fence into a corn field where the attacks were committed. After releasing the women, Ward stated that he hopped a freight train and went north out of Malden.

The negro was returned to Dunklin County last night but has been removed for safe keeping.

Minister Facing Murder Charges

Advertiser

10-12-33

Death Count Filed Against Fundamentalist Preacher After Slaying Of Janitor

Montgomery Adv.

JONESBORO, ARK., Oct. 11.—(AP)— The filing of a murder charge against the Rev. Dale S. Crowley for the shooting of an aged janitor at the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle, wrote a climax tonight to two months of bitter factional strife at the spreading church edifice that was born of an earlier congregational conflict which brought national guardsmen here.

The 42-year-old fundamentalist pastor who boasted of his expulsion from Baylor University over a clash with the faculty on doctrinal beliefs was held in jail in another city because of the tense situation here.

The janitor, J. W. MacMurdro, 65, who was shot three times in an altercation with Crowley late yesterday which marked the minister's return to the tabernacle with a court order recognizing him as pastor, died early today.

He accused Crowley of shooting him "in cold blood" but the fiery preacher called it self-defense, asserting McMurdro fired at him first. A. U. Tadlock, deputy prosecuting attorney, said that as far as he could learn no shot was fired from the janitor's gun.

Three Guns In Church

Sheriff Houston Johnson was investigating the possibility that shots fired from more than one gun struck MacMurdro. He announced that he had found three guns at the tabernacle—Crowley's, MacMurdro's and another in which was one discharged shell.

The sheriff was told late today the third gun found in a room in the rear of the tabernacle belonged to Lloyd Shook, a former night watchman, and that he or MacMurdro fired the shot from it at a dog a few nights ago.

The murder charge against Crowley, who was rushed from the city last night because officers feared reprisals from the other faction, will be considered by the Craighead County Grand Jury when it meets next month.

NEGRO ACCUSED OF ATTACK PUT IN SAFEKEEPING

Post Dispatch

KENNETT, Mo., Nov. 29.—(AP)— A 2[illegible]-year-old negro, C. D. Ward, of Helena, Ark., was spirited out of town tonight by Sheriff Thomas F. Donaldson after Judge J. V. Billings had sentenced him to death for criminally assaulting two white women last May 28.

11-30-33

The sheriff returned a short time later but declined to say where the negro had been taken.

Lynchings-1933
Prevented.

California.

4410

SUSPECTS IN SLAYING THREATENED BY MOB

2-28-33

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Feb. 27.—(UP)—A crowd of 300 persons gathered tonight around the county jail where Andrew Mareck and Ralph Thatcher were held in connection with the killing of Peace Officer William R. Carick.

The sheriff's office instructed San Francisco officers to keep three other suspects in custody there for safety. The crowd appeared angry.

BUTTE MONT POST
FEBRUARY 28, 1933

LYNCH THREATS MADE IN POLICEMAN'S DEATH

SANTA ROSA, CALIF., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Lynching threats caused authorities to take special precautions today for the safety of suspects in a hotel holdup in which Special Policeman William Garrick, 60, was shot and killed.

Two of five suspects, Andrew Mareck of San Francisco, alleged leader of the holdup gang, and Ralph Thatcher, San Francisco printer, were held here in the county jail, about which a shouting throng gathered last night. The crowd dispersed after Sheriff Mike Flohr asked them "to play fair."

Jilted Suitor-Killer Threatened by Mob

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 19. (AP)—Lynch threats followed the fatal shooting today of Miss Emilia De Prato, 26-year-old opera singer, causing officers to remove Umberto Guisti hurriedly to the county jail at Redwood City. They said he confessed the slaying.

12-20-33

Miss De Prato, who was runner-up in a nation-wide voice contest in 1927, was shot to death on the front steps of her home in South San Francisco.

After rapid questioning by police, during which, they said, he signed a full confession he had killed the girl because she had jilted him, he was hurried from the jail into a waiting car by the sheriff and other officers.

A crowd shouted menacingly as the man came out the door. Cries of "Lynch him!" were heard but the crowd appeared to be without leaders.

Lynchings - 1933
Prevented.

Florida

4415

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. UNION
FEBRUARY 17, 1933

ARRAIGN ROOSEVELT'S WOULD-BE ASSASSIN TODAY

POLICE GUARD ZANGARA FROM LYNCHING MOB

Mayor Cermak and Mrs. Gill Resting Well, But Still in Serious Condition

OTHER VICTIMS OF SHOTS RECOVERING

✓

Defiant Gunman Says He Doesn't Want Anyone to Help Him

By The Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 17.—Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, and Mrs. Joe H. Gill, of Miami, who stopped two of the bullets Guiseppi Zangara meant for President-elect Roosevelt, rested well last night, but their condition was reported little changed today.

The Mayor's condition was described by his doctors as "satisfactory with no complications," while Mrs. Gill was reported as "holding her own."

Other victims of the wild shots of the swarthy little immigrant who bought an $8 pistol to demonstrate his hate for all government were said by hospital attaches to be resting nicely and progressing. They were Miss Margaret Kruis, of Newark, N. J.; William Sinnott, of New York, and Russell Caldwell, of Cocoanut Grove, Fla.

While the condition of Mayor Cermak and Mrs. Gill was watched closely, Zangara was held in a cell high up in the Dade County jail under close guard against rumors of a possible attempt to kidnap and lynch him. Cool and unafraid, he awaited arraignment at 11 a. m. today on charges of attempting to murder President-elect Roosevelt, Miss Kruis, Sinnott and Caldwell.

* * *

Faces Long Imprisonment

Prison terms of 20 years are possible on each of the charges, but the gravity of Zangara's punishment probably will rest with the outcome of the condition of Cermak and Mrs. Gill. Authorities have withheld charges in these cases, indicating if either dies Zangara will be charged with murder.

Shortly before 9 a. m. Cermak's doctors issued the following bulletin:

"Mayor Cermak's condition is satisfactory with no complications. Pulse 96. Temperature 98.6, and respiration 24.

"He passed a restful night and seems quite cheerful and jovial."

It was signed by Drs. Karl Meyer, Fred Jirka, John Snyder, E. S. Nichol and T. W. Hutson.

Dr. Jirka and State Senator Richey Graham, of Illinois, sons-in-law of Mayor Cermak, arrived here early today by train. Dr. Meyer and William Haberkorn, sergeant-at-arms of the Illinois Senate, accompanied them.

Dr. Jirka and Dr. Meyer said Mayor Cermak joked with them in his room and quoted him as saying: "The only time you doctors take a vacation is when we get sick. I had to get shot in order for you to come down here."

* * *

Mrs. Gill Rallies

It was Dr. Snyder who made the report on Mrs. Gill, who during the night had a sinking spell. She rallied after stimulants were administered. He said she rested well and seemed holding her own. "Certainly," he said, "she is not any worse and she does not appear to be much better."

Physicians plan to issue three bulletins daily on Mayor Cermak's condition hereafter. A policeman guards his room and one stands outside the hospital.

Mayor Cermak has received literally hundreds of telegrams of sympathy. Among the senders were Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, the Mayor of Dublin, the Mayor of Prague, James A. Farley and Governor Horner, of Illinois, who is en route to Cermak's bedside.

There was some stir at the court house today as the time for Zangara's arraignment approached, but Sheriff Dan Hardie was prepared to take steps to quell any attempt at violence. He was unable, he said, to trace the source of the rumors he had heard.

Yesterday Zangara was brought before the court after the murder attempt charges were drawn and Judge E. C. Collins informed him he had a right to counsel to represent him.

"I don't want anybody to help me," the little Italian shot back defiantly. "You're the judge and you can do what you want to do."

TERRE HAUTE IND STAR
FEBRUARY 17, 1933

PRECAUTION TAKEN AGAINST LYNCHIN

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Rumors that an attempt might be made to kidnap and kill Guiseppe Zangara, who last night shot and wounded five persons in an unsuccessful attempt on the life of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, caused Sheriff Dan Hardie tonight to bar all persons from the county jail where the prisoner is lodged.

Sheriff Hardie, who was unable to trace the rumors, ordered a guard stationed at the official elevator, which operates to the county jail offices on the nineteenth floor of the court house.

The guards were instructed to deny entrance to all persons except police officers.

ZANGARA, UNMOVED PUT IN DEATH CELL

Machine Guns Guard Cermak's Assassin as He Is Taken to Prison Farm at Raiford.

3-14-33

EXECUTION DATE NOT SET

New York.

Governor Signs Warrant, Making It Next Week, but Superintendent Will Name Actual Day.

RAIFORD, Fla., March 13 (AP).—Heavily guarded by a squad of National Guard machine-gunners, Joseph Zangara, the assassin who shot five persons in an attempt to kill President Roosevelt Feb. 15, awaits the electric chair here for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago.

Governor Dave Sholtz today signed the death warrant after Zangara had secretly been removed from the Dade County jail in Miami, where he was convicted last Friday. The warrant sets the execution for the week of March 20, the actual day and hour to be determined by Superintendent L. F. Chapman of the State Prison Farm. It was held likely that March 21 will be the date.

Zangara was brought to the State prison by Sheriff Dan Hardie of Miami and within ten minutes was photographed, fingerprinted and lodged in the death cell. He showed no signs of nervousness or curiosity at the prison surroundings.

"Are you sorry you shot Mayor Cermak?" Sheriff Hardie asked the assassin as he was being led to the death cell.

"No," replied Zangara. "I'm not sorry. I wasn't shooting at him, but I'm not sorry I hit him."

Garbed in regular stripes, Zangara spent most of his time today lying on his cot in the death cell. He made no requests and said little to the guards who stand watch over him.

Zangara, in addition to the sentence of death for the killing of the Chicago Mayor, is under sentence of eighty years for shooting Russell Caldwell, William Sinnott, New York policeman, and Miss Margaret Kruis of Newark, N. J., and his attempt on Mr. Roosevelt's life.

He was never tried for the shooting of Mrs. Joe H. Gill, who now lies in a hospital in a serious condition as a result of a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Mr. Cermak died last Monday after a long battle with a weak heart, pneumonia and gangrene which set into the lung injured by the bullet.

Within a few hours after Mr. Cermak's death Zangara had been indicted. In two more days he had pleaded guilty and was sentenced to death.

Zangara gave as his reason for his act "hatred of capitalists," stomach trouble and the desire to cause Mr. Roosevelt to "suffer fifty-fifty" with him.

"He capitalist and I figure make him fifty-fifty with me," said the slayer.

Macon, Ga. New
April 27. 1933

Sheriff Disperses Angry Lynch Mob

DELAND, Fla., April 27. (UP)—Sheriff S. E. Stone and several deputies, armed with shotguns and rifles and threatening to use machine guns, dispersed an angry crowd of at least 200 persons believed to be seeking a 16-year-old Negro here about midnight Wednesday night.

The crowd, composed mostly of young men from Daytona Beach, milled around the county jail where the Negro, James Fairley, is being held on a charge of attempted assault on a 14-year-old white girl at Daytona Beach Monday afternoon.

A report was circulated that the Negro had "half confessed."

Lynchings - 1933
Prevented.

Georgia

4411

Troops Protect Negro Prisoner

Telegraph

11-1-33

Macon Ga.

ATLANTA, Oct. 31 (AP)—Governor Talmadge late today ordered a company of National Guardsmen to accompany Mack Jones, Negro, held in jail here, to Homer tomorrow and protect him during his trial for attack and murder of a white woman.

The governor's order was issued at the request of Judge W. W. Stork, who will preside at the trial, and Solicitor General J. Clifford Pratt and Sheriff I. L. Whelchell. The governor was informed that feeling against the Negro was high.

Adjutant General Lindley Camp will be in charge of the Guardsmen.

Sheriff Whelchell posted notice on the doors of the courthouse that all entering would be searched tomorrow for weapons and that necessary steps would be taken to maintain order.

Guardsmen To Protect Georgia Negro In Trial

Advertiser

11-1-33

ATLANTA, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Gov. Talmadge late today ordered a company of National Guardsmen to accompany Mack Jones, negro, held in jail here, to Homer tomorrow and protect him during his trial for attack and murder of a white woman.

The Governor's order was issued at the request of Judge W. W. Stark, who will preside at the trial, and Solicitor General J. Clifford Pratt and Sheriff J. L. Whelchell. The Governor was informed that feeling against the negro was high.

TROOPS ORDERED TO BANKS COUNTY FOR NEGRO'S TRIAL

Constitution

11-1-33

Atlanta Ga.

Governor Sends National Guard To Forestall Possible Violence at Trial of Mack James.

Governor Eugene Talmadge Tuesday ordered a picked company of 60 men of the 122d Infantry, Georgia national guard, under command of Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, to guard the courthouse at Homer and prevent any violence to Mack James, negro, who is to go on trial for assault and murder of a white woman today. General Camp and officers and men detailed to the scene will leave here early this morning.

The governor acted Tuesday after he received a request for troops from Judge W. W. Stark, who will preside over the trial; Solicitor-General J. Clifford Pratt and Sheriff J. L. Welchell.

James, who was serving his second sentence for assault, escaped after the murder for which he is to be tried today and was captured a few weeks ago. Officials told the governor that feeling was high in Banks county and it would be to the best interests of all concerned to have the troops present.

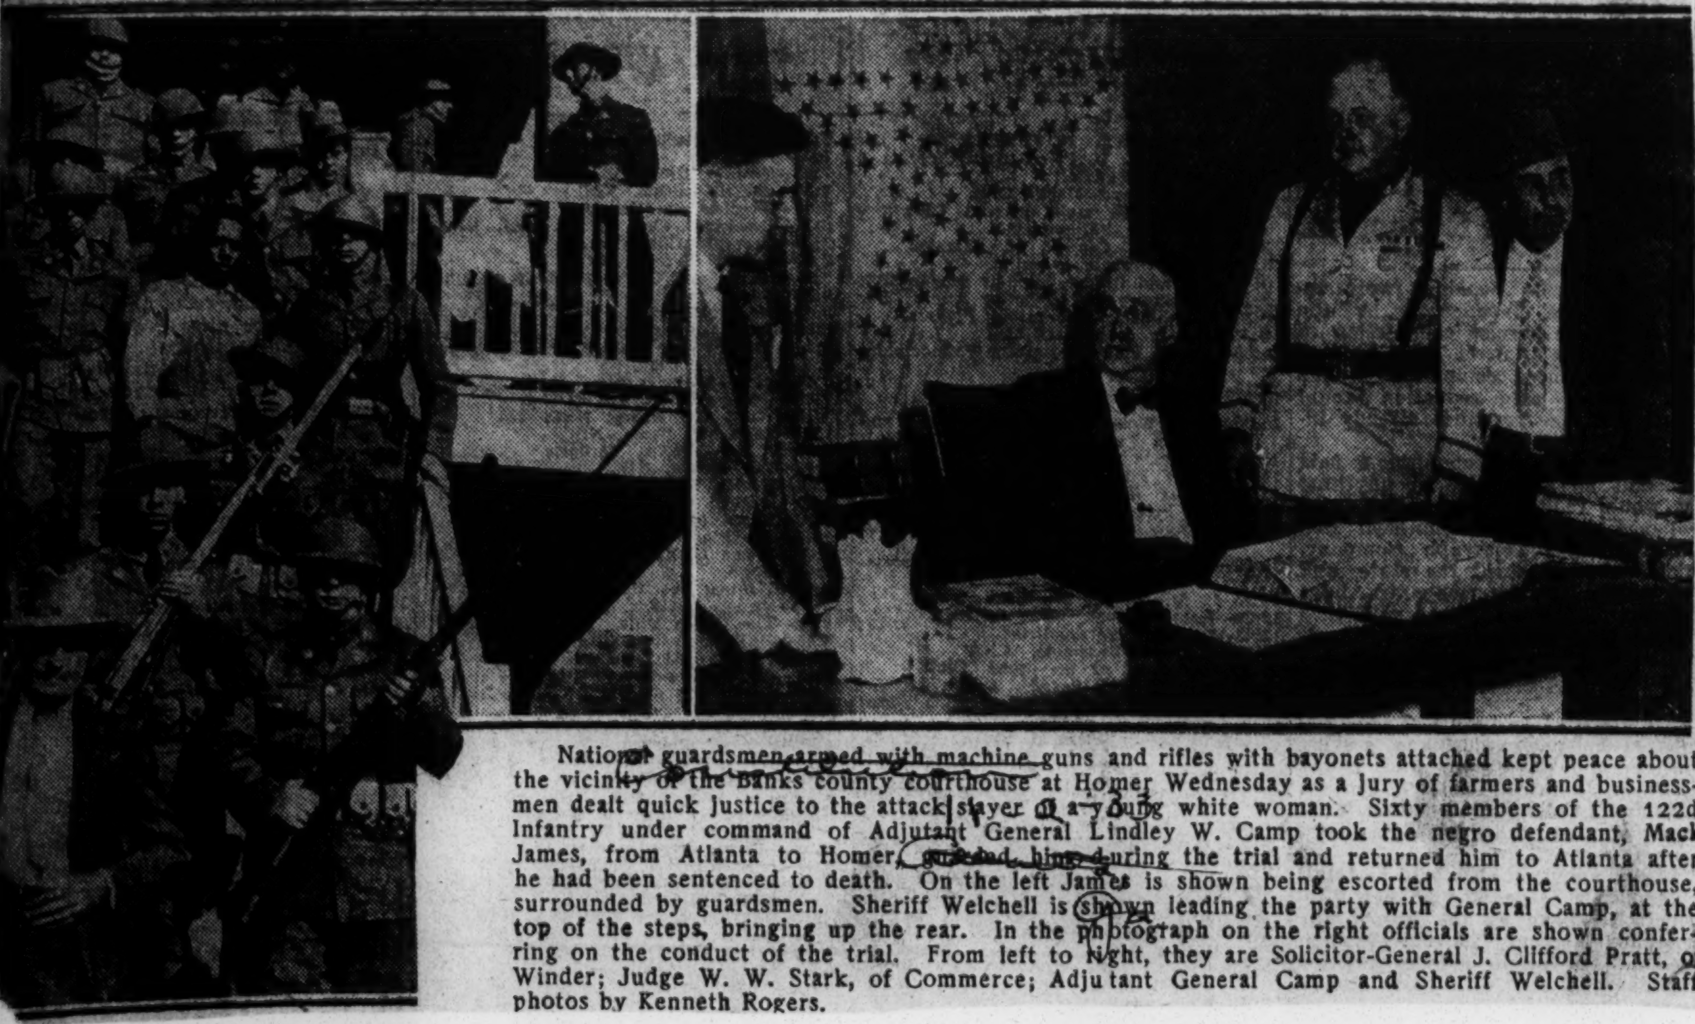
Officers assigned by General Camp to the detail included Major W. B. Elliott, executive officer of the 122d; Captains Marion Williamson, Hugh G. Moseley and Rex LeFevre and Lieutenants David Stephenson and Earnest A. Neely.

It is expected that the trial of James will require two days.

Sheriff Welchell Tuesday posted notice on the doors of the courthouse that all those entering the building Wednesday would be searched for weapons and added that every necessary step was to be taken to preserve law and order.

James has been held in the Fulton tower. General Camp and his troops will take him from the jail this morning and return him here immediately after the trial. If he is acquitted on the murder charge the prison commission has announced he will be sent to another county to complete the assault term.

Troops Guard Negro at Trial for Assault-Murder



National guardsmen armed with machine guns and rifles with bayonets attached kept peace about the vicinity of the Banks county courthouse at Homer Wednesday as a jury of farmers and businessmen dealt quick justice to the attack slayer of a young white woman. Sixty members of the 122d Infantry under command of Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp took the negro defendant, Mack James, from Atlanta to Homer, guarded him during the trial and returned him to Atlanta after he had been sentenced to death. On the left James is shown being escorted from the courthouse, surrounded by guardsmen. Sheriff Welchell is shown leading the party with General Camp, at the top of the steps, bringing up the rear. In the photograph on the right officials are shown conferring on the conduct of the trial. From left to right, they are Solicitor-General J. Clifford Pratt, of Winder; Judge W. W. Stark, of Commerce; Adjutant General Camp and Sheriff Welchell. Staff photos by Kenneth Rogers.

Constitution

11-2-33

Constitution
11-3-33
Atlanta
Ga.

UPHOLDING THE COURTS.

The orderly trial and conviction in the superior court of Banks county of the negro Mack James, accused of a heinous crime of a nature such as to arouse intense public indignation, is a credit to the law-abiding citizens of the county, to the court officials before whom the trial was held, and to the governor, who, in order to guard against any possibility of interference with court procedure, ordered a squad of national guardsmen placed on duty in the courthouse during the hearing of the case.

The determination of the people of Banks county that the good name of their community should not be marred by violence is attested by the fact that the only attempts by hot-heads to stir up trouble were promptly squelched without action either by the guardsmen or the local peace officers.

The conduct of the case by Judge Stark was fair and impartial in every way and General Camp's efficient handling of the guardsmen gave assurance that, even had violence been attempted, the safety of the prisoner would not have been threatened.

Governor Talmadge is to be commended for his action in sending the troops to Homer to assure that law and order was preserved and that there would be no danger of interference with orderly court procedure. There was no imminent prospect of violence, but the governor was not willing to take any chances, thus giving convincing evidence of his respect for the courts and his determination that they perform their functions in an orderly manner.

The governor may seem intemperate at times in his utterances, but certainly, in this instance, he has demonstrated that in action he stands firmly by law and order and for the conduct of the courts without intimidation from any source.

After all, the best way to judge a man, be he either private citizen or public official, is by his actions, and in this instance the governor has shown that under his administration no steps will be left untaken to uphold the courts.

Lynchings-1933
Prevented.

Georgia

4412

NEGRO SENTENCED TO DIE DECEMBER 1

~~Constitution~~
11-2-33
~~Atlanta, Ga.~~

Guardsmen Surround James During Trial as Crowd of 5,000 Waits.

HOMER, Ga., Nov. 1.—With the bayonets of national guardsmen keeping a crowd of more than 5,000 men at a safe distance, a jury in Banks superior court deliberated only 20 minutes here today before reaching a verdict finding Mack James, negro convict trusty, guilty of assault and murder. Judge W. W. Stark immediately sentenced James to be executed in the electric chair at Milledgeville on December 1.

Only a handful of persons were permitted in the courtroom and all were searched by the militia and Sheriff Welchell. There were only a few signs of disorder, the crowd for the most part keeping silent and obeying orders of the guardsmen.

One would-be mob leader was promptly squelched but the guardsmen had nothing to do with it as it was done by members of the crowd themselves.

An unidentified man demanded to know who would join him in an effort to take the negro from the guardsmen. It was said that the man came from a distant county but three Banks county men walked up to him and asked him to be quiet. When he resisted their efforts one of the men planted a hard right on the chin and the boisterous visitor was immediately quiet. The other two dragged him to the shade of a nearby store where he remained until the trial was over.

James took the witness stand and denied the charges against him but the jury saw fit to return a verdict of guilty despite the denial. The negro said he walked off from the Banks county gang the night before the crime was committed and never even saw the victim.

James was reported missing the day of the crime and inasmuch as he was serving his second sentence for assault he was immediately suspected. He was caught in south Georgia several weeks ago and had been held in the Fulton tower in Atlanta for safe keeping.

The state produced a number of witnesses whose testimony tended to connect the negro with the crime. All was circumstantial.

Solicitor-General J. Clifford Pratt directed the prosecution, while Attorneys Sam Kimsey and R. C. Scott, appointed by the court, defended the negro.

James was brought here by a picked company of 60 members of the 122d infantry under command of Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp. The troops and their prisoner arrived before daylight and the negro was placed under heavy guard in the courtroom to await the opening of the trial. Ten guardsmen kept him entirely surrounded throughout the proceedings and after the verdict was reached and sentence passed he was loaded into a bus and started back to Atlanta before the guardsmen permitted the crowd to disperse.

Defense attorneys said they were undetermined whether the case will be appealed or not.

Both Judge Stark and Sheriff Welchell thanked General Camp and his men for their services as the guardsmen took off with the prisoner.

The crowd which gathered here today came from 10 or 12 counties in this section and was said to be the largest in the history of this little town.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
OCT 25 1933

SOUTHERN LYNCHINGS

Comment is Made on Attempted Defense of Them

To the Editor of The Courant:—

In today's Forum I read a letter by R. B. Mathews, a clergyman, upholding the recent lynching in Princess Anne, Md. Mr. Mathews bases his reason for approving this most recent lynching on the fact that in the Emel Lee case, the culprit still lives even though the crime for which Lee is accused happened two years ago. Lee's case has been fought for two years in the courts; however, only last week the United States Supreme Court upheld the lower courts and as a result, Lee must pay the full penalty for the crime of which he is accused. Under the existing system of law in this country the accused had every right to have his case pass through all the procedure which it did. The Supreme Court has ruled that Emel Lee must die. In the face of this verdict, Mr. Mathews has the temerity to call the case a "travesty of justice."

Mr. Mathews in his letter further says, "Law must do its work quickly in such a case for a proper impression to be made on the colored people." I am afraid that Mr. Mathews will find that lynching as a means of "impressing" colored people, is a poor expedient. The false impression gained from the reverend gentleman's letter is that woman-attacking is common to Negroes only.

Negroes do not seek to help criminals of the race to evade the law. We feel that any criminal, regardless of his race or color, should be punished by due process of the constituted law for his crime. However, mob violence is not to be tolerated, according to this law.

I note that Mr. Mathews says that Southerners will not stand for crimes against women, "by Negroes." Are we to assume that crime against women by whites is permissible? "Taken at its face value," Clergyman Mathews's letter is a weak piece of work.

Mr. Mathews' statement that, had Emel Lee been executed within a month of his crime, the Princess Anne lynching would 'never have taken place, provokes a laugh from all fair-minded persons who know only too well how justice is meted out to Negroes in the South.

LESLIE I. DUNCAN.
Hartford, Oct. 23, 1933.

EXTRAORDINARY MEASURES TAKEN AGAINST THREAT OF MOB ATTACK

Military Called to State Farm to Protect Life of Condemned Negro

Telegraph

By PAUL CONAWAY
(Telegraph Staff Writer)

STATE PRISON FARM, MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 30.—The menace of mob violence, indicated by numerous threats reported to authorities, caused extraordinary precautions to be taken at Georgia's prison farm today.

12-1-33

Reports reaching authorities here were to the effect that a group from Banks county was coming to the prison for Mack James, Negro, under sentence of death for criminal assault of a white woman in Banks county.

Macon, Ga.

The Negro had been scheduled to die in the electric chair Friday but an appeal to the state supreme court this morning automatically stayed the sentence.

Supt. B. H. Dunaway of the prison farm and several guards who were absent on Thanksgiving hunting trips were called back to the farm and holiday plans were forgotten. None except those with business were permitted to enter the prison gates. Practically all, except officers, were searched for weapons.

National guardsmen were assembled in their armory in Milledgeville under Capt. F. R. Hargrove, but later they were dismissed and notified to be "ready for duty" on call.

An investigation failed to locate any mob in North Georgia and as the day changed into night nothing unusual had occurred, and tense nerves of the officers were relaxing.

First word of the reported mob was received at the prison farm from Gov. Eugene Talmadge. The governor stated that attorneys for the condemned Negro had asked protection for the Negro, and had informed the governor that a mob planned to seize James should he be transferred today from the farm to the Fulton county jail in Atlanta.

Telegraph
12-1-33

Later Sheriff J. [illegible] Whelchel of Banks county arrived at the farm and reported having heard several threats in his county. The sheriff expressed the opinion that there was little danger of an attack on the prison farm in "broad daylight" but said that he planned to use extreme caution in taking the Negro from the prison to the Atlanta jail.

Macon, Ga.

In view of the threats reported to the governor the state's chief executive ordered the prison superintendent not to permit the removal of the Negro until "it is safe."

"It would be foolhardy, of course, for me to try to take James back to the Banks county jail at Homer," Sheriff Whelchel commented, "but I believe we can make it to Atlanta all right."

Sheriff's Daughter Volunteers

The sheriff's attractive brunette daughter, Mrs. Cleo Garlan, volunteered to drive the car containing the prisoner.

"I'm not afraid of a mob," the young woman said. "If you men will put him in this car and watch him I'll take you through to Atlanta."

Although no decision had been reached late this afternoon about the removal it was indicated that the plucky young woman would probably drive the car.

As precautionary moves it was planned to hide James in the rear of the car on the floor in front of the rear seat.

Mrs. Carlan, it was planned, would drive the machine and her husband, Clyde Carlan, chief deputy sheriff of Banks county, would, ride on the front seat with her. On the rear seat would be the sheriff and a son, Barber Welchel.

The officers were undecided whether to make the trip by way of Eatonton and Madison or by Macon and Griffin. They favored the latter route, pointing out the advantages of passing through several cities and towns and also the fact that it was the all-paved route.

Court Order Granted

Sheriff Welchell of Banks county came to the prison late today with an order signed by Judge Stark of the Piedmont Circuit for removal of James to the Fulton (Atlanta) county tower but prison officials refused to allow James to leave.

They said they had been directed by Governor Talmadge to keep the prisoner here until further orders.

Sheriff Welchell advised Judge Stark of the refusal and later said he expected an early call from Governor Talmadge permitting the removal.

In Atlanta, Governor Talmadge said he did not intend that his instructions should conflict with a court order and had no desire to try to prevent the return of James to Atlanta but issued his order merely to cause a delay in his removal until excitement over the reported mob had quieted.

Negro Denies the Crime

In the death cell James trembled as he talked with newspaper men. He said he wasn't afraid, but that he was nervous and couldn't "keep my hands from shaking."

He emphatically denied the crime for which he has been sentenced and declared that he was "ready to die."

"If I've got to go, I must, the law says," the Negro commented, "but I am innocent and God will make it all right with me."

Banks county officers said that the case against James was circumstantial, but that "there is no doubt as to his guilt."

James was under a 20-year sentence imposed in Bibb Superior court about 18 months ago when the latest crime occurred. In the Macon case the Negro was accused of attempting to assault a young white woman near Miller field. This case was the second time he had been brought to trial for attempted assault. The jury deliberated for about 24 hours before a verdict of guilty was returned. As James was a second offender the maximum sentence was pronounced.

After several months in the state prison farm James was assigned to a road camp in Banks county, near Homer. He worked industriously and was well behaved, officers said. Finally he was made a trusty. On certain days each week it was his duty to go to a wash pit near the camp and wash clothes.

Several weeks ago a white woman who had been seen walking in the vicinity of the wash pit where the Negro was working was found several hours later murdered. She had been assaulted and mutilated. It was on this same day, officers said, that James escaped.

Returned to His Home

"Convict stripes," the clothing said to have been worn by James, was found hidden in some bushes near where the body was discovered. There was human blood on the convict uniform. The woman's hands and feet had been tied with pieces of flour sack of the kind used exclusively in that section in the convict camp. Also a pair of shoes that were said to have been identified as James' and had peculiar markings, were found to fit dim tracks leading to and from the corpse.

James was traced through north Georgia back to his native home in Jones county, near Round Oak. Here he had a wife and two children. After several days of watching a posse of officers arrested him a few weeks ago.

The Negro was taken to the Fulton county jail for safekeeping and later was taken to Homer for trial under protection of a company of National Guardsmen. He was found guilty and sentenced to die.

James yesterday continued to deny his guilt in the Bibb county case as well as the Banks county crime.

"The only thing I'm guilty of, Boss Man, is escaping," he said. "But I show didn't hurt no one. If I had of harmed that lady I show wouldn't have left my clothes right there where they could find 'em. It would be like leaving my name and address. When I hid my clothes there, I know nobody else was around and somebody else must have come there later."

New York Evening Journal

DEC 1 1933

NEGRO GUARDED IN LYNCH FEAR

MILLERSVILLE, Ga., Dec. 1.—Although no trace was reported of a mob alleged to have been formed to seize and lynch Mack James, a negro held in the State penitentiary here to be put to death in the electric chair Saturday for attacking a white woman, extraordinary precautions were taken to protect the doomed man.

Sheriffs of several counties reported that investigation had failed to reveal any gathering of would-be lynchers.

The Adjutant General phoned from Atlanta that the rumors apparently were exaggerated, and that there had been no occasion to order troops to be held in readiness.

MOB THREAT CALLS TROOPS IN GEORGIA

New York Times

Ready to Protect Negro in Prison, Soldiers Disband as Report Proves False.

12-1-33

New York

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 30 (AP).—Exaggerated rumors that a North Georgia mob was headed toward the State prison farm near here today resulted in national guardsmen assembling unofficially in the Milledgeville armory, but they soon went home.

Attorneys for Mack James, a Negro under death sentence for assault on a white woman, reported to Governor Talmadge in Atlanta by telephone last night that they feared a mob would try to seize James today and asked protection.

The Governor called prison farm officials to tell them of the report. Captain F. R. Hargrove of the Baldwin Blues, local National Guard company, called about twenty men to the armory and told them to get into their equipment. He then called Adjutant General Camp in Atlanta and was told to go to the prison farm and confer with officials there.

After going to the farm, the Captain reported to the adjutant general that the reports were evidently "false alarms." He then sent his men home. State officials in Atlanta did not issue a troop mobilization order.

James was scheduled to die in the electric chair here tomorrow, but an appeal to the State Supreme Court stayed the sentence.

Lynchings - 1933
Prevented.

Illinois.

4416

✓

DUBUQUE (IA) HERALD-TIMES
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1933

Jail Mulatto After Alleged Attack on E. Dubuque Babe

Spirited to Galena After Angry Mob Gathers

Elmer Cornwell, alias Elmer Miller, 23, a mulatto, is in the Jo Daviess county jail at Galena, Ill., today following a mob scene at the East Dubuque jail Monday night in which a crowd of men and women, estimated at 150 to 200 persons, threatened to lynch him because of his alleged brutal attack upon a 15-months old baby earlier in the day.

The baby, Barbara Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin, "Babe" Grant, is at Mercy hospital in a serious condition, suffering from numerous bruises and possible bone fractures. Her condition was extremely critical at the time the incident was unearthed but slight improvement was reported by the attending physician late Monday. The baby is expected to live.

Cornwell was removed from the East Dubuque jail shortly after 9:30 o'clock Monday night to Galena after Marshall John Werner and Officer Frank Vogt of East Dubuque had conferred with county authorities at Galena regarding the size of the mob. Numerous threats of "lynch him", "turn him loose and we'll lynch him", "burn him at a stake", and "tar and feather him" were hurled at East Dubuque authorities by the mob during the questioning of the prisoner. No violence was used by any member of the menacing crowd while the prisoner was kept in the East Dubuque jail.

Spirited From Jail

Crowds of East Dubuquers gathered around the jail building shortly after 7 o'clock in the evening and grew larger until about 9 o'clock when the mob had reached its maximum size. When Cornwell was removed from the jail and taken to Galena by Sheriff John Ehrlers and a group of deputies, the prisoner was spirited safely through a rear door of the East Dubuque jail. He was taken to Galena in a speeding automobile driven by Sheriff Ehrlers. It was approximately ten minutes later before word spread among the mob that Cornwell had been taken to Galena.

Immediately after arriving at the Galena jail, Sheriff Ehrlers and States' Attorney Frank Sheean continued their questioning of Cornwell. The prisoner was alleged to have told several different stories concerning the attack.

The baby was found unconscious and covered from head to feet with bruises by Mrs. Grant when she returned from a visit to the East Dubuque business section Monday afternoon. Cornwell told Jo Daviess authorities that the baby had fallen from a baby carriage in the home. An investigation disclosed that Cornwell was alone with the baby at the time Mrs. Grant was away from the home.

Neighbors heard the commotion at the Roy Rapp home in the "flats" across the railroad tracks about a mile and a half from the East Dubuque business section, but paid no attention to the cries Mrs. Grant made when she discovered the badly hurt baby girl. Shortly afterward Mrs. Grant fled from the home and ran to the Frank Lester residence, about 300 feet from the Rapp home, and told her husband, with whom she has not lived since their wedding day about 14 months ago, about the attack on the baby.

Baby in Mercy Hospital

Grant ran to the Rapp home and later called East Dubuque officers and notified a Dubuque physician. The baby was immediately taken disclosed that the baby had been slapped, beaten, and pinched.

Marshal Werner revealed that Cornwell, who also had used the name Miller since he lived in East Dubuque the last two years, has been arrested before on theft and bootlegging charges. He also said Cornwell had been drinking when he was arrested Monday.

Mrs. Grant told authorities that she noticed bruises on the baby's body about a week ago for the firts time but that she failed to pay any particular attention to the injuries.

In the event the baby dies, State's Attorney Sheean said he would issue a murder warrant against Cornwell. Sheriff Ehrlers said the prisoner has changed his story several times since his arrest. No confession regarding his alleged beating of the baby had been made last Tuesday.

Married In 1932.

Grant, who is 21 years old, told a Telegraph-Herald and Times-Journal representative that he married Margaret Lucy in Galena, Feb. 14, 1932, but has not lived with her since the wedding took place.. He said she is 22 years old. The couple has never been divorced, he declares.

At the present time and since the time he has been married, Grant has been living at the home of Frank Lester, police judge in East Dubuque. Grant said that his wife has lived with her sister, Mrs. George (Louise) Hamilton and also in the Breson flats in East Dubuque since the wedding. About a week ago Grant said Mrs. Grant and Cornwell had taken up rooms at the Roy Rapp home in the East Dubuque "flats" and have been living together since that time.

Lynchings - 1933
Prevented.

Iowa.

4417

SIOUX CITY (IA) TRIBUNE
FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 1933

2 Alleged 'Con' Men Are 'Saved' From 'Lynching'

Excitement at Stockyards Friday as 'Necktie Party' Is Interrupted

Sioux City's usually peaceful stockyards Friday morning was cloaked in a wild western atmosphere as a group of 50 stockyards and commission men staged a

JOHN W. ROBERTS

"necktie" party with two men believed to be operating "con" games.

W. H. Radke, 37, and John W. Roberts, 39, were the objects of the yards men's wrath. It is alleged they have been working confidence games on farmers bringing cattle and hogs into Sioux City. Last week the pair was reported to have taken money from a farmer. Detectives recovered the cash.

Friday morning the two men appeared in the yards and were given a royal reception. Detectives Maurice Farley and Marcus Crost put in a timely appearance after a rope had been tied around Radke's neck and "saved" him.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, it was reported to the station there was disturbance at the yards. A radio call to Crost and Farley sent the officers to the scene.

The officers found a large crowd milling about. Radke had a noose around his neck. Yards men refused to give up their prisoners until after a free-for-all fight. Detective Farley exhibits a bruised knuckle as evidence.

W. H. RADKE

The detectives finally separated the alleged "con" men from the crowd and told them to "beat it." They took it on the run and were last seen heading toward the Missouri river. Detectives say the pair had taken quite a beating.

Both men have been in jail here several times. Roberts has a long record in the files at the police station. Radke was arrested here June 13, 1927, and fined $50 for operating a liquor nuisance. Octobe 10, 1923, he was found guilty o vagrancy and served a year's sentence [illegible] the county jail.

Kansas

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

4418

Kansas Ranch-Hand Confesses Pritchard Slaying

12-12-33

HUTCHINSON, KAN., Dec. 11.—(AP)—Jack Wisdom, 26, a cowboy, signed a statement this afternoon, Assistant County Attorney Eli Eubanks announced, that he kidnaped and killed Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard, of Wichita, Kan.

The statement, obtained at the Kansas State Reformatory, where Wisdom is held for safekeeping, did not mention "Buck" Smith who Wisdom had stated and their bullet-pierced and bloodstained car was found abandoned near Depew, Okla.

Wisdom, the object of a widespread search since then, was captured yesterday in a hill hideout south of Jay, Okla., and was taken hurriedly to Kingfisher to aid officers in the search for the bodies. Before he arrived there, however, a farmer had stumbled upon Mrs. Pritchard's body.

Wisdom, according to the statement, shot the couple to death and hid the bodies in Oklahoma because he feared prosecution on a worthless check for $21.40 which he had given the Wichita merchant.

Pritchard's body was found today beneath a culvert near El Reno, Okla., soon after Wisdom was rushed from Kingfisher, Okla., to Kansas for safekeeping. His wife's body was discovered yesterday in a culvert near Bison, Okla.

Mindful of recent lynchings in San Jose, Calif., and St. Joseph, Mo., Gov. William H. Murray, of Oklahoma, called out his National Guardsmen last night to forestall possible mob violence.

Wisdom was brought here secretly, and Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, expressed determination today to thwart any attempt to establish "lynch law" by calling out the Kansas guard if necessary.

Detective Capt. W. O. Lyle, of Wichita said Wisdom told him he did not kill Emery Lange, the elderly cowboy with whom he worked on a ranch in Meade County, Kansas. Lange's bullet-pierced body was found in a well Nov. 30, about two months after he had disappeared and Wisdom had told their rancher-employer, "the old man has quit."

Wisdom was quoted as saying he met "Buck Smith" in a Wichita pool hall and there hatched the plot against the Pritchards. He said the Pritchard car was halted near Wichita and Mrs. Pritchard was forced to drive to a point north of Wellington, Kan.,

The couple disappeared last Nov. 23

COWBOY KIDNAPER GETS PROTECTION

Governor Calls Out Military and Issues Orders 'Shoot to Kill if Necessary'

Macon Telegraph
Macon, Ga.

KINGFISHER, Okla., Dec. 10 (AP) National guardsmen were ordered out tonight to protect Jack Wisdom, 26-year-old cowboy, while scores of officers and citizens pressed a search for the body of Harry Pritchard, kidnaped merchant whose wife was found dead in a roadway culvert today.

12-11-33

Gov. W. H. Murray called for mobilization of two guard units "to prevent any mob action" against the young cowhand accused of kidnaping the Wichita, Kas., couple, Nov. 23, to evade police action against him for issuance of a worthless check for $21.40.

The governor ordered the immediate mobilization of batteries of the 189th field artillery at Enid and at Kingfisher, from where Kansas and Oklahoma officers were directing the search for the body of Pritchard.

Mrs. Pritchard's body was found near Kingfisher today shortly after Wisdom was arrested at Leach Prairie, in the eastern Oklahoma hills.

Military Takes Prisoner

"My understanding is a mob is forming at Wichita," said the governor, ordering that Kingfisher guardsmen take custody of Wisdom and in directing that the Enid battery proceed south on U. S. highway 81, toward Kingfisher to prevent violence.

12-11-33

"We don't want mobs in Oklahoma," said the governor.

Macon Telegraph
Macon, Ga.

Wichita officers, however, denied there was public manifestation of the mob spirit in that city.

Governor Murray said it was his understanding that Wisdom had confessed killing the Pritchards.

Upon receiving reports of contemplated violence, he telephoned authorities at Kingfisher to take charge of Wisdom at Okarche, 12 miles south of town, where the search centered at the time.

However, Wisdom was rushed northward through Kingfisher before the troops arrived.

"Shoot to Kill"

"I told the guardsmen to shoot to kill if necessary," said Governor Murray.

Each guard unit has a strength of 120 men.

With Wisdom in handcuffs along to aid them, officers tonight searched a wide area south of Kingfisher with lantern and motor car lights. Police said they were trying to follow Wisdom's instructions.

Members of the searching party once returned to Kingfisher after following a 35-mile trail and set out again over a new route. They said the cowboy was "bawled up in his directions."

Many citizens, armed with electric torches, joined the hunt. About 25 carloads participated in the preliminary stages and the searchers were being augmented rapidly.

Pleads for Protection

The officers, led by Sheriff Ed Martin of Kingfisher and Chief of Detectives W. O. Lyle of Wichita, were reluctant to discuss details of what Wisdom had told them, but it was reported they expected to find Pritchard's body under a bridge on an east and west road east of U. S. highway 81, perhaps in the region near Okarche.

Wisdom, a small, dark man, was understood to have pleaded with the officers for protection from violence and, while there was no evidence here of high feeling, the authorities were taking every precaution.

When first arrested in a hill hideaway south of Jay, several hundred miles east of Kingfisher, Wisdom told officers he knew nothing of the Pritchards' disappearance. However, in announcing the discovery of Mrs. Pritchard's body, Sheriff Joe Cavin of Enid said he was advised the cowboy had volunteered to help recover the bodies.

CONFESSION MADE BY JACK WISDOM

Telegraph

He Admits Murder of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard 'to Keep From Going to Jail'

12-12-33

HUTCHINSON, Kans., Dec. 11. (AP) Jack Wisdom, 26, a cowboy, signed a statement this afternoon, Assistant County Attorney Eli Eubanks announced, that he kidnaped and killed Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard of Wichita, Kans.

Macon Ga.

The statement, obtained at the Kansas state reformatory where Wisdom is held for safe-keeping, did not mention "Buck" Smith, who Wisdom had stated earlier killed the couple while he looked on.

Wisdom, according to the statement, shot the couple to death and hid the bodies in Oklahoma because he feared prosecution on a worthless check of $21.40 which he had given the Wichita merchant.

Text of Confession

The statement as made public by Eubanks, who is assistant district attorney at Wichita, read:

Q.—"Just relate the events leading up to the killing of Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard on Thursday, November 23, 1933.

A.—"Well, I met up with Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard there in the Pan-American cafe and he got onto me for this here check, and wanted the money right then and insisted on having it at the time or me going to jail, and I got out and tried to get the money for him but failed, and I couldn't get it. The only way I could think of to keep from going to jail was to make away with them, which I did on the road south of Wichita."

Q—"So you did form the intention of doing away with, or killing Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard in Sedgwick county, Kansas?"

A.—"Yes."

Q.—"And you carried out your designs or plans in Sumner county, Kansas, two or three miles north of Wellington?"

A.—"Yes, I, Jack Wisdom, make the above statement knowing full well the contents of the same and knowing that it may be used against me in case of trial. So help me God."

Telegraph

The statement was made public several hours after Detective Captain W. O. Lyle of Wichita announced Wisdom had reported the two were shot to death by "Buck Smith," apparently a fictitious character.

12-12-33

The cowboy was under heavy guard.

Pritchard's body was found today beneath a culvert near El Reno, Okla., soon after Wisdom was rushed from Kingfisher, Okla., to Kansas for safekeeping. His wife's body was discovered yesterday in a culvert near Bison, Okla.

Macon Ga.

Wisdom was quoted as confessing he had a dual motive—robbery and retaliation for a threat by Pritchard to prosecute unless he made good a check given at Pritchard's store in Wichita which was returned marked "no funds."

Murder of Large Denied

Mindful of recent lynchings in San Jose, Calif., and St. Joseph, Mo., Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma, called out his national guardsmen last night to forestall possible mob violence.

Wisdom was brought here secretly, and Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas expressed determination today to thwart any attempt to establish "lynch law" by calling out the Kansas guard if necessary.

Captain Lyle said Wisdom told him he did not kill Emery Large, the elderly cowboy with whom he worked on a ranch in Meade county, Kansas. Large's bullet-pierced body was found in a well November 30, about two months after he had disappeared and Wisdom had told their rancher-employer, "the old man has quit."

Wisdom was quoted as saying he met "Buck Smith" in a Wichita pool hall and there hatched the plot against the Pritchards. He said the Pritchard car was halted near Wichita and Mrs. Pritchard was forced to drive to a point north of Wellington, Kans.

The couple disappeared last November 23 and their bullet-pierced and bloodstained car was found abandoned near Depew, Okla.

Wisdom, the object of a widespread search since then, was captured yesterday in a hill hideout south of Jay, Okla., and was taken hurriedly to Kingfisher to aid officers in the search for the bodies. Before he arrived there, however, a farmer had stumbled upon Mrs. Pritchard's body.

Relatives of the couple established their identity before a coroner's jury at El Reno, which found that a gunshot wound through the right cheek had caused Pritchard's death and that Mrs. Pritchard died from a wound in the right breast. The bodies were removed to Kansas this afternoon after Wisdom had said the slayings took place north of Wellington, Kans.

Cowboy Killer Begins Life Sentence After Confessing Murder Of Three

Advertiser 12-13-33

Montgomery Ala

WICHITA, KAN., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Jack Wisdom, slayer of three persons, was on his way to the Kansas State Penitentiary tonight to spend the remainder of his life at hard labor for the murder of Harry Pritchard, Wichita merchant, slain with his wife Nov. 23.

The 26-year-old cowboy pleaded guilty here late today to a charge of first degree murder in the merchant's death and was promptly speeded out of town in an automobile for Lansing.

Fearing mob violence, Wisdom was brought secretly to Wichita from the reformatory at Hutchinson under heavy guard and by equally secret prearrangement was arraigned and taken before District Judge Rober L. NeSmith to plead guilty.

The entire proceeding required less than 20 minutes.

M. S. Wiggins, superintendent of the reformatory who accompanied the prisoner to Wichita, said that during the drive here Wisdom admitted he also killed E. J. Large, elderly Meade County ranch hand last Summer.

Wiggins quoted Wisdom as saying he shot Large during a quarrel over differences in a card game Sept. 30. Wisdom long had been suspected of the murder but steadfastly had denied it since his capture. D. J. Wilson, Meade County attorney, held a warrant charging Wisdom with murder in that case.

Large's body was found Nov. 29, buried in a dry well on the ranch. Questioned concerning Large's disappearance, Levitt Johnson, ranch proprietor, quoted Wisdom as saying "the old fellow has quit."

Inasmuch as Large's suitcase also had disappeared, Johnson accepted the explanation until Wisdom's name was linked with disappearance of the Pritchards and a search of the ranch resulted in finding the body.

Wisdom was suspected of murdering the Pritchards in their car on a highway near here soon after their disappearance. An intensive hunt ended in his capture near Jay, Okla., last Sunday morning. On the same day, the body of Mrs. Pritchard was found concealed in a culvert near Bison, Okla., and yesterday Mr. Pritchard's body was found, also in a culvert, near El Reno, Okla.

The police theory throughout was that Wisdom killed the couple rather than be surrendered to officers on a charge of issuing a worthless check in the amount of $21.40 which Pritchard had cashed for him.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Dec. 11 (AP). —Jack Wisdom, 26, a cowboy, signed a statement this afternoon, Assistant County Attorney Eli Eubanks announced, that he kidnapped and killed Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard of Wichita.

The statement, obtained at the Kansas State Reformatory, where Wisdom is held for safekeeping, did not mention "Buck" Smith, who Wisdom had stated earlier killed the couple while he looked on.

Wisdom, according to the statement, shot the couple to death and his the bodies in Oklahoma because he feared prosecution on a worthless check for $21.40 which he had given the Wichita merchant.

The statement as made public by Mr. Eubanks, who is Assistant District Attorney at Wichita, read:

Q.—Just relate the events leading up to the killing of Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard on Thursday, Nov. 23, 1933. A.—Well, I met up with Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard there in the Pan-American Cafe and he got onto me for this here check, and wanted the money right then and insisted on having it at the time or me going to jail, and I got out and tried to get the money for him but failed, and I couldn't get it. The only way I could think of to keep from going to jail was to make away with them, which I did on the road south of Wichita.

Q.—So you did form the intention of doing away with, or killing Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard in Sedgwick County, Kansas? A.—Yes. signs or plans in Sumner County, Q.—And you carried out your de- Kansas, two or three miles north of Wellington? A.—Yes. I, Jack Wisdom, make the above statement knowing full well the contents of the same and knowing that it may be used against me in case of trial. So help me God.

Pritchard's Body Found.

Pritchard's body was found today beneath a culvert near El Reno, Okla., soon after Wisdom was rushed from Kingfisher, Okla, to Kansas. His wife's body was discovered yesterday in a culvert near Bison, Okla.

Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma called out his National Guardsmen last night to forestall possible mob violence.

Wisdom was brought here secretly, and Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas expressed determination today to thwart any attempt to establish "lynch law" by calling out the Kansas Guard is necessary.

Detective Captain W. O. Lyle of Wichita said that iWsdom told him he did not kill Emery Large, the elderly cowboy with whom he worked on a ranch in Meade County, Kan. Large's bullet-pierced body was found in a well Nov. 30.

Wisdom was captured yesterday in a hill hidout south of Jay, Okla.

Relatives of the Pritchards established the identity of the bodies before a Coroner's jury at El Reno, which found that a gunshot wound through the right cheek had caused Pritchard's death and that Mrs. Pritchard died from a wound in the right breast. The bodies were removed to Kansas this afternoon.

LYNCHING THREATS FOLLOW DISCOVERY OF WOMAN'S BODY

Constitution 12-11-33

Farmer's Wife, Dead 3 Weeks, Found Under Culvert; Suspect Leads Posse in Unsuccessful Hunt for Husband's Body

Ga.

WICHITANS SPEED TO SCENE IN AUTOS

Couple and Farm Hand Disappeared Three Weeks Ago; Bogus Check Charge Believed Motive.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 10.—(UP) A Kansas lynch mob raced into Oklahoma tonight determined to wrest Jack Wisdom, a farm hand, from the hands of officers he had directed in a search for the body of one of three persons whom he was suspected of slaying.

The threat of mob violence, manifesting itself for the sixth time in the nation within a month, was inspired by a series of crimes in which Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard, Wichita couple, and Emory Large, a farm hand, were the latest victims.

Wisdom led a posse to a place near Kingfisher, Okla., where he confessed, officers said, to hiding Pritchard's body, but it was not found. Earlier in the day, a hunter found Mrs. Pritchard's body under a culvert north of Kingfisher while detectives with the suspect in their custody sped to the gruesome cache.

Governor William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray ordered two companies of the Oklahoma National Guard to protect the police and their prisoner from angry Kansans reported speeding to seize and hang Wisdom.

Open Lynching Threats Made.

Open threats of a lynching were made by Witchitans after suspicion fastened upon Wisdom. The couple had been missing three weeks.

Early today, when Wisdom was arrested at the remote farm home of his brother-in-law near Leach, Okla., the mob began forming.

By mid-afternoon 500 automobiles bearing potential lynchers had assembled.

Leaders had procured a long rope. The mob formed the automobiles into procession in the stockyards district of Wichita, where Pritchard, a clothing merchant, was well known and popular.

Word came that Mrs. Pritchard's body had been found and that Wisdom himself was with a posse searching for the merchant's body.

Murmurs of "let's go and get him" were heard. At nightfall the motorcade departed.

Meantime, Wisdom returned with Captain W. O. Lyle, of the Wichita detective bureau, to Kingfisher, Okla., approximately 120 miles south of Wichita.

Officers refused to disclose their plans for holding Wisdom in view of the mob threats. Earlier they had planned to remove him to Kansas penitentiary at Lansing for safe-keeping. Governor William Murray, of Oklahoma, ordered troops to protect the prisoner.

Hunted by a posse of more than 20,000 Kansans and Oklahomans during a three weeks' period, Wisdom surrendered without resistance when awakened by possemen at his brother-in-law's home.

Pritchard had filed a charge accusing Wisdom of passing a $21 worthless check. That, according to officers, was the farm hand's only motive for abducting and slaying the couple. The Pritchards were last seen alive on the Wichita-Wellingoon highway accompanied by Wisdom, November 23.

Blood-Stained Car Found.

The couple's blood-stained car was found eight days later near Bristow, Okla., 120 miles south of Wellington.

The body of Large, a co-worker with Wisdom on the L. W. Johnson ranch near Meade, Kan., was found in a dry well on the ranch November 29. Eleven head of Johnson's cattle had disappeared. Police suspected Wisdom of cattle rustling and killing Large to prevent him from talking.

When taken to Jay, Okla., from Leach, Wisdom admitted being with the Pritchards the night they disappeared. It was not until after hours of questioning that he blurted out to Captain Lyle:

"Take me to Kingfisher and I may be able to find their bodies."

The 250-mile dash across the state with the prisoner started shortly before noon. Captain Lyle telephoned from Claremore to headquarters here that he was en route to Kingfisher.

The mob, puzzled by this development, organized the motorcade.

Meantime, a strange coincidence in the case developed. C. C. Cooksey, state highway department employe, his wife and son, were hunting rabbits near Bison, 16 miles southwest of Enid. Pursuing a rabbit into a culvert on a gravel county road, Cooksey stepped back aghast when he saw a decomposed body under the culvert.

He called Sheriff Joe Cavins at Enid, who in turn telephoned to Wichita police. Detective W. L. McLemar and Department of Justice Agent C. C. Suran left for Enid.

Body Identified.

The body was taken to the Brown undertaking parlor at Enid, where Wichita officers identified it as that of Mrs. Pritchard. They said she had been shot through the right side and the Garfield county physician estimated the body had been under the culvert two weeks.

Wisdom, meantime, accompanied by officers, reached Kingfisher shortly before 6 p. m. He led a posse to a point 16 miles south of Kingfisher where he believed, Captain Lyle said, he had hidden the merchant's body. For two hours the posse, equipped with searchlights, hunted over the area, but was unsuccessful.

Within a half hour after he had received a report of the mob, the governor had thrown the state's military into motion to make good his recent assertions that never while he was governor would such mobs occur as recently lynched prisoners at San Jose, Cal., and St. Joseph, Mo.

When the San Jose lynching took place, Murray severely criticised California authorities, declaring that officials themselves were often responsible for mob action.

Tonight's mobilization was the 20th time the fiery "Alfalfa Bill" had resorted to military action to enforce state laws.

Only 10 days ago he called out the state troops to seize tickets for the University of Oklahoma-Oklahoma A & M. football game, to investigate alleged fraud in ticket sales.

Lynchings—1933
Prevented.

Kansas.

4419

Kansas Negro Jailer Gives His Life In Foiling Escape of Bank Robber

Constitution
11-30-33
Atlanta, Ga.

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A negro, Benjamin J. Davidson, gave his life to prevent the escape from the Shawnee county jail last night of Cecil Thornburgh, white, bank and postoffice robber.

Soon after the 53-year-old negro jailer was slugged and then fatally wounded with his own pistol, a menacing crowd gathered outside the jail and Thornburgh was hurried to the state penitentiary at Lansing.

Captain George Reid, of the Topeka police department, reporting the safe arrival with Thornbrugh at the prison, said the Kansas desperado admitted the shooting of the negro.

Thornbrugh slugged the jailer in a room in which he and other prisoners were confined, free from their cells. The two battled for possession of Davidson's pistol in his holster, Davidson fighting desperately, although stunned.

The desperado wrested the pistol from Davidson and fired three times, two shots entering the negro's chest. One went wild.

With his waning strength, Davidson shouted for help and grappled with his younger assailant. He tossed Thornbrugh backward down the steps from the upper cell tier, the prisoner being knocked unconscious when he struck his head on one of the steel steps.

Officers found the pair, with the jailer lying across Thornbrugh's body. Thornbrugh was treated at a hospital, returned to jail and then, as the mob gathered, rushed to the prison. Davidson died on the way to a hospital.

When assigned as night jailer, Davidson had promised his superiors: "A prisoner will kill me before he gets away."

He made good that promise.

the state penitentiary at Lansing.

Capt. George Reid, of the Topeka Police Department, reporting the safe arrival with Thornburg at the prison, said the Kansas desperado admitted shooting the Negro.

The Kansas House of Representatives, in special session at the State House a few blocks away, approved a measure for the return of capital punishment.

Thornburgh slugged the jailer in a room in which he and other prisoners were confined, free from their cells. The two battled for possession of Davidson's pistol in his holster, Davidson fighting desperately although stunned.

The desperado wrested the pistol from Davidson and fired three times, two shots entering the Negro's chest. One went wild.

With his waning strength, Davidson shouted for help and grappled with his younger assailant. He tossed Thornburgh backward down the steps from the upper cell tier, the prisoner being knocked unconscious when he struck his head on one of the steel steps.

Officers found the pair, with the jailer lying across Thornburgh's body. Thornburgh was treated at a hospital, returned to jail and then, as the mob gathered, rushed to the prison. Davidson died on the way to a hospital.

JAILER KILLED IN CHECKING ESCAPE

News
11-28-33
Birmingham, Ala.

Prisoner-Slayer Hurried Away To Kansas Penitentiary For Safekeeping

TOPEKA, Kan.—(AP)—A Negro, Benjamin J. Davidson, gave his life to prevent the escape from the Shawnee County jail Tuesday night of Cecil Thornburgh, white, bank and postoffice robber.

Soon after the 53-year old Negro jailer was slugged and then fatally wounded with his own pistol, a menacing crowd gathered outside the jail and Thornburgh was hurried to

---

An Act Of Heroism By A Kansas Jailer

World
12-2-33
Birmingham, Ala.

When he was given the job as night guard at the Shawnee County Jail in Kansas, Benjamin J. Davidson, a Negro, told his superiors, "A prisoner will kill me before he gets away." Tuesday night Davidson had an opportunity to keep his word.

It happened that a desperate prisoner, convicted as a bank and postoffice robber, was locked in the Shawnee County Jail. His name was Cecil Thornburgh. According to The Associated Press dispatch, "Thornburgh slugged the jailer in a room in which he and other prisoners were confined, free of their cells. The two battled for possession of Davidson's pistol in his holster, Davidson fighting desperately though stunned. The desperado wrested the pistol from Davidson and fired three times, two shots entering the Negro's chest."

But the jailer, though he was 53 years old, did not forget the promise he had made. After shouting for help, he grappled with the prisoner and finally was able to toss him down a row of steps. Running to the scene, relief officers found Davidson, stunned and fatally wounded, lying across the unconscious body of Thornburgh. The jailer died on the way to a hospital, and the prisoner was carried to the state penitentiary at Lansing for safe keeping.

Just now, when one hears so many instances of lack of courage on the part of officials entrusted with the care of prisoners, the story of Benjamin J. Davidson should not go unrecorded. In various states, there have been recent horrible lynchings which might have been prevented if all the persons entrusted with a legal duty in each of the cases had carried through their obligations as thoroughly as did this humble jailer in Kansas.

It is true that Kansas episode cannot be compared exactly with the lynching cases in other states. The Shawnee County jailer was faced with the problem of preventing an escape. In the other three instances, the problem was that of protecting a prisoner from persons determined to defeat the regular course of justice. But the similarity emerges in the fact that officers of the law are under an obligation to see that prisoners in their care are safely presented for trial in the regular courts.

Perhaps it would not have been necessary for Davidson to have gone to the extreme of sacrificing his life in preventing the escape of Thornburgh. Not many jailers would have gone that far. But there is an undeniable inspiration in his heroic fight to maintain the integrity of the law.

The Rope And The Faggot Rule?

Associate Editor The Advertiser

Advertiser
12-3-33
Montgomery, Ala.

Lynching was a popular pastime in these United States last week.

More persons condoned the lynchings in California and in Missouri than condemned them. There may be those who shrink from the record. There may be those who cry out "But the right-thinking people deplored the lynchings."

Certainly it would look better for the permanent record of these turbulent times if most persons did condemn the outbreak of indignation, the rule of mob spirit which broke out in the West and in the East, but most persons did not speak out against the lynchings.

The truth is, most people applauded the lynchings!

Of course, it can be explained why men and women of usually sound judgment, men and women who shudder at the sight of spilled blood, condoned the hanging of the two kidnapers of the murdered California youth, and the burning to death of a Negro who assaulted a white woman in Missouri.

Americans are extremists. The history of the prohibition law illustrates how the American mind works, if it does not explain why. America went from the open saloon to absolute dryness. And from dryness it went extremely wet—before repeal. The country now is in danger of leaping to another extreme with reference to liquor.

Just so, it has been with law enforcement. Americans saw the racketeer grow and flourish. They saw crooked bankers using "other people's money." That was the Era of Tolerance. Nearly everybody had plenty. Everybody thought perhaps something should be done to put a stop to racketeering and the growth of other criminal professions as well as the increase in non-professional crime. But nobody seemed to care enough to go into court and testify honestly and courageously on the witness stand. Nobody seemed to care enough to give necessary information to the police. Nobody seemed to care enough to sit on a jury and convict known public enemies.

Everybody thought something should be done to put a stop to crime. But nobody—that is to say, not enough persons cared enough to do their small part.

Officers of the law, for the most part, were honest and efficient and courageous in tracking down criminals.

Officers of the courts, for the most part, were honest and efficient and courageous in presenting what evidence they could gather before juries.

But the people, though honest, were either too cowardly or too busy looking after their own individual interests to testify in court and to convict by jury.

Then there came the agencies which in the name of mercy did everything in their power to thwart justice motivated by the desire to inflame the spirit of anarchy, to cause an outbreak against established law and order.

Such an agency found its first case of international interest in Alabama—the trial of the Scottsboro Negroes. Alabamians are thoroughly familiar with the tactics of the trouble-making agencies in Alabama. They know that it succeeded in so inflaming mob spirit in Tuscaloosa that three Negroes were lynched within one week.

* * * *

America stood by and mildly "deplored" for years, as it saw gangster chieftains beat the raps, crooked investment house presidents exonerated, murderers acquitted, rapists waxing fat in comfortable prisons while shrewd lawyers called for delay after delay.

We should have known what was coming, so consistent is the cycle of the American mind. We should have known that one of these days the people would rise up, impatient with slow justice, outraged by brutal crime and take the law into its own hands—for better or for worse.

That is what America did last week. It rose up and took the law into its own hands. It swept past the sheriff and the courts and the official hangman and executed—by rope and gunpowder and fire—prisoners guilty of brutal crimes.

The political demagogue who counts votes above principle, election to office above the interests of the people, his own pocketbook and stomach above the future of established law and order, could have done well for himself last week by applauding the lynchings in California and in Missouri and the actions of the mad mob in Maryland.

Indeed, if there are gentlemen so inclined, they might make statements this week, explaining away the right of mob rule. And mob rule can be explained away. The people are in a temper to agree with paste board leaders who will applaud the San Jose mob, Governor Rolph and the braggart 18-year-old San Jose boys who are claiming the "credit and glory" of spurring the mobsters into action.

The lynching spirit seems to be the popular spirit. No man need fear to speak out in favor of the California lesson. About nine out of ten persons with whom the writer has talked during the last three days were in hearty accordance with the views of California's Governor, Rolph, and nearly all of the persons with whom the writer talked were those the speakers at ladies afternoon tea clubs call Right Thinkers. All of them were above average intelligence. Few of them could be called narrow-gauged.

* * * *

The chief argument in favor of lynchings is the ancient excuse: "The law is too slow. The guilty escape too often in the courts."

There are other excuses for lynchings, most of them are elaborate and almost logical.

The popular mind seems to have graspel all that might be said in favor of lynching and has overlooked the REAL reason why even the most "excusable" of lynchings can never be justified in the eyes of society.

Lynchings are brutal, it is true. But one must admit that the San Jose mob was not bent on brutality, that its members were not sadistic creatures—but normal men possessed of humane qualities under normal conditions.

Mobs sometimes get the wrong person, it is true. But one must admit that the mobs of last week did not murder innocent men. They lynched brutes guilty of horrible crimes.

But push emotion aside. For those who argue against lynchings .can be guilty of indulging in maudlin sentimental gush just as can those who lynch and condone lychings indulge in emotional orgies.

No tears need be shed for the victims of the mobs last week. If men deserve death for crime those men certainly deserved death.

But there are chances of mobs killing the wrong person. The San Jose mob almost took an innocent man when it searched for the killer of Brooke Hart. Mobs have been known to get the wrong man. And mobs have killed more innocent men than have the courts.

Yet the condonation of one "justified" lynching can and did cause other lynchings.

And it could do more than that.

Once men believe that they can take the law into their own hands with impunity, they will do so. They have done it in the past. They will in the future.

And once men believe that they can flaunt established law procedure, some men will begin to use the rule of rope and fagot to settle personal grievances, to become a law unto themselves, to intimidate, to murder—even as a means to take property.

People have been protected by Government so long that they do not realize what protection they have been and are receiving from it.

Even during the recent years of extreme tolerance toward crime and criminals government has offered protection that the average person does not appreciate and cannot appreciate because he has never known life without government.

The lynchings last week may have been outcries from the people for reformation in the courts.

It was the duty of Governor Rolph of California to promise to do everything in his power to bring about reformation in California courts if that is what the people want.

He took an opposite stand. He not only condoned the lynchings. He applauded them.

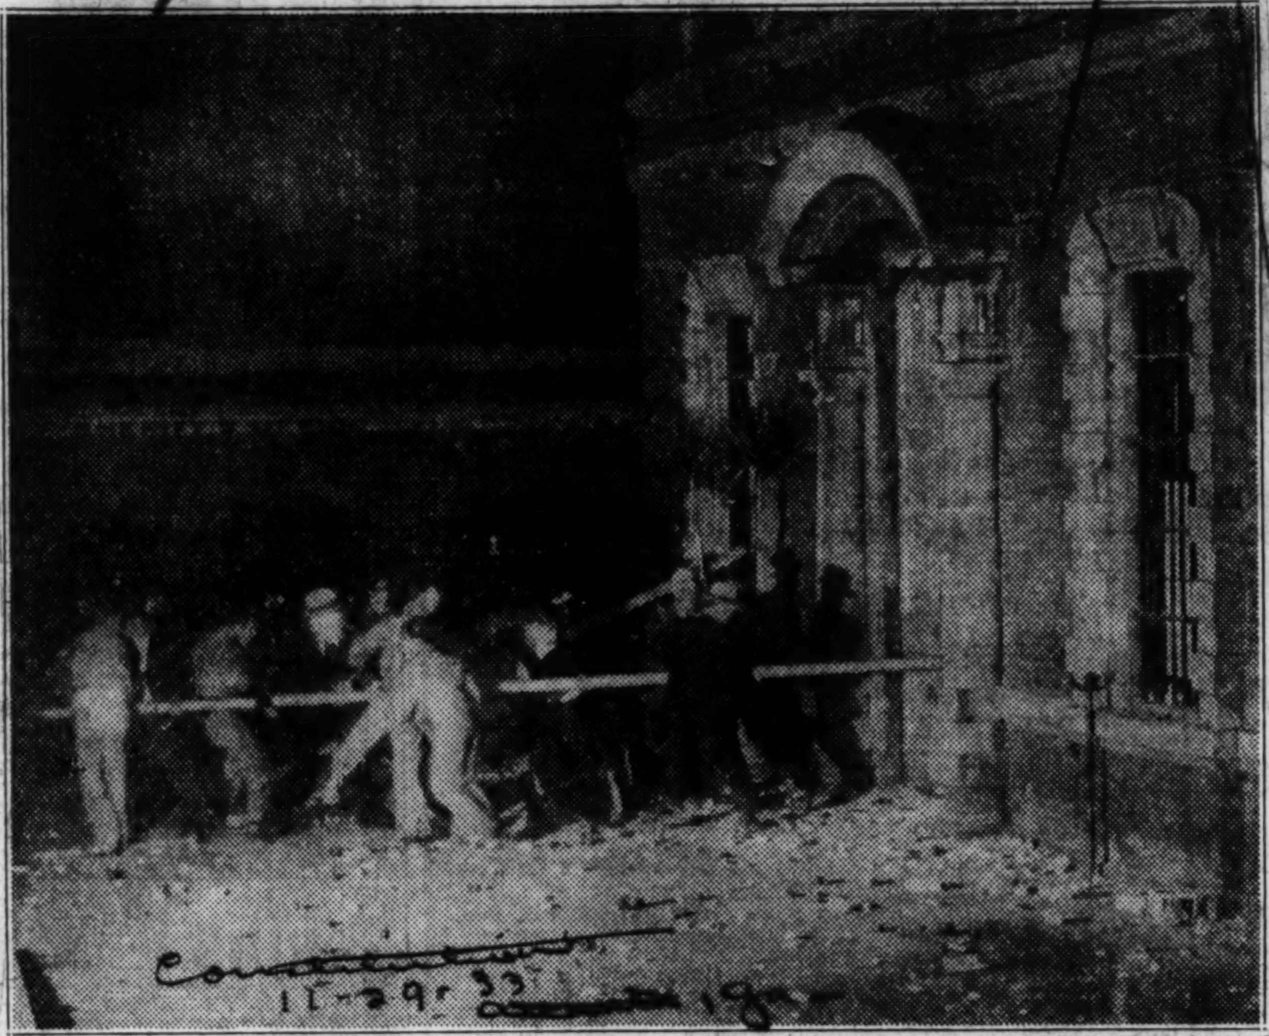
Such sentiment is in direct contrast to the thought and effort which made it possible for the State of California to have a Governor—invested with the power to guard over the interest of the people. If vigilante rule had continued in California, there would be no Governor in California today. There would be no government in California today. The law of the rope and the fagot would rule.

Men cannot applaud "justifiable" lynchings without applauding the spirit of anarchy.

A lynching cannot be seen as the mere killing of men who should be killed.

A lynching must be seen as a mad onrush of mob rule which once out of control, threatens the very homes and firesides which mobsmen and their sympathizers like to think of themselves as protecting.

Family of San Jose Lynching Victim To Sue Governor Rolph, of California, for Million



Constitution
11-29-33

A. P. Photo.

Mob leaders battering at the doors of the county jail at San Jose from which Thomas H. Thurmond and John M. Holmes, alleged kidnapers of Brooke L. Hart, were taken and lynched November 26. The mob used two lengths of heavy pipe, about 30 feet long, to batter through the steel doors of the jail.

SAN JOSE, Cal., ~~Nov. 29.—(UP)~~ Public [illegible] apparently was agreed that Jack Holmes an Thomas Thurmond met a justified fate when they were lynched in a public square Sunday [illegible]

11-29-33

Members of Holmes' family, however, were preparing to institute a $1,000,000 damage suit against Governor [illegible] Rolph Jr. and other public officials, contending that the governor "incited" the lynching.

Ga.

Announcement of the [illegible] was made by Vincent W. Hallinan and Nathan C. Coghlan, who had been retained as counsel for Holmes last Saturday.

Governor Rolph, they said, will be charged with inciting the lynching of the two men on the ground "that his public statement before the lynching inflamed the mob spirit and caused the hangings; that after the mob began storming the jail, he refused to uphold the law as sworn to do as the state's chief executive; that after th lynching he condoned the crime of mol violence."

Officials of Santa Clara county an of the city of San Jose will be charge with failure to take proper precau tions to prevent the mob from seizin Holmes, the attorneys said. San Fra cisco authorities likewise will b named in the damage action becaus they permitted Holmes and Thurmon to be transferred from the city priso there [illegible] the San Jose [illegible] com[illegible] against them, " violation of law whereby the prisoner were exposed to the lynching."

Constitution

The attorneys, in their [illegible] charged that there [illegible] "grave ques tion of doubt whether or not an inno cent man was hanged when Holme was lynched." The [illegible] evidenc against [illegible] said, was th confessi[illegible] made to [illegible].

11-29-33
Atlanta
Ga.

"Every time Holmes [illegible] an opportunity to speak unhampered," the statement said, "he asserted the confesison was obtained from him by third-degree police tactics. He claimed the officers threatened to turn him over to the mob for lynching if he did not confess. His innocence or guilt is beside the point. The claim for damages rests on the failure of officers to protect him from violence and guarantee him a fair trial."

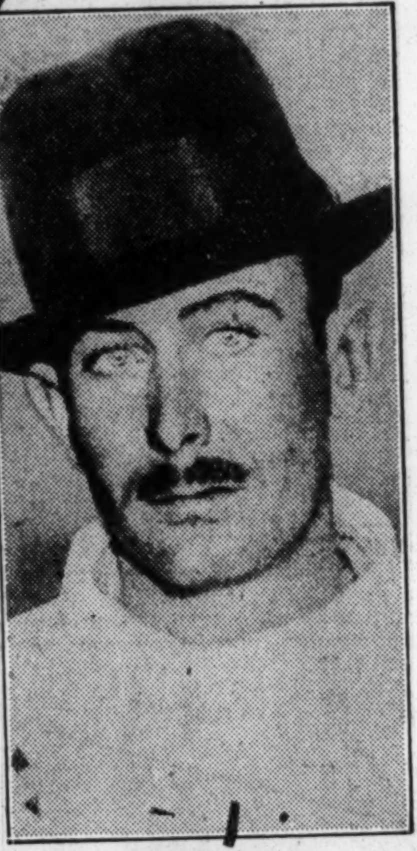
Santa Clara officials stood with Governor Rolph and admitted openly that possible prosecution of the mob leaders is remote.

They pointed out that the leaders must be identified and that apparently no one is willing to name the men who were in the forefront when the jail was stormed.

District Attorney Fred L. Thomas described as youthful boasting the claims of Anthony Catalbi, 18, and Ray Spencer, 17, both of whom claimed to have led the mob. Other men and boys who were in the crowd disputed the claims fo Catalbi and Spencer.

Holmes' father continued today to protest that his son was innocent. The father said that Holmes' movements on the night of November 9, when he allegedly kidnaped and killed Brooke Hart, could be traced definitely to prove his innocence. Members of the family say Holmes was

Killer Starts Life Term



JACK WISDOM

LANSING, KAN., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The identity of Jack Wisdom, 26-year-old cowboy triple slayer, was swallowed up in the routine of penitentiary life here [illegible] while at Cedarvale Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pritchard, [illegible] victims, were buried.

Sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of Pritchard, [illegible] had threatened Wisdom with prosecution on a forged check charge, the new prisoner said he had "no regrets" and expressed a willingness "to do my best here."

Wisdom also confessed he killed Emery J. [illegible], a fellow worker on the Levitt Johnson ranch in Meade County, during a [illegible] over a card game.

At Cedarvale, stores were closed upon arrival of the funeral party from Wichita, Kan., where Pritchard operated a store at which the $21.40 forged check was passed. Services were held earlier in the day at Wichita. Surviving the Pritchards is their 15-year-old daughter, Charlene.

Advertiser
12-14-33
Montgomery
Ala.

Lynchings - 1933
6
Prevented

Kentucky

4420

SHERIFF FOILS MOBS

Successfully Removes Negroes To Other Jails To Prevent Trouble

12-22-33

HICKMAN, Ky.— (INS) —Foiling two mobs that threatened to storm the county jail here, Sheriff Johnson Thursday had successfully removed two Negro prisoners to safety in other cities.

Monroe Irvine, who was accused of beating Walter Harris, 53, storekeeper, probably fatally and of robbing him, was taken to Paducah jail as 200 angry citizens gathered at the jail openly announcing they were after him.

Banner

Daze Freeman, arrested as Irvine's accomplice, was spirited into Tennessee several hours later as another mob formed. Officers said they headed toward Reelfoot Lake to throw the mob off the trail, after they were tipped the road to Paducah was blocked.

The merchant may die from his wounds.

It was the third time in 24 hours that mobs had threatened prisoners in Kentucky. Tuesday night a prisoner at Beattyville was rushed to Richmond to escape possible violence.

MOVE SUSPECT AGAIN

Believe Hickman Negro Now Safe At Eddyville

Commercial Appeal

12-24-33

MAYFIELD, Ky., Dec. 23.—Dave Freeman, 40, one of two Hickman negroes held for the attack and robbery of Walter Harris, Hickman storekeeper, was removed from the Graves County jail late this afternoon. Two deputies left with Freeman at 3:30 o'clock, presumably for Eddyville.

Twelve national guardsmen of Company L, local military unit, went off duty at dawn today after patrolling the jail all night. Reports of a mob forming at Hickman were received early last night. As an emergency, Chief of Police J. C. Byrn asked the guardsmen to surround the jail where Freeman had been for safekeeping since early Thursday morning.

Meanwhile, Chief Byrn had a message from William L. Patterson, New York, that "two hundred thousand members of the International Labor Defense are expecting you to protect Freeman."

FEELING HIGH IN ATTACK

Commercial Appeal

Negro Taken to Paducah Jail After Beating Merchant

HICKMAN, Ky., Dec. 20.—Monroe Irvine, 35-year-old negro, was rushed out of Fulton County this afternoon by Sheriff Leander Johnson and deputies, to safekeeping at the McCracken County jail at Paducah, following threats of mob violence, after a brutal attack on Walter Harris, storekeeper of East Hickman.

12-21-33

About noon today Irvine was seen in Harris' little store, when the last customer departed and left the negro alone in the store with the proprietor. A little later, Walter Fethe and Floyd Speed entered the store and found Harris lying on the floor in a pool of blood, with his head badly battered in with the butt end of an army rifle, found nearby. Money was found scattered around, as if a desperate struggle had occurred. The men summoned the sheriff.

Nearby residents reported seeing the negro leave the store in a hurry. Irvine was finally located in a negro home about a block from the Harris store. He had barricaded himself in his room and the officers had to break down the door to arrest him.

When it was reported that Harris was dying, open threats were made to reach Irvine, so he was hustled out of the county.

Harris was brought to the Morrison Baker Hospital, where it was reported he was in a critical condition, with his skull fractured in several places. Harris is nearly 70 years of age and has no family.

GUARDSMEN CALLED OUT AT MAYFIELD

Commercial Appeal

Patrol Jail Grounds to Prevent a Possible Lynching

12-23-33

MAYFIELD, Ky., Dec. 22.—Twelve members of Company L, of the Mayfield National Guard, patrolled the grounds around the jail here tonight as a precautionary measure against a possible attempt to lynch Dave Freeman, negro held here by officers in connection with an attack on Walter Harris, Hickman merchant, two days ago.

The guardsmen were called out by Chief of Police J. C. Byrn, who said that he had authority to take such steps in "an emergency." Chief Byrn said that he had asked Circuit Judge J. E. Warren to order the negro removed to another jail when it was learned that a mob might move on the jail here tonight, but added that the judge refused to act.

Freeman was arrested at Hickman shortly after his brother-in-law, Monroe Irvine was jailed for the attack and robbery of Harris. Freeman was said to have hidden the money which Irving allegedly stole. Irvine was taken to the Paducah jail.

Threats were made at Hickman Wednesday night to lynch Freeman if Irvine was not produced. The mob dispersed after Freeman had been brought here.

Smuggle Two Men Out of Town to Escape Mob Peril

Defender

12-30-33

Chicago

HICKMAN, Ky., Dec. 23.—Two Race men, threatened with mob violence, were smuggled out of Fulton county Thursday and taken to the jail at Paducah for safekeeping. Monroe Irvine, charged with attacking and robbing Walter Harris, 53 years old, was transported to Paducah early on Wednesday night by deputy sheriffs, who followed a circuitous route so as to avoid a band gathered on the main road.

Irvine's brother-in-law, Daze Freeman, accused of receiving the money stolen from Harris, was slipped out of the Fulton county jail on Wednesday night late, after groups of men congregating in front of the jail, told Deputy Sheriff Joe Walls that if they couldn't get Irvine they would take Freeman.

Kentucky Lynchers Threaten 2 Negroes

Workers Arrested on Charge of Robbery

Daily Worker

HICKMAN, Ky., Dec. 21.—An armed gang of lynchers gathered here today in an attempt to intercept a sheriff's car taking two Negro workers, charged with robbery, out of Fulton County to the McCracken County jail at Paducah for "safe-keeping."

12-23-33

New York

Monroe Irving, one of the two workers, is charged with attacking and robbing Walter Harris, a white man. Irving's brother-in-law, Daze Freeman, was also arrested, charged with receiving stolen money.

Small groups gathered last night in front of the Fulton County jail, told Deputy Sheriff Joe Walls that if they couldn't get Irving, "they would take Freeman."

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

Louisiana

4421

Sheriff Protects Negro From Louisiana Mob

Advertiser
Montgomery, Ala.
10-16-33

THIBODEAUX, LA., Oct. 14.—(AP)—An attempt by a group of about 75 men to take from the jail here a negro held for the killing of a white man was thwarted last night by Sheriff Thomas Stark and other officers.

The negro pleaded guilty recently to robbing and killing a man named Lejeune at Donner and had been in jail at Houma, but was transferred here for safekeeping.

When Sheriff Stark learned that the group was collecting at the jail last night he armed himself and took up a post at the entrance with several other officers.

He warned the men that if they attempted to enter he would shoot. The men stayed nearby for several hours, but finally dispersed.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
STATES

OCT 18 1933

As to Lynchings

NINETY-NINE times out of a hundred lynchings are preventable, as Sheriff Stark, at Thibodaux, demonstrated the other night, when, with only two assistants standing with him, he sent a mob on its way, with a simple notification to its leaders that any attempt to break into the jail to take out a negro prisoner would be at their peril.

Further proof of what we say is furnished in a pamphlet issued by the Tennessee Interracial Commission giving the text of the addresses delivered on the occasion of the presentation of a sheriff's medal to Mrs. J. C. Butler, of Huntington, Carroll county, in that state.

When a mob gathered about the Huntington jail to attempt the summary execution of a negro murderer, Mrs. Butler, wife of the sheriff, was asleep on the second floor of the prison and the sheriff absent. She heard the tramp of the members of the mob in the jail yard. She hurried downstairs and met them at the front door. They met her with a demand for the prisoner. "You can't put anything like that over me," she bravely answered.

When members of the mob made as if to force their way into the jail, she flung back at them, with a gun, the defi, "If you enter here it will only be over my dead body." Whereupon the mob recoiled, fearing to lose any of its members, and quietly slunk away, and the life of the prisoner was saved—the majesty of the law upheld.

It needs only for sheriffs or their representatives to show that kind of nerve to break up any average lynching mob. Unfortunately, too often, those in charge of prisons and the custody of prisoners are either devoid of courage or connivers with the lynchers; they make no resistance and gross outrages against the law result.

DAYTON, O.
NEWS

NOV 12 1933

Cowing A Mob

Sheriff Thomas Stark of Thibodaux, La., had in his jail a prisoner on whom a mob would have liked to inflict its own "justice." In the crowd which appeared at the gates there were 75 persons.

The sheriff, armed with a rifle and flanked by two deputies, called their bluff. He opened the gates and dared them to enter. But he added: "You will have to kill me to get in."

Mobs that perpetrate lynchings are rarely punished. The killer of an officer of the law rarely escapes. This mob, met by a sheriff with a backbone, promptly broke up and disappeared.

Louisiana, with 340 lynchings from 1889 to 1929, was fourth high among all the states. The reason is that it hasn't had enough Sheriff Starks. The search for the cause of and cure for lynchings is an old one. If all authorities were of this type there would be no problem.

Lynchings—1933
Prevented

Maryland.

4422

MOVED TO 2 CITIES' JAILS FOR SAFETY

Journal and Guide
7-15-33
Norfolk, Va.

Saying Woman Asked Him To Love Her, Irks Whites

UNDER HEAVY GUARD

Maryland Sheriff Pledges To Protect Prisoner

Special to Journal and Guide

LA PLATA, Md.—Guilty or not guilty, Page Jupiter, who is being heavily guarded against mobs, will not have to pay most because he may have attacked Mrs. Evelyn Reisschneider, his 45-year-old white employer, but because he dared to tell county officials that his illicit relation with the woman was upon her request. He is held charged with murder.

Jupiter, a farm hand, was arrested Saturday afternoon, after the body of Mrs. Reisschnieder was found under a clump of bushes on her farm, her head fractured with an axe. The woman had been out in the field with the man for a long time, and when she failed to return search was begun.

Before the day was over angry farmers were lurking around the jail here making threats and sulked away only when Sheriff Robert G. Coosey announced that he would fight to give Jupiter his constitutional rights to the last ditch.

Under Heavy Guard

Over the the week-end the man was heavily guarded, but the situation becoming tense, he was rushed to the Upper Marlboro jail early Tuesday morning, brought back to La Plata by an unannounced route Tuesday afternoon to stand arraignment and then conveyed to the Baltimore city prison for safe-keeping.

According to the Associated Negro Press, Jupiter who is also known as William Sutherland, told police that the woman had left the house early that morning and that he was fearful that violence might befall her and led a search for her. It is alleged that two blood-stained shirts and bloody trousers were found in his shack on the farm.

Crowded and threatened by the blood-thirsty whites, Jupiter, in a cool manner is reported to have said, "If it will satisfy or help matters, I will say I killed her," according to the ANP.

His Side of "Attack"

"I was in the cabbage patch at the end of the farm when Mrs. Reisschneider came up to me about 9 o'clock yesterday morning," are the words credited to the farmhand. "She came up to me and said she wanted me to make love to her," he continued. "I didn't want to do so at first, but she argued and I did.

Journal and Guide
7-15-33
Norfolk Va.

"When I told her that her family would be suspicious if she stayed away from the house any longer, she began to cry. She said she was ashamed and could never look them in the face again. 'Kill me,' she begged me. ' can't go on living after this.'

Hit Her With Axe

"So I picked up the axe and hit her on the head. Blood got on my clothes. I didn't know what to do, but I decided I had to have an excuse.

"So I picked up a sharp stone and went to wash, telling the daughters that was how I got the blood on my hands and shirt."

Jupiter's Words Irk

That Jupiter's accusation of the dead woman as having asked him "to make love to her," will not particularly help him is seen in the fact that in every crowd where white men gather, the words on their lips are "The idea to say that, he's a liar, etc."

Even a member of the district attorney's staff, before he had any time to investigate, characterized Jupiter's story as a "contemptible lje."

While the apprehended man says that there was no attack, the coroner and investigators have declared that the appearance of the ground where the white woman was slain shows sign of a struggle having taken place, and have interpreted it to mean that Mrs. Reisschneider fought for her honor.

The husband of the woman was in Washington, D. C., on business when the tragedy occurred, but her three -own-up daughters by a former marriage were at home.

JUPITER LYNCH THREAT IGNORED BY GRAND JURY

Insufficient Evidence Found to Present a True Bill, It Says.

INDICT ACCUSED ON TWO COUNTS

Farm Hand to Face an Early Trial.

Afro American
7-22-33
Baltimore
Maryland

LA PLATA, Md.—Declaring that the testimony of Charles County officers did not present enough evidence to find true bills against any members of the mob which searched the La Plata jail for Page Jupiter several days ago, an extraordinary session of the grand jury ignored the mob action here Monday.

At the same session the body found true bills against Jupiter on charges of criminal assault and murder.

Officers Testify.

Sheriff Robert V. Cooksey, Deputy Sheriff Russell Howard and State police officers testified before the body, both as to the arrest of Jupiter and the mob action. Although it was known that on the night of July 10, a mob of more than fifty white men, armed with sledge hammers and carrying ropes, came to the jail, bent upon lynching the accused man, and although officers allowed some of them to search the building, their evidence before the jury did not reveal sufficient knowledge of the affair to cause the body to take action.

A special session of the court will be called to try Jupiter at an early date, it was said.

N.A.A.C.P. in Case.

Through its Washington attorney Charles H. Houston, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People may enter the case, it was learned this week. Attorney Houston was in Baltimore last week but was denied permission to see Jupiter. The attorney stated that he had an order from Jupiter's half-sister and would present a request to the judge that he be permitted to see the accused man.

In a report to the national office he stated that an investigation revealed that the country was quiet and that officers blamed most of the disorder on reporters seeking sensation. The report said that he was inclined to agree with this view. It also stated that he had faith in the assurance of the Charles County judge that Jupiter will receive a fair trial.

Bernard Ades, of the Baltimore branch, International Labor Defense, stated that his organization was ready to step into the case if there was any indication that it would be needed. He stated that he did not share any assurance, in the face of developments, that Jupiter would receive a fair trial unless pressure was brought to force it.

Reporters for THE AFRO-AMERICAN were denied permission to see the accussed man in the Baltimore jail here this week.

Strange Story.

Considerable interest is still being manifested in the strange story of the killing. Jupiter plead not guilty when arraigned at the magistrate's hearing. In an alleged confession he was quoted as stating that he killed the white woman at her own request when she stated she wanted to die if he was going to leave her.

New York Evening Journal

JUL 11 1933

TROOPERS FOIL LYNCH MOB

LA PLATA, Md., July 11.—After a mob of incensed farmers had made two attempts to lynch Page Jupiter, Negro farm hand, held for the brutal axe murder of Mrs. Evelyn Reifschneider, 47, on her farm Saturday, State troopers were called here to help guard the prisoner.

Persuaded to leave peaceably by Sheriff Vernon Cooksey, the mob threatened to "come back."

The Negro confessed the axe murder, declaring the woman asked to be killed when he said he was going away. Authorities place no credence in his story.

Asheville, N. C. Observer

July 13, 1933

NEED BUCKSHOT

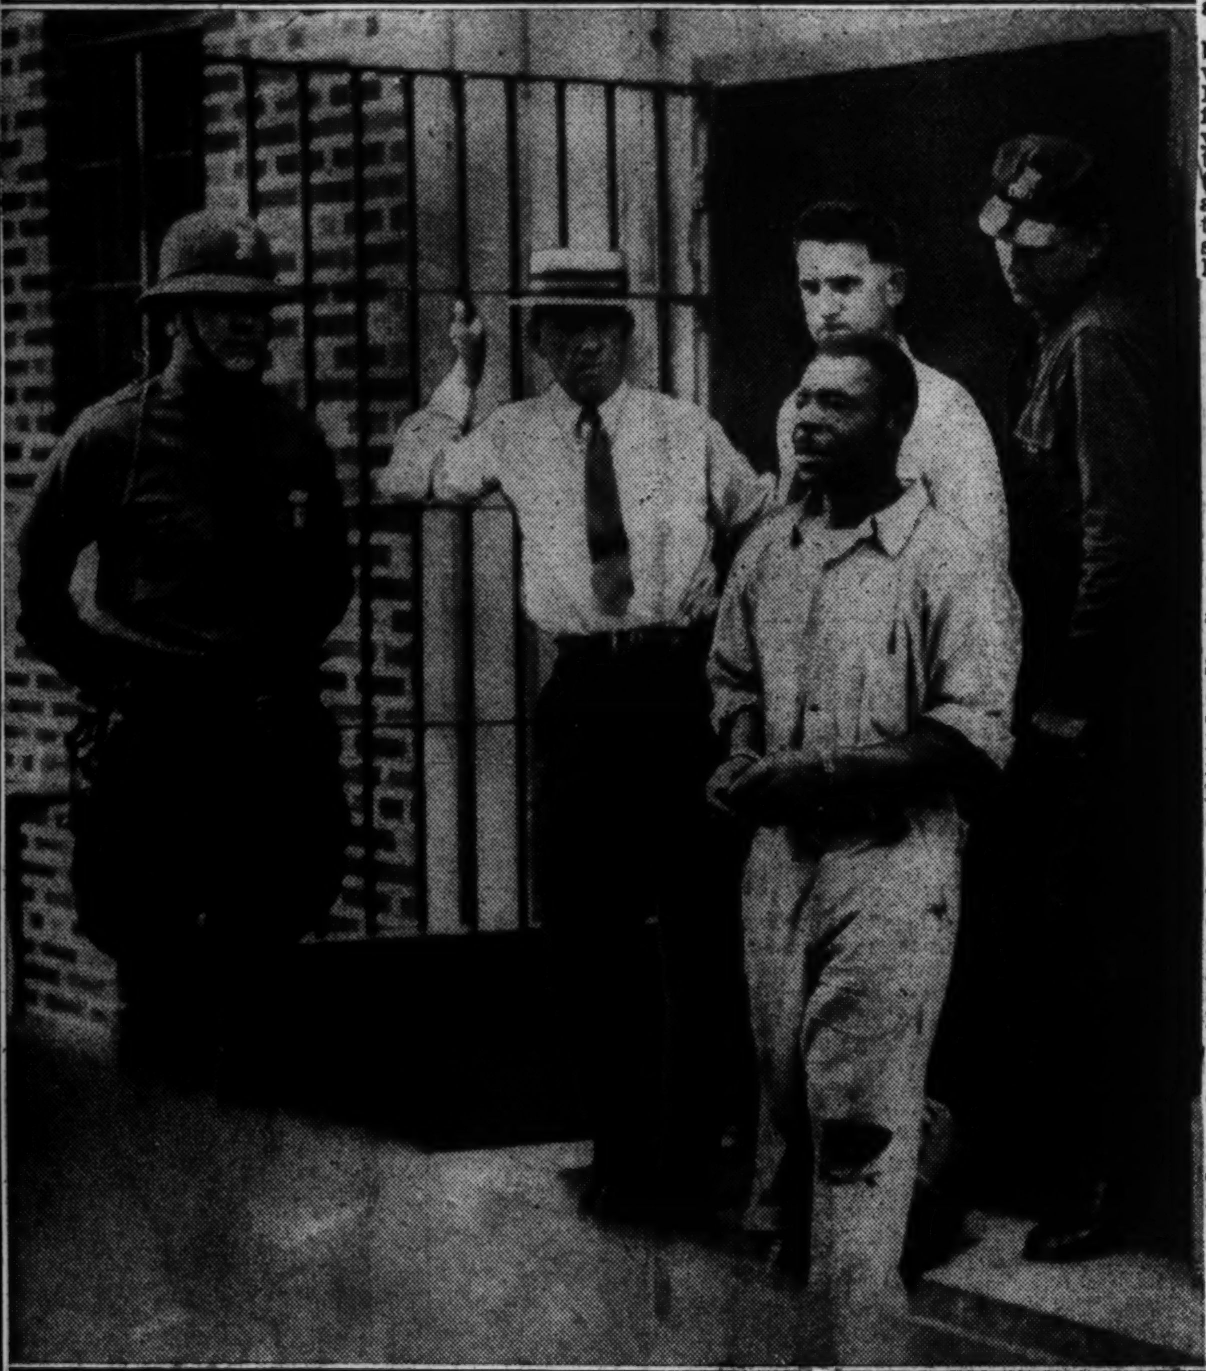
Maryland officers, acting in sharp contrast to South Carolina sheriffs, yesterday prevented the lynching of a negro by getting him out of the way of a mob that was forming to take him: It is unfortunate that flight is the best remedy against lynching because it merely serves to perpetuate the practice. It is unfortunate that officers could not stand their ground before mobs and give them a taste of buckshot.

If every would-be lyncher knew that he stood a good chance of having his yellow hide punctured by a bullet from a sheriff's gun, memberships in mobs would go begging at ten cents a gross.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

JUL 13 1933

MOB ALMOST HAD HIM



(By Acme)

HIS FACE showing his relief, Page Jupiter, confessed colored slayer is taken from the Marlboro, Md., jail after a huge mob of enraged farmers had stormed the building in an attempt to lynch him. He admitted killing Mrs. Evelyn Reifschneider, 47-year-old farm wife of Waldorf, Md. Maryland police are escorting him to Baltimore.

[illegible] New York N.Y.

LA PLATA, Md., July 10.—Surrounded by a group of guards, Sheriff Robert G. Cooksey stood before the Charles County Jail here last night and told a mob of would-be lynchers that he would fight to the last to protect Page Jenafer's constitutional right to trial by jury. His action averted a lynching.

The mob was howling for the blood of Jenafer, a farm hand, who was accused of slaying his employer, Mrs. Evelyn Reifschnerder, on her farm near Waldorf, Md. The 42-year-old prisoner is alleged to have told authorities that he used an axe to murder the white woman at 9 a.m. Saturday. Officials said he told them that she wanted to die because she was ashamed of having induced him to be her lover.

LYNCHING BEE FAILS

Pittsburg Courier
7-15-33.
Pittsburg, Pa.

(By Staff Correspondent)

LA PLATA, Md., July 13.—Quick action on the part of John F. Dorsey, colored jaid keeper in this Southern Maryland town, today snatched the life of Page Jupiter, colored, from the grim clutches of Lynch Law, after the latter confessed to the murder of Mrs. Evelyn Reicfneider, white farm owner, Saturday.

When the reports came to Dorsey that a mob was approaching to demand Jupiter, Dorsey barricaded himself in the jail and refused to even admit the advance guard of the delegation, composed of three men, who asked to be allowed to "see" Jupiter.

Jupiter is said to have confessed to beating the white woman to death at her request when she learned that he was leaving the farm. He denied that he had criminally assaulted the woman and said that he had done it after she asked him to kill her.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

JUL 10 1933

Lynch Mob Perils Colored Ax-Killer Of Dixie Mother

(Special to The News)

La Plata, Md., July 9.—Armed guards sought to prevent a threatened mob lynching of Page Jenafer, colored farmhand, here tonight after he had confessed to the ax murder of his employer, Mrs. Evelyn Reifschnerder, mother of four daughters, on her farm near Waldorf, Md.

The outraged citizens of Charles County, who had already surrounded the jail, began to cry, "Hang him!" after it was learned that the 42-year-old slayer said he killed the white woman at her request, because she was ashamed of having induced him to become her lover. The murder took place at 9 A. M. yesterday and Jenafer confessed at 3:30 P. M. today, following twenty-four hours of relentless questioning.

Mob Awaits Darkness.

"That's a lie and worse than murder—to say she asked him to make love to her!" shouted a man as the mob advanced on the jail.

Sheriff Robert G. Cooksey appeared, surrounded by heavily armed undersheriffs, and declared he would 'fight to the last ditch' to protect Jenafer's constitutional right to trial by jury. The mob, asked by the sheriff to disband, sullenly departed, but later reported to have adjourned to a secret meeting place to await darkness.

The husband of the 48-year-old slain woman was on a business trip to Washington, D. C., when the murder occurred. He did not learn of the tragedy until he returned late last night to the ten-acre estate. Mrs. Reifschnerder's three daughters by a previous marriage were hysterical when he arrived.

Farmhand's Story.

"I was in the cabbage patch at the end of the farm when Mrs. Reifschnerder came up to me about 9 o'clock yesterday morning," the colored farmhand told investigators. "She came up to me and said she wanted me to make love to her. I didn't want to do so at first, but she argued and I did.

"When I told her that her family would be suspicious if she stayed away from the house any longer, she began to cry. She said she was ashamed and could never look them in the face again. 'Kill me,' she begged me. 'I can't go on living after this!'

Hit Her With Ax.

"So I picked up the ax and hit her on the head. Blood got on my clothes. I didn't know what to do, but I decided I had to have an excuse. So I picked up a sharp stone and cut the horse's leg and then went to wash, telling the daughters that was how I got the blood on my hands and shirt."

County authorities, summoned by telephone, declared they had no doubt the woman fought desperately for her honor and ther was slain because she refused t promise immunity to the hire hand.

N. Y. EVENING POST

JUL 11 1933

MARYLAND SLAYER ESCAPES LYNCHERS

Prisoner Taken to Nearby Jail Ten Minutes Before Farmer Mob Arrives

LA PLATA, Md., July 11 (AP).—Rushed from the Charles County Jail here a scant ten minutes before a band of angry farmers arrived in an effort to seize him, Page Jupiter, Negro, confessed slayer of Mrs. Evalyn Reifschneider, was taken to the Prince Georges County Jail, at Upper Marlboro, where he was held today to await a preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Reifschneider, forty-five-year-old wife of Jupiter's employer, was killed Saturday after she was attacked near their truck farm. Her head was crushed with an ax. Upper Marlboro is thirty miles north of La Plata.

Mississippi.

4413

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

NEGRO CONFESSES TO SLAYING OF OFFICER

Commercial Appeal

Prisoner, Who Shot Benton Deputy, Is Spirited Away.

9-7-33

ASHLAND, Miss., Sept. 6.—Benton County officers tonight were zealously guarding the whereabouts of Robert Jones, 24, negro, who has been removed to a jail in an unannounced locality, following his alleged confession that he shot to death Deputy Sheriff Mark H. Mason, 40.

Memphis
Tenn.

The negro was reported to have confessed Tuesday night following his capture by Sheriff R. N. Hudspeth and deputies in a negro house near here. The arrest and purported confession came the first night after Jones fled from his home near Ashland, after Deputy Mason had been shot through the heart.

Jones was secretly removed to some other jail, believed to be some distance from here, after several hundred citizens spent Monday night and all day Tuesday searching for him, and mob violence appeared imminent.

Another negro was arrested along with Jones, but he is not believed to have had any part in the shooting. Officers surrounded the negro house and after they had warned an occupant that they knew the negro was inside, he meekly surrendered. According to officers, the negro gave no reason for shooting Deputy Mason.

The popular Benton County officer had just left the Jones home Monday night with two negro prisoners, charged with thefts, when he heard a shot coming from the house. Returning to investigate, he stepped upon the porch and was fatally wounded. When officers searched the house Jones had fled. His mother is still held in custody at Holly Springs.

Missouri.

4423

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

MISSOURI MOB FEARED

Commercial Appeal
Dec 3-33
Memphis, Tenn.

Convicted Kansas City Slayer in State Prison for Safety

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 2—(US)—Paul Kauffman, under sentence of death for assaulting and murdering Avis Woolery, 16, here four years ago, today was spirited from the Jackson County jail to the state prison at Jefferson City after Sheriff Thomas B. Nash had received reports a mob was organizing to lynch him.

Kauffman has an appeal pending in the state supreme court, and he will be held at the state penitentiary pending the outcome,

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

New York.

4424

LYNCHING THREAT MADE IN SLAYING

Amsterdam News

Attempt in Brooklyn to Get Suspect in Girl's Case From City Prison

[illegible]-33

Not satisfied with the efforts of police to pin the slaying of six-year-old Helen Sterler on Lloyd Price, 22, of 556 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, a crowd of irate white citizens stormed the Raymond Street Jail Saturday evening in an attempt to wrest Price from the police for a lynching party. The crowd was finally dispersed and an extra heavy guard placed at the jail.

New York

Price, believed to be mentally defective, was held for the murder of the white girl when police said he confessed that he strangled the girl after luring her to the basement of 1013 DeKalb avenue last Wednesday. The girl was also criminally assaulted, police said. Mrs. Elsie Price, mother of Lloyd, led police to her son after identifying as her dead husband's a pencil found near the white girl's body.

With the arrest of Price, who police say has a record for attempts to criminally attack children, it is held by detectives working on the case that the mystery surrounding two other such slayings has been solved.

One was the case of Sarah Burrows, 10, who was found, after a criminal attack, strangled in the basement of her home at 279 Halsey street in 1931. Gladys McDonell, a white girl, was found last year. Another girl, Alice Davis, 14 Decatur street, was attacked in 1931 in the cellar of 1450 Fulton street.

JAMAICA, N. Y.
LONG ISLAND PRESS
FEB 21 1933

Almost a Lynching in New York

New York City which reads with horror of lynchings when they happen elsewhere is not so far, itself, from the elemental fury of revenge in the name of justice as the case of a Woodhaven taxicab driver will show.

Badly beaten by an enraged crowd in Brooklyn, the Woodhaven man was saved from the mob by a policeman who found it necessary to draw his gun to protect his prisoner.

The cab driver had been involved in a complicated accident which ended with a horrible death for an aged pedestrian. Later, doctors said the driver was intoxicated. On the face of what has been learned since the accident, it seems very easy to fall in with the mob mind and decide "he deserved what he got."

From another point of view, however, it must be considered that the mob could not be sure that the driver was drunk nor that the accident, tragic as it was, was not the result of circumstances beyond his control.

Until our system of justice is amended to include trial and sentence by mob at the scene of a crime, let's have justice by reason and not by emotion; the latter is too prone to err.

N Y BRONX HOME NEWS
FEBRUARY 23, 1933

Near-Lynching Follows Shooting

Rescued yesterday from a mob of more than 100 men and women who attempted to lynch him after the fatal shooting of Sebastian Ippolito, 50, 2618 W. 17th St., Coney Island, Joseph Mili, 37, a next-door neighbor of Ippolito's, was to be arraigned in Coney Island Court today on a charge of homicide. Police charge that Mili fired four shots into his neighbor's body when a year-old feud flared anew as Mili placed part of his woodpile on his neighbor's property. Mili fled as neighbors gathered about the body, and he was followed by a mob, yelling "lynch him." At Stillwell and Neptune Aves. they caught him and almost ripped the clothes from his body. Some of the mob were shouting for a rope when two policemen with drawn revolvers rescued the badly-battered man.

New York Mob Menaces Negro

Advertiser
9-11-33

Policemen With Revolvers Drawn Stop Lynching By Crowd In Subway

Montgomery, Ala.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Enraged citizens early today captured a burly negro in flight after an attack upon a woman in a west side subway station. Police believed the prisoner to be a marauder who recently has terrorized many in Central Park.

The negro was rescued from late homegoers in the subway by two officers with drawn pistols, when a good sized mob gathered to shouts of "lynch him," "shoot him." The policemen were booed when they rushed the negro out of the subway.

At the station, the negro gave his name as Alvin Alfred, 25, and gave an address which officers said was fictitious.

Patrolman Peter Conway, who aided in the capture, said Alfred's description "tallied minutely" with that of the Central Park marauder, who has been the object of an intensive manhunt.

Mrs. Bertha Carrol, 32, victim of the assault in the women's restroom of the subway, was taken to a hospital suffering from shock, severe bruises and lacerations.

Mrs. Carrol was carrying a jar of jam when she stepped into the rest room about 2:30 a.m. Her husband, William, was standing on the platform watching for their train.

She told police a huge negro, striped to the waist and barefooted, seized her when she entered the restroom and tore the jam jar from her hands. She screamed, she said, and the negro smashed the jar over her hand and knocked her down.

Carrol, a husky butcher, rushed into the rest room where he said the negro was bending over his wife beating her with his fists.

Carrol picked the negro bodily from the floor and hurled him against the wall. As they fought, Mrs. Carrol crawled to the station platform and called to a man who ran for the police.

Eluding Carrol, the negro jumped to the tracks and fled toward the next station with a crowd of men, who had gathered quickly, at his heels. A downtown local train ended the chase at the next station, where the negro was handled roughly by a fast growing crowd.

Officers at this point entered the station and, with drawn pistols, took the negro away.

AT HOME WITH THE I. L. D.

[illegible]
9-14-33

Surprisingly little comment has been made upon the actions of a crowd of New Yorkers in the subway who chased a Negro after he had attacked and robbed a woman who was waiting for a train. Fortunately the law intervened before the mob was able to settle matters in the manner in which mobs usually do.

[illegible] Ala.

It seems in our none too humble opinion, that here would be a most convenient place for the I. L. D. to carry on its purely altruistic and humane practices since it is conveniently close to headquarters and the organization advertises its lack of funds to function for the noble cause.

Perhaps the I. L. D. is so preoccupied with affairs on distant soil that it has overlooked this opportunity along with many other cases worthy of their benign attention.

It may be, however, that the course of justice in our largest metropolis is beyond reproach, which leaves these philanthropic men free to sponsor the cause of downtrodden humanity in other climates.

It may also be true that the metropolis, more familiar with the desires and aspirations of this worthy organization, does not give it the publicity and attention that it is so persistently seeking.

HOUSTON, TEX.
POST

SEP 12 1933

A New York Mob

A NEGRO, accused of attacking a white woman, narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of a mob in New York city Sunday. Only the arrival of police, who, with drawn pistols, drove back the crowd seeking to wreak vengeance on the prisoner, prevented a mob killing.

The incident is significant in that it reveals again that the mob spirit and mob action are not found exclusively in the South. In any part of the country, lynching is apt to occur when negroes assault white ~~women. The~~ mob that formed in the subway of New York city and sought to gain custody of the negro who had beaten a woman in the wash room of a subway station, acted just like mobs in the South and in other parts of the country act when aroused by a heinous crime.

New York police protected their prisoner, just as Southern officers strive to do. Sometimes the mobs in the South are better organized and more determined than was the New York group, and officers are not successful in preventing lynchings. The record shows, however, that far more lynchings are prevented than occur in the South.

Mob action is not to be condoned anywhere. Lynching is a disgrace to any State, whether the State be in the South or in the North. Everywhere the people should be educated to the need for upholding constitutional authority and allowing the law to take its course in an orderly way.

Those New York organizations which weep over lynchings in the South, and send their legal representatives into Dixie to attempt to meddle with the administration of justice among negroes, however, now have something nearer at home to engage their attention. The task of discouraging lynching in New York city confronts them.

And here is opportunity right at home for those two gentlemen of the New York bar who a few weeks ago journeyed down to Alabama, and, unsolicited, undertook to defend a negro accused of attacking a white girl. Under the protection of Alabama officers, these two legal lights were escorted out of the State, and reached home with their necks intact. Will these professional friends of the negro volunteer their services in the defense of their fellow citizen of New York who languishes in the Tombs charged with a brutal attack on a white woman, and who is also believed by police to be the terror of Central Park for whom an intensive manhunt has been under way for several weeks?

Smithfield, N. C. Herald
September 15, 1933

LYNCHING NOT PECULIAR TO THE SOUTH—

The South is not the only section in the country where the lynching impulse of a frenzied mob unfolds itself. Late Saturday night, a mob of home-goers in the subway of New York City threatened to lynch a negro who had made an attack upon a woman in a subway restroom. Police rescued the negro from the bestirred mob amid roars of boos sent up in protest of the action taken by the officers.

This occurrence is a clear indication that when a woman has been attacked by a negro any near-by mob will act under the same impulse, whether it be in New York, in some of the Southern states, or in any place under the sun. The impulse of a mob to lynch violators of the law is not more peculiar to the psychology of Southerners than to the psychological reaction of any section.

This is not an attempt to vindicate the South from the numerous blemishes caused by the too frequent occurrence of lynchings within its borders. The South is guilty of too much of this barbarism and it has a problem which it must strive to solve; for mob intervention into the functions of law and order cannot be tolerated by any civilized people.

However, the mistake should not be made of attributing the over-occurrence of lynchings in the South to a peculiarity in the impulses of Southern mobs. The reason for the unusual prevalence of lyncnhings in the South is due more to the greater frequency with which the lynching impulse has a chance to evidence itself.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., News
September 15, 1933

Editorial Of The Day

(The Montgomery Advertiser)

AT HOME WITH THE I. L. D.

SURPRISINGLY little comment has been made upon the actions of a crowd of New Yorkers in the subway who chased a Negro after he had attacked and robbed a woman who was waiting for a train. Fortunately the law intervened before the mob was able to settle matters in the manner in which mobs usually do.

It seems, in our none too humble opinion, that here would be a most convenient place for the I. L. D. to carry on its purely altruistic and humane practices since it is conveniently close to headquarters and the organization advertises its lack of funds to function for the noble cause.

Perhaps the I. L. D. is so preoccupied with affairs on distant soil that it has overlooked this opportunity along with many other cases worthy of their benign attention.

It may be, however, that the course of justice in our largest metropolis is beyond reproach, which leaves these philanthropic men free to sponsor the cause of down-trodden humanity in other climates.

It may also be true that the metropolis, more familiar with the desires and aspirations of this worthy organization, does not give it the publicity and attention that it is so persistently seeking.

NEGROES AND CRIME

Mayor Gunter's appeal to the decent Negro citizenship in connection with the recent robbery and attempted assault upon a white woman which occurred in this city, had its reward in the effective cooperation of the responsible Nebroes of our community.

This cooperation led to the arrest of two men suspected of having committed the crime and reported confession of one of them.

This is the way for whites and blacks to get along comfortably and safely together. Here in the South white men control government, to be sure, but it is the duty of law-abiding Negroes to cooperate at all times with the agents of the law in running down the criminal Negro as well as the criminal white.

Nothing could do more to put the Negro in a new light before all the people than for all the people to realize that the responsible Negro citizen is as hostile to the Negro criminal as the white man is.

Bad people of every kind must be put under the control of law and society. Blacks and whites owe it o themselves to cooperate to this noble end

Lynchings - 1933
Prevented.

North Carolina.

4425

Negro Saved From Mob By Carolina Physician

LOWELL, N. C., March 26.—(UP)—A young negro accused of attempting criminal assault upon a 16-year-old white girl here was [illegible] early today when a local physician secreted him in the basement of his home while a mob of several hundred persons searched vainly in another part of town.

Dr. James W. Reid kept Kirk Reid, 20-year-old negro, in the cellar until the mob moved away, then notified sheriff's officers and took the negro to Mecklenberg county jail at Charlotte for safe keeping.

NEW YORK CITY NEWS
MARCH 27, 1933

PHYSICIAN SAVES COLORED YOUTH, 16, FROM LYNCH MOB

Lowell, N. C., March 26 (U.P.).—A colored youth accused of attacking a 16-year-old white girl here was saved from lynching early today when a physician hid him in the basement of his home while a mob of several hundred searched vainly in another part of town.

Dr. James W. Reid hid Kirk Reid, 20, in his cellar after the youth had been accused of attempting to assault Kathleen Jenkins.

Dr. Reid later notified sheriff's officers and took the youth to Mecklenberg County Jail at Charlotte for safekeeping.

N. Y. HERALD

MAR 27 1933

Hides Negro in Home To Save Him From Mob

North Carolina Doctor Outwits Would-Be Lynchers

LOWELL, N. C., March 26 (UP).—A young Negro accused of attacking a sixteen-year-old white girl here was saved from lynching early today when a physician secreted him in the basement of his home while a mob of several hundred persons searched vainly in another part of town.

Dr. James W. Reid hid the twenty-year-old youth in his cellar after the Negro had been accused of attempting to assault Kathleen Jenkins.

He kept the Negro there until the mob moved away, then notified Sheriff's officers and took the Negro to Mecklenberg County jail at Charlotte for safekeeping.

Dr. Reid said the Negro stealthily approached his home, told him of the alleged crime and asked the physician to save him. The mob still searched for Reid after he had been safely lodged in the Charlotte jail.

Macon, Ga. News
Monday, March 27, 1933

Doctor Hides Youth To Avert Lynching

LOWELL, N. C., March 27 (UP)—A young Negro accused of attacking a 16-year-old white girl here was tributed to it.

saved from lynching Sunday when a physician secreted him in the basement of his home while a mob of several hundred persons searched vainly in another part of town.

Dr. James W. Reid hid Kirk Reid 20-year-old Negro in his cellar after the Negro had been accused of attempting to assault Kathleen Jenkins.

He kept the Negro there until the mob moved away, then notified sheriff's officers and took the Negro to Mecklenberg county jail at Charlotte for safe-keeping.

Gastonia. N. C. Gazette
Monday, March 27, 1933

Dr. Reid Saves Lowell From A Negro Lynching

Physician's Quick Action Landed Accused Negro In Charlotte Jail.

ATTEMPTED ATTACK ON MISS JENKINS

Angry Mob Foiled When Kirk Reid Is Spirited Away.

An angry Lowell mob was foiled in its intent to lynch Kirk Reid, 20-year-old Lowell negro, by quick thought and action on the part of Dr. J. W. Reid, prominent Lowell physician, Saturday night.

The young negro was accused of attempting to criminally attack Kathleen Jenkins, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Ralph Jenkins, of Lowell, about 7:30 o'clock Saturday night.

Miss Jenkins said she was returning from a Lowell drug store to her home with some medicine she had purchased when the negro attempted to attack her. Her screams brought her mother and others to the scene and frightened the negro away. In his attempt to attack her the negro badly bruised her throat by choking her and bruised her in several places by rough handling, it was said. She was reported Monday as confined to her home in Lowell with injuries, and is being treated by Dr. Reid, it was reported. Besides her other injuries she suffered severe scratches on the roof of her mouth when the negro jammed his hand in her mouth in an attempt to quiet her screams, reports from Lowell said.

Witnesses said the negro was hanging about the drug store when Miss Jenkins was there making her purchases and that he left just ahead of her, with the probable intention of lying in wait along her road home.

Continued On Page 2

A mob formed almost immediately with the expressed intention of finding and lynching the accused negro. Fearful for his life, the negro slipped to the home of Dr. Reid and told him of the occurrence. Dr. Reid hid him in the basement of his home until about 9 o'clock Saturday night. Then, when the mob, several hundred strong, was searching in another part of the town, Dr. Reid put the negro in his car and speeded him to Belmont, where Reid was locked in jail. Sheriff's headquarters in Gastonia were notified and Sheriff Wilkie A. McGinnis immediately went to Belmont and took the negro to jail in Charlotte for safekeeping. Sheriff McGinnis this morning expressed his appreciation of Dr. Reid's prompt action in averting a probable lynching.

As soon as the injured girl has recovered from her injuries, the negro will be given a hearing in Gastonia, Sheriff McGinnis said. Miss Jenkins says she can positively identify the negro. She had known him at sight for some time, it was said.

The young negro's mother is a servant in the household of Dr. Reid.

Miss Jenkins was said to be hysterical when she reached her home, following the occurrence, Saturday night. But she was reported as resting more quietly today.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
NEWS

MAR 28 1933

Judge Lynch ~~Denied~~.

The entire State, not to mention the frustrated mob itself, owes a vote of thanks to Dr. J. W. Reid of Lowell for his courageous behavior in forestalling what likely would have been another lynching in North Carolina. Dr. Reid hid the Negro until opportunity came to turn him over to the officers, who brought him to Charlotte immediately.

Thus it is that justice will be allowed to take the course which all men, upon the slightest reflection, are bound to admit is the only course. We brag of our fondness for liberty, yet if it is to continue to display itself in mobs we'd best find something else upon which to lavish admiration

---

JAIL YOUTH TO FOIL MOB

4-1-33

LOWELL, N. C., Mar. 30—Hidden in the cellar of a physician while a bloodthirsty mob of whites scoured another part of the city for him last Monday, an unidentified youth, accused of attacking a 16 year old white girl here, was rushed to Mecklenberg County jail at Charlotte for safekeeping. The physician secreted the youth until the mob of several hundred persons dispersed.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.
OBSERVER

JUL 13 1933

NEED BUCKSHOT

Maryland officers, acting in sharp contrast to South Carolina sheriffs, yesterday prevented the lynching of a negro by getting him out of the way of a mob that was forming to take him. It is unfortunate that flight is the best remedy against lynching because it merely serves to perpetuate the practice. It is unfortunate that officers could not stand their ground before mobs and give them a taste of buckshot.

If every would-be lyncher knew that he stood a good chance of having his yellow hide punctured by a bullet from a sheriff's gun, memberships in mobs would go begging at ten cents a gross.

SHERIFF PREVENTS LYNCHING

Pittsburg Courier
7-15-33
Pittsburg, Pa.

WILMINGTON, N. C., July 13—(By ANP)—Alertness on the part of a sheriff saved Jerry Gibbs from a lynching mob Monday.

Gibbs had run down a white man in his car, killing him. It is alleged that Gibbs was driving while drunk.

After the accident a mob chased Gibbs a mile and a half before he was captured. Sheriff David Jones rescued him from the threatening mob and placed him in a cell. There were no further demonstrations on the part of the would-be lynchers.

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

Oklahoma

4426

Oklahoma Troops Sent To Guard Cowboy Who Slew Kansas Couple

Advertiser
12-11-33

Montgomery, Ala.

KINGFISHER, OKLA., Dec. 10.—(AP)—National Guardsmen were ordered out tonight to protect Jack Wisdom, 26-year-old cowboy, while scores of officers and citizens pressed a search for the body of Harry Pritchard, kidnaped merchant, whose wife was found dead in a roadway culvert today.

Gov. W. H. Murray called for mobilization of two guard units "to prevent any mob action" against the young cowhand accused of kidnaping the Wichita, Kan., couple Nov. 23 to evade police action against him for issuance of a worthless check for $21.40.

The Governor ordered the immediate mobilization of batteries of the 189th Field Artillery at Enid and at Kingfisher, from where Kansas and Oklahoma officers were directing the search for the body of Pritchard.

Mrs. Pritchard's body was found near Kingfisher today shortly after Wisdom was arrested at Leach Prairie, in the Eastern Oklahoma hills.

"My understanding is a mob is forming at Wichita," said the Governor, ordering that Kingfisher guardsmen take custody of Wisdom and in directing that the Enid battery proceed South on U. S. Highway 81 toward Kingfisher to prevent violence.

At Enid, Okla., Deputy Sheriff Mason Hart said at 10 o'clock tonight that 57 motor cars and a bus, en route South toward Kingfisher, had just passed through Enid.

Gov. Murray said it was his understanding that Wisdom had confessed killing the Pritchards.

Upon receiving reports of contemplated violence, he telephoned authorities at Kingfisher to take charge of Wisdom at Okarche, 12 miles South of Kingfisher, where the search centered at the time.

However, Wisdom was rushed Northward through Kingfisher before the troops arrived.

"I told the guardsmen to shoot to kill if necessary," Gov. Murray said.

With Wisdom, in handcuffs, along to aid them, officers tonight searched a wide area South of Kingfisher with lantern and motor car lights. Police said they were trying to follow Wisdom's instructions.

Members of the searching party once returned to Kingfisher after following a 35-mile trail and set out again over a new route. They said the cowboy was "bawled up in his directions."

Many citizens armed with electric torches joined the hunt. About 35 carloads participated in the preliminary stages and the searchers were being augmented rapidly.

Advertiser
11-33

The officers, led by Sheriff Ed Martin, of Kingfisher, and Chief of Detectives W. O. Lyle, of Wichita, were reluctant to discuss details of what Wisdom had told them, but it was reported they expected to find Pritchard's body under a bridge on an East and West road East of U. S. Highway 81, perhaps in the region near Okarche.

Montgomery Ala.

Wisom, a small, dark man, was understood to have pleaded with the officers for protection from violence and, while there was no evidence here of high feeling, the authorities were taking every precaution.

When first arrested in a hill hideaway South of Jay, several hundred miles East of Kingfisher, Wisdom told officers he knew nothing of the Pritchards' disappearance. However, in announcing the discovery of Mrs. Pritchard's body, Sheriff Joe Cavin, of Enid said he was advised the cowboy had volunteered to help recover the bodies.

Removal of Wisdom from the scene of the Kingfisher hunt came with unexpected suddenness.

The motor car containing Wichita officers and the manacled suspect shot Northward through Kingfisher on U. S. Highway 81 at top speed. It was believed he was being taken to a place of safety, possibly the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing, or the Hutchinson, Kan., Reformatory.

He waived extradition at the time of his arrest.

Lynchings - 1933
Prevented

Pennsylvania

4427

CANDEM, N. J.
POST
OCT 31 1933

MAN RUSHED TO 'PEN' TO AVERT LYNCHING

Accused of Assault on Woman, 63, Suspect Spirited From Media

◆

Fears of an attempted lynching were allayed last night when a colored man accused of an attack on a 63-year-old woman was spirited from the Delaware county jail at Media, Pa., to the Eastern Penitentiary.

The man is Horace Dorsey, of Sharon Hill. He is alleged to have assaulted Mrs. Robert C. Creer, of 226 North Rolling road, Springfield township.

Mrs. Creer was sitting on her lawn drying her hair when Dorsey entered her yard to collect garbage. He crept up behind her and grabbed her in his arms.

Russell Kershaw, foreman of the truck crew in which Dorsey was employed, heard the woman's screams. He ran into the yard and struck Dorsey on the head with a garbage bucket. Dorsey fled but was captured after a four-block chase by Police Sergeant Isaac Smith.

Dorsey was taken to the township jail. When residents began gathering about the jail, Smith notified county authorities and he was transferred without incident to the county jail.

Later Louis Palmer, chief probation officer for the county, and he heard rumors of an uprising in the township. He conferred with Judges John M. Broomall and W. Roger Fronefield, who signed the necessary papers for transfer to the penitentiary.

The recent lynching of George Armwood, at Princess Anne, Md., is believed to have led to the precautions taken by the Delaware county authorities.

POLICE SAVE PA. RAPE SUSPECT FROM MOB'S IRE

Afro American
11-4-33

Horace Dorsey Spirited from Springfield, Pa., to Media Jail.

Baltimore, Md.

WEALTHY WIDOW CLAIMS ATTACK

Man Later Moved to Penitentiary.

(By Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA. — With restless queues of muttering whites forming about the small police station in Springfield Township, a few miles from here, last Monday evening Horace Dorsey, 40, of 173 Olive Street, Sharon Hill, Pa., was spirited away under heavy local and State police guard to the Media jail for safe keeping, after threats of a jail break and lynching had been made.

Dorsey, charged with an attempted attack upon Mrs. Robert Greer, 63, wealthy white widow of 266 Rolling Road, Springfield, Monday afternoon while making garbage collections, is reported by police to have confessed the attack, explaining he "must of gone crizy."

Won't See Reporter.

Mrs. Greer would not see an AFRO reporter who sought an interview with her Tuesday at her palatial residence on Rolling Road. A daughter, refusing to open a screen door, obviously nervous, advised the reporter—through the door—to "see the Springfield police; they will give you whatever information you desire."

"Are newspaper reports true to the effect that Dorsey choked and beat your mother when she resisted the alleged attack?" the AFRO reporter asked the daughter.

"I have nothing to say; see the police," was the laconic reply.

As the AFRO reporter and an AFRO cameraman drove through Springfield, whites gathered on street corners glanced balefully at the duo. It was evident that feeling was high, obviously inspired by the recen lynching of George Armwood i Princess Anne, Md.

Moved to Philly.

In the meantime Dorsey was imprisoned in the Eastern State Penitentiary in Philadelphia, whence h had been hastily removed late Monday night from the Media jail. I was explained by police officials a Springfield that after the remova of the prisoner fro mthe Springfiel jail to the Media jail the report persisted that a jail break attemp would be made, and, fearful tha sufficient protection might not be afforded the prisoner in the small jail at Media, he was whisked away to Philadelphia under cover of darkness.

Mrs. Greer, according to police, was drying her hair on the back lawn of her palatial estate at the time of the alleged attack. . Dorsey, who is employed by Russel Kershaw, white, of Springfield, is alleged to have seized her by the hair. Kershaw heard her cries for help and drove Dorsey away, police say.

Dorsey fled, pursued by Kershaw and Smith, a Springfield policeman, and was captured about four blocks from the scene of the alleged attack.

Claim Record.

Police officials insist that twenty years ago Dorsey attacked a colored woman in Oxford, Pa., and that he had served sentences in the Dauphin County jail and the jail at York, Pa., for similar offenses.

John Chadham, with whom Dorsey lived in Sharon Hill, told the AFRO, however, that he knew of no police record of Dorsey's and expressed doubt that he had ever been arrested.

"I don't see what he would want with an old woman like that," Chadham stated Tuesday. "He was keeping company with a young woman in Philadelphia."

Chadham described Dorsey as a "quiet man who kept to himself and minded his own business."

Dorsey has lived with Chadham since his sister, Mrs. Oliver Collins, of Dover, Del., lost title to a property she was purchasing next door to Chadham's some months ago and moved from Sharon Hill.

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

South Carolina

4428

South Carolina Mob Is Cheated

Telegraph

Negro Removed to Penitentiary for Safe Keeping

3-8-33

GREENWOOD, S. C., March 7 (AP) A mob of approximately 100 armed men from Laurens county came here Tuesday night searching for Barnett Smith, Negro who was alleged to have attacked a young Laurens county married woman Tuesday, but found he had already been taken to the state penitentiary at Columbia for safekeeping.

Macon, Ga.

The men demanded entry into the county jail here, and Jailer J. T. Clem finally conducted a committee of three through the building to convince them the Negro was not here.

The crowd made open threats of lynching should the Negro be discovered, but began to leave quietly after officers showed the Negro had been en route to Columbia for about an hour.

The Negro was arrested in the Ware Shoals section by Deputy Sheriff Tess Crawford just as a large Laurens county posse arrived.

Murder Suspect Taken by Deputy

Telegraph

Negro Is Charged With Killing Sheriff Feaster

11-9-33

WINNSBORO, S. C., Nov. 7 (AP)—John Watkins, 25-year-old Negro farmer, wanted for the slaying Friday of Sheriff R. A. Fesater, was captured near here tonight by Deputy Ernest Rabb and rushed immediately to the state penitentiary at Columbia for safe keeping.

Macon, Ga.

Watkins was apprehended in a Negro house 12 miles from here by the deputy sheriff and Ca[illegible]n Clark, a farmer, after a Negro had tipped off officers that Watkins was in the vicinity.

The Negro gave no resistance and made no statement, officers said.

Feaster was found shot to death in his automobile on the Chester-Winnsboro road Friday. Earlier in the day he had taken Watkins, who was under arrest, into that vicinity to recover some articles which officers said the Negro had confessed stealing.

✓

✓

Macon, Ga Telegraph
Wednesday, March 8, 1933

South Carolina Mob Is Cheated

Negro Removed to Penitentiary for Safe Keeping

GREENWOOD, S. C., March 7 (AP) A mob of approximately 100 armed men from Laurens county came here Tuesday night searching for Barnett Smith, Negro who was alleged to have attacked a young Laurens county married woman Tuesday, but found he had already been taken to the state penitentiary at Columbia for safekeeping.

The men demanded entry into the county jail here, and Jailer J. T. Clem finally conducted a committee of three through the building to convince them the Negro was not here.

The crowd made open threats of lynching should the Negro be discovered, but began to leave quietly after officers showed the Negro had been en route to Columbia for about an hour.

The Negro was arrested in the Ware Shoals section by Deputy Sheriff Tess Crawford just as a large Laurens county posse arrived.

Lynchings-1933

Prevented.

Tennessee.

4429

Sheriff And Son Killed While Conducting Raid

4-24-33

NASHVILLE, TENN., April 23.—(AP)—Sheriff G. B. Winningham, of Pickett County, and his son, Deputy Sheriff Floyd Winningham, were dead today as the result of wounds received during a raid at Byrdstown, near the Kentucky line.

Young Winningham was killed instantly by gunfire coming from a box car as the party of officers were approaching to arrest several men alleged to have attempted to attack an aged resident of the Rock Creek section. Sheriff Winningham, wounded in the abdomen, was brought to a Nashville hospital where he died shortly before last midnight.

Another deputy in the party arrested three men and took them to the Cookeville jail for safekeeping. Officers were searching for the others. The shooting occurred late Friday night.

Tennessee Sheriff Makes Quick Move, Outwits Mob

9-1-33

NASHVILLE. — (ANP)—Leland Bracy, 20, resident of the Barfield community near Murfreesboro, was speedily rushed to the Davidson county jail, Wednesday night, by the sheriff of Barfield community after rumors predicted a possible mob uprising, when a white women, whose name was purposely withheld, accused Leland Bracy of attempted rape Tuesday.

Sheriff Bauman of Davidson county maintained his same policy towards Bracy as he has shown in his past administration under similar circumstances when he defied the threats of a Lebanon mob last August by stating to the ANP reporter:

"Whenever a prisoner is brought into this building he is safe, or else my body will be prostrated in blood clutching my empty gun, before I'll suffer one prisoner, black or white, to be taken from the law by a mob."

Birmingham, Ala., News
August 30, 1933

GUARDSMEN ON DUTY

Precautionary Measure Taken In Trial Of Officers' Deaths

LEBANON, Tenn. —(AP)— A detachment of national guardsmen was asked here Wednesday to protect three Negroes ordered to trial a second time in the slaying of two officers.

Officials said the request was made as a precautionary measure. The Negroes, George Oldham, Jake Alexander and Charles Alexander, were accused of murdering the officers last September. The Alexanders got life sentences and Oldham 25 years at the first trial, but the case was remanded by the Supreme Court.

The Negroes were threatened with mob violence after their arrest last Fall and the national guard called out.

Chattanooga, Tenn. News
August 30, 1933

ALLEGED NEGRO SLAYERS GUARDED AT MURDER TRIAL

Troops Present as Three Arraigned for Slaying Deputy Sheriff at Lebanon.

Lebonon, Aug. 30.—(U. P.)—National guardsmen surrounded the courthouse here this morning as three Negroes went on trial for the second time charged with killing a deputy sheriff and a special deputy, two deputy sheriffs.

Officials asked for the guardsmen because of demonstrations against the Negroes after the killing last September and during the first trial which was thrown out by the State Supreme court.

There were no signs of trouble as the trial opened this morning and the guardsmen carried the Negroes into court.

The Negroes are Jake Alexander and his son, Charles and George B. Oldham. They are accused of slaying Deputy Sheriff Ben Northern and Special Deputy Millard Brown when the two officers went to the Alexander home last September to make an arrest.

In their first trial the Alexanders were sentenced to life imprisonment and Oldham given twenty-five years.

Lynchings-1933
Prevented.

Texas.

4430

DALLAS MOB SEEKS NEGROES IN JAIL

Gathering as Deputies Hunt Bailey, It Disperses in Face of Police Reserves.

9-5-33

TEAR GAS AND GUNS READY

New York

N.Y.

Arraigning of Two Confessed Slayers of Girl Is Deferred as Too Dangerous.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 4 (AP).—A large crowd gathered today at the county jail, from which Harvey Bailey escaped and where two confessed Negro slayers were held in solitary confinement, but dispersed an hour later after milling about the doors aimlessly.

Their presence led officers to fear for a time that an attempt might be made to harm Thurman and Bluitt Burkley, Negro brothers, who confessed, officers said, to killing Miss Katheryn Prince, 19 years old, and wounding her escort, Mace Carver, 27, on a lonely road near Dallas on Wednesday night.

The "mob doors" on the front of the jail were closed and barred for the first time in several years as a precaution and police reserves mobilized at 2 P. M., formed a heavy guard to resist any attempt at lynching.

Policemen under Captain E. V Bunch carried a suitcase full of tear gas bombs and machine guns and riot guns were in eradiness should the bombs prove ineffective.

Meanwhile, word came Mesquite the rural community near Dallas where Miss Prince lived, that another mob was gathering to reinforce the crowd in Dallas.

The absence of deputy sheriffs who had gone out in search of Bailey was believed to have encouraged the mob movement against the Negro prisoners.

Under the circumstances, District Judge Grover Adams had considered it too dangerous to arraign the Negroes in his court this morning, as originally planned.

The two Negroes were indicted on Friday for the killing of Miss Prince after they had confessed to a similar attack and the killing of Abe Schreiber and his companion, Miss Pauline Corman, 17, on a lonely road near Dallas two years ago.

Texas Authorities Take Precautions to Prevent Lynching of Two Negroes

9-9-33

DALLAS, Tex.—Machine guns, riot guns and tear gas bombs are being held in readiness by authorities at the Dallas County jail to prevent armed bands of men from making an attempt to lynch Thurman and Bluitt Burkley, alleged killers of Kathryn Prince, white.

The two brothers were indicted last Friday for the alleged killing of the white girl lived at Mesquite, rural community. Another mob was said to be marching on Dallas from Mesquitet to reinforce the lynch-bent mob already at Dallas.

New York Evening Journal

DEC 5 1933

100 Deputies Guard 3 in Jail From Texas Lynch Threat

BEAUMONT, Texas, Dec. 5.—Hardin County Jail resembled a fortress early today as Sheriff Miles Gordon threw a cordon of 100 armed deputies around the building to gaurd three negroes from being lynched in connection with the torch murder of Mrs. Nellie Williams Brockman here Saturday.

Hardin County was seething as feeling throughout the district mounted, and the authorities left nothing undone to prevent mob violence suc has marked recent outbreaks in Maryland and California and Missouri.

Meanwhile, official investigation disclosed that two men might have committed the crime. Shells from two different shotguns were found near the scene of the crime. Officials believe that prisoners held i nthe county jail know the identity of the persons involved.

New Republic

10-4-33

New York N.Y.

Vol. 76 No. 983

THE Dallas, Texas, police on Labor Day prevented the lynching of two Negroes who had confessed, it is said, to murdering a white girl and seriously wounding her escort. This case is unusual both in respect to the flagrant nature of the crime involved and to the energetic part played by the police. It cannot be too often emphasized that the majority of Cotton Belt lynchings have nothing to do with outrages upon white women: usually they grow out of a dispute between a white landlord and a renter or share-cropper who may be either white or black. The tenant is shot or hanged or beaten to death, the authorities do nothing, and the whole affair is dismissed with a three-inch item in the local newspaper. Thus, in Benton, Alabama, a Negro named Joe Soles was recently accused of stealing a cow which, in reality, had strayed into his garden patch three years before. Other tenants in the neighborhood report that the charge of theft was only an excuse for canceling Soles's lease. They say he was taken into the woods by a gang which included a white landlord named Edward Mealings, and Archie Bryant, Asa Mays, Arthur Hall and a Mr. Giffindown, and was there beaten with a soaked double line. The whipping post to which he was tied had already been used this year for ten Negro men and three Negro women, all victims of an organized gang which has been terrorizing renters and croppers. In Soles's case, the beating was carried too far. He collapsed and was carried to the office of Dr. H. C. Clements, of Benton, where he died. No inquest was held.—In Warrenton, Georgia, a Negro named Watson Darden was shot by a landlord named Lovett Cockwell during an argument over the plowing of a peanut field. Cockwell reported the killing to the sheriff, who, it is said, merely told him to bury the body.—In North Carolina a Negro tenant was shot and killed because he cashed the check he received from the government instead of turning it over to his landlord.—The list of organized killings grows from day to day. In three cases out of four (and really, perhaps, in nine cases out of ten) they have nothing to do with the defense of pure womanhood. They are class murders, money murders, mean crimes committed to keep landlords up and tenants down.

New York American

DEC 5 1933

Texas Sheriff Guards Negroes, Fearing Mob

BEAUMONT, Tex., Dec. 4 (US).—Sheriff Gordon threw a cordon of 100 armed deputies around Hardin County jail today to guard three Negroes from being lynched in connection with the torch murder of Mrs. Nellie Williams Brockman here Saturday.

Feeling throughout the district remains at high pitch. Shells from two different guage shotguns were found near the scene of the crime. Officials believe the prisoners know the identiy of the persons involved.

New Republic –
N.Y.

OCT 4 1933

THE Dallas, Texas, police on Labor Day prevented the lynching of two Negroes who had confessed, it is said, to murdering a white girl and seriously wounding her escort. This case is unusual both in respect to the flagrant nature of the crime involved and to the energetic part played by the police. It cannot be too often emphasized that the majority of Cotton Belt lynchings have nothing to do with outrages upon white women: usually they grow out of a dispute between a white landlord and a renter or share-cropper who may be either white or black. The tenant is shot or hanged or beaten to death, the authorities do nothing, and the whole affair is dismissed with a three-inch item in the local newspaper. Thus, in Benton, Alabama, a Negro named Joe Soles was recently accused of stealing a cow which, in reality, had strayed into his garden patch three years before. Other tenants in the neighborhood report that the charge of theft was only an excuse for canceling Soles's lease. They say he was taken into the woods by a gang which included a white landlord named Edward Mealings, and Archie Bryant, Asa Mays, Arthur Hall and a Mr. Giffindown, and was there beaten with a soaked double line. The whipping post to which he was tied had already been used this year for ten Negro men and three Negro women, all victims of an organized gang which has been terrorizing renters and croppers. In Soles's case, the beating was carried too far. He collapsed and was carried to the office of Dr. H. C. Clements, of Benton, where he died. No inquest was held.—In Warrenton, Georgia, a Negro named Watson Darden was shot by a landlord named Lovett Cockwell during an argument over the plowing of a peanut field. Cockwell reported the killing to the sheriff, who, it is said, merely told him to bury the body.—In North Carolina a Negro tenant was shot and killed because he cashed the check he received from the government instead of turning it over to his landlord.—The list of organized killings grows from day to day. In three cases out of four (and really, perhaps, in nine cases out of ten) they have nothing to do with the defense of pure womanhood. They are class murders, money murders, mean crimes committed to keep landlords up and tenants down.

Lynchings-1933
Prevented

Virginia.

4431

Negro Held In Assault On Young School Girl

Advertiser

GOOCHLAND COURTHOUSE, VA., March 22.—(AP)—Bernard Fleming, Powhatan County negro, was held at the State farm today as a suspect in an attempted criminal assault on a 15-year-old school girl.

3-23-33

Fleming, sought by a posse of 600 men who followed bloodhounds over the countryside for several hours after the attempted assault, was taken into custody at his home last night.

Montgomery, Ala.

He was spirited by Captain Penn across the river to the State farm for safe keeping after threats at lynching had been made.

Commonwealth's Attorney Milton P. Bonifant, of Powhatan County, who questioned the negro at the State farm, said his course of action had not been determined. He said the grand jury meets on May 23 and that it had not been determined whether a special term would be called.

The girl has not been brought before Fleming in an attempt at identification.

VA. OFFICER FOILS LYNCHING ATTEMPT

Afro-American

GOOCHLAND COURTHOUSE, Va.—Captured at his home after a posse of 600 men with bloodhounds had scoured the countryside, Bernard Fleming was saved from being lynched, last week, by the quick thinking of Captain E. Penn, police officer.

4-8-33

Baltimore, Md.

Fleming, who is suspected of attempting an assault upon a 15-year-old girl, was spirited across the river to the state farm for safe keeping when lynching threats were heard.

The prisoner was arrested after a country store keeper stated the cap snatched by the assailant was one from a box he had sold to Fleming. No identification of the man has been made.

VIRGINIA LYNCHING AVERTED

Afro-American

MORRISONVILLE, Va.—A little white child, fearing punishment for playing hookey, told of two "burly Negroes" attacking, beating, binding and gagging him one day last week.

10-14-33

Posses immediately organized to scour the countrysde in search of the culprits. The child's father closely questioned the youthful victim and found that the whole thing was just that. Scores of arrested colored suspects were released.

Baltimore, Md.

Virginia Slayer Of Couple Hid From Lynchers

LYNCHBURG, VA., July 31.—(AP)—Fearing possible mob violence Campbell County authorities tonight spirited away from the Rustburg jail Reginald Leftwich, 19, negro, confessed slayer of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Coate, fruit growers, who were fatally assaulted at their farm home Sunday morning.

Advertiser

8-1-33

Authorities refused to reveal where they took Leftwich.

Letwich signed an alleged confession in the presence of Lynchburg and County police today in which he told how the man and woman were cut by a hatchet and then shot.

Montgomery, Ala.

Mr. Coate was discovered about 11 a.m. Sunday lying dead in the dining room door of his farm house on the outskirts of Lynchburg. His wife was found, mortally wounded, in another room. She was taken to Lynchburg hospital where she died.

In his alleged confession Leftwich sought to show he acted in self defense, saying Mrs. Coate first drew a pistol on him after an argument.

When Mrs. Coate brandished the pistol, Leftwich said he took it away from her and struck her with it and later hit her with a hatchet.

Later, Leftwich said, he encountered Coate outside the back door and the latter drew a pistol and fired upon him Leftwich said he ran into the yard and hid behind a tree. Coate ran back into the house and the negro followed. Leftwich said he caught his victim when he thought he was reaching for another pistol, knocked him down with his fist, hit him with the hatchet and shot him twice.

MURDER SUSPECT REMOVED FROM JAIL IN CREWE

Journal and Guide

Taken To Richmond For Safety After Mob Rumors

12-30-33

CREWE, Va.—A 16-year-old youth, being held here in connection with the murder of Godfrey Taylor, ~~white~~ filling station operator, ~~was~~ taken to Richmond last week because of threats of mob violence. Meanwhile police are making an extensive search for three other youths said to have participated in the killing.

Norfolk, Va.

Taylor, who lives alone, was killed on the night of December 11 on highway number 60 about one-half mile south of Jenning's Ordinary. After beating his head in with a blunt instrument, said to have been a length of lead pipe, the murders placed the body of the victim on a railroad track where a passing train further mutilated the body beyond recognition.

Foreman Finds Body

The remains of Taylor were found by Charlie Knott, white section foreman the following morning.

Willie Wright, 16, the only member of the alleged gang in custody is said to have confessed to a part in the crime and named Rufus Stokes, 19, Albert Allen, 18 and Burley Wright, also 18, his brother, as participators in the the killing.

Police are conducting an extensive search for the three. No motive has been established for the murder.

The brutality of the crime is held responsible for the bitter feeling here against Wright whose alleged confession is said to have brought sentiment to a head. His removal to Richmond was deemed wise when rumors of mobs collecting became frequent.

LYNCHINGS PREVENTED FROM OCTOBER 1, 1931 TO JANUARY 1, 1933

Date	State	Place	Charge	Number of Persons		What was done to save Prisoners
				White	Negro	Persons Removed	Guards Augmented	Force Used
1931
	Georgia
Dec. 5		Moultrie	Rape		1		1
Dec. 25		Alpharetta	Wounding Man	1		1
	Kentucky
Dec. 26		Richmond	Murder		1	1
	Maryland
Oct. 13		Snowhill	Murder		1	1
Nov. 5		Snowhill	Legal defense of a Negro accused of murder	2 men 1 woman		3
	Mississippi
Oct. 22		Liberty	Murder		1			1
	North Carolina
Oct. 1		Greensboro	Murder		1	1
	South Carolina
Nov. 15		York	Attempted rape		1	1
Nov. 15		York	Improper advances to white woman		1	1
Nov. 15		York	Murder		1	1
	Texas
Nov. 8		Greenville	Rape		1	1
1932
	Alabama
April 6		Talladega	Attempted rape		1	1
Aug. 6		Ashland	Attempted rape		1	1
	Arizona
Dec. 20		Yuma	Suspected murder		1	1
	Arkansas
April		Little Rock	Murder		1	1
Aug.		Poplar Bluff	Attempted rape		1	1
Nov.		Blytheville	Attempted rape		1	1
	Florida
Jan. 23		Bartow	Rape	1		1
March 27		Lakeland	Killing Officer of the law	4				4
	Georgia
May 15		Albany	Attempted rape		1			1
June 18		Bainbridge	Murder		1	1
Aug. 7		Rome	Wounding woman		1	1
Oct. 9		Damascus	Murder		1	1

DIVISION OF BEHAVIORAL SCIENCE RESEARCH
TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE ARCHIVES

	Indiana
May 19		Marion	Rape		1			1
	Kentucky
Feb. 19		Hiseville	Wounding man		1			1
Feb. 27		Jenkins	Murder		1	1
Aug.		Manchester	Murder	1			1
	Louisiana
May		Coushatta	Murder		1			1
Aug. 8		Lake Charles	Murder		1	1
	Maryland
Jan. 5		Elkton	Attempted rape		1	1
	Michigan
Aug. 4		Ludington	Murder	1			1
	Mississippi
April 20		Rawls Springs	Threatening woman		1	1
June 20		Amory	Rape		1	1
Sept. 23		Philadelphia	Murder		1	1
Oct. 3		McComb	Rape		1	1
Oct. 18		Crystal Springs	Wounding man		1	1
	Missouri
Aug. 9		New Madrid	Attempted rape		1	1
	North Carolina
May 7		Gastonia	Murder		2	2
Sept. 7		Waynesville	Insulting woman and killing Officer of the law		1			1
	Ohio
Feb. 13		Massillon	Attempted rape		2	2
	South Carolina
May 24		Walterboro	Rape		1	1
	Tennessee
Sept. 5		Lebanon	Killing two officers of the law		5 (3 men (2 women			5
	Texas
Aug. 29		Texarkana	Rape		1	1
	Virginia
July		Radford	Rape		1		1
Totals				11 ~~10~~	4~~2~~4 ~~39~~	3~~4~~6 ~~31~~	4 ~~3~~	15

DIVISION OF BEHAVIORAL SCIENCE RESEARCH REEL 2?8

Lynchings-1933

Alabama

4432

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Advertiser

9-13-33

Montgomery, Ala.

Seibels To Ask Death For Two Negro Ruffians,

Perpetrators Of Attack On Court Street Extension Trapped By City Police

One Confesses All

Special Session Of Grand Jury Called For Friday; Trial To Start Monday

Indictments alleging robbery and probably assault to murder will be sought against George Meadows and Frank Jackson, negroes, Friday in a called session of the Grand Jury, in connection with the robbery and assault of Robert Webb, Montgomery salesman, and a girl companion on the Court Street extension a week ago.

The call for assembly of the Grand Jury was issued by Judge Leon McCord, of the Montgomery Circuit Court, yesterday upon request of Solicitor W. T. Seibels, following Meadows's confession in which he named Jackson as his accomplice.

Meadows's confession was obtained at 7 a.m. yesterday by Officers A. J. Coker and Thomas H. Goins, of the Montgomery Police Department. They arrested Jackson within an hour after Meadows had confessed.

Motorscouts Coker and Goins last night revealed they obtained the "tip" that led to the negroes' arrest from a negro whom they had given some change to participate in a card game. The negro, they said, overheard one of the players remark that he intended to assault a white woman.

The work of the officers, two of the younger men of the department who laid aside their motorscout uniforms and donned plain clothes for the job, won strong commendation from Col. W. P. Screws, police commissioner, who declared it was an "excellent piece of work."

Later in Jackson's presence, Meadows made a full confession. Solicitor Seibels, Officers Goins and Coker, Capt. Ralph King, Sheriff Sam Stearns and Commissioner Screws, also were present.

Jackson, however, denied knowledge of the crime.

Upon the return of indictments it is probable that the trial of the case will be set for Monday.

Solicitor Seibels indicated he would ask for the death penalty in both cases if both are indicted for robbery. The penalty for conviction of assault with intent to murder, or assault with intent to ravish is from two to 20 years.

Meadows, who is 27 years old, told how he had gone to Jackson's home on Oak Street near Fairview Avenue and not far from the spot where the robbery and assault was attempted, and called Jackson from his home.

He said he told Jackson to get his pistol and "let's go out and see if we can't find something."

From Jackson's house, he said, they walked to the spot near the Court Street extension where they awaited their victims. Presently, he said, a car with a couple in it came along and stopped a short distance from them, and they made ready to rob the occupants. As they drew close to the car, however, it moved on off and they withdrew to wait for another car.

In a short while, he said, the car in which Webb and the young girl were riding, drew along and stopped. He and Jackson, he said, came up from behind the car and ordered them out. They took some money from Webb's pocket, and his watch, he said. Webb made no effort to resist, Meadows said, until one of them ordered the girl to go some distance away into the weeds. Webb fought, he said, and they both fell to the ground. Meadows said he fired his revolver one time while Webb held him on the ground. He said both were prevented from assaulting the girl.

An interesting feature of the confession revealed that the dogs from Kilby Prison which were put on the trail evidently ran the trail of some other person as the trail pursued by the dogs led in a direction opposite from that which the negroes took. Meadows said they went through the field to Goode Street and then to their homes on Oak Street. They did not walk in the road, they said, because they were afraid the police might catch them with their revolvers. Meadows said he didn't hear the dogs that night.

Meadows denied that he and Jackson had perpetrated other outrages in that section.

Police learned, however, that Meadows and Jackson had held up and assaulted members of their own race, a 15-year-old negro girl being among their recent victims, and the negroes in that section were eager to give the police their cooperation.

Officers Coker and Goins, following the arrest of Meadows Monday, found hidden under Meadows's house the watch that was taken from Webb. Meadows had also hidden the girl's underwear in the chimney with his revolver and several women's pocketbooks—souvenirs of other outrages.

Jackson's revolver also was found hidden in the chimney of his home.

Until these articles were found Meadows maintained his innocence. When shown Webb's watch, however, the negro wilted.

"I'm guilty," he said.

9-13

Montgomery Adv.

Adv. 9-13-33

Lynchings-1933
6
Rape, Alleged Attacks by Negroes.
6

Alabama.

4433

Cont

Negro Shot By Father Of Girl He Assaulted

Advertiser

MOBILE, ALA., Jan. 4.—(AP)— A negro reported to have attacked an eight year old white girl last night was shot and seriously wounded by the child's father at Fowl River, near here.

1-5-33

The negro was brought to jail here by traffic officer Larry [illegible] who reported a [illegible] quickly after [illegible] reported at [illegible] and the wounding of the negro.

NEGRO ATTACKS GIRL

Advertiser

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Jan. 12—(AP)— A 14-year-old white girl en route to school today was knocked to the ground by a negro who fled police reported. The girl, Ethelyne Herrod, an orphan living with her grandparents, said the negro attacked her as she followed a short cut through the woods. She fled as a white man approached. The child suffered slight head injuries as she fell on a pile of rocks but continued to school.

Negro Jailed Here On Attack Charge

Advertiser
2-1-33

Jimmie Lee Johnson, negro youth, is held by police under $1,000 bail for an attempted attack upon a 14-year-old white girl in the 300 block of North Decatur Street last night about 7 p.m.

The negro, 19 years old, was arrested by Detectives J. L. Miller and W. A Davis shortly after the alleged attack as he walked down Decatur Street a few blocks from the scene. He admitted being in the yard where the girl was attacked but denied touching her, officers said.

Montgomery, Ala.

The girl, whose clothes were torn from her body, but who otherwise was uninjured, told officers that she had stepped out into the yard to get some clothes when the negro appeared and grabbed her dress. Breaking loose from the negro's grasp, she started to run up the steps, but tripped and fell on the steps, she said. Then the negro grabbed her again and she screamed, the girl declared. Apparently frightened by her cries, the negro went off down the street.

A neighbor told officers that he saw the negro and shouted to him, but that the negro told him that he was "washing his hands" at a hydrant in the yard.

The girl furnished a good description which enabled officers to identify him, it was said. The girl positively identified Johnson as the negro who attacked her.

The negro will be given a hearing before the city recorder this morning.

Aged Woman's Attacker Is Shot

Advertiser
5-25-33

Sheriff's Men Get One Of Three Negroes Wanted For Year-Old Assault

Montgomery, Ala.

Black Buster, alias Sam Williams, 24-year-old negro described by county officers as a desperate character, wanted for an attack on an aged German woman on the Selma Road nearly a year ago, was shot and critically wounded by deputies when the negro resisted arrest and fled from a house at 14 Murray Street yesterday morning. Physicians said the negro had an even chance to live at St. Margaret's Hospital.

County officers have been on the trail of the negro since the attack last year and yesterday morning they were advised that he could be found at the Murray Street house. Deputies Hayden Sellers, Addie Mosley and J. F. Tucker went to the place and surrounded the house. When one of the officers entered the front door, the negro jumped out of a window and fled toward the next house.

Deputy Sellers withheld his fire until the negro was out of range of some people walking down the street, but when he darted between two houses, the officer shot him once. The negro continued to run and was stopped only by a charge of buckshot from a shotgun in the hands of Deputy Mosley.

The attack on the woman, who died about six weeks ago, occurred on the O. A. Richardson plantation on the old Selma Road about eight miles from Montgomery. Three negroes rented an automobile here and drove down to the farm house where they attacked her, with robbery as the motive. They were frightened away by a negro boy on the plantation who came up to the house while the crime was being committed.

About three months ago Deputies Sellers and Mosley located the automobile the negroes used, in the possession of a Birmingham negro. Both of the officers said there was no doubt about the negro being the one who helped strike down the aged woman.

Sheriff Sam Stearnes said that the negro was well known here and had given officers considerable trouble. The negro is said to have struck a policeman on the head with a brick when officers were pursuing a band of burglars at a grocery store some time ago. The Sheriff said that the deputies were clearly justified in shooting the negro.

Two Negroes Identify Third As Attacker

Advertiser

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., June 24.—(AP) —Two negroes held in jail here in the slaying of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21, in Tuscaloosa County two weeks ago, today identified Honey Clark, another negro, as the slayer of the girl.

The negroes, A. T. Harden, 15, and Tom Pippen, Jr., 18, when confronted with Clark told officers they had seen him drag the girl from a lonely road, attack and kill her.

6-25-33

Head Warden Erwin, Deputy Warden Disheroon, Solicitor Foster and two deputies sheriff from Tuscaloosa were present when the two young negroes identified the third.

Montgomery, Ala.

Solicitor Foster and the two deputies immediately left for Tuscaloosa with Harden and Clark, presumably to take them before the Grand Jury which convened there today to probe the slaying, and also a demand by a crowd that two of the negroes be delivered over to them.

Harden and Pippen were quietly brought to the Jefferson County Jail early this week as a safeguard against any effort at violence against them.

Witness To Slaying Of Girl Held By Officers

Advertiser
6-20-33

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., June 19.—(AP)— Officers announced this afternoon that A. T. Harden, 15-year-old negro, had said he was an eye witness to the slaying of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21, last Monday and named another negro, Dan Pippin, Jr., 18, as the slayer.

Harden was quoted by officers as saying that Pippen came by his home and asked him to go along as he, Pippen, was "going to do some dirt to a white girl."

Officers said the young negro admitted going along, and that when Pippin stopped Miss Maddox he left and went to a hill where he watched the attack and slaying of Miss Maddox, but took no part in it.

Montgomery, Ala.

Pippin, confronted with Harden's story, still denied to officers that he was in any way connected with the slaying or attack.

Harden and Dan Pippen, Sr., were taken into custody last night for questioning, and officers said today they believed the young negro was an actual participant in the crime.

Negro Held For On Woman At D

DECATUR, ALA., Aug. 21. Thomas Brown, negro, was arreste afternoon and identified by Mrs. George Dugger as the negro who attacked her two hours earlier near her home in a outlying section of the city.

The negro was taken into custody soon after county and city officers were joined by a posse, organized quickly after word of the attack was spread.

Feeling was running high as the search for the attacker started and Brown was hurried to the Morgan County Jail immediately after his arrest. Officers said some persons who gathered at the jail left within a few minutes and that no trouble was anticipated.

NEGRO IS IDENTIFIED IN ALABAMA ATTACK

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 21.—(AP)— Thomas Brown, negro, was arrested this afternoon and identified by Mrs. George Dugger as the negro who attacked her two hours earlier near her home in an outlying section of the city.

The negro was taken into custody soon after county and city officers were joined by a posse, organized quickly after word of the attack was spread.

Negroes Attack Girl Here After Robbing Escort

Advertiser
9-7-33
Montgomery, Ala.

Overpower Couple Seated In Car Parked On South Court Street Extension

Identity Withheld

Similar Assault At Same Spot Two Weeks Ago Hidden Until Yesterday

County officers last night still were searching for two negro men who robbed and beat a man and criminally attacked his young woman companion early Wednesday morning on the South Court Street extension. Sheriff Sam Stearns said that a negro, Nathaniel Williams, had been arrested in connection with the case, but that he did not believe Williams had any part in the crime.

Meanwhile, Sheriff B. D. Chambliss, of Autauga County, announced at Prattville that he had arrested another negro charged with attacking a young white woman in the southeastern part of that county Wednesday morning. The sheriff removed the negro to an unidentified jail.

County officers here who investigated the South Court Street affair were unable to supply the name of the couple. Extensive inquiry last night revealed that strenuous efforts were being made to withhold the names of the principals in the robbery and attack.

According to the officers, the couple were seated in the automobile when the two negroes approached, one of them flourishing a pistol, and ordered the couple out of the car. As the young woman got out, one negro covered her with the pistol while his confederate went through the man's pockets, took $20 and a watch, and cursed him for not having more.

Fight In Cornfield

The man and woman were led out in a cornfield, and when one of the negroes mentioned attacking the girl, the young man grappled with the negro holding the pistol and attempted to wrest it from him, officers said. Three shots were fired while the two fought over the pistol, and officers said that spot bore evidences of a terrific struggle, with cornstalks knocked down and the ground torn up. The man put up a brave fight in defense of his companion, they said.

After the man was subdued, one of the negroes held the pistol on him while the other negro led the woman a few feet away and criminally attacked her, according to officers. This negro then held the gun on the man while his companion attacked the woman.

The negroes then fled, apparently making their escape by an automobile which had been parked on Fairview Avenue. The man took his companion to a home in Capitol Heights where a physician was summoned to care for her and the county officers were notified. Deputies Moseley and Sellers went to the scene of the crime and found the woman's watch and a .32 caliber cartridge.

Assault Reported Late

A similarly brutal attack upon an unaccompanied white married woman about two weeks ago in the same vicinity was revealed yesterday by officers who declared that the incident went unreported until yesterday. Two negroes answering the same descriptions as the pair that attacked the young woman yesterday, were involved in that case, it was said.

The woman, who lives beyond Fairview Avenue, had started to town and due to the fact that her automobile had only one light, she decided to drive on a back street, it was said. The two negroes are said to have jumped on the running board of the car, forced the woman from the seat and dragged her into the woods where they each attacked her. To avoid publicity the affair was not reported to officers and it came to light yesterday following this other attack.

According to a description of the negroes involved in the attack here yesterday, furnished by their victims, one was a heavy-set negro, over six feet tall, while the other was a medium-sized negro.

The young woman told officers that she put a ring in her mouth and that she must have swallowed it.

Details of the Autauga County attack were lacking and Sheriff Chambliss and officers declined to say anything other than that they had arrested a negro for an attack on a young widow in the southeastern part of the county, about 20 miles from Prattville.

Sheriff Chambliss wanted to transfer his prisoner to the Montgomery County jail, but permission to do this was refused here on account of the South

Court Street affair. The Sheriff would not say to what jail he took his prisoner.

Screws Assigns Four Detectives To Attack Case

Advertiser

Men Who Solved Fletcher Murder Are Set On Trail Of Two Negro Ruffians

9-9-33

Face A Handicap

Montgomery, Ala.

Police Say Sheriff's Men Concealed Names Of White Victims In Case

An unrelenting search for the two negroes who on Wednesday morning made an attempted assault on a white woman and robbed her male companion on the Court Street extension was ordered yesterday by Col. W. P. Screws, police commissioner, who ordered that the full resources of the department be utilized and no effort be spared until the men were behind the bars.

Paul Rapport, chief of detectives, immediately assigned four veteran members of the department to work on this case exclusively and to trace every clue.

While the sheriff's office continued to keep secret the names of the two white principals in the events of Wednesday morning, representatives of The Advertiser yesterday established their identities and were told by a kinsman of the girl that the negroes were not successful in their attempts.

The girl's companion, whose vigorous resistance of the negroes' attack was probably responsible for the failure of their purpose, was learned to be Robert Webb, a traveling salesman who resides at 8 Linden Avenue. Mr. Webb was out of the city yesterday.

The girl's relatives expressed resentment that first accounts of the incident indicated that she had been ravished. This, however, was part of the meager information given out by Sheriff's Deputies Moseley and Sellers, who were called on by Webb shortly after the events took place.

The quartet of veterans assigned to this case are the same who about two years ago, soon after Col. Screws became police commissioner, "cracked" the Fletcher murder case and smashed a newly organized gang that had conceived and executed several daring robberies.

The officers in this case, Detectives Curtis, Waugh, Dennison and Chancellor, won for themselves wide recognition in what was conceded to be one of the most thorough clean-ups of its kind that has been conducted in the history of the State.

The detectives entered the present case under somewhat adverse circumstances as the police department was not notified of the crime by the sheriff's department until later during the day, Col. Screws said. The Police Department had plenty of men available to aid the sheriff's department at 1 o'clock in the morning, Col. Screws added. The crime was committed within the city limits, he said.

"You can say that we are going to do our best to get these men," Col. Screws said last night. "I have confidence in the ability of the entire department and we are all going to work. Most of the crimes that have been solved in the past have been solved by hard work, and most of the unsolved cases are cases in which the officers relaxed or became indifferent."

Col. Screws declared there would be no relaxation or indifference in this man hunt. The fact is generally recognized that the Montgomery Police Department has proven in the past that it ranks as one of the most thorough and efficient in the country.

Another handicap for the Police Department at the start was the fact that they did not learn from the Sheriff's Department the names of the couple attacked. The Sheriff's Department reported that the best information it had was that the man's name was "Webb" and that the sheriff's office had not learned the name of the woman. Detectives yesterday after some work were able to get the necessary facts of the case and a few clues also. The sheriff's office now also was said to be in full possession of the facts.

The Sheriff's Department yesterday arrested a second negro for questioning but the man, whose name the department still refused to disclose, declined to say positively that the negro arrested was one of the pair.

Col. Screws said the assault and robbery Wednesday morning had brought to light a number of recent roadside robberies which the principals did not report to the authorities for fear of the noteriety that would result in a trial. In one instance, it was learned, another white woman had been assaulted, but this case, too, was not reported.

In some of the cases, Col. Screws said, women had been used as lures in a racket in which white men were the robbers. The game, he said, is for a woman and her male companion, who often poses as her husband, to come into Montgomery. The woman meets a victim, often a married man, and steers him to a place on the roadside where her male confederate appears and robs them both.

Col. Screws gave orders to the department yesterday to round up all of the "transient" women that could be found and give them 24 hours in which to leave town. Otherwise he said, they will be charged with vagrancy.

$400 Rewards In Assault Case

Advertiser

9-9-33

Governor To Offer $200 Each For Negroes Who Made Attempt On Girl

Montgomery, Ala.

With a reward of $400 pledged for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the two negroes who early Wednesday morning attempted to assault a young white woman and robbed her and her escort on the Court Street extension, the search for the ruffians continued last night with but few developments.

Governor Miller, advised that a request for a reward by the State of $200 for each of the negroes, had been placed in the mail by Solicitor W. T. Seibels, said yesterday he will dictate the necessary official order the minute the letter is received. The letter is expected to reach his desk this morning.

Stearns Offers $25

In addition Sheriff Sam Stearns has announced that he will pay a reward of $25 out of his pocket to anyone volunteering information that will lead to the apprehension of the negroes.

Sheriff Stearns yesterday conferred at length with Col. Screws at Police Headquarters and Col. Screws last night requested that it be made clear that the Sheriff and Police Departments are cooperating in the man hunt. He emphasized that there is no friction existing between the city police and the sheriff's office.

Rumors Victimize Girls

The tight-lipped secrecy maintained by the Sheriff's officers for two days following the crime as to the names of the man and girl involved, it was learned yesterday, had placed about a half dozen young women under a cloud—the victims of rumor mongers. Some of these young women, as a result, have been unable to convince their friends that it was all a mistake, so persistent and far-reaching is the effect of ill-founded and unauthenticated rumors. Publication of the name of the man, Robert Webb, of 8 Linden Street, in The Advertiser yesterday, however, had the effect of largely dispelling the rumors.

Meanwhile Detectives Curtis, Waugh, Dennison and Chancellor of the Montgomery Police Department, took up the cold trail yesterday with only a meager description of the negroes and a few clues, the nature of which they would not divulge, to lead them in the search.

Suspect Held

One negro has been arrested thus far by Deputies Sellers and Moseley. The negro, Nathaniel Williams, is being held for further questioning, Sheriff Stearns said yesterday.

Webb and the young woman were in an automobile on the Court Street extension when the two negroes came up flourishing revolvers and ordered them to get out of the car. Webb was robbed of about $20. The negroes took a watch from the girl, but later dropped it.

Thereupon the negroes proceeded to attempt to ravish the girl and Webb gave battle to both of the negroes, although he was unarmed. A revolver held by one of the negroes was discharged twice in an effort to kill Webb, but Webb escaped injury from bullet wounds. He was struck a heavy blow on the head.

The girl also fought furiously until the negroes abandoned the attempt and backed away into a cornfield nearby.

Dogs from Kilby Prison trailed the negroes to Fairview Avenue where they apparently had parked their car.

The assault occurred about 1 a.m. Wednesday.

Hot Clue Leads Toward Blacks Guilty In Assault

Advertiser

9-12-33

Montgomery, Ala.

County Officers Confident They're On Warm Trail; Mystery Car Is Involved

Arrest Is Expected

Two Known Men Sought; Auto Explains Getaway From Fairview Avenue

It was learned Monday night that sheriff's officers working on the criminal assault and robbery case which occurred on the South Court Street extension early Wednesday morning, are in possession of a clue which they are running down and which may result in the arrest of the two negroes guilty of the crime.

It is learned that the clue revolves around a parked automobile which was noted for an hour or more Tuesday night just prior to the assault and robbery. The car was standing on the south side of Fairview Avenue about 200 yards west of the intersection of Fairview Avenue and Court Street. It is believed that this is the car that was used by the two negroes in escaping from the scene of the crime.

The car had been noted standing about at the spot where the bloodhounds from Kilby Prison lost the hot scent they had been following from the scene of the crime.

The two negro hold-up men had cut across a field from the scene of the crime on the Court Street extension to the extension of Fairview Avenue. The dogs had no trouble in trailing them across the field but lost the trail when the two negroes reached the Fairview Avenue extension pavement.

Sheriff's officers, so it is learned, believe that they will soon be able to trace the ownership of the parked car and they expect to trace it to two negroes who have been seen for sometime haunting the Court Street extension and into the loop from that extension to Perry Street. The two negroes, so it is learned, have not been seen in their accustomed haunts since the night of the crime. Every effort, so it is learned, is being made to locate them.

There has been no let-up, so it is learned, by Sheriff's deputies to trace to the criminals since the night of the crime. The search has been continuing night and day and if the clue which the officers are now working upon can be followed to its conclusion, the belief is that the guilty negroes will be placed in custody.

Lynchings-1933

Arkansas.

4434

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

NEGRO ARRESTED FOR SLAYING AND ASSAULT

Commercial Appeal

Will Face the Charges at Little Rock.

2-24-33

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 23.—Pulaski County deputy sheriffs tonight were en route from Baton Rouge, La., to Little Rock with Jake Banks, negro convict, who was arrested near the Louisiana capital today in connection with the slaying of Mark M. Goodson, suspended Little Rock patrolman, and attacking Mrs. Ethel J. May, his companion, near North Little Rock, [illegible]

Memphis

Banks' arrest ended a search which extended into several states during the past two weeks, after Mrs. May had identified Banks' photograph as the man who killed Goodson and attacked her. The negro was indicted by the Pulaski County grand jury at its last session on a charge of first degree murder. Mrs. May appeared as a witness.

The search for Banks was started when officers were provided with information by a relative. The relative told them that Banks on the day of the murder was dressed as Mrs. May described him, and was carrying a shotgun, and was hunting near the scene of the murder. He returned to his home that night and said that he was going to leave for a few days. He left his shotgun at the home.

Officials followed information obtained here which led to the arrest of Banks today at Kleinpeter Station, 10 miles south of Baton Rouge. D. J. Raper and J. D. Conner, Pulaski County deputy sheriffs, probably will arrive here tomorrow morning with banks.

Mrs. May identified Banks from a photograph following the arrest of another negro in connection with the crime. They obtained information from the suspect which aided in the search. Mrs. May was brought to the grand jury room to testify in the case. She was seriously injured by the negro who killed Goodson.

Banks escaped from the Texas state penitentiary a year ago after he had served only a few months of a 90-year term. Officers learned that since that time he had been living with a half-brother near North Little Rock, a short distance from the scene of the murder and burtal attack. The search for Banks extended into South Arkansas, Teas and Louisiana.

Mrs. May said that she and Goodson were sitting in a parked automobile in a secluded spot several miles from North Little Rock when the negro appeared and forced them out of the car. He marched them a considerable distance from the automobile, where he shot and instantly killed Goodson after first robbing him.

He then assaulted Mrs. May, she related, stabbing her a dozen times with a knife when she resisted. He also struck her on the head with the butt of the shotgun, and previously he had peppered her legs with shot from the gun when she was slow in obeying an order. He then fled.

Lynchings - 1933
Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Georgia

4435

POSSE SEEKS NEGRO ACCUSED OF ATTACK

3-23-33

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 23. (AP)—Sheriff Gordon E. Davis and a posse from Coolidge and Thomasville were searching woods near Coolidge tonight for an unidentified negro who made an unsuccessful attempt to assault a young white woman today.

The attempt was made at the woman's home near Coolidge, she told authorities. The negro, she said, wore a veil or mask. He choked her, she said, and scraped her throat slightly with an old knife.

She was alone when the negro came, she related, but escaped from him and fled to a neighbor's house.

The negro made his getaway, but a posse was assembled and bloodhounds were put on a scent. Several suspects were detained, but none has been identified.

Negro Held in Assault.

Police Tuesday night were holding J. B. Murphy, 37, negro, of 855 Ashby street, on suspicion in connection with an attack on a white woman who was assaulted in the rear of 453 Washington street. Murphy was arrested by Patrolmen C. W. Mauldin and J. B. Harper.

Negro Held in Attack.

Albert Dobbs, negro, was placed in Fulton Tower late Thursday afternoon for an alleged attack upon a white woman. The attack occurred near Mooney's lake. Dobbs was captured within an hour by Captain J. C. Oliver and officers Webb, Patrick, Douglas and Wallace, of the county police.

NEGRO SHOT TO DEATH BY SHERIFF OF BROOKS

Constitution

Man Accused of Assault Had Been Secretly Sought Since Monday

12-9-33

QUITMAN, Ga., Dec. 8.—In an effort to arrest Lester Dasher, a negro alleged to have criminally assaulted a prominent white woman in the northern part of the county, Sheriff Colin E. Clanton, of Brooks county, shot the fugitive through the head today killing him instantly.

The criminal assault occurred last Monday afternoon, but only the male relatives and the sheriff knew of the crime. Sheriff Clanton secured an agreement with the woman's relatives that they would not make any announcement of the crime and would not resort to violence upon his promise to locate the negro and arrest him.

At noon today the sheriff located Dasher, who was armed with a shot gun. When the negro saw the officer he leveled the gun but dodged around a negro house attempting to fire.

Three times the gun was drawn upon the sheriff while the latter was trying to reach the negro. As the negro got into position and raised the weapon for the fourth time, Sheriff Clanton shot, killing the man instantly.

A coroner's jury asked for by Sheriff Clanton, immediately exonerated him, declaring he not only shot in self-defense but took too many chances before shooting. The negro's body was brought to an undertaker in Quitman.

WOMAN ATTACKED; THREE ARE HELD

Telegraph

Attempted Criminal Assault Made on White Woman at Her Home Near Lumpkin

12-5-33

LUMPKIN, Ga., Dec. 4.—Three Negroes suspected of being implicated in an attempted criminal assault on a white woman near here on Sunday night, Nov. 26, are being held in jail at Columbus.

The Negroes are Roosevelt Newsome, Marvin Harris and Willey Williams. Only two are said to have taken part in the attack, but the third is being held until the victim has sufficiently recovered from her injuries to see if she can identify either of them.

It is understood that the woman can identify one Negro who it is said, hit her on the head with an axe. While defending herself and her 13-year-old daughter, she was hit with the axe and suffered cuts and bruises and a broken bone in one of her hands.

The attempted assault took place at the home of the woman about 11 o'clock at night. Her husband was away at the time. Immediately after the Negroes left, officers were notified, and the arrests were made Monday, Nov. 27.

Harris and Newsome are natives of Stewart county, and Williams is an ex-convict, having been recently released from the chain gang.

Negro Convict Held On Assault Charge

Telegraph

METTER, Ga., Nov. 24.—Clifford Duncan, 25-year-old Negro trusty convict, is in the Candler county jail charged with assaulting a 12-year-old white girl near the county farm late today.

11-25-33

The girl is the daughter of a prominent planter residing near Metter. The offense was committed while the girl was returning to her home from school Friday afternoon. The Negro stopped the girl and forced her companion to remain nearby while the crime was being committed.

Sheriff Trapnell was immediately notified and he arrested the Negro at the convict camp and lodged him in jail. Reports from the little girl are that she is not in a very serious condition as a result of the assault.

Solicitor General Gross has been notified and will probably come to Metter this week to determine whether or not to advise that a special term of court be called to try the case.

GEORGIA NEGRO HELD ON ATTACK CHARGES

Constitution

Chattanooga Officers Guard Man as High Feeling Rampant.

12-11-33

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 10. (AP)—A negro listed by police as Will Moses, of Summerville, Ga., was arrested today at Whitwell, Tenn., on charges of attempting to attack the wife of a prominent resident of Marion county.

Atlanta Ga.

He was brought to Hamilton county jail here for safekeeping after Sheriff C. L. Coffelt of Marion county, reported high feeling in the vicinity of Jasper.

The negro, who was caught by Deputy Sheriff George Condra and W. C. Paxton, coal mine superintendent, after a posse had given up the search last night, denied the attempted attack and said he had left when the woman, by whom he was employed, discharged him.

Negro Held in Assault.

Police Tuesday night were holding J. B. Murphy, 37, negro, of 855 Ashby street, on suspicion in connection with an attack on a white woman who was assaulted in the rear of 453 Washington street. Murphy was arrested by Patrolmen C. W. Mauldin and J. B. Harper.

Louisiana

4436

Lynchings-1933

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

One Negro Shot, Another Whipped By Louisianians

BATON ROUGE, LA., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Robert Richardson, negro, was shot and killed and another negro reported beaten today when a group of West Feliciana Parish citizens, headed by a deputy sheriff, went to their home to question them about a reported attempt to annoy a young white woman.

The sheriff's office declined to give out details, but Mayor J. R. Matthews, of St. Francisville, nearby, said Richardson was shot by Deputy Ted Martin when the negro resisted arrest and attempted to run away. The mayor said he was informed that the band of men, numbering about 25, whipped the other negro when he was slow in answering questions.

Lynchings-1933

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Maryland.

4437

100 IN MOB OF LYNCHERS SEEK MARYLAND MAN

Afro-American
12-9-33
Baltimore Md.

WASHINGTON.—A posse of more than 100 white farmers, searching for a man alleged to have attacked a 72-year-old white woman with a rock at her home in Accokeek last Saturday morning, are without their prey.

A suspect in the attack on Mrs. Suzanne Kuehn, was being treated in the same hospital at the same time the aged woman was being treated for a possible fractured skull.

Lloyd Newman, 22, 2100 Good Hope Road, southeast, told the white physicians who treated him at Providence Hospital that he was cut in a fight at Accokeek, Md. He had wounds on forehead, cheeks and chin, and was later transferred to Gallinger, where he was released.

Washington police who notified Maryland authorities of the alleged fight at Accokeek learned too late that Newman answered the description of a man wanted in the beating of Mrs. Kuehn at her Accokeek home. Maryland police claimed that the face wounds Newman bore were fingernail scratches caused by the woman.

Disappears in Car.

When Newman was sought at the Good Hope Road address he had disappeared in a car carrying Maryland license plates.

Mrs. Kuehn said her assailant was a tall thick-set colored man, who came to her house and knocked on her kitchen door, stating that he had been sent to repair an automobile by her son, Walter. She added:

"He was polite at first, helping me gather eggs as we looked for the tools. Then, without saying a word he grabbed me from behind and threw me to the ground.

"He choked me and pounded my head with a rock. When I regained my senses I could hear him throwing things about in the house. Then he ran away and I called for help."

Bloodhounds were obtained from the Lorton Reformatory. Farmers armed with pitchforks and shotguns aided firemen and police in beating the woods and covering all roads.

Men patrolled the Potomac near Marshall Hall in motorboats for fear the fugitive would slip across the river into Virginia and escape.

Walter Kuehn, the son, told investigators he often carried large sums of money on his person. He said this might have led to the attack. He believed the robber thought he would find several hundred dollars hidden in the house. A silver dollar was the only thing said to be missing.

Meanwhile authorities planned precautions to prevent a lynching should the assailant be captured. It was feared he would be hanged on the spot.

82-Year-Old Woman Attacked by Negro

Constitution
10-17-33

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 16 (AP)—Officers and armed civilians on Maryland's eastern shore searched tonight for a negro accused of attacking an 82-year-old white woman.

Assembling after the news spread that Mrs. Mary Denston, the aged wife of a Somerset county farmer, had been attacked today, the group variously estimated at numbering from 500 to 1,000, began a systematic combing of woods and swamplands. Nightfall did not halt the search.

Mrs. Denston said she did not know the man who attacked her as she returned home after spending the night at her daughter's, but a 24-year-old negro was sought after a hat said to belong to him was found near the scene of the attack. The negro's name was given by officers as George Armwood.

GIRL REPUDIATES KIDNAPING CHARGE

BELAIR, Md., Dec. [illegible]—(AP)—State's Attorney Mayer H. Getz today announced that kidnaping charges against two negroes, jailed upon the evidence of a 15-year-old white girl, had been dropped.

The girl, Marie Ball, of Taylor, Md., has admitted that her story was untrue, declared Getz.

"She admitted that she concocted the tale because of fear of punishment for staying away from home and that she had never seen the accused men before she identified them in the magistrate's court," he said.

Getz added that the two negroes, George Highman, of Black Horse, and Ross Jones, of Fallston, Md., would be released.

"For their own safety, however, I deem it wiser to hold them in jail another 24 hours until the news of their innocence can be spread," the state's attorney added.

TWO NEGROES HELD AS GIRL'S KIDNAPERS

Commercial Appeal

Victim Seized While Out For Sunday Stroll

12-13-33

BELAIR, Md., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Two negroes were held in jail here tonight as authorities pressed their investigation into the kidnaping story of Marie Ball, 15, sister of the four steeplechase-riding Ball brothers.

Memphis, Tenn.

The negroes, identified as Ross Jones and George Highman, were arrested early tonight by Deputy Sheriff Walter Bennington and Corp. Gilbert Wollenburg of the state police.

Bennington said that the girl had identified both prisoners as the men who, while she was walking near the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Knight, Rutledge, Sunday afternoon, drew up beside her in an automobile, seized her and bound and gagged her.

She said that she was forced to sit between them while they drove about the country for several hours.

She said that she told them that she was "Georgiana Dixon," but that when she finally admitted that was not her real name, they appeared to become frightened and released her.

Mississippi.

4438

Lynchings-1933
Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

4438

Memphis Tenn Commerical Ap-Peal
Aug. 9, 1933

HURRY NEGROES AWAY AFTER ATTACK ON GIRL

Greenville Sheriff Seeks to Prevent Mob Violence

GREENVILLE, Miss., Aug. 8.—Sheriff Ben H. Gildart tonight hurried two negro assault suspects away from the Greenville jail to another county as a mob of 100 men advanced from the Chatham community following an attempted attack upon a 11-year-old girl this morning shortly before noon and the arrest of the two negroes for questioning.

Late tonight, the crowd, part of the members armed, was dispersing after milling around the jail for some time, reluctant to believe that the negroes had been taken away.

The negroes were arrested near the scene of the crime after Sheriff Gildart had been called to the community. The girl, returning from school, had been accosted by a negro and dragged into some woods. She made her way home later and was in a highly nervous state.

NEGRO SOUGHT AFTER ATTACK AT MERIDIAN

Finger Prints on Clock May Lead to Arrest

MERIDIAN, Miss., Dec. 6.—After an all-day search, officers are still making efforts to capture a negro who entered the bedroom of Miss Bernice Harris, 19, this morning and attacked her.

A suspect is being held at police headquarters and three have been released.

12-7-33

A small alarm clock may lead to identification of the attacker, it is believed by investigators. The clock contained splendid finger prints, according to City Detective T. D. Harbour.

According to officers Miss Harris stated that when she retired about 10 p.m. yesterday she had placed the clock on a chair near the head of her bed and the negro had taken it to prop open the door when he entered the room. This precaution was believed by the chief to have been taken by the black in preparation for a quick escape.

Miss Harris was awakened early this morning by the negro's hands on her throat. Following the assault, he asked for her money and she sent him to another room as she fled into the streets screaming. Police officers and neighbors hurried to her assistance. Bloodhounds were placed on the trail, but this was soon lost because of rain which obliterated all tracks.

SEEK NEGRO ATTACKER

Intruder Chokes Meridian Girl Before Assaulting Her

MERIDIAN, Miss.—A posse Wednesday was seeking an unidentified Negro who early Wednesday entered the room of Miss Bernice Harris, 19, choked and then attacked her.

12-7-33

The girl said she was awakened when she felt the Negro's fingers upon her throat.

Following the attack she told him she had money across the hall and then ran out of the room screaming.

Officers Gunn and Kinard, who heard her scream quickly took up the chase of the Negro. Two suspects are being held.

The girl said she believed she could recognize the Negro by his voice.

NEGRO HELD IN ATTACK

Joe Turner Taken to Unannounced Jail From Hattiesburg

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Dec. 27.—(AP)—A negro tenant farmer, Joe Turner, who resides near McLaurin, was being held in an unannounced jail tonight, charged with a criminal attack on a 16-year-old girl.

12-28-33

Officials in the office of Sheriff Estus Hudson, who rushed the negro away for safe keeping, immediately after his arrest today, said that the alleged crime occurred near McLaurin several days ago.

HATTIESBURG, Miss.—(AP)—A Negro tenant farmer, Joe Turner, who resides near McLaurin, was being held in an undisclosed jail Wednesday night, charged with a criminal attack on a 12-[illegible] white girl.

12-29

Officials in the office of [illegible] Hudson, who rushed the [illegible] away for safekeeping immediately after his arrest Thursday, said the alleged crime occurred near McLaurin several days ago.

THREE NEGROES HELD IN ATTACK CASE HERE

Girl Victim of Assault Still in Hysterical Condition

12-29-33

POLICE GRILL SUSPECTS

Finger Prints Taken From Steering Wheel of Automobile Recovered After Crime. Uncle Recounts Story

Three negroes suspected of complicity in a criminal assault on 16-year-old Mildred Collins, Holly Springs high school junior, Tuesday night in Mississippi just over the Tennessee line near the Tchulahoma Road, were arrested by police and sheriff's deputies here yesterday morning.

12-20-33

The girl's aunt, Mrs. W. L. Jackson, 584 Alexander, and her uncle G. A. Collins, living near Holly Springs, who were with the girl at the time of the attack, were unable to identify the negroes at police station. The girl's physical condition prevented her from viewing them.

The attackers leaped on the car driven by Collins at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night as it was haltea for a red traffic light at Lamar and Parkway. One of the negroes took the wheel of the car and the other two got into the back seat wth Miss Collins.

A short distance from this spot they forced the three from the car and robbed them, taking $9 from Collins, and $4.50 from Mrs. Jackson. They also forced her to write two checks on the First National Bank, one for $100 and one for $25. Both were made payable to cash.

Cursed Them

"They made us get back into the car," said Collins, "and cursed us vilely. They said they were going to kill al lof us. Somewnere out Airways Boulevard the car ran out of gasoline. They made us get out again and one of the negroes guarded us whiel the other two pushed the car over a hill and got some gasoline.

"Then they drove on over into Mississippi to some woods and made us get out again. Two of the negroes took Mildred into the woods while the other one guarded us. Theny they came back and the one who had guarded us attacked her."

"After they left us, we walked to the home of Elmore Holmes, Jr., which was not far away and called E. W. Groves, 1030 New York, a realtives of ours."

Miss Collins, who was assaulted by each of the three negroes, was in a hysterical condition last night. After being treated at Methodist was taken to the home of Mrs. Jackson last night.

Coudn't Find Street

Inabiilty of Collins to find Walker Avenue played an important part in the assault. Had Collins found this street instead of going onto Lamar, thinking that it was Walker, the party would have missed the negroes. Collins and Miss Collins had been to Union Station to meet Mrs. Jackson who had returned from a visit to Myrtle, Miss., with her father, A. N. Collins. Miss Collins and Collins had driven to Memphis Tuesday mornin gand were to return today.

Deputy Sheriffs Galloway and Bertschi found the Collins car at 7:45 o'clock yesterday morning on Alcy Avenue, a half-mile west of Airways Boulevard. Detective Sergeant Burney William took finger print off the steering whele, but as yet the police identification bureau has been unable to dientify the negroes by the prints.

Clyde Collins, father of the girl, lats night said, "Don't worry, if they ever get those negroes, we'll take them back to Mississippi with us and there won't be any officers along." Mr. Collins came to Memphis as soon as he was notified of the attack. He is a machinist.

Special Details

Inspector Griffin assigned Detective Sergeants "Bimbo" Clark and Terrel Pilkinton to the case with the instructions "work on this alone until you get these fiends." Sheriff Bacon had his entire force asigned to the case.

Chief Lee yesterday morning offered a $100 reward for information leading to thearrest and conviction of the negroes.

"This is a heinous crime," said the chief, "and we do not expect to let up until the pereptrators of ished."

Attorney General McLain, who assigned his star investigator, Brill Willis, to the case said, "This is a continuing crime for which trial can be held either in Shelby County or DeSoto County, Miss."

Lynchings-1933
Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Mississippi.

4439

Rolphers, A La Mississippi Are Foiled

Courier
12-16-33
Pittsburgh, Pa.

MERIDIAN, Miss., ~~Dec. 14,~~—(By ANP)—A mob of 50 rolphers, who sought the life of a Negro suspect held in the county jail here in connection with an alleged attack on a 19-year-old white girl, was turned back by the sheriff shortly after midnight, Wednesday.

The lynchers came to the jail and demanded the suspect while the night jailer was on duty. He told them no Negro was being held there. But the rolphers refused to leave. The jailer then called the sheriff.

When the sheriff arrived, he took two of the mob leaders through the prison and was able to convince them that he was holding no one in custody. Then the mob dispersed.

Later, however, the sheriff reported that he had arrested three men, one of whom was in jail at the time of the search, and that the other two had been released.

The girl victim in the case was unable to identify either of the men held, but if the sheriff had not shown some wit, the rolphers would have lynched the innocent suspect in custody.

Lynchings - 1933

Missouri.

4440

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

ATTACKER IS SENTENCED

St. Louis Negro Pleads Guilty to Assaults on Women

10-1-33

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(INS.)—John Winston Boyd, ex-convict and the elusive marauder whose attacks on women terrorized the community until his recent capture, today pleaded guilty to a criminal attack charge and was sentenced to hang. He had confessed to attacks on 11 women in this section.

Lynchings-1933

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

New York

4441

Huntington, N.Y.

AUG 4 1933

ALABAMA JUSTICE NEEDED

The attack by a giant negro upon a 10-year-old white girl in Greenlawn within the past week brought into sharp relief the problem of coping with ~~the negro element~~ in Huntington township.

Much furor was raised in New York State recently over the famous Scottsboro case in Alabama. Public sentiment here, for the most part, appeared to favor the cause of the eight negroes who were condemned to hang for a crime only a little less monstrous than that which occurred within our own town limits. Public sentiment, nevertheless, failed to realize the problem of white versus black in Alabama; a problem so acute that white girls of better class families are forced to carry revolvers in their purses for protection; a problem so acute that the rape or attempted rape of a white girl by a negro carries with it a sentence of capital punishment.

Huntington has had its negro problem for a number of years. A decade ago, this did not exist. The negro families living here were honest, hard-working folks, who knew their place in the scheme of things and kept it. Within the last five years, however, Huntington has been faced with the problem of the negro "floater." Brought here, often from the South, or from Harlem by building contractors, the "floater" is left stranded when the construction job is completed, and settles in the town, to be supported by the loca relief organizations, or by friends, or by picking up odd jobs

Periodic trouble with the latter negro element has faced the Huntington police for some time. Usually it is confined to brawls between the negroes themselves, with an occasional shooting or knifing. Two years ago, however, the race feeling ran so high that on two or more occasions there were skirmishes between the white men and negroes at Huntington Station.

Huntington, as a town, has been very tolerant to its negro residents in the past. It has given them equal opportunities for education and for work. It has left its negro residents to live their own lives and do whatever they pleased, as long as they respected the law.

The time has come, however, when the authorities must take hold and enforce the law rigorousy. Both the Huntington Police and operatives of the District Attorney's office must bend every effort toward apprehending the negro who was responsible for the Greenlawn outrage. And once captured, there should be a swift, drastic trial and conviction which will show once and for all that the laws of New York State have the power to protect the wives, daughters, and sisters of the people of this state.

South Carolina.

4442

Lynchings-1933
6
Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.
6

2 SIDES TO ATTACK CASE

CONWAY, S. C.—(ANP)—While the white folk are telling their story of the alleged criminal attack on a white girl, said to have been made by Peter McCoy, 23, the Negroes of this region have their story to tell too.

The white folk say that McCoy surprised the white girl while she was asleep on the back seat of her automobile and attacked her. After the supposed attack, she and another white girl who was with her were taken to town by two white men, one of whom is married. The married man is said to have advised that no report of the attack be made.

The colored people want to know what the attacked girl's companion was doing while the attack was going on, and why the girl attacked was asleep on the back seat of her car and what the other girl was doing while she was asleep. They also want to know where the two white men came from, and why the married man was so particular that the case should not be reported to the sheriff.

NEGRO HELD IN ATTA
ON GREENVILLE GI

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 31.—(AP)—An unnamed negro was arrested here today as a suspect in connection with an attack on an 11-year-old white girl of Greenville who was found [illegible] and abandoned in a city park last night.

The child was reported by her family today to be "all right." She was not mistreated, they said.

Charleston, S. C., Post

July 19, 1933

YOUNG NEGRO ADMITS CRIME

Condemned Rapist Also Tries Suicide and Escape

Columbia, July 19. (AP)—After attempting first to kill himself and then to break out of his penitentiary death cell, Barnie Smith, 21-year-old negro, has confessed he attacked a young Laurens county white married woman, it was learned today.

The negro, under sentence to be electrocuted Friday, made his confession yesterday to the Rev. Sam K. Phillips, penitentiary chaplain. Before that time he had protested his innocence.

Today Smith calmly reiterated his confession and gave details of the crime he was convicted of committing near Ware Shoals. Shortly after he was removed to a death cell in the prison he made an attempt to dig out with a stove poker he pulled in from outside his cell with a piece of bed spring. The next morning guards found a hole nearly the size of a man's hat.

The negro said "a voice of the Lord" told him to stop digging the hole. He said he merely wanted to get out and "take a look at the electric chair" in a nearby room.

A few days earlier he had soaked match heads in water and drunk the water in an effort to kill himself. He, however, suffered no ill effects from the mixture.

In his confession, the negro told how he forced his way into the home of the young woman, mother of a small child, and attacked her in the absence of her husband. He was drinking, he said, and carried a shotgun.

Lynchings-1933

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Tennessee.

4443

"Just Say A Negro Did It", Slogan

Despite Rumors That White Man Is "Cover Snatcher," Police Try to Fasten Intruder Charge On a "Light-Colored Negro."

Courier 4-8-33

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 6—(By ANP)—Police were given orders to "shoot to kill" Wednesday for a light skinned colored man suspected as a "cover snatcher," despite the fact that contrary reports states that a white man is the terrorist of eleven white girls. Pittsburgh, Pa.

The man is alleged by the girls to have entered their bedrooms, armed with a revolver, his face masked, and flashed a light in their faces. None of the girls was harmed.

Spurious reports have been sent out and published in white publications since the "reign of terror" started last Friday to the extent of almost "pinning" the crime on a colored man. The name of the colored man being sought is withheld by police. However, they state that he has been sought for the past year on charges of having assaulted a white girl, and upon this flimsy excuse their suspicion is centered on this particular Negro.

NEGRO ATTACKER IS JAILED; CONFESSES

Commercial Appeal

Caught at Whitehaven Trying to Get Away

IDENTIFIED BY VICTIM

11-5-33

"That's Him," Screams Mrs. Hartsfied as Percy Smith Tells How He Laid in Wait at Bartlett Home

Memphis, Tenn.

The boldness that made him deaf to the pleas for mercy by Mrs. R. L. Hartsfield and the prayers of her paralyzed sister, who was locked in a closet while Mrs. Hartsfield was attacked in her home at Bartlett Friday morning, melted to craven fright yesterday afternoon as Percy Smith, 25-year-old negro, recited to officers at police station an account of his crime.

Smith, who lived near Bartlett and had worked at the Hartsfield home, was arrested at 1 o'clock yesterday by Detective Sergts. Clark and Pilkinton a short distance from Whitehaven. He was riding on a wagon at the time.

An hour later the negro had confessed to Inspector Griffin, Sheriff Bacon, Lieut. Lee Quianthy and several witnesses. Facing the possibility of being captured by posses from Bartlett, which were scouring the countryside, the negro gladly gave himself up to the officers and without hesitation confessed to having attacked Mrs. Hartsfield.

Mrs. Hartsfield Screams

Mrs. Hartsfield, in a highly nervous state, late yesterday afternoon identified Smith at the county jail, where he was taken immediately after his confession at police station.

"That's him. Oh, yes, that's him," she screamed when brought face to face with the negro. She was accompanied to the jail by her husband, an employe of the Lee Lumber Company.

The pistol used by the negro in intimidating Mrs. Hartsfield and her sister, Mrs. Rose Newman, was identified by Henry Slavick, director of WMC, radio station of The Commercial Appeal, as one stolen from his home by Frances Fizer, a negro maid who was known as Smith's "woman."

Frances Fizer was arrested early yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs Joe Hendrick and Phil Armour after Deputies Galloway and Bertschi had obtained information that she spent the night with Smith at a place on Winchester between Third and Fourth.

Sergts. Clark and Pilkinton were told by the woman that she rode to the end of the Lamar car line with Smith a short while before she was arrested and that he was headed for Mississippi. She was in the detectives' car at the time that Smith was arrested.

In his confession Smith said two weeks ago he had dug sweet potatoes for Mr. Hartsfield.

"I thought they had some money," he said. "At 7 o'clock Friday morning I went out to the Hartsfield place and went up in the barn loft and got a brown coat.

"Then I went to the back door of the house. It was unlocked and I went in. Mrs. Hartsfield came into the room and I got behind the door. Then I stepped out with the gun and made her and the large lady (Mrs. Newman) get in a closet.

"I put a handkerchief over my face and made Mrs. Hartsfield come out of the closet. She begged me not to bother her, and said if I wouldn't she wouldn't tell anybody I had been there. The other woman was praying in the closet but that didn't scare me none.

Here the negro detailed the assault on Mrs. Hartsfield.

Knocks at Door

"After I had et and was playing the radio, somebody knocked at the door," he said. I asked Mrs. Hartsfield who it was, and she said it was her husband. I grabbed some jewelry and a watch and went in the next room. She run out front and hollered. Then I run out the back door and come on to town."

Smith's arrest followed an intensive hunt by Sheriff Bacon and his deputies, aided by the police department. Every man on the sheriff's force was assigned to the case.

After congratulating Sheriff Bacon and Inspector Griffin on the speed with which they effected Smith's capture, Attorney General McLain last night said, "We are working up an air-tight case against this fiend, and he will be tried at the next term of court."

Feeling was still high at Bartlett last night after posses had spent a day and night searching for the negro. Although Sheriff Bacon said that he expected no trouble, he is taking every precaution to guard his prisoner.

Greeneville, Tenn. Democrat-Sun
December 6, 1933

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY

Some months since, maybe, more than a year. Miss Carrie Allen, a young business woman of Knoxville, was found alone in her apartment, was raped, murdered and robbed. The young lady bore a spotless reputation, public indignation was at fever heat.

In the course of the following investigation, a young Negro, son of a good old father, became suspected as rapist, killer and robber. On arrest, an alibi, attempted to be established, was shown to be false in every particular. Brought to trial, the following facts were proved beyond the shadow of doubt: The prisoner was identified by several reliable witnesses as the man who had entered their homes for the purpose of robbery, a pair of blunt scissors, that had evidently been used to remove screms in door locks, was found in his possession. The day after the murder, he had blacked his tan colored shoes, bloody rags were found hidden in his home, he had washed his hands the night of the crime under most suspicious circumstances, he had had blood cleaned from a pair of pants, he had given the dead girl's ring and another piece of jewelry to his father who had buried these evidences of guilt. To a woman acquaintance, the accused had entrusted several other pieces of jewelry obtained through robbery. On the night of the murder, the accused had spent money although he had no job and no work.

The accused was tried by due process of law, the State spared no expense, counsel was appointed, witnesses in his behalf were summoned, every effort was made to prove innocence but the chain of circumstantial evidence was complete. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, the prisoner was sentenced to death for his brutal crime.

With patience and restraint, citizens of Knoxville had awaited the outcome of the prisoner's day in court, that day that the most guilty is permitted to have. The public made no threats, the public was satisfied that justice had been done and awaited the event sure that the verdict of the law would be carried out.

Just before Thanksgiving, it was announced that Governor McAlister would visit this prisoner in his cell at the State Capital to examine him to see if it was a case where the exercise of executive clemency would be justified. No more about the case has come to light.

During the administrtaion of Henry Horton as Governor of Tennessee, the number of convicted murderers who received "executive celemency" and were turned loose on a helpless citizenry, some of them to again exercise their proud prerogative of killing, became a scandal and a terror.

In spite of his splendid record in financial matters, Governor McAlister has issued some pardons that are far from satisfactory or comforting to the communities affected. Tennessee resents convicted murderers being turned loose to again roam their old haunts and jeopardize the lives of peaceful and law-abiding people.

After sentence has been passed on one accused of a major crime, there are rare cases where new evidence develops doubt of guilt or proves complete innocence. The pardoning power is yielded to the chief executive so that, in his good judgment, such injustice may be corrected.

But abuse by Governors of this power to pardon, has aroused universal resentment. Abuse of the pardoning power is chief cause of those outbreaks of public sentiment that inflict condign punishment, unwise use of the pardoning power is the background, the cause and the reason for the crime of lynching.

It is hoped and prayed that Governor McAlister will give no excuse to any Tennessee community to doubt his wisdom and conscience in this respect.

Too often judges and juries fail to administer justice, too often are these legal defenses of life and innocence, false to the trust reposed in them. Too often do Governors yield to some sort of pressure and pardon the known guilty.

If in such cases another crime follows the first crime, who is guilty?

Public Hanging Urged For Negro Attackers

12-29-35

MEMPHIS, TENN., Dec. 28.—(AP)—A criminal attack on a young Mississippi girl here last night by three negroes today brought a statement from Chancellor D. W. DeHaven, that "a public hanging at the fairgrounds would be a wholesale lesson for years to come."

"Those three negroes," he said, "apparently did not know that there is a negro in jail now under sentence to die for the crime they committed, but they would have known it if there had been a public, legal hanging here in recent years.

"The purpose of executions is to show people the result of crime and deter others from crime—not a revenge on the criminals.

"But now, we take the criminals to Nashville secretly and electrocute them behind closed doors at the middle of the night, and executions become revenge."

Negro Sought For Attack On High School Girl, 17

Advertiser

12-29-35

Montgomery

MEMPHIS, TENN., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Police expressed hope tonight that two checks an aunt was forced to sign may aid them in apprehending three negroes who last night attacked a 17-year-old New Albany, Miss., high school girl.

The girl and her uncle, G. A. Collins, of Holly Springs, Miss., and an aunt, Mrs. W. T. Jackson, of Memphis, were en route to Mrs. Jackson's home from a depot, where Mrs. Jackson had arrived from a Mississippi visit when the negroes commandeered their auto.

Collins was forced to drive out a country road where the attacks occurred, he said. He and Mrs. Jackson were robbed. Mrs. Jackson was forced to make out and sign checks for $25 and $100 when the negroes found her with a check book on a Memphis bank. Merchants have been asked to look out for the checks, made payable to cash.

Police began a roundup of negroes this afternoon for questioning.

Reward For Capture Of Negro Attackers Offered

12-30-35

MEMPHIS, TENN., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Rewards amounting to $425 were offered today for the apprehension of three negroes who attacked a 17-year-old Holly Springs and New Albany, Miss., school girl, near here Wednesday night.

Police Chief Will D. Lee's offer of $100 brought an announcement today from District Attorney Gerald Chatham, of Herando, Miss., that a $300 reward was available there, and an unnamed Memphis business man offered an additional $25.

The girl was attacked by three negroes who boarded her uncle's auto and forced him to drive out a country road. The uncle and an aunt were robbed. Officers said today the attack probably occurred across the State line in Desoto County, Miss.

Sheriff Dudley M. Birmingham, of Desoto County, conferred with Sheriff W J. Bacon on the case today.

NEGROES HUNTED IN GIRL'S ATTACK

News

12-29-35

Birmingham

MEMPHIS—(AP)—An intensive search was organized for three Negroes who Wednesday night criminally assaulted a 17-year-old New Albany, Miss., high school girl after commandeering the automobile in which she was riding with an aunt and an uncle.

The uncle, G. A. Collins, of Holly Springs, Miss., said the Negroes all were armed with pistols, forced their way into the car when he stopped for a traffic light in a residential section of the city.

Forced to drive far out on a country road, Collins said the Negroes ordered the girl, her aunt, Mrs. W. T. Jackson, of Memphis, and him out of the car. During the attack they were held under guns, he said, and he and Mrs. Jackson were robbed, and Mrs. Jackson was forced to sign two checks, one for $100 and one for $25. After holding them prisoner nearly an hour the Negroes left in the automobile.

The automobile was found abandoned on a highway several miles away Thursday morning. Police hope to find fingerprints on the car that may aid them in identifying the Negroes.

Will D. Lee, chief of police, announced that the Police Department would pay $100 reward for information leading to the arrest of the Negroes and Sheriff Bacon termed the crime "the worst in the criminal history of Memphis."

The girl had come to Memphis only Wednesday evening to visit her aunt.

Collins and Mrs. Jackson said they didn't know how long they walked before reaching a telephone to notify officers. As soon as the report was made a special patrol of radio-equipped police cars was called into the search.

NEGROES' VICTIM DID NOT SEE ATTACKERS

Schoolgirl Will Be Unable to Identify Trio

Commercial Appeal

SEARCH IS HANDICAPPED

Officers Will Rely on Filling Station Operator, Merchant to Link Suspects With the Crime

12-30-35

Memphis

Because she never saw them in the light, Mildred Collins, 16-year-old Holly Springs High School junior, will be unable to identify any of the three negroes who attacked her Tuesday night. It is also doubtful if Mrs. W. L. Jackson, 584 Alexander, aunt of the girl, or her uncle, G. A. Collins, Myrtle, Miss., who were with her at the time of the attack, will be able to identify the negroes.

Recovering from the attack at the home of her aunt here, Mildred yesterday said that she never saw the negroes clearly and that she did not think that she would be able to identify them. The uncle and aunt were unable to say whether any of the negroes wore a mustache or were smooth shaven.

For identification, police will probably depend on a filling station operator who sold gas to the negroes and J. Weisberg, operator of a store at 1472 South Trezevant, who said that Thursday morning a negro tried to get him to cash the $25 check written by Mrs. Jackson. At that time Weisberg did not know that Mrs. Jackson had been forced to write out the check.

Two More Arrested

Despite this handicap sheriff's deputies and city detectives continued their intensive search for the negroes. Sheriff W. M. Birmingham of DeSoto County, Miss., where the assault occurred, yesterday brought a suspect here to be questioned by Inspector Griffin. On information furnished by this negro, another negro was arrested here. Whether or not these two negroes will be connected with the attack, Inspector Griffin said that he believed that they will be identified as two negroes who took part in a recent holdup here.

One of these negroes was held at police station and the other was sent to the county jail on a fugitive from justice warrant.

Three negroes who were arrested Wednesday are still being held. As yet police have been unable to connect them with the crime.

The attackers boarded the car driven by Collins Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock and forced him to drive into the country where they robbed Mrs. Jackson and Mr. Collins, forcing Mrs. Collins to write out two checks on the First National Bank, one for $25 and one for $100. Then they drove on into Mississippi where Mildred Collins was attacked.

Inspector Griffin said yesterday: "We have little to work on, but we are leaving no stone unturned in our efforts to capture these negroes. Sooner or later we will get them and I don't believe it will be far distant."

Sheriff Bacon has assigned his entire force of deputies to the case and is himself leading the investigation.

Lynchings-1933

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Texas.

4444

SLAY YOUTH IN AUTO; ATTACK COMPANION

Journal

Two Negroes, Who Bound and Gagged Girl, Are Hunted by Posses in Texas.

3-28-33

HOUSTON, Texas, March 27 (AP).—Posses with bloodhounds today were trailing two Negroes, alleged to have shot to death William W. Porch ,25, and attacked his companion, Miss Adele Torian, 24.

[illegible]

The hysterical young woman told police she and her escort, both of prominent families, were seated in an automobile about 12:30 A. M. when the Negroes appeared and ordered them out of the car. One was on each side.

"I thought I told yo uto hold up your hands," one of the Negroes said, according to Miss Torian. Immediately after speaking, the Negro fired the shot which killed Porch, who was facing the other Negro. The bullet penetrated his back.

Miss Torian said she threw herself over his body and begged the Negroes for mercy, pleading with them to take Porch to a hospital. Unheeding, they blindfolded and gagged her.

Then one of them picked her up bodily while the other dragged Porch's body through a roadside ditch and under afence into thick woods about 100 yards from the car.

The Negroes rifled Porch's pockets and fled into the woods, Miss Torian said.

After removing the blindfold and gag, Miss Torian ran to the home of John Anderson, a blind man living on a near-by boulevard, and telephoned the police.

Young Woman Identifies Negro In Attack Case

Advertiser

3-30-33

CONROE, TEXAS, March 29.—(AP)—Standing before a crowd of 3,000 persons clustered around the jail yard here tonight, a young Houston woman who had been attacked Sunday night after two negro terrorists slew her escort, William W. Porch, 24, of Houston, said a negro suspect slain here by a ranger "looked exactly like" her attacker.

Montgomery Adv.

The young woman, obviously nervous and showing the strain of her harrowing experience of Sunday night, stammered in a weak voice "that looks exactly like him but I can't say for sure."

A crowd formed immediately after the negro, who was tentatively identified as Manuel Henry, 25, alias Buddy York, was brought here after being shot to death by Ranger L. A. Eaves in a wood two miles from here. For the most part the crowd was orderly but there were some threats, officers said.

REMOVE NEGRO ATTACKER

Commercial Appeal

Threatened Mob Action Leads To Prisoner's Transfer

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Threatened mob action led officers late today to transfer a negro youth, accused of an attempted criminal atack, from the county jail here to the county jail in Dallas.

12-15-33

The negro was William Rankin Jackson from Ennis. He had been charged with an attack on Mrs. Tom Prestidge, living between Waxahachie and Ennis.

Rape. acc- [illegible] [illegible]

CAUGHT IN LIE, WHITE GIRL CONFESSES SHE SLUGGED MOTHER; HAD PLACED BLAME ON NEGRO

Black suspect

Oklahoma City

QUARRELED WITH MOTHER ABOUT SWEETHEART FOLLOWING VISIT TO MOVIES

Okla.

Girl Goes To Police Station and Reports Attack of Colored Man

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 23.—Theresa Faber, 16-year-old white girl, admitted to police Wednesday that she slugged her mother, Mrs. Margaret Faber, 48, 4132 Gait Place, on the night of March 9, and the story told police about her mother being assaulted and robbed by a colored man was a lie.

The older woman was knocked unconscious at Barnes Place and Minnesota avenue, Northeast, as she and her daughter were returning home from a motion picture show. It was reported at the time that Mrs. Faber had been slugged by a colored man, who took her purse containing about $10. The purse was found the next day near the scene.

According to police, the girl said she became angry at her mother during a quarrel about a man with whom she was keeping company, and struck her with the stone.

The woman suffered a severe head injury, which was at first diagnosed as a possible skull fracture. She is still in Casualty Hospital.

After slugging her mother, the girl ran to the Eleventh Precinct Station House where she told a story of an alleged attack on her mother by a Negro. Police began a city-wide search for the man. The girl's picture appeared in the white papers with a story of how she escaped from the man and young women groups, the college women's associations, etc.;

(Continued on Page 2; Col. 2)

"Upon my ideals of Christian culture proclaiming everywhere the principles of Jesus as the sound basis for successful living, and finally, upon my belief in and loyalty to the N. A. of C. W. whose interests and advancement I have for thirty years showed in every office from parliamentarian to vice president at large, I base my candidacy for presidency of the N. A. C. W. and openly declare to the Negro women of America, that if upon this record I cannot be elected without resorting to petty politics, I shall gladly give my support to any other woman worthy of the the women of our 24.

The other stick-ups had take $200 from the dead druggist at th point of guns, it is reported.

White Girl Admit Telling [illegible]

(Continued From Page One)

summoned help. She was played up as a heroine. She also told a story of how she and her mother were discussing a possible hold-up.

Voter's League Slate Victorious

(Continued From Page One)

with the exception of Precinct 8, where official watcher, Malcolm Whitby declared he observed irregularities. Whitby was busy Wednesday checking his records over to Charles W. Offutt, and it is possible that election officials will be called on the carpet.

Charge Irregularities.

According to Whitby two of the election officials were going into the booths with the voters and stamping their ballots when he arrived at the home of J. T. Jones about 1:45 Tuesday. He says that he immediately protested against the practice and that following his challenge of those so voted the practice was stopped. Whitby not only challenged each vote which he alleges was cast illegally, but he made a record of all such voters. Before leaving the polling place at 7 p. m. a near fight occurred when the son of one of the election officials attempted to snatch away from Whitby the records he had been making.

One Arrest.

One arrest was also a high poin in the election. A felowl by th

Lynchings-1933
6

Rape by Whites.

Alabama.

4445

SUSPECT MOVED FROM SCOTTSBORO JAIL

Reporter

5-6-33

Huntsville, Ala.—Special—[illegible] L. Roseberry, 28, salesman, was in Madison County jail today for safe keeping, following his arrest at Scottsboro, Ala., on a charge of criminally assaulting a high school girl. Roseberry was spirited from Scottsboro jail when more than 100 persons milled about the jail threatening to lynch him. As stories of the attack spread angry citizens poured into Scottsboro. All principals in the case are white.

Birmingham Ala.

Lynchings-1933

Rape by Whites.

Mississippi.

4446

Mississippi Negro Held For Assault Upon Girl

Advertiser

12-28-33

HATTIESBURG, MISS., Dec. 27—(AP)—A negro tenant farmer, Joe Turner, who lives near McLaurin, was being held in an undisclosed jail tonight charged with a criminal attack on a 16-year-old white girl.

New Jersey

Lynchings- 1933
Rape by Whites.

4447

77 Year Old White Fakir Tries To Rape 17 Year Old Mother

Tribune 10-19-33

Philadelphia

By S. A. HAYNES

MERCHANTVILLE, N. J.—A young Negro woman, recuperating at her home after giving birth to a 2 months old boy child, was brutally assaulted and narrowly missed being raped by a wealthy Jew who wandered into the Negro section from Keansburg, posing as a fortune teller.

Mrs. Lydia Cream, 17, the girl-wife is now a patient at the home of her mother-in-law and is being treated by Dr. Icam Wilson.

The man in the case identified himself to the police as Morris Runkel. He said his address was 45 Ocean ave., Keansburg, and gave his age as 77. He was held for the grand jury in $4,000 bail by Police Recorder Edwin Field Crane. North Jersey relatives of Runkel quickly obtained his release. Runkel asked the Recorder to reduce his bail to $700.

Several hours after he was arrested and lodged in the Delaware Township jail, Runkel sought to end his life by hanging. Sergeant William Jester, hearing groans issuing from his cell, found him hanging from an improvised rope. The prisoner had tied several handkerchiefs together, knotted one end about his throat, and suspended himself from the top bars of the cell.

The lurid affair took place at 57 Merchant st., where Mrs. Cream lives with her husband and baby, Saturday morning, October 7th, but did not become known in the Negro section until four days later, due to the reticence of the girl's mother, Mrs. Jessie H. Talton, who lives next door to 59 Merchant st., and her neighbors.

Because of her delicate condition, the young wife could not give a personal interview but asked her parents to do so.

Rev. Jesse H. Talton, the girl's father, said that he was on his way home when he heard his wife screaming as he approached the house. He rushed to her aid and learned what had happened.

He pursued Runkel, who was swiftly making a get-a-way from the scene across the open field into Main st where he caught him. Without waiting for the father to speak, Runkel said to him, "What's the matter?" "Wait until my wife gets here," Talton replied. Runkel, seeing he was trapped and unable to free himself from the younger man, offered the girl's father $10 to let him go. Talton refused. Runkel raised the offer to $20. Talton again refused. Runkel raised his bid from freedom to $30. Talton refused

In the meantime, Mrs. Talton had called the police department in Ellisburg. When an officer arrived she brought her daughter out of the house to tell her story. After listening to the girl's recital Runkel was arrested.

Mrs. Talton said that when Runkel was questioned as to what he was doing in the Negro section and why he assaulted Mrs. Cream, he told the police he was reading palms when his passion got the better of him. He had a large sum of money in his possession with which he also attempted to bribe Mrs. Talton.

The assault took place within the shadow of the grammar school attended by Negro pupils and adjoining the house in which the Creams live.

Mrs. Talton, who operates a notion store on Clayton ave., was visibly affected as she reviewed the affair as related to her by her daughter.

"I left the store to go home for a moment," she said. "When I arrived I saw the white man in the house with my daughter, holding her hand in an intimate manner. She was standing in a corner of the house, a wild look in her eyes and acting stupidly. Runkel was very close to her, talking softly.

"I called to my daughter: 'What is this man doing to you?'. She said to me, 'Give me the money to give this man to get the spell off me.'

"While I was questioning her, Runkel offered me a handful of money. When I refused it he made for the door and said, 'I have taken the spell off your daughter and will be back Monday for the money.' When he left, my daughter told me more intimately what really happened."

Mrs. Talton said Runkel had first scared, then hypnotized the girl after she had repulsed his earlier advances and was about to carry out his fiendish design when she arrived at the house. The 2 months old baby cried all through the struggle, the girl's mother said.

The Taltons are reputable citizens of the community and Mrs. Cream was born in the house where she was assaulted. She attended the Merchantville High School.

Local religious and political leaders awed by ~~Runkel's wealth, and~~ fearful of local whites, had taken no steps to aid the Taltons in prosecuting Runkel up to last Friday.

Lynchings - 1933
6
Rape by Whites

Oklahoma.

4448

WHITE RAPIST JUDGED INSANE

[illegible]
10-28-33
[illegible]

Down in Oklahoma a few days ago, one Glenn Swanson white and brother of ex-county commissioner, was committed to the county insane asylum when Miss [illegible] Stokes, 14 year old colored girl, charged him with rape. The questio raised and the assumption of the judges was that a whit man of such "high standing" would not rape a colored gir unless he was insane. Our comment to this is that the accused, if insane at all, had an insane passion for this beautiful colored girl. The same sort of passion which makes other me rape women, white and black. Nothing more, nothing less We make this statement because, according to the pres dispatches, Swanson was driving a high powered automobile saw the young girl on the street, slowed down, stopped he and asked, "Why are you out of school: I am a county office and will take you before the judge." Thus he forced the gir into his car and drove away and when on the out-skirts of th city, brutally attacked her. The girl was smart enough t take the auto license number.

Now with these facts before us. we are compelled to say that this man was not insane. He didn't run over anybody, driving a high powered car in the busy streets and after attacking the girl made his get-away just like any other criminal.

Of course, shift the scene, get the picture of what would have happened had a colored man attacked a white girl. Had his case reached the courts, he would have been immediately adjudged sane. It would have further been said that he was actuated by a passion for white women and his doom would have been written in the strongest code the law allows. Any plea of insanity on his part, or on the part of anyone in his behalf, would have fell upon deaf ears so far as the court was concerned. In fact, such a plea on his part would have stirred the mob instinct the more.

Tennessee.

Lynchings - 1933

Rape by Whites.

4449

ATTACKING STEPCHILD LAID TO TENNESSEEAN

(Constitution)

12-24-33

ATHENS, Tenn., Dec. 23.—(AP)—A man docketed as Lowery Young, 21, has been bound over to the grand jury without bond on a charge of assaulting his nine-year-old stepdaughter.

Atlanta, Ga.

Sheriff Boling Shoemaker early today discounted rumors that a mob was forming in an effort to obtain the prisoner. Shoemaker said the alleged attack took place Tuesday and that the child was in a serious but not critical condition.

Lynchings-1933
Rape by Whites.

Virginia

4450

White Man Can't Rape a Colored Girl, Attorney Claims

Exclusive to the AFRO.

WARRENTON, Va.—Throughout the trial of four white men found guilty Monday of attempted rape upon a 14-yr-old colored child, M. Flynn, white attorney, used unprintable epitnets in referring to colored people.

He argued that raping of colored girls by white men is no crime, and he had never heard of such sexual relations being termed rape.

He asked every juror if he had been born and raised in Virginia.

With this preface laid he said in his argument:

"I asked you, gentlemen, if you were born in Virginia because if you were you would know now the d—— stretch their imaginations and you could realize how this tale has spread until it engulfs these four white men.

"I was born in Virginia and I have never heard of a WHITE man raping a d—— girl in this State. If we put all the good white boys and good white men in Virginia in the pen who have fooled with d—— girls we would have some GOOD white men in the penitentiary."

N.A.A.C.P. Not Represented.

Efforts of the girl's aunt to secure help from the Washington, D.C. branch of the N.A.A.C.P. failed.

Such help was discouraged also by Warrenton whites who promised that justice would be done if the colored people would keep the N.A.A.C.P. out of the case.

PERVERSION, RAPE FIGURE IN VIRGINIA TRIAL

Afro-American

14-Year-Old Kidnaped from Streets of Warrenton, Va.

6-10-33

Baltimore, Md.

BOYS LAUGH AS JURY DEBATES

Hang Heads When the Verdict Is Given.

[Special to the AFRO]

WARRENTON, Va.—After an impassioned plea to the racial prejudices of a white jury, Monday, and the free use of unprintable epithets applied to the Negro by the white defense attorney, four white men were sentenced to serve three years each for attempting to rape 14-year-old Addie Clark, last April.

The jury was out slightly more than an hour and returned with a verdict of guilty in the case of each defendant, and fixed the sentenced at three years each, in the state penitentiary.

The defense lawyer asked if that was the opinion of each juror and they were questioned in open court individually, and each answered that it was his personal conviction and verdict.

Following this the lawyer asked that the judge set aside the verdict on the grounds that the conviction was contrary to the laws of evidence. Judge Alexander ruled against this motion.

Bond is $3,000

Lawyer Flynn then said that his clients might want to appeal the case, and he was given 60 days in which to file for an appeal. He asked that bond be set at $1,000 for the convicted because they had been in jail since the assault.

[Continued on Next Page]

PERVERSION, RAPE FIGURE IN VIRGINIA TRIAL

[Continued from Preceding Page]

Judge Alexander set the bond at $3,000 each. It was not posted on Wednesday, and it is expected that they will not appeal the case.

Child with Aunt

Addie, who weighs barely 80 pounds, appeared in the court-room with her aunt, Mrs. Golda Rowe, of Waterloo, Va. She seemed somewhat amazed to hear the tales told by the white boys as they testified.

Girl's Story

Addie testified that she had been sent on an errand with a note, and had been to a movie at the town theatre. She left the movies shortly after nine o'clock that night, and had bought some ice cream to carry home. Just across from the movies the car driven by Joe Kearns, white, 21, one of the men, pulled up over the sidewalk and blocked her passage. She said she went around the machine and ran down the street.

Addie said that Mark Maxheimer, white, 18, chased her for three blocks before he caught her and she was put in the car. Maxheimer did not go with the men after she was put in the car. He is the grandson of the town's jailer, and there were no charges placed against him, although he was instructed to appear at the trial to testify.

Addie said she was driven to the cattle pens a half mile away, where the attempted assault took place.

Perverted

She said four white men, ranging in weight from 130 to 190 pounds, could not accomplish their fiendish desires because of her size, as she was only 13 years old. Failing in this they attempted to have her perform a perverted act, she said.

She told of the three hectic hours from nine to past midnight, in which she fought off the drunken brutes when her clothing was torn to shreds and her little body covered with mud. Her face and arms were bruised from the brutal handling. She had been lifted over two fences, thrown on the ground and wallowed in a mud hole by the four maddened sex-crazed ofays, she said.

Addie, bruised, beaten and almost exhausted, managed to gather her torn clothes about her, she said, and make her way home to the little cottage—barely a quarter mile from the scene of the attack. After she told her aged great-aunt, Mrs. Kate Wilson, of the attack, the aged woman, who had raised her, broke into tears and became sick from nervousness.

Found Pocketbook

The next morning Mrs. Mary Dowell, who lived in the same house with the girl, went to the scene of the atrocious attack, where she found the pocketbook belonging to one of the attackers, Mayberry Kearns, 19. This was a clue which led to their arrest.

Women Interested

Two white women, Mrs. B. F. Portland and Mrs. Bessie Horton became interested in the case when they noticed some days later that Addie had been bruised and her eye blackened. They both testified at the trial that she was bruised even three days after the assault.

One Man Has Four Children

The four white men are Clifton Cofflin, 18; Sandy Elkins, 30, married, and the father of four children; Mayberry Kearns, 19, and Joe Kearns, 21, his brother.

Heard Screams

Samuel Rosell, who lived nearby, heard the screams coming from the cattle pen and heard one of the men threatening her saying:

"If you don't cut out that yelling I'll cut your —— throat." He notified the local police.

Police Too Late

Samuel Hall, white, police sergeant of the city, testified that he went to the scene but the boys had left. He did not know whether the girl was colored or white, or if the boys were white or not. Later, following an investigation he learned that the men had been there and he questioned them. They denied it at first, he said.

Hall said Elkins, the married man, when first questioned, told him that they had forced the girl to the attack and that she had asked him to be the first one to attack her when she found her struggles would be useless.

The Defense

On the stand the men all testified that they had met the girl and asked her to take a ride. They said she told them to come around the corner and she would get in, but not on the main street. They said they drove around the corner and she got in the car willingly. When they got to the cattle pens they said she got out and went to the cattle pen with Mayberry Kearns. None of the others went over the fence, they said. Other witnesses testified that they had heard the voices of more than one man in the pens.

The men swore that the girl consented to go with them but refused to engage in sexual relations, but offered to perform the perversion.

The Kearns boy said he slapped her and left.

All declared they had been drinking since early afternoon and could not remember how long they were in the pens nor what they started the assault. They remembered all other details and time, however, as the Commonwealth's Attorney Carter pointed out.

Laugh While Jury's Out

While the jury was out and when they filed in the four men were sitting in the prisoners' chairs laughing and chatting with each other. When the verdict was announced they dropped their heads as if they had been expecting an immediate release instead of a sentence.

They seemed to hold hope when the jury was being questioned when it was unanimously decided by the jury that they were guilty the sentence seemed to take their nerve and they were all visibly affected.

For a period of one hour the newspapermen, seated with Mrs. Becton in the front of her residence, were closely watched by a man wearing a grey suit and approximately five feet, seven inches in height.

Finally, Mrs. Becton nervously called attention to the vigil maintained by the man. He apparently sensed his discovery, after which he hastily walked in the direction of Seventh Avenue. One of the newspapermen followed him to the corner, where the man entered a store and made a telephone call.

Whispers

En route to the store, midway in the block, he approached a white man, to whom he whispered hurriedly. Upon the return of the white man the reporter discovered that he had taken a position on steps adjacent to the home of Mrs. Becton.

Mrs. Becton, obviously frightened, arose, indicating that the interview was ended. As the newspapermen approached their car the white man moved a few paces east on 120th Street, wheeled about and directly faced the trio, signaling with a drop of his hand.

As the car bearing the newspapermen shot east on 120th Street, the white man sped west on 120th Street. The newsmen turned south in Lenox Avenue to 119th Street, west to Seventh Avenue and south, headed for Central Park.

Two Ofays Now

South on Seventh Avenue to Central Park the press car sped, followed closely by a roadster in which the colored man, previously spotted, the white man and another white man rode. Through Central Park the roadster hugged closely to the car bearing the reporters, until on Seventh Avenue, outside the boundaries of the park, the reporters succeeded in shaking off the roadster in a traffic jam.

[illegible] was discovered that precautions have been taken to prevent further assassinations in the membership of the Gospel Feast Party, because it is believed that at least three men, Mav Davies, Thomas Hightower, both members of the present party, and Jay Harris Jackson, a former member of the party, are in possession of facts concerning the intimate business affairs of the late evangelist.

Police Theory

Police, Tuesday, indicated that the theory advanced by the AFRO in connection with the motive for the killing of the Rev. Mr. Becton is still the theory being pursued by them.

Reports that police were within 24 hours of making an arrest in the case were discredited by police working on the case here.

Meanwhile, in New York the Gos-

Lynchings-1933.
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June.

4467

Report on Lynchings for First Six Months

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 7.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is, 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented public lynchings. Of these, three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances, force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus, a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 of our Race, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, two were white and four were of our Race. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two, and Texas, one.

This report does not include the number of members of the Race who have been beaten to death and killed by whites in petty fights.

LYNCHING RECORD

Camden Argus

Conditions Much Better Than Ten Years Ago

Camden New Jersey
7-10-33

Editor of Camden Argus:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were: rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. MOTON, Principal,
Tuskegee Normal and
Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala., July 1, 1933.

REPORT ON LYNCHINGS

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: rape, 1; murder, 4; charges not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.—Bulletin Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

7-5-33

SIX LYNCHINGS LISTED FOR 1ST 6 MONTHS OF '33

7-8-33
Norfolk, Va.

Virginia Man's Death Still Cause Of Controversy

Special to Journal and Guide

NEWTON, Ga.—Because he has persistently investigated two lynchings which occurred within five days of one another near here, Sheriff Jud Griffin, of Baker County, has had threats of death made against him, but he says his inquiry will continue.

The sheriff said last week-end that a Negro named T. J. Thomas was kidnaped from his home and killed by a mob after a fight between groups of white and colored boys about three weeks ago (approximately June 14). A white boy died in the fight.

Five days later, the sheriff says, Richard Marshall, another Negro, was lynched not far from where Thomas died at the hands of the lawless gang.

Motive Is Unknown

Sheriff Griffin blamed the fight between the boys for the lynching of Thomas, but said he was unable to assign a reason why Marshall should have been mobbed.

His investigations, he added, brought threats of death if he got "too nosey," but he declared he was not worried nor frightened into dropping his inquiry.

SIX LYNCHINGS DURING FIRST SIX MONTHS IN 1933

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute by its department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings during the first six months of 1933, Dr. R. R. Moton, principal of the institute, announced Saturday, July 1.

This number is 1 more than the number 5 reported by Tuskegee for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year, Dr. Moton recalls.

17 Saved From Mobs

"During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern states," the report adds.

"In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1." (Apparently the two Georgia lynchings now being investigated are not included in Tuskegee's report).

LYNCHINGS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Robert R. Moton, principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial School founded by Booker T. Washington for the training of colored young men and women, is keeping a close watch on the lynching record in the United States, evidently on the theory that emancipation of the colored race may not be said to have been fully accomplished until an end has been put to frenzied mobs taking the law into their own hands.

During the first six months of 1933 there were six lynchings, one more than in the corresponding period last year. However, during the first half of the present year there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus, Mr. Moton reports, a total of 17 persons—6 white and 11 negroes—were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The interesting thing here is that while, in the public mind, lynchings are associated almost entirely with negro victims, persons of the white race occasionally are singled out, too. In the main, however, this form of lawlessness is confined to the South, the States in which human life was thus taken being Georgia, Louisiana, Tennessee and Texas.

In its effort to purge the country of this method of setting aside the orderly processes of the law, Tuskegee Institute resorts to publicity, a weapon which can be said to be well suited to the purpose.

7-30-33

Belleville Daily News Democrat 7-1-33 Belleville, Illinois

We are in receipt this morning of the following report from the trenchant pen of R. R. Moton, Principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute. The report covering the lynching record for the first six months of 1933 reads as follows:

"According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

"During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

"Very truly yours,
"R. R. MOTON,
"Principal."

---

13 Lynched in Past Six Months, I.L.D. Reports

Daily Worker 7-7-33 New York, N.Y.

Survey Does Not Include Police Killings; "Death to Lynchers!" Demands I. L. D.

NEW YORK.—Thirteen lynchings recorded in the first six months of 1933 are reported in a survey made public by the International Labor Defense today. Eleven of the victims were Negroes, and two white.

The list drawn up by the I.L.D. lays no claim to being complete, it was pointed out, but contains only those lynchings which have been publicly reported. It does not take into account the increasing number of police killings or Negroes which are becoming more popular as substitutes for the old-fashioned lynchings for which mobs of hundreds were often organized; nor does it count legal lynchings, which have also become more popular with the white ruling class as it becomes more difficult even in the South to draw white workers into lynch-gangs, or to stem the tide of protest from Negro and white workers following such mob lynchings.

Lynchings Not Reported

Many lynchings, it was also pointed out, are never reported anywhere, and others are recorded only in single paragraphs in perhaps one small-town weekly published in the region in which it occurred. News agencies are showing a constantly growing reluctance to carry news of lynchings over the wires, with the result that the appearance is created that lynchings are on the decrease. The same applies to police lynchings, legal lynchings, and lynch-murders by less than three persons.

In its campaign against lynching, peonage, Jim Crow, and all forms of national oppression against the Negro people, the International Labor Defense is pushing its campaign for passage of the "Bill of Civil Rights for the Negro People," proposed by the League of Struggle for Negro Rights, endorsed by the National Scottsboro Action Committee, and presented to the President and Congress by the Free the Scottsboro Boys marchers.

Section 19 of this Bill provides that:

"Any person who aids or participates in a lynching or other act of violence directed against a person wholly or partly because of supposed 'inferiority' of race, color or nationality, or directed against a person because of alleged or suspected crimes associated in public tradition with supposed 'inferiority' of race, nationality or color, shall be considered and adjudged guilty of a crime punishable by death."

The I.L.D. raises the slogan of "Death to Lynchers," and demands the application of the death penalty in these cases and in the increasing number of cases of wanton murder of Negroes by police or individuals, which now go completely unpunished.

A survey of police lynchings, and lynch-murders during the first six months of 1933, as reported in the press and estimated to cover less than one per cent of the total of such murders, but a typical cross-section of them, will be released shortly by the International Labor Defense, it was announced.

Recorded Lynchings

Following is the list of recorded lynchings for the first six months of 1933:

1. Harry Ross, shot and killed Jan. 3 by three white men, outside of Memphis, Tenn. They reported they were taking him into the city to lay charges of "having made improper proposals to a white woman," against him, when he "tried to escape" from their moving car.

2. Fell Jenkins, 20, was beaten to death by three white farmers at Aycock, La., January 11. They said he had been trespassing on the property of one of them.

3, 4, and 5. Three members of a Negro family of fishermen were hacked to death on Tavernier Island, one of the Florida keys, Jan. 19, by an invading gang of white men. All further information, including the names of the victims, suppressed by the authorities.

6. Robert Richardson was shot to death in Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 2, while "attempting to escape" from a gang of 25, headed by a deputy sheriff which invaded his house on a report, given out later, that he had "annoyed a white woman."

7. Nelson Nash, 24, was hanged from a tree by a gang of men at Ringgold, La., February 19.

8. George Jeter, died February 19 at Aiken, S. C., from a beating administered by three white men who later said he had "stolen their whiskey."

9. Levon Carlock, 19, beaten, tortured, and shot to death by six policemen "out on a lark" in Memphis, February 25, 1933. Police called on a white prostitute to say Carlock had "raped" her, at a time when he was sitting by his wife's sick-bed.

10. John Williams, lynched during first week of May, 1933, by a mob of seventy-five led by a sheriff. It was charged he had stolen a hog.

11. Will Kinsey, 25, lynched May 12 by mob of forty, following a dispute with his landlord in which his brother and the landlord were both killed. Kinsey, wounded by the landlord, was taken by a mob from a physician's office.

12 and 13. Jerome Boyett and Harvey Winchester, both white, held on murder charges, were taken out of Huntsville, Tenn. jail and lynched by a mob of armed men.

LYNCHING RECORD FOR 1933

Star 6-24-33 Charlotte, N.C.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.
July 1, 1933.

Dear Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law preevnted lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the gaurds augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. Moton, Principal.

Pittsburg Courier 7-6-33 Pittsburg, Pa.

LYNCH 6 DURING FIRST HALF OF '33

TUSKEGEE, July 6—(By ANP)—Dr. R. Moton made public July 1st, the record of lynching for the first six months of 1933 as compiled by the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Institute. There were according to these records, compiled carefully and painstakingy by Dr. Monroe N. Work, six lynching in the first six months. This number is one more than occurred during the same period in 1932 when there were five.

The states which are on the lynching black list according to these records are Georgia, 1; Tennessee, 2; Louisiana 2 and Texas, 1.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negroes. The report pointed to the fact that there was a growing tendency on the part of law enforcing officers to prevent lynchings. Three northern and 11 southern instances were given where the alertness and bravery of police forces prevented lynchings.

Lynchings-1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June.

4468

SIX LYNCHINGS FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

Reporter
7-8-33
Birmingham, Ala.

Tuskegee Inst., Ala., July 1.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research there were 6 lynchings in hte first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS, 1933

Richmond Planet
7-8-33
Richmond, Va.

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers, thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Lynchings: 1933
6

Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. – June

4469

MONTGOMERY, ALA.
ADVERTISER

JUN 30 1933

FIGURES ON LYNCHINGS

Editor, The Advertiser:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern States and 11 in southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

Tuskegee, Ala. R. R. MOTON

TAMPA, FLA.
TRIBUNE

JUL 2 1933

Six Lynchings This Year

Principal R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee Institute, has issued a report of lynchings for the first six months of this year. The number is six, one more than for the first half of 1932. Ten years ago, in 1923, there were 15 lynchings in the corresponding period. Offenses charged in the six lynchings this year were murder four, rape one, not reported one. One was in Georgia, two in Louisiana, two in Tennessee, one in Texas. Two were white, four negro.

During the six months, officers of the law prevented lynchings in 14 cases, three in northern and 11 in southern states. In nine of these, the prisoners were removed or guards increased; in five force was used to repel mobs.

There is a steady improvement in the lynching record, especially in their prevention by officers. But for delays of justice, there would be none.

EL DORADO, KANS.
TIMES

JUL 1 1933

LYNCHING RECORD IMPROVES

The semi-annual lynching record for the United States is not too black. During that time, six persons met death at the hands of mobs, according to records compiled by Tuskegee Institute. This was one more than for the same period a year ago. Ten years ago, in 1923, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of the year.

Now while six persons were being made the victims of Judge Lynch in this country during the past six months, there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Three of these were in Northern and eleven in Southern states. In nine of these instances, the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented. In the five other instances, force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. This is the brightest spot in the whole picture. States in which the actual lynchings occurred were: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Maybe the happy day will come some time when there will be no more lynchings in this country. But to bring about that condition, courts and officers of the law will have to function, the pardon power will have to be used sparingly and the conviction be drilled into the public mind that any violation of law whatever will meet a prompt and certain punishment. And even under conditions which do not approach such a Utopia, the lynching record is becoming better, year by year.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
NEWS

JUL 2 1933

LYNCHING FIGURES.

Editor of The Daily News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskagee institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

R. R. MOTON,
Principal.
Tuskagee Institute, Alabama.

EUFAULA, ALA.
TRIBUNE

JUN 30 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS FIRST HALF 1933

Two White And Four Negroes Killed By Mobs; All In Southern States

TUSKEGEE, June 30—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
SENTINEL

JUL 2 1933

The Lynching Record.

To the Editor of the Sentinel:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 colored. were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, two were white and four were colored. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

ROBERT R. MOTON,
Tuskegee institute, Ala.
Principal.

CLEVELAND, O
PRESS

JUL 5 1933

To the Editor of The Press:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards were augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

R. R. Moton
Principal Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Alabama.

DAYTON, O.
NEWS

JUN 30 1933

LYNCHING RECORD

To the Editor of The News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the other five instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, two were white and four were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

R. R. MOTON,
Principal, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala.

Titusville, Fla., Advocate
June 29, 1933

Fewer Lynchings

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., — Lynchings for the first six months of this year totalled six. This number was one less than the number for the same period of 1932. In 1923, ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first half of the year. Of the six persons lynched this year, two were white and four were negroes.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.
ADVERTISER

JUL 1 1933

Six Lynchings For Year Are Reported

TUSKEGEE, ALA., June 30.—(AP)—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynchings in 14 cases during the first half of 1933. Three Northern officers and 11 Southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or guards augmented, in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were criminal assault 1, murder 4, charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number follow:

Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1.

TRIBUNE
Bay City, Tex.
JUN 30 1933

The Lynching Record For The First Six Months Of 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negros. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennesse, 2; Texas, 1.

N. Y. HERALD
JUL 2 1933

Six Lynchings in Six Months

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 2 (UP).—There were six lynchings in the United States in the first six months of 1933, Tuskegee Institute, leading Negro school, announced today. This was one more than in the first six months of 1932. Officers prevented fourteen attempted lynchings. Two of the six lynched were white men.

Bainbridge, Ga., Post-Searchlight
July 6, 1933

REPORT ON LYNCHINGS

July 1, 1933.

The Lynching Record for the first six months of 1933.

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented. in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites, and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. MOTON. Principal.

Augusta, Ga. Herald
July 1, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS

In U. S. During the First Half of Year

TUSKEGEE ALA, July 1—(AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while fifteen were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Kershaw, S. C. Era
July 5, 1933

The Lynching Record for the First Six Months of 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Recorls and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number of 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were nogro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State rate as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2: Tennessee. 2; Texas, 1.

Roanoke, Ala., Leader
July 5, 1933

REPORT ON LYNCHINGS

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: rape, 1; murder, 4; charges not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.—Bulletin Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Savannah, Ga., News
July 1, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR SIX MONTHS

Tuskegee's Figures Show One More Over Last Year

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is, ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern states and eleven in Southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were criminal assault, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1. These figures were sent out by Robert R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Camden, S. C. Chronicle
July [illegible] 1933

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, according to records gathered by Robert R. Morton, principal of Tuskegee Institute. Of these, three were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. Of the persons lynched two were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

Jan.- June

4470

Lynchings-1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

JUN 30 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Principal Moton Reports Six in Six Months Now Ending

To the Editor of The Courant:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers. Thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana; two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

R. R. MOTON.

Tuskegee, Ala., June 28, 1933.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
EXPRESS

JUL 1 1933

LATEST RECORD ON "THE TRAGEDY OF LYNCHING"

Though revealing a backset as compared with the first half of 1932, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute's lynching record for the first six months of 1933 goes to show that the educational and moral forces are gaining ground against mob law.

That authority reports that during the past half-year six persons were lynched, as against five in the corresponding period of 1932. However, the Institute recalls that ten years ago—the first half of 1923—the mob claimed 15 victims. The total lynch-murder toll last year was 8; that in 1923 was 28. Over a ten-year period, therefore, encouraging progress was achieved.

The latest report credits law officers with having saved 17 persons from threatened lynching during the past six months. Another noteworthy circumstance is that two of the six victims were white men. Moreover, only one of the six was accused of the "usual crime."

Texas again figures in the roll, with one lynching; Georgia reports one, and Louisiana and Tennessee, two each. Mississippi remains strikingly absent, as it was all last year.

Official courage in the face of mob threats has been, and will continue to be, a powerful factor in reducing and finally eliminating the lynching evil—but back of that is an enlightened sentiment. To a steadily increasing degree, the people in the South and elsewhere are coming to recognize "lynch law" for the monstrous thing it is. They have shown themselves more and more determined to rid this section of that blot forever.

During the past two and a half years the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching has grown rapidly in membership and has spread its influence into the rural communities — Judge Lynch's traditional stronghold. Churches, clubs and other civic agencies vigorously have supported that educational movement. At the same time the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching—a group of distinguished citizens—attacked the evil by thorough, impartial fact-finding.

Only lately the University of North Carolina published the Commission's findings and conclusions. That document, "The Tragedy of Lynching", constitutes a powerful indictment of the mob by the South's own spokesmen. Probably no other work on the subject has aroused so much attention or promised more lasting benefits. As Dr. Arthur C. Raper, the editor, writes, the facts there set forth "deal a hard blow to the idea that the mob merely administers summary justice."

The evidence (for 1930) shows that several mob-victims were undoubtedly innocent—and their blood is on the heads of community and State:

"Lynchings...are the logical issue of prejudice and lack of respect for the law and personality." Only "the growth of a sane, deliberate public opinion" can stop such crimes.

Chattanooga, Tenn.
TIMES

JUN 30 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

According to statistics compiled by the Department of Records and Research, of Tuskegee Institute, there have been six lynchings during the first six months of 1933. Two of the victims were whites and four were Negroes. In one case rape was charged; in four, murder was the charge; in one case no charge was reported.

The total for the first half of this year is one in excess of the number of lynchings during the first six months of last year. The States which have had lynchings to their discredit this year are as follows: Georgia, 1; Texas, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2. Concerning efforts to prevent lynchings, Principal Moton says:

"During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs."

While there is cause for regret in the fact that the number of lynchings this year has exceeded, even by one, the number during the first half of 1932, there is ground for encouragement in the fact that only six persons have met death at the hands of mobs this year, while fifteen were lynched during the first six months of 1923. It is also cause for gratification that officers in so many instances succeeded in preventing mobs from carrying out their purpose.

The record argues for continuance of efforts, along present lines, to eradicate the barbarous practice of lynching, supplemented by honest efforts to apprehend and punish lynchers. That two of the lynchings reported this year occurred in Tennessee gives the people of this State cause to blush with shame. And the shame is all the greater by reason of the fact that nothing appears to have been done to mete out justice to the lynchers.

SELMA, ALA.
TIMES-JOURNAL

JUL 2 1933

Half Dozen Lynchings For Six Months Bared

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 1—(AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while 15 were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Lynchings were prevented by officers in 14 cases during the first half of this year, three in the north and 11 in the south, through removal of prisoners, use of force or increases in the number of guards.

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2 and Texas 1, the Institute reported.

CARTHAGE, MO.
DEMOCRAT

JUL 5 1933

ANNUAL LYNCHING REPORT

In a recent statement, by Robert R. Morton, principal of the Tuskegee ormal and Industrial Institute, the fololwing is the lynching record for the first six months of 1933:

Accordng to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of tha year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 o fthe instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 egroes, were saved from death at he hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

BEAUMONT, TEX.
ENTERPRISE

JUL 3 1933

LYNCHINGS IN 1933

During the first six months of this year, according to records compiled at Tuskegee institute, six persons were lynched in the United States, one in Texas. During the same period of time last year five were lynched. But during the first six months of 1923, or 10 years ago, 15 persons were lynched. The nation is making some progress toward the eradication of a form of lawlessness that is peculiar to the United States and has subjected the American people to more censure, perhaps, than any other admitted defect in American civilization.

One of the most gratifying evidences both of the tendency to discourage lynchings and of the willingness of law-enforcement officers to protect their prisoners from mob violence is found in the statement from Tuskegee institute that this year there are on record 14 instances in which officers prevented a lynching. Of these instances 11 occurred in southern states where it is popularly supposed that mobs of white men bent on lynching a negro seldom encounter much resistance from the law-enforcement authority. In nine of the instances prisoners were saved from mobs by removal or by augmenting guards; in five force was used.

Usually a show of force will halt a mob in its tracks, but it is encouraging to observe that even when it becomes necessary to use force, there are sheriffs and sheriff's deputies in the south who do not hesitate to do their duty. If some officers had not exercised proper vigilance and shown determination to protect their prisoners at all hazards, the number of persons lynched in the first half of 1933 might have been 23, instead of six.

DAYTON, O.
HERALD

JUL 3 1933

Only a Fair Record.

According to the record compiled at Tuskegee Institute, there were six lynchings in the first six months of the year. This number is one more than for the corresponding period last year but it compares favorably with totals of previous years, notably 1923, when 15 lynchings took place.

Against the number of such crimes this year, it is noteworthy that there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Adding acts and intentions to commit this crime, it would appear that this indecent and brutal offense against human life is not, as a yet, under absolute control as it should be.

The victims of this year's crimes were two whites and four negroes. The alleged offenses charged were criminal assault, one; murder, four, and unreported, one. Louisiana and Tennessee headed the list with two lynchings each and were followed by Georgia and Texas with one each. Moreover, the majority of unsuccessful attempts to lynch was furnished by southern states with 11 as against three in the northern states.

The southern states are improving, but the end of lynch law there is not in sight.

MANKATO, MINN.
FREE PRESS

JUL 1 1933

Record of Lynchings

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Lousiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
TIMES

JUL 1 1933

LYNCHING RECORD.

To the Editor:

Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six m nths of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research. I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

R. R. MOTON,
Principal, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee, Alabama, June 27.

Robesonian
Lumberton N.C.

JUL 3 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST 6 MONTHS 1933

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, in the department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; change not reported, 1.

The states n which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C.
JOURNAL

JUN 30 1933

Lynchings

As has been his custom for many years, Dr. R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, has furnished the press a semi-annual report on lynchings in this country. There were no lynchings in North Carolina.

His report reveals six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This is one more than the number for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, however, ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

The report, received by us yesterday, further reveals that during the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charges not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

MARTINS FERRY, O.
TIMES

JUN 30 1933

Lynchings

THE FIRST six months of 1933 failed to show any improvement in America's lynching record. Six lynchings occurred during that period compared with five in the first six months of the preceding year. However, the number of instances in which citizens of the country took the law in their own hands in the first half of 1933 was nine under the total for the first six months of 1923, showing that the trend during the decade has been downward. Vigilance of the authorities is partly responsible for this improvement, a survey revealing 14 cases this year in which officers of the law had prevented lynchings.

Most of the states in which lynchings occur are in the South and most of the victims are colored. Southerners in many respects are more law abiding than the people of the North, although in the matter of lynchings—which are among the worst effronts to constituted authority—they compare with the northern gangsters who also execute without the law.

Jan. - June

Lynchings - 1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

4471

Charlotte, N. C., News
July 4, 1933

Lynching Record First Six Months

Dear Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. In 1923, that is ten years ago there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern states and 11 in Southern state. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 1.

R. R. Morton,
Principal.

Tuskegee, Ala, July 1.

BOONE, IA.
NEWS REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 [illegible]

LESS MOB SPIRIT

In at least one way the United States seems to be making definite progress. So when you are inclined to become discouraged about the state of the country, remember that lynchings are on the decrease. That is a significant fact. The mob spirit does not rule as strongly as it did in earlier days. We are more inclined to let the law take its course, instead of taking the law into our own hands.

The Tuskegee Institute of Alabama, which was established by Booker T. Washington, has been keeping a record of the lynchings in the United States for many years. The Tuskegee Institute is particularly interested as in most cases it is a colored person who suffers at the hands of a mob. Until a little more than ten years ago lynchings of colored criminals in the south was common enough. In 1923, for instance, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

This year, just ten years later, there were six lynchings during the first six months. This number is one more than the record for a similar period in 1932. Two of the persons lynched this year were white and four Negro. The offenses with which they were charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. All the lynchings occurred in southeren states: 1 in Georgia; 2 in Louisiana, 2 in Tennessee and one in Texas. During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances where officers of the law prevented lynchings, either by augmenting the prisoner's guards or by using force to repel the would-be lynchers.

Some year the report for the first six months will be "no lynchings."

GREENWOOD, S. C.
INDEX JOURNAL
JUN 30 193[illegible]

6 Lynchings So Far In South This Year

Editor The Index-Journal:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guard augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of the mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. MOTON,
Principal Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

BELLEFONTAINE, O.
EXAMINER
JUL 1 1933

The Forum

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

Editor Examiner:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. Moton,
Principal Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.

MERIDEN, CONN.
RECORD
JUL 1 1933

Lynching Record

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.
July 1, 1933.

Editor Morning Record,
Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lyuched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The state in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

Very truly yours,
R. R. MORTON,
Principal.

HOBOKEN, N. J.
OBSERVER
JUN 30 1933

LYNCHINGS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Robert R. Moton, principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial School founded by Booker T. Washington for the training of colored young men and women, is keeping a close watch on the lynching record in the United States, evidently on the theory that emancipation of the colored race may not be said to have been fully accomplished until an end has been put to frenzied mobs taking the law into their own hands.

During the first six months of 1933 there were six lynchings, one more than in the corresponding period last year. However, during the first half of the present year there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus, Mr. Moton reports, a total of 17 persons—6 white and 11 negroes—were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The interesting thing here is that while, in the public mind, lynchings are associated almost entirely with negro victims, persons of the white race occasionally are singled out, too. In the main, however, this form of lawlessness is confined to the South, the States in which human life was thus taken being Georgia, Louisiana, Tennessee and Texas.

In its effort to purge the country of this method of setting aside the orderly processes of the law, Tuskegee Institute resorts to publicity, a weapon which can be said to be well suited to the purpose.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.
ADVERTISER
JUL 1 1933

LYNCHINGS IN THE SOUTH

Yesterday The Advertiser printed a letter from Dr. R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee, in which he set forth the "lynch record" for the first six months this year.

The States with lynchings to their discredit this year are: Georgia 1, Texas 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2.

"During the first six months of 1933," Dr. Moton writes, "there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in the Northern States and eleven in the Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs."

Fifteen persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923. The record has improved that much during the last ten years, which is encouraging. It is to be regretted, though, that there were more lynchings the first six months of this year than there were the first half of last year.

DAYTON, O.
HERALD
JUL 8 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchings; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negros, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape 1, mur[illegible]arge not reported 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1.

—R. R. MOTON,
Principal, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
OBSERVER
JUL 5 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

North Carolina does not appear in Dr. R. R. Moton's list of lynchings that occurred in the United States for the first six months of this year.

His report reveals six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This is one more than the number for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, however, 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

The report, received by us yesterday, further reveals that during the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses were rape, one; murder, four; charges not reported, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

CONCORD, N. C.
TRIBUNE
JUL 1 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR SIX MONTHS.

According to the records compiled at Tuskagee Institute in the department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923 there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

TOPEKA, KANS.
CAPITAL
JUL 4 1933

Lynch Law in 1933.

Principal Moton's report of lynchings in the United States for the six months of 1933 is encouraging. Compared with 1923, when the number of lynchings in six months was 15, the number this year shows a falling off of more than half, being six. There were six recorded lynchings in the last six months, all in Southern states—two in Louisiana, two in Tennessee and one each in Georgia and Texas. Dr. Moton mentions, however, that 14 attempts of mobs were frustrated by police, 11 in Southern and three in Northern states. "Thus a total of 17 persons", he reports, "six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs." Of the six persons lynched this year four were charged with murder.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
STAR
JUN 30 1933

LYNCHINGS SHOW INCREASE

Lynchings for the first six months of 1933 show an increase of one over the corresponding period last year and are totalled at six according to the semi-annual report of the Department of Research at Tuskegee Institute.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2, and Texas 1.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.
VINDICATOR
JUL 1 1933

The Lynching Record for the First Six Months of 1933

Editor of The Vindicator, Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons l9ynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; htus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one, [illegible]r, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows; Georgia one; Louisiana two; Tennessee, two; Texas one.

R. R. MORTON, Principal.

ANNISTON, ALA.
STAR
JUL 3 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST HALF OF YEAR

Alabama has gone through another six months without a lynching, but the total in the South for the first half of this year is above that of the corresponding period in 1932. Records compiled by the department of records and research at Tuskegee Institute show that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933 in comparison with five in the same period last year. All of these were in Southern states.

However, the record this year is far better than that of ten years ago, for in 1923 there were 15 lynchings reported in the first six months.

Tennessee and Louisiana head the list this year with two mob killings each, while Georgia and Louisiana each reported one. But during the same period 17 persons, six white and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. Of 14 instances in which lynchings were prevented, 11 were in Southern states and three in the North. Four of the persons lynched were negroes and two were white.

Regarding the offenses, it is stated in the report that four were charged with murder and one with an offense against a woman. In the other instance the charge was not reported.

It is worth while to note these charges, for as a rule one expects lynchings to be the result of cases involving attacks on women. But this time only one is placed in that group against four in which murder was the charge. This would seem to indicate that men are becoming less inclined to take matters in their own hands and commit murder when attacks on women are reported. Or it may mean that officers of the law have become more diligent in guarding their prisoners from mobs.

Jan. - June

4472

Lynchings - 1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

Lumberton, N. C. Robersonian
July 2, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST 6 MONTHS 1933

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, in the department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; change not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Tifton, Ga., Gazette
July 3, 1933

6 LYNCHINGS IN 6 MONTHS

Tuskegee, Ala., July 1.—According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, in the department of records and research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were: Rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which the lynchings occurred were: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2: Texas, 1.

Lynchings - 1933
Reports on, Sent Press

Jan. — June.

4473

Ashland, Ala. Progress
July 6, 1933

Records on Lynchings For For First Half of 1933.

Tuskegee, Ala., July 1.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, That is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Clanton, Ala., Banner
July 6, 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occured and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Honea Path, S. C. Chronicle
July 7, 1933

Lynching Record First Six Months

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, a negro institution located at Tuskegee, Ala., there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guard augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee 2; Texas 1.

MESSENGER
Camden, S.C.
JUL 5 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

The following information as to lynchings has been furnished us by R. R. Moton, Principal of Tuskegee Institute:

"According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923 that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder 4; charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1."

Florence, S. C., News
July 1, 1933

Lynching Record Shows Decrease

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months in 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Bishopville, S. C., Messenger
July 6, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS IN HALF YEAR

Tuskegee, Ala., July 1.—R. R. Morton, principal of Tuskegee institute said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynchings in 14 cases during the first half of 1933. Three Northern officers and 11 Southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number follow: Georgia 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee 2; Texas 1.

Milton, Fla. Gazette
July 6, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS REPORTED IN U. S. DURING FIRST HALF OF 1933; FIVE IN SAME TIME 1932

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana. 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Waycross, Ga. Journal-Herald
July 2, 1933

SIX PERSONS LYNCHED DURING PAST 6 MONTHS

TUSKEEGEE, Ala., July 1 (AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Morton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Morton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while fifteen were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four Negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported 1. By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2 and Texas 1. the institute reported.

Columbus, Ga. Enquirer-Sun
July 1, 1933

Six Persons Lynched In the South In 1933

Tuskegee, Ala., June 30—(AP)—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same yeriod last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynchings in 14 cases during the first half of 1933 Three northern officers and 11 southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or guards augmented in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes— were saved from death at hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4: charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number follow: Georgia, 1. Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Dawson, Ga., News
July 6, 1933

SIX LYNCHED FIRST SIX MONTHS OF YEAR

LYNCHINGS WERE PREVENTED BY OFFICERS OF LAW IN 14 INSTANCES.

According to the records compiled by Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Fitzgerald, Ga., Herald
July 4, 1933

Lynching Record For First Six Months Of 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 0 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, 2 wer white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2, Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Savannah, Ga. Press
July 1, 1933

SIX PERSONS LYNCHED U. S. IN SIX MONTHS

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 1 (AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while fifteen were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2, and Texas one, the institute reported.

Crossville, Tenn. Chronicle
July 6, 1933

6 LYNCHINGS IN HALF-YEAR

For the first six months of this year there were six lynchings in the United States. Two were white and four Negroes. All the lynchings were in Southern States—Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1.

Talladega
Ala- July 1 Home

RECORDS REVEAL SIX LYNCHINGS IN SIX MONTHS' TIME

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 1.—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said yesterday records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months in 1923.

Officers prevented lynching in 14 cases during the frist half of 1933. Three northern officers and 11 southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number follows:

Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
RECORD
JUL 2 1933

Lynch Record

Editor of The Record:

Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

R. R. MOTON,
Principal, Tuskegee Institute.

Jan. - June

4474

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press

15 Mob Victims In 1923 Over Corresponding Period

Iowa Bystander

7-7-33

Des Moines, Iowa

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the same period.

During the first six months of 1933, 14 instances, officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Lynchings - 1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June

4475

Lexington, Ky., Leader
July 9. 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD

In the first six months of 1923 there were 15 lynchings in the United States. Since then there has been a falling off in the number of these crimes against society. In 1932, for the first six months of the year, there were five lynchings. During the first half-year 1933, there have been six.

It is interesting to note that during the past six months of the current year officers of the law prevented 14 lynchings and saved the lives of 17 persons who were threatened by mobs. Year by year there seems to be an increasing determination on the part of the authorities to resist mob violence even if force must be used against those who would employ it.

Of the persons lynched during the past six months two were white persons and four were Negroes. The crimes were committed in the following states: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two, and Texas, one. These are all southern states where lynchings have been more numerous throughout the years than in other sections of the country.

It is particularly gratifying to watch the growth and the increasing influence of the inter-racial groups which have been formed throughout the south for the purpose of creating better relations between the white people and the Negroes, led by some of the most public-spirited and trusted men and women of both races. The effects of their work have been felt throughout the entire south and throughout the country.

Lynching is not a practice of highly civilized peoples. It is the very antithesis of law and order. It strikes at the foundations of society. It is a direct blow at the courts of justice and the judicial processes which have been evolved over thousands of years of human effort to lift mankind above the levels of savagery and barbarism.

There may be excuses for lynchings, but there can be no real justification for mob law. If the laws are not properly enforced in any community, if there is any weakness or corruption associated with the administration of justice, the remedy is not to be found in the application of mob law, but in the normal and constitutional and orderly action of the people, who have it in their power to purify the course of justice and who can at any time substitute worthy for unworthy officials and judicial officers.

Carthage, Tenn., Courier
July 13, 1933

Lynchings First Six Months of 1933

Dear sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 person slynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder 4; charge not reported 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee 2; Texas 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. MOTON, Principal.

Cynthiana, Ky., Democrat
July 13, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Departmen of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, there were 15 persons lynched in the f'rst six mosths of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 4 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States is which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

Dadeville Ala, Record, July 20 - 1933

TIMELY TOPICS

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee, two each, Georgia and Texas, one each. While this was six tynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Perhaps one of the most versatile young women in the world is Miss Ilya Zorn, described thus by a writer in Grit. "She speaks seven languages fluently; she is a licensed aviatrix in the United States, a dramatic stage star in South America, a hunter of wild animals in Africa, a social favorite in London, and a successful fiction writer in Portugal." She is said never to have lived more than six months successively in any one country.

Elba, Ala., Clipper
July 27, 1988

Six Lynchings For Year Are Reported

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynchings in 14 cases during the first half of 1933. Three Northern officers and 11 Southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or guards augmented, in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were criminal assault 1, murder 4, charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number follow:

Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1.

Goodwater, Ala., Eenterprise
July 20. 1933

TIMELY TOPICS

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee, two each, Georgia and Texas, one each. While this was six tynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white,

---

McDonough, Ga., Advertiser
July 27, 1933

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were Negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Blakely, Ga., News
July 13, 1933

Statistics Given On Lynchings First Six Months of 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of records and Research there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1933. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers, thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were: rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas [illegible]

Magge. Miss., Courier
July 28. 1933

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were Negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too mamy, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them beimg white.

Hartsville, S. C. Messenger
July 20, 1933

ONE A MONTH

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four Negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee, two each; Georgia and Texas, one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 225 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

It cannot be said to the credit of South Carolina, that in addition to the above, this state has added another lynching, that of a negro boy in the Piedmont section early this month.

Hamilton, Ala., News
July 20, 1933

TIMELY TOPICS

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were Negroes, from the following states; Louisiana and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States. 100 of them being white.

BARNESVILLE, O., WHETSTONE
JULY 20, 1933

TIMELY TOPICS

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched, two were white and four were negroes from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee two each; Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892 when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Greer, S. C. Citizen
July 20, 1933

Timely Topics

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Lumpkin, Ga., Journal
July 28, 1933

Lynching Record For First Six Months Of 1933 Shows Six

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, it was found that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in the Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of these instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2, and Texas, 1.

Maysville, Ky. Bulletin
July 28, 1933

Timely Topics

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were Negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee, two each; Georgia and Texas, one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Manchester, Ga., Mercury
July 27, 1933

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the Unied States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Abbeville, S. C. Press and Banner
August 7, 1933

28

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were Negroes, from the following states: Lousiana and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Jan. - June

4476

Lynchings-1933
6
Reports on, Sent Press.

BANGOR, ME.
COMMERCIAL
JUL 6 1933

During the first six months of the present year there were six lynchings, one more than in the same period last year, but infinitely less than a generation ago when the victims of lynch law numbered hundreds. Not since 1908 have the lynchings reached one hundred in a single year and in recent years they have numbered about a dozen annually. Of the mob murders of the present year four of the victims were colored and two white, and all occurred in the southern states, two in Louisiana, two in Tennessee and one each in Georgia and Texas. In submitting the figures Principal Moton of Tuskegee Institute remarks that there were 14 instances in which lynchings were prevented by the offices of the law.

BANGOR, ME.
COMMERCIAL
JUL 6

During the first six months of the present year there were six lynchings, one more than in the same period last year, but infinitely less than a generation ago when the victims of lynch law numbered hundreds. Not since 1908 have the lynchings reached one hundred in a single year and in recent years they have numbered about a dozen annually. Of the mob murders of the present year four of the victims were colored and two white, and all occurred in the southern states, two in Louisiana, two in Tennessee and one each in Georgia and Texas. In submitting the figures Principal Moton of Tuskegee Institute remarks that there were 14 instances in which lynchings were prevented by the offices of the law.

Greenville S.C.
Piedmont
JUL 6 1933

Few Lynchings

Tuskegee records show that six lynchings occurred in the country in the first half of this year, one more than in the corresponding period of last year but far under the records of other years.

Four of the persons lynched were negroes, two were whites, and the offenses charged were: rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

Louisiana and Tennessee contributed two lynchings each, Georgia contributed one and Texas one. South Carolina's record again was clear, although it will not be clear for the last six months of the year, due to yesterday's outrage at Clinton.

These figures tell a shameful story but they show so much improvement that they are a source of encouragement. We have reason to hope that some day lynching will disappear from this country and punishment to offenders will be given in a proper, lawful manner.

Gold Leaf
Henderson, N.C.
JUL 6 1933

LYNCHINGS MORE FOR SIX MONTHS

Were Five For First Half of 1932, Tuskegee Figures Indicate

During the first six months of 1933, ending today, there were six lynchings in the nation, compared with five for the corresponding period of 1932 according to a compilation by Tuskegee Institute in Alabma, and received here today. In the first half of the year a decade ago, or 1923, there were 15 lynchings in the first half of the year.

During the past six months there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Three of these were in northern and eleven in southern states. In nine of the instances prisoners were removed or guards augmented, and in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 17 persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the six persons lynched two were white and four Negro men. The offenses charged included four for murder, one for rape and one in which the cause was not learned. Two lynchings each occurred in Louisiana and Tennessee, and one each in Georgia and Texas.

Missoula, Mont., Sentinel
WEDNESDAY, JULY 5, 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

Robert R. Moton, principal of the Tuskegee Institute for colored people, makes his semi-annual report on lynching within the United States. The first six months of 1933 brought six lynchings, two in Louisiana, two in Tennessee, one in Georgia and one in Texas. Two of the victims were whites and four were negroes.

While this is one more than during the first half of 1932, the record is rather encouraging, for, in the first six months of 1923, there were fifteen such crimes. Then, there were fourteen instances this year of the prevention of lynchings by officers of the law, three in Northern and eleven in Southern states. Seventeen people, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at lawless hands.

Gradually the country is learning that lynching is a disgraceful crime. This sort of outrage is decreasing year by year.

Honea Path S.C.
Chronicle
JUL 7 1933

Lynching Record First Six Months

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, a negro institution located at Tuskegee, Ala., there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guard augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee 2; Texas 1.

Dawson Ga. News
JUL 6 1933

SIX LYNCHED FIRST SIX MONTHS OF YEAR

LYNCHINGS WERE PREVENTED BY OFFICERS OF LAW IN 14 INSTANCES.

According to the records compiled by Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Kingstree S C
Record

JUL 6 1933

Lynchings for First Half Year.

According to the records compile at Tuskegee Institute in the Depa ment ~~of Records~~ and Research, ther were 6 lynchings in the first si months of 1933. This number is more than the number 5 for the firs six months of 1932. In 1923, that i ten years ago, there were 15 person lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchings; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, ; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings ocurred and the number in each state re as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, ; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Sandersville Ga
Progress

JUL 6 1933

Lynching Record for Past Six Months

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department ~~of Records and~~ Research, there were only six lynchings in the first six montrs of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923 ,that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

---

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Bangor Me
Commercial

JUL 6 1933

During the first six months of the present year there were six lynchings, one more than in the same period last year, but infinitely less than a generation ago when the victims of lynch law numbered hundreds. Not since 1908 have the lynchings reached one hundred in a single year and in recent years they have numbered about a dozen annually. Of the mob murders of the present year four of the victims were colored and two white, and all occurred in the southern states, two in Louisiana, two in Tennessee and one each in Georgia and Texas. In submitting the figures Principal Moton of ~~Tuskegee~~ Institute remarks that there were 14 instances in which lynchings were prevented by the offices of the law.

VICKSBURG, MISS.
POST
JUL 16 1933

Lynchings Decrease

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four negroes, from the following states: Lousiaina and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

South Boston, Va. Gazette
July 13, 1933

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were Negroes, from the following states: Louisana and Tennessee two each, Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Florence, Ala., Herald
July 14, 1933

Sidelights

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 193 one more than the number repo for the corresponding period year. Of those lynched two white and four were Negroes, f the following states: Louisiana Tennessee two each, Georgia Texas one each. While this six lynchings too many, the re shows great improvement since year 1892, when no less than 255 sons were lynched in the Un States, 100 of them being white.

Fernandina, Fla., Leader
July 14, 1933

NOT A SINGLE LYNCHING IN STATE OF FLORIDA

During the past six months there has not been a single lynching in the state of Florida, according to statistics given out by the Tuskegee Institute. These figures are compiled twice each year and sent out to newspapers as readable information.

Those states in which such occured were: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1. Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. During this same period of time 17 persons, six of them white and the remaining ones negro were saved from deaht at the hands of mobs by various methdos.

The record over the same period of time for 1933 is one more than during the same months in 1932, yet it is quite a reduction of figures when compared to the 15 persons that were lynched in 1923.

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June

4477

EIGHT LYNCHINGS

ACCORDING to the Tuskegee report there were six lynchings for the first half of the year 1933. Since that time South Carolina and Mississippi have each added black spots to America's record of barbarism.

During the beginning of the present month when America was celebrating its Independence as a free country founded upon the proposition that "all men are created equal," South Carolina lynched a man of color because he struck a white man.

Last week a Negro is alleged to have made improper remarks to a white woman and his body is found hanging in the fields of Mississippi.

In neither case was the lynching brought on as a result of rape. It is very important that the record be kept straight, for the reason that Southerners and Northerners too, for that matter, attempt to justify lynching on the ground that it is necessary to protect white women from the rapists who infest the Negro race.

When this fool argument is made colored citizens should be able to refute the accusation by showing that Negroes are lynched for striking white men in self defense and walking on the wrong side of the street. White womanhood is in practically little danger from black rapists. White men use it as a plausible excuse for engaging in acts of barbarism which give pleasure to and satisfy their hellish appetites for the blood of the defenseless.

Philadelphia Pa.

EVANSVILLE, IND.
JOURNAL
JUL 10 1933

Lynchings Becoming Fewer

Although there was one more lynching in the United States in the first six months of this year than in the same period last year, the situation with respect to mob law has some encouraging features.

The total of six this year is nine less than the total 10 years ago, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee institute. This represents a distinct advance for the cause of justice as opposed to mob law.

That part of the report showing the prevention by the constituted authorities of 14 lynchings involving 17 persons is another feature of the report that deserves special attention. It shows that the officers not only had the proper understanding of their duties but that they were diligent in performing them.

The fact that lynching has not kept proportunate pace with other forms of major law violations seems to indicate that the war on this crime is making gratifying progress. No let-up in the drive should be permitted. There is no proper place in a civilized land for mob action. A spotless record is the objective to be sought. Even if this is never attained, the work in its behalf will have yielded highly creditable results.

Freeman
Waukesha, Wis.
JUL 15 1933

Lynchings

Although there was one more lynching in the United States in the first six months of this year than in the same period last year, the situation with respect to mob law has some encouraging features. The total of six this year is nine less than the total ten years ago, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee institute. This represents a distinct advance for the cause of justice as opposed to mob law. That part of the report showing the prevention by the constituted authorities of fourteen lynchings involving seventeen persons is another feature of the report that deserves special attention. It shows that the officers not only had the proper understanding of their duties but that they were diligent in performing them. The fact that lynching has not kept proportionate pace with other forms of major law violations seems to indicate that the war on this crime is making gratifying progress. No let-up in the drive should be permitted. There is no proper place in a civilized land for mob action. A spotless record is the objective to be sought. 'Even if this is never attained, the work in its behalf will have yielded highly creditable results.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.
GAZETTE
JUL 13 1933

LYNCHINGS

Although there was one more lynching in the United States in the first six months of this year than in the same period last year, the situation with respect to mob law has some encouraging features.

The total of six this year is nine less than the total 10 years ago, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee institute. This represents a distinct advance for the cause of justice as opposed to mob law.

That part of the report showing the prevention by the constituted authorities of 14 lynchings involving 17*persons is another feature of the report that deserves special attention. It shows that the officers not only had the proper understanding of their duties but that they were diligent in performing them.

The fact that lynching has not kept proportionate pace with other forms of major law violations seems to indicate that the war on this crime is making gratifying progress. No let-up in the drive should be permitted.

There is no proper place in a civilized land for mob action. A spotless record is the objective to be sought. Even if this is never attained the work in its behalf will have yielded highly creditable results.

MILFORD, MASS.
NEWS
JUL 12 1933

LYNCHINGS

Although there was one more lynching in the United States in the first six months of this year than in the same period last year, the situation with respect to mob has some encouraging features. The total of six this year is nine less than the total 10 years ago, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee institute. This represents a distinct advance for the cause of justice as opposed to mob law. That part of the report showing the prevention by the constituted authorities of 14 lynchings involving 17 persons is another feature of the report that deserves special attention.

It shows that the officers not only had the proper understanding of their duties but that they were diligent in performing them. The fact that lynching has not kept proportionate pace with other forms of major law violations seems to indicate that the war on this crime is making gratifying progress. No let-up in the drive should be permitted. There is no proper place in a civilized land for mob action. A spotless record is the objective to be sought.

Even if this is never attained, the work in its behalf will have yielded highly creditable results.

DES MOINES, IA.
REGISTER
JUL 7 1933

LYNCHING WANES—AND THERE'S A REASON.

The Tuskegee institute's report on lynchings during the first six months of 1933 shows that six persons—two whites and four Negroes—suffered execution at the hands of mobs in that period. The incidents all occurred in southern states—one each in Georgia and Texas, and two each in Louisiana and Tennessee.

The number is one higher than the total lynchings during the same period a year ago, and yet in the long view it is encouraging. In just the decade prior to 1924 the number of lynchings averaged 28 every six months, and until 1910 it was not unusual for 100 persons to be lynched in the United States annually. So we are definitely moving toward greater decency and justice, at least.

And the reason for that is not altogether in the diminution of mobs or their changed psychology. It is worth noting that in 14 other instances during the last six months in which lynchings were attempted, officers of the law prevented the acts, and 11 of these in southern states where the lynching of Negroes has long been something of a popular pastime. In nine of these 14 cases the crime was prevented by the simple process of removing the prisoner or augmenting his guards; in only five cases was force necessary to repel the mob. The total of prisoners thus saved from lynchers amounted to 17.

These latter facts are after all the more important, for they demonstrate that the barbaric process of killing accused persons without a fair trial could in most cases be prevented if those responsible for prisoners were de-

---

LYNCHINGS CONTINUE

Reports from Tuskegee Institute show that there were six lynchings in the first half of 1933, and press reports bring news of the fact that South Carolina has started off the second half of the year with another lynching. This national disgrace does not die out; and all heroic efforts in that direction have failed to kill it out. 7-22-33.

True it is that much progress has been made; but it will be a welcome day when announcement can be made that we have finally ended the brutality of lynching in this country. It is distinctly an American sport and pasttime.

termined to do so. It is safe to presume that before many more years the success of a lynching bee will cast a sure stigma upon the state involved, and more particularly upon the weaklings of law enforcement who permit its perpetration.

NEWS
Fayetteville, Tenn.
JUL 6 1933

6 Lynching Occurred During Past 6 Months

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and eleven in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were: rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two, and. Texas, one.

NEWARK, O.
Advocate and American Tribune
JUL 1 3 1933

LYNCHINGS.

Although the[illegible]as one more lynching in the United States in the first six months of this year than in the same period last year, the situation with respect to mob law has some encouraging features.

The total of hix this year is nine less than the total 10 years ago, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee institute. This represents a distinct advance for the cause of justice as opposed to mob law.

That part of the report showing the prevention by the constituted authorities of 14 lynchings involving 17 persons is another feature of the report that deserves special attention. It shows that the officers not only had the proper understanding of their duties but that they were diligent in performing them.

The fact that lynching has not kept proportunate pace with other forms of major law violations seems to indicate that the war on this crime is making gratifying progress No let-up in the drive should be permitted.

There is no proper place in a civilized land for mob action. A spotless record is the objective to be sought. Even if this is never attained, the work in its behalf will have yielded highly creditable results.

Pelham, Ga., Journal
July 20, 1933

Lynching Record For Six Months

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which oficers of the law prevented lynchins. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Rape 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia 1; Louisana, 2; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 1

Sardis, Miss. Reporter
July 14, 1933

The lynching record for the first six months of 1933 shows there were six in the southern states, but none in Mississippi, according to a report from the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute. Lynching statistics prove the situation is improving throughout the nation.

Pearson, Ga. Times
July 21, 1933

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of these lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee two each. Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

Alexander City, Ala., Outlook
July 13, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

Tuskegee Institute, Ala. July 1, 1933

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten year ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

R. R. MOTON.

Aiken, S. C. Journal & Review
July 19, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Lynchings.-1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June

4478

BURLINGTON, IA.
HAWK-EYE

JUL 11 1933

LYNCHINGS.

Six persons were victims of "lynch law" in the United States during the first six months of this year, according to the research department of Tuskegee Institute, the famous school for Negroes in Alabama. This is one more than was recorded for the first six months of 1932 and nine less than for the same period ten years ago. All of the lynchings occurred in southern states, Georgia and Texas, one each, Louisiana and Tennessee, two each. Two of the victims were white persons, the other four were Negroes. Four of the victims were accused of murders, one of rape. The accusation against the other is not given.

Fourteen attempted lynchings were frustrated by peace officers.

While resort to lynch law is never excusable, the record for the first six months of the year, especially in view of the large number of unemployed drifters, is not a bad one in comparison with other years and considering the size and population of the country. Most encouraging is the fact that mobs were repelled in fourteen instances. It shows that peace officers are doing a better job of protecting prisoners in their custody and in preventing mob-mad citizens taking the law into their own hands—and that is the only way lynchings and mob violence can ever be stopped.

OAKLAND, CALIF.
TRIBUNE

JUL 5 1933

LYNCHINGS.

The American record of lynching for the first six months of 1933 shows an increase of one over the period in 1932, and a decrease of nine under the half year of 1923. The trend has been better over a decade, with fewer lynchings and more instances of the law standing its ground and preventing such outrages.

The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute which keeps the figures says that during the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; this a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the six persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2: Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

AUGUSTA, GA.
HERALD

JUL 6 1933

MAJESTY OF LAW RECEIVING GREATER RECOGNITION

THE period of the first six months of this year shows a slight increase in the number of lynchings over the same period for 1932. These reports are compiled by the Tuskegee School, under the supervision of the principal, R. R. Moton, who is a leader of his race, and one who has contributed and accomplished much for the benefit of the negroes.

In making up his report and announcing his findings, Principal Moton said:

"According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for this first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

"During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state, are as follows: Georgia one, Louisiana two, Tennessee two, Texas one."

It will be noted from Moton's report that last year, for the first six months, only five lynchings occurred, while this year there were six lynchings, but back in 1923, a decade ago, there were 15 lynchings for the same period of time. However, the report shows a most stable and sound condition among the people of this country. Only occasionally, in recent years, has lynching occurred. Our people are growing more sober-minded and law-abiding, and only in extreme cases of crime do they resort to such methods of dispensing what they believe to be justice. So long as the crime of assault is committed, lynchings will be hard to obliterate entirely from the calendar of crime, and in these days assault is about the only crime that causes the people to forget legally constituted authorities and courts and take the punishment for the crime into their own hands to be administered.

Spartanburg SC
Journal

JUL 6 1933

For the First Half

This nation still has lynchings. For the frst half of 1933 the report issued by the head of the Tuskegee Institute shows there were a total of six throughout the states—one more than for the first six months of 1932. Of the victims, two were white and four negroes. South Carolina has a clean score, according to the record, which reveals the following states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each instance: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1. The statistics show that 14 attempts at lynching by mobs during the period were frustrated by officers of the law. That is the most hopeful feature to the showing. The day should be hastened when this foul blot on the nation—lynch law—is thoroughly eradicated.

RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS OBSERVER

JUL 2 1933

LYNCHINGS.

Winston-Salem Journal.

As has been his custom for many years, Dr. R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, has furnished the press a semi-annual report on lynchings in this country. There were no lynchings in North Carolina.

His report reveals six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This is one more than the number for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, however, 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

The report, received by us yesterday, further reveals that during the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charges not reported, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

4478

MOBILE, ALA.
REGISTER

JUL 10 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST HALF OF YEAR

(Anniston Star)

Alabama has gone through another six months without a lynching, but the total in the south for the first half of this year is above that of the corresponding period of 1932. Records compiled by the department of records and research at Tuskegee institute show that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933 in comparison with five in the same period last year. All of these were in southern states.

However, the record this year is far better than that of 10 years ago, for in 1923 there were 15 lynchings reported in the first six months.

Tennessee and Louisiana head the list this year with two mob killings each, while Georgia and Louisiana each reported one. But during the same period 17 persons, six white and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. Of 14 instances in which lynchings were prevented, 11 were in southern states and three in the north. Four of the persons lynched were negroes and two were white.

Regarding the offenses, it is stated in the report that four were charged with murder and one with an offense against a woman. In the other instance the charge was not reported.

It is worth while to note these charges, for as a rule one expects lynchings to be the result of cases involving attacks on women. But this time only one is placed in that group against four in which murder was the charge. This would seem to indicate that men are becoming less inclined to take matters in their own hands and commit murder when attacks on women are reported. Or it may mean that officers of the law have become more diligent in guarding their prisoners from mobs.

Pearson, Ga., Tribune
July 20, 1933

There Should Not Be Any

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of these lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennesseee two each. Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.—Waycross Georgian.

Homerville, Ga. Weekly
July 20, 1933

There Should Not Be Any

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of these lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennesseee two each. Georgia and Texas one each. While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.—Waycross Georgian.

WEIRTON, W. VA.
TIMES

JUL 14 1933

FEWER LYNCHINGS

The Daily Times is in receipt of information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year, compiled at Tuskegee Institute which for many years has kept records of those gruesome events. The report shows, that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933.

Ten years ago there were 15 lynchings in the first half of the year which probably indicates that the people are getting more disposed to let the law take its course. Of the persons lynched in the first half of this year, two were white and four were Negro. The states in which lynchings occurred were Louisiana two; Tennessee two; Georgia one, and Texas one. The south continues to be the chief seat of lynchings, but the victims are not all blacks.

HAMMOND, IND.
LAKE COUNTY TIMES

JUL 19 1933

LYNCHINGS

Although there was one more lynchings in the United States in the first six months of this year than in the same period last year, the situation with respect to mob law has come encouraging features.

The total of six this year is nine less than the total 10 years ago, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee institute. This represents a distinct advance for the cause of justice as opposed to mob law.

That part of the report showing the prevention by the constituted authorities of 14 lynchings involving 17 persons is another feature of the report that deserves special attention. It shows that the officers not only had the proper understanding of their duties but that they were diligent in performing them.

The fact that lynching has not kept proportunate pace with other forms of major law violations seems to indicate that the war on this crime is making gratifying progress. No letup in the drive should be permitted.

There is no proper place in a civilized land for mob action. A spotless record is the objective to be sought. Even if this is never attained, the work in its behalf will have yielded highly creditable results.

Tupelo, Miss. Journal
July 11, 1933

Unwritten Law Is Still In Evidence

Recent figures released show that during the first six months of this year there were six lynchings reported from states of the south, four of which were negroes.

The number for the first half of this year exceeds the mark for the same period of 1932 by one. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons, mostly if not all negroes, lynched in the first six months of the year.

Five of the heaviest lynching states of the Union are Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana, Tennessee and Texas.

Newbern, Tenn. Tennessean
July 13, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, it was found that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred an dthe number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Jan. - June

4479

Lynchings-1933
6
Reports on, Sent Press

TOLEDO, O.
TIMES
JUN 30 1933

Fewer Lynchings

While there was one more lynching in the first six months of 1933 than was recorded for the similar period of 1932 there is cause for satisfaction in comparing the total figures for this year with those of ten years ago.

According to the principal of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute of Tuskegee Institute, Ala., who prepared the report, there were six lynchings in the first six months of this year, compared to five in the first six months of last year.

But the principal finds that in the first six months of 1923 there were 15 persons lynched. The nation seems to be making progress. The hot headed elements are listening to reason, depending on the law to handle a situation.

Too often innocent persons, usually Negroes, have been the victims of these ruthless lynching parties. Quite often the officers of the law have done their duty and repelled the efforts of mobs to seize prisoners for the purpose of lynching.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. It is found that three of these instances took place in northern states and eleven in southern states.

Of the six lynched in the first half of this year two were white men and four were colored. Murder was the principal reason given for mobs taking the law into their own hands.

The report shows that only in southern states did lynchings take place this year. There was one in Georgia; two in Louisiana; two in Tennessee and one in Texas.

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

The Christian Recorder

By R. R. Moton

7-6-33. Philadelphia, Pa.

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Eufaula, Ala. Tribune
June 30, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS FIRST HALF 1933

Two White And Four Negroes Killed By Mobs; All In Southern States

TUSKEGEE, June 30—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

SIX LYNCHED SINCE JANUARY

Boston Chronicle
7-8-33
Boston, Mass.

Tuskegee Reports Two Whites and Four Negroes Killed by Southern Mobs

Tuskegee, Ala.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern states and 11 in Southern states. In 9 of the instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were, rape, 1; murder, 4: charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Elberton, Ga., Star
July 4, 1933

Lynching Record First Six Months of 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research show that there were six lynchings in the first six first six months of 1932. In 1923, 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1933 that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows :Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Colombus, Ga. Enquirer Sun

4-7-33

SLIGHT INCRIASE IN LYNCHINGS

The period of the first six months of this year shows a slight increase in the number of lynchings over the same period for 1932. These reports are compiled by the Tuskegee school, under the supervision of the principal, R. R. Moton, who is a leader of his race, and one who has contributed and accomplished much for the benefit of the negroes.

In making up his report and announcing his findings, Principal Moton, said:

"According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for this first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

"During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons; 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses were rape, 1; murder 4; charge not reported, 1.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state, are as follows: Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1."

Last year, for the first six months, only five lynchings occurred, while this year there were six lynchings, but back in 1923 a decade ago, there were fifteen lynchings for the sameperiod of time. However, the report shows a most stable and sound condition among the people of this country. Only occasionally, in recent years, has lynchings occurred. Our people are growing more sober minded and law abiding, and only in extreme cases of crime do they resort to such methods of dispensing what they believe to be justice in cases of rape. So long as that crime is committed, lynchings will be hard to obliterate from the calendar of crime, and in these days, rape is about the only crime that causes the people to forget legally constituted authorities and courts and take the punishment for the crime into their own hands to be administered.

BOWLING GREEN, KY.
TIMES JOURNAL

JUL 1 1933

Still Too Much Mob Law

Public sentiment against lynching has developed with the passing of the years and yet too many such horrible murders occur in our country. Mob law should have no place in a civilized land.

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, we find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were whites and 4 were Negroes. The offense charged were rape, 1; murder ,4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1 Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

An encouraging point in this report is where it tells of fourteen cases where officers of the law prevented lynchings. Members of mobs are coward from the fact that they know they are in the wrong and that they have no right to thus take the law int their own hands. Officers of the law, usually, need only to stand firm and let the mob know they mean business to win out without even a display of force.

NEWS-GAZETTE
CAMPAIGN-URBANA, ILL.

JUL 3 1933

COMPILES RECORD OF LYNCHINGS

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, ALA., June 28.—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number, (five) for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

—R. R. MOTON.

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF THE YEAR

Afro-American Presbyterian

6-29-33.

Charlotte, N.C.

Editor, The Africo-American Presbyterian:

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first 6 months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is, ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State is as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. MORTON,
Principal.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
July 1, 1933

TUSKEGEE HEAD REPORTS SIX PERSONS LYNCHED

TUSKEGEE, Ala., June 30 (AP).—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, fifteen persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynchings in fourteen cases during the first half of 1933. Three northern officers and eleven southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes—were saved from death at hands of mobs.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number follow: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Advertiser 7-1-33 Montgomery, Ala.

LYNCHINGS IN THE SOUTH

Yesterday The Advertiser printed a letter from Dr. R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee, in which he set forth the "lynch record" for the first six months this year.

The States with lynchings to their discredit this year are: Georgia 1, Texas 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2.

"During the first six months of 1933," Dr. Moton writes, "there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in the Northern States and eleven in the Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs."

Fifteen persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923. The record has improved that much during the last ten years, which is encouraging. It is to be regretted, though, that there were more lynchings the first six months of this year than there were the first half of last year.

Jan.-June

4480

Lynchings-1933

Reports on, Sent Press

Bristol, Va., Herald-Courier
July 2, 1933

The Lynching Record.

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, there were six lynchings in the first six months of this year, all of them in Southern States. During the same time, eleven attempted lynchings were prevented in the South, which speaks well for some of the officers of the law. There were no lynchings in the North, but that three attempted lynchings were prevented in that section again shows that the mob spirit is not confined to the South.

If all the mobs which attempted to take the law into their own hands in the last six months had been successful, there would have been twenty instead of six lynchings to report. This suggests the thought that if all officers everywhere had been as faithful in the performance of their duties as were those who prevented the fourteen attempted lynchings, the first half of 1933 might have passed without a lynching in any part of the country.

There were two lynchings in Tennessee, two in Louisiana, one in Georgia and one in Texas. Of the persons lynched, two were white and four were colored. Had not fourteen mobs been thwarted, not only would there have been twenty lynchings but the number of mob victims would have been twenty-three. In these fourteen instances seventeen persons were saved from death at the hands of mobs, six of them white and eleven colored. Thus we are once more reminded that the mob no longer limits its activities to the lynching of Negroes for crimes against white women. It has ceased to be a respecter of color, and an offense of any kind may provide it with a pretext for going into murderous action.

Unfortunately, no instance in which a member of a mob was brought to account during the last six months can be reported. If there is anything encouraging in the record, which shows one more lynching than in the first six months of last year, it is in the fact that fifteen persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923, ten years ago. But six lynchings are six too many, and it is possible that Tuskegee Institute has overlooked two lynchings in Georgia. We believe the time is coming when no part of the country will be disgraced by mob lawlessness, but it will come sooner if the responsible authorities of States and counties and communities set their faces sternly against the mob—if they determine to spare no effort to prevent lynchings and to hunt down and punish perpetrators of lynchings that can not possibly be prevented. That is their duty and they should perform it.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
July 6, 1933

LYNCHINGS IN THE SOUTH

From the Montgomery Advertiser.

Yesterday the Advertiser printed a letter from Dr. R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee, in which he set forth the "lynch record" for the first six months this year.

The states with lynchings to their credit this year are: Georgia 1, Texas 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2.

"During the first six months of 1933," Dr. Moton writes, "there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in the northern states and eleven in the southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs."

Fifteen persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923. The record has improved that much during the last ten years, which is encouraging. It is to be regretted, though, that there were more lynchings the first six months of this year than there were the first half of last year.

South Pittsburg, Tenn., Hustler
June 29, 1933

LYNCHINGS IN SOUTH ARE ON DECLINE

ACCORDING TO RECORDS AT TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE

Six Lynchings First Six Months 1933; One More Than Same Period of 1932; Nine Less Than 1923.

According to Principal Robert R. Moton, of Tuskegee, who makes semi-annual reports on lynchings in the south, reports that during the first six months of 1933, there were six lynchings, one more than that during the same period of 1932. He further says that the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research show that in 1923 there were fifteen lynchings in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Columbia. S. C. Record
July 1, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS IN HALF YEAR

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 1.—(AP)—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynchings in 14 cases during the first half of 1933. Three Northern officers and 11 Southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons — six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number follow: Georgia 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee 2; Texas 1.

Carrollton, Ga., Times
July 6, 1933

Six People Lynched In U. S. Last 6 Months

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northen States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
July 1, 1933

Six Lynchings For Year Are Reported

TUSKEGEE, ALA., June 30.—(AP)—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynchings in 14 cases during the first half of 1933. Three Northern officers and 11 Southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or guards augmented, in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were criminal assault 1, murder 4, charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number follow:

Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1.

Sandersville, Ga., Progress
July 5, 1933

Lynching Record for Past Six Months

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were only six lynchings in the first six montrs of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923 ,that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
June 30, 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

According to statistics [illegible] by the Department of Records and Research, of Tuskegee Institute, there have been six lynchings during the first six months of 1933. Two of the victims were whites and four were Negroes. In one case rape was charged; in four, murder was the charge; in one case no charge was reported.

The total for the first half of this year is one in excess of the number of lynchings during the first six months of last year. The States which have had lynchings to their discredit this year are as follows: Georgia, 1; Texas, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2. Concerning efforts to prevent lynchings, Principal Moton says:

"During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs."

While there is cause for regret in the fact that the number of lynchings this year has exceeded, even by one, the number during the first half of 1932, there is ground for encouragement in the fact that only six persons have met death at the hands of mobs this year, while fifteen were lynched during the first six months of 1923. It is also cause for gratification that officers in so many instances succeeded in preventing mobs from carrying out their purpose.

The record argues for continuance of efforts, along present lines, to eradicate the barbarous practice of lynching, supplemented by honest efforts to apprehend and punish lynchers. That two of the lynchings reported this year occurred in Tennessee gives the people of this State cause to blush with shame. And the shame is all the greater by reason of the fact that nothing appears to have been done to mete out justice to the lynchers.

Harriman, Tenn. Record
June 29, 1933

Lynching Record for First 6 Months 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Knoxville, Tenn., News-Sen[illegible]
July 2, 1933

STATE HAD TWO OF 6 LYNCHINGS

Tennessee and Louisiana 'Tie' for First Six Months of This Year.

Special To The News-Sentinel

TUSKEGEE, Ala., R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Three Northern officers and 11 Southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were criminal assault, 1; murder, 4; charges not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number follow:

Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

The lynchings marked against Tennessee probably refer to the two white men dragged from Scott County jail at Huntsville, Tenn., three weeks ago and shot to death.

Selma, Ala. Times
July 2, 1933

Half Dozen Lynchings For Six Months Bared

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 1—(AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while 15 were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Lynchings were prevented by officers in 14 cases during the first half of this year, three in the north and 11 in the south, through removal of prisoners, use of force or increases in the number of guards.

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2 and Texas 1, the Institute reported.

Macon, Ga., News
June 30, 1933

Six Are Lynched At Half of Year

Six lynchings occurred during the first half of 1933, according to a statement received here from Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute, which compiles these statistics.

Two of those lynched were white men, four Negroes. There was one in Georgia, one in Texas, and two each in Louisiana and Tennessee.

Lynchings of 14 persons were prevented during the first half of the year, by removal of prisoners, mounting of heavy guards, or direct use of force to repel a mob. Eleven of these instances were in the South.

There were five lynchings in the first half of last year.

Brunswick, Ga. News
July 2, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS IN COUNTRY REPORTED

Tuskegee, Ala., July 1. (AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six moths of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal at Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year, while fifteen were lynched during the same time ten years ago.

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1 By states the lynchings were listed as George, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2, and Texas, 1, the institute reported.

Chester, S. C., Reporter
July 3, 1933

Lynching Record.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., July 1.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Columbia, S. C. State
July 2, 1933

Lynching Data.

Tuskegee, Ala., July 1—(UP)—Six lynchings occurred in the United States in the first six months of 1933, Tuskegee institute, leading Negro school, announced today, an increase of one over 1932 figures. Officers frustrated 14 attempted lynchings. Two of the six lynched were white men.

Lynchings-1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan- June

4481

Augusta, Ga. Herald
July 6, 1933

MAJESTY OF LAW RECEIVING GREATER RECOGNITION

THE period of the first six months of this year shows a slight increase in the number of lynchings over the same period for 1932. These reports are compiled by the Tuskegee School, under the supervision of the principal, R. R. Moton, who is a leader of his race, and one who has contributed and accomplished much for the benefit of the negroes.

In making up his report and announcing his findings, Principal Moton said:

"According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for this first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

"During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state, are as follows: Georgia one, Louisiana two, Tennessee two, Texas one."

It will be noted from Moton's report that last year, for the first six months, only five lynchings occurred, while this year there were six lynchings, but back in 1923, a decade ago, there were 15 lynchings for the same period of time. However, the report shows a most stable and sound condition among the people of this country. Only occasionally, in recent years, has lynching occurred. Our people are growing more sober-minded and law-abiding, and only in extreme cases of crime do they resort to such methods of dispensing what they believe to be justice. So long as the crime of assault is committed, lynchings will be hard to obliterate entirely from the calendar of crime, and in these days assault is about the only crime that causes the people to forget legally constituted authorities and courts and take the punishment for the crime into their own hands to be administered.

JOURNAL
Berlin, Wis.
JUL 6 1933

EDITORIAL COMMENT

LYNCHING GOES OUT OF FASHION

Tuskegee Institute, famous southern Negro educational institution founded by the famous Booker T. Washington, has made its semi-annual report on the number of lynchings perpetrated in the United States during the first six months of the present year. The report shows but six victims of mob law during the past six months, compared to fifteen during the same period in 1932.

This report is an excellent showing for the tendency of the American people to resort to legal means of punishing criminals, or persons accused of crime, rather than by resorting to mob law. There was a time when about the only thing required to bring about the summary lynching of a Negro, was to accuse him of crime. Booker T. Washington, famed Negro educator, made a valiant fight against lynching, demanding justice and a fair trial for Negroes accused of crime. He succeeded in swaying public sentiment toward a strong opposition to mob law, before his death, and the educational institution which he founded has carried on the campaign against lynching since.

During the past few years the number of lynchings has steadily decreased. Six lynchings in a half year is a small number, compared to the record made in the United States a quarter of a century ago. But even six lynchings are just a half dozen too many, so far as the reputation of the United States for showing respect to law and order is concerned. Every lynching is a blot on the reputation of the country. Let us hope the time is near at hand when there will be no executions of any men or women, except by due process of law. "Judge Lynch" should be retired from activity of any sort, for all time to come.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Evergreen, Ala., Courant
July 6, 1933

Ala. Has No Lynchings During Past 6 Months

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in first 6 months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Fayetteville, Tenn., News
July 6, 1933

6 Lynching Occurred During Past 6 Months

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and eleven in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were: rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two, and Texas, one.

Portsmouth, Va. Star
July 2, 1933

Six Lynchings In First Half Of '33

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 1—(AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while fifteen were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Lynchings were prevented by officers in fourteen cases during the first half of this year, three in the north and eleven in the south, through removal of prisoners, use of force or increases in the number of guards.

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2 and Texas 1, the institute reported.

Kingstree, S. C., Record
July 6, 1933

Lynchings for First Half Year.

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchings; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 30 1933

LYNCHINGS IN 1933

To the Editor of The Republican:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number, five, for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers: thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were: Rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

R. R. MOTON, Principal.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., June 28. 1933.

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL

JUL 1 1933

SIX MONTHS' LYNCHING RECORD.

To the Editor of The Courier-Journal.

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

R. R. MOTON,
Principal Tuskegee Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
RECORD

JUL 2 1933

6 LYNCHINGS IN U. S. SO FAR THIS YEAR

There were six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of this year, according to a report compiled at Tuskegee Institute, in Alabama.

That is one more than for the first six months of 1932.

During the first six months of 1933 officers prevented 14 lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four Negroes. The lynchings occurred in Georgia, Louisiana, Tennessee and Texas.

---

6 PERSONS

St. Louis Argus

LYNCHED

St. Louis Mo.

1ST HALF

6-30-33

OF 1933

Number Shows Increase Of One Over The Same Period Last Year. Four Victims Are Negroes

TUSKEGEE, Ala., June 28 — According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first months of the year.

Prevent 14 Lynchings

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

BOSTON, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT

JUL 3 1933

LYNCHINGS OF 1933

To the Editor of the Transcript:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern States and eleven in Southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape one, murder four, charge not reported, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia one, Louisiana two, Tennesee two, Texas one.

R. R. Moton, Principal
Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, June 28

LYNCH RECORD

Black Dispatch
Okla. City, Okla.

TUSKEGEE, July 6—(ANP)—Dr. R. R. Moton made public July 1 the record [illegible] lynchings for the first six months of 1933 as compiled by the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Institute. There were according to these records, compiled carefully and painstakingly by Dr. Monroe N. Work six lynchings in the first six months. [illegible] number is one more than occurred during the same period in 1932 when there were 5.

The states which are on the lynching black list according to these records are Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The report pointed to the fact that there was a growing tendency on the part of law enforcing officers to prevent lynchings. Three northern and 11 southern instances were given where the alertness and bravery of police forces prevented lynchings.

Atlanta, Ga. Journal
July 1, 1933

6 Lynchings Shown For First 6 Months Of the Present Year

TUSKEGEE., Ala., July 1.—(AP)—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while fifteen were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Lynchings were prevented by officers in fourteen cases during the first half of this year, three in the north and eleven in the south, through removal of prisoners, use of force or increases in the size of guards.

Two of the persons lynched were white and four negroes. Offenses charges were: Rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2, and Texas, 1, the institute reported.

Albany-Decatur, Ala. Daily
July 3, 1933

States Is Free of Lynchings In 1933

Not a single lynching occurred in Alabama during the first six months of 1933, according to the figures tabulated by R. R. Walton, principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Only six lynchings occurred in the whole nation, being divided as follows: Georgia 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee 2 and Texas 1.

During this period there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, and of this number three were in northern states and 11 in southern states.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negroes, the offenses charged were rape, one; murder four, and not reported, one.

Tampa, Fla. Times
July 1, 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

R. R. Morton, principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute—the Booker Washington school—reports that according to the records compiled at the institute there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This is one more than for the first six months of 1932, when there were five. Ten years ago, in 1923, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

According to Principal Morton, during the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and eleven in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the other five instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Despite the fact that there was one more lynching in the first half of this year than in the similar period of last year anti-lynching sentiment seems to be making progress. This is indicated when the period's total of six lynchings is compared with the fifteen during the first six months of 1923 and is emphasized by the fact that law officers succeeded in repelling attempts at seventeen lynchings. This is the most hopeful feature of the situation. Such conduct upon the part of the officials will go far toward abolishing lynching.

It is useless to say that lynchings only serve to make bad matters worse; or that one of them does greater violence to the best interests of law and order than the crime for which it is indulged; or that there is never real justification for lynching. Probably the time will never come when there will be no lynchings, but we seem to be making gratifying progress in decreasing the number of them.

Lynchings-1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June.

4482

FORT DODGE, IA.
MESSENGER & CHRONICLE
JUL 1 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD

The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, of Alabama, an institution for the training of colored young men and women, regularly makes a report on the number of lynchings taking place, no doubt on the theory, which is sound, that the more publicity given on lynching, the less there will be of it. The matter is of particular concern to the colored people inasmuch as most lynchings take place in the south and as a rule a majority of the victims are colored.

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Lousiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
Herald
JUL 5 1933

Six ~~Lynchings in Six~~ Months of 1933

Editor of The Herald: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923—that is, 10 years ago—there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 3; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

R. R. MORTON,
Principal, Tuskegee Intsitute.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
RECORD
JUL 1 1933

Figures On Lynchings.

There were six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of this year. This number is one more than the number, five, for the first six months of last year. However, a decade ago, in 1923, the number of persons lynched in the first six months of the year was 15. These and other statistics on lynchings are supplied by R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee, Ala., and are compiled from records gathered by Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research.

This country is progressing, though slowly, in the matter of stamping out mob crimes. It is both gratifying and significant to note from the Tuskegee records that during the first half of this year there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in the north and 11 were in the south. "In nine of the instances," the records show, "the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. . . . Of the persons lynched, two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were: rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one. . . . The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one."

It is with deep gratification and keen pleasure that we note North Carolina is not on the roster of states in which lynchings have occurred this year.

Abbeville, Ala., Herald
July 6, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, it was found that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape. 1; murder, 4; charge not reported 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

Albertville, Ala., Banner
July 6, 1933

The Lynching Record for the First Six Months of 1933

The following is information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instantes the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. .The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder. 4; charge not reported, 1.

The State in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as folows; Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Six Lynched in U.S. First Half 1933

Six people were lynched in the good old U. S. A. during the first six months of this year, a report from the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Institute under date of July 1, informs the world.

This number is one more than the number (5) for the first six months of 1932. Ten years ago during a similar period 15 persons suffered death by lynching.

During the year's first half 14 persons were saved by officers of the law from lynchings. Of these 3 instances were in northern and 11 in southern states.

Two of the persons were white. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number of lynchings in each are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; and Texas, 1.

7-1-33

RECORDS REVEAL SIX LYNCHINGS IN 6 MONTHS' TIME

Constitution 7-1-33 Atlanta, Ga.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., June 30.—(AP) R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

Officers prevented lynching in 14 cases during the first half of 1933. Three northern officers and 11 southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number follows:

Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Lynch 6 in Half 1933

4 COLORED & 2 WHITES—ONE MORE HORROR RECORD THAN IN 1ST 6 MONTHS OF 1932

The Guardian 7-1-33 Boston, Mass.

Tuskegee, Alabama, July 1, 1933—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1932, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Colored, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 Colored. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred are: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Wadesboro, N. C. Messenger
July 6, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS IN SIX MONTHS.

Tuskegee, Ala., June 29. — According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number, five, for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, three were in northen state and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented; in the five other instances, force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, two were white and four were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder 4; charge not reported, one,

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state as as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2: Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Beaufort, N. C., News
July 6, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS 1933

Editor of The News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons ynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the lay prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4 charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number of each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Very truly yours,
R. R. MOTON,
Principal.
Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.

Anderson, S. C. Independent
July 12, 1933

LYNCHINGS

Although there was one more lynching in the United States in the first six months of this year than in the same period last year, the situation with respect to mob law has some encouraging features.

The total of six this year is nine less than the total 10 years ago, according to figures compiled by Tuskeegee institute. This represents a distinct advance for the cause of justice as opposed to mob law.

That part of the report showing the prevention by the constituted authorities of 14 lynchings involving 17 persons is another feature of the report that deserves special attention. It shows that the officiers not only had the proper understanding of their duties but that they were diligent in performing them.

The fact that lynching has not kept proportunate pace with other forms of major law violations seems to indicate that the war on this crime is making gratifying progress. No let-up in the drive should be permitted.

There is no proper place in a civilized land for mob action. A spotless record is the objective to be sought. Even if this is never attained, the work in its behalf will have yielded highly creditable results.

Centreville, Ala., Press
July 6, 1933

HALF DOZEN LYNCHINGS FOR SIX MONTHS BARED

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 1.—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school showed the number one more than for the same period of last year while 15 were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Lynchings were prevented by officers in 14 cases during the first half of this year, three in the north and 11 in the south, through removal of prisoners, use of force or increases in the number of guards.

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1. By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2 and Texas 1. the Institute reported.

Abbeville, Ga., Chronicle
July 6, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynching. Of these 3 were in Northern States, and 11 in Southern States. In 10 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, 2 were white and 4 Negro. The offense charged were rape 1; murder, 4; charge not reported 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana 2,; Tennessee 2; Texas 1.

Marion, Ala., Standard
July 6, 1933

Six Lynchings For Six Months Bared

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 6—Six persons were reported lynched in the United States during the first six months of the year in a survey released by R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute.

Moton said figures compiled by the school had shown the number one more than for the same period of last year while 15 were lynched during the time ten years ago.

Lynchings were prevented by officers in 14 cases during the first half of this year, three in the north and 11 in the south, through removal of prisoners, use of force on increases in the number of guards

Two of the persons lynched were whites and four negroes. Offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1; By states the lynchings were listed as Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2 and Texas 1, the Institute reported.

Paris, Ky. News
July 4, 1933

LYNCHING RECORDS

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings Of these three were in the northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the other five instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, 4; charge not reported, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two: Tennessee, two: Texas, one.

Camden, S. C., Messenger
July 5, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

The following information as to lynchings has been furnished us by R. R. Moton, Principal of Tuskegee Institute:

"According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923 that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder 4; charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1."

Opp, Ala., News
July 6, 1933

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1933

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1933 that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Lynchings-1933
3
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June.

4483

SIX LYNCHED DURING FIRST HALF OF YEAR

Kansas City Call
7-7-33
Kansas City, Mo.

Four Negroes, Two Whites Are Victims, Tuskegee Records Show

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE.—Six lynchings occurred during the first six months of 1933, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research at Tuskegee institute.

This number is one more than the number five for the first half of 1932. In 1923, 10 years ago, 15 persons were lynched in the first six months.

The states which have staged lynchings in 1933 and the number in each state are Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two and Texas, one.

Of the persons lynched, two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states.

In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and eleven Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

RECORDS REVEAL SIX LYNCHED DURING '33

New York

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., July 3.—The department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute reported Saturday that there were six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the record for the first half of 1932.

In 1923 there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months. This year two whites and four Negroes were the victims of mobs. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; and charge not reported, 1.

Six Lynchings For Year Are Reported

~~Montgomery~~ Advertiser
Montgomery Ala.

TUSKEGEE, ALA., June 30.—(AP)—R. R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, said today records compiled by his school show six persons were lynched in the United States during the first six months of this year.

This number is one more than the number lynched during the same period last year. Ten years ago, 15 persons were lynched during the first six months of 1923.

7-1-33

Officers prevented lynchings in 14 cases during the first half of 1933. Three Northern officers and 11 Southern officers protected their prisoners from mobs. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or guards augmented, in five other instances force was used to repel mobs. Seventeen persons—six whites and 11 negroes—were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Two of the six persons lynched were whites. The offenses charged were criminal assault 1, murder 4, charge not reported 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number follow:

Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1.

LYNCHINGS IN 1933.

Springfield Daily Republican

To the Editor of The Republican:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number, five, for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is 10 years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

Springfield Mass.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus, a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

6-30-33

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were: Rape, one; murder, four; charge not reported, one. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

R. R. MOTON, Principal.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., June 28. 1933.

The Lynching Record For The First Six Months of 1933

The Palmetto Leader
Columbia S. C.

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the last six months of 1932. In 1932, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

7-8-33

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

FIGURES ON LYNCHINGS

Editor, The Advertiser:

Montgomery Advertiser
6-30-33
Montgomery Ala.

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, I find that there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in northern States and 11 in southern States. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

Tuskegee, Ala. R. R. MOTON.

Jan. — June

4484

Lynchings - 1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

SALEM, ORE.
CAPITAL JOURNAL

JUL 3 1933

The Lynching Record

According to figures compiled by the Tuskegee Institute for the training of colored youth, there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933, one more than in the same period a year ago. Ten years ago, there were fifteen persons victims of mobs in the corresponding period—showing the gradual reduction in lynchings.

Another encouraging feature is the increase in the frustration of lynching by peace officers. In the first six months of 1933, seventeen persons, six whites and eleven negroes were saved from death at the hands of mobs, mostly in southern states. In nine of the instances, prisoners were removed or the guards augmented. In the other cases force was used to repel the would-be lynchers.

Of the persons lynched, two were white, four negro. The offenses charged were rape, one, murder four, one unreported. The lynchings all occurred in the south, one in Georgia, two in Louisiana, two in Tennessee, one in Texas.

Lynching is resorted to in the south, not only to wreck vengeance but to terrorize and restrain the lawless element in the negro population, though there is no evidence to show the desired result has been achieved. The assumption that the majority of lynchings, particularly of negroes, is for the crime of rape, is without foundation in fact, for during the present century less than 25 percent of the negroes lynched have been accused of that crime.

Stringent legislation in many of the states and increased vigilance on the part of officials is curbing lynching throughout the land. From 1885 to 1930, there were 4,308 lynchings reported an annual average of 95, 85 percent of them in the south. The number has decreased annually. The low was reached in 1929 with but ten reported.

Wrightsville, Ga., Headlight
July 6, 1933

Lynching in Georgia Reported by Tuskegee

Georgia was one of four states in which six persons were lynched the first six months of this year, Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., has reported. Louisiana and Tennesse had two lynchings each, while Texas and Georgia had one each.

In the first six months of last year, five persons fell victims to mob law, while in 1923 there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of that year.

Officers of the law prevented 14 lynchings this year, the institute reported, of which three were in northern states and eleven in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or guards augmented; in the other 5 force was used to repel the mobs The number of persons involved numbered 17, of which six were whites and eleven negroes, it was stated.

ATHENS, GA.
BANNER HERALD

JUL 4 1933

SLIGHT INCREASE IN LYNCHINGS

The period of the first six months of this year shows a slight increase in the number of lynchings over the same period for 1932. These reports are compiled by the Tuskegee school, under the supervision of the principal, R. R. Moton, who is a leader of his race, and one who has contributed and accomplished much for the benefit of the negroes.

In making up his report and announcing his findings, Principal Moton, said:

"According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, I find that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for this first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

"During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons; 6 whites and 11 negroes were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses were rape, 1; murder 4; charge not reported, 1.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state, are as follows: Georgia, 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1."

Last year, for the first six months, only five lynchings occurred, while this year there were six lynchings, but back in 1923 a decade ago, there were fifteen lynchings for the sameperiod of time. However, the report shows a most stable and sound condition among the people of this country. Only occasionally, in recent years, has lynchings occurred. Our people are growing more sober minded and law abiding, and only in extreme cases of crime do they resort to such methods of dispensing what they believe to be justice in cases of rape. So long as that crime is committed, lynchings will be hard to obliterate from the calendar of crime, and in these days, rape is about the only crime that causes the people to forget legally constituted authorities and courts and take the punishment for the crime into their own hands to be administered.

Dalton, Ga., N. Ga. Citizen
July 13, 1933

Dr. R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee, reports that there were six lynchings during the six months of this year, one in Georgia; two in Louisiana; two in Tennessee, and one in Texas. The average is one a month too high.

Lafayette, Ala., Sun
July 12, 1933

Records On Lynchings For First Half of 1933

Tuskegee, Ala.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research there were six lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number five for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is, ten years ago, there were fifteen persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were fourteen instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in Northern states and eleven in Southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the five other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Thus a total of seventeen persons, six whites and eleven negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2, Texas, 1.

Millen, Ga., News
July 13, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD FOR SIX MONTHS

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee 3; Texas, 1.

Hazard, Ky. Herald
July 6, 1933

LYNCHING RECORDS

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these three were in the northern states and 11 in southern states. In nine of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the other five instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchings; thus a total of 17 persons, six whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched two were white and four were negro. The offenses charged were rape, one; murder, 4; charge not reported, one.

The state in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, one; Louisiana, two; Tennessee, two; Texas, one.

Pennington Gap, Va., News
July 6, 1933

Lynching Record Six Months of 1933

There were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is one more than the number 5 for the first 6 months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to rebel tbe would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negros. The offenses charged were: rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number iu each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Elberton, Ga., Star
July 11, 1933

LYNCHINGS

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynchings two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee, two each; Georgia and Texas, one each.

We know of one lynching that was prevented in Georgia in May, 1931. The accused negro was given prompt trial and sentenced to die in the electric chair a few weeks later. Then shyster lawyers stepped in with the result that after numerous hearings and two regular court trials, the negro is still in jail and another hearing set for an early date.

Lynchings can and should be prevented, but the mob will never be stopped until it is certain that there will be prompt trial of the accused and speedy enforcement of the verdict of the court.

Blakeley, Ga.. News
July 13, 1933

Statistics Given On Lynchings First Six Months of 1933

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of records and Research there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1933. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers, thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched, 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were: rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Asheville, N. C., Advocate
July 14, 1933

Six Lynched By Mobs This Year, Reports Reveal

Tuskegee, Ala.—There were six lynchings in the United States during first six months of 1933 according to records compiled by the Tuskegee Institute.

This is one more than the number, 5, lynched during the first six months of 1932. Ten years ago, in 1923, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of that year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Waycross, Ga., Georgian
July 7, 1933

Lynching Record For First 6 Mos.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in Southern States. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would-be-lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were Negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charges not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Jan. – June.

4485

Lynchings - 1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

Florala, Ala., News
July 13, 1933

LYNCHING RECORD

The following is the lynching record for the first six months of 1933:

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research it is seen that there were 6 lynchings in the first six months of 1933. This number is 1 more than the number 5 for the first 6 months of 1932. In 1923, that is ten years ago, there were 15 persons lynched in the first six months of the year.

During the first six months of 1933 there were 14 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these 3 were in Northern States and 11 in southern states. In 9 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented; in the 5 other instances force was used to repel the would be lynchers; thus a total of 17 persons, 6 whites and 11 negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape, 1; murder, 4; charge not reported, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Reidsville, N. C. Review
July 14, 1933

Tuskegee Institute reports six lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1933, or one more than the number reported for the corresponding period last year. Of those lynched two were white and four were negroes, from the following states: Louisiana and Tennessee two each, While this was six lynchings too many, the record shows great improvement since the year 1892, when no less than 255 persons were lynched in the United States, 100 of them being white.

McMinnville, Tenn. Standard
July 13, 1933

SIX LYNCHINGS IN SOUTHERN STATES

For the first six months, ending June 30, of this year there were six lynchings in the United States. Two of this number were white people and four Negroes. All of the lynchings were in Southern States—Georgia 1, Louisiana 2, Tennessee 2, Texas 1.

Winder, Ga., News
July 13, 1933

Lynchings For The First Six Months of This Year

The lynching record for the first six months of 1933 is as follows: There were 6 lynchings for this period. This is one more than for the same period in 1932. During this period there were 14 instances in which lynchings were prevented by officers of the law. Of these 3 were in northern states and 11 in Southern states. Of the persons lynched 2 were white and 4 were negro. The offenses charged were rape 1; murder 4; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Georgia 1; Louisiana, 2; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 1.

Lynchings-1933
Reports on Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

3897

Abbeville, Ala., Herald
January 4, 1934

LYNCHINGS IN UNITED STATES INCREASE 20

The following is taken from a letter written The Herald regarding lynchings. The letter is in the form of a report written by R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee Institute:

"I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

"There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2."

Winder, Ga., News
January 4, 1934

Lynchings for Year '33

There were 28 persons lynched in the United States in 1933, according to figures sent out by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute. Of the number lynched 4 were white and 24 colored. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama 3; California 2; Georgia 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; Tennessee 3; Texas 2.

Cookeville, Tenn. Herald
January 4, 1934

Negro School Head Reviews Lynchings

Robert R. Moton, president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, at Tuskegee, Ala., has sent the following information regarding lynchings in 1933:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskogee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed forces were used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempting rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred, and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee. 3: and Texas, 2.

Morristown, Tenn., Gazette
January 6, 1934

In line with the general upward trend, the lynching business reported a substantial increase in 1933. Twenty-eight persons were served during the year, an increase of twenty over 1932.

Harriman, Tenn. Record
January 4, 1934

Records Show 28 Persons Lynched During Year 1933

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Clanton, Ala., Banner
January 4, 1934

LYNCHINGS IN 1933

It is found, according to the recgee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.—R. R. Watson.

Ashland, Ala. Progress
January 4, 1934

Number Of Lynchings Greatly Increased In '33

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec 31—According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynching. 6 of these were in Nothern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were. murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occured and the number in each State are as follows. Alabama, 3; California, 2 Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri, 1; North Ca
South Carolina, 4; Te
3; and Texas, 2.

Carrollton, Ga., Times
December 28, 1933

TWENTY-EIGHT PERSONS LYNCHED THIS YEAR

RECORDS SHOW AN INCREASE OF 20 LYNCHINGS OVER LAST YEAR.

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law oustide of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2

Evergreen, Ala., Courant
January 4, 1934

Lynchings On Increase According To Report

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched where in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons. 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1 kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2.

BOSTON, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
JAN 4 1934

LYNCHINGS IN 1933

To the Editor of the Transcript:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931 and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3 striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

R. R. MOTON, President.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Dec. 31.

CAMDEN, N. J.
COURIER
DEC 3 0 1933

* *

Lynching Satisfies

To the Editor:

Sir—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933:

I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number (8) for 1932; 15 more than the number (13) for 1931; and 7 more than the number (21) for 1930.

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers.

A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were; murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

R. R. MOTON
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST STANDARD
JAN 1 1934

The Year's Lynchings

To the Editor of The Post-Standard:

I send you the following information concerning lynching for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number eight for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening men, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two.

R. R. MOTON.
President Tuskegee (Ala.) Normal and Industrial Institute.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.
GAZETTE
JAN 4 1934

LYNCHINGS

Robert R. Moton, president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute—the school Booker T. Washington founded for the training of colored men and women— finds that in 1933 twenty-eight persons were lynched. In 1932 eight were lynched, in 1931. thirteen, and in 1930, twenty. Fourteen of the persons lynched in 1933 were in the hands of the law. Nine were taken from jail and five from officers who had not yet jailed them. The bodies of two were burned. Officers prevented 37 attempts at lynchings. Thirty-one of these were in the south. In the attempted lynchings, forty-eight persons accused of crimes were involved—eleven white and thirty-seven Negro. Either personal efforts or assistance, in some instances of national guardsmen, prevented their hanging. Twenty-four persons lynched were Negroes, leaving four whites. The offenses charged were, murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting woman, one; threatening men, one. The states involved were, Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two. This table shows that lynching presents the greatest problem in the south. The most notable exception was in California, where two alleged kidnappers were taken from jail and hanged. That was the occasion when Governor Rolph approved the mob's act and declared he would pardon any member of the mob that happened to be arrested and convicted. The Maryland lynching attracted widespread attention and the Governor is still trying to bring members of the mob to justice.

COLUMBUS, O.
OHIO STATE JOURNAL
JAN 1 1934

The Lynching Record.

Editor Ohio State Journal:

I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number eight for 1932, 15 more than the number 13 for 1931 and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2: Georgia, 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.

R. R. WATSON.
Tuskegee Institute,

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.—Dec.

3898

Orangeburg, S.C., News
Jan. 4, 1934

Lynching Record
For the Year 1933

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southen States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported,, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Huntsville, Ala., Builder
January 5, 1934

Lynchings Increase During Year 1933

28 Persons Lynched; Increase of 20 Over Previous Year

As per data kept each year by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute for negroes at Tuskegee the following communication furnished every paper in the state each year shows that the unlawful lynchings in 1933 were almost four times as many as was the case in 1933. There having been 8 in 1932 and 28 in 1933.

Information as sent out by the Institute is as follows:

Dear Sir:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repell the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
R. R. MOTON
President

Alexander City, Ala., Outlook
January 4, 1934

OUR LYNCHING RECORD.

Startling and disturbing is the big increase in the number of lynchings which occured during the year 1933, manifesting a dangerous and rebellious state of mind of the people against law and order, showing a state of unrest that has flared to fiercer flames than for many years. Does this forecast a new order of society?

This sharp increase in lynchings in the last year over the previous year is reported by Tuskegee Institute, the number of violent mob deaths rising from 8 in 1932 to 28 in 1933. This is 15 more than the number of lynchings in 1931 and 7 more than in 1930.

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, and were seized from officers and done to death by the lynchers; nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside the jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned, a medieval and fiendish manifestation of delight in destruction of human life, by men who set themselves up as judges of their fellow men, in direct violation of the teachings of Jesus as well as open defiance of the laws of the land.

Officers of the law prevented lynchings in 37 other attempts to seize accused men, according to records kept by the Department of Records and Research at Tuskegee, of which 31 preventions were in Southern states. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negroes, were thus saved from summary execution.

There were four white prisoners and 24 Negro prisoners executed by mobs. The offenses on which the accused men, thus savagely killed without opportunity of showing they were innocent, were accused of the following offense; Murder, 8; rape. 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening, 1.

Thus in a dozen cases men were killed for offenses which were not capital offenses, and in three of these no charges were reported. This waste of human life in a rebellious and lawless manner must be stopped, or the democracy and society which we now enjoy will suffer shame, degradation and decline in bloody violence.

The states of Georgia, Louisiana and South Carolina led in number of lynchings with 4 each; there were three mob deaths in Alabama, Mississippi, and Tennessee, Texas and California reported 2 each, and one each occurred in North Carolina, Missiouri, and Maryland.

The fact that lynchings occurred throughout the country does not excuse the South. Lynching must be stopped, as recently declared by President Roosevelt. The President's declaration will no doubt check it.

Kingstree, S. C., Record
January 4, 1934

28 Persons Lynched in 1933.

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offences charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Savannah, Ga. Press
December 28, 1933

MOTON'S FIGURES LYNCHINGS RECORDS

THERE WERE 28 VICTIMS OF MOBS DURING THE PAST YEAR

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—Dr. R. R. Moton, president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, has prepared his annual figures on lynchings for the past year.

Dr. Moton finds, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Insttiute, that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number eight for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these six were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were negroes. The offenses chargedk were: Murder, 8; assault, 3; attempted assault, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4: Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.

Jackson, Ga., Progress-Argus
January 5, 1934

The lynching record for 1933 was not an enviable one. Tuskegee Instituto compiles the rocords on the number of lynchings and the figures show that there were 28 lynchings the past year—20 more than for 1932. It would be a desirable thing if lynching could be wiped out altogether, but until the crimes that cause lynchings are stopped there is not much likelihood of these lawless cutbreaks being curbed.

Jackson, Ga., Progress-Argus
January 5, 1934

TWENTY-EIGHT PERSONS LYNCHED DURING 1933

INCREASE OF 20 OVER THE PREVIOUS YEAR, ACCORDING TO RECORDS COMPILED AT TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3, attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; eGorgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Murfreesboro, Tenn.
Courier
Jan. 5, 1934

28 LYNCHINGS DURING PAST YEAR

Tennessee Saw Three Cases Of Mob Violence, Records Show.

A letter from R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee Institute, colored, in Alabama, brings the following statistics on lynchings during the past year of 1933:

According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 18 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; insulting women 1; threatening men, 1.

The steates in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

WORCESTER, MASS.
POST
JAN 1 1934

LYNCHINGS IN 1933

Editor of the Evening Post:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number eight for 1932, 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, eight; assault, three; attempted assault, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting woman, one; threatening man, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as folllows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana four; Maryland, one; Mississippi three; Missouri, one; North Carolina one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee three, and Texas, two.

Yours very truly,
R. R. MOTON, President,
Tuskegee Institute.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE
JAN 2 1934

Lynching Facts Given By Tuskegee Principal

Editor Democrat and Chronicle:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law precented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 43 persons, 11 white and 27 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were Negroe. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1 slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occured and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2, Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Missisipspi, 3; Missouri, 1 North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennesee, 3; and Texas, 2.

R. R. MOTON,
President.
Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

COMMERCE, TEX.
JOURNAL
DEC 29 1933

Lynchings in 1933 Show Big Increase Over Other Years

Records Compiled at Tuskegee Institute Reveal Largest Number of Last Three Years.

According to records compiled at the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, school for Negroes founded by Booker T. Washington, and released by R. R. Moton, president, twenty-eight persons were lynched during 1933. This is twenty more than the number eight for 1932; fifteen more than the number thirteen for 1931; and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were thirty-seven instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and thirty-one in Southern States. In twenty-four of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the thirteen other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of forty-eight persons, eleven white and thirty-seven Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty-eight persons lynched, four were white and twenty-four were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnapping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening men, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three; and Texas, two.

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

4451

Robesonian
Lumberton, N.C.
JAN 1 1934

LYNCHING RECORD

A low or high lynching record for a year does not seem to indicate any particular trend. A high record for one year may be followed by a low, and vice versa. In 1932, only 8 persons were lynched, while last year the number was 28—20 more than in 1932, 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, 31 were in Southern states. North Carolina's record, which had been clean in this respect for several years, was marred by one lynching.

These figures and the further information given below were supplied from records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee (Ala.) institute by the president, Robert R. Moton:

Fourteen of the persons lynched (in 1933) were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1 ; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi. 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

BURLINGTON, IA.
HAWK-EYE
JAN 2 1934

LYNCHINGS.

At the close of each year, the department of research of Tuskegee Institute, famed school for colored people in Alabama, issues a statement of lynchings that have occurred in the United States during the 12 months period. The statement for 1933 deserves careful study. It follows in full:

There were 28 persons lynched in 1933.

This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930.

Fourteen of the persons lynched where in the hands of the law; 9 kere taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negros, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1 kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Such an appalling increase in the cases of mob violence should shock the entire citizenship and result in increased activities to put a stop to this national disgrace. The alarming increase is, of course, due very largely to the unrest of the times and the attitude taken by such men as Governor Rolph of California. The governor's approval of the cowardly California lynching came tco late in the year to greatly affect the total number of cases, although two followed close upon the California affair. But, unless examples are made by legally punishing mob leaders promptly, all may well fear what 1934 may bring forth. The mob spirit is abroad. It becomes the duty of every good citizen, as well as every official, to do his utmost to curb it and restore the rule of law and order.

TUCSON, ARIZ.
STAR
JAN 2 1934

Lynchings Gaining

Whether Governor Rolph's condoning of lynching has anything to do with it or not never can be proved, but a statement by Major R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee institute, regarding the number of lynchings in the past year carries some startling information. Tuskegee has tabulated statistics on this subject for many years. Major Moton's report shows that whereas there were only eight lynchings in the whole United States in 1932, the number more than tripled in 1933, reaching a total of 28. Of this number, four were white, including the two California kidnapers. This was the only lynching outside the south.

But there is a hopeful sign. There were 37 unsuccessful attempts made and frustrated by officers of the law and 31 of these were in the south. In the 37 cases, a total of 48 lives were at stake, including 11 whites.

DAVENPORT, IA.
TIMES
JAN 2 1934

LYNCHINGS INCREASE

Robert R. Moton, president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute—the school Booker T. Washington founded for the training of colored men and women—finds that in 1933 twenty-eight persons were lynched. In 1932 eight were lynched, in 1931, thirteen, and in 1930, twenty. Fourteen of the persons lynched in 1933 were in the hands of the law. Nine were taken from jails and five from officers who had not yet jailed them. The bodies of two were burned. Officers prevented thirty-seven attempts at lynchings. Thirty-one of these were in the south. In the attempted lynchings, forty-eight persons accused of crimes were involved—eleven white and thirty-seven Negro. Either personal efforts or assistance, in some instances of national guardsmen, prevented their hanging. Twenty-four persons lynched were Negroes. leaving four whites. The offenses charged were, murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor one; insulting woman, one; threatening men, one The states involved were, Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two. This table shows that lynching presents the greatest problem in the south. The most notable exception was in California, where two alleged kidnapers were taken from jail and hanged. That was the occasion when Governor Rolph approved the mob's act and declared he would pardon any member of the mob that happened to be arrested and convicted. The Maryland lynching attracted wide-spread attention and the governor is still trying to bring members of the mob to justice.

With the lynching during the past year more than three times as great as in the preceding year and widespread controversy occasioned by the action of Governor Rolph, the agitation in support of federal legislation against this form of mob violence will take on a vigor which may witness real progress in combatting one of the worst disgraces of our time. We cannot truly boast of being civilized as long as a record of barbarism, such as that which Dr. Moton presents annually, remains a blot and a stigma upon the nation's escutcheon.

CORRESPONDENCE

LYNCHING RECORD

Argus

Last Year 28 Persons Were Killed by Mobs

1-11-34

Editor of Camden Argus:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
R. R. MOTON, President,
Tuskegee Normal and
Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Dec. 31, 1933.

Camden Argus

Quincy, Fla., Times
January 11, 1934

TWENTY-EIGHT WERE LYNCHED IN 1933

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 2.

Roanoke, Ala., Leader
January 10, 1934

Record Of Lynchings In Year Just Closed

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Goergia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Marion, Ala., Standard
January 11, 1934

LYNCHINGS GAIN DURING YEAR

28 Victims In U. S., Gain Of 20 Over Previous Year, Report Shows

3 OCCURRED IN STATE

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Jan. 4—There were 28 persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over the previous year, said the annual survey of the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee

In making the survey public Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and 24 Negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation 1, no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1, and threatening men 1.

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow:

Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3 ,and Texas 2.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western states and 31 in southern states.

Columbia, S. C. State
December 30, 1931

TUSKEGEE LYNCHING SURVEY

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 29—(AP)—The lynching of 28 persons in the United States during 1933 was reported today in the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee institute. This total represented an increase of 20 over the previous year.

Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, in making public the results of the survey, said that 14 of those lynched were in custody of police officers, nine were seized from jails and five were taken from officers outside of jails. Four of the victims were white and 24 were Negroes. The bodies of two were burned.

In 37 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in the South.

The offenses charged against the persons lynched were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The number of lynchings by states follows: Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; South Carolina, 4; Alabama, 3; Mississippi, 3; Tennessee, 3; California, 2; Texas, 2; Maryland, 1 Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1.

Florence, S. C., News
January 21, 1934

1933 LYNCHINGS SHOW INCREASE

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Jan. 20.—(UP)—Twenty-eight persons were lynched during 1933, according to figures compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute.

This was an increase, the report said, of 20 over 1932, 15 more than 1931, and seven more than in 1930. On a percentage basis, this was an increase of 250 per cent over last year

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the custody of the law nine were taken from jails and from officers of the law outside of the jails, and the bodies of two of them were burned, the report continued.

Officers of the law prevented 37 lynchings. In 24 of these instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers.

The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state follow: Georgia, 4; Alabama, 3; California, 2; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1 Mississippi, 3; Missouri 1 North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; ~~and~~ Texas, 2

Jan. – Dec.

4452

Lynchings – 1933
Reports on, Sent Press

How Many Lynched in 1933?

Afro-American
1-6-34

Tuskegee's report on mob violence during 1933 was issued by Dr. R. R. Moton December 28. It shows 28 persons lynched during the year, and 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings.

The N.A.A.C.P. lynching report for the year also appeared this week, reporting likewise 28 instances of lynchings.

This is the first time these two organizations' statistics for the year have agreed. If this result has been attained either by greater care in compilation or by co-operation, then both organizations are to be commended. In past years their figures have been as wide apart as estimates of house painters.

Only the International Labor Defense, which reports over 40 lynchings, seems out of step.

The AFRO pointed out last year and does so again that there is no need for this divergence of lynching statistics, and that each of the three agencies should exhaust its resources in getting all of the facts, instead of rushing into print with an incomplete and, therefore, inaccurate report.

LYNCHING RECORD FOR 1933

Afro-American
1-4-34

New York, Dec. 31.—In making public today its compilation of 28 known lynchings during the past year, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, through Walter White, its Secretary, called attention not only to the nearly 200 per cent rise in mob murder during 1933 from the total of 10 for 1932, but to the surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between officers and mobs.

In the double lynching at Tuscaloosa, Ala., on August 13, of two Negro youths, Dan Pippen and A. T. Hardin, while being taken from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham for safe keeping, the victims were taken by the mob without any apparent effort on the part of the officers to protect them. At Clinton, S. C., on July 4th, four white men experienced no difficulty in "spiriting" the victim from the jail. The same thing happened in the lynching on October 8 of Bennie Smith at Ninety Six, S. C., where an alleged lyncher when arrested claimed the chief of police left the jail open. There seems little doubt that the lynching of George Armwood at Princess Anne, Md., on October 18 was made possible by the local judge's assurance to Governor Albert C. Richie that Armwood would be in no danger if returned from Baltimore whence he had been taken. The double lynching at San Jose, Calif., of Thomas H Thurmond and John Holmes (both white) on November 26 was unquestionably made possible by the studied failure of Governor James H. Rolph, Jr., to send the National Guard as requested by the sheriff.

"In this instance, and for the first time in recent history," Mr. White said, "the governor of an American State actually condoned lynching and promised to pardon any lynchers convicted of the crime."

In this collusion of law officers and mobs, the Association's Secretary sees an ominous tendency likely to grow to threatening proportions unless curbed by drastic legislative action.

The lynching record by States for 1933 is topped by Alabama with five; followed by Georgia and Louisiana with four each; South Carolina and Tennessee with three apiece; California and Mississippi wtih two each, while Florida, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina and Texas each lynched one. Four of the mob victims were white, twenty four were Negroes.

The alleged offenses for which the victims were lynched are listed as murder (8), attack on white woman (3), attempted attack on white woman (2), insulting white woman (3), assault on white man (1), wounding white man (1), quarrel with white man (3), planning suit against white man (1), killing in search of another (1), stealing (1), offense unknown (4). Of the 28 recorded lynchings, the Association calls attention to the fact that rape, the alleged excuse for lynching, was charged only in three instances. At best, then, rape or attempted rape was charged in only five instances or about 18 per cent of the total lynchings. In the Cordie Cheek lynching on December 16 at Columbia, Tenn., the victim was mobbed despite failure of the grand jury to indict him for attempted assault.

Thirteen of the lynch victims were shot to death and two of the bodies burned; eight were hanged and two of their bodies burned; three were beaten to death; two were hanged and shot, one was beaten and shot, and one was beaten, shot and strangled.

A Federal anti lynch bill is to be introduced in Congress, by Senator Edward P. Costigan, of Colorado it has been announced.

Afro-American
1-4-34

Tuskegee Reports 28 Lynchings for Year of 1933

Bystander

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.,—Records on lynching compiled by the department of records and research of Tuskegee institute, released this week by President R. R. Moton, show that 28 persons, four whites and 24 Negroes, were lynched during the year 1933.

This is 20 more than the number eight recorded in 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931 and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three; and Texas, two.

Des Moines, Iowa
1-5-34

LISTS 47 LYNCHINGS IN '33

Forty-seven lynchings were reported in 1933, according to records kept by the International Labor Defense, it was announced Monday. The number reported for 1932 by the League of Struggle for Negro Rights was 37. Of the 47 victims, 42 were Negroes and five white men.

Lynchings occurred in 14 states, with Florida in the lead with eight, Georgia second with seven, Alabama third with six, Louisiana, South Carolina and Tennessee each recording five, Mississippi three, California two, and North Carolina, Maryland, Missouri, Texas, Michigan and Arkansas one each.

Tuskegee Counts 28 Mob Murders

Four Persons Lynched in Georgia During Past Year

Telegraph
Macon, Ga.
12-30-33

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 29 (AP)—There were 28 persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over the previous year, said the annual survey of the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute.

In making the survey public, today Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and 24 Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening men, one.

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western states and 31 in southern states.

NATION'S LYNCH TOLL SHOWS WIDE INCREASE

[illegible]
12-30-33

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 29.—(AP)—There were 28 persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over the previous year, said the annual survey of the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute.

In making the survey public today, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails, and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and 24 negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western states and 31 in southern states

TUSKEGEE SUBMITS LYNCHING FIGURES

Advertiser

28 Victims In U. S., Increase Of 20 Over Previous Year, Report Shows

12-30-33

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Dec. 29. — (AP) — There were 28 persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over the previous year, said the annual survey of the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Institute.

Montgomery, Ala.

In making the survey public today, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law ouside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and 24 negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1 and threatening men, 1.

The States and the number of lynchings in each follow:

Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western States and 31 in southern States.

1933 LYNCHINGS REACH TOTAL OF 28

Age

12-29-33

NEW YORK, Dec 28—With the lynching of Cord Cheek near Nashville, Tenn., last Friday, the total of mob slayings in the United States during 1933 mounted to twenty-eight according to records of the N. A. A. C. P. This compared with but ten last year and is the highest total since 1926, when thirty-four fell victims to lynchers.

The records, which extend back to 1889, show that 3,686 persons have been lynched since that year. The highest number for any one year was 226 in 1892. The lowest total was in 1932 and the increase this year sends the curve upward again.

The 1933 figures, by States, were given as follows: Alabama, 5; Florida, 1; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 2; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 1; California 2, Missouri, 1. All were Negroes, except two in Tennesse and two in California.

---

28 Lynched Last Year In U. S., Says Tuskegee Report

News

TUSKEGEE—(AP)—There were 28 persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over the previous year, said the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute.

12-30-33

In making the survey public Friday, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Birmingham, Ala.

Of the number lynched, four were white and 24 Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder 8, rape 3, attempted rape 3, wounding persons 3, altercation 1, no offense reported 3, striking man 1, slapping youth 1, kidnaping 2, stealing liquor 1, insulting women 1, threatening men 1.

The state and the number of lynchings in each follow:

Alabama 3, California 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana 4, Maryland 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 3, and Texas 2.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states.

Alexandria, La. Weekly Town Talk
January 6, 1934

28 Lynched This Year, Increase of 20 Over Last Year

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 30.—(By A. P.)—There were 28 persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over the previous year, said the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute.

In making the survey public, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and 24 negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons 3; altercation 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow: Alabama 3; California 2; Georgia 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee 3, and Texas 2.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western states, and 31 in southern states.

Tupelo, Miss. Journal
January 5, 1934

Twenty-Four Negroes Are Lynched In United States During Last Year

According to records compiled with the coming of a new year, there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number for 1932; 15 more than the number for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930.

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law. 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were blacks. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1. kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1. North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2,

---

Crossville, Tenn. Chronicle
January 4, 1934

TWENTY-EIGHT PERSONS LYNCHED LAST YEAR

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute 28 persons were lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number of 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number of 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2.

Arcadia, La. Blenville Democrat
January 4, 1934

LYNCHINGS IN '33 INCREASE 250 PER CENT

FOUR WHITES AND 24 NEGROES DIE BY HANDS OF MOBS LAST YEAR

According to the records of the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, colored, at Tuskegee, ~~Alabama, lync~~hings in 1933 increased 250 per cent over the number for 1932. This school reports 28 lynchings in 1933, eight in 1932; 13 in 1931; 21 for 1930.

A release gives the following information:

" Nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

"There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings: Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, youth, one; kidnapping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, three; striking man, one; slapping one; threatening men, one.

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

4453

Dawson, Ga., News
January 4, 1934

LYNCHINGS WERE MORE THAN DOUBLED IN 1933

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE GIVES FIGURES ON MOB VIOLENCE DURING LAST YEAR.

According to information furnished by R. R. Morton, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, the records being compiled by the department of records and research of the school, there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 2.

Millen, Ga., News
January 4, 1934

LYNCHING RECOR

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there wer 28 prsons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13, for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Wstern States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealin liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; Californit, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2.

Yours very trcly,
R. R. MORTON.

Sanford, Fla. Herald
January 3, 1934

During the year just closed lynch law claimed the lives of twenty-eight persons, which is twenty more than the number in 1932, and fifteen more than in 1931. Lynching seemed for a time to be on the way out, to possible extinction. But the record of the past year would indicate that there is still much to be done before crime can be handled in a legitimate manner.

Homer, Ga., Journal
January 5, 1934

1933 Shows Largely Increased Lynchings

The following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933, is furnished by R. R. Moton, of Tuskogee Institute:

I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows; Alabama 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1, South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Elberton, Ga., Star
Janaury 2, 1934

1933 Shows Largely Increased Lynchings

The following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933, is furnished by R. R. Moton, of Tuskegee Institute:

I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in the Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Aiken, S. C. Journal & Review
January 3, 1934

Lynching Record of the Past Year

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931;and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 8 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails- the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 46 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows; Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2.

Chipley, Fla., Banner
January 4, 1934

Lynching Record Worst In Years

According to the compilation of Tuskeegee Institute the record of 1933 lynchings is 20 more than in 1932, 15 more than in 1931 and seven more than in 1930. During the year just closed mob law took 28 lives in the United States.

This record could have been much worse had not officers of the law prevented 37 other attempted lynchings last year. Six attempts were frustrated in the north and west, and 31 in the south.

The states in which lynchings occurred last year and the number in each are: Alabama 3; California 2; Georgia 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee 3, and Texas 2.

The only encouraging thing about all this is that officers of the law did their duty in more instances than they have failed.

This proves that lynch law can be curbed.

In 13 cases armed forces was used to prevent mob slaying. It is justified, not to protect the life of a criminal who deserves to die, but to protect and defend the constitution of the United States and the constitutions and laws of the several states.

The organized government we live under has cost much blood to establish. If it requires the spilling of more blood to preserve organized society, that is a smal price to pay.

If you want to strengthen false report about you, deny vigorously.

Blakeley, Ga., News
January 4, 1934

28

LYNCHINGS IN 1933 GREATER THAN IN SEVERAL YEARS

MOB LAW TAKES LIVES OF 28. MURDERERS HEAD THE LIST

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 38 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisioners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
MORNING PUBLIC LEDGER

JAN 1 1934

28 LYNCHINGS IN 1933

To the Editor of the Public Ledger:

Sir—I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were twenty-eight persons lynched in 1933. This is twenty more than the number for 1932, fifteen more than the number for 1931 and seven more than the number for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were thirty-seven instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and thirty-one in Southern States. In twenty-four of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the thirteen other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of forty-eight persons, eleven white and thirty-seven Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty-eight persons lynched, four were white and twenty-four were Negro. The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two.

R. R. MOTON.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., December 31, 1933.

KANSAS CITY, KANS.
KANSAN

DEC 30 1933

Lynchings in 1933

There were twenty-eight lynchings in 1933, records annually compiled by Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee Institute, show. Significant is the fact that of the number only four were white persons. Twenty-four were Negroes. And of the states where the mob violence occurred, all are in the south except California and Missouri.

The conclusion is plain. Racial prejudice in those sections where it is most pronounced is still the most common cause of mob violence. The list of crimes which the lynchings sought to avenge is also revealing. It has not always been revolting acts of murder or assault that have provoked outbreaks. Listed are such comparatively minor things as "stealing liquor," "slapping boy," "altercation," and "threatening men."

The disposition of men to take the law into their own hands probably is most frequently accounted for by blind passion for revenge. Distrust of the law's certainty may also be a factor. The two factors can be met only in the creation over a period of years of a fixed habit, individually and collectively, of letting the law take its course with the assurance that that course will be certain and just. In nations where there is such a fixed habit lynchings are rare and respect for the law is high.

Dade City, Fla., Banner
December 29, 1930

INCREASED PAST 3 YEARS

ACCORDING TO RECORDS AND RESEARCH OF THE TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 27, for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 or these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched. 4 were white and 24 negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION

DENISON, TEX.
HERALD

JAN 1 1934

LYNCHINGS DURING RECENT YEAR HAD SUBSTANTIAL GAIN

Lynchings occurring during 1933 soared well above figures for the preceding three years, according to records furnished by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, negro institution of Alabama.

Twenty-eight persons met death at hands of mobs during 1933, compared with 8 in 1932. This substantial increase registered for 1933 was at least partially due to the lynching wave that started with the mob execution of two white men, confessed kidnapers, in California.

Thirteen lynchings were reported in 1931 and 21 in 1930, according to Tuskegee Institute records. Of the 28 lynched in 1933, fourteen were in the hands of the law, nine being taken from jails and five from officers outside jails. The bodies of two victims were burned.

Officers prevented lynchings in thirty-seven instances, six in Northern and Western states, and thirty-one in Southern states. In twenty-four of these cases, lynchings were thwarted by removing prisoners from threatened jails or augmenting guards or through other precautions. Armed forces repelled the mobs in thirteen cases. Altogether the lives of forty-eight persons, eleven whites and thirty-seven negroes, thus were saved.

Of the twenty-eight lynched, four were whites and twenty-four negroes. Offenses charged included murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; spalling youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; and threatening men, 1.

Lynchings occurred by states as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Lynchings - 1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

4454

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
MORNING PUBLIC LEDGER

JAN 2 1934

THE LYNCHING RECORD

AS HAS been generally realized for some time past, the list of lynchings during 1933 in the United States was disgracefully long. The total number, as compiled by the Tuskegee Institute, was twenty-eight. This shameful record stands in striking contrast with those of the previous three years. In 1932 there were eight, in 1931 thirteen and in 1930 twenty-one.

A less discouraging aspect of this picture of mob murder lies in the thirty-seven instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. In thirteen of these cases armed forces were employed to protect prisoners from would-be lynchers. Forty-eight persons in all were thus saved from mobs.

Here is an indication that some public officials are courageous and firm enough to face their responsibilities. This attitude stands as a repudiation of the position taken by Governor Rolph, of California, who disgraced his post of public trust by approving the lynching of two men in that State.

AMBRIDGE, PA.
CITIZEN

DEC 29 1933

TOO MANY LYNCHINGS

According to the Tuskegee Institute 1933 saw an increase of 20 lynchings in the United States over 1932, 15 over 1931 and seven more than in 1930. The number of persons lynched in 1933 was 28.

Of this number lynched four were white and 24 negroes. All were below the Mason and Dixon line with the exception of two in California and one in Missouri.

General crime has been on the Carolina were tied for the doubtful honor of leading the nation with four lynchings each.

GGeneral crime has been on the increase in this country during 1933 and lynching more than kept pace with this growth, according to the figures just released.

A general overhauling of our legal practice in the handling of criminals is indicated as badly needed to prevent all crime and to increase public confidence in legal justice.

Lenoir, N. C. News-Topic
January 4, 1934

LYNCHINGS IN THE UNITED STATES INCREASE

According to the records compiled in the department of records an dresearch of the Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, ~~there~~ were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were negroes. The offenses charged were: murder 8, rape 3, attempted rape 3, wounding persons 3, altercation 1, no offense reported 3, striking man 1, slapping youth 1, kidnaping 2, stealing liquor 1, insulting woman 1, threatening men 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama 3, California 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana 4, Maryland 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 3, and Texas 2.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

DEC 30 1933

LYNCHING RECORD

The Year Now Closing Shows an Increase

To the Editor of The Courant:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses were murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

R. R. MOTON.

Tuskagee, Ala., Dec. 29, 1933.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
TIMES UNION

JAN 2 1934

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Tuskegee President Tells of Alarming Increase in 1933.

Editor, Brooklyn Times Union,

Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933: I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western States and 31 in southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; stabbing youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.

R. R. MOTON,
President, Tuskegee Norman
and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 31, 1933.

BOSTON, MASS.
POST

JAN 3 1934

STILL THE COLOR LINE

The record of lynchings for 1933 is not good; in fact, it has risen 200 per cent from the total of 10 the year previous. And still the color line prevails in the mob murders, showing that race hatred continues to rule; the San Jose lynching was the notable exception.

Of all the crowd violence toward prisoners or suspects, 24 cases were wreaked upon colored men and four upon whites. The Southern States led, as usual, California being the only exception.

Just what has caused this great increase in lynchings cannot be told. It was thought that the practice was gradually dying out. We were congratulating the country that sanity and respect for law was coming to be the accepted thing. And here comes this recrudescence of the old habit in the South to refute the theory. It is all very puzzling.

Ocilla, Ga., Star
December 28, 1933

ACCORDING to a report furnished by Tuskeegee Institute 28 persons were lynched in 1933 as against 8 the year before. This is a terrible indictment against the citizenship of the United States. Only four of the 28 victims were charged with rape, and three with attempted rape, crimes commonly thought of as justifying lynching. Society is not benefitted at all by having a bunch of lawless men take the enforcement of law into their own hands. Much better that the courts should handle these criminals in an orderly manner.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
POST GAZETTE

JAN 2 1934

A Serious Retrogression.

THE record of 28 persons lynched in the United States in 1933, an increase of 20 compared with that of 1932, commands the serious thought of the country. Comparison is not to be made with the more barbarous records of 40 or 50 years ago, but with those of the later period in which public opinion and regard for the orderly process of law made gains which led to the belief that the uncivilized practice could be eliminated.

What must be pondered is that the 1933 record of lynching is the third worst in ten years, topped in that period only by 1923, with 33, and 1926 with 30. A further disquieting feature is the comparative triviality of some of the causes given for the mob action, such as "altercation," stealing liquor, striking a man and slapping a youth.

Here is the more recent record: In addition to being 20 more than the eight lynchings of 1932, the record of 1933 was 15 more than the 13 for 1931 and seven more than the 21 for 1930. Most of those lynched in the past year were in the hands of the law, nine having been taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The lynchings were distributed among eleven states as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.

Against this record, however, there is an encouraging feature, showing that the fight against lynching is being kept up—demonstrating the sentiment that should be made to prevail in every part of the country. In 37 instances, officers of the law prevented lynchings, six of these in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern. In 24 of these instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In 13 other cases, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. As a result of this proper attitude and action on the part of authorities of the law, 48 persons were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

At the same time that lynching is condemned and mobs fought, it is recognized also that the law must look well to itself; to see that justice through orderly process is made both certain and swift. It is due the law to state that its action is being quickened and that it has accomplished some notable results in the past year against notorious criminals. The fight must be renewed uncompromisingly against lynching.

Memphis, Tenn., Com'rcial Appeal
January 1, 1934

The Lynching Record

Sad as is the nation's lynching record for 1933, sadder yet is the fact that the incompetent manner in which the processes of justice have been caused to function in many instances has been the real cause for the tremendous increase over 1932 when the lynching toll was eight.

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in 1933.

Fourteen of the lynching victims were in the hands of the law.

Nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside of jails.

Two of the victims were kidnapers. Eight were murderers and six were rapists or attempted rapists.

With the exception of three, all lynchings occurred in the south.

Against the record of successful mob justice is the record of 37 instances in which mobs were thwarted by officers. Six of these incidents occurred in northern states and 31 in the south. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

It is imperative that the work of educating against the danger and disgrace of mob justice continue, but more imperative is the need of a general awakening to the fact that there must be improvement in the legal processes of criminal justice to a point where speed and sureness will remove the tendency in the public mind to take matters into their own hands.

The extraordinary and unprecedented increase in crime in recent months cannot be disassociated from the lynching record. The latter is the inevitable result of the first.

Decent society predominates. It is anxious for its safety. It is satiated with the abuses of ruthless criminals. It would prefer that justice be administered in an orderly way. When the legal process fails it resorts to the less desirable method.

Dawson, Ga., News
January 4, 1934

MOBS TAKE HEAVY TOLL LYNCHINGS ON DECLINE

TOTAL OF 3,762 PERSONS HAVE BEEN LYNCHED SINCE 1889. VIOLENCE DECLINING.

A long trail of lynchings and bloody mob violence leads down through the years of the nation's history, thousands of persons in all parts of the country having met death at the hands of an infuriated populace.

Since 1889, when records of lynchings were first kept, 3,762 persons have been killed by mob violence. About 2,960 of these were negroes.

Although no figures are available, it is known that American lynching history was even darker before 1889. Outbreaks have declined markedly since the civil war.

Lynching on Decline.

Despite a widespread belief that 1933 may set a new record for the number of lynchings, figures show that it will not run far above the average. In 1889 there were 176 lynchings, while the ones this year total only 28. There were only eight in 1932. The 1930 and 1931 totals were 21 and 13, respectively.

Statements similar to that of Governor James Rolph, of California, promising protection to the San Joe lynchers, have been made by other state executives.

Cole Blease, when governor of South Carolina in 1911, said: "Whenever the constitution comes between men and the virtue of white women of South Carolina, I say to 'forget the constitution!'"

Despite a belief that negroes who attack white women are the most common mob victims, records show that since 1889 a total of 1,406 lynchings were for homicide and only 623 were for assault.

Ocala, Fla. Star
January 6, 1934

During the year 1933 there were 28 lynchings in this country, or 20 more than for the previous year and 15 more than in 1931. If this record means anything, it means that there was more crime (aside from lynchings) in this country than ever before and that an outraged citizenry had lost patience with the tedious processes of the courts. Lynchings can be prevented by improving the machinery for legal hangings.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA.
COURIER

JAN 2 1934

LYNCHING RECORD IN 1933.

The record of lynching in the United States during 1933, by which the number of persons thus summarily executed was increased from eight to 28, cannot be other than a grievous disappointment to those citizens who had hoped Americans had acquired a greater restraint upon the mob spirit which actuates them to taking the law in their own hands.

In statistics furnished The Courier by Robert R. Moton, president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute for the training of colored young men and women, he gives details covering the lynchings in the year just closed. There were 20 more lives thus taken than in 1932; 15 more than in 1931, and seven more than in 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of officers of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned after lynching.

Almost in every instance officers of the law sought to prevent lynchings and in 37 cases were successful in their efforts. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed, guard augmented or other precautions taken to thwart the intentions of the mobs formed for the purpose of lynching. In 13 cases the determination of sheriffs was backed up by a display of armed force which repelled the would-be lynchers.

Of the persons lynched four were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening men, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three and Texas, two.

The ghastly record of the year emphasizes the necessity for more rigid laws to prevent this crime and more severe punishment of those participating in its commission. America is presumed to have advanced too far in the scale of civilization to make it possible for mass citizenry to engage in the murder of persons who are charged with crimes for which the law does not in all instances impose capital punishment.

Lynchings - 1933
6
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. – Dec.

4455

Hendersonville, N. C. Times
January 1, 1934

LYNCHINGS IN U. S. INCREASE

Leap to 28 in 1933, Which Is 20 Above the 1932 Figure

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Jan. 1—According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautior taken. In the 13 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Nashville, Tenn. Tennessean
December 30, 1931

28 LYNCHINGS REPORTED IN U. S. DURING YEAR

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 30—(AP)—The lynching of 28 persons in the United States during 1933 was reported today in the annual survey of the department of record and research of Tuskegee Institute. This total represented an increase of 20 over the previous year.

Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, in making public the results of the survey said that 14 of those lynched were in custody of police officers, 9 were seized from jails and 5 were taken from officers outside of jails. Four of the victims were white and 24 negroes. The bodies of two were burned.

In 37 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in the South.

The offenses charged against the persons lynched were: Murder 8; rape 3; attempted rape 3; wounding persons 3; altercation 1; no offense reported 3; striking man 1; slapping youth 1; kidnaping 2; stealing liquor '; insulting women 1; threatening men 1.

The number of lynchings by states follows: Georgia 4; Louisiana 4; South Carolina 4; Alabama 3; Mississippi 3; Tennessee 3; California 2; Texas .; Maryland 1; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
TIMES
JAN 1 1934

1933 LYNCHING

To the Editor:

Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930; 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern state. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder 8, rape 3, attempted rape 3, wounding persons 3, altercation 1, no offense reported 3, striking man 1, slapping youth 1, kidnaping 2, stealing liquor 1, insulting women 1, threatening men 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama 3, California 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana 4, Maryland 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 3 and Texas 2.

R. R. MOTON,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, December 30.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
JAN 1 1934

LYNCHINGS IN 1933

Twenty More Than in 1932 Are Listed By President Moton

To the Editor of the Telegram:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

R. R. MOTON,
President, Tuskegee Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 30.

Statesboro, Ga., Times and News
January 4, 1934

STATE RANKS HIGH IN LYNCHING BEES

TOTAL FOR NATION FAR IN EXCESS OF LYNCHINGS DURING PAST SEVERAL YEARS.

Figures made public by the research department of Tuskeegee Normal and Industrial Institute, colored college of Alabama, reveal that during the past year the number of lynchings in the nation far exceed those for recent preceding years, the total being twenty-eight as compared with 8 for the year preceding. It is shown, also that Georgia' scontribution of four to this record is equalled by only two other states—Louisana and South Carolina.

The statement issued by R. R. Moton, head of the college, is as follows:

"I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tukeegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

"There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repeal the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2."

PINE BLUFF, ARK.
COMMERCIAL
JAN 1 193

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Sad as is the nation's lynching rcord for 1933, sadder yet is the fact that the incompetent manner in which the processes of justice have been caused to function in many instances has been the real cause for the tremendous increase over 1932 when the lynching toll was eight.

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in 1933.

Fourteen of the lynching victims were in the hands of the law.

Nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside of jails.

Two of the victims were kidnapers. Eight were murderers and six were rapists or attempted rapists.

With the exception of three, all lynchings occurred in the south.

Against the record of succssful mob justice is the record of 37 instances in which mobs were thwarted by officers. Six of these incidents occurred in northern states and 31 in the south. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Decent society predominates. It is anxious for its safety. It is satiated with the abuses of ruthless criminals. It would prefer that justice be administered in an odderly way. When the legal process fails it resorts to the less desirable method.—Commercial Appeal.

Florala, Ala., News
January 4, 1934

28 PERSONS LYNCHED DURING PAST YEAR

Robert R. Moton, President, Tuskegee Institute, sends the following information concerning lynchings for 1933:

"I find, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Chester, S. C., Reporter
January 1, 1934

---

were white and 24 negroes. The bodies of two were burned.

In 37 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in the South.

The offenses charged against the persons lynched were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, lapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; tealing liquor, 1; insulting women, threatening men, 1.

SPRINGFIELD, O.
NEWS

DEC 30 1[illegible]

LYNCHING RECORD

To the Editor of The News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

ROBERT R. MOTON.
President Tuskegee Normal and
Industrial Institute,
Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 29, 1933.

Blakeley, Ga., News
January 4, 1934

---

28 Persons Lynched In U. S. In 1933

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 30. — The lynching of 28 persons in the United States during 1933 was reported yesterday in the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute. This total represented an increase of 20 over the previous year.

Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, in making public the results of the survey, said that 14 of those lynched were in custody of police officers, nine were seized from jails, and five were taken from officers outside of jails. Four of the victims

---

1933 brought an increase in lynchings in this country over the preceding year, twenty-eight persons being the victims of mobs who took the law into their hands. Not a record of which to be proud.

JONESBORO, ARK.
TRIBUNE

JAN 1 1934

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Sad as is the nation's lynching record for 1933, sadder yet is the fact that the incompetent manner in which the processes of justice have been caused to function in many instances has been the real cause for the tremendous increase over 1932 when the lynching toll was eight.

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in 1933.

Fourteen of the lynching victims were in the hands of the law.

Nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside of jails.

Two of the victims were kidnapers. Eight were murderers and six were rapists or attempted rapists.

With the exception of three, all lynchings occurred in the south.

Against the record of successful mob justice is the record of 37 instances in which mobs were thwarted by officers. Six of these incidents occurred in northern states and 31 in the south. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

It is imperative that the work of educating against the danger and disgrace of mob justice continue, but more imperative is the need of a general awakening to the fact that there must be improvement in the legal processes of criminal justice to a point where speed and sureness will remove the tendency in the public mind to take matters into their own hands.

The extraordinary and unprecedented increase in crime in recent months cannot be dissociated from the lynching record. The latter is the inevitable result of the first.

Decent society predominates. It is anxious for its safety. It is satiated with the abuses of ruthless criminals. It would prefer that justice be administered in an orderly way. When the legal process fails it resorts to the less desirable method.—Commercial Appeal.

FAIRMONT, W. VA.
TIMES

JAN 3 1934

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in 1933, according to the records of the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute. During 1932 only eight persons were lynched in the United States. In 1931 the lynching toll was 13 and in 1930 the toll was 21.

Thus we can see that national respect for law and order suffered a setback during the past year. In the years just previous, the lynching record was being improved. The 1932 record was a splendid improvement. Now the 1933 record is damnable.

But there is a brighter side to the picture. The records of Tuskegee Institute show that there were 37 instances during the past year in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two.

We are thankful that West Virginia does not appear in that list.

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

4456

WILMINGTON, DEL.
NEWS

JAN 4 1934

Lynchings During 1933

Record of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute for Training Colored Young Men and Women

(Founded by Booker T. Washington)

Editor:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law preventel lynchings. 6 of these were in northern and western States and 31 in southern States.' In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 43 persons, 11 white and 31 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2.

Yours very truly,
A. R. MORTON,
President Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.

WALTHAM, MASS.
NEWS-TRIBUNE

JAN 3 1934

Going backward.

The United States has no reason to be proud of its lynching record for 1933. The number of persons executed by the mob without trial rose from eight in 1932 to 28 in the year just closed. It is, in fact, the worst record for several years. The only redeeming feature is that officers of the law apparently exerted themselves to the utmost to prevent mob violence, and if it had not been for their courage and vigilance, the number illegally killed would have been much larger.

Principal Robert R. Moton of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, who for many years has kept a record of lynchings in the country, gives the following for the year 1933.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In twenty-four of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1: no offense reported, 3: striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynching occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3: Missouri. 1: North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennesseee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Logan, W. Va. Democrat
January 1, 1934

28 Lynchings In Year 1933

Two Hundred and Seventy-Five Per Cent Increase in Mob Violence Recorded Over Two Years Ago

The annual statistical report of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama, reveals that there were 28 persons lynched in the United States during the year 1933. This is 20 more than in 1932, when only eight lynchings were recorded; 15 more than in 1931 and seven moe than the 21 recorded in 1930, the peak for previous years in recent times.

The report shows that 14 of the persons lynched last year were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside the jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, and six of these were in northern and 31 in southern states. In 13 other cases armed force was used to prevent mob violence, making a total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, who were saved from death at the hands of mobs, according to the report.

Of the 28 persons who were lynched, the Tuskegee statistics show four were white and 24 were ne-

Ab Marcum is in the Hatfield Lawson hospital and Denny (Jug Browning is in the Logan county jail as the reslt of a shooting on Mud Fork on Saturday night in which Marcum is said to have been the aggressor. Browning surrendered to officerh shortly after the affair, which occurred around 7:30 o'clock that night.

According to reports of the affair Browning and Marcum met at the home of Browning's sister at upper Shamrock and engaged in an argument. There had long been ill-feeling between the two men, especially when either or both happened to be drinking, and officerh had been called on umerous occasios to qhiet them, it is reported. Saturday night the quarrel was renewed and ended with Browning shooting Marcum in the

---

28 Lynchings in 1933

Survey
February 1934
Vol 70 no. 2
New York, N.Y.

As this issue goes to the printer, news of the first lynching of 1934—and the first lynching of a Negro in Kentucky since 1927—has just come as a living reminder of facts we would prefer to forget. Twenty-eight persons were hanged, burned, beaten to death, shot or strangled by American mobs in 1933, three times as many as in 1932. Half of them had been seized from the custody of officers of the law. The offenses of which they were accused included such trivial offenses as slapping a youth or stealing liquor as well as serious but untried charges; in three cases no offense at all was reported, according to the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Institute. In 37 other instances, involving 11 white men and 37 Negroes, officers of the law held back mobs bent on lynching, in many cases by the use of armed force. Details of the orgies that characterized the lynching "parties" defy print.

The large public opinion that long has abhorred lynching and boiled over in indignation at the stand taken last November by Governor Rolph of California in condoning the double killing in San José, will find a concrete plan for action in the bill recently introduced by Senators Costigan and Wagner. Under its terms, imprisonment for five years or a fine of $5000 or both might be imposed on any state officer who failed to exercise diligence to prevent lynching or to bring to trial persons involved in a lynching; for a state officer to countenance a lynching would be a federal crime punishable by imprisonment of from five years to life. A county in which a mob murder occurred or one in which a victim was seized for lynching in an adjacent county would be liable for a fine of $1000 to be recovered in a suit in the name of the United States for the benefit of the victim's dependents, if any, or otherwise for the use of the United States. Federal courts would have jurisdiction to try and punish when a state's legal instrumentalities gave evidence of their inability or unwillingness to enforce their own law. The proposed bill, in the opinion of its sponsors, does not deprive the states of their constitutional rights but provides for federal action when states cannot or will not uphold law.

Birmingham, Ala., Advocate

Feb. 15-1934

DR. MOTON REPORTS ON LYNCHINGS

Dear Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.—Yours Very Truly, R. R. Moton, President.

Lynchings-1933
6
Reports on Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

4457

Fitzgerald, Ga., Herald
December 29, 1930

1933 Lynching Record Shows Big Increase

T28

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 29—According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 28 persons ~~lynched in~~ 1933. This is more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Nothern and Western tates and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed forces was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape 3; attempted rape 3; wounding persons 3; altercation 1; no offense reported 3; striking man 1; slapping youth 1; kidnapping 2; stealing liquor 1; insulting women 1; threatening men 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee 3; and Texas 2.

Columbus, Ga Enquirer-Sun
December 30, 1931

TWENT -EIGHT ARE LYNCHED

Increase of 20 in 1933 Is Shown by Tuskegee Report

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The lynching of 28 persons in the United States during 1933 was reported today in the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee institute. This total represented an increase of 20 over the previous year.

Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, in making public ths results of the survey said that 14 of those lynched were in custody of police officers, 9 were seized from jails, and 5 were taken from officers outside of jails. Four of the victims were white and 24 negroes. The bodies of two were burned.

In 37 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in the south.

The offenses charged against the persons lynched were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1: threatening men, 1. ?

The number of lynchings by states follows: Georgia, 4: Louisiana, 4; South Carolina, 4; Alabama, 3; Mississippi, 3; Tennessee, 3; California, 2; Texas, 2; Maryland, 1; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1.

Atlanta, Ga. Journal
December 30, 1931

28 Were Lynched During '33, Survey At Institute Shows

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Twenty-eight persons were lynched in the United States this year, an increase of twenty over the previous year, said the annual survey of the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute.

In making the survey public Friday, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and twenty-four negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas 2.

There were thirty-seven instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western states and thirty-one in southern states.

LYNCH RECORD OF 1933

Catholic Daily

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama. — I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned. 1-3-34

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings; 6 of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.—Robert R. Moton.

New York American
DEC 30 1933

28 Lynchings in Year, 20 More Than 1932

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 29 (AP).—Twenty-eight persons were lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over 1932, the annual survey of Tuskegee Institute said today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP).—A Federal anti-lynching bill providing penalties for State and peace officers who permit persons in their custody to be lynched is to be introduced in the coming Congress by Senator Costigan (D., Colo.).

The measure has the support of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and is opposed by Senator Wagner, of New York.

N. Y. HERALD
DEC 30 1933

28 Lynched in 1923

Tuskegee Records Show Increase of 20 in U. S.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 29 (AP).—There were twenty-eight persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of twenty over the previous year, said the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute.

In making the survey public today, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

---

28 PERSONS WERE LYNCHED LAST YEAR

Journal
1-6-34

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offensees charged were: murder, 8; rap, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
R. R. Moton, President

MOTON RECORDS 28 LYNCHINGS

1-6-34

Reds Count 47, and NAACP Lists 28

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—There were 28 persons lynched in 1933, according to records kept by Tuskegee Institute and released this week by Principal Robert Russa Moton.

Following Tuskegee lynch statistics, this is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more that the number 21 for 1930.

Two Burned

Of the 1933 victims, 14 were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two were burned.

In 37 cases, officers of the law stopped lynchings. Of these 37 cases, 6 were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In twenty-four of the instances, the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other cases, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were colored. Offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape. 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

Maryland on List

States in which lynchings occurred and the number are: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee 3; Texas, 2.

The NAACP reports 28 lynchings for the year, while the ILD lists the total as being 47.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE REPORTS 28 LYNCHINGS FOR YEAR 1933

Call 1-5-34

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE.—The records on lynching compiled by the department of records and research of Tuskegee institute, released this week by President R. R. Moton, show that 28 persons, four whites and 24 Negroes were lynched during the year 1933.

Kansas City Mo.

This is 20 more than the number eight recorded in 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and seven more than the number 21 for 1930.

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken.

In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

The offenses charged were: murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening men, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three; and Texas, two.

---

28 MOBBINGS were RECORDED IN 1933

1-2-34

Birmingham. Ala.

Tuskegee Releases Annual Lynch Record; Georgia, Louisiana, S. C. Lead

FOUR VICTIMS WHITE

TUSKEGEE—During 1933, 28 persons, of whom 24 were Negroes were lynched by mobs in various parts of the nation, according to statistics made public by Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee institute.

Georgia, Louisiana and South Carolina led the field with four lynchings each, the report shows.

The full text of the Moton release follows:

"I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegeen Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930, 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

"There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchini. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

"The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2."

---

28 Lynched In 1933

ACCORDING TO TUSKEGEE RECORDS—4 WHITE AND 24 COLORED — ESTIMATE TOO LOW

Guardian

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 31, 1933—According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

1-6-34

Boston, Mass.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Colored, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Colored. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding perported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping sons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reyouth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occured and the number in each State ae as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee. 3; and Texas 2.

Lynchings in 1933

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in 1933, a report of the department of Records and Research issued this week reveals.

Recorder

This is 20 more than the number for 1932, 15 more than in 1931 and 7 more than in 1930.

1-6-34

Officers of the law prevented lynchings in 37 instances. 6 in Northern states.

Indianapolis Ind.

Four of the persons lynched this year were white. Offenses charges were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3 wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; on offense reported, 3; striking males, 2; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are: Alabama, 2; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; N. Carolina, 1; S. Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

The Lynching Record

Sad as is the nation's lynching record for 1933, sadder yet is the fact that the incompetent manner in which the processes of justice have been caused to function in many instances has been the real cause for the tremendous increase over 1932 when the lynching toll was eight.

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in 1933.

Commercial Appeal

Fourteen of the lynching victims were in the hands of the law.

Nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside of jails.

1-1-34

Two of the victims were kidnapers. Eight were murderers and six were rapists or attempted rapists.

Memphis, Tenn.

With the exception of three, all lynchings occurred in the south.

Against the record of successful mob justice is the record of 37 instances in which mobs were thwarted by officers. Six of these incidents occurred in northern states and 31 in the south. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

It is imperative that the work of educating against the danger and disgrace of mob justice continue, but more imperative is the need of a general awakening to the fact that there must be improvement in the legal processes of criminal justice to a point where speed and sureness will remove the tendency in the public mind to take matters into their own hands.

The extraordinary and unprecedented increase in crime in recent months cannot be disassociated from the lynching record. The latter is the inevitable result of the first.

Decent society predominates. It is anxious for its safety. It is satiated with the abuses of ruthless criminals. It would prefer that justice be administered in an orderly way. When the legal process fails it resorts to the less desirable method.

Miami, Fla. Herald
December 30, 1933

WAR in the United States. To date 28 persons have been lynched in this country during 1933, an increase of 20, or 250 per cent. But that is hardly progress forward. Report issued by Tuskegee Institute. Of the number lynched 14 were in the hands of the law; 4 were white, 24 negroes. No offenses noted in 3; others included striking and threatening men, assaulting and insulting women; murder, stealing liquor, kidnaping. Horrible record for what is termed a civilized people. More favorable were the 37 cases where the law prevented lynchings, 31 of which were in the South. Missionaries are still needed at home.

Lynchings-1933

Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

4458

Pelham, Ga., Journal
December 28, 1933

28 PERSONS WERE LYNCHED IN 1933

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number of 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings: 6 of these were in northern and western states and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negroes. The offences charged were: murder 8; rape 3; attempted rape 3; wounding persons 3; altercation 1; no offense reported 3; striking man 1; slapping youth 1; kidnapping 2; tealing liquor 1; insulting women 1; threatening men 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama 3; California 2; Goergia 4; Louisana 4; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee 3; and Texas 2.

kvvsEEe cmfwyp mfwyp hrdluu

Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Charlotte, N. C. Observer
December 30, 1931

28 LYNCHINGS OCCUR IN 1933

Sharp Increases in Mob Violence Reported by Tuskegee Institute.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The lynching of 28 persons in the United States during 1933 was reported today in the annual survey of the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Institute. This total represented an increase of 20 over the previous year.

Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, in making public the results of the survey, said that 14 of those lynched were in custody of police officers, nine were seized from jails, and five were taken from officers outside of jails. Four of the victims were white and 24 negroes. The bodies of two were burned.

In 37 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in the south.

The offenses charged against the persons lynched were: murder 8; rape 3; attempted rape 3; wounding persons 3; altercation 1; no offense reported 3; striking man 1; slapping youth 1; kidnaping 2; stealing liquor 1; insulting women 1; threatening men 1.

The number of lynchings by states follows: Georgia 4; Louisiana 4; South Caroyina 4; Alabama 3; Mississippi 3; Tennessee 3; California 2; Texas 2; Maryland 1; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1.

Reidsville, N. C. Review
January 1, 1934

28 LYNCHED IN U. S. IN 1933; 8 IN 1932

There were twenty-eight persons lynched in the United States last year, an increase of twenty over the previous year, said the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute.

Palatka, Fla. News
December 29, 1930

LYNCHING INCREASES

There are some good spots and some bad spots in the annual lynching statistics, issued by Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

The good spots are that officers of the law have become more diligent in curbing the activities of irresponsible and frenzied mobs, and that Florida got through the year without a blot upon its escutcheon. The bad spot is that lynchings increased during 1933. More than that, kidnaping was added to the list of crimes that prompt the inflicting of the death penalty without trial.

Regarding the increase of lynching, the report says:

"There were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number eight for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned."

Offsetting this, it is shown that "there were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs."

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Greensboro, N. C. Patriot
December 1, 1933

28 Lynchings In 1933

There were 28 lynchings in the United States in 1933, as contrasted with but 10 in 1932. Alabama led with five, Georgia and Louisiana had four, South Carolina and Tennessee three. One was reported for North Carolina.

New Smyrna, Fla. News
December 29, 19[illegible]

TWENTY-E[illegible] ARE LYNCHED IN UNITED STATES DURING 1933

In 37 Instances Officers of the Law Prevented Lynchings

According to the records in the department of research of the Tuskegee Institute, located in Alabama, there were 28 persons lynched in 1933 in the United States. This is 20 more than the number for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Journal Courier
New Haven Conn.
1-1-34

1933 LYNCHING

To the Editor:

Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933, and according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930; 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern state. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder 8, rape 3, attempted rape 3, wounding persons 3, altercation 1, no offense reported 3, striking man 1, slapping youth 1, kidnaping 2, stealing liquor 1, insulting women 1, threatening men 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama 3, California 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana 4, Maryland 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 3 and Texas 2.

R. R. MOTON,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, December 30.

Spartanburg, S. C., Herald
December 30, 1931

28 PERSONS WERE LYNCHED DURING 1933 IN NATION

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 29 ⅛.—The lynching of 28 persons in the United States during 1933 was reported today in the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute. This total represented an increase of 20 over the previous year.

Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, in making public the results of the survey, said that 14 of those lynched were in custody of police officers, nine were seized from jails, and five were taken from officers outside of jails. Four of the victims were white and 24 negroes. The bodies of two were burned.

In 37 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in the South.

The offenses charged against the persons lynched were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The number of lynchings by states follows: Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; South Carolina, 4; Alabama, 3; Mississippi, 3; Tennessee, 3; California, 2; Texas, 2; Maryland, 1; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1.

Cordele, Ga Dispatch
December 31, 1933

28 WERE LYNCHED DURING '33, SURVEY AT INSTITUTE SHOWS

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 29 (AP—Twenty-eight persons were lynched in the United States this year, an increase of twenty over the previous year, said the annual survey of the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute.

In making the survey public Friday, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched four were white and twenty-four negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women 1; threatening men, 1.

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow; Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
December 31, 1933

Tuskegee Counts 28 Mob Murders

Four Persons Lynched in Georgia During Past Year

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 29 (AP)—There were 28 persons lynched in the United States this year, an increase of 20 over the previous year, said the annual survey of the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute.

In making the survey public, today Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and 24 Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening men, one.

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western states and 31 in southern states.

Lumberton, N. C. Robersonian
January 1, 1934

LYNCHING RECORD

A low or high lynching record for a year does not seem to indicate any particular trend. A high record for one year may be followed by a low, and vice versa. In 1932, only 8 persons were lynched, while last year the number was 28—20 more than in 1932, 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, 31 were in Southern states. North Carolina's record, which had been clean in this respect for several years, was marred by one lynching.

These figures and the further information given below were supplied from records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee (Ala.) institute by the president, Robert R. Moton:

Fourteen of the persons lynched (in 1933) were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1 ; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Tallahassee, Fla. Democrat
December 28, 1933

Lynching Record Worst in Years

According to the compilation of Tuskeegee Institute the record of 1933 lynchings is 20 more than in 1932, 15 more than in 1931 and seven more than in 1930. During the year just drawing to a close mob law took 28 lives in the United States.

This record could have been much worse had not officers of the law prevented 37 other attempted lynchings this year. Six attempts were frustrated in the north and west, and 31 in the south.

The states in which lynchings occurred this year and the number in each are: Alabama 3, California 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana 4, Maryland 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 3, and Texas 2.

The only encouraging thing about all this is that officers of the law have done their duty in more instances than they have failed.

This proves that lynch law can be curbed.

In 13 cases armed force was used to prevent mob slayings. It is justified, not to protect the life of a criminal who deserves to die, but to protect and defend the constitution of the United States and the constitutions and laws of the several states.

The organized government we live under has cost much blood to establish. If it requires the spilling of more blood to preserve organized society, that is a small price to pay.

Tifton, Ga. Gazette
Janaury 2, 1934

According to the annual report from Tuskegee, there were twenty-eight lynchings in the United States last year. This was a big increase over the total of eight for 1932. In addition to the 28 lynched, officers prevented the lynching of 37 others. Georgia had four lynchings, Alabama three and South Carolina four.

Moultrie, Ga., Observer
December 30, 1931

TWENTY-EIGHT PERSONS WERE LYNCHD IN '33

According to the records compile in the Department of Records and Re search of the Tuskegee Institute tha there were 28 persons lynched in 193 This is 20 more than the number 8 fc 1932; 15 more than the number 13 fc 1931; and 7 more than the number 2 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynche were in the hands of the law; 9 wer taken from jails and 5 from officers c the law outside of jails; the bodies o 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offense charged were: murder, 8; rape 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation 1; no offense reported 3, striking man, 1; slapping youth 1; kidnaping 2; stealing liquor 1; insulting women 1; threatening men 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia 4; Louisiana 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee 3, and Texas 2.

Jan. - Dec.

Lynchings-1933

Reports on, Sent Press, - Editorial Comments,

4459

Oklahoma City, Okla.
OKLAHOMAN

JAN 1 1934

This Growth of Lynching

IT is no credit to the American people that the number of lynchings in 1933 was 250 percent greater than the number reported in the year preceding. Of course the eight lynchings reported by Tuskegee in 1932 were exactly eight too many. But in 1933 28 persons were deliberately murdered by mobs.

Some of the 1933 mob murders can be attributed to extraordinary conditions. It was a deep-seated detestation of kidnaping and an angry determination to end that dastardly practice which explains but does not justify the lynching at San Jose. Extraordinary conditions made it doubly certain that the three prisoners at Tuskaloosa would be lynched. But extraordinary conditions did not obtain in the communities where most of the lynchings occurred. Hence it is not so easy to explain this 250 percent increase in the number of murders committed by mobs.

Possibly we had an abnormal increase in the number of lynchings because we have had an extraordinary lack of respect for law and constituted authority among many classes of people. While the vast majority of citizens would shrink from personal participation in a mob murder, millions have come to count all repressive laws as decided inconveniences and unworthy of any great measure of respect. The amazing frequency with which traffic regulations are disregarded shows what little regard the public has for laws as such. The laws of Wisconsin and Iowa and Minnesota and Nebraska and Oklahoma have been mobbed by striking farmers and apparently mobbed with impunity. No class of people seem to possess any inherent respect for any law that stands between them and something they desire.

Repealists are quick to say that the eighteenth amendment taught the people to despise law and disregard the orderly processes of government. But whatever the cause the lamentable result is evident. In the highest ranks of society as in the lowest ranks the disposition to flout the law is evident. While the murders committed by the 28 mobs constitute the most sanguinary part of the record, there are thousands of other cases where people angrily brushed the law aside and proceeded in utter disregard of law. And mass violation of written statutes seems to be a perfectly safe pastime, for we have seen few offenses punished when the number of offenders was numerous.

It does not require a murder to constitute a lynching. We have thousands of lynchings that take no life at all. It is a species of lynching when an official of government ignores the law and the constitution and carries out some favorite policy in spite of the law. Laws themselves are lynched in Oklahoma when officials openly or by subterfuge pack pay rolls with their own relatives in spite of the statute forbidding nepotism. The constitution is lynched when legislators interpret its provision to their own interest and make a legislative session nearly twice as long as the constitution says it shall be.

It is highly discouraging to note a 250 percent increase in the number of mob murders. But have we any reason for expecting a better record? Have we not lost much of the respect we formerly had for law and constituted authority? Have we not counted it smart to elect known crooks to office? And have we not condoned official delinquency and dismissed it with the brazen assertion that any one else would have done the same thing? Is it any marvel that the lynching of men should become epidemic when the lynching of law has been made well nigh universal? In appealing for the suppression of mob violence we shall be beating the wind unless we learn to obey the law, respect authority, despise crookedness, and retire to private life public officials who consider office an open door to plunder.

Possibly the governor would agree to call a short session of the legislature but a short session is not what the session promoting legislators want.

MEMPHIS, TENN.
COMMERCIAL APPEAL

JAN 1 1934

The Lynching Record

Sad as is the nation's lynching record for 1933, sadder yet is the fact that the incompetent manner in which the processes of justice have been caused to function in many instances has been the real cause for the tremendous increase over 1932 when the lynching toll was eight.

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in 1933.

Fourteen of the lynching victims were in the hands of the law.

Nine were taken from jails and five from officers outside of jails.

Two of the victims were kidnapers. Eight were murderers and six were rapists or attempted rapists.

With the exception of three, all lynchings occurred in the south.

Against the record of successful mob justice is the record of 37 instances in which mobs were thwarted by officers. Six of these incidents occurred in northern states and 31 in the south. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

It is imperative that the work of educating against the danger and disgrace of mob justice continue, but more imperative is the need of a general awakening to the fact that there must be improvement in the legal processes of criminal justice to a point where speed and sureness will remove the tendency in the public mind to take matters into their own hands.

The extraordinary and unprecedented increase in crime in recent months cannot be disassociated from the lynching record. The latter is the inevitable result of the first.

Decent society predominates. It is anxious for its safety. It is satiated with the abuses of ruthless criminals. It would prefer that justice be administered in an orderly way. When the legal process fails it resorts to the less desirable method.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
STAR

JAN 3 1934

The Lynching Crime in 1933.

The dying year, 1933, leaves a record bearing one ugly stain. In this year there were twenty-eight lynchings, as against eight in 1932. Half of those lynched were taken from the agents of the law, and half were hunted down and killed before officers of the law had arrested them or the law's processes of trial and punishment began. In the case of three of those lynched, according to statistics announced by Tuskegee Institute, no offenses were known to have been committed. Other offenses charged ranged from slapping a boy and stealing liquor to murder. There were eight cases in which murder was charged.

In a careful study of lynching over a period 5 years, the University of North Carolina, in a book recording its findings, emphasized the surprisingly numerous instances on record where mob violence feeds on rumor, resulting sometimes in the death of innocent victims. There have been cases of brutal mob action which could not be identified even with the commission of a crime, but which resulted from rumors of crime.

This Congress may be asked to enact such anti-lynching legislation as the Dyer bill, which would make lynching a Federal offense and bring the National Government into pursuit and punishment of those guilty of lynching. If such a weapon were demonstrably effective, nothing could be said against it. Dean Kelly Miller of Howard University is one of those who believe that development of a "healthy moral sentiment" against the lynching evil is more important than anything else, and such sentiment, of course, develops with education and the enlightening facts concerning lynchings in which the bare details, divorced from emotion and rumor, are set forth to shame decent men. President Roosevelt's recent vigorous denunciation of the California case is an outstanding example of the leadership by public men who have it in their power to mold anti-lynching sentiment.

WATERLOO, IA.
Courier
JAN 2 1934

THE NEXT MOVE—A FEDERAL LAW TO CHECK LYNCHINGS.

Between 1882 and 1932 there were 4,600 lynchings in the United States. Of this number 1,286 were whites.

Tens of thousands of persons formed the mobs responsible for these lynchings. Yet, says John T. Gillard in an article in The Commonweal, a careful study of the records has disclosed for the period of 1900-1930 only 12 trials in which a total of 67 individuals were found guilty. "This means that only about eight-tenths of 1 per cent of the lynchers since 1900 have been convicted. That almost no lynchers in the United States have ever been punished by local courts suggests the futility of local legislation and prompts the question: May not a federal anti-lynching law cope more effectively with the serious situation with which the nation is now confronted."

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has announced that a federal anti-lynching bill will be introduced in the United States in January. Recent news dispatches state that Sen. Edward P. Costigan of Colorado will introduce the bill.

Only one other federal anti-lynching bill has ever been introduced in congress. That was in 1922 when the national house of representatives passed the Dyer anti-lynching bill, socalled from Rep. L. C. Dyer of Missouri who introduced it. The bill was defeated by a filibuster of southern senators. The Dyer bill gave federal courts jurisdiction to punish county officers and lynchers and provided for the forfeiture of $10,000 by any county which is the scene of a lynching.

There is little doubt but that southern solons and lawyers will vigorously oppose a federal anti-lynching bill. The recent lamentable evidences of mob spirit, however, have created a general national reaction which enhances the chances of such a law being enacted. The success of the federal authorities in checking the kidnaping racket and imprisoning bootleggers on income-tax verdicts will also be a factor in considering this proposal to give the government another job.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
EXPRESS
JAN 2 1934

SWEEP OF THE MOB SPIRIT IN AMERICA

For some years previous to 1933 this country—and particularly the South—had suffered comparatively few mob outrages. The apparent improvement had encouraged public-spirited citizens to hope that at last the Nation was ridding itself of the lynch-murder blot forever. Such systematic educational work as the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching and the Southern Commission for the Study of Lynching were doing—along with the year-by-year efforts of church, school and press—was becoming increasingly effective. Those influences steadily were building up the strongest possible bulwark against the evil—enlightened opinion, reinforced by an awakened community conscience.

During the year just past, however, the country suffered a relapse. Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, that has kept the record for many years, reports 28 persons lynched in 1933, as compared with eight the previous year. Four of the victims were white men.

"Judge Lynch" stretched his domain from Maryland to California. Men were lynched for such offenses as "big talk" to their "superiors," stealing liquor, slapping, and insulting remarks. Two were thus executed for a peculiarly horrible kidnaping and murder.

Perhaps the most disturbing fact brought out by Tuskegee Institute's survey is that 14, or just half, of the mobs' victims were taken from the hands of the law. Only lately the country heard a State's Governor openly condone and even praise a mob that had broken into a jail, seized and hanged two prisoners awaiting trial. It heard him promise a blanket pardon to any such lyncher who might be brought to bar. Though many protests were raised, that "bold" Governor was swamped with congratulatory messages.

Undeniably, the mob spirit again is abroad in the land. What can be done to stay its bloody sweep? As experience has taught, new laws—no matter how drastic—will not eradicate the evil nor even appreciably mitigate it. The outstanding need is for a return to national sanity—yet the record, as far back as it goes, would indicate that the Nation never has been fully sane on that point.

Until the necessary moral and intellectual changes shall be effected, the best hope lies in the swift, vigorous enforcement of existing statutes—particularly the law against murder. The Buchanan County grand jury at St. Joseph (Missouri) has set a salutary example. It has indicted 11 persons for complicity in the lynching of a negro there on November 28, and has recommended that the sheriff and police officers who yielded to the mob be ousted.

So long as the lynching spirit shall remain, official courage to stand up and fight it will be needed. The one heartening thing about Tuskegee Institute's report is that it shows 37 instances in which peace officers prevented lynchings. Such service should be recognized publicly and rewarded.

Greensboro, N. C., News
January 5, 1934

A QUESTION OF RIGHT AND WRONG.

While various and sundry increases which occurred during 1933 have been recited and given commensurate praise as omens of improving days, the larger number of lynching which the twelvemonth brought forth serve in antipodal fashion. Here is an increase over which the citizenry, or that portion of them who are not acknowledged Rolphians, may not only hang their head in shame but give serious pause to the sentiment, the disregard for law and order in its fundamental principles, which it reflects.

The jump from 10 lynchings in 1932 to 28 in 1933, an increase of 200 per cent, is shocking enough in itself. But the inference, in several instances the direct charges, of official collusion, certainly in the broadest acceptance of that word with its inclusion of condonement, sympathy and non-interference, is even more abhorrent to those, which means all of us, who depend upon organized society, represented by the government, for protection and the pursuit of happiness, or what there is left of it.

Heading the list of these horrible examples is the encouragement which California's Governor Sunny Jim Rolph gave mobbery; the victims got what was coming to them, he did not leave the state because he feared somebody else might order out troops to give protection; any one arrested and convicted of participation in the double killing would receive a pardon. In Maryland local authorities refused to cooperate in an investigation or to arrest accused mobsters upon orders from the attorney general's office. In South Carolina a police officer, charged with having left the jail doors unlocked, faces formal indictment as a lynching accomplice. In North Carolina, no progress has been made, or at least revealed, in the identity of mobsters who months ago took a negro from a sheriff who subsequently issued a long string of "I didn't knows."

It is no wonder, in the face of these circumstances, that announcement is made that a vigorous effort will be undertaken at the present session of Congress to secure enactment of federal anti-lynching legislation. The nation-old question of states' rights, considerably battered about in these latter days, is already being paraded. But somewhere in the argument, it is quite likely that inquiry will be pointedly made whether states' rights include the prerogatives to pass or gloss over a lynching, to countenance inability and indifference of local officers, to tolerate a chief executive who congratulates lynchers and promises them pardons, or to connive in furtherance of a flouting of law and order in a manner which undermines its own strength and reveals virtually no brakes this side of Washington. There are states' rights, undeniably. But what about states' wrongs?

Jan. - Dec.

4460

Lynchings - 1933
Reports on, Sent Press, - Editorial Comments.

TRENTON, N. J.
STATE GAZETTE

JAN 4 1934

The Record on Lynchings

The general impression, formed upon the basis of recent shocking developments, that the United States became deeply steeped in disgrace by reason of lynchings during the last year, is supported by the records compiled by the Tuskegee Institute.

Twenty-eight men, including at least one who was proved to be innocent of crime, were sacrificed to the spirit of the mob in 1933. This is a record which becomes increasingly horrible by reason of the fact that it marks a sharp reversion toward the bestiality from which, it was thought, we were gradually departing.

In 1930 there were twenty-one lynchings, in 1931 thirteen and in 1932 only eight. Now comes this appaling total to cancel all of the benefits gained from many years of effort to lift the nation above the sordid influences of the past.

There is at least satisfaction, however, in that phase of the report which shows that in thirty-seven instances officers of the law defeated the purposes of mobs. In thirteen of these cases, armed forces were employed to protect prisoners from would-be lynchers. Forty-eight persons in all were thus saved from mobs.

Wichita Falls, Tex.
TIMES

JAN 1 1934

1933's LYNCHING RECORD

Lynchings were three and a half times as numerous in 1933 as they were in 1932 when a new all-time low record was established. The 1932 record, only eight lynchings, encouraged the hope that the evil was on its way to complete disappearance. That hope was rudely upset by the record of 1933, when 28 persons were lynched.

Organized public sentiment and steadfastness on the part of those who have accused men in custody can do much to check the evil. Much more can be done by getting at the basic cause of it which is the public's lack of confidence in and respect for the courts. When the administration of the criminal law in this country is freed of pettifoggery and technicality, when there is a reasonable measure of assurance that a guilty person, when apprehended, will be swiftly brought to punishment, it will be far easier to cope with lynching.

Lynching cannot be condoned under any circumstances. There is no justification of it, even if all the courts were as inefficient as some of them are. The spirit that prompts it is subversive of every principle of government. But America must face the fact that a condition that sorely needs correcting is largely responsible for it and that it cannot be stamped out until the corrective work is done.

Henderson, Tenn., Independent
January 11, 1934

WHY LYNCHINGS?

The daily press has recorded the lynchings of 1933 and tells us that twenty-eight persons met their fate at the hands of mobs.

Then we are told that all but three of these were in the South. The idea is to impress upon the world that Southerners are more bloodthirsty and savage than the people of the other parts of the United States. The "right minds" of the South are terribly worried by this record.

Lynchings may or may not reflect a barbaric spirit on the part of the people. They might represent a spirit of justice. Mob law might mean that the people are grown tired of the lax administration of justice. And mob law may possibly mean a reaction against the palpable breaking down of legal justice in our country.

Whatever the "right-minded" may think, red-blooded men are not going to see their wives and children kidnapped or their women outraged and then sit supinely down and watch justice flicker out to a cruel joke.

"Criminal" lawyers, hunting out every technicality for delay of trial and the freeing of human monsters are the fathers of lynching. Our system of justice is ancient and cumbersome. Our lower courts, especially in the cities, are jokes, and crime flaunts itself and flourishes everywhere. During 1933 most of the real justice administered, as far as major crimes were concerned, was by gangsters themselves, officers in pursuit of criminals and by mobs. Most of the big gangs of criminals would be pursuing their criminal careers today, if the state departments of justice had been depended upon to subdue them.

The South may have had more lynchings than other divisions of the United Staes, but the South had more justice administered than any other part and less of crime. Gangers have not found Southern soil conducive to either their avocations or their health.

This paper does not believe in mob law and lynchings, and therefore has urged repeatedly that justice be made sure and swift. Southern men are not going to submit to crime, especially against their families. If their systems of justice do not protect them, they will protect themselves and it will be a bitter day for major criminals when they practice their profession of murder and rapine down here. All the "right-minded" can say or do will not stop popular wrath when it breaks forth in righteous indign[illegible]. And, indeed, there may come a time, if things do not mend, when malpracticioners of law and hypocritical exponents of "right-mindedness" may rue their acts and words at times and in places.

To end this dangerous and growing tendency to mob rule, we must have an entire revamping of our court practices. Speedy trials by competent juries and by lawyers of conscience must insure adequate punishment of offenders against the law as made and provided.

There is no occasion for surprise at popular uprisings against criminals, one should rather be surprised at the moderation of the people.

Humboldt, Tenn., Courier-Chronicle
January 4, 1934

WHY LYNCHINGS?

The daily press has recorded the lynchings of 1933 and tells us that twenty-eight persons met their fate at the hands of mobs.

Then we are told that all but three of these were in the South. The idea is to impress upon the world that Southrons are more bloodthirsty and savage than the people of the other parts of the United States. The "right minds" of the South are terribly worried by this record.

Lynchings may or may not reflect a barbaric spirit on the part of the people. They might represent a spirit of justice. Mob law might mean that the people are grown tired of the lax administration of justice. And mob law may possibly mean a reaction against the palpable breaking down of legal justice in our country.

Whatever the "right-minded" may think, red-blooded men are not going to see their wives and children kidnaped or their women outraged and then sit supinely down and watch justice flicker out to a cruel joke.

"Criminal" lawyers, hunting out every technicality for delay of trial and the freeing of human monsters are the fathers of lynching. Our system of justice is ancient and cumbersome. Our lower courts, especially in the cities, are jokes, and crime flaunts itself and flourishes everywhere. During 1933 most of the real justice administered, as far as major crimes were concerned, was by gangsters themselves, officers in pursuit of criminals and by mobs. Most of the big gangs of criminals would be pursuing their criminal careers today, if the state departments of justice had been depended upon to subdue them.

The South may have had more lynchings than other divisions of the United States, but the South had more justice administered than any other part and less of crime. Gangsters have not found Southern soil conducive to either their avocations or their health.

This paper does not believe in mob law and lynchings, and therefore has urged repeatedly that justice be made sure and swift. Southern men are not going to submit to crime, especially against their families. If their systems of justice do not protect them, they will protect themselves and it will be a bitter day for major criminals when they practice their profession of murder and rapine down here. All the "right-minded" can say or do will not stop popular wrath when it breaks forth in righteous indignation. And, indeed, there may come a time, if things do not mend, when malpractioners of law and hypocritical exponents of "right-mindedness" may rue their acts and words at times and in places.

To end this dangerous and growing tendency to mob rule, we must have an entire revamping of our court practices. Speedy trials by competent juries and by lawyers of conscience must insure adequate punishment of offenders against the law as made and provided.

There is no occasion for surprise at popular uprisings against criminals, one should rather be surprised at the moderation of the people.

Greenville County, S. C., Observer
January 5, 1934

LYNCHINGS OR MURDERS?

When is a murder a lynching? A lynching may always be a murder, but every murder is not a lynching. Tuskeegee Institute catalogs the lynchings of this country each year and it is not fair to the South in its cataloging. Murder by four or five people in this section is classed as a lynching but not so a murder by four or five people in a Northern or Western state. For 1933 it cataloged four lynchings in South Carolina. Two of them were no more lynchings than were a number of gangster murders in other sections of the country. Yet, classed as lynchings, they discredited South Carolina as being among the leaders in the number of lynchings.

Augusta, Ga., Chronicle
January 5, 1934

News, Views and Reviews

DEFINITIONS AND DISTINCTIONS

In the lynching records for 1933 the state of South Carolina attains something like eminence, being credited four mob deaths as are also Georgia and Louisiana. Alabama, which went off on a lynching spree following one of its Scottsboro trials, and Mississippi, the leading lynching state, are credited with only three.

There will be those of course to question the accuracy of these records, compiled by Tuskegee institute. For one thing the lynching record compilers do not agree among themselves. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples for example lists only three "lynchings" for South Carolina and gives Alabama the undisputed lead with five.

But the debate doesn't end there. The three South Carolina "lynchings," it has been argued, were not lynchings.

"These South Carolina 'lynchings' were for the most part," the Greenville News for example contends, "murders committed by very small groups of men for comparatively trivial offenses. One wonders why they should be recorded against this state as 'lynchings.' By similar logic the state of Illinois should be credited—or debited—with an unusually high number of lynchings. If a group of men slays another in Chicago it is set down as just another gangster killing, but a gang murder in South Carolina seems to be something quite different!"

And there is something in The News' complaint enough to invalidate the lynching statistics in any scientific comparison of crime records in the South with similar records in Northern and Eastern states. What is a labor dispute in Pennsylvania would be a lynching in the records for Georgia or South Carolina. What is a gangster slaying in New York or Chicago would be mob violence in Greenville or Laurens.

But except for the purposes of such comparisons the distinctions the Greenville News and the apologists for South Carolina's record make are not important. The three 1933 slayings listed as lynchings in South Carolina partake enough of the elements of lynching and mob violence to make the argument difficult and would come under most of the legal definitions of lynching. The simplest definition of lynching for example is found in a Minnesota statute—"the killing of a human being by the act or procurement of a mob"—and the definition of lynching set up by the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching in its model anti-lynching law is simply, "Lynching is the killing or aggravated injury of a human being by the act or procurement of a mob." And the minimum number of persons comprising a mob within the meaning of the statutes varies from one in Alabama, Indiana and Kansas to three in Kentucky, five in Illinois, New Jersey and West Virginia.

Two of the three victims in South Carolina were prisoners of the state, held in jail on minor charges, at the time of their abduction and slaying. The third, charged with nothing, was slain at his home by a mob. In none of the cases was there any spontaneous uprising of an entire community against the orderly processes of the law such as distinguished the lynching which everybody would admit is a lynching. But then there seldom is any such thing. In every community there are those who oppose lynching and lynchings are usually the work of a comparatively few people even when the entire community sits by and watches it done. And in all three cases there is an element of community responsibility. In the instances of the two persons taken from jails, the state was obviously obligated to defend its prisoners, held helpless and disarmed. In the Greenville case the community's fault lay in the fact that there had been no effective efforts made to apprehend and punish participants in previous exhibitions of the mob spirit.

The essential fact remains that three men are dead. And to dead men definitions do not greatly matter. A man, killed by a "very small" group is just as dead as if he had been done to death with all the sadistic details that distinguish the more celebrated lynchings. And the law of South Carolina is none the less violated and misused. A murder, of course, as the Greenville News, no defender of the killers, admits, is just as serious a crime as lynching. And the remedy—or more precisely the first step in a search for a preventive—is the punishment of the slayers—call them lynchers or no. The distinctions do not matter. The trouble in South Carolina is that too often distinctions have been made by courts, juries and governors. Columbia Record.

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan-Dec.

4461

Kingsland, Ga., S. E. Georgian
January 11, 1934

"According to the records compiled in the Department of ecords and Research of the uskeegee Institute, there were 28 prsons lynched in 1933," says R. R. Morton, president of the institution. "This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13, for 1931. Fourteen of the persons lynched were i nthe hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned. There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel he would-be lynchers. A total f 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs. Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3: striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; theartening men, 1. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2."—Weslyan Christian Advocate.

Chester, S. C., Reporter
January 1, 1934

The Tuskegee Institute in its annual report on lynching credits South Carolina with four such affairs. As was pointed out at the time two or three of these so-called lynchings were participated in by very small groups, and if they were lynchings then many of the gang murders in Chicago and some of the other large centers should also be termed lynchings. There may have been some slight difference in the procedure, but too slight for both not to be called lynchings, if murders in the South by a few individuals bent on revenge are to go down in the records as lynchings.

Kershaw, S. C. Era
January 3, 1934

28 LYNCHINGS IN 1933

Four in South Carolina

Tuskegee, .Ala., Dec. 30 -- The lynching of 28 persons in the United States during 1933 was reported yesterday in the annual survey of the department of records and research of Tuskegee institute. This total represented an increase of 20 over the previous year.

Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, in making public the results of the survey, said that 14 of those lynched were in custody of police officers, nine were seized from jails, and five were taken from officers outside of jails. Four of the victims were white and 24 negroes. The bodies of two were burned.

In 37 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western and 31 in the South.

The offenses charged against the persons lynched were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The number of lynchings by states follows: Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; South Carolina, 4; Alabama, 3; Mississippi, 3; Tennessee, 3; California, 2; Texas, 2; Maryland, 1; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1.

Wrightsville, Ga., Headlight
January 4, 1934

28 Wete Lynched During '33, Survey At Institute Shows

Twenty-eight persons were lynched in the United States during the year just ended and of the number the state of Georgia contributed four, Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., has reported.

It was twenty more than in 1932; 15 more than in 1931 and 7 more than in 1930, the school said.

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances. armed force was used to repeal the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, eleven white and 37 negroes were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2.

Camden, S. C., Messenger
January 3, 1934

LYNCHINGS FOR THE YEAR 1933

The folling has been received from R. R. Moton, President of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute:

"I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Recors and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims weer burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2."

Waynesboro, Tenn.
News
Jan. 12, 1934

28 Persons Lynched United States 1933

20 MORE THAN IN 1932

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails, the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western states and 31 in Southern states. In 1924 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense, reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing, liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4: Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Gaffney, S. C. Ledger
January 2, 1934

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

Lynchings in the United States last year showed a big increase over the year before, and a considerable increase over the last several previous years, according to the records kept by Tuskegee Institute. Some charge the alarming growth of the practice to collusion of officers, which no doubt was responsible in a few cases. During the year, however, there were 37 attempted lynchings prevented by officers.

The Tuskegee record, as given by Dr. R. R. Moton, the principal, follows:

"I find, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1920. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

"There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: mudder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

"The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2."

Sandersville. Ga., Progress
January 4, 1934

T28

Lynching Record Shows Increas

Tuskegee, Ala., Jan. 2.—According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occarred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

Forsyth, Ga., Advertiser
January 4, 1934

28 Were Lynched During Last Year

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 30, 1933. Twenty-eight persons were lynched in the United States this year, an increase of twenty over the previous year, said the annual survey of the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute.

In making the survey public Friday, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee, said that fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law. nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victimes were burned.

Of the number lynched, four were white and twenty-four negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons,3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man,1; slapping youth,1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states and the number of lynchings in each follow: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas 2.,

There were thirty-seven instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in the northern and western states and thirty-one in southern states.

Americus, Ga., Recorder
January 19, 1934

1933 LYNCHINGS SHOW INCREASE

Georgia Among Leading States

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Jan. 19 (UP) Twenty-eight persons were lynched during 1933, according to figures compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute.

This was an increase, the report said, of 20 over 1932, 15 more than 1931, and seven more than in 1930. On a percentage basis, this was an increase of 250 per cent over last year.

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the custody of the law, nine were taken from jails and from officers of the law outside of the jails, and the bodies of two of them were burned, the report continued.

Officers of the law prevented 37 lynchings. In 24 of these instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers.

The offenses charged were: Murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; slapping youth, 1; kipnaping 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state follow: Georgia, 4; Alabama, 3; California, 2; Louisiana 4; Maryland 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri 1; North Carolina 1; South Carolina 4; Tennessee 3; and Texas 2

La Fayette, La., Advertiser
January 12, 1934

A Blot on the Nation

The year 1933 set a new high record for lynchings in the United States, at least in recent years, according to the Tuskegee Institute, which compiles the gruesome records. Last year there were twenty-eight persons killed by mobs, which is twenty more than the number lynched in 1932; fifteen more than were lynched in 1931, and seven more than were lynched in 1930.

Of the twenty-eight persons lynched four were white and twenty-four were colored. Fourteen were already in the hands of the law. Nine were taken from jails, and five from officers of the law outside of jails. All the lynchings occurred in Southern states except the two kidnapers lynched in California.

Just what accounts for this drastic increase in lynching last year is about as hard to say as it is to fanthom the psychology of the mob. It cannot be wholly because people are becoming intolerant of crime. Only sixteen of the twenty-eight were accused of crimes of violence, and certainly the whole twenty-eight lynchings were crimes of violence of the most reprehensible and vicious sort. Decent, law-abiding citizens do not join lynching mobs.

It is encouraging that there are some officers with courage and backbone enough to defy mobs otherwise the record would be much worse. There were thirty-seven instances last year in which officers of the law prevented lynchings.

Every precaution should be taken to protect prisoners in the hands of the law. Armed force should be used if necessary to repeal mobs bent on lynching. Mob rule and mob murder cannot be tolerated in a nation which calls itself civilized and amenable to constituted authority.

Lynchings-1933
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

4462

Birmingham, Ala.,
Baptist
Jan. 25-1934

CONCERNING LYNCHINGS

A "release" by the Tuskegee Institute on Dec. 31, 1933, indicates that 28 persons were lynched in this country during 1933. This is 20 more than were lynched in 1932 and 15 more than were lynched in 1931. There were in 1933, 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of those lynched four were white people and 24 were Negroes.

Mob rule is a terrible thrust at the government of this country. The courts exist to try men for all offenses and no government is secure so long as men disregard the statutes and execute instead of these the law of the jungle.

All men, however lawless they may be, have constitutional rights. One of these is the right of being tried by a jury and when men do anything to prevent this right, they, themselves, become offenders against constitutional authority. But the mob invariably forgets that.

Orangeburg, S. C., Democrat
January 25, 1934

No Lynchings Here.

As the readers of this paper know, we have never approved of lynchings. We are fully in sympathy with every effort to discourage and prevent such lawless acts. However, we have sometimes felt that crimes were labeled lynchings in the South which if the occurrences had taken place in other states would not have been so called. In this connection, we reproduce a recent editorial from the News and Courier:

> In its annual review of lynchings the Tuskegee Institute sets down four in the year to the discredit of South Carolina.
>
> A negro, was taken in the night time from a village police station in Clinton and some months later another was taken from a similar prison in Ninety-Six. In both of these cases private revenge was established as the motive. From four to five persons in each case succeeded in taking from insecure prisons a man charged with an offense less than capital, carried him a distance and did him to death. No evidence was adduced that a jailer was present.
>
> The prisoners were seized by companions of persons with whom the negroes had had altercations. The communities, Clinton and Ninety-six, were not aroused by the occurences and were ignorant of them until hours had passed.
>
> In Aiken county four men are said to have flogged a negro to death for "stealing bootleg whiskey." The News and Courier protests that the killings were not lynchings. Essential to the definition of a lynching is an uprising of a considerabe part of a community, and if the deed is not representative of the anger or lawless disposition of the neighborhood, it is defamatory of the community to describe it as a lynching scene.
>
> The sole allegation upon which two of these homicides could be brought within the definition of lynchings is that the men killed had been in legal custody. The Aiken crime apparently had no characteristics whatever of a lynching. If half a dozen gangsters in Chicago "bump off" another gangster and escape in their automobile, the incident is properly described as an assassination. No one thinks of saying that a lynching has taken place in Chicago.
>
> When less than half a dozen bloodthirsty persons in a town of five thousand or twenty-five hundred in South Carolina kill a man who has had a fight with another man, is it fair to describe those towns as having been disgraced by lynching? Is it fair to characterize the murders as "lynchings" in South Carolina.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.
GAZETTE

JAN 5 1934

Lynching, 1933

The grisly record of lynching in this enlightened country for the year 1933 has been compiled. Excepting a last moment horror the record is complete.

There were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number eight for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnapping two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening men, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three; an Texas, two.

At first blush, it would seem that th lynching honors for 1933 would go without question to that great evangelical section of the country which embraces Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississsippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas. But another great enlightened state is on hand to contend for the premier honors. It is the land of the Native Son—California. It puts forth its hand for the laurel and we doubt if the judges will withhold the prize. For it was in California that an atrocious lynching was permitted and the murderers were publicly and unequivocally condoned by the governor. No state in the south can lay claim to any such frightful distinction as this.

TAMPA, FLA.
TRIBUNE

JAN 7 1934

More Lynching, But More Prevention

Lynching took a big spurt in 1933, after a number of years of decline. Only eight were lynched in 1932—then 1933 came along with 28.

The Tuskegee Institute records that four of the lynchees were white, 24 negro. The old principal cause has been displaced. Now murder leads—for the year, eight were dispatched for that crime. Only three were for criminal assault.

Florida, we are pleased to note, had a clean record for 1933. Louisiana and South Carolina shared the "banner," with four each. California got into the picture with the two kidnapers who were summarily executed, although the provocation in that case was more their brutal murder of the victim than the kidnaping.

A feature of the report is the fact that 37 lynchings were prevented by officers of the law—and 31 of these preventions were in the South. That speaks well for this section. In 24 cases, prisoners were removed or guards augmented, and armed force was used in 13. Forty-eight persons were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

So, while deploring the abnormal increase in lynchings for last year, we may find some satisfaction in the increasing activty of officers in preventing them. If those prevented had occurred, we would have 76 as the year's total. instead of 28.

BRIDGETON, N. J.
NEWS

JAN 4 1934

1933 Lynching Record

Whatever progress was made in the country in 1[illegible], it did not extend to lynching. The record for that crime, for such it must be called, was the worst for several years past, reaching 28. This is a pretty bad record, compared with 1932, when only eight persons were lynched. It was 15 more than the number 13 for 1931, and seven more than the number 21 for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of two of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. Of the 28 persons lynched four were white and 24 were Negroes.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama 3, California 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana , Maryland 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 3, Texas 2.

It is rather surprising that of he causes assigned for mobs takng the law into their own hands nly three were for attacks on he persons of women, which is a requent cause for such outbreaks, specially in the South, where the reatest proportion of the lynchngs occur. The new year will not ave to strive hard to improve on he 1933 lynching record.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
NEWS

JAN 1 1934

LYNCHINGS

Robert R. Moton, president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute — the school Booker T. Washington founded for the training of colored men and women — finds that in 1933 twenty-eight persons were lynched. In 1932 eight were lynched, in 1931, thirteen, and in 1930, twenty. Fourteen of the persons lynched in 1933 were in the hands of the law. Nine were taken from jails and five from officers who had not yet jailed them. The bodies of two were burned. Officers prevented thirty-seven attempts at lynchings. Thirty-one of these were in the south. In the attempted lynchings, forty-eight persons accused of crimes were involved — eleven white and thirty-seven Negro. Either personal efforts or assistance, in some instances of national guardsmen, prevented their hanging. Twenty-four persons lynched were Negroes, leaving four whites. The offenses charged were, murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnapping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting woman, one; threatening men, one. The states involved were, Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Mississippi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two. This table shows that lynching presents the greatest problem in the south. The most notable exception was in California, where two alleged kidnappers were taken from jail and hanged. That was the occasion when Governor Rolph approved the mob's act and declared he would pardon any member of the mob that happened to be arrested and convicted. The Maryland lynching attracted widespread attention and the Governor is still trying to bring members of the mob to justice.

PRESS
MIDDLETOWN, CONN.

JAN 5 1934

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

Marked reaction in the direction of lynching is disclosed in the annual report on that flaunting of the law, compiled by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, of Tuskegee, Alabama. No less than twenty-eight were reported, or twenty more than in 1932 and fifteen more than in 1931.

Of the total, four were white, the rest negroes. All but two were in states of the South, but those two, of white, in California, stirred the nation. Not that there was sympathy for the offenders, kidnappers who murdered, but because of the disregard of orderly procedure represented by the action.

How mere anger over certain acts, some of them trivial, others not unlawful, invited lynching the records disclose. Just a slap in the face led to one, stealing a jug of liquor another, also a threat, use of an insulting word and a mere quarrel. Three were killed without any known crime. One was lynched after a jury had found no true bill.

Causes for this reaction are difficult to find. Perhaps it is due to reactionary conditions in general, the disposition to ignore the dry laws before repeal and the rather revolutionary spirit found in many directions.

WHEELING, W. VA.
INTELLIGENCER

JAN 3 1934

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, which maintains a record of lynchings in the United States, makes public some disturbing information. The year 1933, according to the Tuskegee statistics, saw 28 persons lynched in the United States. In 1932 there were but eight lynchings, the year before, 13; and in 1930 only seven.

Of the 28 persons lynched last year, 14 were in the hands of the law when seized by mobs, which broke into jails to take nine of the victims. In 37 other cases, lynchings were prevented by resolute action upon the part of officers.

The record does not constitute a very pleasant commentary upon our state of civilization. When lynch law is startlingly on the increase, when the Governor of a great State openly praises a particularly brutal piece of mob murder, and when his stand is lauded by thousands of people, there is something radically wrong.

PASSAIC, N. J.
NEWS

JAN 2 1934

The People's Forum

Lynchings in the Past Year

Editor Herald-News:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1933. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 28 persons lynched in 1933. This is 20 more than the number 8 for 1932; 15 more than the number 13 for 1931; and 7 more than the number 21 for 1930. 14 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers of the law outside of jails; the bodies of 2 of the victims were burned.

There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 6 of these were in Northern and Western States and 31 in Southern States. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, stealing liquor, 1; kidnaping, 2; tsealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

R. R. MOTON,
President, Tuskegee Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala., December 31.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.
EVE. JOURNAL

JAN 6 1934

LYNCHING STATISTICS

The department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute each year compiles a record of lynchings. Tuskegee Institute is a Negro educational institution and as the lynchings are largely in the south and the victims are largely Negroes it has a keen interest in the trend. Its records are probably as complete and accurate as any that are compiled.

The record this year is not reassuring. Briefly 28 persons were lynched in 1933 in comparison to 8 in 1932 and 13 in 1931. To quote:

> "There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, 6 of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. In 24 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 48 persons, 11 white and 37 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.
>
> "Of the 28 persons lynched, 4 were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; no offense reported, 3; striking man, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnapping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting women, 1; threatening men, 1.
>
> "The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2."

This is a most disquieting record, altho it will be noted that it is confined substantially to the southern states. The one exception is in California and this lynching (at San Jose) was in the southern latitude, altho the state as a whole might be classed as a northern state. Inasmuch as the religious sentiment is more intense in these southern states than in those north of the Ohio river, it is singular that the commandment "thou shalt not kill" is so largely disregarded. The law in all the southern states is ample to punish crimes against women. In some of these states the death penalty is imposed. The excuse which is given for lynching is that the people do not wish to subject their women to the humiliation of testifying in open court. This excuse certainly does not apply to those accused of crimes of violence as outlined in the data quoted above. The truth is the people of this region are hot tempered and excitable and ready at any time to kill on any pretext that appeals to their curious sense of personal honor.

We have little license to criticise the turbulence of the Latin nations to the south of us so long as we permit the existence of conditions which the shameful record quoted above shows.

Failure of the courts and juries to convict accused persons on what appears to be substantial evidence or to throw charges or convictions out on close technicalities has caused a great deal of the disturbing spread of lynching. Assurance that criminals will be promptly and adequately punished would lessen some of the danger of lynchings.

FARGO, N. D.
FORUM

JAN 5 1934

1933 Lynchings

At the close of last year it appeared that the country was making some definite progress in reducing the annual toll of lynchings. There had been a marked drop in the total number over a period of three years. In 1932 there were eight, in 1931 there were thirteen, and in 1930 there were twenty-one. Now we have the report for 1933 as compiled by the Tuskegee Institute which places the total for 1933 at twenty-eight.

This is a discouraging record and particularly unfortunate since it raises misgivings as to our approach to the problem involved. One pleasing feature, however, is the fact that the report states that officers of the law had prevented lynchings in thirty-seven instances.

Lynchings-1933
&
Reports on, Sent Press, — Editorial Comments,

Jan-Dec.

4463

Kershaw, S. C. Era
January 3, 1934

LYNCHING IN SOUTH CAROLINA

One who reads the lynching record in the United States throughout 1933 and takes particular notice of the part taken by South Carolina in building that record will scarcely feel like boasting of it. Particularly so when the details and justification offered for their commission are given serious consideration. They seem more like a wanton butchery or a ghastly joke, according to the reactive effect produced on the person who beholds or is informed of its perpetration.

Four lynchings is the highest number in any state for the year and South Carolina had that many deaths from such happenings, putting it in a class with the other which had an equal number. When and by what means will such occurrences be brough to an end?

Charleston, S. C., News & Courier
December 30, 1931

No South Carolina Lynching

In its annual review of lynchings the Tuskegee Institute sets down four in the year to the discredit of South Carolina.

A negro was taken in the night time from a village police station in Clinton and some months later another was taken from a similar prison in Ninety-Six. In both of these cases private revenge was established as the motive. From four to five persons in each case succeeded in taking from insecure prisons a man charged with an offense less than capital, carried him a distance and did him to death. No evidence was adduced that a jailer was present.

The prisoners were seized by companions of persons with whom the negroes had had altercations. The communities, Clinton and Ninety-Six, were not aroused by the occurrences and were ignorant of them until hours had passed.

In Aiken county four men are said to have flogged a negro to death for "stealing bootleg whiskey." The News and Courier protests that the killings were not lynchings. Essential to the definition of a lynching is an uprising of a considerable part of a community, and if the deed is not representative of the anger or lawless disposition of the neighborhood, it is defamatory of the community to describe it as a lynching scene.

The sole allegation upon which two of these homicides could be brought within the definition of lynchings is that the men killed had been in legal custody. The Aiken crime apparently had no characteristics whatever of a lynching. If half a dozen gangsters in Chicago "bump off" another gangster and escape in their automobile, the incident is properly described as an assassination. No one thinks of saying that a lynching has taken place in Chicago.

When less than half a dozen bloodthirsty persons in a town of five thousand or twenty-five hundred in South Carolina kill a man who has had a fight with another man, is it fair to describe those towns as having been disgraced by lynching? Is it fair to characterize the murders as "lynchings" in South Carolina?

About twenty years ago a negro in the custody of Sheriff Hood of Fairfield was shot and killed on the courthouse steps. The gallant sheriff was killed at the same time. The slayer was tried and acquitted. Was that a lynching? One of the victims of the slaying was in legal custody.

Two days ago a convict in the penitentiary in Columbia, certainly in legal custody, was killed by another convict. Certainly that was not a lynching. Unless Tuskegee's definition of a lynching is that any man in legal custody so slaughtered is lynched, the number of lynchings in the United States has probably been twice as many as reported, for murders by gangs have been numerous.

The fourth case was the killing of George Green, negro, in Greenville county, by a band of robed and masked men, presumably members of a secret society. It was a dastardly crime and some fifteen men are under arrest charged with its commission. Chinese secret societies have put men to death in California and the Italian "Black Hand" was accused of many murders in American cities, but their crimes were never set down as "lynchings." Why is the murder of Green so called?

In South Carolina has been no lynching in 1933. So far, no one has been punished for the four murders falsely called lynchings, but is is unfortunately true that many murderers in the state have not been duly punished.

In the long and weary campaign which The News and Courier and the press of South Carolina has carried on against lynching, the aim has been to destroy the notion that for any cause a community is excusable in overriding the law. When communities are to be charged with the guilt of lynching, however they know nothing of the crime and manifest no approval of it, the issue is confused and efforts to suppress mob law are embarrassed.

"Mob" has come to be used by gangsters of great cities in describing themselves. If five men who kill another in South Carolina are "lynchers," why should as many gunmen in New York or Chicago when they kill a man be otherwise described?

Why should New York and Chicago escape the opprobrium of description as lynching towns?

Sumter, S. C., Item
January 1, 1934

NO SOUTH CAROLINA LYNCHING

(Charleston News and Courier)

In its annual review of lynching the Tuskegee Institute sets down four in the year to the discredit of South Carolina.

A negro was taken in the night time from a village police station in Clinton and some months later another was taken from a similar prison in Ninety-Six. In both of these cases private revenge was established as the motive. From four to five persons in eah case succeeded in taking from insecure prisons a man charged with an offense less than capital, carried him a distance and did him to death. No evidence was adduced that a jailer was present.

The prisoners were seized by companions of persons with whom the negroes had had altercations. The communities, Clinton and Ninety-Six were not aroused by the occurrences and were ignorant of them until hours had passed.

In Aiken county four men are said to have flogged a negro to death for "stealing bootleg whiskey." The, News and Courier protests that the killings were not lynchings. Essential to the definition of a lynching is an uprising of a considerable part of a community, and if the deed is not representative of the anger or lawless disposition of the neighborhood it is defamatory of the community to describe it as a lynching scene.

The sole allegation upon which two of these homicides could be brought within the definition of lynchings is that the men killed had been in legal custody. The Aiken crime apparently had no characteristics whatever of a lynching. If half a dozen gangsters in Chicago "bump off" another gangster an'etscape in their automobile, the incident is properly described as an assassination. No one thinks of saying that a lynching has taken place in Chicago.

When less than half a dozen bloodthirsty persons in a town of five thousand or twenty-five hundred in South Carolina kill a man who has had a fight with another man, is it fair to describe those towns as having been disgraced by lynching? Is it fair to characterize the murders as 'lynchings" in South Carolina?

About twenty years ago a negro in the custody of Sheriff Hood of Fairfeld was shot and killed on the courthouse steps. The gallant sheriff was killed at the same time. The slayer was tried and acquitted. Was that a lynching? One of the victims of the slaying was in legal custody.

Two days ago a convict in the penitentiary in Columbia, certainly in legal custody, was killed by another convict. Certainly that was not a lynching. Unless Tuskegee's definition of a lynching is that any man in legal custody so slaughtered is lynched, the number of lynchings in the United States has probably been twice as many as reported, for murders by gangs have been numerous.

The fourth case was killing of George Green, negro, in Greenville county, by a band of robed and masked men, presumably members of a secret society. It was a dastardly crime and some fifteen men are under arrest charged with its commission. Chinese secret societies have put men to death in California and the Italian "Black Hand" was accused of many murders in American cities, but their crimes were never set down as "lynchings." Why is the murder of Green so called?

In South Carolina has been no lynching in 1933. So far, no one has been punished for the four murders falsely called lynchings, but it is unfortunately true that many murderers in the state have not been duly punished.

In the long and weary campaign which The News and Courier and the press of South Carolina has carried on against lynching, the aim has been to destroy the notion that for any cause a community is excusable in overriding the law. When communities are to be charged with the guilt of lynching, however, they know nothing of the crime and manifest nc approval of it, the issue is confused and efforts to suppress mob law are embarrassed.

"Mob" has come to be used by gangsters of great cities in describing themselves. If five men who kill another in South Carolina are "lynchers" why should as many gunmen in New York or Chicago when they kill a man be otherwise described?

Why should New York and Chicago escape the opprobrium of description as lynching towns?

SUMPTER, S. C.
ITEM
JAN 1 1934

NO SOUTH CAROLINA LYNCHING

(Charleston News and Courier)

In its annual review of lynching the Tuskegee Institute sets down four in the year to the discredit of South Carolina.

A negro was taken in the night time from a village police station in Clinton and some months later another was taken from a similar prison in Ninety-Six. In both of these cases private revenge was established as the motive. From four to five persons in eah case succeeded in taking from insecure prisons a man charged with an offense less than capital, carried him a distance and did him to death. No evidence was adduced that a jailer was present.

The prisoners were seized by companions of persons with whom the negroes had had altercations. The communities, Clinton and Ninety-Six were not aroused by the occurrences and were ignorant of them until hours had passed.

In Aiken county four men are said to have flogged a negro to death for "stealing bootleg whiskey." The News and Courier protests that the killings were not lynchings. Essential to the definition of a lynching is an uprising of a considerable part of a community, and if the deed is not representative of the anger or lawless disposition of the neighborhood it is defamatory of the community to describe it as a lynching scene.

The sole allegation upon which two of these homicides could be brought within the definition of lynchings is that the men killed had been in legal custody. The Aiken crime apparently had no characteristics whatever of a lynching. If half a dozen gangsters in Chicago "bump off" another gangster an etscape in their automobile, the incident is properly described as an assassination. No one thinks of saying that a lynching has taken place in Chicago.

When less than half a dozen bloodthirsty persons in a town of five thousand or twenty-five hundred in South Carolina kill a man who has had a fight with another man, is it fair to describe those towns as having been disgraced by lynching? Is it fair to characterize the murders as 'lynchings" in South Carolina?

About twenty years ago a negro in the custody of Sheriff Hood of Fairfeld was shot and killed on the courthouse steps. The gallant sheriff was killed at the same time. The slayer was tried and acquitted. Was that a lynching? One of the victims of the slaying was in legal custody.

Two days ago a convict in the penitentiary in Columbia, certainly in legal custody, was killed by another convict. Certainly that was not a lynching. Unless Tuskegee's definition of a lynching is that any man in legal custody so slaughtered is lynched, the number of lynchings in the United States has probably been twice as many as reported, for murders by gangs have been numerous.

The fourth case was killing of George Green, negro, in Greenville county, by a band of robed and masked men, presumably members of a secret society. It was a dastardly crime and some fifteen men are under arrest charged with its commission. Chinese secret societies have put men to death in California and the Italian "Black Hand" was accused of many murders in American cities, but their crimes were never set down as "lynchings." Why is the murder of Green so called?

In South Carolina has been no lynching in 1933. So far, no one has been punished for the four murders falsely called lynchings but it is unfortunately true that many murderers in the state have not been duly punished.

In the long and weary campaign which The News and Courier and the press of South Carolina has carried on against lynching, the aim has been to destroy the notion that for any cause a community is excusable in overriding the law. When communities are to be charged with the guilt of lynching, however, they know nothing of the crime and manifest approval of it, the issue is confused and efforts to suppress mob law are embarrassed.

"Mob" has come to be used by gangsters of great cities in describing themselves. If five men who kill another in South Carolina are "lynchers" why should as many gunmen in New York or Chicago when they kill a man be otherwise described?

Why should New York and Chicago escape the opprobrium of description as lynching towns?

CHARLESTON, S. C.
NEWS

DEC 30 1934

No South Carolina Lynching

In its annual review of lynchings the Tuskegee Institute sets down four in the year to the discredit of South Carolina.

A negro was taken in the night time from a village police station in Clinton and some months later another was taken from a similar prison in Ninety-Six. In both of these cases private revenge was established as the motive. From four to five persons in each case succeeded in taking from insecure prisons a man charged with an offense less than capital, carried him a distance and did him to death. No evidence was adduced that a jailer was present.

The prisoners were seized by companions of persons with whom the negroes had had altercations. The communities, Clinton and Ninety-Six, were not aroused by the occurrences and were ignorant of them until hours had passed.

In Aiken county four men are said to have flogged a negro to death for "stealing bootleg whiskey." The News and Courier protests that the killings were not lynchings. Essential to the definition of a lynching is an uprising of a considerable part of a community, and if the deed is not representative of the anger or lawless disposition of the neighborhood, it is defamatory of the community to describe it as a lynching scene.

The sole allegation upon which two of these homicides could be brought within the definition of lynchings is that the men killed had been in legal custody. The Aiken crime apparently had no characteristics whatever of a lynching. If half a dozen gangsters in Chicago "bump off" another gangster and escape in their automobile, the incident is properly described as an assassination. No one thinks of saying that a lynching has taken place in Chicago.

When less than half a dozen bloodthirsty persons in a town of five thousand or twenty-five hundred in South Carolina kill a man who has had a fight with another man, is it fair to describe those towns as having been disgraced by lynching? Is it fair to characterize the murders as "lynchings" in South Carolina?

About twenty years ago a negro in the custody of Sheriff Hood of Fairfield was shot and killed on the courthouse steps. The gallant sheriff was killed at the same time. The slayer was tried and acquitted. Was that a lynching? One of the victims of the slaying was in legal custody.

Two days ago a convict in the penitentiary in Columbia, certainly in legal custody, was killed by another convict. Certainly that was not a lynching. Unless Tuskegee's definition of a lynching is that any man in legal custody so slaughtered is lynched, the number of lynchings in the United States has probably been twice as many as reported, for murders by gangs have been numerous.

The fourth case was the killing of George Green, negro, in Greenville county, by a band of robed and masked men, presumably members of a secret society. It was a dastardly crime and some fifteen men are under arrest charged with its commission. Chinese secret societies have put men to death in California and the Italian "Black Hand" was accused of many murders in American cities, but their crimes were never set down as "lynchings." Why is the murder of Green so called?

In South Carolina has been no lynching in 1933. So far, no one has been punished for the four murders falsely called lynchings, but is is unfortunately true that many murderers in the state have not been duly punished.

In the long and weary campaign which The News and Courier and the press of South Carolina has carried on against lynching, the aim has been to destroy the notion that for any cause a community is excusable in overriding the law. When communities are to be charged with the guilt of lynching, however they know nothing of the crime and manifest no approval of it, the issue is confused and efforts to suppress mob law are embarrassed.

"Mob" has come to be used by gangsters of great cities in describing themselves. If five men who kill another in South Carolina are "lynchers," why should as many gunmen in New York or Chicago when they kill a man be otherwise described?

Why should New York and Chicago escape the opprobrium of description as lynching towns?

LOWELL, MASS.
COURIER-CITIZEN

JAN 4 1934

A BAD LYNCHING RECORD.

Not since 1926 has the lynching record of the United States been as bad as it was in the year just closed. Ten years ago there was a sharp drop from 57 the year before—which was not worse than the previous average—to 33; and even that lowered record has not been equalled since. The previous minimum (38) was in the war year of 1917. The second war year, however, was characterized by a sharp setback, 64 such instances of mob violence having been noted. The minimum since the period during which accurate statistics are available, beginning in 1885, was eight in 1932.

It would be difficult to find an explanation for the irregularity of the record. On the whole there is perhaps a gain in respect for the processes of the law, but this crime goes in waves. After 1923 there was a still further drop to 16 the following year; but in 1926 there was a jump back to 30; then a reduction to eight by 1932; followed last year by a sharp bulge to 28. Whatever effect the attitude of Governor Rolph of California may have had on public sentiment, he cannot be held largely responsible for the bad record, since the California exhibition of mob violence came late in the year and the number of lynchings had already reached shameful proportions.

As usual, Negroes were the more usual victims in 1933. In three previous years not a single white person was thus done to death, and even in some years when the number of lynchings exceeded 60, no more white men suffered than last year. In 1904, the number of white victims, four, was the same as in 1933, although in the earlier year the total number was 87.

Almost half of these crimes last year were incited by a spirit of revenge for offenses that, even if the victims were guilty, would not have called for any further punishment at the hands of the law than a moderate term of imprisonment and a would have been sufficient in a few cases.

With the exception of Florida, which had a clean slate, all the southern states where mob violence against Negroes has been most prevalent, in spite of all efforts of lawyers and other good citizens to suppress it, contributed to this year's total. Arkansas might be mentioned as another exception, but that state began to clean house several years ago and its freedom from this crime is now almost to be taken as a matter of course.

On the whole the attitude of officials is improving. In 37 instances mob violence was successfully opposed by sheriffs and jailers or by an armed force, 11 white people and 37 Negroes have been thus saved from death. Each sharp rise in the number of lynchings since a real improvement has been perceptible has been followed by a drop of about equal proportions. One would expect therefore, a favorable swing in 1934, if it were not for the favor that has been shown to the California mob which took the law into its own hands and executed two murderous kidnappers. Apparently this has had a bad effect, but it may not prove to be an enduring one. After all, if nobody in the United States were lynched except for such well-established and atrocious crimes as that for which the California villains were hanged, there would not be much to worry about. Theoretically, every alleged criminal should have the protection of the law, but the worst tragedy of lynching as it is practiced in this country is that guilt is not always proved and that the death penalty is all too frequently inflicted for offenses that would not merit severe punishment, even if they were actually committed by the persons illegally executed.

Lynchings - 1933

Reports on, Sent Press, - Editorial Comments.

Jan. - Dec.

4464

WENATCHEE, WASH.
World
JAN 5 1934

OUR LYNCHING RECORD

The lynching record in the United States last year showed an increase from 13 in 1931, and eight in 1932 to 28 in 1933. This is not a reassuring showing but it is still much less than the maximum of between 100 and 150 attained several years ago.

Besides these 28 lynchings, 48 other persons were saved from lynching by prompt and vigorous actions of officers, showing that 76 persons might have been lynched had not the law interfered. Of those who died at the hands of a mob, eight were accused of murder, three of second degree assault, one was charged with disturbing the peace, one with common assault and battery, three with stealing liquor, three with uttering threats, one had no specific charge laid against him. Two were admittedly guilty of kidnaping and murder.

In a majority of the lynchings, it will be seen that the victims even if guilty of the crime charged did not deserve a death penalty. But in many of the cases where lynching was prevented, the defendants were afterwards found guilty and executed.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.
POST TRIBUNE
JAN 5 1934

MOB VIOLENCE INCREASES

It is a disgraceful record for America that the number of lynchings in 1933 should have been three and one-half times that for 1932. It is not enough to explain that even the twenty-eight of the one year, as compared with the eight of the preceding year, represent a figure far below the one hundred or more annually at the beginning of this century, or the high record of 225 in 1892. For the forces of decency, enlightenment and respect for law must continue to operate in this country until mob violence is halted completely.

Despite the depressing showing for the last year, there is reassurance in the widespread denunciation of the attitude of Governor Rolph of California in condoning the two lynchings in that state. Such a reprehensible stand by a public official sworn to uphold the law had its echoes in the mob violence that shortly followed in this state and in Maryland, if not still in other states. Yet the public sentiment of this country is prevailingly and positively against mob defiance of law and the revival of primitive instincts bound up with it. That sentiment must continue to operate until the necessary work of prevention has been done.—Kansas City Star.

HOUSTON, TEX.
POST
DEC 31 1933

Judge Lynch's Jurisdiction

A STRIKING fact about the United States' lynching record of 1933 is that of the 28 persons done to death by mobs, only three were accused of criminal assault. Three others were accused of attempted criminal assault. Thus, less than one-fourth of the lynching victims were connected with that offense.

Many people who are inclined to condone the practice of lynching labor under the impression that mob action usually is taken to avenge wrongs against women. It has been true in the past that in the South negro assailants of women in many instances have been put to death by mobs. But lynchers have been taking cognizance of other crimes. They have been spreading their activities until numerous persons accused only of trivial offenses have been made to feel the vengeance of murderous bands of men taking the law into their own hands.

An analysis of the record of mob murders in 1933 calls attention to what an extent Judge Lynch is extending his jurisdiction over crimes and misdemeanors. Every citizen who is inclined to wink at lynching should not fail to consider this development.

According to statistics on lynching compiled by Tuskegee institute in Alabama, one of the victims of mobs in the past year died because he had been accused of threatening a man. One was lynched as a result of an accusation that he slapped a boy. One was said to have insulted a woman. One was alleged to have struck a man. One stole some liquor, so his slayers said. One figured in an altercation. Two were kidnapers. Three were charged with wounding persons. In three cases of lynching no one was ever able to learn what offenses the victims had been accused of. Eight of the persons lynched were accused of killings.

In this detailed report of 1933 lynchings there is revealed, surely, the danger in condoning mob violence in dealing with one or two varieties of crime, even though those varieties be heinous. Lawlessness is contagious. Permit mobs to murder with impunity persons accused of one sort of crime, and soon we have mobs taking the law into their own hands to punish people accused of trivial offenses. Unless lynching is curbed, the orderly processes of justice will be broken down and no citizen will have security.

WASHINGTON, IA.
JOURNAL
JAN 4 1934

LYNCHINGS IN 1933

Lynchings for 1933 in the United States numbered 28 an increase over 1932, 1931 and 1930 and that is a sad commentary on law enforcement processes and punitive regularity in this country.

As usual the great mass of the lynchings were in the south and the most of the victims were colored people. We think that some of our great northern cities are "bad stuff" but the lynching and murder records are held in the south, exclusively.

The colored man does not get a fair break in the south. Fourteen of the persons lynched were accused of less crimes than murder and the assault of women. In three cases no offense was reported at all.

The aristocratic, cultural, chivalrous south has a lot of things to learn yet about "common decency." With their lynchings, their chain gangs, their convict colonies and the like they still out simon Simon Legree in the expression of some of their emotions.

The racial prejudices that abound in the south are not of the colored man's making. He had nothing to do with it. He was enslaved by the white man originally and the onus of that status was not mitigated by the emancipation of the colored people. They still suffer for the iniquities of the slave trader and the slave owners.

But, in the matter of lynchings and other emotional crimes we of the north should not throw too many stones. We are not without sin ourselves and we sin, probably, with no more provocation than do our brothers of the south. We all need to set our mental houses in such order as will prevent us from irresponsible explosion.

RICHMOND, VA.
NEWS LEADER
DEC 30 1933

THREE TYPES OF LYNCHINGS.

The twenty-eight lynchings of 1933 are properly divisible into three groups—the race lynchings, the Rolph lynchings and those prompted by the belief that justice would be cheated by the law's delays.

Crimes of mob violence, inspired by race-feeling, are slowly diminishing. We see no reason to doubt their gradual disappearance as Southern states enact anti-lynching laws and enforce them. Lynchings prompted by the incendiary remarks of the governor of California will diminish as the memory of his language dies out, though the state of mind that applauded him unfortunately persists.

The lynchings that are most apt to increase and those that will be most difficult to combat have their origin in the fear of an excitable public that a person guilty of some infamous crime will defeat justice. This was the feeling responsible for the California lynchings that led Governor ROLPH to defend mob violence. These, consequently, are the contagious lynchings. They must be repressed, but they cannot be eradicated by anti-lynching laws, such as those of Virginia and of North Carolina.

The only sure means of triumphing over this type of lynching is to re-establish the faith of the citizen in the speed and certainty of American justice. Excessive regard for the rights of an accused man has made it increasingly difficult to assert the right of the state.

Unless there is an early and general reform of criminal procedure, the new type of lynchings will increase rapidly, until we have a quasi-judicial fascism in the United States.

Stanford, Ky., Journal
May 4, 1934

LYNCHING RECORD OF 1933

Tuskegee Institute, at Tuskegee, Alabama, has made public the result of its research into the lynching problem in America for 1933, and it shows that 28 persons were lynched by mobs during the year, whereas only 8 were lynched in 1932, 13 in 1931 and 21 in 1930.

Of the 28 victims of Judge Lynch, 14 were in the hands of the law and presumably already being prosecuted for their crimes. Of these 9 were taken from jails and 5 from officers in whose custody they were for the time being.

Against this record of lynchings Tuskegee reported that in 37 cases officers of the law prevented lynchings, successfully defending their prisoners from mobs. It may be interesting to note that in 31 of these cases mobs were resisted in southern states and 6 in northern states.

Of the 28 victims of lynchings 4 were white men and 24 negroes. Eight of the lynched persons were accused of murder, three of rape, three of attempted rape, three of wounding other persons, one with striking a man and another with slapping a youth, two with kidnapping, one with stealing liquor, one with insulting a woman and one with threatening a man.

There were no lynchings in Kentucky but Alabama had 3, California 2, Georgia 4, Louisiana 4, Maryland 1, Mississippi 3, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 4, Tennessee 3 and Texas 2.

In California the governor of the state publicly approved the lynching of two kidnappers and in Maryland a near-riot resulted from the prosecution of alleged members of the mob which lynched a negro, when the prosecution was conducted from the attorney general's office, the local prosecutor having refused to act in the case.

As we have previously remarked in this column, there is a crime for which in the south, at least, the punishment is death if a mob can get at the accused. It would seem that the death penalty for slapping a boy or striking or threatening a man, however, is pretty severe and shows how cruel and vindictive mobs can be, once they get the upper hand of the officers of the law.

Lynchings-1933
&
Reports on, Sent Press, - Editorial Comments.

Jan. - Dec.

4465

Columbia, S. C. Record
Janaury 2, 1934

DEFINITIONS AND DISTINCTIONS.

In the lynching records for 1933 the state of South Carolina attains something like eminence, being credited four mob deaths as are also Georgia and Louisiana. Alabama, which went off on a lynching spree following one of its Scottsboro trials, and Mississippi, the leading lynching state, are credited with only three.

There will be those of course to question the accuracy of these records, compiled by Tuskegee institute. For one thing the lynching record compilers do not agree among themselves. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples for example lists only three "lynchings" for South Carolina and gives Alabama the undisputed lead with five.

But the debate doesn't end there. The three South Carolina "lynchings," it has been argued, were not lynchings.

"These South Carolina 'lynchings' were for the most part," the Greenville News for example contends, "murders committed by very small groups of men for comparatively trival offenses. One wonders why they should be recorded against this state as 'lynchings.' By similar logic the state of Illinois should be credited—or debited—with an unusually high number of lynchings. If a group of men slays another in Chicago it is set down as just another gangster killing, but a gang murder in South Carolina seems to be something quite different!"

And there is something in The News' complaint, enough to invalidate the lynching statistics in any scientific comparison of crime records in the South with similar records in Northern and Eastern states. What is a labor dispute in Pennsylvania would be a lynching in the records for Georgia or South Carolina. What is a gangster slaying in New York or Chicago would be mob violence in Greenville or Laurens.

But except for the purposes of such comparisons the distinctions the Greenville News and the apologists for South Carolina's record make are not important. The three 1933 slayings listed as lynchings in South Carolina partake enough of the elements of lynching and mob violence to make the argument difficult and would come under most of the legal definitions of lynching. The simplest definition of lynching for example is found in a Minnesota statute—"the killing of a human being by the act or procurement of a mob"—and the definition of lynching set up by the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching in its model anti-lynching law is simply, "Lynching is the killing or aggravated injury of a human being by the act or procurement of a mob." And the minimum number of persons comprising a mob within the meaning of the statutes varies from one in Alabama, Indiana and Kansas to three in Kentucky, five in Illinois, New Jersey and West Virginia.

Two of the three victims in South Carolina were prisoners of the state, held in jail on minor charges, at the time of their abduction and slaying. The third, charged with nothing, was slain at his home by a mob. In none of the cases was there any spontaneous uprising of an entire community against the orderly processes of the law such as distinguished the lynching which everybody would admit is a lynching. But then there seldom is any such thing. In every community there are those who oppose lynching and lynchings are usually the work of a comparatively few people even when the entire community sits by and watches it done. And in all three cases there is an element of community responsibility. In the instances of the two persons taken from jails, the state was obviously obligated to defend its prisoners, held helpless and disarmed. In the Greenville case the community's fault lay in the fact that there had been no effective efforts made to apprehend and punish participants in previous exhibitions of the mob spirit.

The essential fact remains that three men are dead. And to dead men definitions do not greatly matter. A man, killed by a "very small" group is just as dead as if he had been done to death with all the sadistic details that distinguish the more celebrated lynchings. And the law of South Carolina is none the less violated and misused. A murder, of course, as the Greenville News, no defender of the killers, admits, is just as serious a crime as lynching. And the remedy—or more precisely the first step in a search for a preventive—is the punishment of the slayers—call them lynchers or no. The distinctions do not matter. The trouble in South Carolina is that too often distinctions have been made by courts, juries and governors.

◆

We were supposed to have had less drinking during prohibition, and now we have more taxes.

COLUMBIA, S. C.
RECORD

JAN 2 1934

DEFINITIONS AND DISTINCTIONS.

In the lynching records for 1933 the state of South Carolina attains something like eminence, being credited four mob deaths as are also Georgia and Louisiana. Alabama, which went off on a lynching spree following one of its Scottsboro trials, and Mississippi, the leading lynching state, are credited with only three.

There will be those of course to question the accuracy of these records, compiled by Tuskegee institute. For one thing the lynching record compilers do not agree among themselves. The National Association for the Advancement of ~~Colored~~ Peoples for example lists only three "lynchings" for South Carolina and gives Alabama the undisputed lead with five.

But the debate doesn't end there. The three South Carolina "lynchings," it has been argued, were not lynchings.

"These South Carolina 'lynchings' were for the most part," the Greenville News for example contends, "murders committed by very small groups of men for comparatively trival offenses. One wonders why they should be recorded against this state as 'lynchings.' By similar logic the state of Illinois should be credited—or debited—with an unusually high number of lynchings. If a group of men slays another in Chicago it is set down as just another gangster killing, but a gang murder in South Carolina seems to be something quite different!"

And there is something in The News' complaint, enough to invalidate the lynching statistics in any scientific comparison of crime records in the South with similar records in Northern and Eastern states. What is a labor dispute in Pennsylvania would be a lynching in the records for Georgia or South Carolina. What is a gangster slaying in New York or Chicago would be mob violence in Greenville or Laurens.

But except for the purposes of such comparisons the distinctions the Greenville News and the apologists for South Carolina's record make are not important. The three 1933 slayings listed as lynchings in South Carolina partake enough of the elements of lynching and mob violence to make the argument difficult and would come under most of the legal definitions of lynching. The simplest definition of lynching for example is found in a Minnesota statute—"the killing of a human being by the act or procurement of a mob"—and the definition of lynching set up by the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching in its model anti-lynching law is simply, "Lynching is the killing or aggravated injury of a human being by the act or procurement of a mob." And the minimum number of persons comprising a mob within the meaning of the statutes varies from one in Alabama, Indiana and Kansas to three in Kentucky, five in Illinois, New Jersey and West Virginia.

Two of the three victims in South Carolina were prisoners of the state, held in jail on minor charges, at the time of their abduction and slaying. The third, charged with nothing, was slain at his home by a mob. In none of the cases was there any spontaneous uprising of an entire community against the orderly processes of the law such as distinguished the lynching which everybody would admit is a lynching. But then there seldom is any such thing. In every community there are those who oppose lynching and lynchings are usually the work of a comparatively few people even when the entire community sits by and watches it done. And in all three cases there is an element of community responsibility. In the instances of the two persons taken from jails, the state was obviously obligated to defend its prisoners, held helpless and disarmed. In the Greenville case the community's fault lay in the fact that there had been no effective efforts made to apprehend and punish participants in previous exhibitions of the mob spirit.

The essential fact remains that three men are dead. And to dead men definitions do not greatly matter. A man, killed by a "very small" group is just as dead as if he had been done to death with all the sadistic details that distinguish the more celebrated lynchings. And the law of South Carolina is none the less violated and misused. A murder, of course, as the Greenville News, no defender of the killers, admits, is just as serious a crime as lynching. And the remedy—or more precisely the first step in a search for a preventive—is the punishment of the slayers—call them lynchers or no. The distinctions do not matter. The trouble in South Carolina is that too often distinctions have been made by courts, juries and governors.

ST. LOUIS, MO.
GLOBE DEMOCRAT
JAN 6 1934

LYNCHINGS IN 1933.

During a year ~~when~~ the evil of mob violence was impressed on the public consciousness as, perhaps, it had not been in any prior year, the lynchings numbered forty-seven, according to the usual January report, an increase of ten over 1932.

Of the forty-seven victims, five were white men. Included in the forty-two Negro victims were three women in Florida and one in Alabama. The lynchings were distributed among fourteen different states, with Florida debited with the greatest number, eight, and with seven in Georgia, six in Alabama, five each in Louisiana, South Carolina and Tennessee and two in California. Missouri, Maryland, North Carolina, Texas, Michigan and Arkansas are debited with one each. That, in fourteen instances, peace officers either lent undoubted aid to the mob or made no resistance is charged. In one case in the South it is reported that the only fault of a victim was that he had sought to borrow money from a federal credit agency instead of from the local bank.

The figures themselves form a severe rebuke to Gov. Rolph's approval of the lynching of two kidnapers in California, but the report adds a verbal condemnation. And it is stated that the figures are incomplete as not including unnumbered Negroes in the South who escaped the rope or flames but were shot. While a statement that "no person has been prosecuted for any of these lynchings" may be true, nine are indicted and in a fair way to being prosecuted for the Missouri disgrace at St. Joseph and one of the most vigorous denunciations of the year on mob law was made by the Missouri judge presiding over the grand jury's deliberations.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
MORNING TRIBUNE
JAN 21 1934

Lynching Gains in 1933.

The record of lynchings in the United States last year was the blackest since 1926. Victims numbered 28, as compared with 10 in 1932 and 14 in 1931. Where 1932 had recorded the fewest number of lynchings in any year since records were kept, 1933 showed an increase of 180 per cent, and only one year in the past decade has witnessed more mob murders.

Whether this was merely a temporary setback in the long struggle to snuff out lynch law in this country remains to be seen. Progress toward this end has been so steady in recent years that one is tempted to believe so and to blame the shameful showing of 1933 on a spirit of unrest and lawlessness which is purely transitory. After all, we were experiencing the fourth year of the depression. Nerves were frayed and tempers were on edge. Idleness and discontent and misery do not make, as a rule, for a law-abiding citizenry. It may be, then, that the 1933 record has its economic origins, and that improving conditions will set the stage for further advances in the long campaign to put an end to the disgraceful activities of Judge Lynch.

It is discouraging, nevertheless, to note that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reports a "surprisingly large number of instances of apparent collusion between law officers and mobs." This tendency, the association believes, is likely to grow unless curbed by legislative action. Certainly it will never be checked by such an amazing stand as that taken by Governor Rolph of California, who publicly condoned the lynching of two men in San Jose and promised to pardon the lynchers should they be convicted of the crime. To what extent Mr. Rolph sowed the seeds of contempt for law it is impossible to say; but even more depressing than the increase in lynchings itself was the spectacle of the governor of a great state aligning himself with those who had so barbarously taken the law into their own hands.

That Governor Ritchie of Maryland and some other state executives had the courage to stand resolutely against the lynchers is a fact, however, that helps to brighten an otherwise black record. It was not without its heartening significance, too, that Governor Rolph's stand in the San Jose case brought down upon him the scathing denunciation of the country as a whole. We may have taken a step backward in 1933, but when we review the record of the last 50 years, it is plainly apparent that we have made splendid progress. We have gone a long way since 1892, for example, when 255 persons were lynched. The ground lost last year may well sober us. It may well inspire us to a more determined effort to stamp out lynchings. But it will hardly warrant the conclusion that the United States, which has progressed so far in the right direction, is permanently reverting to the savagery of lynch law.

-ynchings-1933.
& Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

4466

OAKLAND, CAL.
POST ENQUIRER
FEB 17 1934

Lynch Law in Action

A Disgraceful Record

The Tuskegee Institute of Tuskegee, Alabama, analyzes the American lynching record for 1933. It is not a good record. Lynchings increased 250 percent over 1932. There were 28 known lynchings in 1933, only eight in 1932.

Fourteen persons who were lynched last year were already in the custody of the law, waiting trial and punishment.

Only 13 of the persons lynched last year were charged with offenses punishable by death. The other 15 lynch law victims were seized by mobs for various offenses, ranging from wounding white persons in fights to bickering with a white person in the street, non-payment of rent and stealing liquor.

Mobs, once they form and smell blood, are not discriminatory.

Lynch law punishment for one offense easily serves as a precedent for the same kind of punishment for a lesser offense, and in the end lynch law can easily serve merely as the expression of racial or class prejudice—as last year's record shows.

Marietta, Minn., News
THURSDAY, MARCH 1, 1934

1933 LYNCHINGS SHOW INCREASE

Tuskegee, Ala. — (UP) — Twenty-eight persons were lynched during 1933, according to figures compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute.

This was an average, the report said, of 20 over 1932, 15 more than 1931, and seven more than in 1930. On a percentage basis, this was an increase of 250 per cent over last year.

Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the custody of the law nine were taken from jails and from officers of the law outside of the jails, and the bodies of two of them were burned, the report continued.

Officers of the law prevented 37 lynchings. In 24 of these instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 13 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers.

The offenses charged were: murder, 8; rape, 3; attempted rape, 3; wounding persons, 3; altercation, 1; slapping youth, 1; kidnaping, 2; stealing liquor, 1; insulting woman, 1; threatening men, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state follow: Georgia, 4; Alabama, 3; California, 2; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3; and Texas, 2.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.
LEADER
MAR 7 1934

1933 LYNCHING RECORD

The department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute reports that there were 28 persons lynched in the United States in 1933. This is 20 more than the number for 1932, 15 more than for 1931, and seven more than for 1930. Fourteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; nine were taken from jails and five from officers of the law outside of jails. The bodies of two of the victims were burned. There were 37 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Six of these were in northern and western states and 31 in southern states. Of the 28 persons lynched, four were white and 24 were Negro. The offenses charged were murder, eight; rape, three; attempted rape, three; wounding persons, three; altercation, one; no offense reported, three; striking man, one; slapping youth, one; kidnaping, two; stealing liquor, one; insulting women, one; threatening man, one. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, three; California, two; Georgia, four; Louisiana, four; Maryland, one; Missisipi, three; Missouri, one; North Carolina, one; South Carolina, four; Tennessee, three, and Texas, two.

Lynchings - 1933

Side Lights.

Alabama

X X X

4488

NEGRO WOMAN LYNCHED IN B'HAM

Son Narrowly Escapes Same Fate

Daily Worker 7-5-33

New York N.Y.

BOSTON.—The story of the brutal lynching of his mother three weeks ago near Birmingham was told here to the International Labor Defense by Alexander Lawrence, who narrowly escaped death at the hands of the same mob.

Lawrence told how his mother, Elizabeth Lawrence, living about five miles from Birmingham, was walking down a country road when some white children threw dirt and stones at her. She scolded them severely, but did not touch them.

That night she was murdered by a mob and her home burnt down. Alexander was away at the time, and when he returned he made a report to the county police. The only result was the reforming of the mob, which threatened to lynch him. He escaped and fled north to Boston.

The I. L. D. has begun preparations for an investigation of this lynching in Birmingham.

NEGRO BOY TELLS OF MOTHER'S LYNCHING

Woman Was Murdered and Home Burned

Tribune 7-13-33

Savannah Ga.

Boston, Mass., July 12.—News of the lynching of a colored woman, near Birmingham three weeks ago, was brought here today by the son of the woman murdered, Alexander Lawrence, who narrowly escaped death at the hands of the same mob.

About three weeks ago, according to the story told to the International Labor Defense by Lawrence, his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence, living about five miles from Birmingham, was walking along a road when a crowd of young children threw stones and dirt at her. She scolded them severely, but did not touch them.

That night, she was murdered and her home burned down by a mob. Alexander was away at the time, and when he returned he made a report to the county police. The only result was the reformation of the same mob, which threatened to lynch him. He escaped, and fled north to Boston.

Machinery has been in motion for an investigation of this lynching.

ALA. BOY TELLS OF MOTHER'S LYNCHING

Afro-American 7-25-33

Baltimore Maryland

BOSTON—News of the lynching of a woman, near Birmingham, three weeks ago was brought here by the son of the woman murdered, Alexander Lawrence, who narrowly escaped death at the hands of the same mob.

About three weeks ago, according to the story his mother Elizabeth Lawrence, living about five miles from Birmingham, was walking along a road when a crowd of youngsters threw stones and dirt at her. She scolded them severely, but did not touch them.

That night she was murdered and her home burned down by a mob. Alexander was away at the time, and when he returned, he made a report to the county police. The only result was the re-formation of the same mob, which threatened to lynch him. He escaped and fled north to Boston.

The International Labor Defense has set machinery in motion for an investigation of this lynching from its Birmingham office.

NEW YORK TIMES

AUG 23 1933

X

THWART NEGRO LYNCHING.

Alabama Sheriffs Block Mobs at Decatur, Later Huntsville.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Aug. 22 (AP).—Two mobs seeking the same negro were dispersed here today by peace officers.

But their members threatened to return "a thousand strong" and get Thomas Brown, charged with criminally attacking a white woman in Decatur. Some carried pistols.

The answer of Sheriff Ben Giles was a command that all deputies swing into action at the first sign of violence. National Guardsmen were told to stand by.

Mr. Giles thwarted an attempt of a mob to get Brown early today after the negro was brought here for safekeeping, escorting the men to the county line. Late this afternoon another mob came to the jail. Demands that they be allowed to see the negro were ignored.

Brown was arrested yesterday soon after a white woman reported she had been attacked at Decatur, where the retrial of the famous Scottsboro case was held.

A crowd gathered at the Decatur jail last night, but dispersed when authorities allowed some of its members to go through the jail and satisfy themselves that Brown was not there. He had been spirited to this city.

James Royal, another negro, was shot to death last night near the scene where Brown was arrested.

Bullets Riddle Negro-Owned Store in Decatur, Ala.

Daily Worker 8-28-33

New York N.Y.

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 27.—New terroristic attacks upon the Negro population here were discovered today when it was learned that several shots were fired into the Magnolia Drug Store, operated by a Negro, and into the Boston candy kitchen Tuesday night.

The attacks followed the lynching of James Royal, Negro boy, last Monday, the arrest of Thomas Brown on framed charges of "rape," the same day, and three successive attempts to lynch him.

This reign of terror, following closely upon the recent lynchings in Tuscaloosa, are regarded as preparations made by the authorities here for the lynching of the nine innocent Scottsboro boys, whom Judge James E. Horton has ordered to a third lynch-trial here in October.

Four shots were fired into the drug-store, operated by A. O. Sheffy and a single shot was fired through the window of the candy store. All were 38 caliber bullets.

Frank Brawley, Otis Webb and James Eddie, Negroes who were with Royal when he was murdered and narrowly escaped the same fate were held for the Grand Jury which is to meet Monday to railroad indictments against Brown and "investigate" the lynching of Royal and released in $100 bond.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED IN SELMA, ALABAMA

Houston Informer 9-9-33

Houston Texas

Selma, Ala.—Joe Solde, Negro tenant farmer, was lynched here Aug. 10, it has been learned by the International Labor Defense, in spite of efforts to cover up the crime made by authorities.

Solde was framed on a charge of stealing a cow, the real reason being a determination by his white landlord to drive him off a piece of land he held under his lease. Four white men, Archie Bryant, Walker Bryant, Edward Meallin, and Ace May, took him to the woods and beat him to death.

ALA. MOB CHASES MINISTER FROM STATE FOR REFUSING TO SIGN JIM-CROW WAGE CODE

Black Dispatch 9-21-33

Oklahoma City, Okla.

SELMA, ALA., CHIEF OF POLICE, SEC. OF COMMERCE AND BANK PRESIDENT LEAD SOUTHERN 'BOSSES' IN BANISHING REV. E. D. HUGHES FROM STATE

Former Muskogee Minister Hides All Night In Ditch To Evade Mob

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Because he refused to sign a statement saying he thought Negro workers ought to have a lower wage than that provided in the N. R. A. code, the Rev. E. D. Hughes, A. M. E. minister of Selma, Ala., has been driven out of town by leading whites, including the chief of police, the secretary of the chamber of commerce, and the president of a bank.

A hair-raising account of how he was forced to jump from a speeding automobile and hide under bushes in a ditch in order to escape a mob of pursuing whites, is contained in a statement given a representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People by Rev. Hughes.

A complete statement telling in detail of the abuses heaped upon Mr. Hughes has been received here by the N. A. A. C. P. Protest has been made to General Hugh S. Johnson with a request that he take action against those who seek to block the operation of the President's agreements and use violence to enforce their desires.

$6 a Week For Girls

The Rev. Mr. Hughes, now residing in another Alabama city until he can get his wife out of the state, was the pastor of the Brown Chapel A. M. E. church in Selma and president of the Selma Ministerial Alliance. On August 20 one F. J. Ames, owner of the Selma Manufacturing company, sent to the Ministers' Alliance a private code for their approval. The code named $9.50 a week minimum wages for colored men, $9 a week minimum wages for colored women and $6 a week for colored girls from 14 to 16 years of age. He asked the colored ministers to approve the code.

Instead, the ministers wrote him a letter saying they had read President Roosevelt's code. They made no comment on the Ames code.

August 24 Rev. Mr. Hughes was taken before a committee of between thirty and thirty-five of the substantial white citizens of Selma at the courthouse. Bruce C. Craig acted as spokesman for the whites and after a few questions told Mr. Hughes:

"24 Hours To Leave Town"

Your record has been thoroughly investigated and we have found that you are not the type of citizen that exactly fits into a community like Selma and Dallas county, therefore we have decided that 24 hours from this minute, which is now 3:25 p. m., are long enough for you to get your business together and get out of town and Dallas county."

Rev. Hughes says he recognized the following persons at the meeting: Bruce C. Craig, Norman Standfield, chief of police; Hunt C. Frazier, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; and E. C. Melvin, president of the Selma national bank. Mr. Hughes says he was offered $500 before this occurenc to go to Washington and urge a $8 wage for Negroes.

Hides In Bushes

Mr. Hughes did not leave at once, however, delaying until two days later, August 26. That afternoon five carloads of officers came to his house and chased his car which was just being driven away to be filled with gasoline by a friend. When they caught it and arrested the driver, they doubled back to get Hughes, who meantime had been warned by a fellow pastor and taken away in the car of his friend. The two were chased five or six miles out of Selma at sixty miles an hour. Mr. Hughes had his friend slow down to 25 miles an hour in a cloud of dust and he jumped from the car and rolled into a ditch while the whites whirled by after the car which had dropped him.

Mr. Hughes lay in the ditch under bushes until nightfall and made his way on foot to another town where he secured a ride to a large city.

Mr. Hughes is a native of Palestine, Ark. He has pastored churches in Muskogee, Okla., and Louisiana. His wife was Miss Mattie L. Martin of Bosteville, Ark.

@ Courier 10-7-33
Pittsburgh, Pa.

"THEY JUST BEAT HIM TO DEATH," FARMER TELLS REPORTER AFTER ALABAMA'S LATEST OUTRAGE

By SIDNEY WALKER, for A.N.P.

BENTON, Ala., Oct. 5—"They just beat him to death," a farmer furtively informed me. He was speaking of the death of Joe Souls, prominent farmer and independent renter on the Gary Plantation, near here, who was murdered Tuesday morning, August 8.

He died as the result of a beating given him by five white men: Archie Bryant, Edward Mealin, Asa May, and two others whose names are Hall and Geston. They lured Souls to a house on Archie Bryant's plantation and beat and tortured him until he died.

What was the cause? Jealousy. Souls rented the entire farm upon which he lived and sub-rented it to other Negroes. He had twenty tenants. He made the farm pay. Last year, Archie Bryant, one of the white men who helped to beat Souls to death, went to the white agent for the property in Montgomery and made him an attractive offer for the place. The agent, however, refused to displace Souls.

Thereafter Bryant waited for a chance to move against Souls. It came when Souls had a misunderstanding with Jim Ziegler, a sort of foster son who lived on his place. Souls lost a $10 bill and accused Ziegler, in whose clothes he found $6, of taking the ten. This angered Ziegler. He thereupon went to the white men who sought the farm and informed them that Souls permitted stray cattle to pasture on his land and then sold this cattle.

The white men, led by Bryant, came to Souls' house to see him, but Souls was away. When he returned his wife told him of the visit and that the men had left word for him to come to see them. He waited until the next day before doing so. When he met the men they accused him of stealing cattle. He denied the charge. They forced him to take his coat off and began beating him to compel him to confess the charge they made against him. He still refused. After this the white men left and told him he had better own up when they returned. They came back and whipped him again until he was in such condition that his assailants feared for his life. They took Souls to a doctor in Benton, but this man said that he could do nothing for him, that it was necessary to take him to a hospital.

On their way back with Souls in their car, the white men stopped in a nearby field and ordered Andrew Bledsoe to stop plowing, hitch his team to a wagon and take Souls home. Then the white men drove off. Souls told Bledsoe to leave him under a shade tree and hurry home to his wife for he was dying. When Bledsoe returned with Mrs. Souls the farmer was dead.

Archie Bryant and Edward Mealin, two of the white men involved in the flogging, are notorious in this community where they are gossips of other murders to their discredit.

No official action has been taken against them, despite the presence of witnesses to the entire affair.

Birmingham, Ala., News
October 4, 1933

The Tuscaloosa County Lynching Investigations

The failure of the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury investigating the Pippen and Harden lynchings to find sufficient evidence to warrant indictments is disappointing. If Tuscaloosa County had succeeded in bringing the lynchers to justice in this case, the fact would have gone far toward redeeming its reputation in the eyes of the nation.

Let us hope that more success will attend the investigation of the more recent Cross lynching. There can be no doubt that the people of Tuscaloosa County wish to see these crimes punished. The strong support of public opinion in the community should be helpful to the Grand Jury in probing the Cross case.

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald
October 4, 1933

Not The End

Though few will be surprised by the failure of the Tuscaloosa County Grand Jury to indict the persons guilty of the Harden and Pippen lynchings, many will deplore this confession of helplessness at a time when resolute and revealing action was specially needed. The upshot is that a great state having at its command enormous means for the detection and punishment of offenders who have brought so much discredit upon it now declares in effect that it is either unwilling or unable to deal effectively with this problem. There is little comfort in that realization for informed Alabamians.

There is little comfort in the Grand Jury's expression of confidence in Sheriff Shamblin. "Nothing in the investigation reflected on his integrity or ability as a law enforcement officer" is the way in which this particular feature of the Grand Jury's report is summarized in the dispatches. So far as this paper knows, no one has ever questioned the "integrity" of the sheriff. But it is quite a different matter, so far as his "ability" is concerned, at least as it was evidenced in events leading up to the lynchings. If the sheriff's men who accompanied those darkies were equal to their responsibility, the sheriff cannot be held at fault. But if that was not the case, the sheriff cannot escape all blame in this connection.

Somehow The Age-Herald cannot bring itself to believe that the sorry affair has thus reached its end in a sandy delta of Grand Jury platitudes. The new spirit evinced in Tuscaloosa leads one to believe that the force of an aroused public sentiment may yet make itself felt in a satisfactory handling of the Harden and Pippen killings. However much outside interference may have blown upon the flame of popular feeling, the fact remains that Alabama civilization was brutally assailed by the lynchers. Such an affront simply cannot be dismissed. It has already borne an evil fruit. It must be faced with courage and vision, if its lingering infection is not to continue harassing the life of the state.

Alabama

4489

Lynchings-1933
6
Side Lights.

FATHER OF LYNCHED YOUTH, CHIEF WITNESS, DISAPPEARS

Call

12-1-33

Kansas City
Mo.

TUSCALOOSA.—No trace of Dan Pippen Sr., the father of Dan Pippen Jr., who was lynched in Tuscaloosa, and chief witness in his son's case, could be found by the delegation to investigate lynching sent into Alabama by the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners.

Pippen Sr. has not been seen in Tuscaloosa for more than two weeks. Reports that he had been killed have been denied, but all searches for him have ended in failure and the conviction grows that he has been "quietly done away with." Judge Henry B. Foster, interviewed by the investigating group, stated as his vonviction that Pipen, like Willie Jemison, another witness "had left town for his own safety."

The Pippen disappearance is noted only as a single instance of "bitter, flagrant oppression of all Negroes in Tuscaloosa, which has followed in the wake of the four lynchings there," according to Alfred H. Hirsch, secretary of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, and one of the Tuscaloosa investigators.

No Negro Registered

From first hand and unassailable sources the committee which he heads has learned: That not one Negro dared to register this year, although 300 voted in 1932.

That the Ku Klux Klan is parading with increasing fervency in and around Tuscaloosa. In a letter written by a white resident of Tuscaloosa he found the following words: "The Ku Klux Klan ride often. They were down the other night in full regalia, over a hundred strong. Routed a bunch of darkies out...one left and hasn't been heard from since."

That Negroes are now excluded from theatres where they were formerly admitted. The most prominent Negro business men in Tuscaloosa have lost the "favors" formerly extended to them by white attorneys.

That several Negroes whose property "is too good for a nigger" have either been forced to leave Tuscaloosa or have left "voluntarily."

That a Negro who collected funds for the International Labor Defense was obliged to leave Tuscaloosa.

The delegation sent by the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners to investigate the lynchings was subject to open hostility from the deputy sheriffs who refused to be interviewed by them and restrained and suspicious politeness from Judge Henry B. Foster and Sheriff R. L. Shamblin.

Attorney General Thomas E. Knight Jr., refusing to cooperate with the delegation, declared: "If you step beyond certain bounds, I do not know how you will be treated. No one can tell what will happen."

More On Cross Lynching

Further information was obtained on the case of Dennis Cross, lynched on September 24. This man, a semi-paralytic, worked in and around a store known as "Hinton's." Some time before, a Negro had been murdered in the store in a dispute arising over a Negro woman said to have been the concubine of Hinton, a white man. There were three witnesses, all Negroes. Cross was one of these and the others were sent up on charges of having broken into and rifled Hinton's store. They got terms of 17 to 20 years, in spite of the fact that all of the small amounts of supplies taken from the store were found intact.

Cross remained as the only witness to the murder. He was charged with "grabbing" at a woman, but was released on $300 bail, allegedly supplied by Hinton. The small figure is worthy of notice, since had the charge been a real one, no such diminutive sum would been set as bond.

On September 24, men posing as deputies, came to Cross' house, telling him that "something had to be done in connection with his "bond," and took him out and shot him. Next day a local Negro undertaker was told that "there's a dead nigger down the road. You'd better pick him up."

The committee was informed that the automobile tracks leading to the scene of the murder displayed the treads of New Goodyear tires. Hinton's car also had new Goodyear tires.

Further information on the findings of the committee in these two cases is being assembled for publication, in order that the citizens of the entire country may realize the significance of these case, as they already do in the Scottsboro case.

Dan Pippen, Sr., Reported Missing in Tuscaloosa

Afro

1-25-33

Baltimore
Md.

No trace of Dan Pippen, sr., father of the Dan Pippen who was lynched in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and chief (witness in his son's case, could be found by investigators for the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, according to an announcement from the New York headquarters last week.

Pippen, sr., had not been seen in Tuscaloosa, for more than two weeks. Reports that he had been killed have been denied but all searches for him have ended in failure. Judge Henry B. Foster, when interviewed by the investigators, stated as his conviction that Pippen had left town for his own safety.

Coupled with Pippen disappearance, the investigators found several instances of bitter and flagrant oppression of all Negroes in Tuscaloosa. They reported that not one Negro dared to register this year although 300 voted in the 1932 election. That the Ku Klux Klan is parading with increasing frequency in and around Tuscaloosa. That Negroes are now being excluded from theatres where they were formerly admitted and that several Negroes whose property was considered "too good for a nigger", have either been forced to leave the town or have left voluntarily.

Negroes of Decatur Terrorized Daily By Mobs of Klansmen

Daily Worker

9-16-33

New York
N.Y.

(By a Negro Worker Correspondent)

DECATUR, Ala.—Having come into Decatur a few days ago to get the sentiment of the people in regard to the Scottsboro Case, I find that there has been a reign of terror let loose against the Negro masses at the hands of the white ruling class. A Negro, Thomas Brown, was framed up and accused of attacking a white woman Monday, arrested two hours later on Vine St., taken to jail and identified by the white woman as the attacker. A mob gathered at the jail to take the Negro out and he was spirited away to some unknown place, according to the capitalist press, although it is known to everybody here that this boy has been going with this woman for several months, and it could not be rape.

A Negro boy of 16 years of age was shot dead on Vine St. by a mob of Mack men about 50 feet from the place where Brown was arrested. The Klans paraded the Negro sections. Negroes were barred from going through white sections on their way to work. A Negro drug store was broken into.

Fellow workers, it shows very clearly that the white ruling class is laying a basis to make a greater attack on the living standard of the masses. The white and Negro workers are being divided. Lynch sentiment is preparing the ground in order to lynch the Scottsboro boys.

Fellow workers, we must close our ranks—we must fight—we must organize—we must build the International Labor Defense into a mighty defense movement. We must build up a United Front of Negroes and ing and national oppression of the white workers to fight against lynch- of the Negro. J. J.

Lynchings-1933

Side Lights.

Alabama

4490

Lynching Reports Are Proven False

5-10-33

GREENVILLE, Ala., May 9 (AP)—The sheriff's office Tuesday announced that a thorough investigation had shown unfounded reports that a Negro had been lynched at Georgiana on Saturday night for an alleged insult to a white girl.

A deputy sheriff speaking for the office said a young Negro had been whipped after he had replied to a young girl who asked if his Negro girl companion was his girl, "No, you are my girl."

The deputy said he did not know the names of the principals in the case.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
May 10, 1933

Lynching Reports Are Proven False

GREENVILLE, Ala., May 9 (AP)—The sheriff's office Tuesday announced that a thorough investigation had shown unfounded reports that a Negro had been lynched at Georgiana on Saturday night for an alleged insult to a white girl.

A deputy sheriff speaking for the office said a young Negro had been whipped after he had replied to a young girl who asked if his Negro girl companion was his girl, "No, you are my girl."

The deputy said he did not know the names of the principals in the case.

Negro Vanishes; Lynching Hinted

GEORGIANA, ALA., May 7.—(Special)—The whereabouts of a negro boy about 16 years old, who was seized by white citizens early last night after he was reported to have insulted a young white girl, remained a mystery here today, with Town Marshal Peacock and Town Marshal Moore disclaiming knowledge of the incident.

Reports were current to the effect that the boy, after having been seized by the mob, admitted that he made insulting remarks to the girl, whom he approached while she was milking a cow at her home.

Conflicting reports as to what became of the boy are heard here, one report being to the effect that he was lynched and others—considered the most plausible—to the effect he had been given a lashing.

Marshal Peacock said he was not in Georgiana and was not on duty, declaring he was off with Sheriff Winkler at the time. The boy, he said, lived on the outskirts of the town, but he did not know his name.

Sheriff Winkler, at Greenville, said no report had been made to his office but he came to Georgiana tonight to investigate the incident.

Marshal Moore said last night that he "didn't know anything about it and didn't care anything about it." He said he was on duty at the time but as a "sort of nightwatchman," and that such things "were not in his line." He said he was marshal.

Marshal Moore resented newspaper efforts to get any facts regarding the reported mob's activities and said if he "knew the boy's name he had forgotten it."

Huntsville, Ala., Times
May 9, 1933

NEGRO BOY WHIPPED, BUT NOT LYNCHED

GREENVILLE, Ala., May 9 (AP—The sheriff's office here today denied reports that a young negro boy was lynched Sunday night near Georgiana for insulting a white girl.

"There's nothing to it," a deputy sheriff said. "A little white girl about 12 saw a negro boy walking along with a negro girl.

"She said, 'Is that your girl?' And the negro boy said, 'No, you're my girl.'

"Later, the girl told her father about it and they took the boy out and whipped him. That's all there was to it."

The deputy said he did not know the names of the girl or the negro.

Troy, Ala., Messenger
May 8, 1933

Negro Vanishes Following Insult; Lynching Hinted

GEORGIANA, Ala., May 8—The whereabouts of a negro boy about 16 years old, who was seized Saturday night after he was reported to have insulted a young white girl, remained a mystery here, with Town Marshal Peacock and Town Marshal Moore disclaiming knowledge of the incident.

Reports were current to the effect that the boy, after having been seized by the mob, admitted that he made insulting remarks to the girl, whom he approached while she was milking a cow at her home.

Conflicting reports as to what became of the boy are heard here, one report being to the effect that he was lynched and others—considered the most plausible—to the effect he had been given a lashing.

Marshal Peacock said he was not in Georgiana and was not on duty, declaring he was off with Sheriff Winkler at the time. The boy, he said, lived on the outskirts of the town, but he did not know his name.

Sheriff Winkler at Greenville, said no report had been made to his office, but he came to Georgiana to investigate the incident.

Marshal Moore said Saturday night that he "didn't know anything about it and didn't care anything about it." He said he was on duty at the time but as a "sort of nightwatchman," and that such things "were not in his line." He said he was marshal.

Marshal Moore resented newspaper efforts to get any facts regarding the reported mob's activities and said if he "knew the boy's name he had forgotten it."

Troy, Ala., Herald
May 11, 1933

Negro Vanishes Following Insult; Lynching Hinted

GEORGIANA, Ala., May 8—The whereabouts of a negro boy about 16 years old, who was seized Saturday night after he was reported to have insulted a young white girl, remained a mystery here, with Town Marshal Peacock and Town Marshal Moore disclaiming knowledge of the incident.

Reports were current to the effect that the boy, after having been seized by the mob, admitted that he made insulting remarks to the girl, whom he approached while she was milking a cow at her home.

Conflicting reports as to what became of the boy are heard here, one report being to the effect that he was lynched and others—considered the most plausible—to the effect he had been given a lashing.

Marshal Peacock said he was not in Georgiana and was not on duty, declaring he was off with Sheriff Winkler at the time. The boy, he said, lived on the outskirts of the town, but he did not know his name.

Sheriff Winkler at Greenville, said no report had been made to his office, but he came to Georgiana to investigate the incident.

Marshal Moore said Saturday night that he "didn't know anything about it and didn't care anything about it." He said he was on duty at the time but as a "sort of nightwatchman," and that such things "were not in his line." He said he was marshal.

Marshal Moore resented newspaper efforts to get any facts regarding the reported mob's activities and said if he "knew the boy's name he had forgotten it."

MAN LYNCHED IN STREET BY DECATUR MOB

Call
9-1-33
Kansas City

Crowd Sought Tom Brown National Guard Called To Protect Him

DECATUR, Ala. — One man, James Royal, has been lynched by a mob and the life of a second, Tom Brown, is in danger of being snuffed out in like manner in this Alabama town in which the second Scottsboro trial was held.

Royal was shot down in the street by a mob seeking Brown whose life the crowd has sought twice to take.

The sought prisoner is being held on a charge of attacking a white woman, Mrs. George Dugger, the mother of seven children, in Huntsville, Ala. He was arraigned and indicted by a grand jury which set September 4 as the date of his trial and brought him from Huntsville here for "safe keeping". He pleaded not guilty.

Since his placement in the Decatur jail two attempts have been made on his life, in one of which Royal was slain. Following Royal's death national guardsmen were put on duty around the courthouse to protect Brown.

With the guardsmen on duty, the grand jury is continuing its investigation of Royal's slaying. The jurors have been charged by Judge James E. Horton to conduct "a full and impartial investigation" into the death of Royal.

Judge Horton was the presiding judge in the second trial here of Haywood Patterson, first of the Scottsboro boys to be retried. He gained the nation-wide respect of the Negro citizenry for his fairness in conducting the trial amid the prejudice of his southern brethren

Decatur Is Scene of Mob Action

Defender 9-2-33

DECATUR, Ala., Sept. 1. — Armed gangs, following the example set at Tuscaloosa, lynched one Race man here Monday and three times attempted to lynch a second. This is the town where the retrial of Heywood Patterson, Scottsboro boy, was held last April, and to which Judge James E. Horton and Attorney General Thomas E. Knight Jr. insist the nine innocent boys be brought for a third trial in October.

James Royal was lynched by the gang Monday night after Thomas Brown, framed on a charge of attacking a white woman, was moved from the flimsy jail to Huntsville. The lynchers attempted to storm the jail. When they discovered Brown had been moved to Huntsville they went there in cars and demanded that he be turned over to them. In the face of the nation-wide protest against the Tuscaloosa lynchings, Sheriff Ben Giles was afraid to do this. The lynchers departed with a threat that they would return, "a thousand strong," though it was doubted that so many of the white lynch ruling class could be mustered.

Search Jail

They returned a second time, but were again disappointed, as Sheriff Giles feared to turn Brown over to them. In Decatur the lynchers were permitted to search the jail—the same one in which the Scottsboro boys were held last April—to prove that Brown had been taken away.

Defender 9-2-33 Chicago, Ill.

At the time of the Scottsboro trial here the jail was described as one "which could be broken into with a teaspoon" by the authorities. It is used only for our people, all white prisoners being taken to Huntsville.

Royal Shot Down

Royal was killed while standing on W. Vine St., where Brown had been arrested, with three other men. A carload of thugs swept by and fired several charges from a shotgun at the four. One charge struck Royal full in the chest. Frank Brawley, Otis Webb and James Eddie, Royal's companions, were held for a grand jury called for Monday by Judge Horton. No lyncher has ever been arrested here.

Brown was arrested in a pool hall after Mrs. George Dugger (white), mother of seven children, told the police that a Negro had held a knife at her throat and raped her by the roadside at 11:30 Monday morning.

A general round-up was begun by police, who brought Brown before Mrs. Dugger to be identified. He was the first one brought in and she immediately "identified him positively."

Paper Stirs Lynchers

The Decatur Daily, white paper, carried screaming headlines proclaiming "Negro Attacker Identified" and "Woman Is Victim of Brutal Black in Daytime Rape," whipping up the lynch spirit to a high pitch.

The special grand jury called for Monday has also been instructed by Judge Horton to return an indictment against Brown as quickly as possible to railroad him to a lynch trial immediately.

WOULD-BE LEADER PUT ON SPOT BY THOSE BETRAYED; PROBER TELLS INSIDE OF SELMA CASE

Journal and Guide 9-2-33 Norfolk, Virginia

By JESSE O. THOMAS

ATLANTA, Ga.—(ANP) — The complete story centering around the episode involving the Rev. E. D. Hughes of Selma, Alabama, who reported recently that he was run out of town, has not been fully told to the public.

Without any attempt to apologise for, exonerate, or justify the uncivilized treatment that Rev. Mr. Hughes received at the hands of the police department or the mob spirit manifested by the leading white citizens comprising a committee before whom he was called and who instructed him to leave town within twenty-four hours, but in order that the public might know the whole truth, it seems necessary to describe the part that Negroes played in this unfortunate drama.

In Selma is a large bag factory which has been an important employer of Negro labor. Connected with the bag factory, whose president was interested in getting a separate labor code for the Negroes working in that industry, was a colored physician, Dr. N. D. Walker, who served in the capacity of the company's physician. Whenever any of the employees were ill, Dr. Walker was advised by the company and when the visit was made, the company is alleged to have deducted the doctor's fee from the weekly income of the patient and paid the doctor direct.

Physician's Role Told

In lieu of this relationship with the company, Dr. Walker was most active in trying to get the Negroes to request the National Recovery Administrator to grant a separate code providing a subminimum scale for Negroes in the factory at Selma. Dr. Walker and an A. G. McCarroll, (Mr. McCarroll is proprietor of a barber shop in Selma, whose customers are white) and another Negro, who is secretary of Selma University, went to Montgomery and appeared before the public works committee and representatives of the NRA, at the request of F. J. Ames, owner of the factory, in the interest of this proposed "Jim Crow code."

Mr. McCarroll was a member of Rev. Mr. Hughes' Church, but had had a misunderstanding with his pastor and had threatened never to return to the church as long as he was pastor. Rev. Mr. Hughes accuses this Mr. McCarroll of taking advantage of his attitude toward the proposed code and while the white citizens who were afraid that Mr. Ames, the owner of the factory, would carry out his threat to move the mill if he had to pay the salary schedule provided by the blanket code, were incensed, Mr. McCarroll recognized his opportunity to get his pastor out of town.

He is alleged to have told the white people that Rev. Mr. Hughes was a Communist. This gave the police department and "the best citizens" sufficient cause, they evidently believed, for action.

Protected By Police

At this meeting in Montgomery, Dr. Walker is alleged to have stated in defense of the proposed acceptance of the blanket code, that Negro women were not worth more than $4.00 a week. This news finally reached the Negro community in Selma. When the writer was there, the same police department that drove Rev. Mr. Hughes out of town was protecting to doctor's home to keep the Negroes from driving him out of town.

This was one of the refreshing aspects of the whole situation. Negroes have finally gotten to the point, it seems, where these "goats in sheep's clothing" shall be put on the spot.

Not only was this Negro committee unfair to Mr. Ames, but it was manifestly unfair to the Negro employees in his factory.

Rumor was rife in this community that this Mr. McCarroll was identified with another tragedy that resulted in the death of a Dr. Sullivan, that occurred in Selma several years ago.

Future Seems Hopeful

It makes the future of the race appear quite hopeful when this element of our population upon whom the Negro professional and business men and women depend for existence, shows disposition to put them on the spot when it is known that they have misrepresented the masses in interracial counsel.

Whenever the anti-social and intolerant element of the white population wants to exploit helpless Negroes, they are usually able to find a cat's paw to pull the chestnut out of the fire. This man, whom we choose to call the average citizen, if given the information, can usually be counted upon these unauthorized ambassadors at to increase the mortality rate of the Court of St. James.

——EVERYBODY WINS——

Lynchings-1933

Side Lights.

Arkansas.

4491

NEGRO BEATEN BY MOB

Commercial

Taken From Officers On Highway Near McCrory—Officers Injured.

McCRORY, Ark., April 25.—Sam Williams, negro, 30, was taken from Sheriff John Browning and D. V. Massey, marshal of McCrory, on the McCrory-Augusta highway last night by a mob of masked men and severely beaten. He could not be found by officers this morning and is believed to have left the county.

Massey's legs were skinned and Sheriff Browning's left shoulder was pulled out of place by the mob when they took the negro.

4-26-33

Williams was arrested Friday on a charge which linked him with a woman in Augusta. Mob violence was threatened and he was taken from the county jail and kept in hiding in McCrory. His trial was held yesterday morning and he was fined $25 and sentenced to six months in jail. The woman, who testified that she was drunk and did not remember anything, was fined $25.

Officers wer attempting to take the negro to Forrest City for safe keeping and had taken a short cut from Augusta to McCrory. When they drove on the main highway, the road was blocked with cars.. Guns were taken from the officers and they were told to drive on to McCrory, where they sought medical aid.

They heard 50 shots fired and feared the negro had been lynched. Going to the scene later they found no trace of a lynching and it was believed today that the negro had fled the county.

ARKANSAS MOB FLOGS NEGRO PRISONER

AUGUSTA, Ark., April 25.—(AP)—Sheriff John Browning announced today that a group of 250 masked men forced him to give up a negro prisoner last night, flogged the negro severely and chased him out of Woodruff county.

Atlanta, Ga.

Browning said he was taking the negro, Sam Williams, 45, to Forrest City when the mob stopped his automobile. Williams was arrested a week ago on a statutory charge involving a white woman, who later left town.

NEGRO SUSPECT ~~KILLED~~ BY POSSE IN ARKANSAS

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Aug. 19.—(AP) Closing in upon him as for a second time he was [illegible] blood-hounds chasing him, a posse early today shot and killed Henry Jackson, 30, paroled negro convict suspected of a probable fatal attack on a guard at Cummins negro prison farm. The officers said the negro ran when they commanded him to halt.

Constitution

8-20-33

Jackson was sought for an attack upon George Ives, veteran, prison guard, who is in a hospital here with slight chance of recovery. Ives was struck over the head with a heavy timber at Cummins farm Thursday.

Atlanta, Ga.

ESCAPED NEGRO SLAIN

Commercial Appeal

Killed by Posse Near Camden After Officer Is Shot

CAMDEN, Ark., Nov. 1.—(AP)—An escaped negro convict who confessed shooting Proffit Linebarier, assistant fire chief, and committing a series of burglaries in three cities, died today of bullet wounds inflicted by a posse of officers.

11-2-33

The negro, Ernest Morgan, 28, was wounded and captured Monday night by a posse seeking him for the shooting of Linebarier, who with Officer Maurice Cawthon, was fired upon by the negro from a box car in the railroad yards here.

Morgan, who escaped from Cummings prison farm several weeks ago, only a few days before the end of his sentence, was said by officers to have admitted shooting Linebarier and to have cleared up several house burglaries here and at El Dorado and Texarkana. He also was a fugitive from the Louisiana penitentiary.

Linebarier is expected to recover.

Lynchings-1933
Side Lights.

Florida.

4492

POSSES SEEK NEGRO AFTER TWO SHOOTINGS

Constitution
3-18-33
Atlanta Ga.

TALLAH[illegible]SEE, Fla., Ma[illegible] 17. (AP)—Possemen from several cities in north Florida and sou[illegible]eorgia today c[illegible] search which [illegible] all night [illegible] negro who shot and wounde[illegible] persons after several robberies here and in Bainbridge, Ga.

The negro, known here only as "Red," last night shot and wounded Deputy Sheriff Joe Campbell, of Tallahassee, when Campbell and another deputy sought to arrest him for questioning regarding the thefts. The shooting occurred near Lake Hall, six miles north of here.

Several days ago, officers said, the negro shot and seriously wounded Sam Robinson, another negro, whom he held up and attempted to rob. He escaped from city police here yesterday when they tried to arrest him. He dropped a sack of loot later identified as having been stolen in Bainbridge.

A posse was formed here last night following the wounding of Deputy Campbell. The searchers and their bloodhounds were joined today by officers from Monticello and Quincy, Fla., and Cairo, Thomasville and Bainbridge, Ga.

St. Augustine, Fla., Record
May 10, 1933

Wounded Negro Taken to Jail In Duval Co.

Fear of Lynching Is Cause of Removal from Here

Ike Williams, the wounded negro, who was arrested in connection with the shooting of L. L. Knight and Frank Quigley, St. Johns County deputy sheriffs, was removed from Flagler Hospital last night where he was being treated for bullet wounds, to the Duval County jail in Jacksonville.

It was reported that rumors of mobbing and lynching the negro had reached the hospital authorities and county officials, and it was thought best to remove him to the jail in Duval County.

He was taken to Jacksonville last night about 8 o'clock in an ambulance, guarded by Deputy Sheriff V. J. Chauvin and J. R. Quisenberry. Williams was wounded in the abdomen and leg by bullets fired by the late Deputy Quigley, after the negro had shot both deputies.

NEGRO RELEASED AFTER KIDNAPING

Leader of Political Faction at Daytona Beach Claims White Men Beat Him

Telegraph
11-25-33
Macon Ga.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Nov. 24 (AP)—Joe Harris, a Negro leader in a faction of today's municipal election, returned this afternoon from what he described as a night-riding abduction at the hands of unidentified white men who threatened his life.

Shelton Richardson, another Negro political worker, also was kidnaped and released near Kissimmee, near here, Harris said.

Numerous scalp wounds resulted from his experience with the band of men, Harris claimed. He said the abductors seized him and Richardson last night at almost the same time several blocks apart. He said there were three white men each in two automobiles.

Sheriff S. E. Stone began a search this morning for the Negroes and their alleged abductors soon after the report on the kidnaping was made and Mayor Edward H. Armstrong had telephoned Governor Dave Sholtz.

National guard officers said they had received orders from Adjutant General Vivian Collins to "stand by" and inform him of developments.

The return of Harris quieted feeling which had been manifest from the time of the first report, and brought to an end an all night vigil.

Meanwhile, the municipal election proceeded without disorder.

Brunswick, Ga. News
November 28, 1933

Negro political workers were reported kidnaped in a Florida election. They'll probably show up after the votes have been counted and their opponents declared victorious.

Lynchings-1933
Side Lights

Georgia

X X X

4493

WIFE OF SLAIN MAN AND NEGRO HELD AFTER INDICTMENT

Constitution

Negro Is Brought to Fulton Jail for Safe Keeping Following Arrests in Columbus Late Thursday.

2-24-33

Columbus, Ga.

ACCUSED WOMAN IN MUSCOGEE JAIL

Man Was Fatally Shot After He Left Grocery Store on Night of February 7.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Gamble, widow of J. R. Gamble, who was shot and killed here on the night of February 7, and a negro, Andrew Hunt, were arrested here today on charges of murder for the alleged slaying of the woman's husband.

The arrests were made following indictments brought by the Muscogee county grand jury charging them with the slaying of Gamble.

W. D. Layfield, Muscogee county jailer, said he had Mrs. Gamble in custody and that he "understood Hunt had been taken to another jail."

Layfield said Mrs. Gamble was arrested late today and brought to jail, where she has refused to make any statement. She is the mother of two boys, about 6 and 8 years old. She is 36 years old and, according to Layfield, a member of a well-known Georgia family.

She had been conducting the grocery business since the night her husband was shot.

Layfield said Gamble was shot as he left the grocery store. The Gamble residence is next door to the store and Gamble generally went from his store to the residence from the rear of the store, where he was found fatally wounded.

Three negroes have been under arrest as suspects, and Layfield said he had "on several occasions" had a negro by the name of Andrew Hunt in jail charged with misdemeanors.

The Muscogee county superior court is now in session, but Layfield said he did not know if the case of Mrs. Gamble and the negro would come up at this term. He said he had not heard of any attempt to have Mrs. Gamble released on bond.

Andrew Hunt, negro, was brought to the Fulton county tower here late Thursday for safekeeping. The negro was driven from Columbus by Sheriff C. C. Layfield, who immediately returned to the Muscogee county capital.

WARREN COUNTY MOB HAS NEGRO

Lynching

Telegraph

Wounded Man Taken From Doctor's Office After Two Men Are Shot to Death

5-13-33

Macon Ga.

WARRENTON, Ga., May 12 (AP)—A mob of about 50 men took Will Kinsey, Negro, from the office of a physician here Friday night and disappeared after Kinsey had been wounded in a gun battle in which Charlie English, leading white farmer of this section, and Lamar Kinsey, a Negro, had been killed.

Will Kinsey was wounded in the battle on English's farm where the two Negroes were tenants.

Dr. A. W. Davis, a physician, said Will Kinsey was brought to his office and treated for his wounds. He said he left the Negro in charge of a deputy sheriff.

Dr. J. A. Bray, a drug store owner across the street from the physician's office, said he saw a mob of about 50 men enter the office and leave with the Negro. They threk Kinsey into the back seat of an automobile and disappeared, he said.

Sheriff Investigating

When informed of the abduction of the Negro late Friday night by newspaper men, Sheriff George P. Hogan said he had just returned from an investigation of the shooting and had not been informed of the mob's action. He beg an investigation at once.

The sheriff said he had learned English and another man went to the home of the Negroes and the shooting followed. He said Lamar Kinsey and English were killed instantly.

Relatives had already taken Will Kinsey to Warrenton when the sheriff arrived.

White, Negro Slain, Mob Abducts Brother

Constitution

5-13-33

Atlanta Ga

WARRENTON, Ga., May 12.—(AP) A mob of about 50 men took Will Kinsey, negro, from the office of a physician here tonight and disappeared after Kinsey had been wounded in a gun battle in which Charlie English, leading white farmer of this section, and Lamar Kinsey, brother of Will, had been killed.

Will Kinsey was wounded in the battle on English's farm where the two negroes were tenants.

Dr. A. W. Davis, a physician, said Will Kinsey was brought to his office and treated for his wounds. He said he left the negro in charge of a deputy sheriff.

Dr. J. A. Bray, a drug store owner across the street from the physician's office, said he saw a mob of about 50 men enter the office and leave with the negro. They threw Kinsey into the back seat of an automobile and disappeared, he said.

Sheriff George P. Hogan said he had learned English and another man went to the home of the negroes and the shooting followed. He said Lamar Kinsey and English were killed instantly.

Relatives took Will Kinsey to Warrenton.

OFFICERS FIND BODY OF ABDUCTED NEGRO

Constitution

5-14-33

Atlanta Ga.

WARRENTON, Ga., May 13.—(AP) A mob abducted a wounded negro last night after a gun battle in which his brother and a white planter were killed and early today officers found his body lying at a roadside just outside the city.

The negroes, Lamar Kinsey and Will Kinsey, were tenants of the planter, Charlie English, and the fight took place at their home. Sheriff George P. Hogan said he learned the battle occurred when the planter went to question them about trouble with his nephew. English and Lamar Kinsey were killed instantly in an exchange of shots.

Will Kinsey, wounded, was brought here by relatives and Dr. W. A. Davis said he treated him in his office and left him with a deputy sheriff. J. A. Bray, a druggist, reported he saw a mob enter the physician's office a little later, bring Kinsey out, shove him into an automobile and drive off.

Sheriff Hogan said he did not learn of the abduction until he returned from investigating the shooting. A search disclosed the negro's body lying about 40 feet from the highway a little less than two miles from town on the Warrenton-Gibson road. He said he could not say how the negro died but was pushing an inquiry.

The sheriff added that Kinsey had not been arrested. He said he had been informed, however, that Lamar Kinsey fired the first shot and that when English retaliated, Will Kinsey shot the planter. He added he had been informed the negroes were the aggressors in the trouble with English's young nephew.

Resists Arrest Lynched

Chicago Defender

5-20-33

St Petersburg Fla.

St. Mary's Ga May. 20 (By the A. N. P.) John Williams was lynched in Camden county last week He was alleged to have stolen a hog. Seventy-five men in a mob lead by sheriff Cartley explained the murder on the basis of Williams resisting arrest. Newspapers have been conspiously silent.

WOMEN DEPLORE STATE LYNCHINGS

Southern Group Gives Out Statement Condemning Crime in Which Life Is Taken

Macon Telegraph

7-5-33

Macon, Georgia

ATLANTA, July 4 (AP)—Three lynchings in Georgia recently were condemned in a statement given out here today by the state council of southern women for the prevention of lynching.

Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Forsyth, chairman of the council, and Mrs. M. E. Tilly, secretary, issued the statement.

"We can never hope to banish this crime from our country until every citizen realizes that a lynching indelibly stamps his community as primitive and savage," the statement read.

"Public sentiment must demand effective legal action by the courts against the leaders of lynchings before this crime is wiped out.

"Sheriff Jud Griffin, of Baker county, according to the papers, has shown courage and patriotism of a high order in his determination to uncover the persons involved in the two lynchings in his county. The time must come when every sheriff will know that a lynching in his county marks him as a weakling who is unable to uphold the law.

Women Determined

"We women are more determined than ever to pursue our program of education against this crime. We do not want any one to believe that lynchings are for our protection. The causes lying back of two of these lynchings are fights between men. The third lynching had no cause assigned. In all, six persons lost their lives as the result.

"We deplore all lynchings. We condemn them unqualifiedly."

The statement was issued through the Atlanta office of the committee on interracial co-operation.

White Georgian, Tells of Wanton Killing He Saw

Journal and Guide

7-16-33

Norfolk Va.

CHICAGO, Ill.—(ANP) — Accompanied by a plea that his name not be published, the Associated Negro Press received a communication from a white citizen of Warrenton, Ga., last Saturday describing the brutal killing of a colored tenant farmer by a white proprietor in Warrent county recently. The white man's letter, at the end of which he gives his name and address, reads as follows:

"Watson Darden, age 39, was shot to death with a Winchester rifle in the hands of Lovett Cockwell, 35-year-old white man, July 24.

"The trouble started over the plowing of a peanut patch. They had many hard words out there in the field. Mr. Cockwell cursed and threatened to kill Darden. So Darden told Cockwell that he could have the farm and, because he and Mr. Cockwell couldn't get along, he left immediately for the town of Warrenton.

Pursued Victim

Cockwell had gone to his house also. Seeing Darden going down the road, Cockwell jumped in his car and followed and overtook Darden in a valley on a bridge something like 600 yards from Darden's house. There he stopped his car, got out and shot Darden three times.

"Darden didn't have anything to defend himself with, not even a pocket knife. After he had shot Darden, Cockwell turned and went back to his house where he got some men to go down to the bridge and move the dead man and carry he corpse to Darden's house. He did not tell the men who moved the corpse that it was Watson Darden.

Sheriff Does Nothing

"Cockwell then went to Warrenton and reported to the sheriff. The sheriff didn't even visit the scene and didn't offer to do anything. No inquest was held or even mentioned. They had some kind of a secret meeting with Cockwell and told him to go and bury the Negro.

"Watson Darden had a wife and nine children, ages as follows: his wife, Ethel Darden, 35; Jesse James, 16; Alice Neal, 14; William Davis, 13; Nathaniel, 12; John Edward, 9; Willie Joseph, 8; Annie Ruth, 5; Ben Davis, 2, and Steven ight weeks.

"His widow and nine children vere left with nothing to eat. hey are in a pitiful condition. arden was just thrown into the round by the chain gang hands."

Lynchings-1933
Side Lights

Illinois.

4494

Attempt to Lynch Negro Marine Union Organizer in Cairo

Daily Worker
11-17-1933
New York, N.Y.

CAIRO, Ill., Nov. 16.—An atempt to lynch William Westerbrook, Negro organizer for the Marine Workers Industrial Union, who has been leading the strike of 150 Negro dockers on the Federal Barge Lines here, was made early this week.

A lynch mob, organized by the superintendents on the Barge Lines, directly owned and controlled by the U. S. government, came to Westerbrook's home at 2 o'clock in the morning. Only his immediate flight saved him from death.

Failing to crush two previous strikes here, as well as strikes on the same line in St. Louis, resulting in wage increases of the Negro dockers, the bosses are attempting this means to smash the organization of the Marine Workers Industrial Union.

The first step was the blacklisting of a member of the dock committee of the union here. After protesting, a strike was called. The strike was extremely militant and the few who attempt to scab were beaten up. Twelve Negro longshoremen were arrested. The docks are patrolled by armed guards.

The Marine Workers Industrial Union calls on all of its branches to send telegrams of protest to the NRA against the attack on the union by a Federal-owned company, demanding the recognition of the union of the workers' own choice, and a living up to the agreement won by strike.

Lynchings-1933
6
Side Lights.

Iowa

4495

Iowa Farmers Abduct Judge From Court, Beat Him and Put Rope Around His Neck

Times 4-28-33

New York. N.Y.

By The Associated Press.

LEMARS, Iowa, April 27.—A crowd of more than 100 farmers today dragged District Judge Charles C. Bradley from his court room, slapped him, carried him blindfolded in a truck to a crossroads a mile from here, put a rope around his neck, choked him until he was only partly conscious, smeared grease on his face and stole his trousers.

The abduction occurred after the judge had refused to swear he would sign no more farm-mortgage foreclosures.

The farmers entered the judge's court room late in the afternoon to discuss with him hearings which are to determine the constitutionality of two new laws relating to mortgage foreclosures.

The judge requested them to take off their hats and to stop smoking.

"This is my court," he said.

The farmers rose in reply to his demands, dragged him off the bench, slapped him and shook him and carried him bodily out of the court room, through the lobby of the court house and onto the lawn.

There they demanded that he "swear" not to sign any more foreclosure actions. Judge Bradley, about 60, defied the crowd and again was roughly handled.

When he persisted in refusing to give the oath the farmers, most of whom were masked, loaded the blindfolded judge into the truck and carried him away.

About a mile southeast of Le Mars they put the rope around his neck, according to a news correspondent who accompanied the farmers and remained with Judge Bradley throughout the affair.

They then repeated their demands, but the judge still refused, and one of the farmers tugged on the inch rope.

Judge Bradley fell only partly conscious, but still refusing to comply with the demands, the witness said. The farmers dragged the judge to his feet, carried him to the side of the road and threw the loose end of the rope over a sign.

"Make him get down on his knees and pray," one of the farmers said.

J. Lewis

The judge was pushed to his knees and declared:

4-28-33

"I will do the fair thing to all men to the best of my knowledge."

New York N.Y.

One of the farmers removed a hub cap from a truck, partly filled with oil, and placed it on the judge's head. The oil and grease ran down his face and others in the crowd threw dirt which stuck to the oil.

The farmers removed the judge's trousers and filled them with dirt. Then they drove off, leaving the begrimed jurist standing in the middle of the road. Several offered him a ride, which he refused.

His neck was chafed and his lips were bloody, in addition to the dirt and grease on his face and hair.

He was taken back to town in a car by Wilbur De Pree, son of the Rev. J. J. De Pree. Arriving at the Court House he asked to be left alone.

"I'd rather not say," he replied in answer to queries as to whether he would seek prosecution for his abductors.

Sheriff R. E. Rippey appeared on the scene shortly after the judge regained his chambers.

The judge had set today as the date for hearing on the first of several cases brought by mortgage holders to test the validity of new Iowa statutes postponing mortgage foreclosure sales.

Earlier in the day farmers, reported to be the same persons who participated in the abduction, were held off by a crowd of twenty-two deputies at Primghar, Iowa, while Sheriff Ed Leemkuil directed the sale of the John Shaffer farm.

The farmers stormed the O'Brien County Court House, but the efforts of the deputies held them to the two lower floors, while the sale was completed. The farm, 160 acres, near Calumet, Iowa, brought $6,500.

O. R. Montzheimer, attorney for the mortgage holders, was seized as he left the court house and forced to kiss the American flag and to promise not to bring further foreclosure actions.

After returning from Primghar, the delegation of Plymouth County farmers seized Clarence Becker, mortgage-holder in another foreclosure action, carried him to the ball park and threatened him with a rope. Sheriff Rippey persuaded them to disperse and they proceeded to Judge Bradley's chambers.

Insurance companies involved in the suits which Judge Bradley was to hear include the Metropolitan Life, the John Hancock Life, the Equitable of New York, the Mutual Benefit Life and the Franklin Life.

Other mortgage holders involved are the Collins Mortgage Company, Lincoln Joint Stock Land Bank, Federal Land Bank, Fremont Joint Stock Land Bank, Des Moines Joint Stock Land Bank, and the First Trust Joint Stock Land Bank.

The mortgage holders question the constitutionality of the law suspending foreclosure proceedings and the law extending the redemption period on foreclosed property until March 1, 1935.

Troops Stand Guard Where Judge Was Flogged

Advertiser
4-29-33
Montgomery Ala.

LE MARS, IOWA, April 28.—(AP)—Four companies of National Guardsmen in full field equipment ruled this Northwestern Iowa town tonight as an aftermath to an attack Thursday by disgruntled farmers upon 54-year-old Judge Charles C. Bradley because he refused to promise postponement of pending mortgage foreclosures.

Four companies of militiamen from Sioux City and Sheldon arrived at noon with full field equipment, wireless and telephone sets, and machine guns and established headquarters in the local armory. A medical detachment from Des Moines was en route by motor truck.

Col. Glenn C. Haynes, of Des Moines, declared the town would be patrolled by a military guard with customary peace officers superseded, except in cases which should be placed specifically under their jurisdiction.

A second contingent of guardsmen was ordered during the day to Denison, in nearby Crawford County, to establish martial law throughout that area in response to a proclamation of Gov. Clyde I. Herring. The action resulted from a riot this afternoon at the J. F. Shields farm when four State agents and 30 deputies sheriff attempted to carry out a foreclosure sale on a chattel mortgage.

Between 300 and 500 farmers who had gathered at the farm engaged the officers in battle and fists and clubs flew wildly for several minutes. William H Zelinsky, State agent, received a slight head injury and about 10 other officers were treated for hurts.

After the sale had been postponed Sheriff Hugo J. Willy, of Crawford County and County Atty. Andrew Bell petitioned the Governor for troops.

Gov. Herring called out the Third Battalion of the 168th Infantry, which embarked immediately for Denison.

The threat of a third disturbance at the Ed Burband farm near Le Mars, scene of a demonstration in which an insurance company lawyer was threatened several weeks ago, proved unfounded late today. Several hundred farmers reported to have gathered there to offer resistance turned out to be a small group of neighbors.

Sheriff Ralph E. Rippey, of Plymouth County, who was absent from Le Mars yesterday when Judge Bradley was dragged from his bench, abducted by the mob, and roughly handled, declared today a few members of the group had been identified and a thorough investigation is being conducted. He refused to divulge the names.

Terming the abuse of Judge Bradley "an outrage," Rippey added:

"I did not know of the attack until after it occurred. With State Agent McNaughton, I was in the southeast corner of the county at the time. The mob was not all made up of Plymouth County residents. There were also trucks and cars from O'Brien, Woodbury, Sioux and Cherokee Counties."

Replying to a statement which quoted Gov. Herring as terming Rippey a "weak sister" in the incident, the latter declared:

"I feel that the Governor is misinformed. Until the affair yesterday, we were settling our troubles peaceably."

APOLOGIZING FOR THE MOB

Advertiser
5-14-33
Montgomery Ala.

Our esteemed and engaging weekly contemporary, The Nation, of New York, has among many virtues, consistency. It is a jewel. After condemning the courts of Alabama it apologizes in the length of nearly half a page for the white men in Iowa who seized a judge, carried him into the bushes, beat him, plastered his head with greasy dirt and left him, robbed of his trousers, by the roadside. The much berated Mr. C. L. Blease has never exerted an influence favorable to lynch law comparable with that The Nation is exerting. We are The Nation's "constant reader."—Charleston News and Courier.

Lynching A Whole People

Telegraph
5-4-33
Macon Ga

About the most humiliating spectacle that has ever been witnessed in the United States was the work of the mob of lynchers which took Judge C. C. Bradley out of court at Le Mars, Iowa, last Thursday and subjected him to abuse because he would not promise to refuse foreclosures of mortgages which the laws of that state required, and which laws he as a judge was sworn to respect.

This bunch of gangsters simply demonstrated once again how dangerous and to what extremes the mob spirit is carried when it is unrestrained—and it also demonstrates that it is not confined to any particular section of the country. It manifests itself upon every hand, in every class, as witness the minister writing in the letter column of The Telegraph yesterday morning in the spirit of the mob in his prejudging the case of the Scottsboro Negroes who are still in court.

The Iowa farmers, with their democracy and the right to elect their legislators, glibly passed laws which provided for foreclosure of mortgages in the event of failure to pay debts according to contract; under their law they borrowed money and used that money for their advantage and enjoyment. And when pay-day arrived they resisted the terms of their contract, and even went into the court house and dragged the judge out, past the sheriff's office where deputies and others sat, threw the judge into a truck, carried him out on a country road, one of the mob taking a hub cap from the truck, filled with grease, and slapping that down on his head, jeering that it was the judge's crown, while other members of the mob pulled at the rope around his neck, having thrown one end of it over a cross-arm of a pole.

The Iowa gangsters who committed this crime will very probably be run down and handled by the law which they set up and maintained for their own and the court's protection, as Governor Herring placed the disturbed section under martial law and converted a barn into a jail to hold the 60 or more mob members already under arrest. He denounced the sheriff presiding over the county as a weak-kneed sissy and responsible for what had happened.

It is of course unfortunate that foreclosures are resorted to, or that anybody should be in such condition that a foreclosure has to be made. But the remedy is not in mob violence. That is a fool-hardy procedure, and even if it succeeded for the moment, it could not become a permanent remedy—for courts and law have too long obtained and constituted the bulwarks of human liberty for the people to countenance for a moment the flouting and traducing of them. They are our courts, right here in Georgia, that have been insulted and menaced, and with them our liberties have been jeopardized to just whatever extent they are allowed "to get away with it" in Iowa. If such things as this can succeed, then what can Iowa expect in the future as to capital with which to develop herself, for her farmers to finance themselves, for people to be attracted there to live—to move into a country of rioters? And of all the heinous, abominable, ingenious audacity for attacking public welfare, nothing could have excelled the work of the Iowa lynchers.

The mere thinking of the matter is enough to make decent and hopeful people vomit.

Lynchings-1933
Side Lights.

Kentucky

4496

Mob Whips Doctor in Kentucky Town for Aiding His Race

Defender 9-2-33
Chicago, Ill.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Sept. 1.—This town unofficially "laid down the law" to members of the Race who dare battle for a square deal under the new deal in politics last week when a band of hooded men kidnaped Dr. I. H. Miller, who more than likely would have been killed had he not wisely consented to leave the community.

Dr. Miller is well known here as a practitioner and as a politician, and has taken a leading part in the move to obtain recognition for members of the Race under the new national industrial recovery administration.

The physician was abducted, thrown into a closed automobile and spirited to a spot on Cumberland mountain where he was whipped until blood streamed down his body.

When officers reached the scene, having been told where the victim was by some of the mob, Dr. Miller was barely conscious. He later told the authorities there were about 10 men in the party and that he could identify most of them.

Asked if he knew any reason why he was attacked, Dr. Miller said the mob told him he had been too officious in politics.

Besides the severe body bruises resulting from the whipping, Dr. Miller received a sprained ankle and a sprained shoulder. The kidnaping occurred in front of his office.

Citizens here have become aroused over the incident and County Attorney Walter B. Smith has promised a full investigation.

An appeal has been sent to Gov. Ruby Laffoon at Frankfort urging that the state take a hand in the investigation. It has also been intimated that because the efforts of the mobbists are partly directed toward interfering with operation of President Roosevelt's recovery program federal authorities may be drawn into the picture.

Under the new regime Dr. Miller is one of the few Race leaders who have bolted the old system and stood out squarely for a revamping of the general scheme. He is said to have been opposed to a plan that is being fostered here that will deny members of the Race a fair share of the jobs under the re-employment program, and has contended for Race representation in politics according to its voting strength.

The physician has been given protection and guards have been stationed at his home and office. Friends have urged Dr. Miller to leave town or curtail his activities, but he has or curtail his activities

Louisiana

4497

Lynchings - 1933
Side Lights.

Charleston, S. C., News & Courier
October 16, 1933

NEGRO ALMOST LYNCHED

White Men in Louisiana Intercede for Him

(From Yesterday's City Edition)

New Orleans, La., Oct. 14.—(U.P.): A near lynching was revealed here today when Norman Thibodeaux, 10, negro, applied at a hospital for treatment for rope burns on the neck.

He said a mob at Labadieville tied a rope around his neck and swung him off a bridge where the body of another lynched negro was already hanging. He was cut down after two members of the mob interceded for him, he said.

Freddie Moore, negro, was found hanging from the Labadieville bridge Thursday morning. He had confessed to murdering a white girl, and a mob of several hundred men stormed the jail and took him away.

LYNCHED! FREED! CAPTURED! NOW HELD IN MURDER

Courier 10-28-33
Pittsburgh, Pa.

New Orleans Man Has Thrilling Adventure At Hands Of White Justice.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 26—Norman Thibodeaux of this city holds a unique record. On October 11 he came within an inch of being hanged to death by a mob in Labiedeville, Assumption Parish, for complicity in the murder of a white girl, for which one man was lynched. He was strung up and cast off a bridge, but pleadings of a white man caused him to be cut down and allowed to escape.

He made his way to New Orleans and was treated in the Flint-Goodridge hospital for rope burns and bruises of the throat. Upon notification of the peculiarities of the wounds, officers caused the arrest of the man and he recited his tale to them.

The Assumption Parish authorities notified the New Orleans police department that a murder charge had been lodged against Thibodeaux and they requested the police department here to hold him for them.

Maryland

4498

Lynchings - 1933
Side Lights

Gunman Hunted By State Troops

Macon Telegraph

~~Macon.~~ Ga

Company of Maryland Militia on Trail of Negro

3/1/33

CENTREVILLE, Md., Feb. 28 (AP). Governor Albert C. Ritchie Tuesday night ordered out Company K. Centreville's unit of the Maryland National guard, to search for a heavily-armed Negro who wounded one member of a posse late Tuesday and kept up an exchange of shots until after dark with other searchers.

The posse of 100 men including 25 volunteered national guardsmen early Tuesday night believed they had the Negro, Harry Branch, surrounded in a 25-acre swamp thicket near here.

Frank Brower was wounded in the shoulder as he stumbled into a thicket hiding the Negro.

Officers said the Negro was known to have two shotguns, a pistol and a large supply of ammunition.

The Negro had been sought since Sunday for shooting and critically wounding Lillian Giles, described as his common law wife.

Brig.-Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commander of the Maryland national guard, gave Captain William T. Rowe, commanding the Centreville company, orders to aid in the search for the Negro and to protect him if captured alive.

WILMINGTON, DEL.
JOURNAL
AUG 15 1933

WAS NO COLOR LINE THERE

THERE has been a big posse out near Centreville, Md., hunting for a fugative from justice. That posse is composed of white men and Negroes, all ardently desirous of making a capture.

The fugitive is Emile D. Davide, a Negro, 21 years old. He is accused of having slashed Constable Louis H. Perkins mercilessly when the constable was endeavoring to effect his arrest on a warrant charging him with the larceny of a suit of clothes.

Infuriated by the impending arrest, the young Negro drew a long knife and stabbed and slashed the constable three times. That he did not kill Perkins was due more to good fortune than to good intent. He was so desperate that he also took a pistol from the constable, fled into the neighboring woods and escaped.

Perhaps the most striking feature of the aftermath was that when a posse of about 150 men started out to run down the desperado and bring him to justice, fully fifty of them were Negro men who felt that they should show conclusively that they were eager to capture the fugitive even at the risk of their own lives.

That is a good sign on the Eastern Shore where, only too often, there is a show of color-line prejudice and sympathy which makes for ill feeling and bad results all along the line.

Negro Child Killed By Woman Lyncher On Her Way to Orgy

Daily Worker
10-23-33
New York

Mrs. Fred Nelson Runs Down 7-Year-Old Edna Broton

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 22.—A car driven by a white woman lyncher, who took part in the lynching of George Armwood, Negro worker, here last Wednesday, ran over and killed a seven-year-old Negro girl on the way to the lynch orgy, it was revealed here today.

The car, containing also two white men, was driven by Mrs. Fred Nelson of Crisfield. Driving at high speed on the wrong side of the road, it knocked down and instantly killed Edna D. Broten, who had just alighted from a school bus.

The car stopped, but when Mrs. Nelson saw that it was a Negro child she had murdered, she merely left her name and address and drove on, to take part in the hanging and burning of Armwood.

Officials have refused to take any steps or make any investigation. Coroner Edgar A. Jones refused to even comment.

The child, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Broten, Fairmount Rd., Jamestown, Md., was buried Thursday afternoon. Several of her classmates acted as pallbearers.

New Lynch Orgy Threatened In Princess Anne

Daily Worker
12-5-33
New York

Negro Missing After Release as Murder Suspect

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Dec. 4—The stage was set here for another brutal lynch orgy with the discovery of the body of a murdered white girl.

The body of the girl was discovered by two Negro workers about 100 yards from their shack. They at once reported the discovery to the police and were held for "questioning." The two workers were later released, but it is reported that one of them is missing.

The girl's father, Edward Morris, a farmer, said she had been missing since last Friday. On that day and for several days preceding Eastern Shore lynchers were holding wild celebrations over the release by Judges Duer and Pattison of four known lynchers of George Armwood

---

GIRL FOUND DEAD IN WOODED AREA

Telegraph

Strange Case Stirs Community Where Lynching of Negro Occurred in October 12-5-33

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Dec. 4. (AP)—The strange death of a 20-year-old girl today stirred Princess Anne, the scene of October's lynching and more recently the focal point of troops sent to arrest lynch suspects.

The body of the girl, Edna Morris, was found by two Negroes near their shack more than a mile from her home. The body was lying in a patch of woodland, face down, fully clothed.

The girl had been missing since last Friday, but her parents said they had made no search for her because they believed she had eloped.

The Negroes were brought to Princess Anne, but neither was held. Later, one of them was reported missing and reports from the section where the girl lived, five miles from Princess Anne, said a search was being made for him by citizens.

Meanwhile, an autopsy was performed by Dr. Harry Langord, and on its completion he said there was no evidence she had been attacked in any way.

Cause of Death Is Puzzle

Blood was found on her mouth and her nostrils, but he said this might have occurred from natural causes, had she fallen on her face. Parts of the girl's stomach were sent to Baltimore for chemical examination.

Sheriff Luther A. Daugherty expressed the belief the girl had been murdered.

"There are some things about this case that don't look good to me," he said.

The father of the girl, Edward Morris, a farmer, said he knew of no [illegible] would want to take her life. He said she had been friendly [illegible] youth [illegible] Salisbury and when she did not return home Friday he believed she had eloped.

Telegraph
12-5-33
Macon Ga

N. Y. HERALD
DEC 5 1933

Missing Girl Found Dead Near Scene of ~~Lynching~~

Maryland Couple Believed 20-Year-Old Daughter Eloped

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Dec. 4 (AP).—The strange death of a twenty-year-old girl today stirred Princess Anne, the scene of October's lynching and more recently the focal point of troops sent to arrest lynch suspects.

The body of the girl, Edna Morris, was found by two Negroes near their shack, more than a mile from her home. She was lying in a patch of woodland, face down, fully clothed. She had been missing since last Friday, but her parents said they had made no search for her because they believed she had eloped.

The Negroes were brought to Princess Anne, but neither was held. Later one of them was reported missing, and reports from the district where the girl lived, five miles from Princess Anne, said a search was being made for him by citizens.

Meanwhile there was an autopsy by Dr. Harry Langford, and on its completion he said there was no evidence she had been attacked. Despite the statement by Dr. Langford, Sheriff Daugherty expressed the belief the girl had been murdered.

Girl Slain Near Lynching Scene

Advertiser

12-5-33

Young Woman Murdered, Sheriff At Princess Anne Believes; Negro Sought

Montgomery Ala

PRINCESS ANNE, MD., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The strange death of a 20-year-old girl today stirred Princess Anne, the scene of October's lynching and more recently the focal point of troops sent to arrest lynch suspects.

Advertiser

The body of the girl, Edna Morris, was found by two negroes near their shack more than a mile from her home. The body was lying in a pitch of woodland, face down, fully clothed.

The girl had been missing since last Friday, but her parents said they had made no search for her because they believed she had eloped.

12-7-33

The negroes were brought to Princess Anne, but neither was held. Later, one of them was reported missing and reports from the section where the girl lived, five miles from Princess Anne, said a search was being made for him by citizens.

Montgomery
Ala

Meanwhile, an autopsy was performed by Dr. Harry Langford, and on its completion he said there was no evidence she had been attacked in any way.

Blood was found on her mouth and her nostrils, but he said this might have occurred from natural causes, had she fallen on her face. Parts of the girl's stomach were sent to Baltimore for chemical examination.

Sheriff Luther A. Daughtery, who conducted the investigation, said no coroner's inquest would be held until the report from the Baltimore chemist was received.

Despite the statement by Dr. Langford, Sheriff Daughtery expressed the belief the girl had been murdered.

"There are some things about this case that don't look good to me," he said.

Although a search was being made for the negro by a few residents of the county, the opinion was expressed by officials that there would be no trouble for the present, at least not until the suicide theory held by some had been disproved.

Princess Anne, a normally peaceful town on Maryland's eastern shore, has been much in the limelight for several months.

On Oct. 18, a group of persons overpowered a score of State police guarding the jail and lynched George Armwood, a negro accused of attacking an aged white woman.

Last week, after State's Atty. John B. Robins refused to arrest nine men the Maryland Attorney General, William Preston Lane, said were members of the mob, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie sent troops to Salisbury, in an adjoining county, and in expeditions into Somerset County (Princess Anne), they arrested four.

The troops withdrew after a riotous demonstration and the following day the four were freed in habeas corpus proceedings before a hilarious and demonstrative crowd in Princess Anne.

Lynchings - 1933
Side Lights.

Minnesota

4499

Negro Convicted for Self-Defense Against Lynch Mob

Daily Worker

10-18-33

New York N.Y.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 17.—An all-white jury, deliberating only two hours, returned a verdict of manslaughter against William Hardiman, one of two Negro youths on trial for the slaying of a white man, shot when the defendants and two other youths defended themselves against a lynch mob seeking their lives.

When cornered by the mob, the four youths fought back. One of them fired a shot which resulted in the death of the leader of the mob. Although there is no evidence connecting Hardiman with the firing of the shot, and despite the fact that the testimony showed that the lives of the boys were in danger, the jury convicted.

When the jury returned the verdict of guilty, a number of Negroes who still had illusions in the "justice" and "impartiality" of the lynch courts of the white ruling class, broke down and wept. Only a few hours before, David J. Bentall, noted Chicago attorney of the I. L. D., in his speech to the jury, asked: "Are you going to put the stamp of approval on the events that occurred here on the night of the June 22," and the jury, by its verdict, answered that it does.

The I.L.D. has announced its intention of demanding a new trial for Hardiman, and will take the fight to the Supreme Court if necessary. Realizing the importance of the case, which involves the right of a Negro to defend himself against an armed lynch mob, the I.L.D. is appealing to all organizations to support the mass and legal fight for the release of Hardiman and his co-defendant, James Johnson, who is to be tried at an early date. Many Negro organizations and churches in Minneapolis and St. Paul are supporting the fight. The lynch verdict has convinced the Negro people and workers more than ever before of the necessity of a ruthless fight, in alliance with the white workers, against the increasing persecution of the Negro people.

Lynchings - 1933 & Side Lights.

Mississippi.

4500

CHURCH DEACON IS LYNCHED BY MOB OF WHITES

Defender

9-23-33

Chicago, Ill.

Bullet-Riddled Body Thrown on Steps

Leflore Co

MINTER CITY, Miss., Sept 22.—(Special.)—"Let this be a lesson to all darkies." Thus read a sign painted in red on a large cardboard which was placed beside the bullet-riddled body of Richard Roscoe, 39 years old, deacon of a Baptist church here and a well-known farmer, as it lay in the front yard of his home.

A mob of white men, women and children lynched Roscoe Monday afternoon after news spread throughout the community that he had attacked a white man, J. E. Matthews, an agent on the B. G. Humphrey plantation.

Hear One Sided Story

They heard one side of the story and that was how Roscoe had attacked Matthews. And like an eagle swooping down on its prey, the mob rushed into Roscoe's home, dragged him from his bed and fired 35 bullets into his body.

Not satisfied, the bullet riddled form of the victim was tied to the rear of the sheriff's automobile and paraded through principal streets as though the members of the mob were bent on having a Roman holiday.

Later, in order to add insult to injury and to show their contempt and disregard for the law, the mob proceeded to Roscoe's home where they deposited the ghastly corpse on the steps of the house.

Eye Witness Tells Story

According to the story told by an eye witness, Roscoe was picking cotton when Matthews came to him and started a quarrel, declaring that Roscoe was just "too d—— smart for a darky." He kicked Roscoe and when Roscoe objected, Matthews fired two bullets into his body.

Roscoe, it is said, then rushed into the white man and in the scuffle was shot a third time, but during the melee, Roscoe succeeded in biting off Matthews' index finger on the left hand. Roscoe then seized the white man's gun and beat him severely over the head.

Several other men who were picking cotton, came to the scene, separated the two and carried Roscoe to his home to await medical attention. Matthews drove away in his car vowing that he would have Roscoe lynched.

His threat was made good, for less than an hour the mob of 100 or more persons had lynched Roscoe.

NEGRO BANDIT SHOOTS TWO SEEKING ARREST

Commercial Appeal

Posse Surrounds Robber in Canebrake Outside Greenwood

9-16-33

GREENWOOD, Miss., Sept. 15.—Wilford Gaines, son of Deputy Bob Gaines, of Sidon, and Deputy J. D. McClelland were wounded this afternoon as they sought to arrest a negro bandit. The negro is surrounded by a posse from Greenwood and Sidon in a canebreak near Roebuck Bridge, seven miles south of here.

Memphis, Tenn.

The negro held up an Italian peddler. The unidentified negro escaped into a canebreak near Roebuck, and is armed with a rifle. Shooting at officers, the negro wounded Gaines and McClelland.

Young Gaines, brought to the Greenwood-Leflore Hospital, is said to be seriously wounded. McClelland's wounds are not considered serious.

Slayer Of Mississippi Man Sought By Posses

Advertiser

12-30-33

Montgomery, Ala.

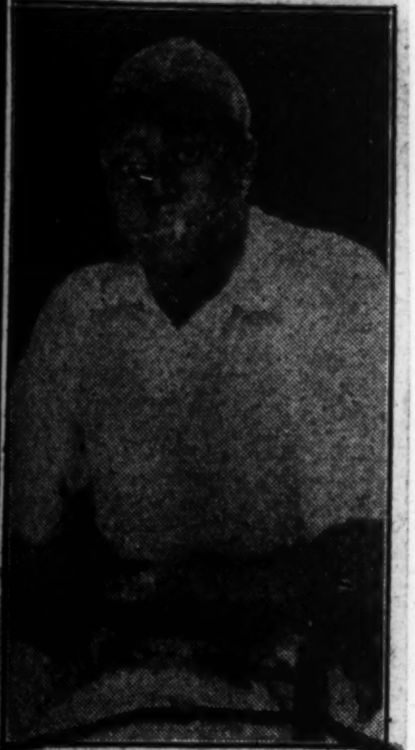
NATCHEZ, MISS., Dec. 29.—(AP)—A search with blood hounds through the forests along the Wilkinson and Adams County line was being pushed late today by an armed posse for the slayer of J. B. Seals, 26, near Buffalo, Miss., Wednesday night. Seals, who was shot from ambush when he stopped his car on a highway to remove a log that lay across the road. authorities were told.

Lynchings - 1933
Side Lights.

New Jersey

4501

Victim of Mob



Because he sought to protect his sweetheart from the lustful passion of a small mob of white hoodlums, Julian Smith, above, was brutally beaten in a Newark, N. J. municipal park recently. The victim received a cut on the head that required five stitches to close, a deep knife wound on the hand and several other bumps about the person. The young woman, Miss Mary Little, also received minor injuries.

The pair were rescued from the attack of the mob by an unidentified white man and woman who were passing through the park in an auto. This attack is another of the series of outrages committed against Negroes here in recent months.—(Co-op Photo).

Journal and Guide

Norfolk, Va.

Lynchings — 1933
Side Lights.

North Carolina

4502

MOB FIRES ON LAWYERS AFTER BLACK JURY PLEA

Afro-American

Durham Lawyers Cite Illegality of the Trial with White Jurors.

10-14-33

DEMANDS MET BY GUN-FIRE

Balto. Md.

Fast Getaway Saves Men from Death.

HENDERSON, N.C.—Forced to flee for their lives in a speeding automobile as blasts of gun fire roared behind them and a barrage of stones crashed against their car, two Durham attorneys were saved from the ire of a mob of angry whites here late last Thursday, after the lawyers had asked a quashing of an indictment by the grand jury because there were no Negroes on the jury.

The attorneys, C. J. Gates and M. Hugh Thompson, made their petition in the case of Beaufort Kelley and Florida Bullock, charged with kidnaping and assaulting Mary Lena Van Dyke, 16, white, several weeks ago. Associated with them in the case was R. O. Everett, white, state investigator, whose car it was that spiried the other two away from the threatening group assembled in front of the courthouse.,

Court Denies Motion

The motion to quash was made by the two lawyers late Wednesday. Their demand for the right to inspect records pertaining to the jury selections in this county was sustained by the court but the motion to quash was referred over to Thursday morning, for further argument and a decision by the court.

Passing in and out of the courtroom and record rooms, as they looked up material they wanted to use, the two attorneys were cursed by white men standing around. Expecting reprisals, they suggested that they be given protection by the court but were persuaded that this would be unnecessary.

Produce Qualified Citizens

Again making their request for a motion to quash Thursday morning, the attorneys produced prominent colored citizens of the city to show that colored people were systematically excluded from jury duty and had so been for 26 years. Everett, the white lawyer, refused to join in this motion and two other white lawyers interested in the case withdrew entirely when the race question was introduced.

Leaving the courthouse Thursday evening, the motion having been denied by the court, the two Durham attorneys found a mob of angered whites threatening them. Everett hastened to place them in his car and drove speedily away, while shots were fired from the mob and stones were hurled at them.

Finds .45 Revolver

An investigation of the mob action was begun Friday by the court, with the bar association promising aid. While white witnesses testfied that the shots sounded like pistols of small calibre, a small boy produced a sawed off .45 calbre pistol with five exploded shells which he had found in a vacant lot nearby, the morning following the attack.

Police told investigators that the firing sounds were from backfiring automobiles but this was later corrected by other witnesses. Two other colored men were struck by stones hurled by the mob.

White Girl Tells Story

At a preliminary hearing following the assault on the Van Dyke girl several weeks ago, she told the court that two colored men, whom she positively identified as Kelly and Bullock, approached her as she was feeding pigs at the sty 100 yards from her father's house near this city.

Demanding to know where her father kept his money, the men blindfolded her, leading her into the woods nearby. Here they struck her, knocking her unconscious, she said. Physicians later said she had been criminally assaulted. The men are charged with kidnaping, punishable, under a law passed this year, with life imprisonment.

Court Protects Lawyers

Continuing their defense of the men, Gates and Thompson were given protection by the court. They are basing their defense along the line of possible mistaken identity, attempting to prove that there are other colored men here who could easily be mistaken for either Kelly or Bullock. Everett is pursuing this angle of the defense.

The trial is expected to be concluded this week. Other aspects brought out thus far include: testimony by Sheriff J. E. Hamlett, white, that in his 26 years as sheriff, no colored jurors had been selected; the attempted discrediting by the court of prominent colored the discrimination charge: a men introduced by the defense in change of venue was denied; editorial comment by the local white paper upholding the custom of excluding colored from jury duty.

This paper said, "It is well known that North Carolina juries are composed of white men. Not for years has a Negro sat on a jury in North Carolina, but there has been no complaint of injustice, for that reason... Had the two Durham Negro lawyers been primarily concerned in acquitting their clients...they would not have raised a false issue."

FIRED ON AT HENDERSON; GET GUARDS

Guide
10-14-33
Norfolk, Va.

White People Resent Raising Of Jury Question

KIDNAPPING CHARGED

2 White Lawyers Drop Case To Avoid "Race Issue"

By SAMUEL TICE

HENDERSON, N. C.—(ANP)—Bullets were the answer of the rabble whites of this county after two Negro lawyers, C. J. Gates and M. H. Thompson, both of Durham, had challenged the Jim Crow jury system of the state last week in their defense of Beaufort Kelly and Florida Bullock, two colored men on trial for kidnaping and attacking 16-year-old Lena Van Dyke, white.

As the trial opened, five lawyers were associated in the defense. Gates and Thompson and R. O. Everett, a white lawyer who is also a representaive in the state legislature from Durham, were to defend Kelly. J. C. and T. S. Kittrell, both white, had been engaged to represent Bullock.

Three motions were made by the defense attorneys: for a change of venue, for a trial before jurors selected from another county, and for a quashing of the indictment because Negroes were excluded from the grand jury because of their race.

White Lawyers Balk

The white lawyers coasted along well enough until the motion on Jim Crow juries was reached. Then the lawyers supposed to defend Bullock deserted, claiming that they would have nothing to do with a case in which the "race issue" was injected, as though there is ever a trial of a Negro in a southern court which is not haunted by the ghosts of either the white man's prejudices or his indulgent paternalism.

Everett remained in the case, but refused to join Gates and Thompson in the motion to quash because of Negro jury exclusion. He also said that he did not want to become mixed up with the race issue.

All three motions were denied by Judge Hugh Parker of the Vance County Superior court and exceptions were taken to Judge Parker's ruling as the basis of an appeal.

Mob Gathers

Thursday night at evelen o'clock after a night session of court, a mob gathered for the purpose of doing bodily harm to Gates and Thompson. While in the courtroom, a white man cursed at Gates. After they had left, a group of whites sought to seize them. They had asked Everett to ask the court for protection, but he did not think protection was necessary and let the matter go.

However, when he saw the crowd of whites menacing the Negro lawyers, he did invite them to get into his automobile. As they did so, both Gates and Thompson told Judge Parker, the whites attempted to seize them. After they were in Everett's car, from 10 to 12 shots were fired in their direction, according to the testimony Friday of H. E. Brown, white, a Seaboard Air Line telegraph operator.

The police of Henderson had reported that the noise of the pistol explosions was caused by automobile backfiring.

Get Guards

Lieut. Lawrence Oxley of the State Welfare Department, in Henderson to observe the progress of the trial, told of a colored boy who had found a sawed-off pistol which was evidently used by one of the members of the mob. This boy was 12-year-old Arnold Price. Five cartridges had been exploded from the pistol.

When Mr. Gates and Mr. Thompson reached Henderson Friday morning they communicated with Judge Parker and asked for protection. He sent two armed deputies to escort them to court.

In advancing their motion to quash the indictment the Durham lawyers questioned law officers of Vance county in reference to the method of jury selection and Negro exclusion and placed competent Negro residents of Vance county on the stand to show that despite their residence in the county and their competence, they were never called for jury service.

Alabama Tactics

As at Decatur, in the Scottsboro trial, so here the policy of the prosecutor, was to go beyond the ordinary test of competence applied to white persons, in a prying effort to show that the Negroes examined had violated the law at some time in their lives.

After the desertion of Bullock by the Kittrells, N. C. Pearce volunteered to defend him.

The VanDyke girl claims that she was feeding hogs about 100 yards from her rural home when two colored men, one with a pistol, approached her and forced her to accompany them to a secluded spot. There they are alleged to have demanded of her where her father kept his money. When she said she did not know, she says they struck her, knocking her unconscious. Later she revived and heard her father calling her.

Identification Attacked

She identified Kelly and Bullock as her assailants, but the defense contends that there are many other Negroes in the county who would fit the description given by the girl.

The trial consumed several days. It began on Thursday, October 5 Latest reports before the Journal and Guide went to press said that the jury was expected to get the case Wednesday afternoon. A verdict was not expected before Wednesday night, and perhaps not until Thursday.

The action is being especially observed by North Carolinians because of the Durham backing it has. That city is supposed to have one of the most progressive colored populations in the state: Out of it within last year have come several challenges against discrimination. One was the effort of a colored boy to enter the pharmacy school at the University of North Carolina. Another is the fight for equal pay for teachers.

Nashville Tenn. Banner
October 6, 1933

Tenseness Marks Trial of Negroes

North Carolina Attorney Says Colored Lawyers in Assault Case Were Fired Upon

Henderson, N. C., Oct. 6—(AP)—Tenseness pervaded the Courthouse here today as trial of two Negroes on kidnaping and assault charges was to be resumed, following the assertion of R. O. Everett, Durham legislator, that two Negro defense attorneys were shot at last night.

Everett, also associated with the defense, charged that at least ten shots were fired at the two Negro lawyers, C. J. Gates and H. M. Thompson, when they left the Courthouse after a night session.

After rescuing the Negroes from a crowd, which also hurled stones, Everett stated, he drove them in safety to Durham.

The attorneys are defending Beaufort Kelly and Florida Bullock, Negroes charged with kidnaping and assaulting a white girl near here several weeks ago.

Gates and Thompson moved Wednesday to quash the indictment on the ground that Negroes were barred from the grand jury and had been discriminated against. Everett refused to join this motion, on the ground that it injected "the race issue," but continued as counsel, moving for a change of venue. Both motions were denied yesterday.

Police, Judge R. Hunt Parker and other officials said they had no knowledge of the disturbance.

"The matter is in the hands of the court and the Governor," Everett said. "I will do nothing to embarass them. The court is able to take care of itself and this thing happened right under the eaves of the Courthouse."

Miss Mary Lena Vandyke, the sixteen-year-old alleged victim of the attack, identified them as her assailants in court yesterday. The state contends Kelly and Bullock came to her farm home when her parents were away, forced her into a woods and assaulted her.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., News
October 6, 1933

NEGRO LAWYERS WOUNDED IN N. C. ASSAULT CASE

HENDERSON N. C., Oct. 6—(AP)—Tenseness pervaded the courthouse here today as trial of two negroes on kidnaping and assault charges was to be resumed, following the assertion of R. O. Everett, Durham legislator, that two negro defense attorneys were shot at last night.

Everett, also associated with the defense charged that at least ten shots were fired at the two negro lawyers, C. J. Gates and H. M. Thompson, when they left the courthouse after a night session.

After rescuing the negroes from a crowd, which also hurled stones, Everett stated he drove them in safety to Durham. The attorneys are defending Beaufort Kelly and Florida Bullock, negroes charged with kidnaping and assaulting a white girl near here several weeks ago.

Orlando, Fla., Sentinel
October 7, 1933

NEGRO LAWYERS FIRED ON AS THEY NEAR COURT HOUSE

HENDERSON, N. C.—(AP)—Judge R. Hunt Parker today ordered an investigation into reports two negro attorneys who sought to have the indictment in a case on trial quashed because there were no negroes on the grand jury were fired on as they left the court room last night.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
NEWS

OCT 8 1933

Poor Timing.

Because in Henderson, North Carolina — a town which has its rougher elements — there are exponents of overlordship who strut their supremacy stuff and fire their pistols when they feel that Negro lawyers are about to trespass in the white man's court, it does not follow that the two colored alleged assailants of a young white girl (the assault was not criminal) are any more certain of obtaining justice through being made the goats of the Negroes-on-juries agitation.

It does not follow, in fact, that Florida Bullock and Beaufort Kelly have between them enough sense to qualify for martyring purposes. The nature and the circumstances of the crime for which they are standing trial itself precludes the possibility that the guilty black-amoors are rational. The only point lies in establishing beyond doubt that it was Florida and Beaufort who did it.

Yet in the face of such a setting, Negro counsel for the accused sought to establish that in Henderson only white people are summonsed to serve on juries. That probably is the truth and the whole truth, and it probably would not be difficult to force the admission that it is true.

But what it has to do with getting Florida Bullock and Beaufort Kelly out of a jam we cannot discover. One doesn't hire lawyers to conduct large crusades while one stares the jail in the face.

Lynchings-1933 X
Side Lights.

South Carolina

4138

Flogging Fatal; Four Are Jailed

2/20/33

~~Macon Telegraph~~

South Carolina Negro Beaten by White Men

Macon, Ga.

AIKEN, S. C., Feb. 19 (AP)—George Jeter, Negro, died Sunday from the effects of a beating given him by a group of white men last Tuesday and four men, his alleged assailants, were arrested.

The men, who are in jail pending an inquest, are Stamp Floyd, Jim Hancock, Jim Patterson and W. M. Hitt, all of the northern section of the county, where Jeter lived.

Officers quoted members of Jeter's family as saying he named those arrested as the men who beat him and said the flogging was inflicted after they had accused him of stealing liquor from them.

Jeter's mother said he told her the four men met him Tuesday, took him into a woods several miles from home and beat him severely. He was left at the scene so badly hurt, members of his family said, that he was unable to make his way home until Thursday.

A physician who treated Jeter said the Negro suffered internal injuries.

LYNCHED MAN A PREACHER'S NEPHEW

Afro American
12-2-33
Baltimore Md.

COLUMBIA, [illegible]—Morris Dendy, graduate of Allen University and leading A.M.E. layman, was lynched here recently while his mother looked on. She tried in vain to dissuade the four white men who were bent on murder.

Dendy was a nephew of Rev. R. Y. Dendy, presiding elder of the A.M.E. Church, and is related to Professor M. Dendy, the principal of Spartanburg, S.C., High School.

Robed Band Murders South Carolina Negro

Constitution
Atlanta Ga.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—George Green, middle-aged negro, was taken from his home at Taylors, near here, early today by a band of men robed in white, shot and left dying.

Authorities said they knew of no reason for the slaying of the negro. They were conducting an intense investigation, spurred on by indignation of citizens in the community.

Green's wife said a band of 10 or 12 men, wearing robes and masks, appeared at the house and demanded that the negro come outside.

Green retreated to an inner room, she said, and warned that he would hit the first person to enter with an ax. The mob hammered in the door, took the negro and fired three shots into his body.

The woman said one of the men pulled off his mask and revealed he was white. She fled and notified officers.

Two deputies arrived at the scene just before Green died but he did not rally enough to make a statement.

40TH LYNCHING OF YEAR IN S.C.

Afro American
11-25-33
Baltimore Md.

GREENVILLE, S. C.—A mob of white men, robed in white, took George Green, middle-aged man, from his home at Taylors, near here, last Friday, shooting him to death.

The group of men left Green dying from his wounds. Officials here deny that they know of any reason for the lynching.

"We Stopped Their Lynching," Young Negro Woman Tells

Workers
New York
12-2-33

Relates How Negro Croppers and White Workers in South Carolina Dispersed Lynch Mob by Determined Resistance

An Interview by Boris Israel

"It was my brother," she tells me in a husky, low tone, which carries in itself a whole world of bottled up determination. "That's how I know this so well."

She is a young, clean-cut Negro woman, slender, supple, a strong mouth, nervous hands, and eyes which can flash surprisingly into fighting flame through their softness. She sits restlessly, telling me of how the workers in the Carolinas had actually stopped lynchings by action.

Rape Accusation

It was her brother who had been accused of attacking a white woman in Fort Mill, South Carolina. The accusing woman had been meeting a friend secretly and, on the point of being discovered one night, screamed that a Negro had attacked her. A round-up was made and, pressed, she had said, "I think that looks like the one."

Storekeepers closed their stores, barbers came out of their shops with their customers and loungers, the pool rooms were emptied, and the world flew through the town like wildfire. From somewhere a rope appeared. It was in the spring of the year and the word travelled, too, through the fields where the Negroes were chopping the cotton and plowing the fields.

Lynch for Lynch

"They threw down their hoes and they said it was going to be lynch for lynch." It all happened so quickly. But when the lynchers appeared [illegible] the jailhouse surrounded by the Negro workers. The orders were announced: "You don't come within a block of this jailhouse. You touch that boy and we will take care of that lying white women."

There was no lynching in Fort Mill that day.

"That was even before we knew how to organize," it is explained. "We just organized for that time because we had to do it. Now we can do it better." Comrade Mary Welch is now a leader of the workers, she is a Bolshevik. She tells again of Greenville, S. C., where the Ku Klux Klan had been maintaining a reign of terror against workers' organizations.

K. K. K. Stops Meetings

"If maybe three or four of us women would stand and talk together on the street they'd come up and ask us what kind of meeting we was holding, and what we was talking about."

Any meeting in a house was raided by these mobs, led by the police and the cotton mill overseers. Then the leaders would be taken miles away from the town, clubbed and beaten and left in the ditch. "Anyways, we kept growing and building the organization," this comrade says, simply.

"Then one white storekeeper picks on one of our members, about his girl—says this young Negro boy has insulted him cause he went with his own colored girl.

Talked Back to White

"Our comrade, he took up for himself and told the man so, and that night they passed around the word to go get that boy and to lynch him." Mary Welch called some of the members of the I. L. D. and the union together. They met in the house of one of the workers.

"I explained to them what it was all about and what the white bosses was fixing to do.

"We decided we was going to stop this here lynching. We said even if some of us do get killed we was sure we could get some of them. We got to defend ourselves." They went to the home of the young prospective victim of the mob and hid him somewhere else.

"It was about thirty-five of us. It was twenty-eight men and two women.

They crowded into the small, two-room home and each took what he or she could for a weapon. "We had chair backs and pieces of wood and hoes and the woman of the house, she had a shot gun in bed with her.

"If they come in to mob us, we're going to fight till we die," they decided. Comrade Welch gave instructions. She explained that they could get guns from some of the mob.

Defend Ourselves

"When the fight starts. Just don't start nothing. But we can sure defend ourselves." They waited. In that stifling cabin, packed in with a space about the door and papers tacked over the windows, they waited.

Cars drove into the street and stopped. The Klan mob was out in force. There were between thirty and thirty-five autos, according to a count made. Two of the white mob leaders, a policeman one of them, threw open the door.

"They was surprised to see us there. They thought they was just going to take that young boy out alone, beat up his mammy and papa and string him up to a tree. They wanted to know what was we doing there.

"They started searching the menfolks but the man of the house he wouldn't let them search him for his pistol. There was a little bit of a rumpus. Then the rest of the mobmen came up there.

I Pushed Him Back

"I jumped to the door and pushed the first of them back and told them they better stay out cause we intended defending ourselves. They looked at the comrade in the bed with the shotgun raised up at them and then they saw another comrade through the door and he had a gun too, so they ran back to their autos.

"Every one of us stood our ground.'

The two mob "leaders" begged to be allowed to leave, they begged for mercy, for their lives, they promised. They left. "They couldn't get out of there fast enough," Mary Welch says, a quick, flickering smile turning her lip-corners up and lighting her face.

We Went Ahead

There is a note of triumph in her voice as she says, "After that time, they didn't try to break up no more meetings. We went ahead and they never bothered us again the way they had been doing.

She tells me of a perhaps even more significant incident in Charlotte, North Carolina, just this year. The organizer for the Young Communist League, a young Negro worker, was accused of insulting a white girl and a mob was forming. Ten white mill workers heard of the plan and spread the word.

Ten white mill workers in the south spread the word: "Lynching. A lynching is scheduled. They're going to lynch the Y. C. L. organizer." And when the lynch mob formed they were faced with workers, white and black, who told them: "You don't lynch him before you lynch us."

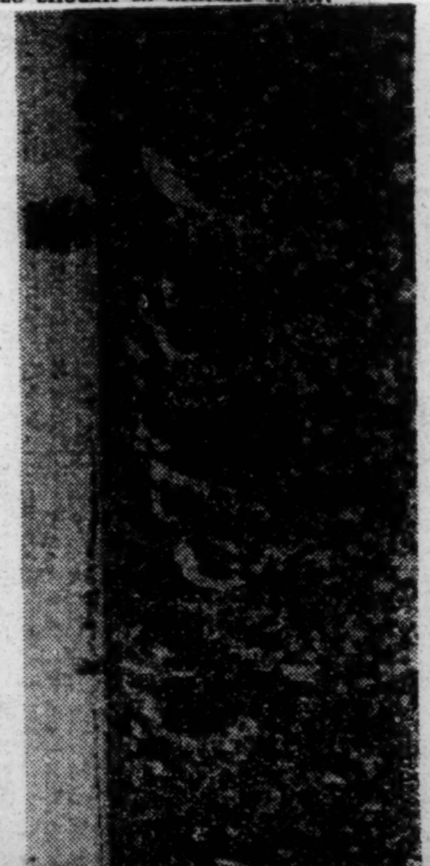
He Wasn't Lynch

He wasn't lynched. Mary Welch explains. "Those men that carry you out and beat you up or hang you to a tree—they don't want to die any more than you do.

"Start right when they start, start before they start, and organize our forces against this lynching.

"If they can organize forces to take a Negro out and lynch him, we can organize enough to prevent them!"

Producing Super-Profits for Wall Street



Negro sharecroppers toiling on the cotton plantations of the South, where they are paid the most meagre starvation wages. Hundreds of thousands of these croppers are practically chained to certain landlords through the use of the landlords system of debt slavery.

Robed Mob Slays Negro

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 17 (AP).—George Green, middle-aged Negro, was taken from his home at Taylors, near here, early today by a band of men robed in white sheets and left him dying. Authorities said they knew of no reason for the slaying of the Negro.

Green's wife said a band of ten or twelve men, wearing robes and masks, appeared at the house and demanded that the Negro come outside. Green retreated to an inner room, she said, and warned that he would hit the first person to enter with an ax. The men hammered in the door, took the Negro and fired three shots into his body. He died before he could make a statement.

The woman said one of the men pulled off his mask and revealed he was white.

N Y Herald
Nov 18 33
Tribune

GREENVILE, S. C.
NEWS

NOV 23 1933

THEY MUST BE CAUGHT

It is highly gratifying to learn that officers feel they are making considerable progress toward establishing the identity of the members of the masked band who broke into the home of a negro at Taylors last week and slew him.

The crime, according to all indications, is one of the most despicable in the recent history of the county and has placed another dark blot upon the reputation of the county—which is already rather badly spotted from homicides and other serious crime.

It is the earnest hope of the citizenship of Greenville county that the efforts of the state and local officers now at work on this crime will speedily be successful in apprehending the perpetrators and in gathering evidence of a character that will warrant their conviction and adequate punishment.

COLUMBIA, S. C.
RECORD

NOV 24 1933

On the Right Road.

Six persons were being detained today in Greenville's investigation of the slaying of George Green, 78-year-old negro shot and killed by a band of masked men, and ~~five of~~ them, all white men, were under arrest on charges of murder.

There is of course no telling from this distance whether the officers as yet may be said to have solved the mystery of Green's murder and it may be that all of those so far questioned in the case are innocent. But Greenville and Greenville's officers, aided materially it seems by the state constabulary, are on the right road. They are prepared to make arrests and the way to end the reign of masked terror in Greenville is to arrest and try the members of the mobs.

Tennessee

Lynchings-1933

Side Lights.

4503

POSSE TAKES TRAIL OF NEGRO ATTACKER

Commercial Appeal

Believed to Be in Hiding in Bartlett Bottomlands

11-4-33

IDENTITY IS ESTABLISHED

Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. R. L. Hartsfield Taken to Doctor After Assault in Bartlett Home—Invalid Sister Locked in Closet

---

The bottomland and the roads near Bartleet were searched unceasingly last night by 60 armed men for a bold young negro who assaulted Mrs. R. L. Hartsfield, locked her invalid sister in a closet, and terroized the two women for two and a half hours before departing with a diamond and sapphire engagement ring, a wedding ring and a wrist watch.

Sheriff's deputies in patrol cars rode the highways while other officers and armed citizens, making a posse of more than 60, tramped through the fields and bottomlands in a relentless hunt for the negro, whose identity, the officers said, is almost positively known.

Efforts to use bloodhounds in the manhuit were unsuccessful, dogs being unable to pick up the trail.

Flourished Pistol

The negro entered the Hartsfield home near Bartlett at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and remained there until 10:30. He attacked Mrs. Hartsfield, menacing her with a pistol, and locked her sister, Mrs. Rose Newman, who is partially paralyzed, in a closet.

Then he leisurely invaded the kitchen, cooked himself a breakfast, ate it and played the phonograph to amuse himself.

He searched the house until he found the jewelry.

He left when a laundry man stopped at the house at 10:30 o'clock.

Officers called Mr. Hartsfield, an employe o fthe Lee Lumber Company, and he took his wife to a physician.

Sheriff Bacon braodcast the negro's description. He is about 25 years old, about five feet three inches tall, is quite black, with kinky oily hair and small ears.

Se was wearing a short army coat(, blue trousers, a grey cap and black shoes.

Lynchings-1933
Side Lights.

Texas.

4504

Armed Posse On Trail Of Texas Negro Killer

BEAUMONT, TEXAS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Armed citizens and officers were spurred on tonight in their search for a negro accused of killing Mrs. Nellie Williams Brockman, 30, and attempting to burn her body with her automobile truck, after a Texas ranger and members of the crew of a freight train shot at a negro who set fire to a railroad bridge early today.

The negro fled from the scene of the blazing railroad bridge near Fuqua, 20 miles west of Mountze, where Mrs. Brockman's body was found last night.

Officers expressed the opinion the killer set fire to the bridge to stop the train so he could board it. As he ran from the brush thicket toward the train two of the train crew opened fire on him and he retreated.

A posse of citizens and officers with bloodhounds plunged into the maze of brush tickets in pursuit, but early tonight, had not picked up the trail.

Although practically the entire male citizenship of the community was engaged in the search for Mrs. Brockman's slayer, no display of mob temper had been made.

Mrs. Brockman left her farm home shortly after noon yesterday to drive alone to Mountze to exchange a pair of baby shoes she had bought. Early in the evening, her body was found, a shotgun wound in the head, beside the blazing truck. The woods nearby were afire, and Mrs. Brockman's body was partly burned.

Lynchings - 1933

Side Lights.

Virginia.

4505

Macon, Ga. News
May 2, 1933

DOUBT EXPRESSED OF NEGRO'S GUILT

Eight Early County Jurors Say They Convicted Powell Fearing Lynching

Eight Early county jurors who convicted William Powell, Negro, on a murder charge in 1922 said in an affidavit read Tuesday to the board of county commissioners here that they did so because they believed he would be killed immediately if an acquittal verdict had been returned.

They expressed doubt of the Negro's guilt in the slaying of the son of an Early county sheriff, for which he was given a life sentence. He has been serving the term on the Bibb county chain gang.

The board of commissioners became interested in the case two weeks ago and appointed a committee to investigate the matter before recommending a pardon. The committee was not ready to report Tuesday.

Attorneys Employed

W. O. Cooper, Jr., and John J. McCreary, Macon attorneys, have been employed by the Negro to present his claim to the prison commission and the affidavits read to the board were obtained by Mr. Cooper.

The deputy sheriff was slain in Powell's own home, the evidence shows, after the Negro had been chased for some distance and taken refuge there.

The eight jurors who signed the affidavit said the court charged that only three verdicts could be returned: guilty without recommendation; guilty with recommendation; and not guilty. They said the Negro would have been killed in the courtroom had an acquittal verdict been returned.

The jurors who signed the affidavit are: W. B. Taliaferro, J. O. Lane, I. A. Walton, W. H. Williamson, M. G. Hayes, J. G. Philman, Willie Clowers, and J. M. Garrett.

Powell is the Negro from whom $1,200 was stolen last November. Records in the camp here show him to have been a model prisoner, Commissioner Troy M. Raines said.

Child's Story of Fake 'Attack' Sets Lynch Dogs on Negroes

Daily Worker

MORRISONVILLE, Va., Oct. 9— Little Carroll Crim, 12, had heard his elders describe with cynical glee the growing man-hunts and lynchings of Negroes on charges of attacking white children. Perhaps a stray word here and there gave Carroll his clue to the trumped-up nature of these charges. Little Carroll decided it would be wonderful fun to emulate his elders and start a man-hunt on his own account. Then, too, he could play hookey and get away with it.

10-10-33

So Carroll stayed away from school one day last week. He spent the day in the woods near here. Late in the afternoon he emerged from the woods, his clothing torn in shreds, with a terrified look in his eye and a ghastly tale of being attacked by two Negroes, beaten, bound and gagged.

Officials and leading business men of Morrisonville instantly seized upon the lynch incitement. Posses were organized to hunt the surrounding countryside for Negroes. Scores of innocent Negroes were arrested "on suspicion" and given the third degree to extort confessions. But Carroll's father kept questioning him for details, and finally Carroll broke down and told the truth. He just wanted some excitement and, in addition, he didn't want to go to school. And he had already learned how easily a man-hunt and lynching bee could be organized against innocent Negroes.

Athens Ga.
Red + Black
10/27/33

Nigger, Nigger; Damned Nigger

A MORRISONVILLE, Va., youth recently conceived of an excuse for "playing hookey" which might have developed into a tragedy. After spending the day in the woods he emerged with his clothing torn to shreds, a terrified look in his eye, and a weird tale of being attacked by two negroes, beaten, bound, and gagged.

Inflamed Morrisonville citizens were soon up in arms. Posses were organized to hunt down the negroes and the countryside was scoured.

Luckily, persistent questioning by the youth's father broke down the alibi.

Suppose two unfortunate negroes fitting the descriptions had been found? It is not hard to visualize what their fate would have been.

Hundreds of southern negroes have met horrible death on less valid excuse. Established law, it seems, is not adequate for protection of society in the South. Southerners feel they are obligated to protect the virtue of women and the supremacy of the Nordic with flaming torch, rope, club, and gun.

The case against the Southern mob would be bad enough if it were only that justice is wrested from established authorities. The tragedy lies in the fact that too often a mistake is made, an innocent life is taken. Frenzied mobs do not give a "damned nigger" opportunity to prove his innocence. An accused negro hasn't a dog's chance once he falls into the hands of a blood thirsty mob bent on murder.

From 1889 through 1930 Georgia led the United States in lynchings with a total of 463. Four hundred thirty-nine of them were negroes. Do you want Georgia branded a state peopled with ignorant blood-thirsty, race-prejudiced animals?

As future citizens it is your duty to tolerate no mob violence and to bring these criminals of the mob to their deserved desserts.

Remember the Morrisonville case.

XTRA
ITION
★ ★ ★ ★

. 41 2 SECTIONS. 16 PAGES.
FIVE CENTS PER COPY.

quiry
Harlem

ERE

Interest should abound for all in the several primary fights to be settled next Tuesday at the polls. Are you familiar with the issues? If not, turn to page 6 and read the editorial, "The Way Out."

EXTRA

MAN SLAIN IN

MOBS ATTACK THIRTEEN MEN IN WIDE AREA

Amsterdam News

Cops Rescue Victims as Crowds Attempt to Kill Them

9-13-33

Two attempted lynchings and a mob attack upon ten unemployed Negroes in various parts of New York on Sunday have been laid to increasing race hysteria. A third man was pursued by a crowd on lower Broadway [illegible] afternoon.

Alvin Alfred, 25, 129 West Twenty-first street, was rescued from a mob in Twenty-eighth street station of the west side I. R. T. subway after an alleged assault upon a white woman. Similarly an attempt to lynch Joseph Whitlock, 105-06 158th street, Jamaica, was thwarted by police intervention.

New York

The attack upon the unemployed men occurred in Hester Park early in the morning. They were set upon by a gang of white men as they were sleeping in the lower east side park.

Alfred was not identified by any of nine witnesses who appeared in court yesterday morning. He is alleged to have been in the women's washroom in the subway station and to have attempted to attack Mrs.

(Continued on Page Two.)

MOBS ATTACK THIRTEEN MEN

Cops Rescue Victims as Crowds Attempt to Kill Them

(Continued from Page One.)

Bertha Carroll, white, 32, 171 Clinton street, Brooklyn, when she entered. Attracted by the woman's screams her husband slugged the alleged assailant and was joined by others in mauling him.

Amsterdam News

Arraigned in Jefferson Maraket Court Monday, Alfred was held as a suspect for identification by women who claimed that they have been terrorized in Central Park recently by a man answering to his description. One hundred policemen joined in a manhunt over the week-end, combing the park in search for the suspect.

9-5-33

Whitlock is now under arrest in Kings County Hospital. He was critically injured from the effects of a beating given him by the Jamaica crowd. His injuries consisted of a possible fracture of the skull, internal injuries, cuts and bruises, and his righ eye practically torn from the socket. He will be arraigned in Jamaica Magistrate's Court on a charge of disorderly conduct as soon as his condition permits.

New York N.Y.

The complaint was made by Thomas Smullen, of 177-22 160th road, who said he awoke about 4 o'clock Sunday morning and saw a colored man peering in his bedroom window. Jumping out of the bed he ran out to the alleyeway, where he captured the man later identified as Whitlock. They scuffled in the dark, and the noise of the fight attracted several other residents, who left their beds and joined in. A nearby Democratic Club, which had been having a Saturday evening dance, contributed a score or more men, who also took a hand in beating Whitlock.

From the crowd, which joined in beating Whitlock, came cries of: "Get a rope." It is reported that several men came to scene with a strong piece of clothesline. Arriving in time to prevent a lynching, Patrolman Vincent Zigmont drew his gun to quell the mob. No member of the mob was arrested.

Severe lacerations of the scalp and painful body bruises were suffered by the men in the Hester Park attack. Stitches were required for the injuries sustained by Edward White, Andrew Finn and Sidney Dense, who were treated at Gouverneur Hospital. Others received special treatment from a physician of the Workers' International Relief.

The Daily Worker, Communist Organ, which reports the case, asserts that officials of the hospital dismissed the attack lightly as a "fight over a woman in the park." Also that police at Clinton-Delancey street station said they had never heard of the affair.

Captured after pursuit by passers-by and police, Joseph Rogers, 36, no home, was arrested and charged with attempted criminal assault. He is alleged to have attempted to kiss a white girl on Broadway near Twenty-sixth street on Monday afternoon.

HOTELS, R

HOTEL
DEWEY SQUARE